^{(1) {} As to what amounts to an adoption of an acceptance, see Wilkinson v. Stoney, 1 Tebb & Sig. 509. Edwards, Ex parte, 5 Jurist, 706. } ceptances.

5thly, Form and Effect of Acceptances.

II. Of Ac- Where the drawee said, "if you will send your bill to our counting-house I will give directions for its being accepted," it was held not to amount to an acceptance unless the bill be sent(p). And in all cases when the undertaking is doubtful, the drawee will be at liberty to rebut the presumption in fayour of an acceptance; as where a bill was sent by post to the drawee for acceptance, and he entered it in his bill-book, wrote upon it the number of the entry, and kept it ten days, and on the tenth day minuted the day of the month on it and returned it, saying he could not accept it, it was adjudged that these circumstances did not constitute an acceptance, it being proved that it was the drawee's practice to enter all his bills, whether he meant to accept them or not(q).

[*300]

*When accepting a foreign bill, especially for a large amount, and without advice, it seems advisable and a proper precaution, to write, "accepted for the sum of £-," naming the sum in words and figures, so as the better to avoid the risk of alteration (r).

Conditional, partial, or varying Acceptance.

If the drawee of a bill be desirous not entirely to dishonour it, he may make such an acceptance as will subject him to the payment of the money only on a contingency, in which case the acceptance is called conditional(s). This is permitted(t), though we have seen that the bill cannot be drawn payable on a contingency (u). The holder is not bound to receive such an acceptance, but if he do receive it, he must observe its terms(x)(1). He should give immediate notice to the other parties to the bill of the nature of the acceptance offered (y), by which means they will not be discharged from liability to pay the bill, in case it should be returned.

Conduct to conditional Acceptance.

It is clear that if the holder of a bill take a conditional acceptance, or an be pursued acceptance in any respect varying from the terms of the bill, he ought to on offer of a give immediate notice to all the parties, and if he omit to do so he discharges

> (p) Anderson v. Hick, 3 Campb. 179, (Chit. j. 855); Wynne v. Rakes, 5 East, 514; (Chit. j. 700); antc, 297; 1 Atk. 611.

> (q) Powell v. Monnier, 1 Atk. 611, (Chit. j. 283). A bill was sent by the post to the drawee for acceptance; he entered it in his bill-book (which was his practice with all bills he received, whether he intended to accept them or not) wrote upon it the number of the entry, and kept it ten days; on the tenth he wrote upon it the day of the month and returned it, saying he could not accept it. And per Lord Hardwicke, "It has been said to be the custom of merchants, that if a man underwrites any thing, be it what it may, it amounts to an acceptance; but if there were nothing more than this in the case, I should think it of little avail to charge the defendant;" but he decided that a letter the drawee had written amounted to an acceptance. And see Mason v. Barff, 2 B. & Al. 26, (Chit. j. 1034). (r) Ante, 282.

(s) Selw. 9th cdit. 327, 328; Milne r. Prest, Holt, C. N. P. 182; 4 Campb. 393, (Chit. j. 951); Anderson v. Hick, 3 Campb. 179, (Chit. i. 855); Langston v. Corney, 4 Campb. 176, (Chit. j. 930); Gammon v. Schmoll, 5 Taunt. 341; 1 Marsh. 80, (Chit. j. 904); Swan v. Cox, 1 Marsh. 176; 1 Pardess. 388, 395.

(t) See Smith v. Abbott, Stra. 1152; Julian v. Shobrooke, 2 Wils. 9, and other cases, post, 301, 302 in notes. (u) Ante, 134.

(x) Per Bayley, J. in Sebag v. Abitbol, 4 Maule & S. 466; 1 Stark. Rep. 79, (Chit. j. 942, 947); and per Lord Ellenborough in Boehm r. Garcias, 1 Campb. 425, (Chit. j. 756); "The plaintiff had a right to refuse this acceptance. The drawee of a bill has no right to vary the acceptance from the terms of the bill, unless they be unambiguously and unequivocally the the same;" ante, 287; 1 Pardessus, 394, 395. Gammon v. Schmoll, 5 Taunt. 353; 1 Marsh.

80, (Chit. j. 904). Per curiam. A man is not bound to receive a limited and qualified acceptance; he may refuse it and resort to the drawer; but if he does receive it, he must conform to the terms of it. See also Parker p.

Gordon, 7 East, 397, (Chit. j. 727).
(y) Per Bayley, J. in Sebag v. Abitbol, 4 Maule & S. 466; 1 Stark. 79, (Chit. j. 942.

947).

⁽¹⁾ Trustees of a company accept a bill to be paid when in funds of the Company. The drawer is not liable until they are in funds and demand has been made and notice given. Andrews et al. v. Baggs et al., 1 Minor's Alabama Rep. 173.

:

--

52

1.0

٠:

:--

ود

them(z)(1). And it should seem, that the holder ought, in all cases, (ex- II. Of Aocepting perhaps in the instance of an offer to accept absolutely for part of ceptances. the amount), to communicate to all the parties the drawee's offer, and ob- 5thly, tain their consent before he agrees to take a conditional or varying accept- Form and ance, or he may discharge them from liability. There does not appear to Effect of Acceptbe any direct reported decision to this effect, but it should seem that a hold-ances. er cannot assent to the acceptor imposing, by his varying acceptance, different terms on the drawer or indorsers and yet hold them liable according to the terms of the bill. In Scotland, if the holder suffer the acceptance to be qualified, if, for instance, he consent to prolong the day of payment, or to take a conditional acceptance, such as "if provisions come to hand betwixt - day of ---- and the --- day of ---," or, "if goods or bills in hand raise the sum," it imports his consent, so as to preclude him from protesting for non-acceptance, but by such prolongation of the time of payment the drawer cannot be affected if he have not given his consent to it, and therefore, it is laid down in Scotland, that the holder loses his resource upon him, in the event of the acceptor's failure before the bill be-So, before the 1 & 2 Geo. 4, *c. 78, as to the receiving an [*301] comes due(a). acceptance payable at a particular place, some judges held, that if a bill be drawn by a person resident in a town on another person resident in the same town, and payable generally, a holder could not, without the drawer's consent, receive an acceptance payable at a distant place, because, though it might not have the effect of prolonging the time of payment, yet it cast upon the drawer and indorser, if the bill were returned to and taken up by him, an additional burthen of proving a presentment at the particular place, and also prolonged by at least a day the receipt of the notice of dishonour(b). it has been suggested, that since the above act, if an acceptance be offered, payable at a particular place, and adding the words, "and not otherwise, nor elsewhere," the holder must not receive it without the previous consent of the drawer, though, without the addition of these words, an acceptance since that act, payable at a named place, may be taken without that precaution, because it imposes no new burthen on any party (c). It should seem, however, that an offer of an absolute acceptance for a part may be taken without previous consent, but as to the residue, immediate notice of the partial non-acceptance should be given.

On the offer of a conditional or varying acceptance, if the holder resolve to reject it altogether, he may protest generally, or give general notice of non-acceptance; but if he is willing to accept the offer, he should then give notice of its exact terms to all the parties, and state his readiness to accept the offer if they will respectively consent. A general or unqualified protest or notice of non-acceptance would, in such a case, evince that the holder did not acquiesce in the offer, and preclude him from afterwards availing himself ⁽z) Id. ibid.; Paton v. Winter, 1 Taunt. 422, (Chit. j. 763); Mar. 17, 18, 68, 85, 86; Poth. pl. 48; Beawes, pl. 221; Kyd, 138; Roscoe, 187, 188; Bayl. 5th ed. 253.

⁽a) Glen. 2d. edit. 115, citing Poth. n. 49; Boucher, n. 1048. And see Outhwaite v. Luntley, 4 Campb. 180, (Chit. j. 932); ante, 188, note (d).

⁽b) Rowe v. Young, 2 Brod. & B. 166; 2 Bligh, Rep. 391, (Chit. j. 1084).

⁽c) Roscoe, 392.

^{(1) {} A conditional or restricted acceptance by the drawee does not destroy the liability of the drawer to the holder, if it be drawn as payable absolutely and in money. Neither will a direction of the drawer to the drawee to charge the bill to a particular account between them, or to a particular fund, vitiate the bill, as regards the liability of the drawer to the holder. Knox v. Reeside, 1 Miles, 294. >

IL Of Ac- of it(d); but not if he was not aware of the acceptance when he caused the ceptances. bill to be noted or protested for non-acceptance(e).

ōthly, Effect of Acceptances.

What is a Condiceptance.

Any act which evinces an intention not to be bound, unless upon a certain Form and event, is a conditional acceptance. Thus an acceptance by the drawee of a bill, to pay, "as remitted for(f);" or, "on account of the ship Thetis, when in cash for the said vessel's cargo(g);" or a promise to accept a returned bill, "when it shall come back(h)," *or to accept "as soon as he should sell such goods(i)(1);" or an answer "that the bill would not be tional Ac- accepted till a navy bill was paid (k);" or "until the ship with the wheat arrived(1);" or "that he (the drawec) would have accepted the bills if he had [*302] had funds (meaning the fund on account of which the bills were drawn); that he had not been able to obtain those funds from France; but that when he did obtain them he would pay the bills(m);" or that the drawer had consigned a ship and cargo to him (the drawee) and another person at Bristol, but that

> (d) Sproat v. Matthews, 1 T. R. 182, (Chit. j. 483); Bentinck v. Dorrien, 6 East, 200; 2 Smith, 337, (Chit. j. 712); 1 Pardess. 394, Spront r. Matthews, 1 T. R. 192, (Chit. j. 433). The drawee of a bill of exchange, when a bill was presented to him for acceptance, said, that a ship was consigned to him and a person in Bristol, and that till he should know to which port the ship would come, he could not accept; but afterwards said, that the bill would be paid though the ship should be lost; the plaintiff noted the bill for non-acceptance. The ship did afterwards arrive, and the defendant disposed of the cargo, and in an action against the defendant as acceptor, Buller, J. held, that the acceptance was conditional only, and that the noting showed that the plaintiff did not choose to take it, and directed a nonsuit, and upon a rule to show cause why there should not be a new trial, the court discharged the rule.

(e) Fairlie v. Herring, 3 Bing. 625; 11 Moore, 520, (Chit. j. 1300); ante, 290, 291,

(f) Banbury r. Lissett, Stra. 1212, (Chit. j. 310). The drawee accepted a bill "for Lissett and Golley, of Leghorn, to pay as remit-ted from thence, at usance;" and it was objected in an action against him, that there was no evidence to show he had a remittance, and that his acceptance was conditional only. Lee, C. J. declared he so understood it, but he left it to the jury, and they found for the defendant upon another point and gave no opinion upon this.

(q) Julian v. Shobrooke, 2 Wils. 9, (Chit. j. 837). The defendant accepted a bill to pay when in cash for the cargo of the ship Thetis; and on being sued, moved in arrest of judgment, that a conditional acceptance was not good, but the court held otherwise, and overruled the objection.

(h) Cox v. Coleman, cited in Lumley v. Palmer, Hardw. 74, (Chit. j. 274); ante, 298, note (h).

(i) Smith v. Abbott, Stra. 1152; Anon. 12 Mod. 477.

Smith v. Abbott, Stra. 1152, (Chit. j. 294). The defendant accepted a bill, "to pay when goods consigned to him were sold." He said the goods, and on being sued upon his acceptance, in arrest of judgment, it was urged that it was not binding, because it was conditional; but the court, on consideration, held that though the plaintiff might have refused to take it, and have protested the bill, yet as he did take it, it was binding on the defendant.

(k) Pierson v. Dunlop, Cowp. 571, (Chir. j. 892). An answer "that the bill would not be accepted till a navy bill was paid," was held a conditional acceptance, to pay when the navy bill should be discharged; and see Mila r. Prest, 4 Campb. 393, next note; and Mendizabel v. Machado, 3 Moore & S. 841; infra, note (m).

(1) Miln v. Prest, 4 Camp. 393, Holt, C. N. P. 181, S. C. (Chit. j. 951); ante, 297, note (y). Gibbs, C. J. said, "If the jury are of opinion that the answer given by the defendant. according to the use of language in commercial dealings, imported a promise to accept the bill on the arrival of the cargo, I am of opinion that the cargo having arrived, the defendant is now liable as acceptor."

(m) Mendizabel v. Machado, 3 Moore & S. 841; 6 Car. & P. 218, S. C. In this case the defendant having received the funds was held liable as acceptor.

If the holder of a bill of exchange, who is entitled to an absolute acceptance, takes a special and conditional one, he cannot resort to the drawer but upon failure of the drawee to pay according to the terms of such limited and conditional acceptance. Campbell v. Pettingill, 7 Greenleaf's Rep. 126.

⁽¹⁾ Where a bill was drawn on the defendant who had received goods of the drawer, for mile. on consignment, refused acceptance; but on presentment, said, 'that if the goods were sold when the bill became due, he would pay it,' of which, due notice was given to the drawer; and before the bill became due, and before the goods were sold, they were attached in the hands of the consignee by the creditors of the drawer; it was held, that the defendant was not bound by this conditional undertaking. Brown & Co. v. Colt, 1 M'Cord, 408. See Schimmelpennick v. Bayard, 1 Peters, 264

1 13

3. 2

.

1150

11 32

· 4 · 7

as he could not then tell whether the ship would arrive at London or at Bris- II. Of Actol, he could not accept at that time(n); or to pay if a certain house should ceptances. be given up to the drawee before a named day(o); have respectively been 5thly. holden to be conditional acceptances, and not to render the acceptor l'able Form and to the payment of the bill until the contingency has taken place (p). But an Acceptanswer by the drawee, that he would pay if another person would not, was con-ances. strued to amount to an absolute acceptance, it appearing that the drawee held himself liable at all events, and that from other circumstances it was not intended as a conditional acceptance (q). And until the case of Rowe v. Young, and the statute 1 & 2 Geo. 4, c. 78, it was not settled whether the drawee, by accepting the bill payable at a particular place, qualified his general liability, so as to render it necessary to present the bill for payment at that place(r). A conditional acceptance becomes as binding as an absolute one, when the event has happened on which the drawee undertook to pay the But it must nevertheless be declared on specially, with an averment bill(s). that the condition has been performed (t)(1).

With respect to the mode of annexing the condition, it is observed, that if a man intend to make a conditional acceptance, and accept in writing, he should be careful to express in such written acceptance the condition he may think proper to annex; for if the acceptance be in writing, but the condition be not, he will not be at liberty to avail himself of it against any subsequent party, if either such party, or any intermediate one between him and the person to whom the acceptance *was given, took the bill without notice of [*303] the condition, and gave a valuable consideration for it; and at all events, the onus of proving such condition will lie upon the acceptor(u). If, however, the terms of the acceptance be ambiguous, parol evidence may be resorted to in order to explain them (x). And where an executrix gave an acceptande for a debt due from her testator, and at the same time took a written engagement on another paper from the drawer to renew the bill from time to time until sufficient effects were received from the estate; this was held a sufficient qualification of the acceptance (y).

A partial acceptance varies from the tenor of the bill, as where it is made What a to pay part of the sum for which the bill is drawn(z), or to pay at a different partial or Accept.

(n) Sproat v. Matthews, 1 T. R. 182; ante, 801, note (d).

(o) Swan v. Cox, 1 Marsh. 177.

(p) Id. ibid.; Clarke v. Cock, 4 East, 73, (Chit. j. 676).

(q) Wilkinson v. Lutwidge, Stra. 648, (Chit. j. 263).

(7) Gainmon v. Schmoll, 5 Taunt. 344, (Ch. j. 904); 1 Marsh. 80, S C; Sebag v. Abiibol, 4 Maule & S. 462; 1 Stark. 79, (Chit. j. 942, 947). See post, Ch. IX. s. i. as to Presentment for Payment.

(s) Banbury v. Lissett, Stra. 1212, (Chit. j. 810); Lumley v. Palmer, Hardw. 74, (Chit. j. 275); Pierson v. Dunlop, Cowp. 571, (Chit. j. 892); Sproat v. Matthews, 1 T. R. 182, (Chit. j. 433); ants, 301, note (d); Miln v. Prest, Campb. 393; (Chit. j. 951;) Mendizabel v. Machado, 3 Moore & S. 941, in notes; Lewis v. Orde, 1 Gilb. on Evid. by Lofft, 179.

(t) Laugston v. Corney, 4 Campb. 176, ance. (Chit. j. 930); Swan v. Cox, 1 Marsh. 176; Ralli v. Sarell, Dow. & Ry. N. P. C. 33.

(u) Clark v. Cock, 4 East, 73, (Chit. j. 676); Knines v. Sir Robert Knightly, Skin. 54; Thomas v. Eishop, Hardw. 1, 2, 3, (Chit. j. 277, 278, 279); Mason v. Hunt, Dougl. 296, (Chit. j. 403); Powerbank v. Monteiro, 4 Taunt. 846, (Chit. j. 889).

(x) Swan v. Cox. 1 Marsh. 179. (y) Bowerbank v. Monteiro, 4 Taunt. 144,

(Chit. j. 889).
(z) Wegersloffe v. Keene, 1 Stra. 214, (Chit. j. 244); Petit r. Benson, Comb. 452, (Chit. j. 204); Molloy, pl. 26; Mar. 68, 85; Poth. pl. 48: 1 Pardess. 398, 399. According to the last work, the holder cannot reject the offer of a partial acceptance, but should receive it and protest for the residue of the amount of the bill. Wegersloffo v. Keene, 1 Stra. 214. A for-

^{(1) {} A conditional or restricted acceptance by the drawee, does not destroy the liability of the drawer to the holder, if it be drawn as payable absolutely, and in money. Knox r. Reeside, 1 Miles, 294. }

5thly, Form and Effect of Acceptances.

6thly, Of the Liability of the Acceptor. [*304]

II. Of Ac- time (a), or place (b). An acceptance may also vary from the tenor, in the ceptances. manner in which the acceptor undertakes to pay the bill(c); as for instance, part in money, and part in bills, or payable at banker's, &c.; this also differs from a bill in its original formation, which we have seen must be for the payment of money only (d).

> The liability which an acceptance imposes on the drawee may be collected from the preceding part of this Chapter, in which it has been shown, that an absolute acceptance is an engagement to pay according to the tenor of the bill(e); and a conditional or partial one, *to pay according to the tenor of the acceptance (f): and a drawee having accepted a bill after a condition annexed thereto by the indorser is bound thereby, and should not pay the bill until the condition be performed (g)(1).

> The acceptor is primarily and originally liable to pay the bill, and the drawer and indorsers are respectively liable in the nature of sureties on his default: it will be found of the greatest importance to keep in view this distinction between their respective situations and liabilities (h). But although eign bill for 1271. 18s. 4d. was drawn on the defendant and he accepted it, to pay 1001. part thereof; he was sued upon this acceptance, and on demurrer to the replication, insisted that a partial acceptance was not good within the custom of merchants, but the court held otherwise, and judgment was given for the plain-

(a) Molloy, 283. In Price v. Shute, as mentioned in Molloy, B. 2, c. 10, s. 20, and as understood by Buller, J. a bill drawn payable 1st January, was accepted to be paid 1st March, the holder struck out 1st March and put in 1st January, and when it was due according to that date, he presented it for payment, which the acceptor refused, whereupon the payee struck out 1st January and restored 1st March, and recovered in an action brought on that acceptance; see also Bayl. 5th edit. 203; but in Paton v. Winter, 1 Taunt. 423, Lawrence, J, observed, that in Master v. Miller three judges against Buller thought there must have been some mistake in Molloy's account of that decision, or that the case was not law, and that Lord Kenyou held the case not to conflict with Master v. Miller, because there the acceptance only was altered, and there was no alteration of the bill itself. See however as to the case of Paton v.

Winter, anle, 189, note (i).
Walker r. Atwood, 11 Mod. 190, (Chit. j.
229). A bill dated 8th April, and no time fixed for payment, it was presented to defendant 18th April, and he accepted it, to pay 8th September, this being stated in declaration, defendant demarred, and insisted that as no time was prescribed for the payment, the bill was payable at sight, and then a promise to pay two or three months after sight was not an acceptance within the custom of merchants, but the court held it was an acceptance within the custom, and the demurrer was over-ruled.

(b) Sebag v. Abitbol, 4 Maule & S. 462; 1 Stark. 79, (Chit. j. 942, 947); Gammon v.

Schmoll, 5 Taunt. 344; 1 Marsh. 80, (Chit.). 904); post, Ch. IX. s. i. Presentment for Payment-When necessary; Cowie v. Halsall, 4 B. & Al. 198, 199; 8 Stark. R. 36, (Chit.) 1099); and per Lawrence, J. in Parker v. Gordon, 7 East, 384, (Chit. j. 727). In l Pardess. 394, the reasons are stated why a holder may refuse an acceptance payable at another place; and see ante, 301, note (c).

(c) Petit v. Benson, Comb. 452, (Chit.) 204). A bill was accepted to be paid half in money and half in bills, and the question was, whether there could be a qualification of an acceptance, and it was proved by divers merchants that there might, for that he might refuse the bill totally, and accept it in part, but that the holder was not bound to acquiesce in such an acceptance.

(d) Ante, 132.

(e) Poth. pl. 164; 1 Pardess. 342, 348; Leftley v. Mills, 4 T. R. 174, (Chit. j. 473.) (f) Poth. pl. 115, 116, 117. (g) Robertson v. Kensington, 4 Taunt. 30, (Chit. j. 834); 1 Pardess. 399. (h) See 1 Pardess. 399; per Lord Mansfield, in Heylyn v. Adamson, 2 Burr. 674, (Chit. j. 349). "There is this difference between the acceptor and the others, that the acceptor, is first liable." Per Lord Mansfield, in Dingwall v. Danster, Dougl. 249, (Chit. j. 401). "The acceptor is first liable, and the indorsers in the order in which they stand on the bill." Per Lord Eldon, in Smith v. Knox, 8 Esp. Rep. 47, (Chit. j. 717). The acceptor of a bill is to be considered as the principal debtor, and the other parties as sureties only." Per Chambre, I. in Clark r. Devlin, 3 B. & P. 366, (Chit.) 674). "The acceptor was primarily liable on the bill to the plaintiff." Per Lord Tenterden and Holroyd, J. in Pownal v. Ferrand, 6 B. & C. 442; 9 Dow. & Ry. 603, (Chit. j. 1327). "The acceptor of a bill is considered as the principal debtor, all the other parties to the

^{(1) {} Wallace r. M'Cornell, 13 Pet. 136. The acceptor of a bill drawn on his letter of credit, and addressed to the payee or purchaser of the bill, is an absolute acceptor and not a guaranter.

Bank of Ill. v. Sloo, 16 Louis. Rep. 539.

ķ

, .. .

2 1 R

+ 337

. . .

. . . 1.

.

1.23

41 -

11

17.0

- - 14

T 42 4 19

...3

, je

3....

he is thus primarily liable, it seems reasonable to hold that he is not liable II. Of Acfor his own debt, but for that of another; therefore, although he is promoting liable, yet it does not follow that in the origin of the transaction he was the 6thly, liable, yet it does not follow that in the origin of the transaction he was the 6thly, of Acceptable was antecedently a debtor(k). And Liability of Acceptable was antecedently a debtor of Acceptable was antecedently and of Acceptable was antecedently and of Acceptable was antecedently and the control of Acceptable was anteceden he is under no other implied contract or liability beyond that created by or. the acceptance itself; therefore he is not liable to pay re-exchange (l), or the costs of actions against other parties(m); and since the late rule of court T. T. 1 Vict. 1838, he is at liberty to stay proceedings on payment of the bill and of the costs of the action against himself only (n). upon this principle of primary liability that the action and proceedings in France are more direct, and less limited against an acceptor than against a drawer or indorser(o).

If the acceptor omit to pay the bill, and any one of the indorsers be obliged to pay a part, he may sue the acceptor for the amount, as paid for his use in part discharge of his primary liability, and the acceptor will at the same time continue liable to another action of the holder to recover the rest of the money due upon the bill, though we have seen that a bill cannot be indorsed for a part, so as to subject the acceptor to two actions (p). It is laid down by foreign *writers, that after a bill has been once completely accepted, the [*305] drawee is liable, notwithstanding it be proved that the drawer had previously become bankrupt, nor will deceit or fraud, unless practised by the party presenting for acceptance, constitute any defence for the acceptor (q).

If the drawee accepted the bill without value, or for the accommodation of the plaintiffs, or one of them, he may resist the payment altogether (r); and he is at liberty to show that the acceptance was partly only for value, and as to residue for the accommodation of the plaintiff(s). But when the bill is in the hands of a third person, who has given value for it, and who became the holder before it was due, the acceptance will in general be obligatory on the acceptor, though he received no consideration, and although the holder knew that circumstance (t)(1); because the very object of an accommobill are sureties that the acceptor shall pay the bill if duly presented." Per Best, C. J. in Philpot v. Bryant, 4 Biag. 720; 1 Moore & P. 754; 3 Carr. & P. 244, (Chit. j. 1387).

In one case Lord Ellenborough treated the drawer of an accommodation bill as the principal debtor, and the acceptor as a surety discharged by indulgence to the drawer, Laxton v. Peat, 2 Campb. 445, (Chit. j. 773); and see 1 Pardess. 341; but that doctrine was over-ruled in Fentum v. Pocock, 1 Marsh. 16; 5 Taunt. 192, (Chit. j. 896); where Mansfield, C. J. said, "Laxton v. Peat is the first case in which it has ever been supposed that the acceptor was not the first and the last person compollable to pay the holder." So in Yallop v. Ebers, 1 Bar. & Adol. 703, Lord Tenderden, C. J. said, "the doctrine in Laxton v. Peat, that an accommodation acceptor might be considered as a surety has been long over-ruled." Ex parte Young, 3 Ves. & B. 40.

(i) Per Lord Eldon, in Bishop v. Young, 2 Bos. & P. 83, (Chit. j. 621); and Priddy v. Henbrey, 1 B. & C. 679; 3 Dow. & Ry. 165. (Chit. j. 1179); and see Rowe v. Young, 2 Bligh Rep. 391; 2 Brod. & B. 166, (Chit. j. 1084); ante, 292, 293.

(k) Id. ibid.; ante, 292, 293.

(1) Napier v. Schneider, 12 East, 420, (Chit. j. 790); and per Lord Tenterden, in Dawson v Morgan, 9 Bar. & C. 620, (Chit. j. 1440); and Woolsley v. Crawford, 12 East, 420, (Chit. j 798).

(m) Dawson v. Morgan, 9 Bar. & C. 618, (Chit. j. 1440); post, Part II. Ch. III. Sed quære if not liable to drawer for costs of action against him. Stovin v. Taylor, 1 Nev. & Man. 250, 251; post, Part II. Ch. VI. Sum recoverable-Expenses.

(n) See further as to Motions to stay Proceedings, post, Part II. Ch. III.

(o) See 1 Pardess. 441, 442, 443. (p) Pownal v. Ferrand, 6 B. & C. 439; Ry. & Mood. 407; 9 Dow. & Ry. 603, (Chit. j. 1327).

(q) 1 Pardess. 401. (r) Sparrow v. Chisman, 9 B. & C. 241; 4 Man. & Ry. 206, (Chit. j. 1422), and other cases, ante, 70, note (1); and see the reasons. 1 Pardess. 465.

(s) Darnell v. Williams, 2 Stark. R. 166, (Chit. j. 998); ante, 70, note (m); 1 Pardess.

(t) Ante, 79, 80; Simmonds v. Parminter, 1 Wils. 187, 188, (Chit. j. 321); Vere v. Lew-

Digitized by Google

⁽¹⁾ An action for money had and received may be maintained by the indorsec of a note against the maker, although the note was signed by the maker merely for the accommodation of the pay-

Liability of Accept-

II. Of Ac-dation acceptance is to enable the party accommodated to obtain money of ceptances, credit from a third person, and therefore the want of consideration furnishes no defence to one who has advanced money on the credit of the acceptor, though he may have been defrauded by the drawer(u). The judgment of Lord Eldon in Smith v. Knox(x) states the law very clearly on this subject. He said, "If a person gives a bill of exchange for a particular purpose, and that is known to the party who takes the bill; as if for example, to answera particular demand, then the party taking the bill cannot apply it to a different purpose; but where a bill is given under no such restriction, but merely for the accommodation of the drawer or payee, and that is sent into the world, it is no answer to an action on that bill, that the defendant accepted it for the accommodation of the drawer, and that that fact was known to the holder: in such case if the holder gave a bon't fide consideration for it, he is entitled to recover the amount, though he had full knowledge of the transaction;" and though the holder of a bill may have received it with full notice of its having been accepted for the accommodation of the party dealing with him, yet he may retain the same as a security for a subsequent balance, [*306] unless the accommodation acceptor withdrew such bill(y). But if a *bill is, 3 T. R. 183, (Chit. j. 455); Master v. Mil-18, 3 T. R. 135, (Chit. j. 435); Master v. Miler, 4 T. R. 339, (Chit. j. 482, 490); Poth. pl. 118, 121; Molloy, pl. 28, and Mallett v. Thompson, 5 Esp. R. 179, (Chit. j. 702); Smith v. Knox, 3 Esp. R. 46, (Chit. j. 617).

See the reason in 1 Pardess. 466.

(u) Id. ibid.; ante, 80, 81; Ex parte Prescott, 1 Atk. 231, (Chit j. 333); Arden r. Wat-Kins, 3 East, 825, (Chit. j. 667); Smith v. Knox, 3 Esp. R 46, (Chit. j. 617); Hailey v. Lane, 2 Atk. 182, (Chit. j. 294); Darnell v. Williams, 2 Stark. R. 166, (Chit. j. 998).

(x) Smith v. Knox, 3 Esp. Rep. 46, (Chit. j. 617); and see the observations of the court as to the liability of an accommodation acceptor in Fentum v. Pocock, Marsh. 16, 17; 5 Taunt.

192, (Chit. j. 896); 1 Pardess. 466.

In the Governor and Company of the Bank of Ireland r. Breesford, 6 Dow's Rep. 233, (Chit. j. 1032); Lord Eidon observes, "The Solicitor-general says, that the Court of Common Pleas have determined (in the case of Fentum v. Pocock, 6 Taunt. 192; 1 Marsh. 14, (Chit. j. 836), that although one receives a bill of exchange with the knowledge that it is an accommodation bill, & c. yet the acceptor is bound to pay, and this decision took place when Sir James Mansfield was Chief Justice, and the present Chief Justice (Sir Vicary Gibbs) was one of the puisne judges. If that went on this principle, that with a view to the benefit of commercial intercourse, you would not inquire into the knowledge of parties, but that all should be taken according to the natural effect of the bill, as appearing on the face of it, I think that a most wholesome principle. And it would not be surprising that I, who have so often contended that you ought always to look only at the natural effect of a bill of exchange, and never to hold that the acceptor was not first liable, should approve of that principle."

(y) Atwood r. Crowdie, 1 Stark. R 483, (Chit. j. 979). A. and Co. bankers in the country, being pressed by B and Co. hankers in town, to whom they are indebted, to send up any bills that they can procure, transmit for account an accommodation bill accepted by D. and Co. When the bill becomes due, the balance is in favour of B. and Co; but the bills are not withdrawn, and afterwards the balance between the houses turns considerably in favour of A and Co. and is so when B. and Co. become bankrupts. It was held that A. and Co. were entitled to recover against the acceptor. Upon a motion for a new trial it was contended, that the bills had not been sent for the purpose of securing a fluctuating balance, but on account of a then existing debt. Lord Ellenborough, " Upon what terms D. and Co. originally accepted the hill does not appear, but the circumstances indicate what the nature of the transaction was; their not withdrawing their bills, or demanding them back, showed that they considered themselves to be sureties." See ante, 220, and Woodroffe v. Hayue, 1 Carr. & P. 600, (Chit. j. 1241); post, Ch. IX. s. ii. Application of Payment; but see Bloxsome r. Neule, MS. ante, 219, note (1).

How far one indorser is answerable over to another on an accommodation note, for the benefit of the drawer, quere. Bank r. M'Willie, 4 McCord's Rep. 438.

What want of consideration between drawer and acceptor is no defence as against third psrsons, see further, United States v. Bank of the Metropolis, 15 Pet. 377.

The acceptance of a bill by the drawee is presumptive evidence of funds of the drawer in but hands. Kendall r. Galvin, 15 Maine, 181.)

ee, and the maker never received either money or any other consideration for signing it. Cole v. Cushing, 8 Pick. 48.

The acceptor is the principal debtor. He cannot assume the attitude of a surety, even when the acceptance was merely for the accommodation of another party. Anderson v. Anderson, 4 Dana, 352. And see Patty r. Milne, 16 Wend. 557.

'n

10.20 10.00

. 1 *

A TOTAL TOTA

....

- :-

. 5 . . .

has been accepted for the accommodation of the drawer for a particular II. Of Acpurpose, which is afterwards satisfied, and the holder have notice thereof, he ceptances. cannot afterwards apply the bill as a security upon another transaction(z) 6thly, (1); and therefore if A. accept a bill for the accommodation of B., which Liability B. delivers over to C., his creditor, to provide for a bill about to become of the Acdue, and C., before A.'s acceptance becomes due, returns it to B. as use-ceptor. less, in order that it may be forwarded to A., and abandons all claim on the bill, he cannot, by subsequently obtaining possession of the bill, acquire a right of action against A.(a). And where the drawer of a bill, accepted for his accommodation, indorsed it for value to his bankers, and before the bill was due became bankrupt, it was held, that the bankers, who knew that the bill was accepted for the accommodation of the drawer, could not recover from the acceptor more than the amount of their balance, as between them and the drawer at the time of his bankruptcy(b). And where the defendant accepted a bill for the accommodation of R. B. who drew and indorsed it to the plaintiff, his agent, and the latter, as such agent, paid it away on the drawer's account for wines purchased for him; and the wine contract was afterwards rescinded, but the holder refused to restore the bill, unless he were paid 150l. due to him on a former account from R. B.; and the plaintiff promising to pay that sum, the bill was delivered to him, and he brought an action upon it against the defendant, as the acceptor; the jury having (z) Cartwright v. Williams, 2 Stark. Rep. 840, (Chit. j. 1023); Fletcher v. Heath, 7 B. & C. 517; 1 Man. & Ry. 335, S. C.; and see Bleaden v. Charles, 7 Bing. 246, ante, 81, note

(a) Cartright v. Williams, 2 Stark Rep. 340, (Chit. j. 1023); ante, 81, not (h).
(b) Jones v. Hibbert, 2 Stark. R. 304, (Ch.

j. 1009). See Smith v. De Witts, 6 D. & R.

120; Ry. & M. 212, (Chit. j. 1244, 1253); 5 Bing. 13. See ante, 80, 86, 218, 219, and Marsh v. Houlditch, post, Ch. IX. s. ii. Application of Payments; and Pease v. Hirst, 10 B. & C. 122; 5 Man. & R. 89, (Chit. j. 1456). If an accommodation acceptance be intended by the acceptor to continue as a security, then it will continue in force accordingly. See ante, 218, note (r).

(1) Where a party indersed an accommodation note for another at sixty days, with a view of enabling the maker to obtain a discount at a bank, and the maker, after refusal by the bank to discount the note, passed it off when it had but 18 days to run, in the purchase of lottery tickets, at retail price, the vendor of the tickets knowing that the maker was not a dealer in tickets, and having been informed that the note had been in the bank, and the bank marks being upon it, it was held, in an action against the indorser, that the circumstances combined were sufficient to have put the vendor of the lottery tickets on inquiry, and that he was thus chargeable with notice of the misapplication of the note, and that the indorser was not liable. Brown r. Taber, 5 Wend. Rep. 566.

A. indorsed B's note payable in sixty days, which it was intended should be presented to a bank for discount; and at the same time he also indorsed mother note in blank and without date, with which it was designed the first note should be renewed when it fell due. The first note was discounted by the bank, and when it became due was not renewed, and was not protested. Twenty-two months afterwards, the blank note was procured from the drawer by the cashier of the bank, who dated it, and laid it before the directors to be discounted, in renewal of the first note; it was discounted, and when it became due was protested for non-payment; of which regular notice was given to the drawer. Held, that if the cashier, as the agent of the bank, procured the second note by improper means from the drawer, and contrary to the original design of the indorser, when he put it into the possession of the drawer, the bank could not recover in an action against the indorser. Bank v. Irvine, 3 Penn. Rep. 250.

Where the indorsers of an accommodation note lend their names to the drawer, without any limitation or restriction as to the manner in which the note is to be used, he has a right to apply it to the payment or security of an antecedent debt, or to sustain his credit in any other way.

Grandin v. Le Roy, 2 Paige's Chan. Rep. 509.

Where a note is made payable to a bank by its corporate name, for the purpose of raising money upon it at such bank to pay and satisfy a particular debt, and the debtor procures a third person to become a joint maker of the note, who signs the same "A. B. surety," and the bank refuse to discount the note, the creditor, for whose benefit the note was made, may, with the assent of the bank, maintain an action upon it, in the name of the bank, against the makers, although the note was not discounted at the bank in pursuance of the original intention. The Utica Bank v Ganson et al., 10 Wend. Rep. 814.

6thly, Of the Liability of the Acceptor

II. Of Ac- found a verdict for the defendant, the court refused to set it aside or allow it ceptances. to be entered for the plaintiff for 150l. the sum he had become liable to pay on the bill being given up to him(c). So where A. accepted bills for the accommodation of B., who discounted them with his bankers, and the latter became bankrupt before the bills were due, being indebted to B. in a cash balance exceeding the amount of the bills; upon the joint petition of A. and B. it was held, that the assignees were not entitled to sue A. upon these bills, and that the bills ought to be delivered to B. in part discharge of the balance due to him(d). And where it can be shown that the plaintiffs are agents for a third person, who ought not in justice to recover the amount of [*307] the bill, such proof will defeat the action(e); and no action *can be sustained against the acceptor, if when he had thereby been compelled to pay the bill, it would necessarily lead to some sustainable action against the very party to whom he made the payment, to recover back the money, it being a maxim that the law abhors and will not give effect to circuity of action, which can be productive of no substantial benefit (f).

Executor.

A general unqualified acceptance by an executor on account of debts due from his testator, is an admission of assets, and will therefore make him personally responsible in case there be no effects of the testator in his hands(g).

In case of Forgery.

It is no defence for an acceptor to an action by a bonû fide holder, that the drawer's name has been forged(h); and if the drawee, on being asked if the

(c) Hallett v. Dewes, 1 Moore & P. 79; 6 234, 235; 1 Tyr. 84, S. C. Bayley, B. said, Law J. 32, C. P.

(d) In re Sikes & Co. 4 Law J. 195, Chan. Cas. April and June, 1826.

(e) Lee v. Zagury, 8 Taunt. 114; 1 Moore, 556, (Chit. j. 1003); and see Harrhy v. Wall,

2 Stark. R. 195, (Chit. j. 999).

(f) Carr v. Stephens, 9 B. & C. 758; 4 Man. & Ry. 591, (Chit. j. 1444). A receiver of the rents of an estate, to a share of which a married woman was entitled, having in his hands money due to her, by the direction of the husband accepted a bill on the faith of that fund, drawn by a creditor of the husband for money lent to him. Before the bill became due, the husband and wife gave a joint direction to the receiver to pay over the money to a third person, which he did before the commencement of this action. When the bill became due the acceptor refused to pay it, unless the drawer would indemnify him against the claim of the husband and wife to have the money paid according to their order. An indemnity was given, but the acceptor still refused to pay; and it was held, that the drawer could not maintain an action on the bill, as it would only lead to a circuity of action, as the acceptor being bound to pay the money according to the order of the husband and wife, might recover it back by suing on the agreement to indemnify.

(g) See King v. Thom, 1 T. R. 487, (Chit. j. 438); ante, 201, note (k); Aspinall v. Wake, 10 Bing. 51, 55, 56; 3 Moore & S. 423, S. C.; and in Ridout v. Bristow, 1 Cromp. & Jer. 231,

"If an administratrix take upon herself to give a security which may have the effect of inducing forbearance, and which purports to bind her individually, is it competent for her to say, you must prove assets? To my mind the act of giving such a security supersedes the necessity of an investigation as to there being assets. It seems to me, that the words 'value received by my late husband' do not make the proof of assets necessary; and I go still further and say, that it was not competent for her to show that there were no assets." And see ante, 69, 70, note (k), as to the sufficiency of the considera-

What not evidence to charge a party as executor de son tort, Serle v. Waterworth, 4 M. &

(h) Price v. Neal, 3 Burr. 1354; 1 Bla. R. 390, (Chit. j. 364, 365). Two forged bills were drawn upon the plaintiff, which he accepted and paid; on discovering the forgery, he brought this action for money had and received, to recover back the money. At the trial the jury found a verdict for the plaintiff; and on a case reserved, Lord Mansfield said, " It is incumbent on the plaintiff to be satisfied that the bills drawn upon him were the drawer's hand-writing, before he accepted and paid it them; but it is not incumbent on the defendant to inquire into it." See also Smith v. Mercer, 1 Marsh. 453, 6 Taunt. 74, (Chit. j. 923); ante, 261, n. (u); and Jones v. Ryde, 1 Marsh. 160, (Chit. j. 906); Barber v. Gingle, 8 Esp.

⁽¹⁾ The holder of a note payable to bearer, in possession of the payee after due, cannot maintain an action upon it against the maker, if the payee be a mere agent, and the persons having the beneficial interest in the note forbid its payment to him. Comstock v. Hoag, 5 Wend. Rep. 600.

1

1 1 2

·, * 14

J. 7.

10.1

147

. . . . ¥

שנה

.....

... 15

المراجع

1 · £

100 E

acceptance be in his hand-writing, answers that it is, and that it will be duly II. Of Acpaid, he cannot afterwards set up as a defence forgery of his name, for he ceptances. has accredited the bill, and induced another to take it(i)(1). If the holder 6thly, of a bill, the acceptance of which turns out *to have been forged by an in- Of the dorser, delivered it up to him, and receive a fresh bill, he may recover upon Liubility the latter, unless there was an agreement between him and such indorser to ceptor. stifle a prosecution for the forgery (k).

[*308]

A complete acceptance communicated to the holder is not revocable(1); When an even with the consent of the holder, because the drawer and indorsers are Acceptintersected(m). Nor can the authority to pay be countermanded, except in ance is rethe case of loss on the bill(n). And it was for some time doubted, whether, if the drawee had inconsiderately written his acceptance on the bill, he could, even before the holder was apprised thereof, cancel such acceptance(o).

Rep. 60, (Chit. j. 618); East Inda Company v. Tritton, 5 D. & R. 214; 3 Bar. & C. 290, (Chit. j. 1216); Fuller v. Smith, Ry. & Mood. 49: 1 Car. & P. 197, (Chit. j. 1205). More fully, post, Ch. IX. s. ii. Payment by Mistake, where money paid on a forged bill is recovera-

Wilkinson v. Lutridge, Stra. 613, (Chit. j. 263). In an action against the acceptor of a bill, Raymond, C. J. allowed the plaintiff to read the bill, without proving the drawer's hand, because he thought the acceptance a sufficient acknowledgment on the part of the defendant; but he said it would not be conclusive; and if the defendant could show to the contrary, the reading of the bill should not preclude him. In Jenys v. Fowler, 2 Stra. 946, (Chit. j. 272), however, the same learned judge rejected evidence to show that it was not the drawer's hand, and strongly inclined to think that actual proof of forgery would not exonerate the defendant. And in Smith v. Chester, 1 T. R. 655, (Chit. j. 439), Buller, J. said, "that when a bill is presented for acceptance, the acceptor looks to the hand-writing of the drawer, which he is afterwards precluded from disputing, and it is on that account he is liable, even though the bill is forged."

Per Dampier, J. in Bass v. Clive, 4 M. & Sel. 15, (Chit. j. 930). Suppose the drawer's name is forged, yet if the drawee accept the bill, he is precluded from averring, as against strangers, that it is a forgery.

(i) Leach v. Buchanan, 4 Esp. Rep. 226, (Chit. j. 657). The plaintiff, before he took the bill, sent a person with it to the defendant to inquire whether the acceptance upon it were his hand-writing; the defendant said that it was, and that it would be duly paid. He now offered evidence of the actual forgery of the acceptance: but Lord Ellenborough held, that that proof would not discharge the defendant; that after having so accredited the bill and induced a person to take it he was bound to pay it. Verdict for the plaintiff.

Cooper v. Le Blanc, 2 Stra. 1051, (Chit. j. The plaintiff, on discounting a note, sent to the defendant to know whether an indorsement on it was his, and the defendant said it was, and the note would be paid when due; he would, notwithstanding, have given evidence, by similitude of hands, that the indorsement was a forgery, but Lord Hardwicke would not allow it; he seemed inclined, however, to admit proof of actual forgery, but the defendant could not adduce it, and the plaintiff had a verdict. See Wilkinson v. Lutwidge, Stra. 648, (Chit. j. 286).

(k) Wallace v. Hardacre, 1 Campb. 45, (Ch.

j. 740). See ante, 83, note (b).
(l) Marius, 93; Molloy, B. 2, chap. 10, pl.
28. Laws of Hamburgh, Article 7; 1 Pardessus, 400.

(m) 1 Pardessus, 400, 401.

(n) Id. 427. (o) Thornton v. Dick, 4 Esp. Rep. 270, (Chit. j. 761); Raper v. Birbeck, 15 East, 17, (Chit. j. 851); Bentick v. Dorrien, 6 East, 129; 2 Smith, 337, (Chit. j. 712); post, 309, note

⁽¹⁾ It seems that if the drawee accept a forged bill in the hands of a bona fide holder, he is bound by it; for he is presumed to know the handwriting of the drawer, and by his acceptance to take this knowledge upon himself. Levy v. Bank of the United States, 4 Dall. 234. S. C. 1 Binn. 27. At all events if he pay the bill, he cannot recover the money back. Ibid. And if a bank once pay a forged check, or carry it to the credit of the holder, it is conclusive upon the bank. Ibid.

A bank is entitled to recover against the second indorser of a note discounted by the bank, although the indorsement of the name of the payee is a forgery, and although the note was offered for discount by the maker, and not by the second indorser. State Bank v. Fearing, 16 Pick.

Where a bill is assignable only by indorsement, a person who obtains possession by a forged indorsement of the name of the payee acquires no interest in it, although ignorant of the forgery; and the original holder may recover the amount from the acceptor, even if the latter has paid it. Dick v. Leverich, 11 Louis. 573.

6thly, Of the Liability of the Acceptor. [*309]

II. Of Ac- But it is now settled, that although a drawee has written his acceptance on ceptances. the bill, with the intent to accept the same, he may, before he has communicated such fact to the holder, and parted with the bill, change his mind and obliterate his acceptance, and thereby relieve himself from liability (p). And according to the observations on Price and Shute, in *Paton v. Winter(q), it should seem, that an acceptance may be altered, though the bill itself cannot be; and an offer to pay, rejected at the time, may be afterwards revoked, upon the holder's applying again for payment (r); and from the case of Fernandey v. Glynn(s), it appears, that by the usage of trade in London, a check may be retained by the banker on whom it is drawn till five in the afternoon of the day on which it is presented for payment, and then returned, although it has been previously cancelled by mistake. And if the acceptance of a bill drawn and indorsed in France but accepted and pavable here, be cancelled by mistake, and the French courts erroneously decree this to be a discharge of the other parties, an indorsee who has taken up the bill may still sue his immediate indorser in this country (t). There appears no reason why the drawee, before he has induced the holder to take or hold the bill on the credit of the acceptance, should not be at liberty to cancel his acceptance: the circumstance of the bill being thereby deficed cannot constitute any sufficient reason why he should be liable as acceptor, for the

> (p) Cox v. Troy, 5 Barn & Ald. 474; 1 Dowl. & Ry. 38, (Chit. j. 112)). Abbott, C. J. "I am of opinion that in this case the defendant is entitled to judgment: it is true that the jury have found that he did accept the bill, but connecting that finding with the other facts of the case, it does not seem to me that it means more than that at one period the defendant, or some one on his behalf, did write an acceptance on it, and at that time was minded to accept it; the question will then be, whether, having that intention at the time, and having written that acceptance, he was at liberty, on an alteration of circumstances, to erase those words before he delivered out the bill to the holder. Upon that question there appears in the books to be some difference of opinion. In Bentinck r. Dorrien, Lawrence, J. says, 'when the general question shall arise, it will be worth considering how that which is not communicated to the holder can be considered as an acceptance. whilst it is yet in the hands of the drawee, and where he obliterates it before any communica-tion made to the holder.' That expression was used after the decision in the cases of Thornton v. Dick, and Trimmer v. Oddy. And at a later period, in Raper v. Birbeck, 15 East, 20, Lord Ellenborough said, 'I remember Pothier, in his Treatise on Bills of Exchange, speaking of an acceptor who has put his signature to a bill, but has not parted with it, says, that before he does part with it, i' peut changer de volent! et rayer son acceptation; a fortiori, then a third person who cancels an acceptance by mistake shall not be held thereby to make void the bill, but shall be at liberty to correct that mistake, in furtherance of the rights of the parties to the hill.' The manner in which Lord Ellenborough quotes the Treatise of Pothier seems to indicate, that at that time he did not retain the opinion which he had delivered in the case of Thornton v. Dick. In a case like the present, which depends on the law merchant, the opinions of learned lawyers, and the practice of foreign and commercial nations, though they cannot, strictly speaking, be quoted as authorities here, yet are entitled to very great weight and attention. When I find, therefore, that it is laid down in Pothier's Treatise, that a party who has given an acceptance may erass it be-fore the bill goes out of his hands, it affords a strong argument in support of the view which I take of the question. I think the rule there laid down is far better than the one contended for by the plaintiff. I cannot perceive how the holder of a bill or any antecedent party is prejudiced by it, for it is to him the same thing, whether, when the drawees give it bick, they deliver it to him unaccepted, or whether he finds that the drawees have withdrawn their acceptance, having at one time intended to accept it, but having subsequently changed their mind. Thinking, as I do, that no prejudice can arise to the holder, or any other parties to the bill, and that they are placed precisely in the same situation as if no acceptance was given, it seems to me that it was competent for the acceptors to erase their acceptances before they delivered out the bill; and, therefore, the defendant is entitled to our judgment." See Mar. S3; Mollov, b. 2, chap. x. pl. 28, p. 103; 1 Pardessus, 401; Wilkinson v. Johnson, 5 Dow. & Ry. 408; 3 Bar. & Cress. 428, (Chit. j. 1231). See the report of the case of Trimmer and Oddy, 6 East, 200; and Pothier Traits du Contrat de Change, part 1, chap. 3, s. 3, pl. 44. Emerigon Trait: des Assurances, ch. 2, s. 4, p. 45; and Stevenson on Bills, 163, 164.

(q) Paton v. Winter, 1 Taunt. 423, (Chit.). 763); but as to that case, see ante, 189, n. (i).

(r) Anderson v. Heath, 4 Maule & S. 303, (Chit. j. 936).

(a) 1 Campb. 426, n. cited in Raper v. Bir-beck, 15 East, 19, (Chit. j. 851). And see Wilkinson v. Johnson, 3 B. & C. 438, 437, (t) Novelli v. Rossi, 2 B. & Ad. 757.

hr

9.33

,, ~~;

"لي.

.1

4

holder is not prejudiced by the erasure, but may immediately resort to all II. Of Acthe antecedent parties on the bill, and which also ought not to be put in circu- ceptances. lation after the drawee has determined not to pay it (u). If a bill has been ac- 6thly, of cepted by mistake, it seems that the drawee is at liberty, before he has de-the Lialivered it to a third person, to cancel his acceptance (v). At all events, if the Acthe holder of the bill, the acceptance of which has been so cancelled, with full ceptor. knowledge of all the facts, cause it to be noted for non-acceptance, he will afterwards be precluded from insisting that the bill was accepted (x)(1). if the noting, or even a formal protest, were made, without knowledge of the facts, as in ignorance of a promise to accept a foreign bill, which was equivalent to an actual acceptance, such noting or protest will not waive the benefit of such acceptance (y).

The liability of the acceptor cannot in general be released or discharged, How the otherwise than by agreement, release, or payment(z). If *however, by the an Acceptlaws of a foreign country, where the acceptance was made, and where it or may be was to be performed, the obligation is by any act vacated, it will no longer discharghave any obligatory force in this country (a); and by the consent of the holder, it may in all cases be waived or released, and the waiver may be either [*310] expressed or implied(b). With respect to the mode by which it may be waived or discharged, it may be observed, that the general rule of law is, that although a simple contract, previously to the breach of it, may be discharged by parol, yet if it has been once broken, then it cannot be discharged without payment or a release in writing(c); but in the case of a bill it is (u) As to this point of circulating a bill after it has been dishonoured, see Roscoe v. Hardy, 12 East, 484; 2 Campb. 458, S. C., (Chit. j. 801); ante, 215, note (x).

(v) Trimmer v. Oddy, 6 East, 200; Cox v. Troy, 5 B. & Ald. 474, (Chit. j. 1129); ante, 308, note (p).

(x) Bentinck v. Dorrien, 6 East, 199, 2 Smith's Rep. 337, (Chit. j. 712). This action, which was by the indorsee against the defendants as acceptors of a bill, was referred, and the arbitrator, after reciting in his award, that the plaintiff, on the 31st May, left the bill with the defendants for acceptance, and they signed an acceptance thereon; but that on the 1st of June, before the bill was called for, they cancelled that acceptance, and that the plaintiff thereupon noted the bill for non-acceptance, declared himself to be of opinion that by such noting the plaintiff had precluded himself from insisting that the defendants had bound themselves to pay the bill, and therefore awarded in favour of the defendants. A rule nisi was obtained for setting aside this award, on the ground that the acceptance was irrevocable. But after cause shown, the court held, that whether such acceptance could or could not be revoked, the plaintiff had, at all events, by noting the bill for non-acceptance, precluded himself from contending that the acceptance was valid. Rule discharged. Sproat r. Matthews, 1 T. R. 182, (Chit. j. 433); ante, 301, note (d).

(v) Fairlie v. Herring, 3 Bing. 625; 11 Moore, 520, (Chit. j. 1800); ante, 290, n. (n). (2) Poth. pl. 76, 118; Mar. 83, 145, 146; Bacon v. Searles, 1 H. Bla. 88, (Chit. j. 449); Fentum v. Pocock, 1 Marsh. 14; 5 Taunt. 192, (Chit. j 896).

(a) Robertson v. French, 4 East, 130; Burrows v. Jemino, Stra. 733; Sel. Ca. 144, (Chit.

Burrows v. Jemino, 2 Stra. 732, (Chit. j. 265). The plaintiff accepted a bill at Leghorn, and by the law there, if the drawer fails, and the acceptor hath not sufficient effects of the drawer in his hands at the time of the acceptance, the acceptance becomes void. And this being the plaintiff's case, he instituted a suit at Leghorn, and his acceptance was thereupon vacated by the sentence of that court. The plaintiff, on his return to England, was sued as acceptor, and now filed his bill for an injunc-tion and relief. King, Lord Chancellor held that the plaintiff's acceptance of the bill having been vacated and declared void by a competent jurisdiction, that sentence was conclusive, and bound the Court of Chancery here. and granted a perpetual injunction to enjoin the defendant from suing upon this bill.

(b) Post, 311, 312.

(c) Fitch v. Sutton, 5 East, 230: Rozal v. Lampen, 2 Mod. 43; Edwards v. Weeks, id.

⁽¹⁾ A. having accepted two bills of exchange for nearly the same amount on the same day, sent his clerk to the person in whose hands they both were, as agent of two different holders to take up one of them, but the clerk took up the other and brought it to A. who struck out his name as acceptor. In about five minutes from the time he received it, he wrote his name again under the acceptance and sent it back to the agent who received it and gave up the other bill. Held, that the bill first taken up was paid and the indorsers discharged. Bogart r. Nevins, 6 Serg. & Rawle, 361.

ceptances. 6thly, Of the Liability of the Acceptor. How discharged. [*311]

II. Of Ac- otherwise; and the courts have gone so far as to decide that what amounts to an assent to discharge the acceptor, is a question for the jury, arising out of the circumstances of the case(d); from which it might be inferred, that any act indicating an intention to relinquish the right of action will be sufficient; but that decision appears in some measure to be contradicted by the case of Dingwall v. Dunster(e), where the court decided, that nothing but an express consent, *or the statute of limitations, would discharge the acceptor; and that no neglect to call on him for any length of time, nor indulgence to him or to the drawer would have that operation (f); and in a subsequent case it was decided, that though the holder of a bill may discharge the liability of the acceptor by parol, yet for this purpose the words must amount to an absolute renunciation of all claim upon him in respect of the bill(g); and an acceptor

> 259; Langden v. Stokes, Cro. Car. 393; May v. King, Cases K. B. 538; Vin. Ab. tit Release; Com. Dig. Pleader, 2 G. 13. et tit. Action on the Case in Assampsit, G.; Heathcote v. Crookshanks, 2 T. R. 24; Kearslake v. Morgan, 5

T. R. 514, (Chit. j. 520).

(d) Ellis v. Galindo, cited in Dingwall v. Dunster, Dougl. 247, (Chit. j. 408, 427). James Galindo drew upon his brother for 801. in favour of the plaintiff. When the bill became due, James paid the plaintiff 31. 15s. 4d. and indorsed a promise to pay the remainder in three months. Three years elapsed, and then plaintiff sued the drawee upon his acceptance. Lord Mansfield thought the defendant discharged, and nonsuited the plaintiff. An application was made for a new trial, when Lord Mansfield said, he thought the case did not interfere with Dingwall and Dunster, but a rule to show cause was granted; after cause was shown, Lord Mansfield said, "The doubt is, whether the question should not have been lest to the jury, it being a question of intention arising out of the circumstances." Willes, J. "I thought it should have been left to the jury;" and per Buller, J. "I rather think the case should have gone to the jury; but I am not, therefore, of opinion, that there ought to be a new trial; the indorsement could not have been meant us an additional security, for the drawer was equally liable before. I should have left the question to the jury, but with very strong observations, and as the demand is so I do not think there ought to be a new trial." Rule discharged.

(e) Dingwall r. Dunster, Dougl. 247, (Chit. j. 401); et vide Byrn v. Godfrey, 4 Ven 8; Anderson v. Cleveland, 18 East, 480; 1 Esp.

R. 46, (Chit. j. 400).

Dingwall r. Dunster, Dongl. 235, 247. (Chit. j. 401). Dunster lent Wheate his acceptance, which became due the 18th December, 1774.

It was then in the hands of Dingwall; but he finding that Wheate was the real debtor, wrote to his attorney in February and November, 1775, for payment, received interest upon the bill from Wheate, and suffered several years to elapse without calling on Dunster. On 18th February, 1775, Dunster wrote to thank Dingwall for not proceeding against him, and said he had been informed by a person Dingwall had sent, that Wheate had taken up the bill; but Dingwall took no notice of this letter; he afterwards saed Danster, for whom the jury found; but upon a rule to show cause why there should not be a new trial, the whole court held, that there was nothing in the plaintiff's conduct to discharge Dunster; that it meant nothing more than an indulgrant to him, and that he would try to recover from the drawer if he could. Lord Mansfield, however, said, " No use has been made of the defeadant's letter; probably the fact did not warrant him in asserting that a person the plaintiff sent had told him Wheate had taken up the bill; had the plaintiff, by any thing in his conduct confirmed him in such a belief, it might have altered the case." Bayl. 5th edit. 214.

Anderson v. Cleveland, 18 East, 430; 1 Esp. R. 46, (Chit. j. 400). In an action by an indorsee against the acceptor of a hill, so demand was proved till three months after the bill was due, and when the drawer had become insolvent; but per Lord Mansfield, "The acceptor of a bill or the maker of a note always remains liable. The acceptance is a proof of having assets in his hand, and he ought never to purt with them unless he be sure that the bill has been paid by the drawer." Bayl. 5th edit.

(f) See Farquhar v. Southey, Mood. & M. 14; 2 Carr. & P. 497, (Chit. j. 1815); infra, note (g).

(g) Whatley r. Tricker, 1 Campb 35, (Chit.
j 740). The indoraces of a bill, knowing that it had been accepted for the accommodation of the drawer, and possessing goods of the drawer's from the produce of which they expected payment, said (at a meeting of the acceptor's creditors), that "they looked to the drawer, and should not come upon the acceptors." In consequence of which the latter assigned their property for the benefit of their creditors, and paid them 15s. in the pound. The drawer's goods, however, proved to be of little value, and he became insolvent, upon which the independent of the property o dorsees sued the acceptors. Lord Ellenborough said, that if the plaintiff's language amounted to an unconditional renunciation of all claim upon the acceptors, whereby the latter had entered into an arrangement with their creditors. the acceptors were discharged; but if only to a conditional promise not to resort to the acceptors, if satisfied elsewhere, they were not. The jury found for the plaintiff. Parker v. Leigh, 2 Stark. 229, (Chit. j. 1006). An acceptor of a bill is not discharged by the bill not being presented for payment for three

'nĽ

2' 13'01!

142 ...

(大) 国家

1 . Z

322

() () () () ()

111 a .. 223

TO CHE!

: D :#4 TITE WY

لاين ب رې

17. 30

NAME &

(الا مياب)

· (y 100

4121

10 M 🖷 er eit

_{est} r 🥦

1:95

-

- x " 4)

4 X PE ۶ ا پوسرش وبيهما و 4

1 FR 🖈

..... Of

g marid y yal

Dr 33

الغيار

9.5 F

... 5 ¹⁵

Cak

41.00 فراها ۽ ج

cannot avail himself of a renunciation on the part of a holder of his claim on II. Of Ashim, unless it be not only express, but founded on some consideration(h). ceptanoes. Where, on a bill becoming due, the acceptor's name was crossed, and an un- 6thly, of stamped agreement to renew written on the back, it was left to the jury to the Liastamped agreement to renew written on the back, it was left to the july to bility of decide whether it had been cancelled with the consent of the drawer, in which the Accase, although the second agreement was a nullity, the drawer could not re-ceptor. cover on the bill, and the jury having found that it was so cancelled, the How displaintiff failed in his action (i). We have just seen (j) that the cancellation charged. of an acceptance by mistake does not operate as a discharge.

The effect of a legacy by a creditor to the acceptor, or an entry, discharging him from payment, will be considered hereafter (k).

What amounts to a waiver, and discharge of the acceptor's liability, must by Wairdepend on the circumstances of each particular case. An agreement to con- er or versider an acceptance as at an end(l), or a message from the holder to the acceptor of an accommodation bill, "that the business has been settled with the drawer, and that he need not give himself any further *trouble(m)," have [*312] been holden to amount to a waiver of an acceptance. But it should seem, that the holder's receiving a part of the money due on a bill from the drawer, and taking a promise from him upon the back of it for the payment of the residue at an enlarged time, will not of itself amount to a discharge of the ac-Nor will the mere passively holding a bill accepted for accommodation many years, and receiving interest from the drawer, without application to the acceptor, discharge the acceptor; but it should seem that it may be left to the jury, whether the holder agreed to discharge the acceptor, or renounced all intention of holding him liable(o). It has been decided, that m four years after it becomes due: he is only discharged by payment of the bill, or by a distinct or direct agreement by the holder to discharge him. Therefore, where A. and Co. having accepted a bill for B.'s accommodation, B. paid it into the hands of his bankers without notice, who retained possession of it for several years, charging him with interest for it, but never debiting him with the amount of the bill; and during this time they became bankers to A and Co. also, but never gave them notice that they held the bill against them; and it appeared that the balance of B.'s account was always against him; that of the account of A. and Co. in their favour, but very seldom to the amount of the bill; in an action by the bankers against A. and Co., it was held, that under these circumstances, the defendants were not discharged, unless the jury should infer that the plaintiffs had entered into an agreement to discharge the defendants, or had expressly re-nounced all intention of holding them liable on the bill. Farquhar and others v. Southey, Mood. & M. 14; 2 Carr. & P. 497, (Chit. j. 1315). (h) Parker v. Leigh, 2 Stark. Rep. 228, (Chit. j. 1006); and see Badnall v. Samuel, 3 Price, $21, (Chit. j. 985); Perfect v. Musgrave, 6 Price, 111, (Chit. j. 1044); post, Ch. IX.

ii. Payment—Effect of giving Time, &c.
(i) Sweeting v. Halse, 9 Bar. & C. 365; 4

Man. & Ry. 287, 383; Dans. & Ll. 287, (Chit. j. 1423). As to effect of a receipt in full, see Stark. Evid. Part IV. 1274, ct seq.

(j) Ante, 809. (k) Post, Ch. IX. s. ii. Payment—What amounts to. As to effect of appointing acceptor executor, post, 313.

(1) Walpole v. Pulteny, cited Dougl. 236, 237, 248, 249. Walpole held a bill accepted by Pulteney, but agreed to consider his acceptance at an end, and wrote in his bill-book, opposite to the entry of this bill, "Mr. Pulteney's acceptance is at an end." Walpole kept the bill from 1772 to 1775, without calling upon Pulteney, and then brought this action. The jury found a verdict for the plaintiff; but the Court of Exchequer thought the verdict wrong, and granted a new trial, upon which the jary found for the defendant; Bayl. 5th edit 203.

(m) Black r. Peele, cited Dougl. 236, 237, 248, 249. Black arrested Peele as acceptor of a bill drawn by Dallas, but on finding that the acceptance was an accommodation one, his attorney took a security from Dallas, and sent word to Peele that he had settled with Dallas, and that he need not give himself any further trouble. Dallas afterwards became bankrupt, upon which Black again sued Peele; but it was held that as Black had, in express words, discharged Peele, the action could not be maintained. But in Adams v. Gregg, 2 Stark. Rep. 531, where an accommodation acceptor having applied to the holder to give it up, which he refused to do, but said the acceptor should not be troubled about it, Abbot, C. J. thought that such declaration was no discharge, and the plaintiff had a verdict.

(n) Ellis r. Galindo, ante, 310, note (d).

(o) Anie, 811, note (g).

oeptances. 6thly, Of the Liability of the Acceptor. How discharged.

II. Of Ac if the holder of a bill of exchange agree not to sue the acceptor, upon his making affidavit that the acceptance is a forgery, and such affidavit be accordingly made and sworn, he cannot afterwards bring an action on the bill, though the affidavit be false (p); and if the cancellation or discharge be obtained by a substituted security, known to the party giving it to be invalid, and therefore fraudulent, the holder nevertheless cannot treat the acceptance as still subsisting (q).

By formal Release.

It has been decided, that a release by the holder to the drawee, after the bill is drawn, and before acceptance, will not discharge him from the obligation created by a subsequent acceptance, because he was not chargeable at the time of the release(r). And even an express release from the drawer, before a bill falls due, will not, without cancelling the bill, preclude the drawer from afterwards passing it away to a bon? fide taker, and who may sue such acceptor notwithstanding the release(s). And it seems, that if a creditor for goods sold is also the indorser of a bill of exchange which he has indorsed to a third person for valuable consideration, who, at the time of the execution of a composition deed by the creditor, is the holder of the bill, and the creditor sign the deed, containing a release, but without specifying the amount of his debt, the composition would extend only to the amount of the goods sold and bills actually in his hand at the time he executed (t). And where the *drawer of a bill of exchange, accepted by defendant, agreed with him and the rest of his creditors to take a composition of eight shillings in the pound, to be secured by promissory notes, to be given by defendant payable on days certain, and that defendant should assign to the creditors certain debts, upon which they should execute a general release, and the assignment was executed, and all the creditors except the plaintiff received their composition and executed the release, and plaintiff might have received his promissory notes, if he had applied for them; but it did not appear that defendant had ever tendered them to plaintiff, or that he had ever applied for them, and the plaintiff afterwards, and after the days of payment of the promissory notes had expired, sued the defendant on the bill of exchange, it was held, that he was not precluded by the agreement from recovering (u). But where in an action against the de-

(p) Stephens v. Thacker, Peake Rep. 187, (Chit. j. 511); Lloyd v. Willan, 1 Esp. Rep. 178. Sed quære.

(q) Sweeting r. Halse, 9 Bar. & C. 369, ante, 311, note (i); but note, that case turned principally on a point of evidence.

(r) Drage r. Netter, Lord Raym. 65, (Chit. j. 192).

(s) Dod v. Edwards, 2 C. & P. 602, (Chit.

j. 1334); ante, 215, note (y). (t) Harrhy r. Wall, 2 Stark. Rep. 195, 198; 1 Bar. & Ald. 103, (Chit. j. 999); but it would be otherwise if the party holding the bill were a mere agent of the creditor; Margeston v. Ait-ken, 3 Car. & P. 338; Dans. & Lloyd, 157, (Chit. j. 1408). If a defendant has entered into a deed of composition with his creditors, containing the usual clause of release, and the plaintiff has executed the deed as a creditor for a certain sum, that is a good defence to an action by the plaintiff, as indorsec to a bill to a larger amount, of which the defendant was indorser, and which then lay dishonoured in the plaintiff's hands. But it is no defence as to two similar bills, also of larger amount, which the plaintiff had paid away, and which were then in the hands of third parties. If, after a bill is dishonoured, the indorser offer to pay the holder so much in the pound on the amount; semble, that this dispenses with proof of the notice of dishonour.

Lord Tenterden, C. J. "The utmost effect that can be given to the argument and to the deed is, that the plaintiff releases whatever debt is then due to her; but I am of opinion that that deed cannot be taken as a release by the plaintiff as to bills then outstanding undishonoured in other hands. It does not I think apply 10 two of the bills. As to the remaining bill I think that the plaintiff cannot recover on it, as it was dishonoured at the time of executing the deed. With respect to the offer of the composition, dispensing with proof of the notice of dishonour, Mr. Gurney may move to enter a nonsuit, if he should upon consideration think fit to do so, my opinion, as at present advised, is against him. I am inclined to think if enough." Verdict for the plaintiff, damages 31/.

(u) Cranley v. Hillary, 2 M. & Sel. 120, (Chit. j. 895); and see Oughton r. Trotter. 2 Nev. & Man. 71.

1,1

24.7

. 1. 1.

4: 7

. .

· :

.

تترجي

مين بن ا

.

. . . 5

--:3

fendants, as acceptors of a bill of exchange for 10391., it appeared that the II. Of Acdefendants owed the plaintiffs a balance of 3211., that the defendants failed, ceptances. and their creditors, amongst whom were the plaintiffs, agreed to take a com- subly. Of position of 5s. in the pound on their debts by notes at four and eight months; the Liaand there being a dispute as to the balance due to the plaintiffs, the latter the Acpromised to adjust their account with one of the defendants, and said they ceptor. would do as the other creditors did; and the defendants insisted for some How distime that 2501. 9s. 7d. was the balance due, but the defendants' attorney af- charged. terwards called on the plaintiff's attorney and told him that the defendants were ready to pay the composition on 3211., the sum really due, without, however, making any tender of the notes or of cash for the amount of the composition, and plaintiff's attorney refused and said they must have the whole; it was held, that a tender was not necessary under the circumstances, and that the plaintiffs could only recover the amount of the composition on the balance (x). So where it is agreed that the notes shall be given on a specified day, if the plaintiff accept them after the appointed time, he thereby waives any objection on the ground of their not having been given on the precise day (y).

A general release by the drawer of a bill to the acceptor will, as between them, discharge the acceptor, though the drawer is not the holder, nor has then paid the bill(z). And the payee's appointing the maker of a promissory note or acceptor of a bill his executor, is in law a release, and prevents a subsequent holder from suing either of such parties(a). There is, however, a distinction between the appointment of a debtor to be executor, or administrator, the former being the act of the creditor, extinguishes the debt; the latter, being the act of the ordinary, does not (b).

In general a release to one of several joint and several debtors or parties to a bill or note operates as a release of the whole, for the debt is thereby in law discharged(c); nor can the effect of such release be destroyed by pa-But where the defendant and one M. N. gave *the plaintiff their [*314] joint and several promissory note to secure a separate debt due from each of them, and the plaintiff afterwards executed a deed of release to M. N.; it was held, that although this release discharged both as to the note, it did not enure to the discharge of the separate debt of the defendant, but that the plaintiff might recover that upon an account stated(e). And although a covenant not to sue in general enures as a release, it does not operate to discharge any other person than him with whom it is entered into, and does not exonerate other contracting parties (f), and this legal and implied operation of a release to one of several debtors may be restrained in some cases by the (x) Reay v. White, 1 Crom. & Mees. 748. (y) Lee Shipton v. Casson, 5 B. & C. 378; 8 D. & R. 130, S. C.

(z) Scott v. Lifford, 1 Campb. 250; 9 East,

347, (Chit. j. 747).
(a) Freakly v. Fox, 9 Bar. & C. 130; 4
Man. & Ry. 18, (Chit. j. 1418); post, Part II.
Ch. I. By and against whom Action to be

In such case the bill or note is no longer neotiable; 55 Geo. 3, c. 184, s. 19; Bartrum v.

Caddy, 1 Perry & Dav. 207, 212, 213.
(b) Sir John Needham's case, 8 Co. 134. (c) Co. Litt. 282; 2 Roll. Abr. 410, pl. 47;

Chitty, jun. on Contracts, 606, 607.
(d) Brooks v. Stuart, 1 Perry & Dav. 615. To a declaration against the defendant as maker of a promissory note, the defendant pleaded that the note was a joint and several note by defendant and A., and that A. had been released. Replication, that A. had been released at defendant's request, and that defendant, in consideration of such release at his request, ratified the promise in the declaration, and promised that he would remain liable on the note, as if there had been no release; held, that the replication, setting up a parol contract to avoid the release, was bad.

(e) Cocks v. Nash, 4 Moore & S. 162. (f) Dean v. Newall, 8 T. R. 168; Two-penny v. Young, 3 Bar. & C. 212; 5 Dowl. & R. 262, (Chit. j. 1215). A covenant not to sue upon a simple contract debt for a limited time, is not pleadable in bar of an action for such debt; Thimbleby r. Barron, 8 M. & W.

Othly, Of the Liability of the Acceptor.

How discharged. By Payment.

II. Of Ao- express terms of the instrument(g). One of two makers of a joint promisceptances. sory note, payable twelve months after date, though a surety for the other for the amount, is not discharged by the payee not having demanded payment for him when due, nor till after having entered into a deed of composition with the principal and his other creditors, and received the composition money (h).

> We shall hereafter consider what will amount to payment of a bill, &c.(i) A deed reciting the actual payment of money is conclusive at law against the recovery of such money (k); but not so where from the whole tenor of the deed it shows the payment had not been made; and where the defendant having given plaintiff a promissory note for 401. in consideration that he would withdraw an execution upon premises of defendant, the plaintiff executed a general release of all suits, which, after reciting the agreement to withdraw the execution, &c. proceeded, "witnesseth, that in pursuance of the said agreement, and in consideration of the said sum of 401. being now so paid as hereinbefore is mentioned, &c." it was held, in an action on the promissory note, which had been dishonoured, that the release was no bar to the suit(1). It seems, that if a composition deed, or other deed, contain a clause for the delivery up of securities, or extinguish the original debt on such securities, the holder thereby entering into such deed would be liable to the debtor if he enforced the payment of them from other parties, though it would be otherwise if the deed contained no such clause, and did not extinguish the debt(m).

When a bill is accepted in consideration of the future consignment of goods to the acceptor, and the prospect of the profit of the commission on the sale thereof, and the holder of the bill, aware of the nature of the acceptance, agrees to take and receives the bill of lading, &c. from the acceptor, which were the consideration of the acceptance, the acceptor is, by this act of the holder, discharged from the liability imposed on him by his accep-[*315] tance(n). He is also discharged when, as has *been before observed, the holder, upon an offer by the drawee of a conditional or partial acceptance, (g) Solly v. Forbes, 2 B. & B. 38.

(h) Perfect v. Musgrave, 6 Price, 111, (Ch. j. 1044). See Clarke v. Wilson, 3 M. & W. 208; post, Ch. IX. s. ii. Of Payment—Effect of giving Time, &c.

(i) Post, Ch. IX. s. ii.

(k) Rowntree v. Jacob, 2 Taunt. 141; Co. Lit. sect. 512.

(1) Lambourne v. Cork, 1 D. & R. 211.

(m) Thomas v. Courtney, 1 B. & Ald. 1 ((hit. j. 958); Stock r. Mawson, 1 B. & P.

(n) Mason v. Hunt. Dougl. 284, 297, (Chit. j. 408). Rowland Hunt agreed that his partner, Thomas Hunt, should on consignment of a cargo, and an order for its insurance, accept bills for 36-001. The cargo was consigned, the order for insurance given, and I homns Hunt effected the in-surance, but he refused to accept the bills. After some negotiation, the plaintiff, being the holder, signed a memorandum, by which, after stating that the consignment had been made on account of the hills, and that the Hunts being apprehensive that the net proceeds might not be sufficient to discharge them, had refused to accept, he accepted the bill of llading and policy, and undertook to apply the net pro-ceeds, when in cash, as far as they would go, to the credit of the payee, in part-payment of the bills. The plaintiff afterwards sued the Hunts, and insisted that Rowland Hunt's agreement was an acceptance; but after a verdict for the defendant, and time taken to consider upon a rule to show cause why there should not be a new trial, the whole court was clear, that by the memorandum the plaintiff had waired all right to insist upon Rowland Hunt's agreement, for it was obvious, that the whole consideration of the acceptance was the consignment, upon which there would be a commission, and the policy of these the plaintiff had taken to himself.

^{(1) {} The acceptor for accommodation of the drawer, may pay the bill on the last day of grace before the commencement of business hours, and forthwith bring his action against the drawer for indemnity. Whitwell v. Brigham, 19 Pick. 117. }

12

STIME

T 17 21

· (478)

: 10 . 3

2.11.1

- 591

.000 3.641

2 1 WAR

· 1 *#

Ju. 11 - 25 17

. 10712 F.

المحالية 12. (2)

373. 17

, grass

2 0 62 15

:10 . y ===

45 1150

, the greet

₁₆ }. *

. A.T.

, y²2

人文章

gives a general notice of non-acceptance to any of the antecedent parties, II. Of Acomitting to mention in such notice the nature of the acceptance offered(o).

The drawee will not be discharged from liability, in the case of an acceptance 6thly, Of made payable at a banker's, (but without the words "there only," or "not other- the Liawise or elsewhere," required by the 1 & 2 Geo. 4, c. 78,) by the holder's bility of neglect to present it there, although he can prove that he has sustained damages ceptor. in consequence of such neglect(p); for, as observed by Bayley, J. " an ac- How disceptance payable at a banker's is to be deemed for the benefit of the person charged. who makes it; it is an act of his own doing and imposes no obligation on the By Neglect holder to present it at the banker's on the very day it becomes due, in order to present to charge the acceptor. It is the duty of an acceptor, making his bills pay-for Payable at his banker's, to see from time to time how his account stands(q)." when. But it should seem, that if the bill be accepted, payable at a particular place according to the provisions of the 1 & 2 Geo. 4, c. 78, the acceptor will be discharged if the holder neglect to present it there, and the acceptor has sustained damages by such neglect(r).

It was decided at nist prius, that an accommodation acceptor will be dis- Not by givcharged by the holder's giving time to the drawer, after having notice that ing Time to Drawer the bill was accepted for his accommodation(s); and the law in France was of Acomto that effect(t). But that doctrine was afterwards doubted(u), and may modation be considered as over-ruled, and the rule seems now to be, that the holder's Bill. merely giving such time, or taking a cognovit from the drawer, though he have full notice that the bill was accepted for the accommodation of such drawer, will not discharge the acceptor(x). Nor does the holder's releasing

(o) Sproat v. Matthews, 1 T. R. 482, (Chit.

(d) Spread 9. Matthews, 1 1. R. 482, (Chit. j. 433), Bentinck v. Dorrian, 6 East, 199, (Chit. j. 712); anle, 309, note (x).

(p) Sebag v. Abitbol, 4 M. & Sel. 462, (Chit. j. 942, 947); Turner v. Hayden, 6 Dow. & Ry. 5; 4 B. & C. 1, (Chit. j. 1246); see post, Ch. IX. s. i. as to Presentment for Payment ment.

(q) Per Bayley, J. in Turner v. Hayden, 6 Dow. & Ry. 7; 4 B. & C. 1, (Chit. j. 1246). (r) See Rhodes v. Gent, 5 B. & Al. 244, (Chit. 1124); and Turner v. Hayden, 6 Dow.

& Ry. 5; 4 Bur. & Cres 1, (Chit. j. 1246).
(a) Laxton v. Peat, 2 Campb. 195, (Chit. j. 773); Collett v. Haigh, 3 Cumpb. 281, (Chit. j. 877); Adams v. Gregg, 2 Stark. Rep. 531; (Chit. j. 1076). (t) Poth. pl. 180; and see Roscoe, 385, note 16.

(u) Raggett v. Axmore, 4 Taunt. 730, (Ch. j. 881); Kerrison v. Cooke, 8 Campb. 362, (Chit. j 885).

(x) Fentum v. Pocock, 1 Marsh. 14; 5 Taunt. 192, (Chit. j. 896), (cited and approved of in Price v. Edmonds, 10 B. & C. 584), (Chit. j. 1483); and in Nichols v. Norris, 3 B. & Ad. 41; and see Harrison v. Courtauld, id. 86, next note. This was an action against the acceptor of a bill of exchange, and at the trial the plaintiff had a verdict, with liberty for the defendant to move to enter a nonsuit, on the ground that he was discharged by the plaintiff having taken a cognovit from the drawer; and upon motion accordingly, and cause shewn, the court held, that the acceptor binds himself, at all times, to pay the holder (though not per-haps the drawer) until discharged by payment or release, and that though it were an accommodation bill, that would not alter the circumstances, and discharged the rule. And see the Bank of Ireland v. Beresford, 6 Dow, 233, (Chit. j. 1032); ante, 805, note (x).

Mallett v. Thompson, 5 Esp. Rep. 179, (Ch. j. 702). The plaintiff, holder of an accommodation note, who took it with full notice that the maker had received no value from the indorser. for whose accommodation the defendant made it, and received a composition, and covenanted not to sue such indorser, may, notwithstanding, sue the maker, though, on payment of it, he will have a right of action against the indorser.

Kerrison v. Cooke, 8 Campb. 862, (Chit. j. 885). Where upon an accommodation bill becoming due, it was presented for payment to the acceptor, and he promised to pay it, it was held, that he was not discharged by time being afterwards given without his consent to the drawer by the indorsee, who knew that it had been accepted for the drawer's accommodation.

In Carstairs v. Rolleston, 5 Taunt. 551; 1 Marsh. 207, (Chit. j. 909); it was discussed, but not determined, whether a release to the indorsee of an accommodation note, discharged the maker, if the holder was aware at the time of all the circumstances. See Harrison v. Courtauld, 3 B. & Ad. 86, next note.

That the acceptor or maker of an accommodation bill or note is not discharged by the holder's entering into a composition with the drawcr or payee, see Maltby v. Carstairs, 7 B. & C. 735; Thomas v. Ceurtney, 1 B. & Ald. 1; and see Nichols v. Norris, 3 B. & Ad. 41; peet, Ch. IX.s. ii. Of Payment—Effect of giving ceptances. 6thly, Of the Liability of the Acceptor. How discharged.

II. Of Ac- the drawer, or his assignees, discharge the accommodation acceptor, although at the time of executing the release (but not at the time of taking the bill) he knew it to be an accommodation bill; thus where H. accepted a bill for the accommodation of B., the drawer, who indorsed it over as security for a debt, and afterwards became bankrupt, and the indorsee entered into an agreement with the assignees for purchasing part of the bankrupt's property, and for the arrangement of some claims, which he, the indorsee, had upon the estate; and he afterwards gave them a release of all demands, no mention being made during this transaction of the bill, which had been dishonoured; and it appeared that he knew at the time of the agreement, but not when he took the bill, that it was accepted for accommodation; it was held, that nothwithstanding the above release, the acceptor was still liable at the suit of the indorsee(y). If, however, an acceptor, in satisfaction of his liability, indorse another bill, and the holder be guilty of laches with respect to the latter, in not giving notice to such acceptor of the non-payment of the latter bill, he will thereby discharge such acceptor(z); but if the latter merely handed over the second bill as a collateral security, without indorsing it, he would not be discharged from liability on the first bill by any laches of the holder of the second(a).

By alteration.

We have seen that the alteration of the bill in any material respect, or of the acceptance, without the concurrence of the acceptor, and even in some cases with his assent, unless to correct a mistake, will discharge him from liability (b). And where the drawer of a bill accepted payable at B. and Co.'s., after keeping it three or four years, indorsed it to the plaintiffs, erasing the name of B. and Co. without the knowledge of the acceptor; B. and Co. having failed since the acceptance, it was held, that the acceptor was thereby discharged(c). And though there is a case in which it has been supposed to have been decided, that if the holder strike out an acceptance, [*317] which varies from the *tenor of the bill, and substitute an acceptance according to the tenor, he may afterwards restore the acceptance he struck out, and that such acceptance will continue binding (d); yet it has been doubted whether that determination went further than to decide that the alteration in the acceptance, (though it annulled the acceptance, and discharged the acceptor) did not destroy the bill as to the other parties(e).

(y) Harrison v. Courtauld, 3 Bar. & Adol. that day, which the acceptor refused; the bold-

(2) Bridges v. Berry, 3 Taunt. 130, (Chit.

j. 804). (a) Bishop v. Rowe, 3 Maule & S. 362, (Chit. j. 921); Hickling v. Hardy, 7 Taunt. 312; I Moore, 61, (Chit. j. 993).
(b) Ante, 181 to 192; Long v. Moore, 3

Fap. Rep. 155, note. A bill of exchange, after acceptance, had been altered by inserting the word "date" in the place of "sight." The plaintiff wanted to go on the common counts, and offered in evidence another bill drawn upon the defendant for the same amount, but not accepted. Lord Kenyon held, that the plaintiff could not recover against the defendant, for he was liable only by virtue of the instrument, which being vitiated, his liability was at an end.

(c) Tidmarsh v. Grover, 1 Maule & S. 735, (Chit. j. 891); ante, 182.

(d) Price v. Shute, Beawes, s. 222, 1st edit. p. 444; Molloy, B. 2, c. 10, s. 28. A bill was drawn, payable 1st of January, and the drawee accepted it to pay the 1st of March; the holder struck out the 1st of March, and substituted the 1st of January, and sent the bill for payment on er then struck out the lat of January and restored the 1st of March. And in un action on this bill, the question was, whether these alterations did not destroy the bill, and Pemberton, C. J. ruled that they did not. And see observations in Paton v. Winter, 1 Taunt. 423, (Chit. j. 763).

(c) Master v. Miller, 4 T. R. 330, (Chit. j. 482, 490) Lord Kenyon, in commenting on the case of Price r. Shute observes, that the books do not say against whom the action was brought, and it could not have been against the acceptor, because his acceptance was struck out by the party himself who brought the action; and he concludes, " that on the person to whom the bill was directed refusing to accept the bill, as it was originally drawn, the holder resorted to the drawer;" however, Buller, J. 4 T. R. 336, says " that he cannot consider this case in any other light than as an action against the acceptor, because the books only state what passed between the holder and the acceptor." See Wilkinson v. Johnson, 5 D. & R. 408; 8 Bar. & Cres. 428, (Chit. j. 1231); and see Paton r. Winter, 1 Taunt. 428, (Chit. j. 768). . 34/2

1005

. : .:

. . .

. . . . _ \rightarrow_

. D. .

: 42 تند ن

, . ž

. 41.3

1-1123

× y2 . .

120,00

11043

16 3 قۇ ئى

 $z_{i}\in \mathbb{N}$

. ...

.

If a drawee of a bill has accepted for a particular purpose, and the holder, II. Of Acwith knowledge of the facts, has improperly applied the same for a different ceptances. purpose, he may, after demanding the same, recover the bill or its amount in 7thly, Inan action of detinue or trover, and the verdict may be for the full amount of demnity to And if A. acceptor, the sum payable, subject to reduction on giving up the bill(f). accept a bill for the accommodation of B., and B. discount it with C., his and his Right. banker, who afterwards become bankrupt, owing B. more than the amount of the bill, equity will prevent the assignees of C. suing A cdot (g). of an acceptance for the accommodation of the drawer, it is not unusual to take from such drawers an express written undertaking to provide money for the payment of the bill and to indemnify him, which, when it is for a sum above twenty pounds, must be stamped with an agreement stamp; and an accommodation acceptor of bills to a considerable amount should take an express written engagement not only to pay over to him the amount of the bills before they became due, so as to anticipate the means of payment, but also to indemnify him as well against the principal sum and interest he may be obliged to pay, as against all costs, and extra costs and expenses he may incur at law or in equity in resisting or delaying payment, and all interest on all sums and costs he may be obliged to pay or may incur(h)(1). And where there is any risk of the accommodated party becoming bankrupt, it is advisable also to take a counter bill or note, so as to enable the acceptor to claim under the commission against the drawer(i). But in France, if the drawee has taken an express and particular mode of indemnity, he cannot retain general funds in his hands of a different nature, nor can he retain other goods not intended for sale, though deposited in his hands(k). And in this country, where there is an express contract, a party cannot resort to one that is implied(l).

*In the absence of any express contract, the law implies a contract to in-[*318] And it should seem, that if an agent has accepted bills for the accommodation of his employer, he may in some cases retain money or goods in his hands to discharge it, until the bill be delivered up to him, or he be otherwise sufficiently indemnified (n). Before the 6 Geo. 4, c. 16, s. 50, money lodged after a secret act of bankruptcy, and within two months of the commission, with an accommodation acceptor to take up a bill coming due, could not be retained to indemnify him by paying the bills(0). But the 50th section of that act has altered the law in this respect(p). And where A., an agent, held funds belonging to B., his principal, but had accepted bills drawn by B. to the full amount of them, and B. paid away the bills to his

(f) Evans v. Kymer and another, 1 Bar. & Adol. 528, (Chit. j. 1512); see ante, 250, n. (r).

(g) In re Sikes, 4 Law J. 195, ante, 306,

(h) Unless there be such express stipulations, · extra costs and interest on interest may not be recoverable. In one case, persons who as parties to bills paid the Bank 100,000l. were precluded from recovering 5000l. interest on the money so paid, from the parties whom they had accommodated, but see Rigby v. Macnaniara, 2

Cox, 415. (i) See post, Part II. Ch. VIII. s. iv. Bankruplcy-Of the Proof of Bill under a Commission.

(k) 1 Pardess. 403.

262; and see 1 Pardess. 402, 412, 419.

(n) Fletcher v. Heath, 7 Bar. & C. 517; 1 Man. & Ry. 335, S. C.; Madden r. Kempster, 1 Campb. 12, (Chit. j. 739); Morse r. Wil-liams, 3 Campb. 418; Ex parte Metcalfe, 11 Ves. 407, (Chit. j. 719); and see 1 Pardess. 402.

(o) Kinder v. Butterworth, 6 B. & C. 42; 9 Dow. & Ry. 47, S.C.

(p) And see 10 Bar. & C. 217, and 1 Bar. & Adol. 343.

46

Digitized by Google

⁽¹⁾ Touissant v. Martinnant, 2 T. R. 100. (m) Young v. Hockley, 3 Wils. 346; 7 T. R. 568; 2 T. R. 35; 2 B. & P. 268; Sparkes v. Martindale, 8 East, 593; 3 Wils. 18; 1 Atk.

^{·(1) {} An accommodation acceptor may pay the bill on the last day of grace, before business hours, and immediately sue the drawer to recover an indemnity. Whitwell v. Brigham, 19 Pick. 117. }

II. Of Ac-creditors, who, to relieve A. from the liability, and without the knowledge ceptinces. of B., accepted from A. a composition of 10s. in the pound, and gave him 7thly, In- up the bills, A. then holding funds belonging to B., to the full amount of the demnity to, bills: B. afterwards became bankrupt, and his assignees brought assumpsit and Right for money had and received against A., for the difference between the amount of Accept. of the bills and the composition: it was held, that as B. had been benefitted to the full amount of the bills, the payment of the composition was, as between him and A., a full payment of the bills, and therefore the action was not maintainable (q). And where a sum of money has been lodged with a party to indemnify him against bills of exchange he has accepted for the accommodation of another, an action will not lie against him to recover the money while the bills are outstanding, although the statute of limitations has run So where a person who has funds in his hands belonging to another, or is otherwise indebted to him, accepts a bill for his accommodation, and the drawer afterwards commits an act of bankruptcy, or becomes insolvent, such acceptor may retain the funds or debt until the bill becomes due, as an indomnity against his liability as acceptor(s). And since the 6 Geo. 4, c. 16, s. 52(t), an accommodation acceptor, being in the nature of a surety to the drawer, may prove under the commission against him, although he has been obliged to pay the bill after the act of bankruptcy (u). Where A. and B. having purchased a large quantity of wheat for C. and D., which they kept in their hands for sale, and which was to be paid for at a given time, requested C. and D. to furnish them with acceptances of their friends, to meet the payment of it; and C. and D. obtained the acceptances, under a promise that they would sell the wheat to meet them before they became due; and the price having fallen, the bills were returned to C. and D., who wrote to A. and B. to sell the wheat at some price to take them up; and A. and B. having paid the bills to their bankers, continued to sell the wheat, and [*319] nothing *more was said about them until C. and D. become insolvent several months afterwards, and then A. and B. sued a party to one of them; it was held, that these circumstances were a good defence to the action (z).

> But there is no implied contract of indemnity, unless the bill were really agreed or understood to have been accepted for the accommodation of the drawer or other party; and therefore where W. drew a bill on a third person, to whom he had been sending goods for sale, and who accepted the bill, neither party knowing the state of accounts between them, and it wraed out that W. was at the time indebted to the acceptor, the court held, that this was not to be considered as an accommodation bill within the proper acceptation of that term, and that there was no implied contract of indemnity as to the costs(y).

> A person who accepts bills drawn upon him by a broker or agent, and receives goods of the principal's as an indemnity against such acceptances, will not have a greater right to detain them as such indemnity than the broker or agent had(z); and, therefore, where a broker, having accepted bills for 7th Feb. 1828.

⁽q) Stonehouse v. Read, 5 D. & R. 603; 3 Bar. & Cres. 669, (Chit. j. 1242). (r) Morso v. Williams, 3 Campb. 418, (Chit.

j. 891).
(a) Wilkins v. Casey, 7 T. R. 711, as observed upon in Willis v. Froeman, 12 East, 659, (Chit. j. 802); 11 Ves. 407; Madden v. Kempster, 1 C. mpb. 12, (Chit. j. 739); 1 Pardess.

⁽t) This enactment is in the same terms as the former enactment in the stat. 49 Geo. 3, c. 121, e. 8.

⁽u) Ses post, Part II. Ch. VIII, Bankruster, Ex parts Yonga, 3 Ves. & Bea. 46; 2 Rose, 40, S. C.; Stedman v. Martinaant, 13 East, 427, (Chit. j. S27); Moody v. King, 2 R. & C. 559; 4 Dow. & R. 30; 2 Bing. 47, (Chit. j. 1200).

—(x) Fowler v. Beylis, 1 Law J. 82, K. B.

⁽y) Bignall v. Andrews, 7 Bing. 217. (z) Fletcher v. Heath, 7 Bar. & C. 517; 1 M. & R. 385.

11

. 21 15 2

al 351

-41

لتفاس rél

. . . .

- .i- 2i

1. 7.3521

in in

....J 5:3

100 323

. X 22

11. 18

€. [أند . LIM 1 x 4

100 B

-1 aiz

11.3-50

(1 200 ± #

+ 5 XL 5

galle #

18 J. 18

, se i 🦻

الاناسان in1$[™]

i. If if

(d) gia se^{n#}

3.5° M

1762 in it is المذارة المام

17.7

16-20

. 41

The at his principal on the security of goods then in his hands, pledged the goods II. Of Acwith a person who had notice of the agency, but did not inform the princi-ceptances. pal of this transaction, it was held, that under the 6 Geo. 4, c. 94, s. 5, the 7thly, Inbroker could only transfer such right as he had, which was a right to be in-demnity demnified against the bills which he had accepted, and that the principal hav- to, and Right of ing satisfied those bills, was entitled to have back his goods from the pawnee Acceptor. without paying the amount for which they were pledged(z). Where the plaintiffs consigned goods to their factor, and at the same time drew bills upon him for the amount, which he accepted, but which they themselves ultimately paid, and the factors sent them to the defendant, with whom he had general dealings, without intimating that they were the property of a third person, and drew a bill upon him for the amount, which the defendant accepted and paid; after which the factor became insolvent, having before that time apprised the defendant that he had received a notice of countermand of the sale from the plaintiffs, but the defendant afterwards sold the goods; it was held, that the defendant was liable for the value of the goods in an action for money had and received, and that he would have been equally liable had he not known that the goods were the property of the plaintiffs(a).

Where there is an express contract of indemnity, the circumstance of the parties to it having been partners will occasion no difference; therefore, where I., T., and B., were jointly concerned in the sale of certain goods, and I. consigned them to B. who sold them on the joint account; and T. being requested to accept bills for the firm, refused to do so without some security, when B. engaged, if T. paid the bills, to pay him out of the proceeds received for goods already sold, it was held, that T., having accepted and paid the bills, might sue B. for money had and received to his use; for though originally it was a partnership transaction, and in general one partner cannot sue his co-partner, yet in this case by the defendant's express engagement, the proceeds of the goods became separated from the partnership account, and appropriated to the plaintiff's use as soon as he had paid the bills(b). An express contract with an accommodation acceptor to deliver up the bills *or indemnify him, is not proveable under a commission of bankruptcy against [*320] the party making it, and notwithstanding he has obtained his certificate, he may be sued; and where the defendant, before he became bankrupt, on sufficient consideration undertook to pay the balance due on a bill, of which the plaintiff was the acceptor, and he afterwards, by a new undertaking, engaged to deliver up the acceptance to the plaintiff within a month, or to indemnify him against it, and afterwards the defendant became bankrupt, not having paid or indemnified the plaintiff, and the latter was obliged to take up the bill after the defendant had obtained his certificate, it was held, in an action brought for non-performance of the promise, that it was sustainable, because the plaintiff could not have proved in respect of promise or breach under the defendant's commission, either as for a debt not payable at the time of the bankruptcy, or for a contingent debt, or in the character of a surety, and therefore that the bankruptcy and certificate afforded no defence(c).

With respect to the sum recoverable by an accommodation acceptor from the party he accommodated, upon his express implied contract to indemnify, What costs it is reported to have been decided, that he cannot recover the costs or de-ble.

⁽z) See preceding note.
(a) Jackson v. Clarke, 1 Younge & Jerv. Moo. 341, (Chit. j. 1255). (c) Yallop v. Ebers, I Bar. & Adol. 698

7thly, Indemnity to, and Right of Acceptor.

II. Of Ac- fending an action of the suit of a bona fide holder, which he must have known ceptances. was indefensible, because he ought not to have incurred such costs, and should at least have paid after he had been served with the writ(d). But in some of those cases the declaration was only for money paid, when it ought to have been special for not indemnifying, and the payment of costs incurred by A. cannot be money paid for the use of B.(e). And other cases establish, that where there has been an express or implied contract to indemnify, all the costs of the acceptor's resisting the action on the bill are recoverable from the party accommodated (f), even the costs of a bill in equity, or a writ of error; because an accommodation acceptor is not, as between him and the party who promised to provide for the bill, to be expected to be prepared immediately to pay, and he has a right, as against him, to delay the time of payment, in order to prevent an execution against his own property And such acceptor may, it seems, recover the amount of the costs which he has incurred, without proving that he has actually paid them(h). [*321] And where an action *is brought by an accommodation acceptor against the drawer, for not indemnifying him, the court will not permit the defendant to set up any counter claim(i). An accommodation acceptor, perhaps, like a surety, who pays the creditor, may in equity have a right to the benefit of all instruments and securities given by the principal debtor for payment of that debt(k).

8thly, Liability of a of a third Person. who has not aceptpromised to pay out of Funds when in his Pow-*321]

Besides the liability to pay a bill incurred by the act of accepting it, the Drawee, or drawee or any other person may, by express promise, subject himself to liability to pay the amount out of the money then in his hands, or which he may afterwards receive, and this, although the bill itself may be invalid; as where it has been drawn on an agent, requesting him to pay a sum of money out of ed, but has a particular fund, though we have seen that such instrument will be wholly void as a bill of exchange, because the payment of it depends upon a contingency(l); yet if the drawee promise to pay the amount when he shall receive funds, and the holder, in consequence, retains the bill, the amount, when received, will be recoverable from the drawee as received to his use(m).

> (d) Reach v. Thompson, Mood. & M. 487, 4 Car. & P. 194, (Chit j. 1486); Knight r. Hughes, id. 247; Gillett v. Rippon, id. 406; > Spurrier v. Elderson, 5 Esp. Rep. 1, S. P.

> (e) Roach v. Thompson, Mood. & M. 487,

&c; 4 Car. & P. 194, (Chit. j. 1486).

(f) Chilton v. Whitlen, 3 Wils. 12, 13, 362, (Chit. j. 378); Ex parte Marshall, 1 Atk. 262, (Chit. j. 333); Taylor v. Higgins, 3 East, 169; Sparkes v. Martindale, 8 East, 593; Exparte Lloyd, 17 Ves. 245; Bignall v. Andrews, 7 Bing. 217; and see Bleaden r. Charles, 5 Moore & P. 14; ante, 81, note (i).

(g) See the same cases, and Ex parte Marshall, 1 Atk. 262, (Chit. j. 533). An extent of the crown was taken out against a surety of a bankrupt, who paid the debt after disputing it for some time, and being put to an expense thereby; and it was urged, that notwithstanding he disputed the payment of a just debt, he should be admitted to prove the expenses of such suit under the commission against the principal; and per Lord Chancellor, "I know of no such distinction, and it would be a very hard case here, as the failing of Garway was in all probability the sole occasion of the difficulties that Hatton was under, and made him incapable of paying the demand of the crown, and as an extent is both an action and execution in the first instance. Hatton, in his situation, could not be supposed prepared to pay it immediately, and therefore there is no pretence for saying, that his representatives shall be precluded from proving the expenses Hatton was put to in the suit with the crown."

And see Sparkes r. Martindale, 8 East, 598, where the costs of filing a bill, &c. were recovered, it being proved that before the expense had been incurred, the surety gave notice to his principal of the action having been brought, and he refused to defend or indemnify; and as to extra costs, see Sandbach v. Thomas, 1 Stark. Rep. 206; and as to costs in error, see 3 Wils.

(h) Bullock v. Lloyd, 2 Car. & P. 119, (Chit.

j. 1274). (i) Hardcastle v. Netherwood, 5 Bar. & Ald. 93, (Chit. j. 1118).

(k) Dowbiggin v. Bourne, Younge's Rep. Ex. 115.

(1) Ante, 134.

(m) Stevens r. Hill, 5 Esp. Rep. 247, (Chit. j. 716); Kilsby r. Williams, 5 B. & Al. 215; 1 Dow & Ry. 476, (Chit. j. 1249); Ex parte Alderson and another, 1 Madd. 53, 55; 2 Rose, 31; and see Maber v. Massias, 2 Bla. Rep ı,r

.. :- :-

- 1 C

1.13

And St.

. پېښ^و

لمينزرس

, . . . ^{. .}

y 7"#

g Ramii

¥

فتحت

î i a draft on the executor of a debtor, which the executor promised to discharge II. Of Acon his receiving assets, is an equitable assignment of the debt, available ceptances. against assignees in bankruptcy(n). But as a chose in action is not assigna- Liability of ble so as to enable the assignee to sue the original debtor merely by virtue Perty of such assignment, it follows, that unless the third person, who has funds in promising to pay Unhand, expressly promises to pay, and such promise be accepted, the holder of accepted

1072; Ex parte Kirk, 1 Atk. 108; ante, 144, 145; see also Israel v. Douglas, Hen. Bla. 239; 4 Dowl. & R. 7; 3 Bar. & C. 855: 4 Id. 166; 8 Id. 395; 1 Chitty on Pleading, 6th edit. 36, Stevens v. Hill, 5 Esp. Rep. 247, (Chit. j. 716). Assumpsit, first count against defendant as acceptor of a bill, drawn by Admirul Smith on defendant his agent; the others money counts. The bill had been burnt by accident, and the plaintiff gave parol evidence of it. The defendant was a navy agent, and the bill was drawn by Admiral Smith in this form, 'out of my half-pay which will become due on the 1st January pay to Stevens 15l.' This was brought to Hill, who said he had then no money of Admiral Smith's in his hands, but that he would pay it out of the admiral's money when he received it. Admiral Smith was called, he produced an account furnished by Hill as his agent, containing an account of the money received at different times on the admiral's account, and also of the bills drawn by him on Hill, on which there was a balance of 411. due to Hill. It was objected by Garrow, first, that the plaintiff could not recover on the count on the bill, as it appeared to be not a bill of exchange, it being drawn on a particular fund, and not payable generally, which was necessary to constitute a legal bill. This count was abandoned, and that for money had and received relied upon. To this it was answered, that the engagement of Hill was to pay the bill when he had money of Admiral Smith's in his hands, and that it appeared by the account which was produced by Admiral Smith, that the admiral was the debtor of Hill, and of course that Hill had no funds in his hands out of which only the bill was to be paid. Lord Ellenborough, having taken the papers produced, in which the receipts of mon-ey and entries of bills were put under their re-spective dates, observed, "that though on the eneral balance a sum of 40l. was due to the defendant, yet, by referring to dates, it would appear that Hill, after the day the bill was brought to him for acceptance, and after his declaration as proved, and before he had been called upon to make any payment, had received money of Admiral Smith's more than sufficient to answer the bill, it was therefore his duty to have reserved for that bill, and not to have paid other drafts subsequently drawn; he was not therefore protected by subsequent payments." His lordship added, that "a similar case of an army agent occurred before Lord Kenyon, in which the agent had promised to pay the draft of a person on him, and having neglected to do so, an action was brought; that he was of counsel for the defendant in that cause, and argued that this promise of the agent was nudum pactum, but Lord Kenyon overruled the objection, and held, that it was an appropriation of so much to the use of the holder of the draft, and made him liable on the re- funds when ceipt of any money upon the credit of which it received. was drawn." De Bernales v. Fuller, cited in Vas. 14 East, 590, n. (a), 598, S. P.

Kilsby v. Williams, 5 Bar. & Ald. 816; 1
Dow. & Ry. 476, (Chit. j. 1149). Plaintiff paid into his own bankers a check of 2501. drawn upon them by a third person, which they received without any objection; and in the course of the same day the drawer of the check paid in a sum of money, part of which he particularly appropriated, leaving a balance unappropriated of 2371. The bankers, who were then creditors of the drawers to a large amount, wrote on the next morning to the plaintiff, stating that the check was not paid, but that they would keep it in the hope of there being money to pay it, and on that day a further unappropriated balance was paid in, making altogether a sum exceeding the plaintiff's check; it was held, that under these circumstances the plaintiff might maintain an action for money had and received against the bankers, and that the latter, being his agents for the receipt of the money, could not appropriate the balance to the payment either of their own general account against the drawer, or of two checks presented on the same day, but subsequently to that of the plaintiff, and paid by them.

See also Adren v. Rowney, 5 Esp. Rep. 254, S. P., (Chit. j. 717.) If a check drawn upon a person is sent by another to know if it is good, before he will receive it, and such person says it will be honoured, as he is indebted to the drawer of it, though the check turns out to be void, as being post-dated, the holder may nevertheless recover, on proving that the sum due to the drawer was so appropriated. But in these cases the difficulty of establishing the facts in evidence, on account of the instrument not having been duly stamped, must be considered.

What not sufficient to raise an implied promise by bankers to pay check in the absence of funds, Boyd v. Emmerson, 4 Nev. & Man. 99; 2 Ad. &. El. 184, S. C.; post, Ch. XI. as to Checks.

(n) Ex parte Alderson and another, 1 Madd. 53, 55; 2 Rose, 13, App. Row became indebted to petitioners in 5251. and being a creditor of the estate of Fish, deceased, gave them a draft on the executors as follows:-" Please to pay Messrs. Alderson, or order, four hundred and seventeen pounds, six shillings, as part of the amount due to me for plumber's work done for the late John Fish, Esq. Jane Row." The petitioners presented the draft to the executor, but he, not being prepared with assets, did not accept it, but retained it, to be paid when there should be funds. The Vice-Chancellor. "This is a good equitable ussignment; the executor bound himself to pay when in possession of asceptances. mising to pay Unacout of Funds when received.

II. Of Ac- the bill cannot sue him(o); and if, before the party offer to pay the bill, it has been returned for non-acceptance (p), the holder has no remedy against So where the drawee proposed to pay, and a dispute arose Liability of such party. Party pro- about a charge for a duplicate protest, and the holder then declined to receive the amount of the bill, without such charge, it was held, that afterwards he cepted Bill could not compel the drawer to pay the bill(q). Where A. gives B. anorder *on his bankers, directing them "to hold over from his private account 4001. to the disposal of B." and the bankers accept the order, such order is nevertheless revocable, and may be countermanded before payment made to [*323] B. or appropriation to his credit(r). So where A., resident abroad, remitted a bill to B., his agent in England, drawn by A. and specially indorsed by him to C., with whom his children were at school, in payment of C.'s account for their board and education; and B. got the bill accepted by the drawees, and sent a letter by post to C. stating that he had received a commission from A. to pay her some money on account of his children, and desired to be informed when and how it should be delivered; and while the bill remained in B.'s hands he received directions from A. to keep it and the proceeds in his hands, and to have a fair investigation into C.'s accounts, and after such investigation to pay her what might be due to her; but no such investigation took place and B. detained the bill; it was held, that C. could not recover the bill in an action of trover(s). And a promise to give a credit at a future time is not like a promise to pay(t)(1).

> (o) Williams v. Everett, 14 East, 582, (Chit. j. 842); Grant v. Austen, 3 Price, 59; Kelly, residing abread, having remitted bills on England to the defendants, his bankers, in London, with directions in the letters inclosing such bills to pay the amount in certain specified proportions to the plaintiff and other creditors of Kelly, who would produce their letters of advice from him on the subject, and desiring the amount paid to each person to be put on their respective bills, and that every bill paid off should be cancelled; and the plaintiff having, before the bills became due. given notice to the defendants that he had received a letter from Kelly, ordering payment of his debt out of that remittance, and having offered them an indemnity if they would hand over one of the bills to him, but the defendants having refused to indorse the bill away, or to act upon the letter, admitting, however, that they had received the direction to apply the money, and the defendants having in fact afterwards received the money on the bills when due, held, that they did not, by the mere act of receiving the bills and afterwards the produce of them, with such directions, and without any assent on their part to the purport of the letter, and still more against their express dissent, bind themselves to the plaintiff so to apply the mon-ey in discharge of his debt due to him from Kelly, and consequently that the plaintiff, between whom and the defendants there was no privity of contract express or implied, but on the contrary it was repudiated, could not maintain his action against the defendants as for money had and received by them to his own use, but that the property in the bills and their produce still continued in the remitter. And see Assignees

-, 1 Salk. 143; Williamson of Holland v. v. Thompson, 16 Ves. 442; Scott r. Porcher, 8 Mer. 652.

Wedlake r. Hurley, 1 Cromp. & J. 33, (Chit. j. 1506). A. remitted to B. a bank-bill indorsed, "Pay to the order of B. under provision for my note in favour of C. payable at the house of B. on 1st Jan. 1830." B. received the proceeds of the bill, and refused to pay them over to C. In an action for money had and received by C. it was held, that B. was not liable to C. because B. had never assented to hold the bill or money to the use of C. And see Brind v. Hampshire, 1 M. & W. S65; poel, 323, note (s).

(p) Stewart v. Fry, 1 Moore, 74; 7 Taunt. 339, (Chit. jun. 984). Where persons received money for the express purpose of taking up a bill of exchange two days after it became due, and upon tendering it to the holders and demanding the bill, found that they had sent it back protested for non-acceptance to the persons who indorsed it to them; held, that such persons having received fresh orders not to pay the bill, were not liable to un action by the holders for money had and received, when, upon the bills being re-procured and tendered to them, they refused to pay the money.

(q) Anderson r. Heath, 4 M. & Sel. 303, (Chit. j. 936); ante, 299, note (n).

(r) Gibson v. Minet, Ryan & Moo. 68; 1 Car. & P. 247; 9 Moore, 31; 2 Bing. 7, (Chit. j 1208).

(s) Brind r. Hampshire, 1 Moes. & Wels.

(t) Pedder r. Watt, Peake's Rep. Addenda. 41, (Chit j. 547, 555.)

⁽¹⁾ See also as to acceptance, 2 Kent's Com. 2d ed. 82-8.

11

77.2

. . 4

55 W W

[[4] (3

" TO

.,4

In France the holder of a bill for value, whether or not the drawee has ac- II. Of Accepted or promised to pay, may proceed against him in the name of the ceptances. drawer, for the debt or funds, in respect of which the bill was drawn, and with all the rights that the drawer had(u). But in England no such action at law can be supported, unless there has been an acceptance, or an express promise to pay (x). In equity a principal who has consigned goods to his factor, and received his acceptance in advance, may, on failure of factor, restrain him from receiving the proceeds (y).

In France, a third person may become a party to a bill pour aval, which sthly, of is effected by writing his name on the bill under those words, and which billity of a places him in the situation of a second acceptor, but with this difference, that Party who he is entitled to due notice of the dishonour by *the original drawee(z). has guar-But this description of surety is unknown in England, where a series of ac-anteed the Payment. ceptors is not allowed, so that a person to whom a bill is not addressed can[*324] not, after the drawee has accepted, also become liable as an acceptor, and the only mode of becoming legally responsible for the payment of the bill is by indorsement before that in favour of the holder(a), or by a distinct collateral engagement(b). To sustain the latter, it must be founded on adequate consideration, such as having funds of the drawer or other party to the bill, or be in consideration of forbearance to one of the parties; and if the effect of the contract be to pay the debt of another out of the party's own funds, the consideration must appear on the face of the written undertaking, and all the rules which we have considered essential to the validity of a guarantee on the transfer of bills applies to an engagement of this nature(c). Therefore a written undertaking, "Mr. W. will engage to pay the bill drawn by Pitman

(u) 1 Pardess. 343, 429, 442, 448; ante, 291, note (1).

(x) Ubi supra.

(y) Bryan v. Tomkins and Gosling, Vice-Chancellor's Court, 18th February, 1932, MS. Mr. Knight applied for an injunction to restrain the defendants from receiving the produce of a quantity of malt, which had been consigned to them by the plaintiff. It appeared that Tomkins and Gosling, the defendants, were mult factors residing in London, and that the phintiff, Mr. Bryan, was in the habit of forwarding great quantities of malt to them for the purpose of sale. In order to facilitate any legal proceedings that might occur in the course of these transactions, and to give the defendants the power to sue at law, the plaintiff agreed that all contracts entered into by them on his behalf should be made in their own name; but the debts that became consequently owing were specifically the debts of Bryan. It was constantly the practice in the nunlt trade, when a quantity of malt was consigned to a London factor, for the consignor to draw bills on the factor on the credit of the dealing between them; and these bills were accepted by the factor, and used by the consignor as his own property. This course had been adopted by the plaintiff and the defendants, and several bills thus created had been negotiated by the plaintiff, and had ultimately become the property of Messrs. Bunny and Slocock, bankers at Newbury. Messrs. Tomkins and Gosling had since stopped payment, and being debtors to a considerable amount (in addition to the acceptances of the plaintiff's bills) to Messrs. Slocock and Co., a deed of composition was entered into by the creditors of the defendants, which Messrs. Slocock and Co. had signed, and by which they had received 10s. in the pound. This arrangement including the bills drawn by the plaintiff, the learned counsel contended, that the debts, which would otherwise have been due to Mr. Bryan, now clearly belonged to the defendants. and that their liability on the acceptances had not been affected by the deed of composition made by Messrs. Slounck and Co. He therefore trusted his Honour would not suffer the defendants to receive the produce of the malt, which was most undoubtedly the property of the plaintiff. Mr. Ching followed on the same side. Mr. Pepys and Mr. Elderton, on the part of the defendants, opposed the application.

The Vice-Chancellor thought the plaintiff had an equity, and granted the injunction.
(2) 1 Pardess. 419 to 422; Pailliet Man. de

Droit Français, 849. (a) Bishop v. Hayward, 4 T. R. 470, (Chit. j. 492); Britton v. Webb, 2 Bar. & Cres. 483; 3 Dow. & Ry. 650, (Chit. j. 1199); ante, 26, note (o). (b) Jackson v. Hudson, 2 Campb. 447,

(Chit. j. 799); ante, 165.

(c) As to guarantees on transfers, ante, 243, (c) As to guarantees on transiers, aniz, 235, et seq.; and see Phillip v. Astling, 2 Taunt. 206, (Chit. j. 777); Warrington v. Furbor, 8 East, 242; 6 Esp. 89, (Chit. j. 783); Swinyard v. Bowes, 5 Maule & S. 62, (Chit. j. 955); Holbrow v. Wilkins, 1 Bar. & C. 10; 2 Dowl. & R. 59, (Chit. j. 1652); Van Wart v. Wolley, R. 59, (Chit. j. 1652); Van Wart v. Wolley, Chit. 8 Bar. & C. 459; 5 Dowl. & R. 874, (Chit. i.

II. Of Acceptances. in favour of S. S." was held invalid, because it did not state the consideration for which it was given(d). Sometimes even a collateral security by deed is taken(e). In these cases of collateral guarantees, where the parties names are not on the bill, they are not entitled to the strict and immediate notice of dishonour, as a party is who has drawn and indorsed the bill, and unless he has really sustained loss by the want of notice, he continues liable on his guarantee (f).

(d) Saunders v. Wakefield, 4 Bar. & Ald. 595. See other cases Chit. Col. Stat. 373, 374, in notes; Morley v. Boothby, 3 Bing. 107. (e) Murray v. King, 5 Bar. & Ald. 165, (Chit. j. 1119). (f) Warrington v. Furbor, 8 East, 242; 6 Esp. 89, (Chit. j. 733), and other cases, post, Ch. X. s. i. When Notice of Non-payment necessary.

19 5 B

10.35

40.05 18 110

*CHAPTER VIII.

OF NON-ACCEPTANCE AND THE NECESSARY PRO-CEEDINGS THEREON—PROTEST FOR BETTER SECURITY—AND ACCEPTANCES FOR HON-OUR SUPRA PROTEST.

	6. To whom Notice must be given 7. Liability of the Parties on Non-ac-	389
325	ceptance	340
	8. How Consequences of Laches may be waived	343
ib.	II. OF PROTEST FOR BETTER SECU-
	RITY	ib.
332	III. OF ACCEPTANCE SUPRA PRO-
_	TEST	344
835	1. By whom made	ib.
		346
336
	4. Right of Acceptor sunra Protest	352
	ib . 332 835 336	7. Liability of the Parties on Non-acceptance 8. How Consequences of Laches may be waived ib. II. OF PROTEST FOR BETTER SECU- RITY 332 III. OF ACCEPTANCE SUPRA PROTEST 1. By whom made 2. Mode of accepting supra Protest

I. OF Non-acceptance and Proceedings thereon.

THE inquiry into the conduct which the holder of a bill should pursue on a 1. Of Nonrefusal or neglect to accept at all, or on the offer of a conditional or partial acceptance and Proacceptance, very much resembles and is governed by most of the same rules ceedings as prevail in the case of non-payment of a bill or note, and therefore the read-thereon. er is referred to that part of the work for further information on the sub-It will, however, be advisable to consider all the decisions more immediately relating to notice of non-acceptance, under the above sub-divisions, even at the risk of repetition.

It has already been observed, that a presentment for acceptance is only 1st, When necessary when a bill is made payable within a certain period after sight(b). Notice of Non-ac-If, however, in that or any other case, a bill be in fact, though unnecessarily, ceptance presented, and an acceptance be refused, or only a conditional or partial ac-neccessary ceptance be offered, notice should immediately be given to the persons to consewhom the holder means to resort for payment, or they will, in this country, quences of in general be totally discharged from their respective liabilities, not only on Neglect. the bill of exchange, but the original consideration of it(c)(1); and it is not in that case sufficient for the holder to wait till the time mentioned in the bill for payment has elapsed, and then to give notice of non-acceptance as well as of non-payment (d)(2). And if an indorser should, on a bill over-due be-

(a) See post, Ch. X.

(b) Ante, 272.
(c) Blesard v. Hirst, Burr. 2670, (Chit. j. 2670, (Chit. j. 384); Goodall v. Dolley, 1 T.-R. 712, (Chit. j. 364); Bridges v. Berry, 3 Taunt. 130, (Chit. j. 2670; Goodall v. Dolley, 1 T. R. 712;

j. 804); Racker v. Hiller, 16 East, 43; 3

(2) The holder of a bill ought to present it for acceptance within a reasonable time, whether

^{(1) {} Higgins v. Morrison's Ex'r, 4 Dana, 102. Callum v. Carey, 9 Porter, 131. Riggs v. M'Donald, I Ala. Rep. (N. S.) 641. }

ceedings thereon.

1st, When Notice of Non-acceptance neccessary or not, and Consequences of Neglect. [*326]

. Of Non- ing returned to him, pay the same under ignorance of the refusal to accept, acceptance and of the neglect of the holder, he will not be able to recover from the prior parties, who had previously been *discharged by such laches(e). Perhaps there may be stronger reason for requiring prompt notice of non-acceptance than of non-payment, because, as regards non-payment, the drawer ought to have supplied the drawee with funds before the bill is at maturity; but he might be justified in drawing before effects had actually reached the drawee, and if the latter should refuse to accept, the drawer ought to be informed thereof, in order that he may be enabled to stop such effects in transitu. The law in France is different, for there a protest for non-acceptance is only requisite when a presentment for acceptance was essential, as in case of bills payable after sight, and in other cases, although there has been a refusal to accept, the holder may or not at his election protest and give notice(f). In America, if on the day of presentment acceptance be refused, but on the next day the drawee alter his mind and accept, but no notice of the refusal to accept be given, it has been held that the other parties are discharged(g). But we have seen, that a bona fide holder, to whom a bill has been transferred after refusal to accept, is not affected by the neglect of any previous holder to give notice of that fact(h). And if the drawer and drawee(i), or one of several drawees in partnership (j), is the same person, notice is not necessary, it being considered he must have knowledge of his own refusal to And if the bill were given on a wrong stamp, the neglect to present it for acceptance, or give notice of the refusal, would not prejudice the vendor of the goods, in payment of which such improperly stamped bill had been given, and he may, notwithstanding his laches, sue for the price (k); and if the bill were given only as a collateral security, and the party delivering it were no party upon it, he will not in such case be discharged from his original liability by the laches of the holder, unless he was really prejudiced And, as no laches can be imputed to the Crown, if a by the omission (l). bill be seized under an extent before it is due, the neglect of the officer of the Crown to give notice of the dishonour will not discharge the drawer or indorsers(m)(1).

> Anon. 1 Vent. 45; Poth. pl. 133; Dagglish v. Weatherby, 2 Bla. Rep. 747, (Chit. j. 382); per Lord Ellenborough in Orr v. Magennis, 7 East, 362; 2 Smith, 328, (Chit. j. 726); 3 & 4 Anne, c. 9, s. 7.

(e) Roscoe v. Hardy, 12 East, 434; 2 Camp. 458, (Chit. j. 801).

(f) 1 Pardess. 404. (g) Mitchell v. Degrand, 1 Mason, 176;

Bayl. 160, American edit. (h) Ante, 214, 215; Selw. 9th edit. 330.

(i) Roach v. Ostler, 1 Man. & R. 120, (Chit. j. 1359).

(j) Porthouse v. Peake, 1 Campb. 82, (Chit. j. 741).

(k) Ante, 124; Wilson v. Vysar, 4 Taunt. 218, (Chit. j. 860); Cundy v. Marriott, 1 B. & Adol. 696, (Chit. j. 1522).

(1) See more fully this, post, Ch. X. s. i. Presentment for Payment-When necessary. (m) West on Extents, 28, 29.

such bill was payable at sight or in any other manner; what is reasonable time, depends on the particular circumstances of the case, and it is for the jury to determine whether laches is impa-is the holder. Fernandez v. Lewis, 1 M'Cord, 322.

If a bill be payable after sight it must be presented within a reasonable time for acceptance. and immediate notice of non-acceptance given to the drawer: it is not sufficient to give notice of the non-acceptance and non-payment together after the day of payment has passed. Austin v. Rodman, 1 Hawks, 195. See ante, 163. See also, Van Wart v. Holly, 1 Wend, 219.

In Pennsylvania it is held, that in an action by an indorsee against the indorser of a foreign bill of exchange which has been protested for non-acceptance, it is not necessary to prove noice of the non-acceptance of the bill. Reed v. Adams, 6 Serg. & Rawle, 35. See Bank of Washing.

ton v. Triplett, I Peters, 25, 35.

(1) It seems that in the United States, the principle expressed in the text, has not been adopted. The contrary doctrine is very clearly to be inferred from the decision in the case of the United States v. Barker: wherein it was held, that whenever the United States, by their lawfully or not, and

.:.5" -3.11.43

1. 1.44

...(#

in in the وعلاتها gird.

: (. L.,

;; (),

1 (j) - 1 (j) - 1 (j)

1.17

The reason why the law in general requires the holder to give due notice I. Of Nonof non-acceptance by the drawee is, that the drawer may forthwith withdraw acceptance from the possession of the drawee such effects as he may already have, or ceedings may stop those which he is in course of receiving, and that the drawer and thereon. indorsers may respectively take the necessary measures to obtain payment 1st, When from the parties respectively liable to them; and if notice be not given, it is Notice a presumption of law that the drawer and indorsers are prejudiced by the Non-acomission; and it is on this principle that notice of non-acceptance and non-ceptance payment are required (n).

From some cases to be found in the books (o), it appears to have *been for- Consemerly holden, that it was incumbent on the person insisting on the want of no-quences of the holder. Neglect. tice, to prove that he had really sustained damage by the laches of the holder; [*327] but it has been settled by later decisions, that such damage is to be presumed, and that the only excuse for the omission is the proof of the total want of effects in the hands of the drawee (p); and it is always presumed, till the contrary appears, that the drawer of a bill has effects in the drawee's hands, and that the indorser or assignor has given value for it, and consequently that each has sustained loss by the holder's neglect to give notice (q), by which the chance of obtaining satisfaction from the parties liable to them must necessarily have been rendered more precarious.

But if the drawer of a bill, from the time of making it to the time when it When was due and presented for acceptance, had no effects in the hands of the draw- Want of Effects exee or acceptor, and had no right upon any other ground to expect that the cuses Negbill would be accepted, and the bill was drawn for the accommodation of lect to give such drawer, he is $prim\hat{a}$ facie not entitled to notice of the dishonour(r)(1), Non-ac-

Notice of ceptance.

(n) Whitfield v. Savage, 2 Bos. & Pul. 280, 281, (Chit. j. 630); Orr v. Magennis, 7 East, 362; 2 Smith, 328, (Chit. j. 726); Claridge v. Dalton, 4 Maule & S. 226, (Chit. j. 934); Corry v. Scott, 3 B. & Ald. 621, (Chit. j. 1081).

(o) Mogadara v. Holt, 1 Show. 318; 12 Mod. 15, (Chit. j. 182, 133); Butler v. Play, 1 Mod. 27, (Chit. j. 161); Sarsfield v. Weatherby, Comb. 152, (Chit. j. 172, 173); Bickerdike r. Bolman, 1 T. R. 406, (Chit. j. 435); Vin. Abr. tit. Bills of Exchange, M.; Poth. pl. 157, 159. And quære as to the drawer, 1 Pardess. 458, 459; Postlethw. tit. "Bills of Exchange," 16, 17; Whitfield v. Savage, 2

B. & P. 280, 281, (Chit. j. 630).

(p) Per Abbott, C. J. in Hill v. Heap, Dowl. & Ry. N. P. C. 59; Dennis v. Morris, 3 Esp.

Rep. 153, (Chit. j. 626).

(q) Per Buller, J. in Bickerdike v. Bollman, 1 T. R. 406, 409, (Chit. j. 435); Tatlock v. Harris, 3 T. R.82, (Chit. j. 453); Anon. Ventr. 45; Nicholson v. Gouthit, 2 Hen. Bla. 612, (Chit. j. 556); Mogadara v. Holt, 1 Show. 317; 12 Mod. 15, (Chit. j. 182).

(r) Cory v. Scott, 3 B. & Ald. 619, (Chit. 1081); Norton v. Pickering, 8 B. & C. 610; 3 M. & R. 23, S. C.; Claridge v. Dalton, 4

Maule & S. 229; Legge v. Thorpe, 2 Campb. 310; 12 East, 171, (Chit. j. 783); where the rule, principle, and inconveniences are stated: and see Walwyn v. St. Quintin, 1 Bos. & Pul. and see Wallyn D. St. Quintia, I Bos. & Pul. 654, 655, (Chit. j. 578); Clegg v. Cotton, 3 Bos. & Pul. 241, 242, (Chit. j. 657); Gale v. Walsh, 5 T. R. 239, (Chit. j. 506); Poth. pl. 157; Bickerdike v. Bollman, 1 T. R. 405, (Chit. j. 435); Goodall v. Dolley, id. 712, (Chit. j. 440); Rogers v. Stephens, 2 T. R. 712 (Chit. j. 440); Rogers v. Stephens, 2 T. R. (Chit. j. 440); Rogers v. Stephens, 2 1. 14.
713, (Chit. j. 416); Nicholson v. Gouthit, 2
Hen. Bla. 610, (Chit. j. 556); Staples v. Okines,
1 Esp. R. 333, (Chit. j. 554); Wilkes v. Jacks, Peake's C. N. P. 202. The progress of the cases on this subject is also stated in Brown v. Maffey, 15 East, 216, (Chit. j. 852). See also Pailliett Man. 843.

Legge v. Thorpe, 12 East, Rep. 171; 2 Camp. 310, (Chit. j. 783). Indorsee against drawer of a foreign bill, drawn upon Wyatt, payable one month after sight, of which acceptance had been refused. The declaration negatived effects in the hands of the drawee, or any consideration for the bill. It appeared at the trial that the defendant had no effects in Wyatt's hands, and that the latter had therefore refused acceptance; but that Wyatt was one of the executors of Weeks, and that Weeks authorized agents, become the holder of a bill of exchange, it is bound to give strict notice of dis-honour, for the purpose of charging the indorser. 12 Wheat. 559.

(1) A drawer of a bill, having no funds in the hands of the acceptor, or having withdrawn them without giving notice of the bill, and intercepting all other funds before they reach the acceptor, is not entitled to strict notice of non-payment. Valk v. Simmons, 4 Mason, 113.

ceedings thereon.

let. When Notice of Non-acceptance necessary or not, and ment(u).

Conse-Neglect. Want of Effects.

I. Of Non- nor can he object, in such case, that a foreign bill should have been protestacceptance ed(s). In this case, the drawer being himself the real debtor, acquires no and Proright of action against the acceptor by paying the bill, and suffers no injury from want of notice of non-acceptance or non-payment, consequently the laches of the holder affords him no defence(t). And therefore where the drawer had supplied the drawee with goods on credit, which did not elapse until after the bill would fall due, and the drawer had no right to draw the bill, it was held that he was not discharged by the want of notice of non-pay-

It is, however, no excuse for not giving notice to the indorser of a bill, quences of that the drawee had no effects of the drawer(x)(1). And although no *consideration passed between the payee and drawer of a bill of exchange, it is not to be considered an accommodation bill as to the latter, if there was a [*328] valuable consideration as between the payee and the acceptor (y)(2). Where A. and Co. resident in America, employed B., resident at Birmingham in this country, to purchase and ship goods for them, and on account of such purchases they sent to B. a bill drawn by C. in America on D. in London, but did not indorse it; B. employed his bankers to present the bill for acceptance, and D. refused to accept, but of this the bankers did not give notice until the day of payment, when it was again presented and dishonoured, and before the bill arrived in this country C. became bankrupt, and he had not, either when the bill was drawn, or at any time before it became due, any funds in the hands of D., the drawee; in an action by B. against the bankers, for negligence, in not giving him notice of the non-acceptance, it was held, that inasmuch as A. and Co. not having indorsed the bill, were not entitled to notice of dishonour, and still remained liable to B. for the price of the goods sent to them, and the drawer was not entitled to notice as he had no funds in the hands of the drawee; B. could not recover the whole amount of > executors had desired the defendant to employ the payee of this bill to do some carpenter's work on Weeks' property, and the defendant drew this bill on Wyatt for the payment of the payee. Wyatt denied that he had assets to pay the bill. The only question was, whether a protest for non-acceptance were necessary; Lord Ellenborough thought not; and a verdict was given for the plaintiff; but the point was reserved, and on a rule nisi for nonsuit and cause shewn, the whole court held that this case was governed by those of Bickerdike v. Bollman, 1 T. R. 405, (Chit. j. 435); and Rogers v. Stephens, 2 T. R. 713, (Chit. j. 446); and discharged the rule.

(*) Legge v. Thorpe, 2 Campb. 310; 12 East, 171, (Chit. j. 783); see the preceding

(t) Per Chambre, J. in Leach v. Hewitt, 4 Taunt. 733, (Chit. j. 881); 1 Pardens. 458, 459, S. P.

(u) Claridge v. Dalton. 4 Maule & S. 226;

(Chit. j. 984).
(x) Wilkes r. Jacks, Peake R. 202. The French law is the same; 1 Pardess. 459.

(y) Scott v. Lifford, 1 Camp. 246; 9 East,

347, (Chit. j. 747, 749).

(2) It has been decided in Virginia, that notice of non-acceptance and non-payment need not be given to the indorser of a bill, if it was drawn and indorsed for the accommodation of the drawer, with the knowledge of the indorser, there being no expectation that the bill would be duly honored. Farmer's Bank v. Vanmeter, 4 Rand. 553.

Where A. and B. were indorsers of a bill drawn for the accommodation of C., and A. being the first indorser paid it, and afterwards received the note of C., indorsed by B. for one half the amount, it was held, that this note was not given for the accommodation of A. and that he might recover on B.'s indorsement. Hatcher v. McMorine, 3 Devereux's Rep. 228.

Where the maker and owner of a note which he gets indersed by the payoes, transfers it 10 a third person, it becomes an accommodation paper, in which the inderser is merely a surety. Leckie v. Scott, 10 Curry's Louis. Rep. 412.

⁽¹⁾ Though there be no funds in the hands of the drawec of a bill of exchange; yet if the bill be drawn under such circumstances as might induce the drawer to entertain a reasonable expectation that the bill would be accepted and paid, he is entitled to notice. Campbell v. Pettengill, 7 Greenleaf 's Rep. 126.

'nr

شه بريس

. 7.72

· .yes

75.2

1 1

17. 22

.

2 12

4

1 2 2 2 3

112 2

, , , 2

the bill, but only such damages as he had actually sustained in consequence I. Of Nonfor having been delayed in the pursuit of his remedy against the drawer(z).

If at any time between the drawing of the bill and its presentment and disceedings honour the drawee had some effects of the drawer in his hands, though insuffi-thereon. cient to pay the amount, he will nevertheless be entitled to notice of the dis-honour, and the laches of the holder will discharge him from liability, for Notice of this case differs from that where there are no effects whatever of the drawer Non-acin the hands of the drawee at the time, because the drawer must then know ceptance that he is drawing upon accommodation, and without any reasonable expector not, and tation that the bill will be honoured; but if he have effects at the time, it Consewould be dangerous and inconvenient, merely on account of the shifting of a quences of balance, to hold notice not to be necessary; it would be introducing a num-Want of ber of collateral issues upon every case upon a bill of exchange, to ex- Effects. amine how the accounts stood between the drawer and the drawee from the time the bill was drawn down to the time when it was dishonoured(a). For the same reason, if the drawer of a bill of exchange, when it is presented for acceptance, has effects in the *hands of the drawees, though he is indebted [*329] to them in a much larger amount, and they without his privity bave appropriated the effects in their hands to the satisfaction of their debt, he is entitled to notice of the dishonour(b). Nor is actual value in the hands of the drawee at the time of drawing essentially necessary to entitle the drawer to notice of dishonour of the bill, for circumstances may exist which would give a drawer good ground to consider he had a right to draw a bill upon his correspondent; as, where he had consigned effects to him, to answer the bill, though (z) Van Wart v. Woolley, 3 B. & C. 439; 5 Dow. & Ry. 374; Mood. & M. 520, (Chit.

j. 1235). (a) Orr v. Magennis, 7 East Rep. 359; 3 Smith, 328, (Chit. j. 726). In an action by the payees against the drawer of a foreign bill, payable at ninety days after sight, the declaration averred presentment for acceptance and refusal, presentment for payment and refusal, and protest for non-payment; it then averred that at the time of making the bill, and from thence until presentment for payment, the defendant had no effects in the hands of the drawers. At the trial it appeared, that at the time of drawing the bill the defendant had effects in the hands of the drawees, but to what amount did not appear; but that when the bill was presented for acceptance, and thence until presentment for payment he had not any. The bill was only noted for non-acceptance, but was protested for non-payment, no notice of non-acceptance was given to the defendant. The plaintiffs had paid the amount to an indorsee. They were nonsuited for want of proving protest for and and notice of non-acceptance, On motion to set aside the nonsuit, Bickerdike v. Bollman and other cases were cited, to show that no notice, and therefore no protest was necessary. But Lord Ellenborough said, "that that case went on the ground that there were no effects in the hands of the drawee at the time when the bill was drawn, and the other cases followed on the same ground, but that no case had extended the exemption to cases where the drawee had effects of the drawer's in his hands at the time when the bill was drawn, though the balance might vary afterwards, and be turned into the opposite scale." Rule refused.

Hammond v. Dufrene, 8 Campb. 145, (Chit. j. 848); Thackray v. Blackett, 3 Campb. 164, (Chit. j. 849); but see the reasoning in 1 Pardess. 459, 460.

(b) Blackham v. Doren, 2 Campb. 503, (Ch. j. 818). This was an action against the drawer of a bill for 2501. payable after sight, of which acceptance had been refused; and to excuse the want of notice of non-acceptance, it was proved, that when the bill was presented, though the drawer had effects in the hands of the drawee to the amount of 1500l., yet that he owed them 10,000l. or 11,000l., and that they had approprinted the effects to go in satisfaction of this debt; this appropriation, however, was without the defendant's privity. Lord Ellenborough said, " If a man draws upon a house, with whom he has no account, he knows that the bill will not be accepted; he can suffer no injury from want of notice of its dishonour, and therefore he is not entitled to such notice; but the case is quite otherwise where the drawer has a fluctuuting balance in the hands of the drawee; there notice is peculiarly requisite. Without this, how can the drawer know that credit has been refused to him, and that his bill has been dishonoured? It is said here, that the effects in the hands of the drawees were all appropriated to discharge their own debt; but that appropriation should appear by writing, and the defendant should be a party to it. I wish that notice had never been dispensed with, then we should not have been troubled with investigating accounts between drawer and drawee. I certainly will not relax the rule still farther, which I should do if I were to hold that notice was unnecessary in the present case." Plaintiff nonand Proceedings thereon.

1st, When Notice of Non-acceptance Conse-Neglect. Want of Effects.

I. Of Non- they may not have come to him at the time when the bill was presented for acceptance acceptance, to which may be added the case of bills drawn in respect of other fair mercantile agreements(c). And therefore, where the drawer had sold and shipped goods to the drawee, and drew the bill before they had arrived, and the drawee not having received the bill of lading, refused to accept the goods because they were damaged, and who refused to accept the bill, it was decided that the drawer was discharged for want of notice(d). But if the vendor of goods sold upon credit draws upon the purchaser a bill, necessary which would be due long before the expiration of the stipulated credit, he is not entitled to notice of the dishonour, because he had no right to expect quences of that the drawee would honour the bill(e). Where the drawer of a bill of exchange had no effects *in the hands of the acceptor from the time of drawing the bill till it became due, but the acceptor had received from the *330] drawer, prior to this bill on which the action was brought, acceptances of the drawer, upon which he had raised money, some of which acceptances had been returned dishonoured and others were outstanding, it was held that the drawer was entitled to notice or dishonour of the bill(f). And it should seem, that although the drawer or other party may not have advanced money or goods to the drawee, yet if he has deposited short bills or policies, or even title-deeds in his hands, or has accepted cross-bills, and had reasonable ground to expect that the drawee would accept or pay in respect thereof, he is entitled to notice of the dishonour(g).

The death(h), bankruptcy, or known insolvency (i) of the drawee or his Death, Bankrupt-being in prison(k), constitute no excuses, either at law or in equity, for the cy, &c. no excuse.

(c) Per Lord Ellenborough, in Leggo v. Thorpe, 12 East, 175; 2 Camp. 310, (Chit j. 783); per Eyre, C. J. in Walwyn e. St. Quintin, 1 Bos. & Pul. 654; 2 Esp. R. 515, (Chit. j. 579); Ex parte Wilson, 11 Ves. 411, (Chit. j. 720).

(d) Rucker v. Hillop, 16 East, 43; 3 Camp. 217, 334, (Chit. j. 861). Where one draws a bill of exchange with a bond fide reasonable expectation of having assets in the hands of the drawee, as by having shipped goods on his account, which were on their way to the drawec. but without the bill of lading or invoice, the drawer is entitled to notice of the dishonour, though in fact the goods had not come to the hands of the drawee at the time when the bill was presented for acceptance, or he had rejected them, and he returned it, marked "no effects." Lord Ellenborough, C. J. said, When the drawer draws his bill on the bon't fide expectation of assets in the hands of the drawee to answer it, it would be carrying the case of Bickerdike v. Bollman further than has ever been done, if he were not at all events entitled to notice of the dishonour. And I know the opinion of my Lord Chancellor to be, that the doctrine of that case ought not to be pushed further. The case is very different where the party knows that he has no right to draw the bill. There are many occasions where a drawee may be justified in refusing, from motives of prudence, to accept a bill, on which notice ought nevertheless to be given to the drawer; and if we were to extend the exception further, it would come at last to a general dispensation with notice of the dishonour in all cases where the drawee had no assets in hand at the very time of presenting the bill; and thus get rid of the general rule requiring notice, than which nothing is more convenient in the commercial world. A bont fide reasonable expectation of assets in the hands of the drawce has been several times held to be sufficient to entitle the drawer to notice of the dishonour, though such expectation may ulti-mately have failed to be realized."

(e) Claridge v. Dalton, 4 Maule & S. 226,

(Chit. j. 934).

(f) Spooner v. Gardiner, Ryan & Mood. C.
N. P. 84, (Chit. j. 1211).

(g) In Walwyn v. St. Quintin, 2 Esp. R. 515, (Chit. j. 578), Eyre, C. J. left it to the jury to say whether title deeds were effects or not, and they found in the affirmative. Sec 1 Bos. & Pul. 652, S. C. and see Ex parte Heath, 2 Ves. & B. 240; 2 Rose, 141, (Chit. j. 894).

(h) Poth. pl 146; 1 Pardess. 450. (a) Form pr 140; I Pardess. 400.
(i) Russell v. Langstaffe, Dougl. 497, 516, (Chit. j. 415); Esdaile r. Sowerby, Il East, 114, (Chit. j. 767); Ex parte Wilson, Il Ves. 412, (Chit. j. 720); Whitfield r. Savage, 2 Bos. & Pul. 279, (Chit. j. 630); Thackray r. Blackett, 3 Campb. 165, (Chit. j. 349); Boultbee r. Stubbs, 18 Ves. 21; Rhode r. Proctor, 4 B. & C. 517; 6 Dow. & Rv. 610 (Chit. j. 1269); C. 517; 6 Dow. & Ry. 610, (Chit. j. 1269); 1 Pardess. 450; 6 B. & C. 382; Ex parte Johnson, 1 Mont. & Ayr. 622; 3 Dea. & Chit. 433. S. C; Ex parte Bignold, 2 Mont. & Ayr. 633; 1 Dea. 712, S. C. See several of these cases in the notes, post, Ch. X. s. i. as to Notice of Nonpayment, acc. Ex parte Smith, 3 Bro. C. C. 1, (Chit. j. 457), contra.

(k) Per Lord Alvanley, C. J. in Haynes r. Birks, 3 B. & P. 601, (Chit. j. 690).

neglect to give due notice of non-acceptance or non-payment; because many I. Of Nonmeans may remain of obtaining payment by the assistance of friends or oth-acceptance erwise, of which it is reasonable that the drawer and indorsers should have ceedings the opportunity of availing themselves, and it is not competent to the holders thereon to shew that the delay in giving notice has not in fact been prejudiced(1).

A neglect to give immediate notice may also be excused by some other Motice of Thus, the absconding or absence of the drawer or indorser Non-acmay excuse the neglect to advise him(m); and the sudden illness or death of ceptance the holder or his agent, or other accident(n), may constitute an excuse for $\frac{necessary}{or not, and}$ the want of a regular notice to any of the parties, provided it be given as Consesoon as possible after the impediment is removed (o).

The holder of a bill of exchange is also excused for not giving notice in Neglect. the usual time, by the day on which he should regularly have given notice being a public festival, on which he is strictly forbidden by his religion to attend to any secular affairs (p); and Good Friday or Christmas-day, Fast and Thanksgiving-days, are provided *for by express enactments(q). So he is $\lceil *331 \rceil$ excused if the political state of a country renders it impossible to give it (r).

If the drawee has offered a conditional or partial acceptance, or an accept- Notice in ance at an extended period, or if any other person than the drawee, &c. case of Conditionoffer an absolute acceptance, although the holder may be willing to receive al Acceptsuch offer, he must, if he intend to resort ultimately to the drawer and indors- unce ers, give each of them notice of such offer(s), and this before he accept the same(t); and in such case if the holder will have the power of availing himself of it, he should state in his notice the terms of the acceptance offered. for a notice generally of non-acceptance would, if made with full knowledge of the facts, shew that he did not acquiesce in the offer, and deprive him of the benefit of it(u). But it is said, that a neglect to give notice, where a conditional acceptance has been taken, is done away by the completion of those conditions before the bill becomes payable; and a neglect where there is an acceptance as to a part, and a refusal as to the residue, only discharges the persons entitled to notice as to the residue (x).

In general, if the parties to a bill or note have been discharged from liability by the neglect to give due notice of non-acceptance, they continue so discharged; and if an indorser, in ignorance of such laches, should pay the holder, he will not be able to recover from a prior indorser, who has been thereby previously discharged (y). But if an agent be directed to purchase

(1) Esdaile r. Sowerby, 11 East, 114, (Chit. j. 767); Russell v. Langstaffe, Dougl. 515; Bickerdike v. Bollman, 1 T. R. 408, (Chit. j. 435); De Berdt v. Atkinson, 2 Hen. Bla. 336, (Chit. j. 526); Nicholson v. Gouthit, id. 612, (Chit. j. 556); and admitted by the court in Warrington v. Furbor, 8 East, 245, 246, 247, (Chit. j. 733); Cory v. Scott, 3 Bar. & Ald. 623, (Chit. j. 1031); and see reasons in Rhode v. Proctor, 4 B. & C. 517; 6 D. & R. 610, (Chit. j. 1269). See also Terry v. Parker, 1 Nev. & P. 752; 6 Ad. & El. 502, S. C.; post, Ch. IX. X.

(m) Walwyn v. St. Quintin, 2 Esp. Rep. 516; 1 Bos. & Pul. 652, (Chit. j. 578); Bul. N. P. 273, 274; and see Crosse v. Smith, 1 Maule & S. 545, (Chit. j. 886); Bowes v. Howe, 5 Taunt. 30, (Chit. j. 892).
(n) See note, post, Ch. X. s. i. Non-payment.

(o) Turner v. Leach, sittings at Guildhall after Hilary Term, 1818, cor. Lord Ellenbo-rough. A case was reserved upon another point. See 4 Bar. & Ald. 451, (Chit. j. 1108); and see Smith v. Mullett, 2 Campb. 208, (Chit. j. 775), post, Ch. X. s. i.

(p) Lindo v. Unsworth, 2 Campb. 602, (Chit. j. 824).

(q) 39 & 40 Geo. 3, c. 42; 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 15; post, Ch. X. s. i. Time of giving Notice of Non-payment.

(r) Patience v. Townley, 2 Smith's Rep. 223, (Chit. j. 714).

(s) Marius, 4th edit. 21; Beawes, § 221; 2d edit. 445; Bayl. 5th edit. 253; ante, 300; Roscoe, 195.

(t) Ante, 300.

(u) Sproat v. Matthews, 1 T. R. 182, (Chit. 433); ante, 301, note (d); Roscoe, 195. (x) Bayl. 5th ed. 254; Roscoe, 195.

(y) Roscoe v. Hardy, 12 East, 434; 2 Campb. 458, (Chit. j. 801); Turner v. Leach, 4 B. & Ald 454, (Chit. j. 1108).

and Proceedings thereon.

Notice of Non-acceptance necessary Consequences of Neglect. [*332]

I. Of Non- goods for his principal and to draw upon the latter for the amount, and the acceptance agent accordingly draw a bill upon his principal in favour of the seller, which the principal refuses to accept, the want of notice to the drawer of the dishonour of the bill, from the holder, furnishes no answer to an action by the agent, who has been obliged to pay the bill, against his principal, founded on 1st. When the contract of indemnity (z). And we have seen, that where the parties have been discharged by neglect to give notice of non-acceptance, a subsequent indorsee, who obtained the bill before it was due, in ignorance of the necessary refusal to accept, may recover from all the parties(a). Some Chapter X. Section I. As to Proceedings on Non-payment. See further, post,

*If an agent neglect his duty to give due notice of non-acceptance, though he will not be absolutely and necessarily liable to pay the full amount of the bill, yet he will be liable to a special action on the case for his negligence; and though the holder may ultimately recover from other parties the full amount of the bill and interest, yet the agent will be liable to pay some damages for the breach of his implied contract, and for the delay and trouble he has thereby occasioned (b)(1).

The conduct which the holder must adopt on the dishonour of a foreign 2dly, When Protest for Non-acceptance requisite, and Mode of protesting.

(z) Huntley v. Sanderson, 1 Crom. & Mee. 467; 3 Tyrw. 469, S. C. S. & Co., the owners of a ship, of which H. was captain, despatched the latter to Miramichi, with instructions to purchase a cargo of timber, and draw upon them for the amount. H. proceeded to Miramichi accordingly, and there purchased some timber one L. for 154l. 11s. 11d. and drew a bill upon S. & Co. for the amount at sixty days sight, in favour of the seller or his order. The bill was dated 4 September, 1826, and on the 21st November it was duly presented for acceptance and protested for non-acceptance. The plaintiff was in Liverpool with the ship under his command from October, 1826, until April, 1827. It was not proved that the plaintiff received any notice of the dishonour of the bill, even from the then holder or from the defendants who had got the cargo. In 1832 the plaintiff was arrested upon this bill at Miramichi and paid it, in order to release himself from In a special action of assumpsit brought by the plaintiffs against the defendants for not paying the bill, not accepting it, and for not indemnifying the plaintiff from all loss, &c., sustained by him from having drawn the bill, it was held first, that under these circumstances the defendants could not insist on the want of proof of notice to the plaintiff of the dishonour of the bill, as a defence to the action; secondly, that a promise to indemnify was the promise which the law would in this case imply; and as there was no damnification till 1532, the statute of limitations did not apply.

(a) O'Keefe v. Dunn, 6 Taunt. 305; 1

Marsh. 618; 5 Maule & S. 292, (Chit. j. 937); affirmed on error, ante, 215, note (r)

(b) Van Wart v. Wooley, Mood. & M. 520; 3 B. & C. 439; 5 Dow. & R. 374, (Chit. j. 1235).

(1) A bank, where a note is left for collection, is chargeable either in case or assumpsit for neglecting the proper measures to charge indorsers. M'Kinster r. Bank of Utica, 9 Wend. Rep.

Where A. was the holder of a negotiable note, and turned it out to B. as collateral security for the payment of a debt due to the latter, who lest the note at a bank for collection, and the bank neglected to give notice of non-payment to the indorsers, whereby the money specified in the note was lost to A. who was obliged to pay its amount to B. it was held, that an action lay against the bank at the suit of A., although he never had any intercourse with the bank in relation to the note. Ib.

So also it was held that the suit was properly brought in the name of A., although it appeared that he had assigned his interest in the note to third persons. Ib. And see 11 Wend. Rep. 473, where the decision of the Supreme Court in this case is affirmed by the Court of Errors.

Il seems that in such a case an action lies at the suit of any person beneficially interested in having the duty performed. Bank of Utica v. M'Kinster, 11 Wend. 473.

The agent or broker with whom a bill payable a given number of days after date is left for collection is bound to present the bill forthwith, and if not accepted, to give notice to his principal; and if he neglects to do so, he becomes responsible in damages. Allen v. Suydam, 17 Wend. 368. Where an agent had neglected to make presentment for seventeen days, he was held liable in damages, to the full amount of the bill, although it appeared that the drawees had no funds, that they were directed by the drawer not to accept, and that the lateness of the presentment had no influence upon the non-acceptance; it appearing that subsequent to the drawing of the bill in question, other bills of the same drawer had been accepted by the same drawers, and paid, or secured to be paid. Ibid. >

. .

3.1 . . . :

V1761

5.2 . 4:

* 45

, ₄₅₂ , 4

± 13.7

ran in محازس يهو

.....

. . . 11/2/ 17.

'داا، ت

. 75

bill differs materially from that which he must pursue in the case of an inland I. Of Nonbill. Whenever notice of non-acceptance of a foreign bill is necessary, a acceptance bill. Whenever notice of non-acceptance of a joreign will is necessary, a and Proprotest(c) must also be made, which, though mere matter of form, is, by the ceedings custom of merchants, indispensably necessary, and cannot be supplied by thereon. witnesses or oath of the party, or in any other way (d), and, as it is said, is part of the constitution of a foreign bill of exchange; and the mere production When of this protest attested by a notary public, without proof of the signature, or Protest for affixing of the seal (though not so if made here(e)), will, in the case of a coptance bill payable and protested out of this country, be evidence of the dishonour requisite, of the bill(f), and to it all foreign courts give credit(g); and it cannot be and Mode supplied by mere proof of noting for non-acceptance and a subsequent pro- ing. test for non-payment. But proof that the drawer had no effects in the hands of the drawee at the time of drawing the bill, or at any time afterwards, will in this country excuse the want of a protest, and prevent the drawer from being discharged(h). So a subsequent promise by the drawer to pay the bill may preclude him from availing himself of the want of a protest(i). it is not advisable to omit protesting a foreign bill, because in foreign courts they are not always governed by the exceptions allowed in our courts(k).

If, therefore, the drawee refuse to accept, the holder, or some other person, if he be ill or absent(l), should cause it to be protested; and a protest for non-acceptance will be valid though made by a party *wrongfully detaining a bill, though it would be otherwise in case of a protest for non-pay-The bill should be taken to a notary (n), who is to present it again to the drawee, and demand acceptance; which should, in case the bill was drawn on a banker, or other person whose office-hours are known to be limited, be during the usual hours of business, and in London not later than five o'clock(o); and if the drawee again refuse to accept, the notary is there-

(c) See the form of a protest for non-payment, post, Ch. X. s. i. which, with the alterntion of the words in italics, will suffice in the case of a foreign bill.

(d) Rogers v. Stephens, 2 T. R. 713, (Chit. j. 446); Gale v. Walsh, 5 T. R. 239; (Chit. j. 506); Orr v. Magennis, 7 East, 359, 360; 2 Smith, 328, (Chit. j. 726); Brough v. Perkins, Lord Raym. 993; 6 Mod. 80; 1 Salk. 131, (Chit. j. 228, 224); Bul. N. P. 271.

Rogers v. Stephens, 2 T. R. 713, (Chit. j. 446). In an action against the drawer of a foreign bill of exchange, it appeared that the bill had been noted for non-acceptance, but there was no protest, and this was pressed as a ground for nonsuit. Lord Kenyon admitted the objection, but, upon the other circumstances, thought this a case in which a protest was not necessary.

Gale v. Walsh, 5 T. R. 239, (Chit. j. 506). In an action against the drawer of a foreign bill, it was reserved as a point, whether it was necessary to prove a protest for non-acceptance, and the court thought it so clear, upon motion to enter a nonsuit, that they suggested to the plaintiff's counsel the expediency of making the rule absolute in the first instance, and upon their acquiescence it was accordingly done; they afterwards, however, wished to have it opened, upon an idea that the drawer had no effects in the hands of the drawee, but it appearing upon the report that the idea was not well founded, the rule stood. And in Brough v. Perkins, Lord Raym. 993; 6 Mod. 80; Salk. 131, Holt,

C. J. says, a protest on a foreign bill is a part of the custom

(e) Chesmer v. Noyes, 4 Cumpb. 129, (Chit. j. 929).

(f) Anon. 12 Mod. 345, (Chit. j. 212); Dupays v. Shepherd, Holt, 297; Chesmer v. Noyes, 4 Campb. 129, (Chit. j. 929); 2 Roll. R. 346; 10 Mod. 66; Peake's Law of Evid. 4th edit. 80, 74, in notes.

4th edit. 80, 74, in notes.
(g) Molloy, 281; Da Costa v. Cole, Skin. 272, pl. 1, (Chit. j. 179).
(h) Orr v. Magennis, 7 Fast, 859; 2 Smith, 329, (Chit. j. 726); Legge v. Thorpe, 2 Campb. 310; 12 East, 171, (Chit. j. 783). As to this point, see ante, 827 to 231.
(i) Patterson v. Beecher, 6 Moore, 819, (Chit. j. 1126); Gibbon v. Coggon, 2 Campb. 188, (Chit. j. 774); post, Ch. X. s. i.
(k) Per Lord Ellenborough, in Legge v. Thorpe, 12 East, 177, 178; 4 Pardess. 225.
(l) Molloy, b. 9, c. 10, s. 17. A mere

(1) Molloy, b. 9, c. 10, s. 17. A mere agent to receive payment may cause protest to be made; 1 Pardess. 443, 444.

(m) 1 Pardess. 444.

(n) See the nature of his office explained in Burn's Ecc. Law, tit. Notary Public; and see regulations in 41 Geo. 3, c. 79, as altered and amended by 8 & 4 W. 4, c. 70; Chit. Stat. 185; Chit. & H. Stat. 699. And see The King v. Scriveners' Company, 10 B. & C. 511, (Chit. j. 1481).

(o) Parker v. Gordon, 7 East, 395; 3 Smith,

358; 6 Esp. 41, (Chit. j. 727); ante, 279.

and Proceedings thereon.

2dly, When Protest for Non-acceptance requinite, and Mode of protest-

1. Of Non-upon to make a minute on the bill itself, consisting of his initials, the month, acceptance the day and year, and the reason, if assigned, for non-acceptance, together The next step which the notary is to adopt is to draw up with his charge. the protest(p), which is a formal declaration annexed to the bill itself, if it can be obtained or otherwise to a copy (q), that the bill has been presented for acceptance, which was refused, and why, and that the holder intends to recover all damages, expences, &c. which he or his principal, or any other party to the bill, may sustain on account of non-acceptance (r). The abovementioned minute is usually termed noting the bill, but this, Mr. Justice Buller observed, is unknown in the law, as distinguished from the protest, and is merely a preliminary step, and though it has grown into practice within these few years, it will not in any case supply the want of a protest(s). The demand is the material thing, and should, it has been said, be made by a notary public himself, to whom credit is given, because he is a public offcer, and not by his clerk(t); but the number of bills requiring presentment is frequently so great as to render a presentment by the notary himself impossible, and the constant practice is for the clerk to make the presentment. In case, however, there be not any public notary at the place where the bill is dishonoured, it may be protested by any substantial person of that place in the presence of two or more witnesses (u); and it is said it should be made between sun-rise and sun-set. It should in general be made in the place where acceptance is refused; but if a bill be drawn abroad, directed to the drawee at Southampton, or any other place, requesting him to pay the bill in London, the protest for non-acceptance may be made either at Southampton or in London(x). The form of the protest should always be conformable to the law of the country where it is made(y). If a conditional or partial acceptance be offered, the protest should not be general, as otherwise it will release the acceptor from the effects of such acceptance(z). of the bill should, it is said, be prefixed to all protests, with the indorsements transcribed verbatim, and with an account of the reason given by the [*334] *party why he does not honour the bill(a). Protests made in this country, must, in order to their being received in evidence, be written on paper stamp with a proper stamp(b).

Sending Copy of Protest.

It seems at one time to have been considered, that if the drawer or indorsers are abroad, out of England, the making the protest alone would not be sufficient, but that a copy of it, or some other memorial, must, within a reasonable time, be sent with a letter of advice to the persons on whom the

(p) Per Holt, C. J. in Buller v. Crips, 8 Mod. 29, (Chit. j. 222); Selw. N. P. 9th edit.

(q) Dehers v. Harriot, 1 Show. 164, (Chit. j. 485).

(r) Poth. pl. 84; Moll. 264; Mar. 16. (s) Per Buller, J. in Lestley v. Mills, 4 T. R. 175, (Chit. j. 473); Rogers v. Stephens, 2 T. R. 713, (Chit. j. 446); Gale v. Walsh, 5 T. R. 239, (Chit. j. 506); Bul. Ni. Pri. 271; and see Orr v. Magennis, 7 East, 359; 2 Smith,

828, (Chit. j. 726).
(i) Per Buller, J. in Lestley v. Mills, 4 T.
R. 175, (Chit. j. 473), sed quare. See note, post, Ch. X. s. i. As to Proceedings on Nonpayment; Bayl. 258, 5th edit. Roscoe, 212. (u) Bayl. 258, 5th edit. no authority is there referred to, and quære if that position is not to be confined to inland bills by 3 & 4 Ann. c. 9, s. 6, and 9 & 10 W. 3, c. 17, s. 1.

(x) Marius, 107; see Mitchell v. Baring, 10 B. & C. 4; 4 Car. & P. 35; Mcod. & M. 381, (Chit. j. 1454); and 2 & 3 W. 4, c. 98; as to Protest for Non-payment, post, Ch. X. s. i.

(y) Poth. pl. 155; 4 Pardess. 227, 230. (2) Beatinck v. Dorrien, 6 East, 199; 2 Smith, 337, (Chit. j. 712); ante, 300; and see Sproat v. Matthews, 1 T. R. 182, (Chit. j. 433); ante, 301, note (d). (a) Poth. pl. 135.

(b) See 55 Geo. 3, c. 184, which repeals 44 Geo. 3, c. 98, and 48 Geo. 3, c. 149. Protest of any bill of exchange or promissory note, for £ 1. d. any sum of money, 0 2 0

Not amounting to 201. Amounting to 201. and not amounting to 1904 Amounting to 100l. and not amount-

0 5 0 ing to 5001. 0 10 0 Amounting to 5001. or upwards

. .

٠, - ١

£ الج

. V. s

. 417

. . .

. :23

9:25

. 4, 2

11.05

r. ix iti

. 1

, : · · · · · ·

2.73

..... 17

-1.

Ha it

11

.

holder means to call for payment(c): but this has recently been held to be I. Of Nonunnecessary, and that in giving notice of dishonour to the drawer of a foreign acceptance unnecessary, and that in giving notice of distintion to the unawer of a foreign and Probill, resident abroad, it is sufficient to inform him that the bill has been proceedings tested, without sending a copy of the protest(d); and if the drawer or in-thereon. dorser were in England at the time of the protest, it was always unnecessary, 2dly, though advisable, that a copy of such protest should accompany the notice When of non-acceptance (e). Nor is it necessary in any case to send the protested Protest for bill (f); but a notice of the dishonour of the bill should in all cases be im-ceptance mediately given (g), and which is always regulated as to time by the law of requisite, the place where the party to receive it resides(h). It has been even held, and Mode of protestthat the protest for non-acceptance or non-payment of an inland bill may be ing drawn up at any time before the trial, provided the bill be noted in due time(i).

At common law no inland bill could be protested for non-acceptance; but by the statute 3 & 4 Anne, c. 9, s. 4(k), (which will be observed upon more fully hereafter,) a protest was given "in case of refusal to accept in writing any inland bill amounting to the sum of five pounds, expressed to be given for value received, and payable at days, weeks, or months after date, in the same manner as in the case of foreign bills of exchange, and for which protest there shall be paid two shillings, and no more." It has been supposed that this protest must be made in order to entitle the holder to demand of the drawer or indorsers costs, damages, and interest(l); but in practice the plaintiff recovers interest against a drawer or indorser of an inland bill, on proof of due notice, without proving a protest; and it has since been *de- [*335] cided, that a protest is not essential to the recovery of interest(m). If the bill be of the above description, and under the amount of 201. the holder is certainly entitled to the above accumulative remedy, though no protest were made(n). This protest is directed to be made by such persons as are appointed by 9 & 10 Will. 3, c. 17, s. 1, to protest inland bills for non-payment(0), namely, by a notary public; and, in default of him, by any other substantial person of the city, town, or place, in the presence of two or more credible witnesses. Within fourteen days of the making of this protest, the same must be sent, or other notice thereof must be given to, or left in writing at the usual place of abode of the party from whom the bill was receiv-The protest for non-acceptance in the case of an inland bill is by no means necessary, and the want of it does not affect the holder's right to

(c) Poth. Pl. 148; and see Orr v. Magennis, 7 East, 359; 2 Smith, 828, (Chit. j. 726), poet, Ch. X. a. i.

(d) Goodman v. Harvey, 4 Ad. & El. 870; 6 Nev. & M. 372, S. C.

(e) Robins v. Gibson, 3 Campb. 834, (Chit. j. 885); 1 Maule & S. 288, S. C.; Cromwell v. Hynson, 2 Esp. R. 511, 512, (Chit. j. 571); Pothier Traite du Contrat de Change, part 1, c. 5, s. 150; Chaters v. Bell, 4 Esp. Rep. 48, (Chit. j. 686); Manning's Index, 66, acc.; Goostrey v. Mead, Bul. N. P. 271; Gilb. Evid. 79; Lovelass on Bills, 99; Selw. N. P. 9th edit. 836, semb. contra. See post, Ch. X. s. i. (f) Mar. 68, 86, 87, 120; Lovelass on Bills, 100. (g) Id. ibid.; Hart v. King, 12 Mod. 309, (Chit. j. 212); Anon. 1 Vent. 45; Orr v. Ma-gennis, 7 East, 359; 2 Smith, 328, S. C. (h) 4 Pardess. 227, 230; Poth. pl. 155.

(i) Chaters v. Bell, 4 Esp. R. 48, (Chit.). 686); Selw. Ni. Pri. 9th edit. 360; Goostrey r. Mead, Bul. N. P. 272, observed on in Orr v.

Magenois, 7 East, 361; 2 Smith, 328, (Chit. j. 726); Rogers v. Stephens, 2 T. R. 714, (Chit. j. 446); Manning's Index, 66. See this point considered, post, Ch. X. s. i. Notice of Nonpayment.

(k) See the construction of this statute, Kyd, 149; 2 Stra. 910, note 1. And see 9 G. 4, c. 24, s. 4, as to Irish bills.

(1) Harris v. Benson, 2 Stra. 910, (Chit. j. 271); Lumley v. Palmer, Rep. temp. Hardw. 77, (Chit. j. 275); Brough v. Perkins, 2 Lord Raym. 993; 1 Salk. 131; 6 Mod. 80, (Chit. j. 223, 224); Boulager v. Talleyrand, 2 Esp. Rep. 550, (Chit j. 585); Powell v. Monnier, 1 Atk. 613, (Chit. j. 283); Bridgman's Index, vol. ii. 599, pl. 123, 2d edit. tit. Trade, vi ; Manning's Index, 66.

(m) Windle v. Andrews, 2 B. & Al. 696; 2 Stark. 425, (Chit. j. 1062).

(n) Stat. 3 & 4 Anne, c. 9, s. 6; Kyd, 149.

(o) Stat. 3 & 4 Anne, c. 9, s. 6.

(p) Id. section 5.

ceedings thereon.

I. Of Non-the principal sum, as it would in the case of a foreign bill(q); and it is in acceptance practice seldom made. An inland bill is in general only noted for nonacceptance, which noting, as already observed, is of no avail(r); and if not paid when due it is then noted, and sometimes, though not very often, protested for non-payment(s)(1); and a protest for non-acceptance, made in this country, must be proved by the notary who made it, and it will not, as in the case of a protest made abroad, prove itself(t). See further, post, Chapter X. Section I. As to Proceedings on Non-payment."

8dly. When Notice without Protest sufficient, and how to be iven.

Whether or not a protest be necessary, notice must be given of the nonacceptance, for otherwise, for the reasons before stated(u), the holder in general discharges the drawer and indorsers from all liability. There is no precise form of words necessary to be used in giving notice of the non-acceptance of a bill; any act of the holder, signifying the refusal of the drawee, will be a sufficient notice; and in the case of an inland bill a mere notice will suffice, though we have seen that in the case of a foreign bill there must also be a protest(x)(2): when a qualified acceptance has been given, the notice should state the terms (y). It has been said, in the course of argument, that it is not enough to state in the notice that the drawee refuses to honour, but that it must go farther, and express that the holder does not intend to give credit to the drawee(z); but it should seem, that as the only reason why notice is required, is, that the drawer or indorsers may have the earliest opportunity of resorting to the parties liable to them, it is not necessary that their

- (q) Boroughs v. Perkins, Holt, 121, (Chit. j. 223, 224); Harris v. Benson, 2 Stra. 910, (Chit. j. 271); Boulager v. Talleyrand, 2 Esp. Rep. 550, (Chit. j. 585); Brough v. Perkins, 6 Mod. 80; 1 Salk. 131; 3 Salk. 69; Lord Raym. 992, S. C.
- (r) Ante, 833; Kendrick v. Lomax, 2 C. & J. 407.
- (a) 8 & 4 Anne, c. 9, s. 5; Kyd, 150.
- (t) Chesney v. Noyes, 4 Campb. 129, (Chit. j. 929); ante, 332, note (e).
 - (u) Ante, 325.
 - (x) Ante, 832.
 - (y) Ante, 331. (z) Tindal r. Brown, 1 T. R. 169.

(1) In case of an inland bill of exchange, no protest for non-acceptance or non-payment is necessary to entitle the holder to a recovery against the parties to the bill. Miller v. Hackle, 5 John. Rep. 375. A bill drawn in the United States upon any part of the United States, is in law an inland bill. Ibid. Quere. Bills of exchange drawn in one state of the union, on persons living in another state, partake of the nature of foreign bills, and ought to be so treated in the cours of the United States. Buckner r. Finley, 2 Peters, 586. 3 Kent's Com. 2d ed. 94.

(2) 'The law does not prescribe any form of notice to an indorser; all that is necessary is, that it should be sufficient to put the party upon inquiry, and to prepare him to pay it or to defend himself. If, therefore, there be some uncertainty in the description of the note in the notice, if it does not tend to mislead the party, it will be good. Reedy v. Seixas, 2 John. Cas. 337. So where a note was payable at a bank, and notice was given on the day when it became due, but in the notice, the note was stated to be due three days before, and the name of the promissor was mistaken, it was held sufficient notice to charge the indorser, it being in evidence that be was liable on no other note payable to the bank. Smith r. Whiting, 12 Mass. Rep. 6.

It is not necessary that the notice of dishonour of a bill should contain a notification that the holder looks to the party notified, for payment. Cowles v. Harts, 3 Conn. Rep. 516.

A notice to an indorser was held sufficient, although it did not state at whose request it was given, nor who was the owner of the note. Shed v. Bret, 401. See Mills v. Bank of the United States, 11 Wheat. 431. A protest on inland bills is generally deemed unnecessary in this couptry, but the practice has been to have bills drawn in one state on persons in another, protested; and stat. of Ken. 1798, ch. 57, seems to require it. 3 Kent's Com. 2d. ed. 94.

A mistake as to the date of a note will not vitiate the notice, if in other respects it conveys to the party sufficient knowledge of the particular note dishonoured. Id.

Nor is it necessary that the notice should contain a formal statement that it was demanded at the place where payable; it is sufficient if it state the fact of non-payment, and that the holder looks to the indorser for payment. Id. Quere, whether it be necessary to inform the indorser that he is looked to for payment? This is implied by notice of non-payment. Bank of the United States v. Carneal, 2 Peters, 543.

Going to the place of business of the maker of a promissory note, during business hours, to demand payment, and finding it shut, no person being left to answer any inquiries, is due diligence. Shed r. Bret, 1 Pick. 401. . 666.7 , · z

0 2 2

1.000

A ARI

1947 (2)

1 15

1.00

1 1 1 M J. J. 7

100 3

×

 $\cdot \in \mathcal{B}$

:- **

J. 1. 13"

(': ")

1 Almin

7000

LAST I

(if 3

11152 2

Tâ

. . 12.32

u - B a ye

. . 4

,e' : y

7.1

1

 $\hat{g}_{i,\gamma} = 0$

771K #

z4:36

7W 3

liability should be pointed out to them, because that is a legal consequence I. Of Nonof the default of acceptance, of which they must necessarily be apprised by acceptance of the default of acceptance, of which they must necessarily be apprised by and Promere notice of the fact of non-acceptance(a). The notice, however, should ceedings explicitly state what the bill is, and that acceptance has been refused by the thereon. drawee, and must not be calculated in any way to mislead the party to whom it is given; and a letter from an indorser to a drawer, merely containing a demand of payment, is *not sufficient(b); nor is a notice stating the bill to [*336] have been drawn by the party, when, in fact, he was not the drawer, but only an indorser, sufficient(c).—See further, post, Chapter X. Section I. As to Proceedings on Non-payment.

In France, it should seem that protests should not be made till after the presentment and refusal(d), and it cannot be made upon a day de fete(e).

There does not appear to be any express decision with respect to the time 4thly, when a foreign bill must be protested for non-acceptance in this country (f), when (f)but from analogy to the time when a protest must be made for non-payment, test must it should seem that in this country, it, or at least the noting, should be made be made within the usual hours of business(g), on the day when the acceptance is re- and Notice fused(h), and that the neglect to make it on that day will only be excused given. by inevitable accident, such as sudden illness of the holder, robbery, or other circumstances(i), which have been before noticed(k). It has been considered, that it is sufficient to note a foreign bill for non-acceptance on the day of refusal, and that the protest may be drawn any day after by the notary, and be dated on the day the noting was made; but it is advisable to complete the protest for non-acceptance on the day it is made(1). We have seen that when the drawee, after the bill has remained in his hands twenty-four hours for acceptance, requests further time to consider of it, the holder should give immediate notice to the drawer and indorsers of such request (m).

Where a foreign bill has been refused acceptance, and the party to whom notice is to be given is resident abroad, we have seen that notice of the protest should be communicated to him, though it is unnecessary that a copy of such protest should accompany the notice; but where such party is resident in England, it suffices to give notice to him of the dishonour, without informing him of the protest, because he may inquire into the fact(n). in all cases notice of the non-acceptance must be sent or given to the parties to whom the holder means to resort within a reasonable time after the dishonour of the bill(o); and the holder must not delay giving notice till the bill is protested also for non-payment (p). It has been much disputed, whether it is the province of the Court, or of the jury, to decide what is a reasonable

(a) Shaw v. Croft, coram Lord Kenyon, Sittings after Trinity Term, 1798, MS. and other cases, post, Ch. X. s. i.; and Selw. 9th ed. 332.

(b) Hartley v. Case, 4 Bar. & Cres. 339; 6 Dow. & Ry. 505; 1 Carr. & P. C. N. P. 555, (Chit. j. 1263). See the cases fully stated, post, Ch. X. s. i. Non-payment.

(c) Beauchamp v. Cash, Dow. & Ry. C. N.

(d) 1 Pardess. 441, 446, 454; 4 Pardess. 480, from which it appears to be so as to protests for Non-payment.

(e) 1 Pardess. 446. (f) And see 1 Pardess. 405.

(g) Mar. 112.
(h) Leftley v. Mills, 4 T. R. 175, (Chit. j. 478); Bul. N. P. 272; Bayl. 5th edit. 266.
(i) Poth. pl. 144; Turner v. Leach, ante,

330, note (o).

(k) Ante, 325, ct seq.
(l) Goostrey v. Mead, Bul. N. P. 271; Chat-(1) Goostrey v. Mead, Bul. N. P. 271; Chaters v. Bell, 4 Esp. Rep. 48, (Ch. j. 636); Rogers v. Stephens, 2 T. R. 714, (Chit. j. 446); Orr v. Magennis, 7 East, 361; 2 Smith, 328, (Chit. j. 726); Robins v. Gibson, 1 Maule & S. 288, (Chit. j. 885); Selw. 9th edit. 360, post, Ch. X. s. i. Non-payment. (m) Ingram v. Foster, 2 Smith's Rep. 243; ante, 279, note (x)

(n) Ante, 334, 335.

(o) Darbishire v. Parker, 6 East, 3, 14, 16; 2 Smith, 195, (Chit. j. 707); Haynes v. Birks, 3 B. & P. 601, 602, (Chit. j. 690.)

(p) Goostrey v. Mead, Bul. N. P. 271; Roscoe v. Hardy, 12 East, 434, (Chit. j. 301); Blesard v. Hirst, Burr. 2672, (Chit. j. 384).

Digitized by Google

and Proceedings thoreon.

4thly, Time test must be made given.

I. Of Non-time for this purpose (q): it should seem that the better opinion is, that what accorptance is a reasonable time for giving notice is a question partly of fact and partly of law; the jury are to find the facts, such as the distance fat which the persons live from each other, the course of the post, &c.(r): but when those facts have been established, the reasonableness of the time becomes a question of law, and consequently to be determined by the court, and not by the when Pro- jury (*)(1). If the holder intend to sue the drawer and indorsers of a foreign bill, he must give notice to each, direct, in due time, and is not entitled in so and Notice doing to consume or occupy as much time as each indorser had(t). It is therefore advisable for the holder, on the day after the dishonour, to forward [*337] distinct notices to each and every party to the bill.

It was once thought, that it would be sufficient to charge the drawer, if notice of the dishonour of a bill were given to him even at the end of two months, provided he had not in the interim sustained any particular damage by the delay(u), but it is now settled, that in the case of a foreign bill, notice should be given on the day of the dishonour, if any post or ordinary conveysnce sets out that day(x); and if not, by the next earliest conveyance(y)(2).

With respect to inland bills not protested for non-acceptance, notice of the refusal to accept should in all cases be given within a reasonable time; it should be forwarded at least on the following day(z), where there is no excuse for its being given after(a). In the case of an unqualified refusal to honour the bill, it seems that a notice of such dishonour might be given on the same day, but where there is no such unqualified refusal, the giving the notice on the day of presentment seems questionable(b). With reference to the rule (q) Tindal v. Brown, 1 T. R. 168, (Chit. j. 481).

(r) See ante, 278, and post, Ch. X. s. i.

Non-payment.

(s) Per Lord Mansfield, C. J. and Buller, J. in Tindal v. Brown, 1 T. R. 168, (Chit. j. 18 1 1802 v. Blown, 17. 105, (cat. j. 431); Darbishire v. Parker, 6 Fast, 3, 9, 10, 12; 2 Smith, 195, (Chit. j. 707); Haynes v. Birks, 3 B. & P. 599, (Chit. j. 690); Browning v. Kinnear, Gow, C. N. P. 81; (Chit. j. 1054), acc.; Russell v. Langstaffe, Dougl. 514, (Chit. j. 415); contra. Post, Ch. X. s. i.

Bateman v. Joseph, 12 East, 433; 2 Campb. 461, (Chit. j. 801). In this case it was held, that the want of due notice of the dishouour of a bill is answered by shewing the holder's ignorance of the place of residence of the prior in-dorser, whom he sues, and whether he used due diligence to find out the place of residence is a question of fact to be left to the jury. The Court all agreed, that this was a question proper to be left to the jury, and they had decided Whether due notice has been given of the dishonour of a bill, all the circumstances necessary for the giving of such notice being known, is a question of law; but whether the holder have used due diligence to discover the place of residence of the person to whom the notice is to be given, is a question of fact for the jury.

See also per Grose, J. in Scott r. Lifford, 9 Fast, 347; 1 Campb. 246; Storges r. Detrick. Wightw. 76.

(i) 1 Pardess. 455; Marsh v. Maxwell, 2 Campb. 210, note, (Chit. j. 776); Turner v. Leach, ante, 330, note (o). See post, Ch. X. s. i. As to the Time of giving Notice of Non-payment.

(u) Butler v. Play, 1 Mod. 27, (Chit. j. 161); Sarsfield v. Witherley, Comb. 152, (Chit.).
172); Mogadara v. Holt, 1 Show. 318; 12
Mod. 15, (Chit. j. 152, 183).
(x) Leftley v. Mills, 4 T. R. 174, (Chit. j. 172).

473); Anon. Lord Raym. 743, (Chit. j. 216); Coleman v. Sayer, 2 Stra. 829, (Chit. j. 267); Mar. 97.

(y) Muilman r. D'Eguino, 2 H. Bla. 565, (Chit. j. 549); Williams v. Smith, 2 B. & Ald.

496, (Chit. j. 1055).

(2) Leftley v. Mills, 4 T. R. 170, (Chit. j. 473). See post, Ch. X. s. i. as to Notice of Non-payment, and Haynes v. Dirks, 3 Bos. & Pul. 601, (Chit. j. 690); Darbishire v. Parker, 6 East, 3; 2 Smith, 195, (Chit. j. 707); and post, Ch. XI. as to Presentment of Checks for Payment.

(a) As to such excuses, see ante, 330; and post, Ch. X. s. i. Notice of Non-payment. (b) Burbridgo v. Manners, 3 Campb: 193,

(2) If there has been such a demand on the maker as the latter is bound by, so that he bad no right to refuse payment, the indorser cannot object that the legal forms of a demand were not complied with. Wittvell v. Johnson, 17 Mass. Rep. 449.

⁽¹⁾ Notice of the non-acceptance of a bill of exchange cannot be given by a stranger; it must he by one who is a party to it, and who, on the bill being returned to him, would have a right of action upon it. Chanoine v. Fowler, 8 Wend. Rep. 173. Notice from a drawee who refuses to accept is no better than from a stranger.

Stanton v. Blossom, 14 Mass. Rep. 116.

.

≱.∴

- . .

623

1 85

1-23

. R 🖼

يان پي

(a)u .)

112 X 28

للقل بي

, c 📆

. ve 🤔

-470 P

R 10

, , **,

النو

;1-

which prevails in giving notice of non-payment, it seems that each party is 1. Of Nonentitled to a day, to notify the dishonour to his immediate inderser (c), and acceptance When an in- and Prothis without regard to the time when the next post sets of f(d). land bill is protested for non-acceptance, the protest or notice thereof should thereon. be sent within fourteen days after it is made, under the 3 & 4 Anne, c. 9, s. 5(e). The time of giving notice of *non-acceptance, where bills fall due on Good Friday, Christmas-day, Fast and Thanksgiving-days, is expressly provided for (f). See further, post, Chapter X. Sec. I. As to Proceedings on Non-payment.

We have already seen that the notoriety of the insolvency of the drawee, 5thly, By as in the case of bankruptcy, constitutes no excuse for the neglect of the holdtice must er to give notice of non-acceptance to the drawer and indorsers(g); and it be given. pears to have been considered that such notice must come from the holder(h)(1); and that it will not suffice if it come from any other party, because the object of the notice is not merely that the parties may immediately call on those who are liable to them for an indemnity, but it must import that the holder intends to stand on his legal rights and to resort to them for payment (i); and therefore, where the drawer having notice before the bill was due that the acceptor had failed, gave another person money to pay the bill, and the holder neglected to give notice of the dishonour, it was holden that the drawer was discharged (k). And in a subsequent case it was held, that notice of the dishonour of a bill of exchange must be given to the drawer and indorsers by the holder himself, or some person authorised by him, or But it is now settled that notice of at least not by a mere stranger (l).

(Chit. j. 855); Hartley v. Case, 4 Bar. & C. 839; 6 D. & R. 505; 1 Car. & P. 555, (Chit. j. 1263).

(c) Darbishire v. Parker, 6 East, 3; 2 Smith, 195, (Chit. j. 707); Smith r. Mullett, 2 Campb.

208, (Chit. j. 775). (d) Geill v. Jeremy, Mood. & M. 61, (Chit. j. 1385); but note, a decision as to notice of non-payment of an inland bill. Post, Ch. X.

(e) Sed quære.

(f) 39 & 40 Geo. 3, c. 42; 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 15; post, Ch. X. s. i. Time of Notice of Non-payment.

(g) Ante, 330, note (i); Esdaile v. Sowerby, 11 East, 117, (Chit. j. 767).

(h) Tindal v. Brown, 1 T. R. 170, (Chit. j.

481); Ex parte Barclay, 7 Ves. 597, 598, (Chit. j. 656); Staples v. Okines, 1 Esp. Rep. 333, (Chit. j. 544); Kyd, 125. In Selw. Ni. Pri. 9th edit. 332, it is observed, that in Ex parte Barclay the attention of the court was not directed to Lord Kenyon's opinion in Shaw v. Crost, ante, 335, note (a). See post, Ch. X. s. i. By whom Notice of Non-payment must be given.

(i) Id. ibid.

(k) Nicholson v. Gouthit, 2 H. Bla. 612, (Chit. j. 556); Whitfield v. Savage, 2 Bos. & Pal. 277, (Chit. j. 630); and see Esdaile v. Sowerby, 11 East, 114, 117, (Ch. j. 767).

(1) Stewart v. Kennett, 2 Campb. 177, (Chit. j. 772).

What constitutes reasonable diligence in giving notice of protest, is matter of law, to be decided by the court; but the speed used, and whether the nearest roads are travelled, &c. are facts for the jury. Dodge v. Bank of Kentucky, 2 Marsh. 616. Noble v. Bank of Kentucky, 8 Marsh. 264. The utmost possible dispatch is not necessary. Ib.

The reasonableness of notice to an indorser of the non-payment of a promissory note, is a question of fact, to be submitted to the jury, no general rule can be laid down by the court on the subject. Gurly v. The Gettysburg Bank, 7 Serg. & Rawle, 324. See aute, pages 163 and 224. Notice of the protest of a note, negotiated in bank, is good, if given on the day after the protest, although the parties of the court who has been been been an expectation.

although the parties may reside in the same town where the bank is. Frankford Bank v. Markey, 3 Marsh. 505.

⁽¹⁾ In some early cases in the United States, it seems to have been held that what was reasonable notice, was a mere question of fact to be left to the jury. Robertson v. Vogle, 1 Dall. Rep. 252. Steinmetz v. Currie, 1 Dall. Rep. 270. Bank of North America v. McKnight, 2 Dall. Rep. 158. Scott v. Alexander, 1 Wash. Rep. 335. Reedy v. Seixas, 2 John. Cas. 387. But it may be collected from the more recent cases, that when the facts are ascertained, then whether the notice be reasonable or not, is purely a question of law. Taylor v. Bryden, 8 John. Rep. 178. Bryden v. Bryden, 11 John. Rep. 281. Ireland v. Kip, 11 John. Rep. 281. Hussey v. Freeman, 10 Mass. Rep. 84. See Ferris v. Saxton, 1 Southard's Rep. 1.

ceedings thereon.

4thly, By whom Notice must be given.

1. Of Non-dishonour may be given by any party to the bill(m); and any holder, acceptance whether lawfully so or not, may effectually protest for and give notice of and Pronon-acceptance though he cannot protest for non-payment, because the former would enure to the benefit of the party legally entitled to the bill, which the latter would not(n). And where, a few days before a bill became due, the acceptor informed the drawer he would be unable to pay it, and told such drawer that he must take it up, and gave him part of the amount to assist him in so doing, and the latter promised to take up the bill accordingly; it was held, that in an action by the indorsee against the drawer, the latter might nevertheless set up as a defence that the bill was not duly presented for payment, and that he had not regular notice of the dishonour, but that the sum paid him by the acceptor was money had and received to the plaintiff's use(o)(1).

6thly, To whom Notice must be given.

The notice of non-acceptance, when necessary, must be given to all the parties to whom the holder of the bill means to resort for payment, and though proof that the drawer had no effects in the hands of the acceptor will be an excuse for want of notice with respect to him, it will not have that operation with respect to any of the indorsers; for they have nothing to do with the accounts between the drawer and the drawee(p); and a bonû fide indorser is [*339] entitled to notice, although the *drawer and drawee were fictitious (q). If a party draw on himself, no notice is necessary (r). If the party entitled to no tice be a bankrupt, notice should be given to him before the choice of assignees, or if he has absconded, to the messenger or the person in the house, and after the choice of assignees to them(s). If the party be dead, notice should be given to his executor or administrator; and it is expedient, though not in general absolutely necessary, to give notice to a person who has guaranteed the payment of the bill(t). When the party entitled to notice is abroad at the time of the dishonour, if he have a place of residence in England, it will

(m) Newen v. Gill, 8 C. & P. 367; Chapman v. Keane, 3 Ad. & El. 193; 4 N. & M. 607, S. C.; post, Ch. X. s. i.

(n) 1 Pardess. 443, 444.
(o) Baker v. Birch, 3 Campb. 107. (Chit. j. 848); Corney v. Da Costa, 1 Esp. R. 303, (Chit. j. 538), same point. As to the money being had and received to use of holder, see ante, 321.

(p) See Brown v. Maffey, 15 East, 216, (Chit. j. 852); Goodall v. Dolley, 1 T. R. 712, (Chit. j. 440); Wilkes v. Jacks, Peake Rep. 202; Walwyn v. St. Quintin, 1 Bos. & P. 216; 2 Esp. 514, (Chit. j. 578); ante, 830. And if the bill be drawn and indorsed for the accommodation of the indorser the want of effects furnishes no excuse for not giving notice of dis-Manual Control of the Grant States and the States of the Manual Control of the Grant States of the Manual Control of the Grant States of the Manual Control of the Manual Contro post, Ch. X. s. i. Non-payment.

(q) Leach v. Hewitt, 4 Taunt. 781, (Chit. j. 881); post, Ch. X. s. i. When Notice of Non-payment necessary.

(r) Roach v. Ostler, 1 Mann. 1 Ry. 120,

(Chit. j. 1859).

(s) See Ex parte Moline, 19 Ves. 216, (Ch. 871); Rhode v. Proctor, 4 Bar. & Cres. 517; 6 Dow. & Ry. 610, (Chit. j. 1269); Camidge v. Allenby, 6 Bar. & C. 373; 9 D. & R. 391, (Chit. j. 1319); 6 Bar. & Cress, 373; Exparte Johnston; 1 Mont. & Ayr. 622; 3 Des. & Chit. 433, S. C. In Thompson's law of Bills, 535, it is laid down, in case of the bankruptcy of the drawer or of an indorser, notice must be given to the bankrupt, or to the trustee vested with his estates, for behoof of his credit-

(t) See post, Ch. X. s. i. Non-payment. When notice need not be given of a substituted bill, see Bishop r. Rowe, 3 Maule & S. 362; Hickling v. Hardy, 7 Taunt. 312; 1 Moore, 61, S. C.

⁽¹⁾ Notice may be given the same day the paper is dishonoured, and it must if possible be given on the next day, or put into the post-office. Shed v. Brett, 1 Pick. Rep. 401. Talbot v. Clark, 8 ib. 54. Williams v. Matthews, 8 Cowen's Rep. 252. Osborne v. Moncure, 8 Wend. Rep. 170. United States v. Barker, 4 Wash. Cir. Rep. 464. 1 Minor's Alab. Rep. 296. 1 Miller's Louis. Rep. 515. If the parties resided in the same place, the notice must be personal. Hartford Bank v. Stedman, 3 Conn. R. 489. On a note indorsed when overdue, and notice of non-payment given two or three months after, held sufficient, as the facts showed that immediate notice was not contemplated. Van Hosen v. Van Alstyne, 3 Wend. Rep. 75.

ceedings

be sufficient to leave notice of non-acceptance at that place, and a demand I. Of Nonof acceptance or payment from his wife or servant would in such case be acceptance and Pro-regular(u).

. D. C.

1, 712

- 12 H

,- (... 1%

, FOR A

15 LECTS

......1

1 7%

JE 21

15. 15

. yz x.

, g 31

A 500 A

20.20

Just 1

J. W.

1 0723

1 30 25

101

.

187

· 12 181

J. 1. 19

4.5.28

7e 1 11.15

Visit !

4137

JUL 1 * 1

1. 2.

¥ (1)

3576

113.5

AL CEP

1.00

It was once thought, that notice of non-acceptance must, in all cases, be thereon. given to the drawer of the bill, and demand of payment made of him, or that 6thly, 76 in default thereof the indorser would be discharged, notwithstanding they had whom Noregular notice. This opinion, however, so far as it related to foreign bills, tice must be given. was over-ruled in the case of Bromley v. Frazier(x); and in its relation to inland bills, in the case of Heylyn and others v. Adamson(y), and as to checks on bankers, in Rickford v. Ridge(z), on the principle, that to require a demand of the drawer would be laying such a clog upon bills, as would deter every person from taking them, since the drawer may perhaps live abroad; besides, the acceptor is primarily liable, and as the act of indorsing a bill is equivalent to drawing a new bill, the indorser thereby undertakes as well as the drawer, that the drawee shall honour the bill, and the holder may consequently immediately resort to him, without calling on any of the other parties.

With respect to inland bills protested for non-acceptance, the 3 & 4 Anne, c. 9, directs the protest or notice thereof to be given to the person from whom the bill was received (a). The principle, that notice from the holder enures to the benefit of the antecedent parties here applies(b). Notice to one of the several partners, joint indorsers, is notice to all; and if one of several drawers be also the acceptor, and there be no fraud in the transaction, no notice in fact is necessary to the other drawers (c); and as we have already seen, a mere guarantee, whose name is not on the bill or note, is not in general entitled to *notice(d). A party who owes a debt for goods, and [*340] delivers a bill without indorsement, may also be entitled to notice(e). as we have seen, it is not necessary to give notice to a party who has by his conduct dispensed with it, as by engaging to call on the holder, and ascertain whether the acceptor had paid the bill(f), or the like. See further, post, Chapter X. Section I. As to Proceedings on Non-payment.

The liability of the various parties to a bill, on the refusal of the drawer 7thly, Liability of to accept, may be collected from the previous pages. In France their lia- the parties bility differs materially from that in this country, for there upon protest for on Non-acnon-acceptance, the holder can only demand immediate payment of the ex- ceptance. penses of protest, and he may resort either collectively against the drawer and all the indorsers, or against one of them for payment or security, that the (x) Bromley v. Frazier, 2 Stra. 441; Selw. N. P. 9th edit. 336.

(2) 2 Campb. 539.

(b) Ante, 338.

(e) Ibid.

⁽u) Cromwell v. Hynson, 2 Esp. R. 511, 512, (Chit. j. 571); Walwyn v. St. Quintin, 1 Bos. & Pul. 652; 2 Esp. 514, (Chit. j. 578); but see 5 Esp. R. 175.

⁽y) Heylyn v. Adamson, 2 Burr. 669, (Chit. j. 349); Pardo v. Fuller, Com. R. 579, (Chit. j. 286); Bromley v. Frazier, 1 Stra. 441; Selw. 9th edit. 336.

⁽a) Et vide Heylyn v. Adamson, 2 Burr. 674, (Chit. j. 349).

⁽c) Porthouse v. Parker and others, 1 Campb. 82, (Chit. j. 741); Alderson v. Pope, id. 404; and see Jacaud v. French, 12 East, 317, 322, 323, (Chit. j. 789); and per Lord Ellenborough in Bignold v. Waterhouse, 1 Maule & S. 259; ante, 326.

⁽d) See post, Ch. X. s. i. Non-payment.

⁽f) Phipson v. Kneller, 4 Campb. 285; 1 Stark. 116, (Chit. j. 946). This was an action against the drawer of a bill of exchange, and the question was, whether the plaintiff was excused for not having given him notice of the dishonour of the bill. It was proved, that a few days before the bill became due, the defendant called at the counting-house of the plaintiff, whom he knew to be the holder; and being asked the place of his residence, he said he had no regular residence; he was living among his friends, and he would call and see if the bill was paid by the acceptor. Per Lord Ellenborough. "This dispensed with notice, and threw upon the defendant himself the duty of inquiring if the bill was paid." Verdict for the plain-coodings thereon.

7thly, Liability of Parties on Non-acceptance.

I. Of Non- bill at maturity shall be paid, and if the latter be given the holder must wait acceptance accordingly. "La caution etant fournie, le porteur ne peut plus exiger le paiement avant l'échéance(g). But in this country, if the drawee, on presentment for acceptance, dishonour the bill, either wholly or partially, the holder may insist on immediate payment by the parties liable to him, as well from the drawer(h), as from the prior indorsers, (i); or in default thereof, may instantly commence actions against each of them; and though the instrument may be somewhat like a note, yet if it also resemble a bill, and acceptance be refused, an action is immediately sustainable (k)(1). On the same principle it was decided, that if a man draw a bill, and commit an act of bankruptcy, and afterwards the bill be returned for non-acceptance, the debt is contracted before the act of bankruptcy, and may be proved under the commission, which could not have been the case, if the time when notice of [*311] plaintiff a draft for part of the money due, on which he was discharged *out non-acceptance was given had been considered as the period when the debt was contracted (l). So where the defendant, having been arrested, gave the of custody, but the draft having been dishonoured, he was retaken upon the same writ, it was decided that the proceedings were regular and justifiable; and Lord Kenyon said, that in cases of this kind, if the bill which is given in payment do not turn out to be productive, it is not that which it purported to be, and that which the party receiving it expected, and, therefore, he may consider it as a nullity, and act as if no such bill had been given(m): and in a more recent case, where a bill given in payment for goods sold was refused acceptance, it was held that the payee having declared against the drawer on the bill, and joined counts for goods sold, might treat the bill as a nullity, and recover his demand on the latter counts, although the credit on the bill had not expired; and that it was sufficient in such an action to prove a presentment to the drawee for acceptance, without shewing that the bill was protested for non-acceptance, or that the drawer had notice of the dis-And if a buyer pay for goods by a bill which the drawee rehonour(n).

(g) 1 Pardessus, 405, 406; Poth. Traitè du Contrat de Change, part 1, chap. 4, num. 70.

(h) Bright v. Purrier, Bul. N. P. 269, (Ch. j. 371); Milford v. Mayor, Dougl. 56; (Chit. j. 400); Anon. 12 Mod. 517. But Pother considers the drawer as merely liable to indemnify the holder against the probable non-payment, at maturity. Traite du Contrat de Change, part 1, chap. 4, num. 70; and see 1 Pardes. 405, supra, note (g),

(i) Ballingalls c. Gloster, 3 Fast, 491; 4 Esp. Rep. 268, (Chit. 673); Bishop v. Young,

2 Bos. & Pul. 83, (Chit. j. 621); note (a).
Ballingalls v. Gloster, 3 East, 481. John Gloster drew a bill on Jackson payable to Anthony Gloster's order, and the latter indorsed it to the plaintiffs. Jackson refused acceptance, on which the plaintiffs immediately sued Anthony Gloster, without waiting till the bill, which was drawn at ninety days' sight, would have been due. The plaintiffs had a verdict, with liberty to the defendants to move for a nonsuit. On a rule nisi, accordingly, it was urged, that an indorser stood in a situation different from that of a drawer, and that although a drawer might be sued immediately on non-acceptance, an indorser could not, until the expiration of the time limited for the payment of the bill. But the court was clear that the case of an indorser was not distinguishable from that of a drawer, and that every indorser was a new drawer. Rule discharged.

(k) Allen v. Mawson, 4 Campb. 115, (Chit. j. 920); ante, 131.

(1) Macarty v. Barrow, 2 Stra. 949; 7 East, 437, (Chit. j. 272); Chilton v. Whiffin, 3 Wils. 16, (Chit. j. 378.)
(m) Puckford v. Maxwell, 6 T. R. 52, (Chit. 52)

j. 531).

(n) Hickling v. Hardy, 1 Moore, 61; 7 Taunt. 312, (Chit. j. 983). Sed quære as to the omission to protest, being the case of a foreign bill. The ground upon which a protest was held unnecessary was, that the defendant had admitted the drawee's refusal to accept. And as to the want of notice of dishonour, it appeared that the defendant had no effects in the hands of the drawee.

⁽¹⁾ The same doctrine has been repeatedly recognized in the United States. Mason v. Franklin, 3 John. Rep. 202. Miller v. Hackley, 5 John. Rep. 375. Sterry v. Robinson, 1 Day's Rep. 11. Watson v. Loring, 3 Mass. Rep. 557. Winthrop v. Pipoon, 1 Bay. Rep. 468. Lonox v. Cook, 8 Mass. Rep. 460. Welden v. Buck, 4 John. Rep. 144. Greely v. Thurston, 4 Greenl. 479.

15 35 2

. (4)

5.15

. i. L =

1 (5.2)

١٠ 🚅 🗓

1,50

17.15

13.23

100

. . . 37

. ... .5

1 3

 \mathbb{A}^{n+1}

. P. 125

49 11

1 7 °

3: 6.

en est

غبرين

100 fuses to accept, and afterwards desires it may be again presented, and it will t. Of Nonbe honoured, the holder is not bound again to present it, nor to return the acceptance bill(o).

and Proceedings

It seems to have been considered in one case(p), that the drawer and in-thereon. dorser have a reasonable time allowed them to pay the bill after notice of the dishonour, and that the circumstance of their not paying the amount immedi-Liability ately they receive such notice will not preclude them from pleading a tender, of Parties provided they offer to pay the amount on the following day, and before a on Nonwrit has been issued; but it is very doubtful whether such a plea can be sup-acceptported at the present day, for if it be true that the drawer and indorser are bound to pay the bill immediately on receiving notice of its dishonour, it would be impossible, where the tender is not made till the following day, to plead, as the plea of tender requires, that the defendant was always ready to pay(q). And in the case of an acceptor, it is clear that he must pay the bill on presentment, and cannot plead a subsequent tender (r). If an action is improperly commenced, the proper remedy is by application to the court to stay proceedings(s).

When due notice of the non-acceptance has been given to the *drawers and [*342] indorsers, it is not necessary afterwards to present the bill for payment, or if such presentment be made to give notice of the dishonour(t)(1).

With respect to the amount of the sum which the drawer and indorsers are bound to pay, they are liable, where a bill has been protested, not only to the payment of the principal sum, but to damages, interest, &c.(u). Where A. deposited a sum of money at the banking-house of B. in Paris, for which B. gave him his note, "payable in Paris:" "or at the choice of the bearer, at the Union Bank, in Dover, or at B.'s usual residence in London, according to the course of exchange upon Paris;" and after this note was given, the direct course of exchange between London and Paris ceased altogether, having been, previously to its total cessation, extremely low; the note was at a subsequent period presented for acceptance and payment at the

(o) Id. ibid.

(p) Walker v. Barnes, 1 Marsh. 36; 5 Taunt.

240, (Chit. j. 898).

The drawer of a bill is only bound to pay within a reasonable time after receiving notice of its being dishonoured, therefore, where he received notice the day after the bill became due, a tender on the following day was held to be in time. Per Lord Mansfield, C. J. "This is an action by the indorsee of a bill of exchange against the drawer, whose undertaking is to pay the holder on failure by the accept-or. When the bill is dishonoured, the drawer cannot find out by inspiration who is the holder, and therefore cannot pay it till he has notice of the dishonour. When he has received notice, he is bound to pay within reasonable time, and if he do not, will be answerable for damages. The bill became due on the 11th, on the 12th he received a note from the plaintiff 's attorney, informing him of the dishonour, and on the 13th he tenders. Is not this a reasonable compliance with his undertaking? No jury could give even a farthing damages. Rule discharged. And see Soward v. Palmer, 2 Moore, 274; 8 Taunt. 277, (Chit. j. 1025).

(q) See Siggers v. Lewis, 1 C. M. & R. 370; 2 Dowl. 681, S. C., where to an action against the defendant as indorser of a bill, a plea that the action was commenced before a reasonable time for the payment of the bill by the defend-ant had elapsed after notice of dishonour, was held bad. And see cases in next note.

(r) Hume v. Peploe, S East, 16S; Poole v. Tumbridge, 2 M. & W. 223; S. C. 5 Dowl. 468; 1 Mur. & Hurl. 32. See post, Ch. IX.

s. ii. Of Payment.
(s) Per Lord Lyndhurst, C. B. in Siggers v. Lewis, 1 C. M. & R. 371; et per Lord Ellenborough, C. J. in Hume v. Peploe, 8 East, 170.

(t) Price v. Dardell, Sittings at Guildhall, London, 11th December, 1794, cor. Lord Kenyon. His lordship said, it is in no case necessary to give notice when it is a second dis-honour; and in De la Torre v. Barclay and another, 1 Stark. Rep. 7, (Chit. j. 905). Lord Ellenborough said, that as the bill had been protested for non-acceptance, a second protest was Forster v. Jurdison, 16 East, 105, (Chit. j. 862); Hickling v. Hardy, 7 Taunt. 312; 1 Moore, 81, (Chit. j. 983).

(u) 8 & 9 Will. 3, c. 17, and 3 & 4 Anne, 9 of the goal Park H. Ch. VI. Sur. Park.

c. 9, et post, Part II. Ch. VI. Sum Recoverable.

^{(1) {} Exeter Bank v. Gordon, 8 New Hamp. Rep. 66. } acceptance and Proceedings thereon.

7thly, Liability of Parties on Nonacceptance.

L Of Non- residence of B. in London, at which time there was a circuitous course of exchange upon Paris by way of Hamburgh, and it was holden, that A. was entitled to recover upon the note according to such circuitous course of exchange upon Paris, at the time when the note was presented(x). Where, however, acceptance or payment has been rendered illegal by an act of this country, the drawer, &c. may not be liable to be sued on the bill(y); and we have already seen, that if a person draw a bill in a foreign country upon another in England, and it be protested for non-acceptance, the drawer will be discharged from liability to be sued in this country, by his having obtained a certificate of discharge, according to the law of the country where he drew the bill(z). In De Tastet v. Baring(a), a verdict having passed for the defendants, in an action to recover the amount of the re-exchange upon the dishonour of a bill drawn in London on Lisbon, upon evidence that the enemy were in possession of Portugal when the bill became due, and Lisbon was then blockaded by a British squadron, and there was in fact no direct exchange between London and Lisbon, though bills had in some few instances been negotiated between them through Hamburgh and America about that period, the court refused to grant a new trial, on the presumption that the jury had found their verdict on the fact, that no re-exchange was proved to their satisfaction to have existed between Lisbon and London at the time; the question having been properly left to them to allow damages in the nature of re-exchange, if the plaintiff, who had indorsed the dishonoured bill to the holder, had either paid or was liable to pay re-exchange, and saving the question of law, whether any re-exchange could be allowed between this and an enemy's country.

If the holder of a bill neglect to present it for acceptance when necessary, or to give notice of non-acceptance to those persons entitled to object to the want of it, such conduct we have seen, discharges them from their respective As to Proceedings See further, post, Chapter X. Section I. liabilities (b).

on Non-payment.

Sthly, How Consequences of Laches may be waived, &c.

*The consequences, however, of a neglect to give notice of non-acceptance, or to protest a foreign bill, may be waived by the persons entitled to take advantage of them, by the same means as the omission to give notice of non-payment or protest may be waived. And it has been considered better to arrange the law and decisions on this subject in that part of this work, and to which, therefore we refer(c).

If a promise to pay, which would otherwise waive the laches of the holder, be made without knowledge of the fact of non-acceptance, or of the laches of the holder, it will not be binding (d). It is observable, that the

j. 672).

(y) Ibid. 840.

(z) Ante, 168; Potter v. Brown, 5 East, 124; 1 Smith, 851, (Chit. j 694).

(a) De Tastet v. Baring, 1-1 Fast, 265; 2 Campb. 65, (Chit. j. 678). (b) Ante, 272, 325, 326. (c) Post, Ch. X., s. i.

(c) Post, Ch. X, s. 1.
(d) Blesard v. Hirst, 5 Burr, 2672, (Chit. j. 384); Goodall v. Dolley, I.T. R. 712, (Chit. j. 440); Williams v. Bartholomew, I.B. & P. 326; Stevens v. Lynch, 2 Campb. 333, admitted in 12 East, 39, (Chit. j. 782); Hopley v. Dufresne, 15 East, 276, 277, (Ch. j. 858).

Blesard v. Hirst and another, 5 Burr. 2670.

The defendant indersed a bill to the plaintiff. and he indorsed it over; his indorsee presented

(x) Pollard v. Herries, 3 B. & P. 335, (Ch. it for acceptance a month before it became due, and acceptance was refused; it was afterwards presented for payment, and payment was re-fused, of which notice was given to the defendants, but they had no notice of the refusal to accept. The drawer was a bankrupt before the bill became due, but he continued in credit three weeks after the presentment for acceptance. Three days after the notice one of the defendants called on the plaintiff at Bradford, on his way to Leeds, and he said he would take up the bill as he returned, but on his return he said he was advised he was not bound to do it, upon which this action was brought; and on a case reserved, the court held, that though the holder might not have been obliged to present the bill for acceptance, yet as he did, he ought to have given notice of the refusal, and that by · 4.

. · : 1

.

17.00

.

Jun. 11

حافل في

2 Fe 12" L. .. 12

126

: 3: 100

... in 131

, ---المنتران أرد

. Per 27

, ax 25

- 570 · **

 $j_{i}: \hat{I}^{ol}$

at distri

13.00 :: o::i

خلايتها

-12 To F

المائدة المائدة المائدة المائدة المائدة المائدة المائدة المائدة المائدة المائدة المائدة المائدة المائدة المائدة

cases of a promise or acknowledgment after want of notice of refusal to ac- I Of Noncept, are very different from a promise after a refusal to pay; of the former acceptance the defendant might be wholly ignorant, whereas a defendant must in general ceedings know when the bill became due, and might readily ascertain whether or not thereon. there were laches before he promised.

A person who has been once discharged by laches from his liability is always discharged; and therefore where two or more parties to a bill have been so discharged, but one of them not knowing of the laches, pays it, such payment is in his own wrong, and he cannot recover the money from another See further, post, Chapter X. Section I. As to Proof such parties(e). ceedings on Non-payment.

II. OF PROTEST FOR BETTER SECURITY.

THE custom of merchants is stated to be, that if the drawee of a bill of II Of Proexchange abscond before the day when the bill is due, the holder may protest it, in order to have better security for the payment, and should give notice to the drawer and independent of the payment. tice to the drawer and indorsers of the absconding *of the drawee(\check{f}); and [*344] if the acceptor of a foreign bill become bankrupt before it is due, it seems that the holder may also in such case protest for better security (g); but the acceptor is not, on account of the bankruptcy of the drawer, compellable to give this security (h). The neglect to make this protest will not affect the holder's remedy against the drawer and indorsers (i), and its principal use appears to be, that by giving notice to the drawers and indorsers of the situation of the acceptor, by which it is become improbable that payment will be made, they are enabled by other means to provide for the payment of the bill when due, and thereby prevent the loss of re-exchange, &c. occasioned by the return of the bill(k). It may be collected, that though the drawer or indorsers refuse to give better security, the holder must nevertheless wait till the bill be due, before he can sue either of those parties (l).

not so doing he had taken the risk upon himself, and notwithstanding the promise of one of them, the defendant had judgment.

Goodall v. Dolley, 1 T. R. 712, (Chit. j.
440). A bill drawn in favour of the defendant, payable the 11th of January, 1787, was presented for acceptance by the plaintiffs, the 8th November, 1786, when acceptance was refused; they gave no notice to the defendant till the 6th January, and then did not say when the bill was presented, upon which the defendant proposed paying it by instalments, but the plain-tiff rejected that offer and brought his action. Heath, J. thought the defendant discharged for want of notice, and that his offer to pay being made under ignorance of the circumstances, was not binding, and the jury under his direction found a verdict for the defendant. Upon cause shown against the rule for a new trial, the court thought the verdict and direction right, discharged the rule. See observations on these cases, supra, in context.

(e) Roscoe v. Hardy, 12 East, 434, 2 Camp.
458, (Chit. j. 983); Turner v. Leach, 4 B. &
Ald. 541, (Chit. j. 1109). In these cases the plaintiff sought to recover against a prior party to the bill: but where a party, who, as agent, draws a bill upon his principal, which the latter refuses to accept, and the former is compelled to pay, sues his principal in an action founded upon an implied indemnity, against loss, &c. arising from the drawing of the bill, the want of notice of non-acceptance to the plaintiff, the drawer, will be no defence to such action; Huntley v. Sanderson, 1 C. & M. 467;

8 Tyr. 469; see ante, 331, note (z). (f) Anon. Ld. Raym. 743; Mar. 27, 111, 112; Beawes, pl. 22, 24, 26, 27, 29; Kyd,

The following is an extract from the code of laws at Antwerp, relating to bills of exchange: -" In the case of failure (de faillité) of the acceptor before the usance (l'échéance), the holder may cause it to be protested, and put in force his recourse (exercer son récours)."

(g) Id. ibid.; Ex parte Wackerbath, 5 Ves. 574, (Chit. j. 627); Kyd, 139. (h) Beawes, pl. 22. (i) Ibid. pl. 23, 25.

(k) Ibid. pl. 24.

(1) Ibid. pl. 26.

III .- OF ACCEPTANCE SUPRA PROTEST.

III. Of Acceptance supra Protest (m).

Any person may, without the consent of the drawer or indorsers, accept the bill supra protest for better security (n). This security, it is said, is usually given by making another acceptance under the protest, that the person who becomes new security will be bound for the payment of the sum mentioned in the bill, upon which the protest is made (o).

1st, By whom made.

[*345]

When a foreign bill has been protested for non-acceptance, or for better security, and not before (p), the drawee (q) or any other person may accept it supra protest, which acceptance is so called from the manner in which it is made. This description of acceptance is frequently made upon a foreign bill, for the purpose either of promoting the negotiation of the bill when the drawee's credit it suspected, or to save the reputation, and prevent the issuing legal proceedings against all or some of the parties, where the drawee either cannot be found, is not capable of making a contract, or refuses to accept; and such acceptance is, in this country, called an acceptance for the honour of the person or persons for whose use it is made, and in France an acceptance par intervention, and it enures to the benefit of all who become parties subsequently to that person(r). A promise to pay a bill after refusal to accept, but before protest, is not to be considered an acceptance supra protest, but in the nature of an "aval" known in the French law(s).

*The drawee, though he may not choose to accept on account of him in whose favour he is advised the bill is drawn, may nevertheless accept for the account and honour of the drawer, or in case he do not choose to accept on account of the drawer, he may accept for the honour of the indorsers, or one of them; in which latter case, he should immediately send the protest on which he made the acceptance to the indorser(t). It is said, that if the holder be dissatisfied with the acceptance supra protest, and insist on a simple acceptance, and protest the bill for want of it, the acceptor should renounce the acceptance he had made, and insist that it be cancelled(u).

It is laid down that there is reason to think (though the point does not appear to have been decided) that in Scotland the holder may take an acceptance supra protest, and yet sue the drawer or indorsers for want of acceptance by the drawee, because he has not got the security stipulated by the bill(x), and it has been supposed that such is the French law(y); and that all events, it is certain that the holder, by taking an acceptance for the honour of an indorser, does not abandon his right to protest either against the drawer or any prior indorser(z). But where an acceptance supra protest is generally for the honour of the bill, or of all the parties, it would defeat the object of such acceptor, if the holder could afterwards, before the bill is due

(m) 1 Pardes. 407 to 411; Pailliet Man. de Droit Français, 816.

(n) Ex parte Wackerbath, 5 Ves. 574, (Ch. j. 627), et infra. See the observations on acceptances supra protest in Houre v. Cazenove, 16 East, 391, (Chi. j. 874); post, 347, n. (u).
(o) Com. Dig. tit. Merchant, F. S, cites Mar.

(p) Ex parte Wackerbath, 6 Ves. 574, (Ch. j. 627); 1 Pardess. 407, tit. "Acceptation par Intervention."

(q) In 1 Pardess. 407, It appears to be considered, that in France the drawee cannot so accept, though he may declare that he accepts only to oblige the drawer, and not admitting that he is debtor.

(r) Hussey v. Jacob, Lord Raym. 88, (Ch. j. 189); Lewin v. Brunetti, Lutw. 899, (Ch. j. 178); Beawes, pl. 34; Poth. pl. 112, 113, 114;
1 Pardess. 407; Pailliet Man. de Droit Frangais, 846.

(s) 1 Pardess. 407, 419.

(t) Beawes, pl. 33, 34.

(u) Id. pl. 37. (x) Thompson on Bills, 89.

(y) Roscoe, 392, refers to Code de Com. B. 1 & 8, s. 4, num. 128.

(z) Roscoe, 392; Scarlet, c. 12, note 15.

11.7

. . .

W 125

20

1.75 11

: ...:

1.00

. . . .

- 12-

.

J. 3

4

·./*.

30

::

....

sue either of the parties, and therefore it should seem he could not sue either, III. Of after receiving such general acceptance supra protest; and, according to the Acceptlaw of France, the holder cannot, on refusal to accept, demand immediate ance supra payment from the drawer or indorsers, unless they refuse security (a).

When the drawer will not accept the bill, any other person may, after re-lat, By fusal by him(b), and after protest, accept it for the honour of the bill, or of the made. drawer(c)(1), or of any particular indorser(d); and even a bill previously accepted supra protest may be accepted by another person supra protest, in honour of some particular person(e). No one, however, should accept a bill under protest for non-acceptance for the honour of the drawer before he has ascertained that the hand-writing of the drawer and indorsers, for whose honour he proposes to accept, are genuine, for otherwise he would not be able to resort to them (f), and he should also ascertain from the drawee his reason for suffering the bill to be protested; but if the acceptance be in honour of the indorser, such inquiry is unnecessary (g).

It is said, that the holder of a bill must receive an acceptance supra protest, if offered by a responsible person, it being of no importance to him whether it be accepted simply or under a protest, as the acceptor pays the charges, unless he had orders from the remitter not to admit of such an acceptance (h). But this dictum seems to be erroneous, for it has been adjudged that the holder need not acquiesce in any case (i). And though there cannot be a series of acceptors of the same bill, and it must either be accepted by the drawee, or, failing him, by *some one for the honour of the drawer(k); yet, [*346] after acceptance for the honour of one party, there may be unother acceptance supra protest for the honour of another party (l).

The method of accepting supra protest is said to be as follows:- The ac-2dly, Mode ceptor must personally appear before a notary public with witnesses, and de- of acceptclare that he accepts such protested bill in honour of the drawer or a partic- ing supra ular named indorser, or generally for honour, and that he will satisfy the same Protest. at the appointed time; and then he must subscribe the bill with his own hand, thus—" accepted supra protest, in honour of J. B. (m)," or, as is more usual, "accepts, S. P." and sometimes it is "accepted under protest, for honour of Messrs. -, and will be paid for their account, if regularly protested and refused when due(n)." A general acceptance supra protest is considered as made for the honour of the drawer, unless otherwise expressed. acceptance, however, may be so worded, that though it be intended for the honour of the drawer, yet it may equally bind the indorser; but in this case, notice of such acceptance must be sent to the latter(o). If there be several offers of acceptance for honour, that which it most extensive should, it is

(a) Ante, 344; 1 Pardess. 405, 406.

(b) Beawes, pl. 38; Hussey v. Jacob, Lord

Raym. 98, (Chit. j. 189). (c) Mar. 125, 126, 127, 128; Lewin v. Brunetti, Lutw. 896, 899; Carth. 129, (Ch. j. 176); observed upon in Hoare v. Cazenove, 16 East, 391, (Chit. j. 874); post, 347, n. (u).

(d) Beawes, pl. 38, 42; Jackson v. Hudson,

2 Campb. 448, (Chit. j. 799).

(e) Beawes, pl. 42.

(f) 1 Pardessus, 474.
(g) Beawes, pl. 46.
(h) Ibid. pl. 27, 36.

(i) Mitford v. Walcot, 12 Mod. 410; Ld. Raym. 575, (Chit. j. 214); et vide Beawes, pl. 37; Gregory v. Walcot, Com. 76, (Chit. j. 214); Pillans v. Van Mierop, 3 Burr. 1672, 1674, (Chit. j. 372).

(k) Jackson v. Hudson, 2 Campb. 447; ante.

(1) Beawes, pl. 42; 2 Campb. 448, note.

(m) Beawes, pl. 38. see post, 821, (39).
(n) Mitchel v. Baring, 10 Bar. & Cress. 4; 6 Mood. & M. 381; 4 Car. & P. 35, (Chit. j. 1454); post, 347, note (u).

(o) Beawes, pl. 39.

III. Of Acceptance supra Protest.

said, be preferred (p). The holder, as well as the acceptor supra protest, should always take care to have the bill protested for non-acceptance before the acceptance for honour is made, as otherwise, it is said, the drawer might allege that he did not draw on the person making the acceptance (q); and the acceptor supra protest might not be able to recover from the drawer the money he might pay (r).

3dly, Liability of Acceptor supra Protest. [*347]

*It has been said that acceptance supra protest is as obligatory on the acceptor as if no protest had intervened, and that it is immaterial to the holder on whose account the bill has been so excepted(s), from which it might be inferred that such an acceptance, like that made by an original drawee, is an absolute engagement. But this is not so; for an acceptance supra protest is in effect only a conditional engagement, and to render such acceptance absolutely binding, the performance of several acts, as conditions precedent, are essential. Such an acceptance is equivalent to saying to the holder "keep this bill, do not return it, and when the time arrives at which it ought to be paid, if it be not paid by the party on whom it was originally drawn, come to me and you shall have the money(t)." In order, therefore, to complete the liability of the acceptor supra protest, the bill must be duly presented for payment, at the time it falls due, to the original drawee, notwithstanding his prior refusal; because, between the time of such refusal and the time when

(p) 1 Pardess. 409, 410.

(q) Marius, 88, 125, 126, 127.

(r) A person should not accept or pay for honour of a party to the bill until a final protest of the previous dishonour has been made. Vandewall and Trippher v. Tyrrell, Gdildhall, be-fore Lord Tenterden, 28d July, 1827, MS. and Mood. & M. 87, (Chit. j. 1352). Assumpsit for money paid by plaintiffs for use of defend-ant. Defendant, at Jamaica, drew four bills, dated 9th September, 1824, for 1500l. on Willis and Co. in London, payable nine months after sight; they were duly accepted, and became due 30th July, 1825. The acceptors could not pay, and the bills were merely noted for nonpayment, and thereupon the acceptors requested plaintiffs to pay for honour of the defendant, the drawer, which they did on 8th August, 1825, and notice thereof was given by post to defendant at Jamaica; but it appears, by the evidence of the notary, that he was not requested to protest the hill for non-payment till May, 1826, when he drew up the protest as if it had been made before the payment by the plaintiffs. Lord Tenterden decided, that such a payment could not bind the defendant, or subject him to liability to refund, for that it was essential, according to the custom of merchants, that there should be a formal protest for non-payment before the payment by a third person supra protest; and he therefore directed the plaintiffs to be nonsuited.

See Forbes on Bills, 150; Beawes Lex Merc. tit. Bills, pl. 34, 66; 1 Pardessus, 109; and Pnilliet Manual de Droit Français, 851. In Forbes on Bills, 149, the law is thus laid down.—" But as in no case a bill should be accepted supra protest for honour, without a preceding protest for non-acceptance, against the person drawn upon (even when he himself accepts supra protest), and instruments taken and extended upon the acceptance, and timeous advertisement of the whole transaction sent to the person or persons for whose honour the bill is accepted. So before any bill can be lawfully paid supra protest for honour, the same must be protested for non-payment against him on whom it was drawn; unless the payer supra protest, having formerly accepted, got an answer from the party for whose honour the acceptance was, approving thereof. And he who pays supra protest must declare, before a public notary, with what quality he pays, and for whose honour, and the cause why he does it; and the whole must be reduced into a notarial act to be extended thereon: and advice of what hath past ought to be sent as soon as possible to the person or persons for whose honour he paid, together with the protest for non-payment, and the instrument upon his payment supra protest. In a word, whatever caution is necessary to be exhibited in honouring of bills, protested for non-acceptance, is as needful in paying supra protest. And the same reasons for all these formalities both alike in both cases; for if the solemnity of a notarial instrument were omitted, any body that hath simply paid and retired a bill, might afterwards, at his own hand, object what quality he pleases to the great prejudice of parties concerned, which the instrument is a check to. And the neglecting to send advice might occasion their relief to perish, by the breaking of one in the mean time who perhaps stands engaged to them in warrandice: now he who meddles in another's matters should do all things to the best advantage." See post, 821, (40).

(*) Benwes, pl. 35, 45; Mitford r. Walcot, l. Ld. Raym. 575; 12 Mod. 410, (Chit. j. 214); Gregory r. Walcot, Com. 76, (Chit. j. 214); Pillans v. Van Mierop, 3 Burr. 1672, (Chit. j. 372).

(t) Per Lord Tenterden, in Williams r. Germaine, 7 Bar. & Cress. 477; 1 Man. & Ry. 394, (Chit. j. 1356).

4

T.

12:2

. -: :

•

. . . .

.

المجوديوس

5.51

. :

, yeu

. · , ::

. - 21

(日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本)
 (日本) (日本) il i

فعدا نظار ش

the bill would fall due, effects may have reached the drawee, out of which he III. Of might, if the bill were presented again, pay the bill; and the drawer and other Acceptparties are entitled to the chance of the benefit to arise from such second de-ance supra mand, or at any rate to the benefit of that evidence which the protest affords, mand, or at any rate to the benefit of that evidence which the protest anothes, that the demand had been made duly without effect, as far as such evidence bility of may be available to him for the purposes of ulterior resort(u). If such *sec-Acceptor

Protest.

(u) Per Lord Ellenborough, in Hoare v. Cazenove, 16 East, 891, (Chit. j. 874). This was an action on a set of foreign bills of ex-change, drawn at Hambro' on Pen and Hanbury in London, at one hundred and thirty days after date; the bills were presented to Messrs. P. and H. for acceptance and refused, and protest duly made for non-acceptance; the bills were afterwards accepted by the defendant un-der protest for the honour of the first indorsers. When the bill became due, it was not presented to the drawees for payment, nor protested for non-payment. The defendant refused to pay the bill, in consequence of orders from the first indorsers. At the trial, the plaintiff had a verdict, subject to the opinion of the court on the above case; and after two arguments, and time taken to consider, the court were of opinion, that a presentment to the original drawees for payment, and a protest for non-payment by them, was essential, as a previous requisite to maintaining an action against an acceptor for the honour of a first indorser, and ordered the postea to the defendants. Lord Ellenborough said, "the reason of the thing as well as the strict law of the case, seems to render a second resort to the drawee proper, when the unaccepted bill still remains with the holder, for effects often reach the drawee, who has refused acceptance in the first instance, out of which the bill may and would be satisfied, if presented to him again, when the period of payment had arrived; and the drawer is entitled to the chance of the benefit to arise from such second demand, or at any rate, to the benefit of that evidence which the protest affords; that the demand has been made duly without effect, as far as such evidence may be available to him for purposes of ulterior resort."

When he that is drawn upon dwells not in the same place where the bill is to be paid, yet [*348] the acceptor is obliged to bring his monies to that place where the bill is to be paid. "The possessor of a bill is not obliged to protest ngainst an out-dweller [i. e. one who does not live at the place where the bill is payable] at his house or dwelling, nor to seek him out of the city or town where the payment is to be made." Scarlett on Exchanges, p. 160 made." Scarlett on Exchanges, p. 160, A. p. 1684. This scarce book is in the library of the British Museum, 4 Car. & P. 39, note (a). See further extract, 10 B. & C. 11, note (a).

Suppose a bill of exchange to be drawn from Rouen, and directed thus:—"To Mr. William P. merchant, Southampton," but be made payable thus:—"Pay this my first bill of exchange at the house of Mr. Roger C. in London, to the order of Mr. Benjamin L. this bill must be sent to Southampton to be accepted, and if acceptance is refused, it may either be protested at Southampton for non-acceptance, or sent to London, and there be protested for non-acceptance." But now, when this bill is due, you must then only endeavour to get payment at London, according to the express words and tenor of the bill, and if no order be given at the house of Mr. Roger C. in London, for payment, or if a particular house be not expressed, but only the bill is payable in London, if you have not your money brought you within the three days after the bill is due, you must cause protest for non-payment to be made in London according to the usual manner." Marius on Bills. 106, 107; 4 Car. & P. 39, note (b).

Any third person may accept a bill supra protest for honour of the drawer or indorser after it hath been protested for non-acceptance against the person drawn upon. The acceptor has, beyond the day in the bill, three days allowed him to make payment, called days of grace or favour, or respite-days; upon the last of these days of grace the creditor in the bill ought to protest it against the acceptor for nonpayment. In all cases where bills are protested for non-acceptance or non-payment, advice thereof must be sent by the next post to the drawer and indorser. Forbes Inst. 191; 4 Car, & P. 89, note (c).

Roach and others r. Ostler, executrix of Ontler. Sittings in Guildhall, after Trin. Term, 8 Geo. 4, K. B. MS.; 1 Man. & Ry. 120, (Chit. j. 1359). Acceptors supra protest for honour of the payee against the executrix of the drawer of a bill of exchange, payable thirty days after sight. The declaration stated the drawing of the bill by William Ostler, the tes tator, upon one William Ostler, in favour of T. Russell, or order, a memorandum, directing the bill, in case of need, to the plaintiffs, for the honour of T. Russell, the payee, the indorsements, the presentment to the drawer, Mitchell v. Baring, 10 Bar. & Cres. 4; Mood. & M. 381; 4 Car. & P. 35, (Chit. j. 1454). A foreign bill of exchange was drawn by A. up-on C. and Co. who resided at Liverpool, in favour of L. R. and Co. and by A. indorsed to the plaintiffs. The bill was drawn "sixty days after sight pay to L. R. and Co. in London," &c. It was refused acceptance by the drawee, but accepted under protest for honour of the payee, by the defendants, as follows: "Accepted under protest for honour of L. R. and Co. and will be paid for their account if regularly protested and refused when due." This bill was presented for payment at the residence of the drawees in Liverpool, and protested at Liverpool for non-payment, but it was not presented for payment or protested in London where the drawees had not any house of business; and it was held, that the holders were entitled to recover against the acceptor for honour, and that under these circumstances a presentment in London and protest there were not necessary. But see now 2 & 3 Will 4; c. 98, post, 349.

Digitized by Google

III. Of Acceptance supra Protest.

8dly, Lia-bility of Acceptor supra Protest.

ond presentment be not regularly made (except in the case presently noticed of a bill made payable at a place not being the residence of the drawee), the drawer and indorsers may be discharged of liability, and the accentor supra protest would have no recourse against them if he paid the bill, and consequently he also would be discharged for want of such protest(v).

With respect to the place of presentment for payment, where a bill is made payable at a place not being the residence of the drawee, it seems that if a foreign bill drawn upon a merchant residing at Liverpool, or other place, payable in London, be refused acceptance by the drawee, the customer is to make the presentment and protest in London. The bill is put into the hands of a notary, and he formerly used to make protest at the Royal Exchange; but that custom has become obsolete; the notary now is merely desired by the holder to seek payment of the bill, and on a declaration by the latter that [*349] the *drawee has not remitted any funds, or sent to say where the bill will be paid, the notary at once marks it as protested for non-payment. In that case it is presumed, that the drawee in Liverpool, to whom the bill has been presented for acceptance (who thereby has the means of ascertaining who the holder is), is aware of its being due; and it is his duty to transmit the funds to the holder, or to communicate to him where the bill will be paid in In Mitchell v. Baring(y), however, where a bill so drawn had London(x). been accepted supra protest for the honour of the payee, if regularly protested and refused when due, a presentment and protest in Liverpool were held sufficient, without any presentment or protest in London. This case, though decided upon the peculiar form of the acceptance, and therefore not involving the general question as to the usage and custom of merchants, was, nevertheless, considered as casting a sufficient doubt upon the validity of the previous practice to require the interference of the legislature; and, accordingly, the act of 2 & 3 Will. 4, c. 98, was passed, by which, after reciting that doubts had arisen as to the place in which it was requisite to protest for nonpayment bills of exchange, which on the presentment for acceptance to the drawee or drawees should not have been accepted, such bills of exchange being made payable at a place other than the place mentioned therein to be the residence of the drawee or drawees thereof, and that it was expedient to remove such doubts, it is enacted, "that from and after the passing of this act,

2 & 8 W. 4, c. 98. Bills of Exchange expressed to be paid in any Place other than the Residence of the Drawee, if not accepted on Presentment, may be protested in that Place,

William Ostler, for acceptance, his refusal to accept, and the protest for non-acceptance; then the presentment to the plaintiffs for acceptance, the acceptance supra protest by them for the honour of the payee, the presentment to the drawee, William Ostler, for payment, his refusal to pay, and the protest for non-payment; then the presentment to the plaintiffs, and the paid to the which premises the testator, William Ostler, Holder. had notice, whereby he became liable, &c. The proof in support of the declaration was, that the bill was drawn at Rio de Janeiro, by the testator, William Ostler, upon himself in London, the drawer, William Ostler, and the drawce, William Ostler, being the same person; that the bill was presented to the drawee, William Ostler, for acceptance, that acceptance was refused, and the bill protested for non-acceptance; that the bill was indorsed as stated, and then a letter was put in, proved to have been written by the drawer to the payce of the bill a short time before the bill was presented to William Ostler the drawee, for acceptance, stating, that he feared the bill would not be paid, and requesting the payer to hold it, and to prevent its being returned; and that if it were returned, it should be paid with all charges. The acceptance by the plaintiffs supra protest, and the payment of the bills by them, were also proved. It was objected for the defendant that the above evidence was not sufficient to support the declaration, and that the plaintiffs were bound to prove presentment to the drawee, William Ostler, for payment, and the notice of non-payment, and the protest as averred in the declaration. Lord Tenterden thought the evidence sufficient, and the plaintiff had a verdict, with liberty for the defendant to move to enter a nonsuit.

(r) Id. ibid.

(x) See the evidence of London merchants and notaries in Mitchell v. Buring, Mood. & M. 381; 4 C. & P. 35; 10 B. & C. 6, 7. It was stated, however, by two notaries from Liverpool, that the uniform practice had been in the case of foreign bills drawn on persons in Liverpool, payable in London, to present for payment at the domicile of the drawee in Liverpool, and protest for non-payment there.

(y) Ante, 347, note (u).

1₁T

. 3

...

لسار

. - 50

. 313

. . rd

کاتر اند و

1.125

all bills of exchange, wherein the drawer or drawers thereof shall have ex- III. Of pressed that such bills of exchange are to be payable in any place other than Acceptthe place by him or them therein mentioned to be the residence of the draw-protest. ee or drawees thereof, and which shall not, on the presentment for accept- 8dly, Liaance thereof, be accepted, shall or may be, without further presentment to bility of the drawee or drawees, protested for non-payment in the place in which such Acceptor bills of exchange shall have been by the drawer or drawers expressed to be protest. payable, unless the amount owing upon such bills of exchange shall have been paid to the holder or holders thereof on the day on which such bills of exchange would have become payable had the same been duly accepted"(z).

But as this act applies only to bills made payable at a place other than the residence of the drawee, it should seem that in the case of a bill made payable at the same place as the residence of the drawee, a second presentment to the drawee, in order to charge an acceptor supra protest, will still be necessary. Such presentment, when necessary, should, if the bill be payable after date, be made upon the day when the bill, according to its date, falls due(a). But if the bill be payable after sight, then the presentment must be made at the expiration of the time when, with the days of grace, the acceptance supra protest would fall due, calculating not from the date of the bill, *but from the day of the acceptance, and without regard to the time [*350] of the presentment to the drawee for acceptance, or his refusal to accept(b).

(z) As after a protest for non-acceptance the drawer and indorsers are immediately liable to be sued, and no further presentment or protest for non-payment is necessary to fix them with liability, this act seems, in its practical utility confined to cases where there has been an acceptance supra protest, when, in order to complete the liability of the acceptor supra protest, it was necessary, in the case recited in the act, to make a second presentment of the bill to the original drawee, (see ante, 347) and which in such cases is now dispensed with.

(a) Hoare v. Cazenove, 16 East, 391, (Chit. j. 874); ante, 847, note (u); and see observa-tions of Lord Tenterden, in Williams v. Germaine, 7 B. & C. 171, infra.

(b) Williams v. Germaine, MS. 1827; 7
Ber. & Cres. 468; 1 Man. & Ry. 394, (Chit. j. 1856). A foreign bill, payable thirty days after sight, was presented to drawee for acceptance on the 12th July, and acceptance refused. No notice was given immediately to drawer, his residence not being known. The bill was accepted by A. B. for the honour of the drawer, on the 20th July. At the expiration of the thirty days and days of grace, the bill was presented for payment to the original drawee and to the acceptor for honour, and not paid, and thereupon this action was brought against the drawer and plaintiff obtained a verdict. Parke moved for a new trial, on an objection taken at Nisi Prius, that the bill ought to have been presented for payment to the drawee at the expiration of thirty days from the 12th July, when it was refused acceptance, and that the delay in presenting until the thirty days and days of grace from the date of acceptance supra protest discharged the drawer. Abbott, C. J. "The bill must be presented to the original drawee for payment, but it suffices to make one presentment to him for payment, and that on the day the bill falls due, according to the acceptance." Bayley, J. "As to the delay, it is giving time to the drawer, and he cannot take advantage of what was for his benefit. He cannot object that the acceptance supra protest was at an extended time, for he became liable to be sued instantly the drawee refused accept-Rule refused.

The following is an extract from the report of the case in 7 Bar. & Cress. 468.

Williams v. Germaine, the elder, and Williams v. Germaine, the younger. Where a bill of exchange, payable after sight, having been presented for acceptance and refused, and duly protested, was eight days afterwards accepted by a third person for the honour of the drawer, and when at maturity, according to that acceptance, was presented for payment both to the drawee and the acceptor for honour; it was held, in actions against the latter and the drawer, that these presentments for payment were made at a proper time. But it was held necessary that presentment to the drawee for payment should be averred in the declaration, and for want of such averment judgment was arrested. Upon the motion for a new trial, Lord Tenterden, C. J. said, "I am of opinion that there is not any sufficient ground for the motion either on behalf of the drawer or the acceptor. This was a bill payable thirty days after sight. On the 12th July it was presented for acceptance, and that having been refused, it was duly protested, but the drawer's address not being known, notice could not be given. The bill was then taken to Germaine the elder, and on the 20th of July, he accepted it for the bonour of the drawer; thirty days elapsed, and then the usual days of grace having been allowed, it was presented to the original drawees and to the acceptor for honour, but both refused payment. The first question is, whether the drawer is liable under these circumstances? It is not necessary to decide on the effect of an acIII. Of Acceptance supra Protest.

*It will be seen, however, that bills of the description mentioned in the above statute are to be treated as due on the day on which they would have become payable, had they been duly accepted, without any distinction as to whether payable after date or after sight.

8dly, Liability of Acceptor supra Protest.

Besides this presentment for payment to the original drawee (when not dispensed with under 2 & 3 Will. 4, c. 98), there must be also a formal protest, stating such presentment, and the neglect or refusal of the original drawee to pay(c); and such presentment(d) and protest(e) must be alleged in the declaration against the acceptor supra protest, or the judgment will be ar-

It is also requisite, that after presentment to the drawee, and protest for non-payment by him, a presentment should be made in due time to the acceptor supra protest, or he will be discharged from liability. It would, when he lives at a different place from the original drawee, be impracticable to make such presentment, and require him to pay supra protest, according to his acceptance, on the same day as that on which the presentment for payment to the original drawee is made; and, therefore, by the 6 & 7 Will. 4, 6 & 7 W. c. 58, intituled " An Act for DECLARING the Law as to the Day on which it is requisite to present for Payment to the Acceptors or Acceptor supra Protest or Honour, or to the Referees or Referee in case of Need, Bills of Exchange

4, c. 59. Bills of Exchange need not be presented to Ac- ceptance for honour where no presentment for ceptors for payment is made to the drawers. Here presentment was made to them at the time when Referees the bill became due, according to the accept-till the Day ance for honour, and I think that sufficed. This circumstance distinguishes the present case the Day on from Hoare v. Cazenove. The bill in that case which they was payable at a certain period after date, and no presentment for payment was ever made to the drawee; the decision therefore cannot be cited as an authority for saying that a bill should, under the circumstances proved in this case, be presented for payment to the drawees and to the acceptor for honour at two different times. Such a rule might be prejudicial to the acceptor for honour, and in the present case it would have compelled the holder to present the bill to the drawee eight days before the expiration of the time allowed to the actual acceptor for payment."

Honour or following become due.

Parke then moved in arrest of judgment because there was no averment in the declaration, that the bill was presented for payment to the original drawee, and referred to Lewin v. Brunetti, Lutw. 896, (Chit. j. 178); and Houre v. Cazenove, 16 East, 391; and a rule nisi was granted, and afterwards the court arrested the judgment. Lord Tenterden, C. J. "Whatever is requisite to enable a person who has accepted a bill for the honour of another to call upon that person to repay him, and to enable him to recover over against such person, may also be reasonably held necessary to enable another party to recover against such an acceptor for honour. For if you could recover against an acceptor for honour, by proof of less than will enable him to recover against the party for whom he accepts, there would be an inconsistency, for it might be said, with some reason, that if the acceptor for honour chose to pay, without requiring all the proof from the holder which would be necessary for him to recover against the drawer, the payment would be made in his own wrong, and he would not be entitled to recover over. It seems to me, therefore, that the same rule as to proof, which prevails in the case of an acceptor for honour, in suing a party for whose honour he accepts, must also be observed when the holder of a bill sues the person so accepting. The result, as it seems to me, of the decision in Hours r. Cozenove, 16 East, 391, is, that an acceptance for honour is to be considered not as absolutely such, but in the nature of a conditional acceptance. It is equivalent to saying to the holder of the bill, 'keep this bill,' do not return it, and when the time arrives at which it ought to be paid, if it be not paid by the party on whom it was originally drawn, come to me and you shall have the money.' This appears to me to be a very sensible interpretation of the nature of acceptances for honour where the parties say nothing upon the subject. In an action by the holder against the drawer of the bill, to he sure he has a right to say, ' if you keep it till its time has run out you ought to have presented it to the person on whom I drew it, and have seen whether on the presentment he would pay, whereas you have forbore to do so, and have relied on an acceptance by some person for my honour, made without my authority. We think that we are bound by authority, and I am inclined to say by reason, to confirm the decision in Hoare v. Cazenove, consequently, the rule for arresting the judgment in this case must be made absolute."

(c) Mitchel v. Baring, 10 Bar. & Cress. 4; Mood. & M. 381; 4 Car. & P. 35, (Chit.). 1454); ante, 347, 349. (d) Williams v. Germaine, 7 B. & C. 468, ante, 350, note (b).

(e) Id. 472, quoting Lord Ellenborough's observations, and Hoare v. Cazenove, 16 East, 391; Lewin v. Brunetti, Lutw. 896, (Chit. j. 178); Pothier Contract de Change, part i, c. 5, s. 183.

40:00

. 7 21

· 1777

. . .

- 717

- 1 (2) 11

er: . 1:

≛∴رين

1-1:15

15.3

A. 71

1:11:21

1000 عيرًا أن

. T. PR.

, (mide

17 17 18

*4.4 B($)

· · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · .c. 1024

. 11 7 X

e : 100 156

الجلاج مرسر

J. Her

دو آون. 111

37.50

مراد مرابع مرتبر من

- J. 18

1. 2. 15. 2. 2. 15.

which had been dishonoured," after reciting that doubts had arisen(f) when III. Of bills had been protested for want of payment as to the day on which it was Acceptrequisite that they should be presented for payment to the acceptors or ac-Protest. ceptor for honour, or to the referees or referee in case of need, and that it sdly, Liawas expedient that such doubts should be removed, it is declared and enacted, bility of "that it shall not be necessary to present such bills of exchange to such ac-Acceptor ceptors or acceptor for honour, or to such referees or referee, until the day following the day on which such bills of exchange shall become due; and that if the place of address on such bill of exchange of such acceptors or acceptor for honour, or of such referees or referee, shall be in any city, town or place other than in the city, town or place where such bill shall be therein made payable, then it shall not be necessary to forward such bill of exchange for presentment for payment to such acceptors or acceptor for honour, or referees or referee, until the day following the day on which such bill of exchange shall become due." And by the second section it is further enacted and declared, "if the day following the day on If the folwhich such bill of exchange shall become due shall happen to be a Day be a Sunday, Good Friday or Christmas Day, or a day appointed by his Sunday, Majesty's proclamation for solemn fast or of thanksgiving, then it shall not be then Majesty's proclamation for solemn tast or of thanksgiving, then it shall not on the Day be necessary that such bill of exchange shall be presented for payment, or following be forwarded for such presentment for payment, to such acceptors or acceptor such Sunfor honour, or referees or referee, until the day following such Sunday, day, &c. Good Friday, Christmas Day, or solemn fast or day of thanksgiving."

If the acceptor supra protest, on such protest for non-payment, *thinks fit [*352] to pay pursuant to his liability created by the acceptance supra protest, then complete, he should declare before a notary that he pays supra protest(g). If such acceptor should refuse to pay, then there must be another formal protest, stating the presentment (when necessary, see 2 & 3 Will. 4, c. 98, ante, 349) for payment to the drawee, the protest for his non-payment, the presentment of the bill and acceptance to the acceptor supra protest, and demand of payment of him, and the protest for his non-payment (h); and notice thereof must be forthwith forwarded to the drawer and indorsers(i).

If the acceptance were for the honour of the bill, or of the drawer, the acceptor is liable to all the indorsees, as well as to the holder; if in honour of a particular indorser, then to all subsequent indorsees (k).

A person accepting a bill supra protest, either for the honour of a drawer Right of or of an indorser, although without his order or knowledge, has, as it is said, Acceptor his redress and remedy against such person, and to all other persons who are supra liable to that person, who must indemnify him from any damage he may have Protest. sustained the same as if he had acted entirely by his direction(1). He who accepts a bill in honour of the drawer only has no remedy against any of the indorsers, because he accepts merely on the behalf of the drawer; but the acceptor for the honour of the drawer of a bill already accepted by the drawee, but protested by the holder for better security, may, when he has paid the bill, sue the drawer or drawee, though in the case of a bankruptcy of these parties, if the first acceptance were for the accommodation of the drawer, a court of equity will compel the acceptor supra protest first to resort to the drawer's estate(m).

(f) See Williams v. Germaine, 7 B. & C. 468, 478, 474; ante, 850, note (b).

Digitized by Google

⁽g) As to which, see post, Ch. X. s. ii. (h) Ante, 847.

⁽i) Ante, 851.

⁽k) Ante, 844.
(l) Beawes, pl. 47; Smith v. Nissen, 1 T. R. 269, (Chit. j. 485); et vide post, Of payment supra Protest.
(m) Ex parte Wackerbath, 5 Ves. 574,

III. Of Acceptance supra Protest.

Athly,
Right of Acceptor
supra Protest.

An acceptor for the honour of an indorser has no claim upon any party to the bill subsequent to him for whose honour he accepted; but the indorser, for whose honour he accepted, and all the prior parties, the drawer included, are obliged to make satisfaction to the acceptor (n). See further, post, Chapter X. Section II. As to Payment supra Protest (1).

(Chit. j. 627). The acceptor of a bill having become bankrupt, and the holders having protested it for better security, Christian and Bowen accepted it for the honour of the drawers, and having paid it, now claimed to be entitled to dividends under the bankrupt's estate. The Chancellor said, he had spoken to persons in trade upon the subject, and the result was, that the person accepting for the honour of the drawer had a right to come upon the acceptor. He said, however, that the justice of the case required that they should go in the first place against the drawer, if the acceptor had no effects, and directed an inquiry to be made, whether the original acceptor, or Christian and Bowen, had effects of the drawer in hand.

Bowen, had effects of the drawer in hand.
(n) Beawes, pl. 35, 44, 449; Poth. pl. 113;
Molloy, B. 2, c. 10, s, 24.

(1) When a bill of exchange is protested for non-acceptance, and afterwards is taken up and paid for the honor of an indorser, it has been held that the holder is still bound to cause the bill to be protested for non-acceptance and non-payment, and to give regular notice to the antecedent parties in the same manner as if the bill had not been taken up. It is material bowever to observe that this doctrine was delivered in a case where the action was brought by the indorser for whose honor the bill had been paid, against a prior indorser, and that the neglect to make the protest and give notice, was on the part of the persons who had taken up the bill for his honor. Lenox v. Leverett, 10 Mass. Rep. 1.

'n.

1 1221

دور پير

-, 12.*1"

*CHAPTER IX.

OF PRESENTMENT FOR PAYMENT, AND OF PAYMENT.

I. OF PRESENTMENT FOR PAYMEN	т 353	Hour of day	397
1. When necessary.	ib.	7. Consequence of Laches, and how	,
2. By whom to be made	865	waived	389
3. To whom and at what Place	ib.	II. OF PAYMENT	391
4. Mode of Presentment	368	1. Preliminary Caution	ib.
5. Time of Presentment	369	2. By whom Payment to be made	392
Of the different styles	ib.	3. To whom	393
Date of Bill when excluded	370	4 At what Time	897
Of different Usances	371	5. How made, and what amounts to	399
Months, how computed	878	6. Application of Payments	402
When Bills payable after Date or		7. Consequences of giving Time to or
Sight to be presented.	ib.	releasing Acceptor, &c.	408
Days of Grace, when allowed, and		Receiving part Payment of Acceptor	417
what	374	Proving under Commission, &c.	421
Bills at Sight entitled to	876	Compounding with Acceptor, &c.	ib.
But not Checks or Notes payable on			423
Demand	877	9. Effect of Payment, and of Payments
When latter to be presented	879	by Mistake, &c.	425

I. OF PRESENTMENT FOR PAYMENT.

I. Of Presentment

WE have seen that the contract of an acceptor and of the maker of a note, for Payment. is, that it shall be paid on presentment; and the contract of an indorser is, that it shall be paid if duly presented, and that if not, then he will pay it if 1st. When he have due notice of the dishonour. Hence a presentment for payment is a condition precedent(a)(1). In general, a creditor may sue his debtor without any previous demand, but in the case of a negotiable bill it should seem to be otherwise, and the party entitled to it cannot, by the custom of merchants, insist upon payment even by the acceptor, without producing and presenting the bill to him, and offering to deliver it up, which is one reason why at law a party cannot recover against the acceptor of a lost bill(b).

There is, however, a material difference between the liability of the acceptor of a bill and maker of a note, and that of the drawer and indorsers:

(a) 1 Pardess. 425, 426. (b) Per Lord Tenterden, in Hansard v. Robinson, 7 Bar. & C. 90; 9 Dow. & Ry. 860, (Chit. j. 1340); ante, 226, note (a); and see argument in Wegersloffe v. Keene, 1 Stra. 222, (Chit. j. 244), post. But see Rumball v. Ball, 10 Mod. 38, (Chit. j. 231); post, 359, 360.

^{(1) \(\}text{A condition precedent to the liability of the indorser, but not to the liability of the maker or acceptor. Thus, in an action by the payee of a bill of exchange against the acceptor, where the bill is drawn payable at a particular place, it is not necessary for the plaintiff to aver or prove a demand of payment at the time and place appointed; but the defendant, if he means to avail himself of the want of such demand must plead that he was ready at the time and place appointed to pay, but the plaintiff did not come there, &c.; which defence goes only to damages and costs, but not to the cause of action. Wolcott v. Van Soutwood, 17 John. 248; Caldwell v. Cassidy, 8 Cowen, 271; Bond v. Storrs, 13 Conn. Rep. 412; Eldred v. Hawes, 4 id. 465; Conn v. Gano, 1 Ham. 486; United States v. Smith, 11 Wheat. 171; Wallace v. McConnell, 13 Peters, 136. But see Hamier et al. v. Johnson, 15 Louis. Rep. 242; Mellen v. Crogban, 8 Martins Rep. (N. S.) 423 contra Martins Rep. (N. S.) 423, contra. >

I. Of Pre- for with respect to the first, though some presentment before action brought may be essential, he is not discharged by any delay short of the Statute of Limitations(c). Whereas, with respect to the drawer and indorsers of a bill, or indorsers of a note, they are discharged from all liability, unless the

1st. When bill or note be properly presented on the very day it ought to be.

[*354] It would be extremely prejudicial to commerce, if the holder of a bill or note were suffered to give longer credit to the drawee than the *instrument directs, and afterwards, in default of payment by the drawee, to resort to the drawer or indorsers, at a time when perhaps the accounts between them and the persons liable to them may have been adjusted, or those persons may have become insolvent(d); and the common law detests negligence and laches(e). On this principle, it is settled, that the holder must present a bill, check, or note, to the drawee of the former, or maker of the latter, for payment at the time when due, when a time of payment is specified; and, when no time is expressed, within a reasonable period after receipt of the bill(f); and that if he neglect to do so, he shall not afterwards be allowed to resort to the drawer or indorsers, whose implied contracts were only to pay in default of the drawee, when the bill is at maturity, and on condition of having due notice of the dishonour, and who are always presumed to have sustained damage by the holder's laches(g)(1). An acceptor supra protest,

(c) Dingwall v. Dunster, Dougl. 247, (Chit. j. 401; Anderson v. Cleveland, 1 Esp. Digest, 48, (Chit. j. 409); post, 360, note (x).
(d) Allen v. Dockwra, 1 Salk. 127, (Chit. j. 206); Collins v. Butler, Stra, 1807, (Chit. j. 489); Cowley v. Dunlop, 7 T. R. 581, 582, (Chit. j. 598).
(g) Heylyn v. Adamson, 2 Barr. 669, (Chit. j. 489); Cowley v. Dunlop, 7 T. R. 581, 582, (Chit. j. 598); Cooper v. Le Blanc, R. (e) Per curiam, in Chamberlyn v. Delarive, T. Hardw. 295, (Chit. j. 281); semb. contra-

But the want of a demand will be excused when the acceptor has absconded, or cannot be found. Putnam v. Sullivan, 4 Mass. Rep. 45. Widgery v. Monroe, 6 Mass. Rep. 449. Stewart v. Eden, 2 Caines' Rep. 121. \ Gillespie v. M'Hannahan, 4 M'Cord, 503. \} Gist r. Lyrand, Ohio Rep. Cond. 591. And such fact may be given in evidence under the common averment that the note was duly presented, and refused payment. Stewart v. Eden, 2 Caines' Rep. 121. Saunderson v. Judge, 2 H. Bl. 510, contra. Blakely v. Grant, 6 Mass. Rep. 386. But an averment in such case that the holder had used due diligence, but could not find the acceptor, would seem to be more correct. Blakely v. Grant.

So where the maker is a seaman, without any domicil in the State, who goes on a voyage about the time the note falls due, no demand on him is necessary to charge the indorser. Barrett r. Wills, 4 Leigh's Rep. 114.

But where the maker is absent on a voyage at sea, having a domicil within the state, payment must be demanded there. Dennie v. Walker, 7 N. Hamp. 199.

Note. If a notary go to the maker's house to demand payment, and find it shut up, and that he is out of town, this is a sufficient demand. Ogden v. Cowley, 2 John. Rep. 270. Analogous to this is the decision in the case of Williams v. Bank of the U. S., 2 Peters, 100. See Galpin v. Hard, 3 M'Cord, 394.

Not only must a demand be made upon the drawee, but it must be made within a reasonable time, otherwise the drawer will be discharged, especially if prejudiced by the neglect. Therefore where a creditor received an order from his debtor on a third person, on the 9th of December, which the drawee agreed to pay in ten or fifteen days, and the order was not presented un-

⁽¹⁾ The drawer of a bill, and the indorser of a note, are responsible only after a default of the acceptor or maker; and the holder must first demand payment of him, or use due diligence to demand it before he can resort to the drawer or indorser. Munroe v. Easton, 2 John. Cas. 75. Berry v. Robinson, 9 John. Rep. 121. Griffin v. Goff, 12 John. Rep. 423. May v. Coffin, 4 Mass. Rep. 341. Aubin v. Lazarus, 2 M'Cord, 134. Butler v. Denham, Id. 350. And if an indorser of a bill on its becoming due pay the amount to the indorsee, the latter never having demanded payment of the acceptor, he cannot recover the amount from the drawer. Munroe v. Easton, 2 John. Cas. 75. It is no excuse for not demanding payment of the drawer, that the drawer has no funds in the hands of the drawee. Cruger v. Armstrong, 3 John. Cas. 5. Notice to an indorser prior to a demand upon the acceptor of a bill, or maker of a note, is a mere nullity. Jackson v. Richards, 2 Caines' Rep. 343. Griffin v. Goff. And in respect to the necessity of a demand, there is no difference whether the note or bill be indorsed before, or after, it became due. Berry v. Robinson. Course & M'Farlane v. Shackleford, 2 Nott & M'Cord, 293. Poole v. Tolleson, 1 M'Cord, 199. Stockman v. Riley, 2 M'Cord, 398.

21.15

. .

. . .

j- 11.

. . .

18

12.721

(1)

Jan. Car

. .

1 Vic. 3 1.5 4

2 Medius 1 121 14 2 Medius 2 Medius 2 Medius 2 Medius 2 Medius 2 Medius 2 Medius 2 Medius 2 Medius 2 Medius 3 M

No. 118.25

... ø Vi de de it is

· - \Z

we have seen, is also within this rule(h). And whenever it is incumbent on 1. Of Prothe holder to present a bill or note for payment at a precise time, and he sentment neglect to do so, he will lose his remedy as well upon the bill, as upon the ment. consideration or debt in respect of which it was given or transferred(i). appears that a distinction was formerly taken between a bill of exchange given in payment of a precedent debt, and one given for a debt contracted at the time the bill was given; in the latter case, it was always holden, that the person who received it must have used due diligence to obtain the money from the drawee, and that in default of his so doing, he could not support any action against the party from whom he received it; but, in the former case, the bill was not considered as payment, unless the money were actually paid by the drawee, although the holder might have neglected to present it for payment, or to give notice of non-payment: and the holder, though he could not sue on the bill, might maintain an action for the consideration on which it was This distinction, founded it is presumed, on the principle that a

(h) Ante, 347, 348. (i) Camidge v. Allenby, 6 Bar. & C. 373;

9 Dow. & Ry. 391, (Chit. j. 1319); Bridges v. Berry, 3 Taunt. 130, (Chit. j. 804); post, Ch. X. s. i. When Notice of Non-payment necessary. In general, the consequences of laches there laid down are applicable to a neglect duly to present for payment.

(k) Clerk v. Mundall, 12 Mod. 203; 1 Salk. 124, (Chit. j. 181, 206); Anon. 12 Mod. 408, (Chit. j. 215); Anon. Holt, 299, (Chit. j. 214); Trials per Pais, 499; Kyd. 171.

til the March following, or afterwards, when the drawee had become insolvent, and the drawer was held discharged. Brower v. Jones, 3 John. Rep. 230; and see Cruger v. Armstrong, 3 John. Cas. 5, and Conroy v. Warren, 3 John. Cas. 259. Stothart v. Lewis, Overt. Rep. 215. If at the time of the note's falling due, the holder is at a place distant from the place of abode of the maker, a reasonable time will be allowed to make the demand. Thus, where at the maturity of the bill, the holder was at 200 miles distance from the maker's place of abode, a demand six days after was held to be within reasonable time: but a demand thirty days after was held unreasonable. Freeman v. Boynton, 7 Mass. Rep. 483.

In order to make a demand good, it is necessary that the party making it should have a written or verbal authority from the holder; and should have with him the note itself, for the debtor has a right, upon payment, to receive and cancel it. \ But see Gallagher v. Roberts, 2 Farif. 489, where it was held that a demand upon the maker by the cashier of the bank in which the note was left for collection was sufficient, although he had not the note with him-all the parties residing in the town where the bank was situated. \ Freeman r. Boynton. Eastman r. Potter, 4 Vermont Rep. 313. \ Farmer's Bank v. Duvall, 7 Gill & John. 78. \ If the maker of a note be alive at the time of its fulling duc, his insolvency does not absolve the holder from showing that he has used due diligence to obtain the amount due. Clair v. Barr, 2 Marsh, 256.

In an action upon a guaranty of the solvency of the maker of a note, indorsed on the back thereof, a demand of the maker, and notice of non-payment to the guarantor, are not necessary to charge the guarantor, the promise is absolute. Bell v. Johnson & al., 4 Yerger's Rep. 194.

Bayley v. Hazard, 3 Idem, 487; Foster v. Barney, 3 Verm. 60.

Where a bill of exchange indorsed in blank by the payees, but made payable to a particular person by the last indorsement, was presented to the drawee for payment, by the last indorser, who was in possession of the bill bona fide, the charge wes held sufficient to charge the preceding indorsers. Bachelor v. Priest, 12 Pick. Rep. 399.

Though the payee of a promiseour note indorsed it merely to give it corrency knowing at the

Though the payee of a promissory note indorsed it merely to give it currency, knowing at the same time, the insolvency of the maker, this, it seems, does not excuse the want of a demand, and notice to the indorser. Groton r. Dalhiem, 6 Greenleaf's Rep. 476.

To support an action against the drawers of a bill of exchange, dishonoured by the drawers, but accepted by third persons supra protest for the honor of the drawers, payment must be demanded of the drawess, and notice of non-payment given. Scofield v. Bayard, 3 Wend. Rep.

A. being indebted to B., passed to the latter in payment, the note of C., payable to A., or bearer, at a future day, and indersed by A. Before the note became due, C. failed, and thereupon A. told B., he should have no trouble about it, and that the note should be paid. It was held, that B. might maintain an action against A. upon the note, as upon an order not accepted, without showing that payment had been demanded of C. Whitney r. Abbott, 5 N. Hamp. Rep.

And see Elting v. Shook, 2 Hall, 459. Tickner v. Roberts, 11 Curry's Louis. Rep. 14. And when there is no proof of a demand, the court cannot presume one. The onus probandi lies on the plaintiff. Ibid. >

sentment for Payment.

I. Of Pre- bill delivered in consideration of a precedent debt could only be understood as a collateral security, which the assignee might waive, does not any longer exist; and in all cases a regular presentment must be made, or the parties will be discharged(1).

1st, When necessary.

It has been holden that even the known bankruptcy(m) or *insolvennecessary. (n)(1) of the acceptor of a bill, or maker of a note, however notorious, will not excuse the neglect to make due presentment, or to give due notice of the disbonour. And although the drawee of a bill, or maker of a note, being bankers, may have shut up and abandoned their shop, yet a presentment there, or to them in person, must be made; and it will not suffice to allege in a declaration, or to prove, that they became insolvent, and ceased and wholly declined and refused to pay at their bank any notes then payable(p).

> (1) Ante, 825, 326. Bul. Ni. Pri. 182; Smith v. Wilson, Andr. 187, (Chit. j. 285, 236). It seems to have been apprehended (Kyd, 172), that the statute 3 & 4 Anne, c. 9, s. 7, put an end to this distinction; but the clause referred to in support of that opinion relates only to such bills as are alluded to in the 4th section of the act, namely, bills made payable after date, and expressed to have been given for value received; and the 7th clause also takes away the cumulative remedy given by the 9 & 10 Will. 3, c. 17, and 3 & 4 Ann. c. 9. It is therefore probable that this alteration is rather to be ascribed to the change of opinion in our courts of justice. In Camidge v. Allenby, 6 Bar. & C. 378, post, 356, note (s), however, Mr. Justice Bayley appears to have adverted to the same distinction.

(m) Russell v. Langstaffe, Dougl. 515, (Chit. j. 415). Per Lord Mansfield, "because many means may remain of obtaining payment by the assistance of friends or otherwise;" and per Lord Ellenborough, in Warrington v. Furbor, 8 East, 245, (Chit. j. 733); and see ante, 338; and per Eyre, C. J. in Nicholson r. Gouthit, 2 Hen. Bla. 609, (Chit. j. 556). "It sounds harsh that a known bankruptcy should not be equivalent to a demand or notice, but the rule is too strong to be dispensed with." And see Ex parte Johnston, 1 Mont. & Ayr. 622; 3 Dea. & Chit. 438, S. C. As to how notice of dishonour should be given in case of bankrupt. cy of the drawer or indorser, see ante, 339, and post, Ch. X. s. i.

(n) Per Lord Ellenborough, in Esdaile v. Sowerby, 11 East, 117, (Chit. j. 767; Bowes v. Howe, 5 Taunt. 30; 16 East, 115, S. C.; infra, Ex parte Bignold, 2 Mont. & Ayr. 683; 1 Dea. 712, S. C. In the latter case an offer of composition by the acceptor, not acceded to, accompanied with a declaration, in the presence of the drawer and holder, that he, the acceptor, had not and should not provide for the bill, was held not sufficient to dispense with presentment and notice of dishonour.

(p) Howe v. Bowes and others, 16 East, 112; 1 Maule & S. 555, (Chit. j. 864, 892). Judgment of K. B. reversed on error in Exchequer Chamber, 5 Taunt. 30. The plaintiff declared as holder of a promissory note, made by defendants on 2d January, 1809, at the Workington Bank, Cumberland, whereby defendants promised on demand to pay R. W. or bearer there, five guineas, value received. The declaration averred, that after the making of the note the defendants became insolvent, and then and from thenceforth, until and at the time of exhibiting of the bill aforesaid, ceased and wholly declined and refused to pay at the Workington Bank aforesaid the sum or sums of money specified in any note or notes issued by them from such bank. Ld. Ellenborough, C. J. observed, "that the mere allegation of issolvency, as an excuse for not presenting the notes for payment at the place, would be impertinent; but, in this case, the allegation, the truth of which, as reported by the learned judge, was left to the jury, and found by them, went far-ther, that the defendants had ceased and wholly declined and refused payment of any of their notes at the place. How then can the question arise? The shutting up of the house might be considered as a refusal to pay the notes there; and as it is not disputed that the banking shop was shut up, and that any demand of payment which could have been made there would have been wholly inaudible, that is substantially a refusal to pay their notes to all the world." But afterwards, upon a writ of error in the Exchequer Chamber, the judgment of the K. B. was overruled; and Macdonald, C. B. said, "This is extremely simple; it depends entirely on the force and effect of an allegation in the declaration, which, it is said, dispenses with the necessity of presenting the notes in question. It is clear that a demand at the place is necessary, unless it is dispensed with. The question then is, whether this allegation that the plain-tiffs in error ceased and wholly declined and refused to pay at the Workington Bank any notes issued by them from such bank, carries the matter further than a mere allegation of insolvency; and as it is not alleged that this declaration, that they would pay none of their notes, was made to the plaintiff below, it is merely this, that they generally declared they neither could nor would pay any of their notes; this allegation does not appear to the judges to be

⁽¹⁾ Atwood v. Haseldon, 2 Bai. 457; Johnson v. Hartle, 1 Idem, 482; Holland v. Turner, 10 Con. 308; Jervey v. Wilber, 1 Bai. 458. Contra. Clark v. Minton's Adm'x., 2 Brev. 185. }

. x 150 A 1411 5 327

1 X 1 X 2

14730-

TR. 37

V. 12

 وميهز 1)..

130 1985

. 17 july

. -M- 10 1

्राज्य स्टा

(چيوا شطات

 $\mathbf{L}^{\mathrm{cut}}_{\mathrm{lat}}$ gr y 🗷

w.28 80 11 C 06. M 57

, Úrez 🕏

. 17 43.F#

(e. s. 245 188

الما الما الما المعجدا الر

M PERMI

: Will 25

A THE REAL PROPERTY.

1 🏂 يبو ال

; Mexical

MI JERUSA

ye 11 7 28

X MA A

LI X KES

. y w.

18

... ye

(و: پير

MA METER

Bar 5

الوعزز

At least, in case of a bankruptcy, or general stoppage of country bankers, I. Of Prea notice thereof, if a formal presentment be not made, must be immediately sentment for Paygiven to the parties who transferred their notes (q); and even where such ment. country notes have been transferred, after the maker has actually stopped payment, by a party ignorant of that fact, they must be presented for pay-necessary. ment in due time, and due notice of the dishonour given (r); and therefore where a party received in payment for goods sold a country bank note, after the bank had stopped payment, but of which neither he nor the person from whom he received it was then aware, he must, nevertheless, present it for payment, or put it in a course of negotiation on the day after he received it, and give due notice of the dishonour, or he will lose all remedy against the party *from whom he received it(s). But it should seem, that if in due [*356] sufficient to enable the plaintiff below to maintain his action, therefore judgment must be for the plaintiffs in error." And see Camidge v. Allenby, 6 B. & Cres. 373, post, 856, note (s); and Henderson v. Appleton, post, 356, note (t).

(q) Camidge v. Allenby, 6 B. & C. 373; 9 Dow. & Ry. 391, (Chit. j. 1319); post, 356, note (s).

(r) Id ibid.

(s) Camidge v. Allenby, 6 B. & C. 373; 9 Dow. & Ry. 891, (Chit. j. 1819). In an action for the price of goods, it appeared that the same were sold at York on Saturday, the 10th of December, 1825, and on the same day, at three o'clock in the afternoon, the vendee delivered to the vendor, as and for the payment of the price, certain promissory notes of the bank of D. and Co. at Huddersfield, payable on demand to bearer. D. and Co. stopped payment on the same day at eleven o'clock in the morning, and never afterwards resumed their payments; but neither of the parties knew of the stoppage, or of the insolvency of D. and Co. The vendor never circulated the notes, or presented them to the bankers for payment; but on Saturday, the 17th December, he required the vendee to take back the notes, and to pay him the amount, which the latter refused. Held, under these circumstances, that the vendor of the goods was guilty of laches, and had thereby made the notes his own; and, consequently, that they operated as a satisfaction of the debt.

Per Bayley, J. "I think that the defendant, in this case, is entitled to the judgment of the court. One short observation disposes of Warrington v. Furbor, 8 East, 242; and Swinyard v. Bowes, 5 Maule & S. 62; the authorities cited to shew that it was not necessary in this case to prove presentment for payment. those cases the person insisting on the want of presentment was not a party to the bill; but here the defendant was a party to the notes; for they were payable to the bearer on demand, and he was the holder of them: and when such notes are passed from hand to hand, the person taking them must trace his right through the former holder. If the notes had been given to the plaintiff at the time when the corn was sold, he could have had no remedy upon them against the defendant. The plaintiff might have insisted upon payment in money. But if he consented to receive the notes as money, they would have been taken by him at his peril. If indeed he could show fraud or knowledge of the maker's insolvency in the payer, then it would be wholly immaterial, whether they were taken at the time of sale or afterwards. Here the notes were given to him in payment subsequent-ly, and the question is, whether they operate as a discharge of the debt due to the plaintiff in respect of the corn. The rule as to all negotiable instruments is, that if they are taken in payment of a pre-existing debt, they operate as a discharge of that debt, unless the party who holds the instrument does all that the law requires to be done, in order to obtain payment of them. Then the question is, what it was the duty of the plaintiff to do in order to obtain payment of these notes? They were intended for circulation. But I think that he was not bound immediately to circulate them, or to send them into the bank for payment, but he was bound, within a reasonable time after he had received them, either to circulate them or to present them for payment. Now here it is conceded, that if there had not been any insolvency of the bankers, the notes should have been circulated or presented for payment on the Monday. It is clear that the plaintiff on that day might have had knowledge that the bankers had stopped payment, and having that knowledge, if presentment was unnecessary, he had then another duty to perform. In consequence of the negotiable nature of the instruments, it became his duty to give notice to the party who paid him the notes, that the bankers had become insolvent, and that he the plaintiff would resort to the defendant for payment of the notes; and it would then have been for the defendant to consider whether he could transfer the loss to any other person; for, unless he had been guilty of negligence, he might perhaps have resorted to the person who paid him the notes. That party would, however, be discharged if he received no notice of non-payment, or of the insolvency of the bankers till a week after he had paid them to the defendant. The neglect, therefore, on the part of the plaintiff to give to the defendant notice of the insolvency of the bankers, may have been prejudicial to the The law requires that the party, defendant. on whom the loss is to be thrown, should have notice of non-payment, in order to enable him to exercise his judgment whether he will take legal measures against other parties to the bill or note. Now here, if the notes had been returned on the Tucsday to the defendant, he might have taken steps against the bankers;

ar. I

Ebe

943 6

16

地田

1111

Σ,

117

n:i

4.04

33.33

: 12

7,

703

21:3

..!

7....

1

1

3 7

31

÷.

2. 4

15

sentment for Payment.

I. Of Pre- time the party receiving such notes, on hearing of the stoppage of the bank, should offer to return them, the necessity for presenting them would be thereby dispensed with (t).

1st, When necessary. [*357]

*So the death of the drawee of a bill, or maker of a note, will not excuse the neglect to make due presentment to his personal representative, whether executor or administrator, and if there be neither, then at the house of the deceased(u)(1).

and he had a right to exercise his judgment whether he would do so or not, although they had stopped, or he might have had a remedy against the person who had paid him the notes. It may be hard, in some cases, that the entire loss should fall upon any one individual, but it is a general rule applicable to negotiable instruments, and not to be relaxed in particular instances, that the holder of such an instrument is to present promptly, or to communicate without delay notice of non-payment, or of the insolvency of the acceptor of a bill, or the maker of a note; for a party is not only entitled to knowledge of insolvency, but to notice, that in consequence of such insolvency he will be called upon to pay the amount of the bill or note. The case of Beccling v. Gower, Holt, C. N. P. 815, is an answer to the whole of the argument for the plaintiff, founded upon the fact, that the notes were paid away after the bank had stopped. For these reasons, I am of opinion that the plaintiff is not entitled to recover, and that a judgment of nonsuit ought to be entered." (t) Henderson v. Appleton, tried in the Court of Pleas, at Durham. Upon a motion for a new trial, argued before Bayley, J. and Hullock, J. at Chambers, Serjeants' Inn, 23d July, 1827. Assumpsit for goods sold. Plaintiff sold goods to defendant at Dellington market, on Monday, 12th December, and on account of the alarm respecting bankers, it was agreed that the payment should not be made till the Monday following, the 19th December, when the parties again met at Dellington market, and defendant offered several country notes, and offered plaintiff the choice, and he selected and took two 5l. notes of Hutchinson's Stockton Bank, and in the evening went home to Husworth. By the course of the post, the notes could not have been presented at the bank at Stockton till Wednesday, the 21st December. It was proved that the bank paid all day on Saturday, the 17th December, but did not pay on Monday or afterwards, and refused to pay any notes after Saturday. On Wednesday, the 21st, the plaintiff met the defendant at Stockton, and offered to return or exchange the same with the defendant, but he refused, saying, that the bank was going (meaning paying) on Tuesday. Verdict for plaintiff. Cresswell, for the defendant, on motion for a new trial, contended that Howe and Bowes, 5 Taunt 30, ante, 355, note (p), establishes the obligation in all cases to present for payment, and referred to Camidge and Allenby, 6 Bar. & Cres. 382, ante, 356, note (s), in which it was held, that though the defendant delivered the notes to the plaintiff after the bank stopped payment, yet, inasmuch as the plaintiff kept the notes a week, after knowledge of the failure of the bank, without offering them to the defendant, or giving him notice, he had made the notes his own; and Cresswell relied also on the words of the statute of Anne, and on the general rule requiring the due presentment of a bill, although the acceptor has notoriously become bankrupt. Chitty, contra, relied on Howe and Bowes, 16 East, 112; Owenson and Morse, 7 T. R. 64, and Ex parte Blackburne, 10 Ves. 206; and insisted, that as the defendant had himself delivered the notes to the plaintiff at a time when the bank had already stopped payment, he had broken the implied warranty, that the notes, at the time of delivery to the plaintiff, were capable of producing the money, and that at least the defendant's subsequent conversation dispensed with the necessity for a formal presentment. Bay-ley, J. said, he believed the ground of the decision in Camidge and Allenby was, that the notes should be deemed a payment, unless returned in a reasonable time; and that the plaintiff, by keeping the notes a week after he heard of the stoppage, without notice to the defend-ant, had precluded himself from recovery; but that here the plaintiff had offered to return, and the defendant had refused to take back the note, and therefore plaintiff was entitled to recover; and Hullock, B. concurring, the rule for a new trial was discharged. Confirmed in Rogers v. Langford, 1 C. & M. 637. In that case it appeared, that on Wednesday the 23d November A. bought goods from B. which he paid for in country bank notes. On Monday the 28th B. requested A 's servant as a favour to exchange the notes for money, which he accordingly did. On the same day the bank stop-ped payment. A. heard of it on Tuesday, and on Wednesday wrote to B. informing him of the failure of the bank and desiring him to exchange the notes; but the notes were not produced or tendered to B. until long afterwards, nor were they ever presented at the bank. In an action brought by A. against B to recover the value of the notes it was held that A. was not entitled to recover. Per Bayley, B. "I think the notes ought to have been either presented by the holder to the bank for payment, or else to have been returned without delay to the defendant, so as to give him an opportunity of getting payment for them, or of making the best of them."

(u) Molloy, b. 2, c. 10, s. 34. If a bill be accepted, and the party die, yet there must be a demand made on his executors or administrators, and, in default of payment, a protest must be made. See post, Ch. X. s. i. To whom Notice of Dishonour to be given.

^{(1) {} Landry v. Stansbury, 10 Louis. Rep. 484. }

If the holder of a bill at the time it becomes due be dead, it is said that I. Of Prehis executor, although he have not proved the will, must present it to the sentment for Paydrawee(x). If the drawee has gone abroad, leaving an agent in England, ment. with power to accept bills, who accepts one for him, the bill when due must be presented to the agent for payment, if the drawee continue ab-1st, When sent(y). When a bill, transferable only by indorsement, is delivered to a person without being indorsed, he should nevertheless present the bill for payment to the acceptor, and offer an indemnity to him; and if the acceptor then refuse to pay, the bill should be protested for non-payment, and due notice given (z). If a bill, draft, or note, be given, which ought to be, but is not stamped, we have seen it is not necessary to present it for payment(a); but the *insufficiency of the bill, in other respects, will constitute no excuse [*358] for the non-presentment (b).

The delay, or omission, to make a presentment, may, however, as far as respects the drawer's liability, be excused by the drawer's not having had any right to draw; as where the drawee had not any effects of the drawer in his hands from the time of drawing the bill to the time when it became due(c) (1). And where a bill drawn on Leghorn was not presented in due time, owing to the political state of the country at that time, which rendered it impossible to present it, it was holden, that it being afterwards presented for payment as soon as practicable, and refused, the holder might recover, and evidence of this impossibility of presenting the bill at the time of maturity might be given, under the usual averment that the bill was duly presented (d).

And if a bill be taken under an extent, before it is due, and the party holding it on behalf of the crown neglect to present it for payment in due time, the drawer and indorsers will continue liable, because no laches are imputable to the crown(e).

So the consequences of the neglect to present may be waived by a payment of part(f), or by a promise to pay made after full notice of the default(g), and indeed by the same circumstances, which will do away the effect of a neglect to present for acceptance, or to give notice of the refusal(h)(2) or (x) Poth. pl. 146; Molloy, b. 2, c. 10, pl. 24; Mar. 134, 135.

(y) Phillips v. Astling, 2 Taunt. 206, (Chit.

(z) Supra, note (x).

(a) Anle, 124, note (x). b) Chamberlyn v. Delarive, 2 Wils. 353, (Chit. j. 377), sed quære.

(c) De Berdt v. Atkinson, 2 II. Bla. 336; ante, 273; and post, Ch. X. s. i.; Terry v. Parker, 1 Nev. & Perry, 752; 6 Ad. & El.

(d) Patience v. Townley, 2 Smith's Rep. 223, 224, (Chit. j. 714).

(e) West on Extents, 1st edit. 29, 30.

(f) Vaughan v. Fuller, Stra. 1246. (Chit. j. 318); Taylor v. Jones, 2 Campb. 106, (Chit. j. 771); Lundie v. Robertson, 7 East, 231, (Chit. j. 724); Haddock v. Bury, 7 East, 236, note; Hodge v. Fillis, 3 Campb. 464, (Chit. j. 900); Hopley v. Dufresne, 15 East, 275, (Ch. j. 856), accord.; but see Brown v. M'Dermont, 5 Esp. R. 265, (Chit. j. 721); Hill v. Heap, Dowl. & Ry. N. P. C. 57; infra.

(g) Ante, 273, 278, 843; Hopes v. Alder, 6 East, 16; and see post, Ch. X. s. i. Notice of Non-payment.

(h) Ante, 313.

(1) { Terry v. Parker, 1 Nev. & Per. 752. But where a note is signed by one person as principal and others as sureties, it is not a sufficient excuse to show that the sureties had no funds in the place of payment; for it was the duty of the maker of the note, and not them, to provide funds for the payment. Fort v. Cortes, 14 Louis Rep. 180.

A note payable at the plaintiff's residence need not be formally presented for payment; especially when it is shown the defendant had no funds there. Marvin v. Perot, 16 Louis. Rep.

(2) An indorsement of a note in these words: "I indorse the within note to J. R. unconditionally" does not dispense with demand and notice. Dowd v. Aaron, 2 Hill, 531.

An agreement by an indorser to dispense with demand and notice must be express and unequivocal; nor will an express promise to do so, made to a third person, though with a knowledge of the maker's insolvency, bind the indorser. Jervey v. Wilbur, 1 Bai. 453. A special indorse-

iii. I

we l die

501 te d

186

MrC. x_{i-1}

XI.I

Mil : 20

> * , gr - r

130

127

12 y

13/2

×:-

110

17.2

4:1 174

ולפי י

7.

łbi.

3

21%

Ko :

A MENS PATE

X()

: 54; | $7;

i _{jen}

1

18.1

1 14.1

Ł,

1. Of Pre- to give notice of the refusal to pay(i)(1); for it is presumed that the defendant would not pay a part, or promise to pay the whole unless all the circumfor Payment.

(i) Post, Ch. X. s. i.

1st, When necessary.

ment of a note before due, in which payment is guaranteed, and no stipulation made for due dili-gence, does not dispense with the necessity of demand and notice. Barrett v. May, 2 Bai. 1.

Proof of demand and notice of non-payment may be dispensed with by the conduct, declarations, and promises of the indorser, made under a full knowledge of the fact that he is discharged, from his legal liability by the laches of the holder: but such promises must be unconditional. Barkalow r. Johnson, I Harrison, 397. Nothing short of an unconditional promise to pay, made with a full knowledge of the laches of the holder is sufficient. A knowledge that the maker could not pay does not dispense with strict proof of demand and notice. Sussex Bank v. Baldwin, 2 id. 487. An assignment of property by the maker of a promissory note not due, to a trustee, in trust to indemnify the indorser against his liabilities for the maker, does not dispense with demand and notice. Creamer r. Perry, 17 Pick. 332. So where the indorser of a note, who had received no notice of non-payment, upon being asked what would be done about the note, replied "the note will be paid," it was held that this was not equivalent to a waiver of notice, and did not render the indorser liable, as upon a renewed promise. Ibid.

The holder of an endorsed bank check is entitled to recover against the endorser, on a promise to pay made after maturity, without direct proof of demand and notice; and the admission of the endorser that he knows the check has been dishonoured, that he has received part of the money for which it was given, and his promise to take up and pay the check, is presumptive evidence of demand and notice proper to be submitted to a jury. Tebbetts v. Dowd, 23 Wend. 379. \
(1) The prevalence of a contagious malignant fever in the place of residence of the parties, which occasioned a stoppage of all business, has been held to be a sufficient excuse for not giving notice until November, of a protest for non-payment made in the preceding September. Tunno v. Lague, 2 John. Cas. 1.

Payment of part of a check by the drawee after it becomes due, dispenses with the necessity of proving a demand on the bank, in a suit against him. Levy v. Peters, 9 Serg. & Rawle, 125. And so it seems would a part payment before the check became due. Ibid. But the plaintiff cannot by voluntarily giving credit for part payment, evade the necessity of proving a demand on the drawee, if the defendant disclaims such credit, and insists on the want of a demand. But if the defendant acquiesces in such credit, and insists that the whole has been paid, and relics on length of time and other circumstances to discharge him, he thereby admits a part payment. Ibid.

The indorser of a note waives the notice to which he is entitled, by promising payment when notice of non-payment is given him at an earlier hour of the day than the law requires. Seely

v. Bisbee, 2 Vermont Rep. 105.

A partial indemnity given by the maker to the accommodation indorser of a note, to secure said indorser in part, against his liability, &c. does not excuse the holder from making due demand, and giving notice to such indorser. Brunson v. Napier, 1 Yerger's Rep. 199.

A new promise waives the want of regular demand and notice. Ladd r. Kenney, 2 New Hamp. Rep. 340.

In an action by the indorsee against the indorser of a promissory note, the plaintiff must show, that he has used due diligence to find the maker, and to demand payment of him, although informed by the inderser when he received the note, that the maker was a transient person without any known place of abode. Otis v. Hussey, 3 Id. 346.

And a promise to pay, made by the indorser, will not be a waiver of the consequences of a want of demand in such a case, unless it be shown affirmatively, that the indorser knew that no demand had been made, when he made the promise. Ibid.

A stipulation by the indorser of a note to waive notice of demand of payment, does not dispense with the demand itself. Backus v. Shiperd, 11 Wend. Rep. 629.

Where, however, the payee transfers a negotiable note, and at the same time guarantees its payment if not collected of the maker by due course of law, and also waives notice of demand; demand, as well as notice, is waived. Ib.

Whether certain facts in reference to an alleged notice to the indorser, and demand of payment of a promissory note by the drawer, amounted to a waiver of the objection to the want of demand and notice, is a question of fact, and not matter of law, for the consideration of the jury. Union Bank v. Magruder, 7 Peters' Rep. 287.

Where I. an indorser of a protested bill, after having had sufficient opportunity to ascertain the circumstances of the presentment, protest and notice, promised M., a subsequent indorser, who had taken up the bill, to repay him, and afterwards received the bill from M., proved it in his own name against the estate of the drawees who had failed, and received a dividend upon it, and retained the bill; it was held, that I. was liable on his promise to repay M., unless he could prove that his promise was made under a mistake of the facts. Martin v. Ingersol, 8 Pick. Rep. 1.

A bill of exchange is drawn by a creditor on his debtor payable sixty days after date; the drawec being advised thereof, before acceptance, writes to the drawer, that he will be unable to pay the bill at its maturity; whereupon the drawer, by letter to the drawer, authorizes him, stances had occurred to render him liable; and that if they had, he waived I. Of Pre-all objection to the laches of the holder (k).

But the circumstance of the drawer having had notice before the bill be-ment. comes due, that it will probably not be paid, and promising the holder that he will endeavour to provide effects, and see him again, will not excuse the 1st, When neglect to present the bill for payment to the drawee on the day the bill is due(l), though it might excuse the want of notice of dishonour(m). therefore, where in an action against the drawers of a bill, there was no proof of presentment for payment or of notice of non-payment; but it appeared that the defendants had given orders to the drawee not to pay the bill if presented, and that *these orders had been communicated to the plaintiff, it [*359] is reported to have been decided, that the defendants' order to the drawee not to pay the bill if presented, amounted to a dispensation of the notice of

(k) See post, Ch. X. s. i. Notice of Non-

(1) Prideaux v. Collier, 2 Stark. Rep. 57, (Chit, j. 989). This was an action by the plaintiff as the indorsee of a bill of exchange, dated March 20th, 1816, drawn by the defendant upon Wood and Co. payable to his own order, and indorsed by him to the plaintiff. Upon the 22d of May, the day before the bill became due, application was made by the plaintiff to Wood and Co. and the answer was, that Collier had no effects in their hands; but the Clerk of Wood and Co. remarked, that the bill would not be due until the next day, and that it was probable that Collier would be in before that time, and provide effects. On the next day, the 23d, when the bill became due, the defendant said to the plaintiff, that he understood that he, the plaintiff, was the holder of the bill, which he hoped would be paid; that he would see what he could do, and would endeavour to provide effects, and would see him again. The bill was not presented to the drawees on the 23d, but was presented on the 24th. Lord Elleuborough held, that this did not supersede the necessity of a presentment on the day. See Phipson v. Kneller, 4 Campb. 285, (Chit. j. 946); Hill v. Heap, Dowl. & Ry. N. P. C. 57. (m) Id.

when the bill approaches maturity, to redraw on himself, in order to raise funds to honor the bill; the drawer redraws accordingly, and then the drawer refuses to accept his bill, but no credit is given, by the holder or any other person, to the drawee, on the faith of the drawer's authority to him so to redraw: Held, the drawer has not, by this authority to the drawee to redraw, waived notice of dishonor of his own bill, nor do the facts constitute any excuse for neglect to give such notice, nor is there any assumpsit to the holder, but only a promise to the drawee, which being without consideration is not binding. Brown et al. v. Ferguson, 4 Leigh's Rep. 87.

To show a waiver of demand and notice by an indorser, clear and unequivocal evidence is required of such waiver. Gregory v. Allen, 1 Martin & Yerg. 74.

Where the drawer of a check is informed that a demand was made and payment refused, a romine to arrange it, is not a waiver of the demand, if in fact none were made. Brown v. Lusk, 4 Yerg. 215.

A full indemnity given by the maker to the indorser to secure him against his liability as indorser, or, a promise to pay by the indorser with a knowledge that no demand was made, will, is either case, dispense with demand and notice. Durham r. Rice, 300.

A promise by the drawer of a bill of exchange, after due, to make an arrangement satisfactory to the holder, will not subject him to the payment of the bill, where there is no evidence of demand upon the drawee, or notice to the drawer, or knowledge on his part that notice had not been given. Jones et al. v. Savage, 6 Wend. Rep. 658.

Nor is the fact of the drawer including the demand of the bolder in an account of his creditors, on an application for an insolvent's discharge, sufficient to charge him, where it is not shown that at the time of making such account he knew that the necessary steps to charge him as drawer had not been taken. Ib.

Where A. in payment of a debt, indorsed to B. the note of C., and by the indorsement "waived demand and notice:" Held, that although C. was solvent and remained so falcen months after the indorsement, and before which period no suit was brought against him, still the indorser A. was liable. Johnston v. Searey & Marshall, 4 Yerg. 182.

Where an indorser, on being called on for the payment of a note, avowed himself legally exonerated from its payment, but declared that he did not wish to take advantage of such exoneration, and promised to pay the note, it was held, that the promise was valid, without further proof of the indorser's knowledge that he had not been regularly charged. Leonard v. Gary, 10 Wend.

If, after the dishonor of a note, the indorser promise to pay it, such promise is presumptive evidence of due demand and notice. Breed v. Hillhouse, 7 Conn. Rep. 523.

Digitized by Google

M. II.

gaz. d

0.1000

2,000

X42...

137063 wir

: Sesti (12271

2382

1. JE (

7411

--

351

Print

12.

21.

413 177

7 . 9-

÷ ::

130

9.4

 $: \S_1$

16. 7

X. >.

1 ta:

for Payment.

necessary.

1. Of Pre-dishonour, but that it formed no excuse for the non-presentment for payment(n)(1).

But we have seen, that if there has been a previous presentment for acceptance, and a refusal, duly notified to the drawer or indorsers, no subse-1st, When quent presentment for payment will be essential (o)(2). And if on notice of the dishonour, the drawer or indorser request the holder again to present the bill, no second presentment will be necessary, because on notice of the first dishonour, complete liability to pay attached (p).

> A delay in presentment, it is said, may, like a delay in giving notice, be excused by an accident not attributable to any fault of the holder(q): we will consider this, after examining the decisions relative to the time of presentment for payment.

If it be doubtful whether the holder of a bill is legally entitled to it, as where he has received it from a person who has become bankrupt, and the assignees insist that it was delivered to the holder by way of fraudulent preference, still he should present it duly for payment, and obtain the amount, which will not be deemed a conversion, but at most only subject him to an action for money had and received (r); and if it should be dishonoured, he should give notice thereof to all the parties to the bill.

Where the an Omission to present for payment.

We have next to consider in what cases the acceptor of a bill or maker of of a Bill or a note, may resist an action on account of the neglect of the holder to pre-Maker of a sent the instrument for payment (3). It is a general rule of law, that where there is a precedent debt or duty, the creditor need not allege or prove any demand of payment before the action brought, it being the duty of the debt-Account of or to find out his creditor, and tender him the money, and, as it is technically said, the bringing of the action is a sufficient request(s)(4). It might not, some mistake in that report.

> (n) Per Abbott, C. J., in Hill v. Heap, Dowl. N. P. C. 57; sed quære if there is not some mistake in that report.

(o) Price v. Dardell, ante, 342, note (t).

(p) Hickling v. Hardy, 7 Taunt. 512; 1

Moore, 61, (Chit. j. 983); ante, 274, n. (p).

(q) Post, Ch. X. s. i. Time of giving Notice of Non-payment.

(r) Jones v. Fort, 9 B. & C. 764; 4 Man.

& Ry. 547, (Chit. j. 1445); ante, 210, n. (c). And see Tennant v. Strachan, Mood. & M. 377;

4 C. & P. 31, (Chit. J. 1450).
(a) Birks v. Trippet, 1 Saund. 33; Carter v. Ring, 3 Campb. 459; Capp v. Lancaster, Cro. Eliz. 548; Co. Litt. 210 b. note 1; Com. Dig. tit. Condition, (G. 9); Cranley v. Hilary, 2 M. & Sel. 120, (Chit. j. 895).

(1) { A declaration by the indorser to a third person that he would pay the note without suit, is no waiver of demand and notice. Allwood v. Haseldon, 2 Bai. 457.

Where the maker of a promissory note has transferred to the indorser all his property, to indemnify him against loss for his liability, demand and notice of non-payment are excused. Duvall v. The Farmers' Bank of Maryland, 9 Gill. & John 31. }
(2) { The Exeter Bank v. Gordon, 8 N. Hamp. 66. }

 (2) { The Exeter Bank v. Gordon, 8 N. Hamp. 66. }
 (3) An order drawn by a debtor on a person having funds in his hands, is, after presentment to the drawee, an assignment of such funds to the extent of the order, and the drawee cannot afterwards legally part with such funds to the drawer or any other person. Peyton v. Hallett, 1 Cnines' Rep. 379. And where a bill is drawn upon special funds, the authority in the drawee to pay it is not revoked by the death of the drawer before presentment of the bill. And it seems that such a bill is to be deemed an assignment of such funds. Cutts v. Perkins, 12 Mass. Rep. 206. See Debesse v. Napier & Co., 1 M'Cord, 106.

(4) It has been held no bar to an action on a note payable at a day and place certain, that the holder was not present at the time and place to receive payment, and did not there demand payment. It was the duty of the debtor to be there ready to pay. Ruggles v. Patten, 8 Mass. Rep. 480. Bank of the U. S. v. Carneal, 2 Peters, 549. Caldwell v. Cassidy, 8 Cowen, 271. When payment of a note drawn payable at a particular place is demanded personally of the maker elsewhere, and no objection is made by him, it is sufficient to bind the maker. Herring v. Sanger, 3 John. Cas. 71. But see Woodbridge v. Brigham, 12 Mass. Rep. 403.

If a note be payable at a particular bank, no demand or attempt to demand payment of the maker is necessary to charge the indorser. It is sufficient if the holder of the note be at the bank on the prescribed day, ready to receive payment, if the maker be not there ready to make or our-11 20-n cotine

EART L

⊸ £ibe

. . . be

15 M ife-é¶!•

o it. 25

nd the nt pref•

100006

1 (0 80

ed. be ett of o br÷

n here

e anv debtnicalht not.

n. (c).

M. 377;

arter fi er, Cita

Dig

, 2 X.

1 48A,

ta iB-

Du-

neol

N al-

ett. 1

_{મ્સ} 10

گ∰ دد

Rop

ay lep. 11.

the ŗ.

the

perhaps, be unreasonable, if the law in all cases required presentment to the I- of Preacceptor of a bill, or maker of a note, before an action be commenced against seatment him, because otherwise he might, on account of the negotiable quality of the for Payment, and the consequent difficulty to find out the holder of it on the day of payment, in order to make a tender to him, be subjected to an action swithout any default whatever: and the engagement of the acceptor of a bill, or maker of a note, is to pay the money when due to the holder, who shall for that purpose make presentment(t). And one reason why a party cannot recover at law on a lost bill or note is, that the acceptor of the one and maker of the other, has a right to insist on having it delivered up to him on his paying it(u).

It seems, however, that in general the acceptor or maker of a note *cannot resist an action on account of neglect to present the instrument at the precise time when due, or of an indulgence to any of the other parties (x). And on the above-mentioned principle, that an action is of itself a sufficient demand of payment, it has been decided that the acceptor or maker of a note cannot set up as a defence the want of a presentment to him even before the commencement of the action, and although the instrument be payable on demand (y). But in such a case, upon an early application, the court would stay proceedings without $\cos(x)$.

Before the decision in the House of Lords in Rowe v. Young(a), there had been much discussion and difference of opinion in the courts upon the effect of a direction upon the bill or note, that the same shall be payable at a particular place, and whether the acceptor of the bill, or maker of the note, can resist an action on account of that direction not having been complied (t) See the argument in Wegersloffe v. Keene, 1 Stra. 222, (Chit. j. 244); Callaghan v. Aylett, 2 Campb. 549; 8 Taunt. 397, (Chit. j. 820, 822); Lancashire v. Killingworth, Ld. Raym. 687; Salk. 628; 12 Mod. 530; Com. Dig. Condition, (G. 9).

(u) Per Lord Tenterden, in Hansard v. Robinson, 7 B. & C. 90; 9 Dowl. & Ry. 860, (Chit. j. 1340); ante, 266, note (a).

(z) Dingwall v. Dunster, Dougl 247, (Chit. j. 401); Anderson v. Cleveland, I Esp. Digest, 59, 4th edit.

Anderson v. Cleveland, Sittings after Easter, 1779, 1 Esp. Digest, 58, 4th edit.; 13 East, 480, note, (Chit. j. 400). The indorsee of a bill of exchange brought an action against the acceptor, and it appeared that there was no demand of payment until three months after the bill became due, and the drawer was then insolvent; it was ruled by Lord Mansfield, that this was no defence, for the acceptor of a bill of exchange or maker of a promissory note remains always liable; acceptance is proof of having effects in his hands, and he ought never to part with them, unless it appear that the drawer had provided another fund by paying the bill himself.

(y) Rumball v. Ball, 10 Mod. 88, (Chit. j.

direction not having been complied

231); Frampton v. Coulson, 1 Wils. C. B. 38;
Capp v. Lancaster, Cro. Eliz. 543; Prac. Reg.
538; Reynolds v. Davies, 1 Bos. & Pul. 625,
(Chit j. 571); Turner v. Hayden, 4 B. & C.
3; 6 Dow. & Ry. 5; 1 R. & M. 215, (Chit. j.
1246); sed quære, the observations of Lord
Tenterden, in Hansard v. Robinson, 7 B. & C.
90; 9 Dow. & Ry. 860, (Chit. j. 1340); ante,
266, n. (a). It is certainly not necessary (excepting in the case of a bill accepted payable at a particular place, "and not otherwise or elsewhere," and of a note payable, in the body of it, at a particular place) for the plaintiff to aver or prove a presentinent, see Williams v. Waring, 10 B. & C. 2; 5 Man. & Ry.

(z) Mackintosh v. Haydon, Ryan & Moo. 863, (Chit. j. 1287); 2 Chit. R. 11; Tidd, 9th edit. 145.

9, (Chit. j. 1453); but semble, that if an acceptor of a negotiable bill or maker of a note, when defendant, should prove that he was always ready to pay if the bill or note had been presented; that ought to constitute a good de-

(a) Rowe r. Young, 2 Brod. & Bing. 165; ante, 292, 293; 2 Bligh, R. 391, (Chit. j. 1044).

it. And by the indorsement of such a note, the indorser guarantees that on the day of payment the maker would be at the bank and pay the note, and that if he did not pay it there, he would be answerable for the amount upon notice. Berkshire Bank v. Jones, 6 Mass. Rep. 524. Woodbridge v. Brigham. But see a report of this case, 13 Mass. Rep. 556. { Conn v. Gano, Ohio Rep. Cond. 210; M'Nairy v. Bell, 1 Yerg. 502; Bowie v. Duval, 1 Gill & John. 175; Eastman v. Fifield, 3 N. Hamp. 383; Haxtun v. Bishop, 3 Wend. 13. Contra, Shaw v. Reed, 12 Pick. 182; Ogden v. Dobbin, 2 Hall, 112. }

U II

A m

27.4

57, 2, 1

(.E.)

.

: 22.

x. ... 12-11

١.... :

-21

٠, ٠...

es.

431 .

7.

٠. ج

 \mathcal{X}_{i}

for Payment.

1st, When necessary.

I. Of Pre- with. Both the Courts of King's Bench and Common Pleas agreed, that where a particular place of payment was introduced into the body of a bill or note, and not as a mere memorandum at the foot of the instrument, whether the action were against the drawer or acceptor of the bill, or the maker or indorser of the note, the instrument must be presented at that particular place, and a demand be made there, in order to give the holder a cause of action(b). And that in such case, at least as respects a promissory note, [*361] *the presentment and demand must be alleged in the declaration(c). And where the stipulation at the bottom of a note, for payment at a particular place, was printed before the note was complete, it was held, in the King's Bench, that in such case a presentment there was necessary (d), though that distinction was afterwards overruled, and it was held, that though it was proved that the memorandum at the foot as to the place of payment was written before it was signed, still it constituted no part of the contract, and did not qualify it(e). So if the body of the bill, or the address at the foot > (b) Sanderson v. Bowes, 14 East, 500 infra; Dickenson v. Bowes, 16 East, 110, (Chit. j. 863); Roche v. Campbell, 3 Campb. 247, (Chit. j. 870); Trecothick v. Edwin, 1 Stark. Rep. 468, (Chit. j. 979); but see Nichols v. Bowes, 2 Campb. 498, (Chit. j. 817).

Sanderson v. Bowes, 14 East, 500, (Chit. j. 839). A promissory note of the defendant's promising, in the body of it, to pay so much at their banking-house at Workington, in Cumberland, requires a demand of payment there, in order to give the holder a cause of action if it be not paid. Per Lord Ellenborough, C. J., "This is a duty created by the instrument itself, with certain limits and qualifications: the duty did not arise anterior to the instrument. This case is very materially different from that of Fenton v. Goundry (13 East, 459), lately decided by this Court, which was the case of a bill drawn generally, but accepted payable at a particular place, which special acceptance we considered merely as importing the intention of the party, that he would be found when the bill became due at that place, as his house of business, where he should be prepared to pay it; there the acceptance payable at the place was no part of the original conformation of the bill itself; but here the words restrictive of payment at the place named are incorporated in the original form of the instrument, which alone creates the contract and duty of the party. This action upon the note will not lie, unless the plaintiff has demanded payment at the appointed place; and I cannot but say that it is very convenient that such a condition should be incorporated in the note itself; for it would be very inconvenient that the makers of notes of this description should be liable to answer them every where, when it is notorious that they have made provisions for them at a particular place, where only they engage to pay them; then if the request at the place be a condition precedent, it should have been averred, and for want of such an averment, the declaration is bad; but I still think this is distinguishable from the case of Fenton v. Goundry.

Dickenson v. Bowes, 16 East, 110, (Chit. j. 863). Payment of a promissory note made payable at a certain place named in it, must be demanded there before the makers can be sued on it. Lord Ellenborough, C. J. said, "that it had already been decided upon demurrer, that if the particular place of payment be embodied in the note, it was part of the condition on which it was made payable, that it should be presented for payment at that place." See also Howe v. Bowes, 16 East, 112; 5 Taunt. 80, S. C. in Bowes v. Howe, 5 Taunt. 30, (Chit. j. 864, 892). Error in Exchequer Chamber from King's Bench, (16 East, 112). A note, promising in the body of it to pay on demand, at a particu-lar place, must be presented, and a demand of payment made at that place, unless the maker discharge the holders from the presentment and demand; and the presentment and demand must be alleged, unless a discharge is shown.

(c) Same cases, and Roche v. Campbell, 3 Campb. 247, (Chit. j. 870). Indorsee against indorser of a promissory note, describing the note as payable generally, but in the body it was made payable at a particular place. Per Lord Ellenborough: "I think there is a fatal variance between them; the declaration represents the promissory note as containing an ab-solute and unqualified promise to pay the mo-ney; butby the instrument produced, the maker only promises to pay, upon the specific condi-tion that the payment is demanded at a partic-ular place. We have lately held, that where the place. We have lately neig, that where the place of payment is mentioned in the body of the note, it forms a material part of the instrument. There seems to be no doubt, therefore, that it should be set out in the declaration." Plaintiff nonsuited.

(d) Trecothick v. Edwin, 1 Stark. R. 468,

(Chit. j. 979).
(e) Williams v. Waring, 10 Bar. & C. 2; 5 Man. & Ry. 9, (Chit. j. 1543). The case of Trecothick v. Edwin, 1 Stark. N. P. C. 468, was cited; but Lord Tenterden said, "In point of practice the distinction between mentioning a particular place for payment of a note in the body and in the margin of the instrument, has been frequently acted on. In the latter case it has been treated as a memorandum only, and not as part of the contract; and I do not see any sufficient reason for departing from that course."

Bayley, J., "The case of Exon v. Russell, of it, contained a request to the drawee to pay the bill in London, an accept- I. Of Preance payable at a particular place in the metropolis, was considered as re- entment quiring a presentment there (f). But still it was said, that there was no ne-mont. cessity to allege or prove notice of the dishonour to the acceptor or maker(g); and provided a presentment and request to pay at the particular place 1st, When be averred in the declaration, with the general refusal to pay, at the end of necessary. the declaration, that was holden to be sufficient, without alleging a special refusal at the particular place (h).

On the other hand it was contended, that if a promissory note were payable generally in the body of it, and there was a memorandum only at the foot, denoting that payment should be made at a particular place, such memorandum would not qualify the contract, and it was not necessary for the holder to allege or prove any presentment at the particular place(i), and this distinction has since been *settled(k); and if it were alleged in the declara- [*362] tion that the defendant thereby made the note payable at the particular place, and that direction were not in the instrument itself, but merely at the foot, this even would be a fatal misdescription of the instrument (l); though, since

4 Maule & S. 505, (Chit. j. 949), is expressly in point for the present plaintiff, with this single exception, that the memorandum in that case was not proved to have been written by the defendant. But it was there at the time when the note was made, and therefore the effect of it was the same; and the plaintiff having averred that the note was payable at the particular house, the court held that it was misdescribed; that is a sufficient authority for a decision in this case in favour of the plaintiff." Rule refused.

(f) Garnett v. Woodcock, 1 Stark. R. 475; 6 Man. & Sel. 44, (Chit. j. 979, 981); Hodge v. Fillis, 3 Camp. 463, (Chit. j. 900).
(g) Pearce v. Pembertly, 3 Campb. 261, (Chit. j. 900).

(Chit. j. 870).

(h) Butterworth v. Lord Le Despencer, 8
Maule & S. 150, (Chit. j. 913); Benson v.
White, 4 Dow. Rep. 334, S. P. (Chit. j. 960).
(i) Williams v. Waring, 10 Bar. & C. 2; 5
Man & P. D. (Chit. j. 563); swarp r. (c).

Man. & Ry. 9, (Chit. j. 1543); supra, n. (c); Saunderson v. Judge, 2 Hen. Bla. 509, (Chit.

j. 545). Wild v. Rennard, 1 Campb. 425, note. In this case, Bayley, J. held, that if a promissory note be made payable at a particular place, there is no necessity for proving, in an ac-tion against the maker, that it has been presented there for payment. And upon this case being cited in Saunderson c. Bowes, 14 East, 500, (Chit j. 839), Bayley, J. said, that as far as he could recollect, the place was not incorporated with the body of the note: it was only mentioned in a memorandum at the bottom. And in Callaghan v. Aylette, 2 Campb. 551; 3 Taunt. 397, (Chit. j. 820, 822); and Saunderson v. Judge, 2 Hen. Bla. 503, (Chit. j. 545), the same distinction is taken.

In Price v. Mitchell, 4 Campb. 200, (Chit. j. 933), Gibbs, C. J. ruled accordingly.

Richards v. Lord Milsingtown, Holt, C. N.

P. 364, in notes.
(k) Williams v. Waring, 10 Bar. & C. 2;
5 Man & Ry. 9, (Chit. j. 1543).
(l) Exon v. Russell, 4 Maule & S. 505,

Where the indorsee declared against the maker of a promissory note, and alleged that he thereby promised to pay, &c. and made the same payable, and to be paid according to the tenor and effect at the house of Messrs. B. and Co. London, and upon production of the note at the trial, it appeared that the address at the house of Messrs. B. and Co. was not a part of the note, but only a memorandum at the foot of the note. Held, that this was a variance. Lord Ellenborough, C. J. "The plaintiff has taken upon himself to aver that such is the import of the note; he has therefore not truly stated the note, for he has stated that it was made payable at a particular place; therefore he ought to have been nonsuited upon the ground that he has misdescribed the note as payable at a particular place, which it is not, the address being no part of the contract, but a memorandum." Bayley, J. "The plaintiff takes on him to aver it to be part of the note, that it was made payable at a particular place. It is a misdescription of the instrument declared up-

But in Pannell v. Woodroffe, Sittings after Hilary Term, 1818, at Westminster, before Abbott, J. Hardy v. Woodroffe, 2 Stark. Rep. 319, (Chit. j. 1020), payee against maker of a note. The declaration stated that the defendant made his promissory note bearing date, &c. by which said note the defendant, three months after the date thereof, promised to pay to the said plaintiff or order the sum of £100 value received, and made the said note payable at 32, Castle Street, Holborn, not averring that he thereby made it so payable; and then and there delivered the said note to the said plaintiff, by means, &c. (stating the liability and promise to pay according to the tenor and effect of the note, but not averring any presentment for payment). The place of payment was not mentioned in the body of the note, but only by way of memorandum at the bottom; whereupon E. Lawes, on the authority of the above case of Exon r. Russell, contended, that the first count was open to the objection of variance, but Abbott, C. J. overruled the ob-

Lawes, in Easter Term, moved for a rule for

(B)

50-1

6303

$1.00

DC:

KCE

¿

the c

d 1

120

E S ٤: ا

120

401

1

1

23

7

Py

1

'n

k |

1

0 ď

 ${\bf i}_{i,j}$

ķ

10

for Payment.

I. Of Pre- the 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42, s. 23, such misdescription might now be remedied by an amendment of the record at nisi prius, where there is no traverse of the acceptance(m). But the Courts, or at least some of the Judges, differed as to the effect of an acceptance payable at a particular place, or a 1st, When memorandum at the foot of the instrument, that it should be there payable, The Court of King's Bench held that such direction does not qualify the contract of the acceptor, and that consequently it is not necessary to allege or prove compliance with such direction(n). And it was decided, that if a person accept a bill payable at his bankers', and the holder neglected to present it, and eight months after it was due, the bankers, having funds of the acceptors in their hands, became bankrupt, the acceptor was nevertheless not discharged from liability by such neglect of the holder(0). Some of the [*363] Judges of the *Court of Common Pleas, on the contrary, held, that such a memorandum qualifies the contract of the acceptor, and that in an action against him as well as any other party, a presentment at the particular place > a new trial or in arrest of judgment, on the round that the note given in evidence varied from the special statement of it in the declaration, and that that statement importing a special place of payment, the count was bad for want of an averment of presentment. But the Court held that the declaration did not import any special or limited promise to pay at a particular place, and that the case was in that respect distinguishable from that of Exon v. Russell. See also Sproule v. Legg, 8 Stark. R. 156; 2 Dowl. & Ry. 15; 1 B. & C. 16, (Chit. j. 1152, 1154).

(m) Siggers v. Nicholls, H. T. 1839. Buil.

Court, Patteson, J.

(n) Fenton v. Goundry, 13 East, 459; 2 Campb. 656, 657, (Chit. j. 827).
Lyon v. Sundias, 1 Campb. 423, (Chit. j.

Head v. Sewell, Holt, C. N. P. 863.

Huffan v. Ellis, 3 Taunt. 415, in the House of Lords, 10th April, 1810, (Chit. j. 822).

Rowe v. Williams, Holt, C. N. P. 866. Upon the judgment in that case, a writ of error was brought in the House of Lords; see Holt, C. N. P. 366, 367, and 2 Brod. & Bing.

165; ante, 292, 293.

(o) Sebng v. Abitbol, 4 Maule & S. 462; 1 Stark. R. 79, (Chit. j. 942, 947); Turner v. Hayden, 4 B. & C. 1; 6 D. & R: 7; 1 R. & M. 215, (Chit. j. 1246); Rhodes v. Gent, 5 B. & Ald. 244, (Chit. j. 1124). A bill of exchange payable at a banker's in London, which, by reason of being mislaid, was not presented for payment, but the acceptor was, some months afterwards, informed of its being mislaid, was held not to be discharged, but that the drawer might set it off in an action brought against him by the acceptor, although the bankers at whose house the bill was payable failed in the interval, and the acceptor had at all times up to the failure of the bankers, a balance in their hands sufficient to cover the acceptance. Lord Ellenborough, C. J. "Laches is a neglect to do something which by law a man is obliged to do, whether any neglect to call at a house where a man informs me that I may get the money amounts to laches, depends upon whether I am obliged to call there. This acceptance, though it might be an authority to the bankers to pay the bill, being made payable at their house, is not in express terms an order upon them to pay, as was the case of Bishop v. Chitty, 2 Stra. 1191, where the language of the acceptance was immediately that of a check upon the bankers. I confess I am unable to see any laches in the defendant upon either ground. The plain-tiff is informed that the bill is not to be found; after which there surely was not any occasion for him to keep a fund at the house where it was made payable. How can it be said that the plaintiff, after notice that his bill no longer existed, was bound to keep money at his bankers, to answer the bill in perpetuum? It seems to me, that after such a notice he was at liberty to withdraw his funds, and therefore whatever loss may happen to him by keeping them there must be his loss, and not the loss of the defendant." Bayley, J. "As to other points on which there has been some difference of opinion in the two Courts, I shall be very ready to change my opinion if ultimately I should see occasion, but I cannot help feeling considerable difficulty up-on that point. If this is to be considered as a qualified acceptance, it follows, that the holder would have a right to refuse it, he being entitled to have an unconditional acceptance; and, indeed, as I rather think, being bound to require it. And if he take such an acceptance as this, payable at a particular place, it may be a question whether he ought not to give notice to all the parties to the bill, and whether, by omitting to do so, he does not discharge them. In this view of the question, it becomes an important one, and deserves to be well considered; it is true that the holder is not bound to present the bill for acceptance, but I have always understood, that if he does present it, and a qualified acceptance is given, he is bound to give notice. If then, the circumstance of the bill's being accepted payable at a banker's is to throw on the holder the obligation to present at the particular place, the consequence will be, that any intermediate indorser who may be called on to pay, and does pay the bill, will, in his action over against another party to the bill be saddled with the proof of the additional fact, beyond what he would have to prove if the ac-must be alleged and proved (p)(1). The different reasons in support of I. Of Proeach side of these opinions will be found in the cases in the notes (q). It sentment was observed that the acceptance of a bill seemed to be as much the origin- for Payment. al contract of the acceptor, as a note is the original contract of the maker; and as it was admitted that the drawee might make a qualified or conditional 1st, When acceptance, and thus narrow the liability which a general acceptance would necessary. create, it was difficult to say that he might not qualify his contract and liability as to the place of payment(r); and whether this were done in the body of the bill, or by memorandum at the foot, yet if it were intended to qualify the contract, it should have that operation without regard to the arrangement of the words.

*This question was finally discussed and decided in the House of Lords, [*364] in the case of Rowe v. Young(s), in which it was held, that if a bill of exchange accepted payable at a particular place, (as thus, "accepted payable at Sir John Perring and Co. bankers, London," the declaration in an action on such bill against the acceptor must aver presentment at that place, and the averment must be proved. In consequence of this decision, the statute 1 & 2 Geo. 4, c. 78, (called Serjeant Onslow's Act(t),) the provisions of which have already been considered (u), was passed, which requires that the bill be accepted payable at a banker's house or other place only, and not other otherwise or elsewhere, in order to constitute a special acceptance payable at such banker's house, or other place(2); and we have seen, that although the drawer in the body of the bill request the ceptance were a general acceptance. This is a point of view which seems to me to be very important, and I rather think that it has not been presented in this view to the minds of those learned persons from whom we are said to differ." Rule absolute.

(p) Callaghan v. Aylett, 3 Taunt. 397; 2

Campb. 549, (Chit. j. 820, 822). Gammon v. Schmoll, 5 Taunt. 344; 1 Marsh.

80, (Chit. j. 909).
(q) And see the cases and arguments in Rowe r. Young, 2 Brod. & Bing. 165; 2 Bligh, 819, (Chit. j. 1084), and the observations of Mr. Halcomb in his work on this important case; ante, 292, 293. (r) In Mitford v. Walcot, Lord Raym. 575, (Chit. j. 214), Holt, C. J. said, "If a bill be payable at London, and the person on whom it is drawn accepts it, but names no house where he will pay it, the party that has the bill is not bound to be satisfied with this acceptance." See also Bayl. 5th ed. 202. It should seem therefore, that there is no objection to the holdders, receiving a special acceptance, stating the place of payment. But in Head r. Sewell, Holt, C. N. P. 335, Gibbs, C. J. seems to have been of opinion, that a special acceptance payable at a particular place does not render it necessary to prove a presentment there. See Parks r. Edge, 1 C. & M. 429, 432, 484; 3 Tyr. 364, as to the distinction between alleging and proving a special presentment in an action by indorsee against indorser.

(s) Rowe v. Young, 2 Brod. & Bing. 165; 2 Bligh. Rep. 891, (Chit. j. 1084); ante, 292, 293.

(t) See Selby v. Eden, 3 Bing. 613.

(u) Ante, 152, 153, 293.

Haxtun v. Bishop, 8 Wend. 13. \
And, as against the maker of a promissory note or acceptor of a bill, payable at a place certain it seems that no averment in the declaration, or proof at the trial, of a demand of payment at the place designated, is necessary: But as against the inderser of a bill or note, such averment and proof is, in general, required. Bank of the United States v. Smith, 11 Wheat. 171.

⁽¹⁾ If the place of payment of a note is designated in a memorandum at the foot, or if to the acceptance of a bill, a particular place of payment be added, with the assent of the holder, such memorandum or qualification becomes a part of the contract. Tuckerman r. Hartwell, 3 Greenl.

⁽²⁾ In New York it has been held in an action against an acceptor that the holder need not prove any demand of payment at the place where the bill was accepted to be paid, but it is the business of the acceptor to prove that he was ready at the day and place appointed, and that no one came to receive the money, and that he was always ready to pay. Foden v. Sharp, 4 Johns. Rep. 188. See also Lang v. Brailsford, 1 Bay's Rep. 222. See Fullerton v. Bank of the United States, 1 Peters, 604, 116. Bank of the United States v. Carneal, 2 Peters, 543. Caldwell v. Cassidy, 8 Cowen, 271. \{ Bowie v. Duval, 1 Gill & John. 175. \} It seems, that the rule adopted in these cases would not apply, where a note on demand is payable at a particular place; for in such case, there should be a demand at the place before action brought. for in such case, there should be a demand at the place before action brought. Id. | But see le i

BAF.

2001

'06 l

33

16.3

7

201.1

E

20.1

103

25

100

121 ж:

25

E.

F

0.1

: 1

ξ,

1

ment.

I. Of Pre- drawee to accept it payable in London, which the drawee does, but without adding the express words in the act, a presentment there is unnecessary in order to charge the acceptor(x), though to make the drawer liable such presentment must be made(y). And even in the latter case it should seem 1st, When that a declaration alleging a presentment generally will be sufficient after vernecessary.

The statute and decisions establish, that if a bill be accepted at a particular place, in the express terms of this act, it must be presented there for payment, or the acceptor will be discharged; but where the bill is accepted payable at a banker's, or at a particular place, but not according to this act, a presentment there is quite unnecessary (a). And it may be made to the acceptor at his dresidence or elsewhere, though it will always suffice to present at the named place, and it will be unnecessary to allege or prove that the bill was presented to the acceptor in person, and proof that it was duly presented at the banker's will suffice (b). In practice, it is the invariable course amongst [*365] bankers and *merchants, to present at the place named in the acceptance, and this is always sufficient (c)(1).

Promissory notes are not mentioned in the act, and therefore if they be payable in the body at a banker's or other particular place, a presentment there will be requisite. But if the particular place be only mentioned at the foot, or otherwise than in the body, then no such presentment is necessary, as far as respects the maker or any other person(d)(2).

(x) Selby v. Eden, 3 Bing. 611; 11 Moore, 511, (Chit. j. 1297); Fayle v. Bird, 2 Carr. & P. 303; 6 B. & C. 531, (Chit. j. 1329); ante, 152, note (x).

(y) Gibb v. Mather, 8 Bing 214; ante, 152, note (a). (z) Lyon v. Holt, 5 M. & W. 250.

(2) 1.yon v. flost, v. M. & W. 250.

(a) See Sebng v. Abitbol, 4 Maule & S. 462; 1 Stark. 79, (Chit. j. 942, 947); Turner v. Hayden, 4 Bar. & C. 1; 6 D. & R. 7; Ryan and Mo. 215, (Chit. j. 1246); Rhodes v. Gent, 5 B. & Ald. 244, (Chit. j. 1124), ante, 262, note (a). In Turner v. Hayden, where the holder of a bill accented at a banker's but the holder of a bill accepted at a banker's, but not made payable there "only," did not present it for payment, and the bankers three weeks afterwards failed, having had in their hands, during all that time, a balance in favour of the acceptor exceeding the amount of the bill, it was held, that the latter was not discharged by the omission to present the bill for payment, the acceptance being in law a general acceptance.

(b) De Bergareche v. Pillin, 3 Bing. 476; 11 Moore, 350, (Chit. j. 1292). Best, C. J. "The result of the act is, that though a bill be by the acceptance made payable at a particular place, still the acceptance is to be esteemed a general obligation, and the acceptor may be called on elsewhere, as well as at the place indicated. But though the legislature has provided that the acceptor may be called on elsewhere, it has not made it compulsory on the holder to go elsewhere. It has been argued, indeed, that at all events the acceptor should himself be called on at the place indicated, though the holder is excused by the act from presenting his bill to the persons who carry on business at that place, or that at least it should be averred that the acceptor was called on there and could not be found. But such an averment would be absurd, for the acceptor is never expected to be there, but his money; it is sufficient therefore to allege, as in the present declaration, that demand was made there for the money." Park, J. "The construction of the act which has been contended for is absurd, for if an acceptor must be always present at his banker's, where would be the convenience of making the bill payable at the banker's? The bill was, according to the averment, 'duly presented for payment.'" Burrough, J. "Presentation to the acceptor in person has been dispensed with by his pointing out the banker's as the place at which payment of the bill might be obtained." Gaselle, J. concurred. Judgment for the plaintiff.

(c) See preceding note, and ante, 151, 152,

and 293.

(d) Ante, 153, 154, 360 to 362.

(2) { Fort v. Cortes, 14 Louis. Rep. 180; Warren v. Allnutt, 12 Louis. Rep. 454; Warren

⁽¹⁾ On a promissory note payable at a particular house, an actual or virtual demand must be made at such house, and notice of non-payment there must be given to the indorser in order to charge him; and notwithstanding the maker's insolvency and absence from the commonwealth, nnless the note is at such house on the day when it becomes due, in the hands of some one authorized to receive payment, no demand, actual or virtual, can be made. Shaw v. Reed, 12 Pick. Rep. 132. Ogden v. Dobbin, 2 Hall, 112; Erwin v. Adams, 2 Miller, 318; Smith v. Robinson, Idem, 405; contra, Conn v. Gano, Ohio Rep. Cond. 210; M'Nairy v. Bell, Yerg. 502; Eastman v. Fifield, 3 N. Hamp. 333.

In case of a foreign bill, where the course of exchange has altered, the ac- I. Of Preceptor will only be liable to pay according to the rate of it when the sentment bill become due (a); and it has been supposed that if the accenter unders for Paybill became due(e); and it has been supposed, that if the acceptor under-ment. took by his acceptance to pay within a certain period after demand, he may insist on the warrant of presentment (f). A person who has guaranteed the 1st, When due payment of a bill, may in some cases be released from the responsibility necessary. by the neglect of the holder duly to present it for payment, if he can show that he was thereby prejudiced (g).

If a bill or promissory note be payable at usances, months, or days, after demand or sight, or after notice, independently of any consideration whether a presentment for acceptance be necessary, (which is never requisite in the case of notes,) it will be necessary to present them and demand payment, for otherwise they would never be due(h). So a promissory note payable on demand at sight must be presented for payment(i). If the bill or note has been lost, payment should nevertheless be demanded at the exact time, and an indemnity should be offered, and due notice of non-payment given(k).

Presentment for payment, when necessary, must be made by the holder of 2dly, By the bill or note, or an agent competent to give a legal receipt for the money(l), and a person in possession of a bill payable to his own order, is a to be holder for this purpose, though it was once thought he had only an authority made. to indorse(m)(1).

Any person who happens, whether by accident or otherwise, (as by the failure of an agent) to be the holder, at the time a bill or note becomes due, and although he has no right to require payment for his own benefit, may and (e) Poth. pl. 174.

(f) The Duke of Norfolk v. Howard, 2 Show. 235, (Chit. j. 166)

(g) See ante, 328.

(h) Ante, 272; Holmes v. Kerrison, 2 Taunt. 323, (Chit. j. 791); Thorpe v. Booth, Ryan & Mood. 389, (Chit. j. 1293); Sturdy v. Henderson, 4 B. & Ald. 512, (Chit. j. 1110). (i) Dixon v. Nuttall, 1 C., M. & R. 307; 6

C. & P. 820, S. C.; citing Holmes v. Kerrison, 2 Taunt. 323.

(k) Ante, 262, 263.

(1) Per Lord Kenyon, in Coore v. Callaway. 1 Esp. R. 115.

- r. Ormston, 10 Mod. 286; Smith (m). v. M'Clure, 5 East, 476; 2 Smith, 43, (Chit. j.

v. Briscoe, id. 472; Picquet v. Curtis, 1 Sum. 478; Gale v. Kempe's Heirs, 10 Louis. 205. In an action on a note payable at a particular place, no averment or proof of a demand there is necessary. If the maker was ready to pay at the time and place specified, that would be matter of defence. Bacon v. Dyer, 3 Fairf. 19; Remick v. O'Kyle, Idem, 340; Bowie v. Duval, 1 Gill & John. 175; Bank of S. Carolina v. Flagg, 1 Hill's Car. Rep. 177.

If it appears from the protest that demand of payment was made at the proper place, on the cashier of the bank, it is sufficient, although it be not expressly stated that the demand was made in the banking-house. Coleman v. Flint, 16 Louis. Rep. 250.

Where a note is made payable at a particular bank, and before the day of payment arrives, that bank has no place of business, and ceases to exist, and another bank does business in the same room, it is sufficient to present the note for payment at that room. Central Bank v. Allen, 16 Maine Rep. 41. }

(1) Where the cashier of a bank indorses a promissory note, the property of the bank, for the purpose of causing demand and notice to be given, the authority of the bank, for the purpose may be implied. Hartford Bank v. Parry, 17 Mass. 95.

It is not necessary that the demand or notice should be made by the party to the note or bill:

it is sufficient if done by a notary. Hartford Bank v. Stedman, 3 Conn. Rep. 489.

A perol authority is sufficient to constitute a person agent for the purpose of making a demand on the drawer of a promissory note. Shed v. Bret, 1 Pick. 401. Sussex Bank v. Baldwin, 2

A demand of payment of a note, by an agent having any parol authority as a notary or the mere possession of the paper is sufficient; and such agent is competent to give notice of non-payment. Bank of Utica v. Smith, 18 Johns. 230. | Sussex Bank v. Baldwin, 2 Han. 487. |

Any person may present, at its maturity, a promissory note of which he is put in possession. A notarial demand and protest is not necessary to fix the liability of the indorser. Sussex Bank v. Baldwin, 2 Han. 487. } tfil.

1] 0:

2000 siden

37.75

1001

1601.0 1 4

21.

2.0

10:58

20

. . .

Ti-

738

7600

....

. . . .

REEL TO BEEF

3

1

23

ment.

I. Of Pre- ought to demand payment, and give notice of the non-payment, so as to prevent loss. And it has been held, that assignees of a bankrupt, who was merely an agent, may, after the bankruptcy, present and receive payment of bills and notes in their possession, without being liable to an action of trover, though they must pay over the proceeds on demand to the person legally entitled(n).

3dly, To whom made and at what Place. [*366]

Where a bill has not been accepted, or has been accepted generally, and where a note is payable generally, the presentment for payment should be to the drawee of the bill, or the maker of a note, at his residence(0)(1). But since the 2 & 3 Will. 4, c. 98, where a bill, drawn on a person at one place, and requiring him to pay in another place, *has been protested for non-acceptance, and accepted supra protest, such bill may, without further presentment to the drawee, be protested for non-payment at the place where made payable(p).

If the bill has been accepted, or note made payable, at a different place than the domicile of the drawee or maker of a note, whether or not according to the terms of the statute, or in the body of the note, then it always suffices, and is advisable, to make presentment at the latter (q); though we have seen, that if the place be named in the acceptance, without adding the words either "only," or "and not otherwise or elsewhere," or be named only at the foot of a promissory note, it is not absolutely essential to present it there, and an actual presentment to the drawee or maker any where would in that case suffice (r). But if the bill be drawn as well as accepted payable at a particular place, though not in the terms of the act, a presentment there must be made in order to charge the drawer(s); and if a particular place be named in the body of the note, presentment there is indispensable, even to charge the maker(t). In cases where, according to the terms of the (n) Jones v. Fort, 9 Bar. & Cres. 764; 4 Man. & Ry. 547, (Chit. j. 1445); Tennant v. Strachan, Mood. & M. 377; 4 Car. & P. 31, (Chit. j. 1450). (o) Poth. pl. 129.

(p) See ante, 348, 349.
(q) Per Best, C. J. in De Bergareche v. Pilv. Judge, 2 Hen. Bln. 509, (Chit. j. 1792); Saunderson v. Judge, 2 Hen. Bln. 509, (Chit. j. 545); Ambrose v. Hopwood, 2 Taunt. 61, (Chit. j. 772); 2 Campb. 550; Parker v. Gordon, 7 East, 386; 3 Smith, 358; 6 Esp. 41, (Chit. j. 727); and Hartley v. Spittal, 7 Law J. 83, K. B. M. T. 1828, when it was held, "that although a bill of exchange accepted 'payable at, &c.' is a general acceptance, and does not compel the holder, in an action against the acceptor, to prove presentment at the place expressed, yet presentment at that place is a good presentment to the acceptor for the purpose of an action against the drawer."

(r) Ante, 152, 153, 364; and Price v. Mitchell, 4 Campb. 200, (Chit j. 933).

(s) Gibbs v. Mather, S Bing. 214; ante, 364, note (y), but see Lyon v. Holt, 5 M. & W. 250; ante, 364, note (z).

(t) Saunderson v. Bowes, 14 East, 500; Dickinson v. Bowes, 16 East, 110, (Chit. j. 863); 5 Taunt. 80; ante, 364.

A note payable at plaintiff's domicil need not be formally presented for payment; especially when it is shown the defendant had no funds there. Maurin v. Perot, id. 276.

Where the maker of a note has removed before it falls due, and his residence cannot be ascertained by reasonable diligence, a demand may be made at his former residence. Central Bank v. Allen, 16 Maine Rep. 41. The replies made, on inquiry for the maker's place of abode, are v. Allen, 16 Maine Rep. 41.
admissible in evidence. Ibid.

A notice sent through the post office to the maker of a note, is not such a demand as the law requires, where his residence is supposed to be ascertained. Thus where the notary was informed, on inquiry, that the maker resided in or near a post town in an adjoining county, it was held that a demand sent through the post-office was not sufficient to charge the indorser. Stuckert v. Anderson, 8 Whart. 116.

A note payable in cotton at some convenient gin, if no particular gin or place is agreed on, must be demanded at the domicil of the debtor. Hunter r. Spurlock, S Miller's Louisiana Rep. 97.

^{(1) {} Where the notary states that he "demanded payment for said note, at the domicil of the maker thereof, and was answered that he was not there, and had left no funds to pay it,' the demand is sufficient. Degrand v. Banks, 16 Louis. Rep. 461.

bill or note, a presentment has been made at a different place, it will not be I. Of Prenecessary to make another presentment at the domicile of the acceptor or maker sentment of the note, or to him in person (u)(1); and although the person at whose house ment. the instrument is made payable may not be any party to it, and consequently not personally liable; yet an answer by him or at his house as to the pay- whom ment or non-payment of it is sufficient (x)(2). And in the spirit of this rule made and it has been decided, that if the person at whose house the bill or note is made at what Place. payable be himself the holder, it is a sufficient demand of payment to examine his own books, and a sufficient refusal if thereupon it appear that he has no assets in hand(y)(3). And where a bill, check, or note is payable at a banker's, a presentment to their clerk at the clearing-house is sufficient(z)(4).

We have seen, that in making a demand of an acceptance the party ought. if possible, to see the drawee personally (a). But a demand of payment need not be personal, it being sufficient if it be made at the house of the acceptor(b); and although it has been held, that if the *house be shut up [*367] and no person there competent to give an answer, and the acceptor of the bill, or maker of the note, has removed, the holder must endeavour to find out to what place he has removed, and make the presentment there(c); yet, according to a more recent authority (d), it is sufficient to show that the bill

(u) Mar. 106; Saunderson v. Judgo, 2 Hen. Bla. 549, (Chit. j. 545); Parker v. Gordon, 7 East, 385; 3 Smith, 358; 6 Esp. 41, (Chit. j. 727); Com. Dig. tit. Merchant, F. 7; Giles v. Boune, 2 Chit. R. 300, (Chit. j. 982); De Bergareche r. Pillin, 3 Bing. 476; 4 Bing. 716, 417; 11 Moore, 350, (Chit. j. 1292)

(x) Stedman v. Gooch, 1 Esp. Rep. 4, (Ch.

(y) Saunderson v. Judge, 2 II. Bla. 509, (Chit. j. 545)

(z) Reynolds v. Chettie, 2 Campb. 596, (Ch. 823); Robson v. Bennett, 2 Taunt. 338, (Chit. j. 794); post, 384, 385, in notes.

(a) Ante, 274, note (1).

(b) Brown v. M'Dermot, 5 Esp. R. 265, 266, (Chit. j. 721); Cromwell v. Hynson, 2 Esp. R. 512, acc. (Chit. j. 571); ante, 280, note (d). Sed ride Duke of Norfolk v. Howard, 2 Show.

235, (Chit. j. 166). Brown r. M'Dermot, 5 Esp. Rep. 265, (Chit. 721). Indorsee against Indorser. It was held in this case to be sufficient to demand payment at the usual place of residence of the acceptor, and if it is not then paid it is sufficient to entitle the party to proceed against the in-dorser. The plaintiff's counsel called a witness, who proved that he carried the bill to the house described as the place where Smithson, the acceptor, lived, but that there were no orders left, and the bill was not paid, but it appeared that the witness never saw the acceptor. Garrow, for the defendant, objected to the evidence, and that the plaintiff should be called. first, on the ground that the promise to pay (proved to have been made) was not made to the plaintiff, the indorsee himself, which he contended to be necessary; and secondly, that the hand-writing of the acceptor should be proved, and an actual demand on him. Lord Edenborough, in summing up, told the jury, "that it was necessary to prove a demand of the bill and non-payment by him; but that if a bill was payable at a certain house it was sufficient to demand the money there: that had been done here, for it was the duty of the drawee of a bill to leave provision for the payment of it." Verdict for plaintiff.

(c) Collins r. Butler, 2 Stra. 1089, (Chit. j. 285); ante, 280, note (c); Bayl. 5th ed. 218, note 10; Bateman r. Joseph, 2 Campb. 461;

13 East, 433, (Chit. j. 801).

(d) Hine r. Allely, 4 B. & Adol. 624; 1 N. & M. 433, S. C. See post, $21, (41). See

A note signed by two, jointly and severally, and made payable at their dwelling-houses, was presented to both, at the farm-yard of one of them, and no objection was made by either, as to the place of demand. Held, a sufficient demand. Baldwin v. Farmsworth, 1 Fairf. 414.

(3) | Bank of South Carolina v. Flagg, 1 Hill's Car. Rep. 177 | is sufficient to charge the indorser. State Bank r. Hurd, 12 Mass. Rep. 172.

{ A demand of payment of the "proper book-keeper" at the bank where a note is made psyable is sufficient. Armer v. Lewis, 16 Louis. Rep. 331. }

^{(1) {} Jolger v. Chase, 18 Pick. 63; Roberts v. Mason, 1 Ala. Rep. (New Series), 373. } (2) { Where a note is made payable at the counting-house of A, and the firm is changed to A. B. before the note becomes due, a demand at the counting-house of A. B. will be good. Sanderson v. Oakey, 14 Louis. Rep. 373.

⁽⁴⁾ It seems that where no place of payment is mentioned in a note executed in a foreign country, parol evidence is admissible to show at what place it was agreed to be paid, and thus to give effect to the lex loci contractus. Thompson v. Ketcham, 4 John. 285. If the maker of a note appoint a particular place where the demand of payment of it is to be made a demand there

CRAP.

The

lifet.

100

754 ai b

Data.

101.10

38.3

500 CE.

ri ye

¥ îi

XII 1 x 1

· 560

î tii

£. i

1

8.3

E 1

7, 80

₹:

٠,

2

79-1

1.

×,

4

ŧ,

 $\mathbf{t}_{\mathbf{k}}$

sentment for Payment.

8dly, To whom and at what Place.

I. Of Pre- was taken to the residence of the acceptors as stated in the bill, for the purpose of presentment, and that the house was shut up, and no one there; and this, although the declaration allege the bill to have been presented and shewn to the acceptor. And where a note was made payable at Guildford, and the holder presented it when due at two counting-houses there, the maker then living in London, this was held to be equivalent to a presentment to the maker himself(e). And it is clear that if the drawee has never lived at the place of address, or has absconded, this circumstance will sufficiently excuse the holder from not making any further inquiries after him(f), and if he has left the country on any account, presentment and demand of payment of his wife, or agent, at the place where he formerly resided, will be sufficient(g)(1). If the drawee has by his acceptance appointed a place for payment, the bill should be presented accordingly (h), or in some cases it may be to his agent who has been used to pay money for him(i); and if a banker's note be made payable at Tunbridge and also at London, the holder has a right to present it at either place, and if payment be refused at the more distant place, London, it is no defence to prove, that if payment had been demanded at the nearer place, Tunbridge, the note would have been paid (k).

If at the time of presentment the drawee be dead, the holder should inquire after his personal representative, and present the bill to him(l)(2); and in case there be no representative, should demand payment at the house But if the bill has been made payable at a particof the deceased (m)(3). ular place, and presented there, it is not then necessary to present it also at the house of the executor (n).

[*368] (It is sufficient to require payment of the person on whom the bill *is drawn, and (it is unnecessary, in case of default of payment, to make any demand on the drawer previously to an action against an indorser (o).

> post, Part II. Ch. II. s. iv. Of the Declaration. (c) Hardy v. Woodrooffe, 2 Stark. R. 319, (Chit. j. 1020).

(f) Anon. Lord Raym. 743, (Chit. j. 216); and see Hine v. Allely, 4 B. & Ad. 624, su-

(g) Cromwell v. Hynson, 2 Esp. R. 211, (Chit. j. 571); ante, 280, note (d); Phillips v. Astling, 2 Taunt. 206, (Chit. j. 777). When not, see Cheek v. Roper, 5 Esp. R. 175, (Chit. j. 702).

(h) Saunderson v. Judge, 2 H. Bla. 509, (Chit. j. 545); Giles v. Bonne, 2 Chit. Rep. 300, (Chit. j. 982); ante, 366, n. (t). What a sufficient averment of presentment in case of bill made payable at the house of a third party, Bush v. Kinnear, 6 Maule & S. 210, post, Part II. Ch. II. s. iv.

(i) Governor and Company of the Bank of England v. Newman, 12 Mod. 241; Phillips v. Astling, 2 Taunt. 206, (Chit. j. 777).

(k) Beeching v. Gower, Holt, C. N. P. 313,

(Chit. j. 966). But that it is sufficient to give or leave no-tice of non-payment at the house of a party, see Goldsmith v. Bland, Bayl. 5th edit. 276, note 113; Crosse v. Smith, post, Ch. X. s. i. Notice of Non-payment; 1 Maule & S. 545,

(1) Ante, 280; Molloy, b. 2, c. 10, s. 34;

Poth. pl. 146.

(m) Poth. pl. 146; Mar. 134. (n) Philpot v. Bryant, 3 Car. & P. 244; 1

Moore & P. 754; 4 Bing. 717, (Chit. j. 1387). (o) Heylyn v. Adamson, 2 Burr. 699, (Chit. j. 349); Hamilton v. Mackrell, R. T. Hardw. 322, (Chit. j. 284).

\(\) So, if his new place of residence cannot be ascertained, on reasonable diligence. Central Bank v. Allen, 16 Maine Rep. 41. \(\)
(2) Where the maker of a note died on the last day of grace, the notary on calling at his dom-icil, being informed of his death, protested the note for non-payment, and notified the indorser thereof: Held, that there was not a proper demand of payment sufficient to bind the indorser. Toby v. Maurian, 7 Louisiana Rep. 493.

⁽¹⁾ Where the maker of a note has removed into another state or jurisdiction, subsequent to the making of the note, a personal demand on him is not necessary; it is sufficient if presented at his former residence. M'Gruder v. Bank of Washington, 9 Wheat. 598.

⁽³⁾ It has been decided in Massachusetts, that if the maker of a note die, and an administrator be appointed before it becomes due, no demand on the administrator is necessary to charge the indorser, so that notice of the death and non-payment be duly given to the indorser, unless the maturity of the note happens more than a year after the maker's death. This decision is

The presentment must also, in order to fix the loss on the drawer and in- 1. Of Predorser, be actually made for payment(1); and payment of the money must sentment in due time be demanded, and credit must not be given to or taken by the ment. drawee of a bill or maker of a note, or the indorsers will be discharged (p); and therefore where A. on the 18th March, 1824, delivered to the Totness Mode of Bank, of whom he was a customer, several notes of the Dartmouth Bank, Presentand the Totness Bank, early on the 15th March, instead of demanding im-ment. mediate payment of such notes in cash, sent and left them with the Dartmouth Bank, who, according to the usual course of business, gave them credit in account for the amount of the notes, and the latter, in the evening of the 19th March, stopped payment, it was holden, that as between A. and the Totness Bank, the latter, by taking and receiving credit in account for the amount of such notes, was equivalent to payment to them; and therefore that A. was entitled to recover the amount from them (p). The practice relating to bankers' notes, payable on demand appears formerly to have been, to leave them at such banker's for a few hours, and then call again for payment(q), but that was condemned as dangerous(r), and has long been abandoned. The practice with respect to checks, when in the hands of a banker, has long been to present them on the same day at the banker's on whom they were drawn, and if they have effects of the drawer in their hands they mark it as good, which is equivalent to an acceptance, and will bind them to pay it the next day at the clearing-house; and it has been held, that the following such practice is not laches, though the bankers fail in the mean time(s); but if there be the least apprehension of a failure, the check ought to be presented at the earliest moment. The other points respecting the mode of presentment may be collected from the perusal of the three preced-The other note should not be left in the hands of the drawee or maker without immediate actual payment in money (t), at least if it be, the presentment is not considered as made until the money is called for(u); and though it has been decided, that neither a holder nor a banker, acting as agent, is guilty of neglect by giving up *a bill to the acceptor upon his de- [*369]

(p) Gillard v. Wise, 5 Bar. & Cres. 134; Stra. 416, (Chit. j. 249); and Hoare v. Da 7 Dow. & Ry. 523, (Chit. j. 1276); and see post, s. ii. as to payment, and what amounts to

(q) Turner v. Mead, 1 Stra. 416, (Chit j. 248); Hoare v. Da Costa, 2 Stra. 910, (Chit. j. 272); post, 881, note (c).

(7) Hayward v. Bank of England, 1 Stra. 550, (Chit. j. 252); Bayl. 5th edit 231; Russell v. Hankey, 6 T. R. 13, (Chit. j. 530).

Hayward kept cash at the Bank, and paid in a banker's note; the runner to the Bank of England left it the next morning, and called for the money in the afternoon, but in the interval the banker had stopped, and this appeared to be the usual practice at the Bank. King, C. J. said, it was dangerous to suffer persons to deal with notes in that manner, and that the Common Pleas were of that opinion in the like case, and he directed the jury to find for the plaintiff, which they did. Sed vide Turner r. Mead, 1

Costa, 2 Stra. 910, (Chit. j. 272); post, 381, note (c).

(s) Robinson v. Bennett, 2 Taunt. 388, (Chit. j 794); and Bayl. 5th edit. 224.

(t) Hayward v. Bank of England, 1 Stra. 550, (Chit. j. 252); Bayl. 5th edit. 231; 34pra, note (t).

(u) Id. ibid.; Bayl. 5th edit. 231. In Ridley v. Blackett, Peake's Addenda, 62, (Chit. j. 553), it was holden, that the indorser of a foreign bill is not discharged by the holder's having given up the bill to the acceptor, and received his check for the amount, which was returned at the clearing-house and protested, and notice given to the indorser, the same day, and Lord Kenyon said, the case of Mr. Hankey decides this case.

But see Powell r. Roche, 6 Esp. R. 76, (Chit. j. 731); and Marius, 21; post, s. ii. Payment-How Made, &c.

grounded upon some supposed material difference between the situation of an administrator in Massackusetts and that of one in England. Hall r. Burr, 12 Mass. Rep. 86.

(1) { Where the notary states he "demanded payment of the draft, at the counting-house of the acceptor," it is sufficient, without saying "the draft was presented, and payment thereof demanded." Nott's Ex'r v. Beard, 16 Louis. Rep. 308. } ite (

(84)

3

121

12 14

le i

Tree: 1.1

*

C)

ىق'

2

1 : 10

2

 \mathcal{F}_{i}

15

1.3

13

i.

::

11

7

for Payment.

I. Of Pre-livering to them his check on another banker(x), that doctrine may now be questionable (y); an most of the London bankers, on presenting a bill for payment in the morning, leave a ticket where it lies due, and declaring, that "in consequence of great injury having arisen from the non-payment of drafts taken for bills, no drafts can in future be received for bills, but that the parties may address them for payment to their bankers, or attach a draft to the bill when presented."

5thly, Time of Presentment.

Bills and notes, when payable at a time certain, must be presented on the very day they fall due, and those which are not payable on a day certain, but on presentment or demand, must be presented, or at least put in circulation for that purpose, within a reasonable time after they have been received, depending on distance and other circumstances presently noticed. In the first case, a premature presentment before the instrument falls due would be wholly inoperative (z)(1), and a delay in presenting until even one day after the instrument was at maturity, would discharge all the parties not primarily liable. It was once thought, that the propriety of a presentment for payment with respect to the time when it should be made, was in all cases, a question for the determination of a jury; but the decisions of juries having been found to be very much at variance from each other (a), and consequently to have rendered the commercial law in that respect very uncertain, it is now settled to be the province of the Court to determine the time when a presentment ought to be made(b)(2).

Before we proceed to state when each description of instrument falls due and must be presented for payment, it will be essential to examine the different styles and computations of time affecting bills, the different usances, how months are calculated, when days of grace are allowed and their number, and the consequences of these instruments falling due on a Sunday, Christmasday, Good Friday, Fast day, Day of Thanksgiving, or authorised Festival, &c.

Computation of Time, and different Styles in regard to Bills.

When a bill is drawn at a place using one style, and payable on a day certain at a place using another, the time when the bill becomes due must be calculated according to the style(c) of the place where it is payable; because (x) Russell r. Hankey, 6 T. R. 13, (Chit. Crowther, id. 257, (Chit. j. 221); Tindal v. 530); and Ridley v. Blackett, ante, 368, Brown, 1 T. R. 168, 169, (Chit. j. 431). j. 530); and Ridley v. Blackett, ante, 368, note (u).

(y) See post, s. ii.

(z) Wiffen r. Roberts, 1 Esp. Rep. 262, (Chit. j. 536). A presentment for payment on the second day of grace, when the third is not a Sunday, is a nullity; and see Gritin v.

Goff, post, 374, note (x).
(a) Allen v. Dockwra, 1 Salk. 127, (Chit. j. 206); Mainwaring v. Harrison, Stra. 508, (Chit. j. 250); Coleman v. Sayer, il. 829, (Chit. j. 267); Darrach v. Sayage, 1 Show. 155, (Chit. j. 181); Phillips v. Phillips, 2 Freem. 247, (Chit. j. 209, 210); Crawley v.

(b) Darbishire v. Parker, 6 East, 11, 12; 2 Smith, 195, (Chit. j. 707); Parker v. Gordon, 7 East, 385; 3 Smith, 358; 6 Esp. 41, (Chit. j. 727); Tindal v. Brown, 1 T. R. 168, 169, 170, (Chit. j. 431); Brown v. Collinson, Beawes, pl. 229; Brown v. Harraden, 4 T. R. 148, (Chit. j. 470); Kyd, 45; Molloy, b. 2, c. 10, acc.; Russell v. Langstaffe, Dougl. 515, (Chit. j. 415); Muilman r. D'Eguino, 2 Hen.

Bla. 568, 569, contra, (Chit j. 549).
(c) As to the old and new style, see Kyd on Bills, 7, and Chitty's Col. Stat. tit. "Time." All places with which we, in Great Britain, are

⁽¹⁾ Where a note is made payable in a given number of days with grace, a demand made before the last day of grace, is insufficient to charge the indorser. Leavitt v. Simes, 3 New Hamp. Rep. 14. { Farmers' Bank v. Duvall, 7 Gill & John. 78; Jackson v. Newton, 8 Watts,

<sup>401. }
(2) {</sup> In the case of Davis v. Herrick, 1 Ham. 66, it is held to be one of law, to be decided by the court, where the facts are not disputed. But where the facts are contested the question of law becomes mixed with fact, and is for the denision of the jury, under instructions from the eourt. }

PART I

coa be

.dina

C 6 3/3

12 74 i. Li the l in the

..11.00 41. OB

n, i dist

1 3.0

1.7.3

o br

OH 10

ः स्टि ÷ 10

i, ju

17-16

. 193

r. 13d

·-:35• cer• t be

)):0

1 1.

1: 2

int,

Ht.

69.

,es,

R

. 0

5.

ŗe

the contract created by the making a bill of exchange is understood to have I. Of Prebeen made at that place, and consequently should be construed according to sentment the law of it(d). In other works it is laid down, that upon a bill drawn at a ment. place using one style, and *payable at a place using another, if the time is 5thly, to be reckoned from the date, it shall be computed according to the style of Time of the place at which it is drawn, otherwise according to the style of the place Presentwhere it is payable; and in the former case, the date must be reduced or carried ment. forward to the style of the place where the bill is payable, and the time reckon- [*370] ed from thence(e). Thus, on a bill dated the 1st of May, old style, and payable here two months after date, the time must be computed from the corresponding day of May, new style, viz. 13th May; and on a bill dated the 1st May, new style, and payable at St. Petersburgh two months after date, from the corresponding day of April, old style, viz. 19th April (f).

In some cases it has been considered, that when computation is to be made Day of from an act done, the day in which the act is done is to be included (g), but Date of the law relating to bills of exchange is different; for the custom of merchants ance to be is settled, that where a bill is payable at usance, or at so many days after the excluded. date(h), or after sight, the day of the date(h), or of the acceptance, must be excluded(h); and therefore, if a bill drawn payable ten days after sight, be presented on the 1st day of a month and then accepted, the ten days expire on the 11th, and the bill, by the addition of the days of grace when they are three in number, becomes due on the 14th(i). When a bill, &c. is drawn payable at usance, or at a certain time after date, and it is not dated, the time when it is payable must be computed from the day it issued, exclusive thereof(j). And before the recent statute 2 & 3 Will. 4, c. 98, when a bill payable thirty days after sight was protested for non-acceptance, and then accepted supra protest, it must, without reference to the place of payment, have been presented to the original drawee at thirty-three days after the day of the acceptance, exclusive thereof, and the time was not reckoned from the time of presentment for acceptance to the drawec(1); but since that act such bill, if made payable at a place not being the place of the residence in the habit of negotiating bills, compute their time as we do, (except that Russia adheres to the old style) by years reckoned in a series, from the birth of our Saviour, and divided each into twelve months, and 365 (or in every fourth year 366) days. 1 Pardess 353. (d) Poth. pl. 155; Hutteau, 1st ed p. 241; Beawes, pl. 251; Mar. 102; ante, 167, 168; acc; Kyd, 8, contra. Old style, it is said, still prevails in Muscovy, Denmark, Holstein, Hamburgh, Utrecht, Gueldres, East Friesland, Geneva, and in all the Protestant principalities in Germany, and the Cantons of Switzerland. Beawes, pl. 258; Kyd. 7, 8; Mar. 56; see the preceding note. The Gregorian Calendar is generally received throughout Europe, 1 Pardess. 353.

(e) Bayl. 5th edit. 249; Poth. pl. 155. (f) Hutteau, 1st edit. page 241; Bayl. 5th

(g) Glassington v. Rawlins, 3 East, 407; 4 Esp. 224, S. C.; Cramlington v. Evans, 2 Vent. 308, 310, (Chit. j. 174); Castle v. Burditt, 8

T. R. 623; Kyd, 6; but see the observations of Lord Ellenborough in Watson v. Pears, 2 Campb. 296, from which it appears that in many cases the day is to be excluded. See also Pugh r. Duke of Leeds, Cowp. 714; Lester v. Garland, 15 Ves. 254; 9 Bar. & C. 134, 608. (h) Bellasis r. Hester, Lord Raym. 280; Lutw. 1591, (Chit. j. 204;) Coleman v. Sayer, 1 Barnard. B. R. 303, (Chit. j. 267); Poth. pl. 13, 15; Campbell v. French, 6 T. R. 212; 2 Hen. Bla 163, (Chit. j. 541); Beawes, pl. 252; Kyd, 6; 1 Pardess. Cours de Droit Com. 1st edit. 353; 2 Pardess. 356, No. 336; May v. Cooper, Fort. 376, (Chit. j. 250), contra. In America, if a bill after sight be presented on one day and accepted the next, the time is computed exclusive of the latter. Mitchell r. De Grand, 1 Mason, 176.

(i) Kyd, 6, 7.

(j) Hague v. French, 3 Bos & Pul. 178, (Chit. j. 652); Armitt r. Breame, Lord Raym. 1076; Kyd, 7; ante, 148.

⁽¹⁾ A note dated August 25th, and payable in four years from date falls due August 28th, if three days of grace are allowed. Ripley v. Greenleaf, 2 Verm. Rep. 129.

CHAP

1 150

ment.

I. Of Pre- of the drawee, may, without further presentment to the drawee, be protested for non-payment unless paid on the day on which such bill would have become payable had the same been duly accepted (k). In the case of a bill not falling within the description mentioned in the above statute, we have seen that the 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 58, declares it unnecessary to make a presentment to the acceptor supra protest, or referee in case of need, until the day after the day on which the bill becomes due(1).

Of Usances, their Length in different Countries, and how calculated. [*371]

Foreign bills, as has been already observed, are usually drawn payable at one, two, or more usances. The term usance is French, and signifies the time which it is the usage of the countries, between which *bills are drawn, to appoint for payment of them(m). This term, however, is not so much in use as formerly, and it is becoming the practice to make foreign bills payable at so many months or days after date or sight, as in the case of inland It has in another place been said, that accordbills drawn in this country. ing to the language of merchants "usance" signifies a month (n). of the usance or time which it includes, varies, in different countries, from fourteen days to one, two, or even three months, after the date of the bill. Double or treble usance is double or treble the usual time, and half usance is half that time; when it is necessary to devide a month upon a half usance, the division, notwithstanding the difference in the length of the month, contains fifteen days(o). It has been said, that the Court cannot take judicial notice of foreign usances, which vary, being longer in one place than another(p), and therefore their duration must be averred and proved(q). following table contains a correct list of the different usances as approved and acted upon by the first mercantile houses of the present day:-

```
A usance between A Aleppo B Sometimes accounted as treble usance B is 1 calendar month after date.
                                     is 1 calendar month after date.
                     Altona
                     America, North(s), said to be 60 days.
                     Amsterdam is 1 calendar month after date.
                     Antwerp
                                        1
                                              do.
                     Bahia(t)
                                       none.
                                       14 days after acceptance.
                     Berlin
                                        2 calendar months after date.
                     Bilboa
                                        1
                                              do.
                                                            do.
                     Brabant
                     Brazil(u)
                                        none.
                     Bruges
                                        1
                                              do.
                                                             do.
                     Buenos Ayres(v) none.
                                        2 calendar months after date.
                     Cadiz
                     Constantinople
                      Constantinople and Smyrna(w) 31 days
                                                            do.
                                                             do.
                     Flanders
                                        1 calendar month
                     France(x)
                                       80 days
                                                             do.
                     Frankfort on ?
                                       14 days after acceptance.
                        the Main
```

(k) Ante, 350.

(1) Ante, 351. (m) Poth. pl. 15; Hawes v. Birks, 3 B. & P. 338, (Chit. j. 690); Selw. N. P. 9th edit. 350, note 10.

(n) Smart v. Dean, 3 Keb. 645, (Ch. j. 163).

(o) Mar. 2 edit. 23; Poth. pl. 15; 2 Pardess.

(p) Buckley v. Cambell, 1 Salk. 131, (Chit. 228); Meggadon v. Holt, 12 Mod. 15, (Chit. j. 182).

(q) Id. Ibid. (r) Molloy, tit. Bills of Exchange, b. 2, c. 10. See also Beawes; and Frees's Cambist's Compendium, Part ii.

(s) Glen. on Bills, 2 edit. 21.

(t) See Rio de Janeiro.

(u) Id. ibid.
(v) Camb. Comp. 159. Bills generally drawn at 30, 60, or 90 days after sight, ib., usually 60 days.

(w) Glen. on Bills, 2 edit. 21. Sometimes 61 days after sight.
(x) Bayl. 5th edit. 251; Camb. Comp. 78,

1 calendar month; Beawes; Molloy; Pothier pl. 15, 2 Pardess. 356, thirty days. In Camb. Comp. 98, the usance between Paris and England is stated to be sixty days after date.

Ī I.

s(ed

11

..105

: :5e

the 387 ie 21

:04

a Th.

nuch

235.

cland

ord-ength

irom

3000 nce,

000 icial

nt.

The

and હ ıh.

ŧ

I. Of Pro-

aentment for Payment.

5thly,

Time of Present-

[*372]

ment.

```
A usance between } Florence sometimes accounted } 80 days after date.
  London and is 3 calendar months after date.
                    Genoa(y)
                    Geneva
                                            do.
                                                          do.
                    Germany
                                            do.
                                                          do.
                    Hamburgh
                                            do.
                                                          do.
                    Holland and the } ı
                                            do.
                                                          do.
                      Netherlands
                                            do.
                    Italy(z)
                                                          do.
                    Leghorn
                                            do.
                                                          do.
                    Lisbon(a)
                                            do.
                                                          do.
                    Lisle
                                      1
                                            do.
                                                          do.
                    Lucca, sometimes 3
                                            do.
                                                          do.
                   *Madrid and ?
                                      2 calendar months after date.
                    all Spain(a) § Middleburgh
                                      1
                                            do.
                    Milan
                                      3
                                            do.
                                                          do.
                   Naples(b)
                                      none.
                    Netherlands(c)
                                      1 calendar month after date.
                                      30 days after sight.
                    Oporto(d)
                   Palermo(e)
                                          do. or 90 days do.
                   Paris(f)
Petersburgh(g)
                                      I calendar month after date.
                                      Done.
                   Portugal
                                      2 calendar months after date.
                   Rio De Janeiro,
                    Bahia, & other
                                     none.
                    parts of Brazil(A) Rotterdam
                                      1 calendar month after date.
                   Rome
                                      3
                                           do.
                                                         da.
                   Rouen
                                           do.
                                                         do.
                   Seville(i)
                                           do.
                                                         do.
                                     31 days after date.
                   Smyrna*
                   Spain .
                                     2 calendar months after date.
                   Sweden
                                     75 days after date.
                   Trieste(j)
                                     same as Vienna.
                   Venice(k)
                                     8 calendar months after date.
                   Vienna(l)
                                     14 days after acceptance.
                   West Indies(m)
                                           do.
                                     81
                                                   do.
                   Zante
                                     3 calendar months after date.
                   Zealand
                                           do.
                                                        do.
                   Brabant, France,
```

Flanders and 1 calendar month. Holland, or Zealand Italy, Spain, and } 2 calendar months(o). A wearce between Portugal Amsterdam(n) and Frankfort Nuremburg, Vienna, & other places [14 days after sight, 2 usances, 28 days, and half in Germany, on usance 7 days. Hamburg and Breslau

(y) See Beawes. But in Molloy it is stated as two months after date. And in Camb. Comp. 139, usances and days of grace are said to be abolished by the Code Napuleon.

(z) Camb. Comp. 78.

(a) In Camb. Comp. 155, it is stated to be thirty days after sight.

(a) Beawes; Molloy; Freese's Camb. Comp.

78, 124; 1 Wile. 185. (b) In Camb. Comp. 146, usances and days of grace are stated to be abolished by the Code Napoleon. (c) See Holland.

(d) Camb. Comp. 155; but see Lisbon.

(e) With London; but with most other places 21 days after sight. Camb. Comp. 150.

(f) Poth. pl. 15, acc.; Molloy, 84, contra. See "France."

(g) Camb. Comp. 111.

(h) Camp. Comb. 156. It is said that bills are usually drawn at 60 or 30 days; sometimes also, but very rarely, 90 days after sight. Ib.

(i) Camb. Comp. 124.

*See Constantinople.

(j) Freese's Cambis's Compendium, 103.

(k) Lutw. 885; Camb. Comp. 143.

(1) Camb. Comp. 108. But according to Beawes, fourteen days after sight.
(m) Glen. on Bills, 2d edit. 21.

(n) Molloy, 84; Kyd, 4, 5. (o) Mitford v. Walcot, 12 Mod. 410, (Chit. j. 214); Camb. Comp. 80.

300 1.3 200 7 aab

11 26 K. F 21 17.

lg 1. 200

Š

7.

f.,

7.

64. 4.4 I

813

4

Û

₹:

Ы

.

¥ce Liη

大阪田田田田 日本

8

I. Of Presentment for Payment. 5thly, Time of Presentment.	Amsterdam, Antwerp, Rot- terdam(p) and Genoa(q) Hamburgh, Al- tona and	Dantzig, Konings- bergh and Riga S England and France Italy, Spain and S Portugal S Abolished by the Co	2 months after date. ode Napoleon. 14 days after sight. 1 month after date.
[# 2 72]	Leghorn and A usance between Lisbon, Oporto, e	Paris	2 months after date. 3 months after date. 1 month after date. 15 days after sight. 2 months after date. 3 months after date. 60 days after sight.
[0.0]		Holland, Germany, 2 Italy France
	Palermo and {	most other places, } except London	21 days after sight.
	Venice, Holland and	Hamburgh 2	2 months after date.

These usances are calculated exclusively of the day of the date of the bill. At the expiration of the approinted usance the bill would be apparently due, but the custom of merchants has allowed the drawee further time, called days of grace, which are in general calculated as before mentioned, exclusively of the last day of usance; and on the last of these three days, or on the second, if the third be a Sunday, the bill should, in this country, be presented for payment(i)(1).

Of Months. payable after them due.

When bills, &c. are payable at one, two, or more months after date or When Bill sight, the mode of computing the time when they become due differs from the mode of computation in other cases. In general, when a deed or Act of Parliament mentions a month, it is construed to mean a lunar month, or twenty-eight days, unless otherwise expressed (k); but in the case of bills and notes, and other mercantile contracts (l), the rule is otherwise, and by custom of trade, when a bill is made payable at a month or months after date, the computation must in all cases be by calendar and not by lunar months; thus, when a bill is dated the 1st of January, and payable one month after date, the month expires on the 1st February (m), and with the addition of the days of grace, the bill is payable on the 4th February, unless that day be a Sunday, and then on the 3d. When one month is longer than the succeeding one, it is said to be a rule not to go, in the computation, into a third (q) See ante, 371, note (y).

(i) Post, 374, et seq.

8 Moore, 265, S. C. As to lunar and calendar months, and how they are calculated, see Lang v. Gale, 1 Maule & S. 111; Watson r. Pears, 2 Campb. 294; Cathcart v. Hardy, 2 Maule & S. 585. And see a long note as to time, in general, 2 Bla. Com. 141, Chitty's edition; Chitty's Col. Stat. tit. " T.me;" Pardess. 353.

(1) 1 Stra. 652; Lang v. Gale, 1 Maule & S. 111; 6 Id. 227; 3 Brod. & B. 187.

(m) Beawes, pl. 253; Mar. 74, 90, 2d edit. p. 19, 24; Cockell v. Gray, 3 Brod. & B. 187.

⁽p) See Camb. Comp. pp. 80, &c. Where the usance is the same with other countries as with London, it will be found under that head. The places where no usances are established are also there specified.

⁽k) 2 Ela. Com. 141; Lacon v. Hooper, 6 T. R. 225; 1 Esp. 249, S. C.; Castle v. Burditt, 3 T. R. 623; The King v. Adderley, 207; Dougl. 464; Crook v. McTavish, 1 Bing. 307;

⁽¹⁾ Crenshaw v. Kiernan, 1 Minor, 295; Eldridge v. Rogers, Idem, 392; Brown v. Lush, 4 Yorg. 210; Bank of Alexandria v. Swann, 9 Peters, 33; Fulton Company v. Wright, 12 Louis. Rep. 386; Church v. Clark, 21 Pick. Rep. 310; Farmer's Bank v. Duvall, 7 Gill & John. 78.

month; thus, on a bill dated the 28th, 29th, 30th, or 31st January, and pay- I. Of Preable one month after date, the time expires on the 28th of February in com- sentment mon years, and in the three latter cases, in leap year on the 29th(n). the time is computed by days, the day on which the event happens is to be sthly, excluded(o).

Present-

When a bill or note purports to be payable so many days after sight, the ment. days are computed from the day the bill was accepted, or the note present- When ed, exclusively thereof(1), and not from the date of the bill or note, or the Bills or day the same came to hand, or was presented for acceptance (p); for the Notes payable after right must appear in a legal way, which is either by the parties accepting the Sight due. bill, or by protest for non-acceptance (q)(2). *And in the case of a bank post [*374] bill, which is really a promissory note, and in case of a note payable after sight, though the maker has sight of the instrument when he makes it, yet a distinct and subsequent presentment must afterwards be made, and the time of payment is reckoned from the day of presentment, exclusive thereof (r). So a note payable at sight must be presented, though it be also expressed to be payable on demand(s).

In most countries, when a bill is payable at one or more usances, or a bill Of Days or note is payable at a certain time after date, or after sight, or after de- when almand, it is not payable at the precise time mentioned in the bill or note, but lowed. days of grace are allowed(t). The days of grace (at Hamburgh called res- their numpite days), which are allowed to the drawee, are so called, because they how calcuwere formerly merely gratuitous and not to be claimed as a right by the per-lated. son on whom it was incumbent to pay the bill, and were dependent on the inclination of the holder: they still retain the name of grace, though the custom of merchants, recognized by law, has long reduced them to a certainty, and established a right in the acceptor to claim them, in most cases of foreign or inland bills or notes payable at usance, or after date(u), or after sight(v), or (n) Mar. 75; Kyd, 6.

(o) Bellasis v. Hester, Lord Raym. 280, (Ch. j. 204). When not, 15 Ves. 248; 9 B. & C. 134, 603.

(p) But see in case of acceptance supra protest, ante, 349, 2 & 3 Will. 4, c. 98.

(q) Campbell v. French, 6 T. R. 212, (Ch. j. 541); Com. Dig. tit. Merchant, F. 7; see Anonymous, Lutw. 1591. It was formerly holden otherwise; Bellasis r. Hester, 1 Lord Raym. 280; Lutw. 1589; Nelson's Id. 506, by two justices against one. See Bayl. 5th ed. 250; but now see May v. Cooper, Fortes. 376; Coleman v. Sayer, 1 Barnard, K. B. 303; I.ester v. Garland, 15 Ves. 254; Roscoe on Bills, 152, 154.

(r) Sturdy v. Henderson, 4 Bar. & Ald.

512, (Chit. j. 1110).

(a) Dixon v. Nuttall, 1 C. M. & R. 307; 6 C. & P. 820, S. C.; ante, 365, note (i).

(t) Brown v. Harraden, 4 T. R. 141, (Chit. j. 470); Leftley v. Milla, 4 T. R. 170, (Chit. j. 473); Marius, 76.

(u) Brown v. Harraden, 4 T. R. 151, 752, (Chit. j. 470). Terme de grace, n'est terme de grace que de nom, parce que c'est humanitatis ratione qu'elle l'accorde, et pour le distinguer de celui porté par la lettre; il est réellement terme de droit, puisque c'est la loi qui le donne. Poth. pl. 187. See Coleman v. Saver, 1 Barnard, Rep. B. R. 303, (Chit. j. 267); Vin. Ab. tit. Bills of Exchange, b. 9. In Brown v. Harraden, 4 T. R. 151, it was said to have been once decided, that days of grace are not allowable on inland bills.

(v) Coleman v. Sayer, 1 Barnardiston, K. B. 303, (Chit. j. 267); Beawes, pl. 256; Left-lev v. Mills, 4 T. R. 170, (Chit. j. 473); Bellasis v. Hester, 2 Ld. Raym. 280, (Chit. j. 204).

(2) \(\text{Where a bill is made payable after sight, a protest for non-acceptance, and due notice to all parties is indispensable to make them liable. Higgins v. Morrison's Ex'r 4 Dana, 102. \(\)

⁽¹⁾ The same rule is recognized in the United States. Henry r. Jones, 8 Mass. Rep. 452. Woodbridge v. Brigham, 12 Mass. Rep. 403. Jackson v. Richards, 2 Caines' Rep. 343. See Avery r. Stewart, 2 Conn. Rep. 69. Leffingwell v. White, 1 John. Cas. 99. See Loring v. Halling, 15 John. Rep. 120. And a bill payable at so many days after sight, means so many days after legal sight, that is, so many days after the acceptance, for that is the sight to which the bill refers. Mitchel v. Daggard 0 Masson's Rep. 176. the bill refers. Mitchel v. Degrand, 9 Mason's Rep. 176.

for Payment.

1. Of Pre-after a certain event, or even when expressly made payable on a particular day(x)(1), or even at sight(y); but not when expressly made payable on demand(z).

5thly, Time of Presentment.

The number of these days varies according to the ancient custom or express law prevailing in each particular country(a). Various alterations in the days of grace allowed in the time of Beawes having been introduced by the Code Napoleon, a table of the several days of grace as now prevailing, and acknowledged to be most accurate, is subjoined(b).—

(x) In Brown v. Harraden, 4 T. R. 148. (Ch. j. 470), the note was expressly made payable on the 2d November, and it was held that the maker was nevertheless entitled to three days grace. In the case of Griffin v. Goff, 12 Johnson's Rep. (America), a promissory note was drawn, dated 12th August, 1814, payable to defendant or bearer on 1st December, the court held it was not demandable until the third day of grace; and notice of non-payment on 1st December was a nullity and judgment was given for the defendant.

- (y) Post, 376. (z) Post, 377.
- (a) Beawes, pl. 260.
- (b) See Freese's Camb. Comp. Part ii.

(1) The days of grace as allowed in England, are generally allowed in the United States. At least no traces can be found of a contrary decision, except in in the state of Massachusetts, where it is held, that no days of grace are allowable unless stipulated in the contract itself.

Jones v. Fales, 4 Mass. Rep. 245. In New York and in Pennsylvania the days of grace are certainly allowed. Corp v. M'Comb, 1 John. Cas. 328. Jackson v. Richards, 2 Caines' Rep. 343. Lewis v. Burr, 2 Caines' Ca. in Err. 195. Bank of North America v. Petit, 4 Dal. Rep. 127. 5 Binn. Rep. 541. { And in Tennessee, Alabama, New Hampshire, Vermont, Indiana, Louisiana, and Maryland, as well as in the United States courts. Brown v. Lush, 4 Yerg. 210; Crenshaw v. M'Kiernan, 1 Minor, 295; Eldridge v. Rogers, Idem, 392; Leavitt v. Simes, 3 N. Hamp. 14; Ripley v. Greenleaf, 2 Verm. 129; Pratt v. Eads, 1 Blackf. 81; Kenner and al. v. Their creditors, 20 Martin's Louis. R. 36. Fulton Company v. Wright, 12 Louis. Rep. 386; Farmers' Bank v. Duvall, 7 Gill & John. 78: Bank of Alexandria v. Swann, 9 Peters, 38.

By the usage of banks in a particular place, the payment of a promissory note or bill of exchange may be demanded on the fourth day after the time of payment. Renner v. Bank of Columbia, 9 Wheat. 581. Bank of Washington v. Triplett, 1 Peters, 25. Mills r. Bank of the U. States, 11 Wheat. 431. And this usage forms a part of the law of the contract; and is binding on the parties, although they be not acquainted with its existence.

A bill drawn payable at five days after sight, and accepted on the first day of a month, is payable on the ninth of the same month, the day of the acceptance being excluded, and three days of grace allowed, a demand on the eighth, and protest for non-payment is too early, and therefore void. Mitchell v. Degrand, 1 Mason's Rep. 176.

The three days of grace are allowable as between the maker and holder of a promissory note. Hogan v. Cuyler, 8 Cowen, 203.

Days of grace are allowed upon bills single, such instruments having been made negotiable, and put upon the same footing with bills of exchange and promissory notes, by the act of 1786. Love v. Nelson, 1 Mart. & Yerg. 237.

An action brought against the maker of a promissory note on the third day of grace, is prematurely brought, and advantage may be taken of the error on the trial by non-suiting the plaintiff, Osborne r. Moncure, 8 Wend. 170.

The maker has the whole of the third day of grace in which to make payment, though notice to the indorser on the third day of grace, after demand and default of payment by the maker, is good: such notice, however, need not be given until the following day.

The days of grace on negotiable notes constitute a part of the original contract; and the negotiability of the note is as unrestricted during those days, as before their commencement. The Savings bank of New Haven v. Bates, 8 Conn. Rep. 505.

If on a comparison of the day of acceptance, the day designated for payment, and the tenor of the bill, it appears the days of grace were included with those of sight, between the day of acceptance and that designated for payment, that day is the percentory one of payment, and protest on that day is legal. Kenner & al. v. Their creditors, 20 Martin's Louis. Rep. 86; and see 1 Louisiana Rep. 120.

The demand of payment on the drawee of a bill of exchange, in order to charge the drawer in case of non-payment, must be made on the third day of grace. Pratt v. Eads, 1 Blackford's

Rep. 81.

Where the maker of a note is entitled to grace, the endorser has the same privilege. Central Bank v. Allen, 16 Maine Rep. 41.

A note made payable on a particular day, without defalcation, is entitled to the usual days of grace—those words in plying merely that the note is to be paid without any diminution, or claim to set-off, or otherwise. McDonald v. Lee's Adm'r, 12 Louis. Rep. 435. }

Of Pre-

.21

3

b

...

.....

At 113 w. e 20 Rep Kep 52, 21% 33. i. 6 3-6; 1 11 100

. 1

11 dass

here

1,014

-ble

1,54

ATT S

Hill.

10110 ei, $

The

er of 10

Altona(c).	Sundays and holidays included, and bills falling due on a Sunday or holiday must be paid, or in default thereof protested, on the day previous	$\left.\begin{array}{c} \\ \\ \end{array}\right\} 12 \ \mathrm{days}(d)$	I. Of Pre- sentment for Pay-
America(e).		. 3 days.	ment.
Amsterdam.	Abolished since the Code Napoleon	. none.
*Anlwerp.	Abolished by the Code Napoleon	. none.	5thly, Berlin.	When bills including them do not fall due on a Sanday, or)	Time of holiday, in which case they must be paid or protested the day previous	8 days.	Present- ment.
Brazil.	Rio de Janeiro, Bahia, including Sundays, &c. as in the last	} 15 days.	[*375]
England, Sc	otland, Wales, and Ireland	8 days.
France.	Abolished by the Code Napoleon, Livre 1, tit. 8, sec. 5, pl. 135;) ·
	1 Pardess. 189 Ten days were formerly allowed; Poth. pl. 14, 15	none.
Frankfort on the Main.	Except on bills drawn at sight, Sundays and holidays not in-	4 days.
Genoa.	Abolished by the Code Nupoleon	none.
Hamburgh(e)	. Same as Altona	12 days.
Ireland.		8 days.
Leghorn(f).		none.
Lisbon and) 15 days on local and 6 on foreign bills; but if not previously ac- ?	6 days, or
Oporto.	cepted, must be paid on the day they fall due .	15 days.
Naples.	Abolished by the Code Napoleon	none.
Palermo.		none.
	Bills drawn after date are entitled to 10 days grace, those drawn at sight to only 3 days, and those at any number of days after sight none whatever. But bills received and presented after they are due, are nevertheless entitled to 10 days grace. In these days of grace are included Sundays and holidays, as also the day when the bill falls due, on which days they cannot be protested for non-payment, but on the morning of the last day of grace payment must be demanded, and if not complied with, the bill must be protested before sunset	10 days. 8, & c.

(c) In Camb. Comp. 90, it is said that respectable houses, or those which have any regard for their credit, do not avail themselves of any days of grace; and that, indeed, to do so would be considered as almost equivalent to having stopped payment. And see 1 Kelly's Camb. Comp. 206.

(d) Sometimes only eleven days. And see post, 875, note (e).

(e) The same rules prevail in the United States as in England, see Payl 15, Amer. edit.

(c) Kyd, 9; Beawes, pl. 260; Bayl. 5th ed. 245, 246. According to the Hamburgh Ordinance, Article 16, Iwelve days are allowed. In a late case, however, it was proved, that although the holder of a bill is not bound to present the bill for payment until the eleventh day after the time limited for its payment, where the eleventh is a post-day, yet if the eleventh be not a post-day, he must present it by the next preceding post-day. Goldsmith v. Shee, C. P. cor. Lord Eldon, 20th Dec. 1799. Bayl. 5th edit. 246, (Chit. j. 619). A bill for 5001, drawn on Katter, at Hamburgh, at three usances, was dated 25th June, 1799; it was presented for payment on 4th of October, which was a post-day. In an action by the indorsees against the payee, the defence was, that the presentment was improper; but it was proved in evidence as a settled usage, at Hamburgh, that although it is usual to pay bills on the day they become due, the holder may, if he pleases, keep them a certain number of days called respite days, and that the number of respite days is eleven, where the eleventh is a post-day; but where the eleventh is not a post-day, the respite days extend to the preceding post-day only, the holder being obliged at his peril to protest, and send off the pretest by the eleventh day. Verdict for the plaintiffs. But it is observed (Bayl, 5th edit. 246), that this is not consistent with the Hamburgh Ordinance, Article 17, in which it is stated, that the holders may postpone the protest until the twelfth day, if it be not a Sunday or a holiday.

And in another case it was held, that where a bill is drawn on a person resident at a place near Hamburgh, the holder need not present it until the eleventh day, although the eleventh day, be not a post-day.

Goldsmith v. Bland, C. P. cor. Lord Eldon, 1st March, 1800, (Chit. j. 625). A bill for 9981 9s. 9d. drawn on Treverainus, of Bremen, but pavable in Hamburgh, at three months, was dated 15th June, 1799; it was not presented or protested until the 26th of September, which was not a post-day; another bill for 2611. 7s. 2d. addressed to Voeg, in Lubeck, payable in Hamburgh, at three months, was dated 26th June, 1799; it was not presented or protested until 7th October, which was not a post-day. In an action on these bills against the defendants, as indorsers, it was proved that it was optional in the holder of a bill at Hamburgh, whether he would present and protest it on the post-day, before the eleventh day after the day limited for its payment, the eleventh not being a post-day; or whether he would keep it until the eleventh; and one witness proved, that where the drawee lived at Lubeck or Bremen, it was the constant usage to keep the bill until the eleventh, whether it was a post-day or not, there being posts from Lubeck and Bremen and Hamburgh every day; Bayl. 5th edit. 246.

(f) In Camb. Comp. 135, it is observed, that bills falling due on a holiday must be paid,

18 Ш

> 1 ġ

	Rio De Ja- neiro, Ba hia and oth er parts of Brazil. *Rotterdam. Scotland(f).	Days of g days, s thereof Abolished b	nd if du proteste	d, on th	y such le previ	day, m	ust be	holiday paid, or	and Sun- in default	15 days. none. i 8 days.
	Spain.	Vary in different on inland drawn at lowed. I nor are as	bills; a a certain Bills drav ny bills, n	t Cadis date, fi vn at sig unless ac	, only xed or tht are a ccepted	6 days precise ot enti prior to	grace, no da tled to matur	. Who ys of gr any day rity	en bills are ace are al- es of grace;	14 days, but vary.
	Trieste.	maturity are includ	r payabl must be led in the day, pa	e on a p paid w days of yment n	erticularithin 24 grace, nust be	r day; I bours and if	but b . Sun the las	ills pres days ar it day o	ot less than bented after ad holidays f grace fall otested, on	8 days.
	Venice.	6 days, in v	vbich Su	ndays, h		, and th	ie days	when t	be Bank is	6 days.
	Wales. Vienna.	shut, are Same as Tr				:	•	:	•	8 days. 8 days.

On bank post bills payable after sight, it has been said, that no days of grace are claimed(g), but they are certainly claimable(h)(1). It appears formerly to have been the practice, that whenever a bill was drawn payable to the Excise, they allowed six days beyond the three days of grace, if required by the acceptor, on payment of one shilling to the clerk at the expiration of the six days, for his trouble; and in a case where the Commissioners of Excise, being the payees of such a bill, gave the drawee the above time, Lord Mansfield decided, that as this custom was a general one, engrafted on such bills, and known universally, the drawer was not discharged by such in-But the practice of the Excise allowing any exdulgence to the drawee(i). tra days of grace does not now prevail(k).

The days of grace which are allowed on a bill of exchange must always be computed according to the law of the place where it is due(l). At Hamburgh, the day on which the bill falls due makes one of the days of grace, but it is not so elsewhere (m).

Bills at sight entitled to Days of Grace.

With respect to a bill payable at sight, though from the very language of the instrument it should seem that payment ought to be made immediately on presentment, this does not appear to be so settled. The decisions and the treatises differ on the question, whether or not days of grace are allowed. In France, Pothier(n), enumerating the various kinds of bills, and writing at or protested in default thereof, the day previous; but that the Jews are permitted to postpone the payment on their holidays, even when two or more occur successively, till the subsequent day: at the same time it is said, that the most respectable houses of this persuasion do not avail themselves of such privilege. And see 1 Kelly's Camb. Comp. 206.

(f) The three days of grace allowed by the custom of merchants for payment of bills of exchange are allowable on bills drawn and payable in Scotland; the limitation of an action on such bill, therefore, only begins to run from the third or last day of grace. Fergusson v.

Douglas, 6 Bro. P. C. 276, 11th Nov. 1796.

 (g) Lovelass, 247.
 (h) Ante, 374, note (r), and Sturdy v. Henderson, 4 Bar. & Ald. 512, (Chit. j. 1110).

(i) Wilford v. Hankin, at Guildhall, Sittings after Hilary Term, 1763, MS.; 1 Esp. Dig. Ni. Pri. 4th edit. 714; Roscoe, 164, but not now the practice.

(k) So stated on inquiry at the Excise Office.

(1) Kvd, 8.

(m) Beawes, pl. 260; Kyd, 9; Selw. N. P. 9th edit. 350, note 11.

(n) Pl. 12, 172, 198; and see 1 Pardess. 446.

^{(1) {} A bank post-note was made payable in a certain period of time, with interest "until due, and no interest after" and a memorandum on the margin stated that it was "due" on a day named, which was the last day of such period. It was held that the bank was entitled to the days of grace on such note. Perkins e. Franklin Bank. 21 Pick. 483.

ART 1.

44

4 dans et rur

i depe

idn

1378

211

أه وياءفي

: 215

۾ڙڙ ج

, il re-

√ 13.

, pers

ied 09

on in ac er.

ize of 1. 00

i the wed.

ng at Tes-

Ing.

a time when days of grace were allowed in France, states that a bill payable 1. Of Proat sight is payable as soon as the bearer presents it to the drawee; but in contract another part of his work(o), it appears that this opinion is founded on the ment. words of a particular French ordinance, which cannot extend to bills payable in this country; however, he assigns as a reason that it would be inconven- 5thly. ient if a person who took a bill at sight, payable in a town through which he Presentmeant to travel, and the payment of which he stands in need of for the pur-ment. pose of continuing his journey, should be *obliged to wait till the expiration [*377] of the days of grace after he presented the bill; a reason obviously as applicable to the case of a bill drawn payable at sight in this as in any other country; and in France, a bill payable at a fair, is due the day before the last day of such fair(p). In Spain, days of grace are not allowed when bills are drawn payable at sight, nor indeed on any bill not previously accepted(q). Beawes, in his Lex Mercatoria(r), says, that bills made payable here at sight have no days of grace allowed, although it would be otherwise in the case of a bill made payable one day after sight. Kyd, in his Treatise(s), expresses the same opinion. But it appears now to be considered as settled that days of grace are to be allowed (t). In Dehers v. Harriott (u) it was taken for granted that days of grace were allowable on a bill payable at sight. The same doctrine was entertained in Coleman v. Sayer(x). And in another case(y), where the question was, whether a bill payable at sight was included under an exception in the Stamp Act, 23 Geo. 3, c. 49, s. 4, in favour of bills payable on demand, the court held that it was not; and Buller, J. mentioned a case before Willes, C. J. in London, in which a jury of merchants were of opinion, that the usual days of grace were to be allowed on bills payable at sight. And in Forbes on Bills the same practice is said to prevail(z). And Mr. Selwyn, in his Nisi Prius, observes, that the weight of authority is in favour of such allowance (a). And they were allowed on such bills at Amsterdam (b).

But instruments expressed to be payable on demand, or having no time of But checks payment expressed, as in the case of bankers' notes and checks, are payable and Notes instantly on presentment, without any allowance of days of grace(c); and Demand the presentment for payment of such instruments must be made within a not entitled reasonable time after the receipt of them, usually the next day(d)(1).

And to Days of

(o) Id. pl. 172.

(p) 1 Pardess. 352, 353.

(q) Camb. Comp. 124, and see ante, 376, in list, tit. Spain.

(r) Pl. 256.

(s) Page 10.

(t) It is now stated, that a bill payable at sight is not to be considered as a bill payable on demand, but is entitled to days of grace. Bayl. 5th edit. 98, refers to J'Anson r. Thomas, B. R. Trin. Term, 24 Geo. 3, (Chit. j. 426); ante, 115, note (y); and see Roscoe, 164. A bill payable on demand at sight must be presented; Dixon r. Nuttall, 1 C. M. & R. 307, ante, 365, note (i); but as in that case there had not been any presentment it became unnecessary to decide whether days of grace were to be allowed.

(u) Dehers v. Harriot, 1 Show. 163, (Chit. j. 485); Mod. Ent. 316.

(x) Coleman r. Sayer, Barnard. Rep. B. R. 303, (Chit. j. 267); Vin. Abr. tit. Bills of Ex change.

(y) J'Anson v. Thomas, B. R. Trin. Term' 24 Geo. 3; 3 Dougl. 421; Bayl. 5th ed. 98, (Chit. j. 426); ante, 115, note (y).

(z) Forbes on Bills, 142.

(a) Selw. 9th edit. 351.

(b) Forbes, 107

(c) Moyser v. Whitall, 9 Bar. & C. 409; Dans. & Ll. 216, (Chit. j. 1431); Bayl. 5th edit. 98; Sutton v. Toomer, 7 Bur. & C. 416; 1 Man. & Ry. 125, (Chit. j. 1352).

(d) Selw. 9th edit. 351; post, 379, &c.

^{(1) {} As to what is a reasonable time for the presentment of a bank check, see Harker s. Anderson, 21 Wend. 372. The holder of a check can recover of the endorser only when he has used due diligence in presenting and giving notice of demand and non-payment. Where the parties all reside in the same place the check should be presented on the day it is received, or the day after, and when payable at a different place from that in which it is negotiated, it should be for-

Ŧį.

71

Gi

ú

Ŋ,

for Payment.

I. Of Pre- a country banker's deposite-note given in this peculiar form, "payable with interest to the day of acceptance," is payable immediately on presentment, without any days of grace(e)(1).

5thly, Time of Presentment.

(e) Sutton v. Toomer, 7 B. & C. 416; 1 M. & Ry. 125, S. C.

warded by the mail on the same or the next day, for presentment. Smith r. Jones, 20 Wend. No greater diligence is necessary in presenting checks for payment than is required in relation to bills of exchange. Ibid. Where, by the course of the mail the check may be presented in three days, but the holder keeps it in his possession seven or eight days, he is chargeable with a want of due diligence. Ibid.

A demand on the maker of a note payable on demand, made on the seventh day from the date, has been held, in Massachusetts, to be within a reasonable time to charge the endorser. Seaber

r. Lincoln, 21 Pick. 267. }

(1) The same rules have been recognized in the United States. A note which expresses no time of payment, is by law payable immediately. Herrick r. Bennett, 8 John. Rep. 374. Thompson r. Ketcham, 8 John. Rep. 189. Field v. Nickerson, 13 Mass. Rep. 131. r. Blytherwood, Rice's Law Rep. 245. And checks and notes payable on demand, must be demanded within a reasonable time. Freeman v. Haskins, 2 Caines' Rep. 369. Cruger v. Armstrong, 3 John. Cas. 5. Conroy v. Warren, 3 John. Cas. 859. Murray v. Judah, 6 Cowen, { Mohawk Bank v. Broderick, 10 Wend. 304; Vreeland v. Hyde, 2 Hall, 429. }

The drawer of a check is not liable to suit before demand upon the drawee; but no particular time for demand is fixed. Murray v. Judah, at supra. \ Brown r. Lusk, 4 Yerg, 210. \ But if the drawer of the check sustain no injury by the delay, as where the bank has always remained in good credit, and the drawer has defeated the payment of the check by withdrawing his funds from the bank, he cannot object to a delay in presenting it. Ibid. Murray v. Judah, ut supra. If a creditor receive an order on a third person for his debt, and neglect to present it for payment in a reasonable time, the drawer will be discharged. Brower v. Jones, 3 John. Rep. 203, and see Tucker v. Manwell, 11 Mass. Rep. 143.

A note payable on demand is not entitled to any days of grace, but an action may be brought on it immediately without any other demand. Cammer v. Harrison, 2 M'Cord, 246.

Where a bill is drawn payable at sight or a certain number of days after sight, there is no fixed rule for its presentment, but the holder is bound to use due diligence and put the note into circulation. Robertson v. Ames, 20 Johns. 146. But presentment must be made within a reasonable time; and what is a reasonable time is a question of law, under the circumstances of each particular case, and not a question of fact for the jury. Aymar r. Beers, 7 Cowen, 705. Where a promissory note is payable on demand with interest, demand and notice must be made and given within a reasonable time after date. Sice v Cunningham, 1 Cowen, 397. Martin v. Winslow, 2 Mason, 241. And where such note is made and negotiated in the ordinary way without any agreement or understanding among the parties as to the time when it is to be paid, and all the parties reside in the same city, five months is not a reasonable time. Ibid. But such agreement between the original parties, not communicated to the indorser will not bind him. Ibid. And any offer by the inderser to give his own note in satisfaction of the indersed note, is not a waiver of notice, unless the offer is accepted at the time by the holder. Ibid. In Winslow v. Martin, 2 Mason, 141, a neglect to demand payment of a note payable on demand, for seven months, was held an unreasonable delay, and discharged the indorser: and that a promise to pay with a full knowledge of all the facts was binding on the indorser, although otherwise discharged: if he promised in ignorance of material facts affecting his rights, it was not a waiver of those rights

Where the defendant drew a bill of exchange on the 11th of June, on A. in N. York, in favor of the plaintiff, payable three days after sight; and sometimes during the month of June, the plaintiff went to N. York, and resided in the house of A. until the 24th of August, when the note was protested, and notice of non-payment and the failure of A. sent to the defendant; it was held, that the plaintiff, by his laches, had discharged the drawer. Fernandez v. Lewis, 1 M'Cord,

If the maker of a check has no funds in the bank upon which it is drawn at the date of the check, it is not necessary for the holder to present such check at bank for payment, in order to enable him to sustain an action upon it against the maker. Franklin &c. v. Vanderpool, 1 Hall's Rep. 78.

The drawing of a check under such circumstances is, when unexplained, a fraud which deprives the maker of all right to require presentment and demand of payment. Ibid.

Where an injunction from chancery, under the act to prevent fraudulent bankruptcies by incorporated companies, was served upon a bank half an hour after it opened for business, by which its operations were suspended, it was held that the holder of the check, received after banking hours, on the preceding day, was not bound to show a presentment of the check for payment, to entitle him to recover upon the original consideration, although it appeared that the drawer had sufficient funds in the bank to pay the check, and that it would have been paid, had it been presented before the service of the injunction. Lovett r. Cornwell et al., 6 Wend. Rep. 869.

Digitized by Google

111 1.

e wa

11/2

1 2 74-

.~256 . . . 1

re iri.

7:30

·~~~ 18

r 5.4

. . . x

- -- 1

1 70

1

\ Bat

1-131 . 🔩 🔰

h. J. 54-orth for at Rep

terrall.

e Era

1 1/118

th naf-ljure 1

3.01M

, post.

101.00

الد نهن

1276

. . . .

e ti to bit

1675 g fir

i. the n the

: 1525

`ord,

11/14

er to

J]]`$ de jet

151d , re. 1

In this country, at common law, if the day on which a bill would other- I. Of Prowise be due falls on a Sunday, or a great holiday, as Christmas-day, the sentment bill falls due on the day before; and where a third day of grace falls on a ment. Sunday, the bill must be presented on Saturday, the second day of grace(f): whereas, otherwise, a presentment on a second *day of grace, being preTime of mature, would be a nullity (g). And by 39 & 40 Geo. 3, c. 42, s. 1, Presentwhere bills of exchange and promissory notes become due and payable on ment. Good Friday, the same shall, from and after the 1st day of June (1800), be Consepayable on a day before Good Friday; and the holder or holders of such guences of Bills, &c. bills of exchange or promissory notes may note and protest the same for non- due on a

Ld. Raym. 743, (Chit. j. 192); Heynes r. Birks, 8 Bos & Pul. 599, (Chit. j. 690); Kyd. 9; Mar, 95, 96. But a declaration stating under a videlicet the presentment for payment on a

(f) Mar. 2d edit. 25; Tassell r. Lewis, 1 Sunday is not bad; Bynner r. Russell, 1 Bing. Unristinas day, Good 23; 7 Moore, 267, (Chit. j. 1151). (g) Wiffen r. Roberts, 1 Esp. Rep. 262, (Chit. j. 536); ante, 369, note (z).

Sunday, Christinas-Friday, Fast or Thanks> giving-day, &c.

The delivery of a bank check by one bank to the parter of another bank upon which the check [*378] is drawn, and the return of the same as not good, accompanied by evidence of the invariable practice of the porter to present checks thus received, and to return them, if dishonored, on the same day that they are delivered to him, is sufficient proof of presentment, to authorize the submission of the case to the jury. The Merchants' Bank v. Spicer, 6 Wend. Rep. 443.

A bank check need not be presented on the day it is received. Ib.

The initials of the name of the holder of a bank check, indorsed on the check, are enough to charge him as indorser. Ib.

A check on a bank for the payment of money, to charge an indorser, must be presented with all dispatch and diligence consistent with the transactions of other commercial concerns; and it was accordingly held, where a check was received in Schenectady on the 14th January, drawn on a bank in Albany, a distance of sixteen miles from the former place, and between which places there is a daily mail, and not presented until the 6th February, that laches was imputable to the holder, and that the indorser was discharged. Mohawk Bank r. Broderick, 10 Wend. Rep 304.

It seems, had the check in this case been sent to Albany on the fifteenth day of January, and presented on the next day and notice given, the endorser would have been held liable. Ib.

Although it is said that checks are like inland bills of exchange, and are to be governed by the same principles, greater diligence is required in presenting them than in presenting bills of exchange. Ib.

A demand of payment of a check from the drawee, must be shown in an action by the holder against the indorser although the drawer had no funds in the hands of the drawee, nor any reasonable expectation that his draft would be paid; under such circumstances, in an action against the drawer, a demand would not be necessary. Ib.

A check post duted is not like a bill of exchange, payable on a particular day; the only effect of its post-date is, that it is payable on demand, on or after the day on which it purports to bear date. Ih.

Inland hills of exchange and promissory notes payable on demand, must be demanded within a reasonable time; what shall be deemed reasonable time depends on the circumstances of each particular case. Ib.

In the United States, wherever days of grace are allowed, if the third day be a Sunday, or a holiday, as the fourth of July, the bill is due on the second day of grace. Jackson v. Richards, 2 Caines' Rep. 343. Lewis v. Burr, Caines' Ca. in Err. 195. Griffin r. Goff, 2 John. Rep. 423. Farnum v. Fowle, 12 Muss. Rep. 89. But in this last case the court expressed a doubt, if in Massachusetts, the principle applied to any other day except Sunday, as there are no fixed and established holidays, on which all business is suspended. See Jones v. Fales, 4 Mass Rep. 245. See also Johnson v. Haight & Matthews, 15 John Rep. 470, and Griffin v. Goff, 12 John. Rep. 423.

That if the third day of grace fall on Sunday presentment for payment should be made on Saturday, see Bussard v. Levering, 6 Wheat. 102. Furnam v. Harman, 2 M'Cord, 436.

| Ontario Bank v. Petrie, 3 Wend. 456; Mech's. & Farmer's Bank v. Gibson, 7 Wend. 460.

During the Christmas holidays vessels are not allowed to clear out the Havanna; it seems therefore, that during the continuance of the holidays, it is not necessary to write a notice of the dishonour of a bill, to be sent to a foreign port. Martin v. Ingersoll, 8 Pickering's Rep. 1.

The holder of a dishonoured note is excused from giving notice of non-payment to the indorser on the fourth of July. Cuyler v. Stevens, 4 Wend. Rep. 566. And per Sutherland, J. "The reason in all these cases why a demand on the second day of grace is good, is, that the third day is, either by law or by general or universal custom, not a day of business; and if it be not a day of business for the purpose of demanding or receiving payment of a note, I should apprehend the holder would also be excused from giving notice to the inderser on that day." Ib.

PART I.

Æ

M

16

Li

'n.

3

11

15

ĘŢ.

2

بي

11

Ę

٤

Ţ

7

¥

1

Ľ

ă

į

I. Of Presentment for Payment.

5thly, Time of Presentment.

payment, on the day preceding Good Friday, in like manner as if the same had fallen due and become payable on the day preceding Good Friday; and such noting and protests shall have the same effect and operation at law, as if such bills and promissory notes had fallen due and become payable on the day preceding Good Friday, in the same manner as is usual in cases of bills and notes coming due on the day before any Lord's day, commonly called Sunday, and before the feast of the Nativity or Birth-day of our Lord, commonly called Christmas-day.

So with regard to fast days, it is enacted by 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 15, s. 2, that from and after the 10th day of April, 1827, in all cases where bills of exchange or promissory notes shall become due and payable on any day appointed by his majesty's proclamation for a day of solemn fast or a day of thanksgiving, the same shall be payable on the day next preceding such day of fast or a day of thanksgiving; and, in case of non-payment, may be noted and protested on such preceding day, and that, as well in such cases as in the cases of bills of exchange and promissory notes becoming due and payable on the day preceding any such day of fast or day of thanksgiving: and it shall not be necessary for the holder or holders of such bills of exchange and promissory notes to give notice of the dishonour thereof until the day next after such day of fast or day of thanksgiving: and that whensoever such day of fast or day of thanksgiving shall be appointed on a Monday, it shall not be necessary for the holder or holders of such bills of exchange or promissory notes, as shall be payable on the preceding Saturday, to give notice of the dishonour thereof until the Tuesday next after such day of fast or day of thanksgiving respectively; and that every such notice, so given as aforesaid, shall be valid and effectual to all intents and purposes. And by section 3, it is enacted, that from and after the said 10th day of April, 1827, Good Friday and Christmas-day, and every such day of fast or thanksgiving, so appointed by his majesty, is and shall, for all other purposes whatsoever, as regards bills of exchange and promissory notes, be treated and considered as the Lord's day, commonly called Sunday. By section 4, the act is not to extend to Scotland(h). In France also, if a bill be payable on a great public fête day, payment is demandable the day before(i). In Great Britain and Ireland, (and in Amsterdam, Rotterdam, Antwerp, Middleburgh, Dantzic, and Koningsberg, whilst days of grace were allowed in those places) Sundays and holidays are always included in the days of grace, unless the last; but not so at Venice, Cologne, Breslau, and Nuremberg(k).

Summar when Bills and Notes tain must ed.

[379]

From these inquiries into the mode of calculating time and usances, and days of grace, in relation to bills, it appears, that the day of the date of the payable on bill or note, or in the case of bills after sight, the day of acceptance, is ala Day cer- ways to be excluded, and the usances or calendar months, or *weeks or days, are to be calculated from and exclusive of such days; and, with the exception of Hamburgh, the days of grace begin the day after the usances or months expire, and, if the last of the days of grace falls on a Sunday, Christmas-day, Good Friday, or legal fast or thanksgiving-day, the bill or note is due, and must be presented on the day before. Thus, if a bill be dated the 2d November, 1839, and be payable in England, at two months after date, the months expire on the 2d January, 1840, and, adding the three ⁽h) But see similar provisions with respect 851. to Ireland, 9 Geo. 4, c. 24, s. 9, 10, 11. And see 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 58, s. 2, as to the presentment of bills accepted supra protest, ante, days of grace, the bill falls due on the 5th of that month, and must be the 1. Of Pre-

⁽i) 1 Pardess. 189, 854. (k) Beawes, pl. 260; Kyd, 9.

:3

With respect to checks and promissory notes payable on demand, or payable generally, (in which case they are in law so payable whether they were 5thly, made by private persons or by country bankers,) the only general rule is, Time of that they must be presented for payment within a reasonable time after they Presentare issued(1).

It has been frequently disputed, whether it is the province of the court, payable on or of a jury, to determine upon the reasonableness of the time within which Demand, a note, payable on demand, should be presented for payment. Formerly it must be was thought, that it was entirely a question for a jury: but the verdicts, within a even of mercantile special juries, were found so contradictory, that for the reasonable sake of certainty it is now settled, that the reasonableness of the time for pre- Time. sentment, when cases precisely similar have occurred, and been decided up- Reasonaon, is entirely for the judge: and in new cases, and under particular new cir- ble Time cumstances, it is partly a question of fact, and partly of law. The jury are Question to find the facts, such as the distance at which the parties are from each of Law other, the course of the post, and other circumstances; but when the facts and Fact. have been ascertained, the reasonableness of the time is a question of law upon which the judge is to direct the jury (l)(2) though judges may take the opinion of a jury as to what is convenient with reference to mercantile transactions(m). This doctrine, though formerly by no means universally assented to(n), is founded upon the strongest principles of law(o); it is justified also in point of expediency, and to establish a fixed rule; for we find the most contradictory decisions of juries when the point was left to them.

Checks and Notes

(1) Ante, 369; Robson v. Bennett, 2 Taunt. 394; Tindal v. Brown, 1 T. R. 168, (Chit. j. 431); Darbishire v. Parker, 6 East, 3, 9, 10, 14, 16; 2 Smith, 195, (Chit. j. 707); Parker v. Gordon, 7 East, 386; 3 Smith, 358, 8 Esp. 41, (Chit. j. 727); Haynes v. Birks, 3
8 Esp. 41, (Chit. j. 727); Haynes v. Birks, 3
8 Esp. 59, (Chit. j. 690); Appleton v. Sweetapple, 1 Esp. Digest, 58, 69, 4th cdit. (Chit. j. 421); The King v. The Dean of St. Asuph, 3 T. R. 428, note (a): Maule v. Brown, 5 Scott, 694, 698; 4 Bing. N. C. 266, 8. C. In Fry v. Hill, 7 Taunt. 397, and Shute v. Rebins Mood. 8: M. 132 ante. 276, 277 v. Robins, Mood. & M. 133, ante, 276, 277, notes (e) and (f), it was held, that what is reasonable time for presenting a bill, payable after sight, for acceptance, is always a question of fact to be determined by a jury.

(m) Scott r. Lifford, 9 East, 847; 1 Camp.

246, (Chit. j. 747).
(n) Russell r. Langstaffe, Dougl. 515, (Chit. j. 415); Muilman r. D'Eguino, 2 Hen. Bla. 568, 569, (Chit j. 549); ante, 275, note (a); Hankey r. Trotman, 1 Bla. Rep. 1; (Chit. j. 320); Kyd, 41; Poth. pl. 140.
(c) Darbishire v. Parker, 6 East, 10; 2

Smith, 195, (Chit. j. 707).

(2) A demand of payment within three or four weeks after the transfer of a note over-duo when transferred, and notice of non-payment within two or three months after such demand, it seems, is sufficient to charge the indorser, where, from the facts of the case, it is manifest that an immediate demand or notice were not contemplated. Van Hoosen v. Van Alstyne, 3 Wend.

Rep. 75.

The sufficiency of notice of non-payment to an indorser, when the facts are conceded, is a

The indorsee of a note not negotiable, must follow the rules of the law merchant, in making demand of payment, and giving notice of non-payment, in reasonable time. Aldis and Gad-comb v. Johnson, 1 Vermont R. 186.

⁽¹⁾ The defendant indersed a promissory note, payable on demand, with interest and without default, made to secure the payment of a sum of money loaned to one of the makers, by the plaintiff. The note was not made for commercial purposes, nor was it ever negotiated, and the bolder resided out of the state of New York. At the end of 19 months from its date, demand of payment was made, which being refused, notice was given to the indorser, who claimed to be discharged by the laches of the holder. Held, that the rule requiring promissory notes, payable on demand, to be presented within a "reasonable time" is applicable, chiefly to those which are made for commercial purposes. That the present was to be likened to a case of guaranty or suretyship, and that the defendant was liable on his indorsement. Vreeland v. Hyde, 2 Hall's for Payment. 5thly, Time of Presentment.

1 *380]

1. Of Pre- Thus, in some cases, it was considered by juries, that the keeping of a check. or bill, payable on demand, three, four, or five days, was not too long(p); in another case it was holden, that the presentment must be made within two days(q); and in subsequent cases, that it should be made on the very day the same was received, and that even an hour was an unreasonable time (r): and the opinion of juries of merchants has *been, that a check on a banker, or a cash note, payable on demand, ought, if given in the place where it is payable, to be presented for payment on the same day it is received, if the distance or other circumstances will possibly allow(s). But it may be considered as settled, that the time when the presentment for payment must be made is in general a question of law: we have, therefore, now to examine what is the rule of law upon the subject.

Notes, &c. payable on Demand. need not be presented on same Day when received.

Upon this question it has been observed, that there is no other settled general rule, than that the presentment must be made within a reasonable time, which must be accommodated to other business and affairs of life, and that a party is not bound in any case to present a bill or note, payable on demand, on the same day it is issued or received by him(t); for a man ought not to be required to neglect every other business for the purpose of making so prompt a presentment; and it would be very inconvenient to have an inquiry in each particular case, whether or not the holder could conveniently have presented the instrument on the same day(u). And, as observed by Lord Mansfield, it would be unreasonable to suppose that a tradesman should be compelled to run about the town with half a dozen drafts, from Charing Cross to Lombard Street, on the same day; and he directed the jury to consider that twenty-four hours was the usual time allowed for the presentment for payment (x). The notion, however, that twenty-four hours was the limit is not the present rule; and it suffices, in all cases, for a party to present a bill or note, payable on demand, at any time during the hours of business on the day after he received it(y). But although this rule universally prevails between the party delivering and the party receiving from him a bill or note so payable, yet it must not be understood that the ultimate presentment for payment can be delayed for any indefinite time, by successive

(p) Phillips v. Phillips, 2 Freem. 247, (Chit. j. 209); Crowley r. Crawther, Id. 257, (Ch. j. 224).

(q) Mainwaring v. Harrison, 1 Stra. 508, (Chit. j. 250).

(r) Per Lord Mansfield, in Tindal v. Brown, 1 T. R. 168, 169, (Chit. j. 431); Hankey v. Trotman, 1 Bls. R. 1, (Chit. j. 320); Beawes, 229; Kyd, 45; Appleton v. Sweetapple, 1 Esp. Digest, 59, 4th edit. (Chit. j 421); post, 882, note (e); Pocklington v. Silvester, post, 885, note (b).

(s) Appleton v. Sweetapple, 1 Esp. Dig. 69, 4th edit.; post, 382 note (e); Russell v. Langstaffe, Dougl. 515, note (b), 110, (Chit. j. 415); Brown v. Collinson, Beawes, pl. 259; Kyd, 43, 45; Hankey v. Trotman, 1 Bla. Rep. 1, (Chit. j. 320).

(t) Darbishire v. Parker, 6 East, 4, 8, 9; 2

Smith, 195, (Chit. j. 707); Kyd, 129.

(u) Appleton v. Sweetapple, 3 Dougl. 137, M. T. 22 Geo. 3, S. C. cited in Bayley on Bills, 192; 1 Esp. Dig. 43, 4th edit. Where a bill, payable on demand, is taken in payment for goods, it is not necessary to present it the same day on which it is received. Semble, that reasonable time is a question of law. But as the jury had found otherwise twice, and the plaintiff had neglected to adopt the proper course for having the question put on the record, by demurrer to evidence or bill of exceptions, the court refused to interfere. See post, 182, note (e).

Medcalf v. Hall, 3 Dougl. 113, T. T. 22 Geo. 3. The not presenting a check upon a banker upon the same day on which it is recrived is not laches; and semble, that reasonable time is a question of law. The case of Hankey v. Trotman, t Bla. Rep 1, overruled. But the jury found two perverse verdicts, that the check ought to have been presented on the day it was received. See the reasoning, post, Ch. X. s. i. as to giving notice of non-payment on the day after a party receives notice of dishonour.

(x) Per Lord Mansfield, see Beawes, pl. 229; Kyd, 45, 127, 128; Ward v. Evans, 2 Lord Raym. 928; 2 Salk. 442, (Chit. j. 216); post, 381, note (c); Scott v. Lifford, 9 East, 347; 1 Campb. 246, (Chit. j. 747).

(y) Robson v. Bennett, 2 Taunt. 388, (Chit. j. 794); post, 385, note (c).

Digitized by Google

Pall I.

f read

0.751

3 '0 M

1 bi 100-

. . . . **. .

6/12/2

er utild 200

ું હું છે

14.1 JET

SAC

الله والله و

, graft

nud li

ŋ 🔆 👊

((3)

 $p \approx 10$

it:till*

rs 1125

jriv 10

أو وتها

الفيزية إ

Jan 2

e pre•

19976

11.19

ni de grepi ganti

32,

T. 22

919.4 41.16

, made

e of ded that

:þø

ost,

epi

موال

transfers between numerous parties, and by each party on the day after he I. Of Prehas received the bill or note, transferring it to another; for if there should sentment by that means be an unreasonable number of days occupied, the party or ment. parties first transferring the instrument, and other of the earlier parties, would 5thly, probably be considered discharged from liability, in case the bankers or per- Time of son who issued the note so payable should in the mean time fail; and no pru- Presentdent party should permit any delay in presentment, especially if there be the ment. least reason to doubt the solvency of the party to pay. It is perfectly clear, that if a party who has received such a bill for note does not on the next day [*381] present it, or forward it for presentment, in due time on the next day, nor transfer it, but locks it up or keeps it, he thereby forfeits all claim upon the person from whom he received it(z).

It seems, that with respect to the length of time bills and notes, payable on demand, may be kept in circulation, a distinction may be taken between the notes of a private individual and country banker's notes, and also with reference to the persons by and between whom they have been circulated, and it has been considered, that upon a bill or note, payable on demand, and given for cash, by a person who makes the profit by the money on such bills or notes a source of his livelihood (as is the case of country bankers issuing their notes), it is difficult to say what length of time such person shall be entitled to consider unreasonable; but that upon such bills or notes given by way of payment, or paid into a banker's, any time beyond what the common course This position is explained by a of business warrants, is unreasonable (a). recent case, where the defendants themselves, country bankers, transferred another country banker's bill, some days after they had kept it, to the plaintiff's traveller, who did not remit it to the correspondents for some days; and, on its being presented, it was dishonoured; and it was held, that the defendants were not discharged from liability, because, as Lord Tenterden observed, the character of the bill and the course of dealing must be attended to. was a bill by a country banker upon his London banker, and it did not seem unreasonable to treat such bills as not requiring immediate presentment, but as being retainable by the holders for use within a moderate time, as part of the circulating medium of the country; and the defendants themselves, by the time they kept it, shewed they so considered this bill, but he left it to the jury to say whether they thought the delay unreasonable or not, and they found for the plaintiff (b).

Upon a bill or note of this kind (i. e. payable on demand,) given by way of payment, the course of business formerly was to allow the party to keep it, if it was payable in or near the place where it was given, until the morning of the next day of business after it was received(c); *and according to (z) Beeching v. -—, Holt, C. N. P. 313, (Chit. j. 966); Bayl. 5th edit. 212; and see observations in Camidge v. Allenby, 6 Bar. & Cres. 373; 9 Dow. & Ry. 391, (Chit. j. 1319); ante, 356, note (a).

「382]

(a) Bayl. 5th edit. 236, refers to Turner v.

Mead, 1 Stra. 416, (Chit. j. 248), infra, n. (c). (b) Shute v. Robins, Mood. & Mal. 133; 3 Car. & P. 80, (Chit. j. 1368); ante. 277, note (f); and see Boehm v. Stirling, 7 T. R. 425; 2 Esp. 575, (Chit. j. 593); anle, 217, note (m); as to a party himself circulating a check long after its date.

(c) Bayl. 5th edit. 286; Ward r. Evans, 2 Lord Raym. 928; 2 Salk. 442, (Chit. j. 216). A banker's note was paid to the plaintiff' servant at noon, and presented for payment the next morning, at which time the banker stopped payment. On a case reserved, the court held it was presented in time, and judgment was given for the plaintiff.

Moore r. Warren, 1 Stra. 415, (Chit. j. 249). The defendant gave the plaintiff a banker's note at two o'clock in the afternoon, and he tendered it for payment the next morning at nine; the banker stopped a quarter of an hour before; and Pratt, C. J. told the jury the loss should full on the defendant, there being no laches in the plaintiff, who had demanded the money as soon as was usual in the course of dealing, and that keeping the note till next morning could not be construed giving a new credit to the banker, and the jury found for the plaintiff. In Holmes r. Barry, Stra. 415, the circumstances for Payment. 5thly, Time of Presentment.

I. Of Pre- more modern decisions, it is settled, that if such a bill or note be payable by or at a banker's it suffices to present it for payment at any time during banking hours on the day after it is received (d). Thus where a note of this kind, payable in London, was given there in the morning, a presentment the next morning was held by the court sufficiently early, though juries endeavoured to establish a contrary rule, and to find that the instrument must be presented on the very day it was received(e); and though it has been supposed that the presentment must be in the forenoon of the next day (f), yet, in other cases, it was considered that the party has twenty-four hours (g), or, according to a more recent decision, he has the whole of the banking hours, or hours of business of the next day, to make the presentment(h); and this last decision may now be relied upon as the fixed rule(i).

It has been held, that a bill or note of this kind given by way of payment to a banker, must be presented by him as soon as if it had been paid into were the same, and King, C. J. of the Com- B. & C. 134; 7 Dow. & Ry. 528; (Chit. j. mon Pleas, gave similar directions, and the jury found accordingly.

Fletcher v. Sandys, 2 Stra. 1249, (Chit. j. 817). A banker's note was paid to the plaintiff after dinner, and he sent it for payment the next morning, but the banker had stopped payment; and Lee, C. J. ruled, that there were no laches in the plaintiff, and that in all these cases there must be a reasonable time allowed consistent with the nature of circulating paper credit.

Turner v. Mead, 1 Stra. 416, (Chit. j. 248). The defendants paid the Sword Blade Makers Company, the plaintiffs, two bankers notes at three o'clock in the afternoon, and the next morning their servant left them at the banker's, in order to call for the money in the evening, it then being the custom with the plaintiffs and the bank to send out their notes in the morning, and to call for the money in the afternoon. The plaintiff's servant called for the money between four and five in the afternoon, and the banker had just stopped payment, and because the plaintiffs had done nothing more than was usual in leaving the notes in the morning, without taking the money, Pratt, C. J. directed the jury to find for them, which they did.

Hoare v. Da Costa, 2 Stra. 910. fendant paid the plaintiff a banker's note at twelve; he put it into the bank at one, and at ten the next morning the runner from the bank carried it with other notes, and left them, as was then usual, to call again for the money: he called at eleven, and was told the banker's servant was gone to the bank; he called again at two, when the banker said he was going to stop, and refused payment, but he paid small notes till four o'clock. The defendant gave notice to the plaintiff the next morning. The question was, whether this note was payment to the plaintiff. It was insisted for the defendant, that if the note had been tendered by itself, it would have been paid; and for the plaintiff, that if there had been no demand, there would have been no laches, being within a day after the receipt. Raymond, C. J. said there was no standing rule, and left it to the jury, who found for the plaintiff.

But properly the notes ought not to have been left; Hayward v. The Bank of England, 1 Stra. 550, (Chit. j. 252); Gillard v. Wise, 5 1276); ante, 308, note (p); Roscoe, 146.

(d) Robson v. Bennett, 2 Taunt. 388, (Chit. j. 794); post, 385, note (c); and Pocklington r. Silvester, post, 355, note (b).

(e) Beawes, pl. 229; Kyd, 45, 127. See Ward r. Evans, 2 Salk. 442, and other cases in notes, supra.

Appleton v. Sweetapple, K. B. Mich. 28 Geo 3, 3 Doug 137; 1 Esp. Digest, 4th ed. 69; Bayl. 5th ed. 289, note 46, (Chit. j. 421), and see Robson r. Bennett, 2 Taunt. 394. The case was, that plaintiff received from the defendant a banker's note at one o'clock in the day, but did not call for payment till the morning of the next day, and in the previous evening the banker failed. A verdict was found for defendant, on the ground that it was the custom of the city that bills should be brought for payment the day they are received; but on a motion for a new trial, it appearing that there were many exceptions to this custom, as in the case of factors at Bear Quay, the salesmen at Smithfield, and others, the court held that it was not sufficiently proved; and even if the decision had been on that ground, it must appear that the custom was reasonable, or the court would controul it, and therefore granted a new trial. The jury found again for the defendant. but against the judge's direction. A second new trial was granted, and the jury again found for the defendant, and then the court refused to interfere in that particular case; but the three verdicts were clearly perverse, and no court would now allow such verdicts to stand. In Robson v. Bennett, 2 Taunt. 888, (Chit. j. 794), Mansfield, C. J. said, that Hankey v. Trotman, 1 Bla. Rep. 1, (Chit j. 820), was overruled by this case of Appleton v. Sweetapple.

(f) East India Company v. Chitty, 2 Stra. 1175, (Chit. j. 304); Mainwaring v. Harrison, 1 Stra. 508, (Chit. j. 250).

(g) Per Lord Mansfield, see Beawes, pl.

229; Kyd, 45, ante, 380, note (x).

(h) Pocklington v. Silvester, post, 385, n.

(i) Robson v. Bennett, 2 Taunt. 388, (Chit. j. 794); Gillard v. Wise, 5 Bar. & Cres. 184; 7 Dow. & Ry. 523, (Chit. j. 1276); Camidge v. Allenby, 6 Bar. & Cres. 880; ante, 356, note (a).

rayable w 1.2 CW3 x 24.

TART I

1 100 200

er Lucred to d 1..al 100

'er (148.

:in: 101

1.30

-. et. 138)

rartesi

._13 i0i0

(ac.)

... (h

, got

137 See

(194) (198)

yd 2

, me

i jab. ya Tb≢

r definda

ा ्यु वर्ष सम्बद्धाः fir da

in pai.

g g gi0+

s: libers

as in the (can 1)

33. 1

if the

: 1P

r (M arted $

the de-

a. A e jstý en ibe

. رودو

verse,

-13 10

3.5

110.

:0)

g .

111

ųβ,

pi.

115.

his hands by a customer (k), and that if such a bill or note be paid into I. Of Prea banker's, and be payable at the place where the banker lives, it must be sentment for Paypresented the next time the banker's clerk goes his rounds; but that doctrine ment. has been over-ruled, and it should seem, that in all cases it suffices for a banker to present such bill or note the day after he receives it (l).

*If a bill or note, payable on demand, were payable elsewhere than in the But must place where it was received, it was formerly supposed that the party receiving be presented or cirit must forward it for payment by the next post after he received it, although culated on that post went out on the same day. But it is now established that it will Day after suffice if such bill or note be forwarded for payment by the regular post on they are received. the day after it is received (m); and that the person receiving it by the post [*383]in London is not bound to present it for payment till the next day(n). certain, however, that the holder's not forwarding such bill or note for payment by the post, or some conveyance of the day after it was received, and keeping it in his possession till on or after the third day for sending it, would be deemed laches (o); a bill or note must not be locked up or kept until a third day, and if it be, the party from whom the holder received it will be discharged from liability in case it be dishonoured(p). Where the defendant being indebted to the plaintiff, paid to him the debt in country bank notes (payable in the country and also in London) on a Friday, several hours before the post went out, and the plaintiff transmitted halves of the notes by a coach on Saturday, and the other halves by Sunday night's post, and all the halves arrived in London on Monday, but those by the coach two hours later than those by the post, and were presented for payment and dishonoured on the Tuesday, it was held that the plaintiff had not been guilty of laches, and that he might recover from the defendant his original debt(q).

(k) See Hankey v. Trotman, 1 Bla. Rep. 1, (Chit. j. 320). But see Robson r. Bennett, 2

Taunt. 398, (Chit j. 794); post, 385, n. (c).
(l) Id. ibid.; Rickford v. Ridge, 2 Campb. 537, (Chit. j. 819); post, 386, note (c); and Robson v. Bennett, 2 Taunt. 385, (Chit. j. 794); post, 385, note (c).

(m) Rickford v. Ridge, 2 Campb. 537, (Ch. . 819); post, 386, note (e); Darbishire v. Parker, 6 East, 3; 2 Smith, 195, (Chit. j. 707).

(n) Williams v. Smith, 2 Bar. & Ald. 496, (Chit. j. 1055); Bayl. 5th edit. 240.

(0) Beeching r. Gower, Holt, C. N. P. 315,

316, (Chit. j. 966); and Camidge r. Allenby, 6 Bar. & C. 373; ante, 356, note (s).

Beeching v. Gower. Action for money had and received. Defendant delivered to plaintiffs a check of 201. drawn on the Maidstone Bank, on 5th April. It was given to plaintiffs at the Tunbridge market some time before the post set out on the 5th, and they gave their own notes in exchange. Plaintiffs kept it until after the 6th, but sent it to Maidstone by the cartier on the morning of the 7th; the earrier reached Maidstone at nine o'clock on the 7th, but the Maidstone Bank did not open that morning. If it had been sent by the post of the 6th it would have reached Maidstone at an hour earlier, viz. at eight o'clock in the morning of the 7th. Best, Sert. for the defendant, contended, that the plaintiffs had been guilty of laches. Blossett, Serjt. for the plaintiffs, contra, relied on Rickford v. Ridge, 2 Campb. 587, (Chit. j. 819). Gibbs, C. J. "The plaintiffs cannot recover, they have been guilty of laches; I will not say that it was not their duty to have sent the check off by the post of the 5th, but the extreme time up to which they were justified in keeping it was till the post of the 6th. They do not send it till the 7th. It does not matter when the carrier arrived, they must suffer for their negligence." Plaintiffs

(p) Camidge r. Allenby, 6 Bar. & C. 373; ante, 356, note (s); and see cases, ante, 220, 221, 222, As to time of transfer of notes payable on demand.

(q) Williams v. Smith, 2 Bar. & Ald. 496, (Chit. j. 1055); 7 Taunt. 397. And per Abbott, C. J. "It appears that if these notes had been transmitted direct to Newbury by the post they would not have been paid; for they discontinued payment there on Monday morning, and though the circumstance of one set of halves being sent by the coach caused their arrival in London two hours later, still, that being a reasonable precaution, the plaintiff had a right to send them by that conveyance. There is a difference between this case and that of a bill payable to order, for such bill may be specially indorsed, and no risk incurred by sending it by the post. But here it would not have been so safe to have transmitted notes, payable to bearer on demand, by that conveyance. in addition to this, it appears that the defendant has not been in the least degree prejudiced by this mode of conveyance having been adopted." See also Camidge v. Allenby, 6 Bar. & C. 878; ante, 856, n. (s), and James v. Houlditch, 8 Dow. & R. 40, (Chit. j. 1290), next sentment for Payment. 5thly, Time of Presentment [*384]

I. Of Pre- where a servant, on behalf of his master, at one o'clock on a Friday afternoon, received of the defendant, at Devonport, country bank notes payable there, in payment for cattle sold there, and in consequence of his master being absent from home all Saturday morning, did not deliver them to him until after banking hours on Saturday evening, and they were not presented for payment until Monday morning, and between three and four in the afternoon of Saturday the bank stopped payment: it was held, *that the master was not guilty of laches, in not presenting the notes before the bank stopped on Saturday(r).

Country Bankers' Notes to be presented. &c notwithstanding stoppage of Bank.

In general, in the case of country bankers' notes, payable on demand, although the bank has stopped payment and been shut up, and has declared that they will not pay any notes, yet a due and regular presentment of such notes, with respect to time, must be formally made at the banker's, or to one or more of the makers, unless dispensed with by the parties to be resorted to by the holder(s); and due and immediate notice of the dishonour must be given to all the parties who are known to have transferred the same, or they will be discharged from all liability, as well to pay the note as the debt, in respect of which it was transferred(t). Hence it is expedient for every holder of a note payable on demand, to present it for payment as soon as possible, and immediately on being apprised of the insolvency of the banker or other party who ought primarily to pay the same, formerly to tender the same and demand payment at the banking-house, and also of the partners of the firm if practicable; and as soon as possible afterwards to give notice of the non-payment to all the parties on whom he can possibly have any claim (u).

Nor is there any distinction in this respect, whether the note payable on demand has been circulated by a party after the maker has stopped payment or was insolvent, unless the former knew that fact at the time (v). If he did not, then he may insist on a due presentment of the note, or at least on having due notice of the dishonour within the time usually applicable to such Therefore, where it appeared that a note of a country bank was given in payment while the bank continued open, but before the time allowed by the law-merchant for presentment had expired, the bank failed; yet it was held, that the holder was bound to present the note for payment in due time, and that he, by neglecting to do so, made it his own(x). So where, on the 10th of December, at three o'clock in the afternoon, the defendant at York, forty miles from Huddersfield, delivered to the plaintiff four 51. notes, payable to bearer on demand, of the bank of Debson and Co. at Huddersfield, in

(r) James v. Houlditch, S Dow. & R. 40, (Chit. j. 1290). Assumpsit for goods sold. On trial before Burroughs, J. it appeared in evidence that plaintiff, a farmer, living at Tavistock, sent his hind on Friday, the 30th of September, to sell some steers at Devonport, and he accordingly sold them there to the defendant, who paid him seven 51. promissory notes, payable to bearer, at the house of Messrs. Shields and Johns, at Devonport. The distance be-tween Devonport and Tavistock is fourteen miles. The hind received the notes from the defendant about one o'clock on the Friday afternoon, and on settling his accounts paid them to his master on Saturday evening, his muster being from home the whole of Friday. The hind lived in the plaintiff's house. On the Monday following the notes were presented at the banking-house, when it was discovered that the bankers had stopped payment on the previous Saturday, between three and four o'clock of the afternoon; and it was decided that the plaintiff had not been guilty of Jaches, but was entitled to recover the price of the beasts.

(s) Bowes r. Howe, in error, 5 Taunt. 30; 16 East, 112, (Chit. j. 892); 1 Maule & S. 555; Camidge v. Allenby, 6 Bar. & Cres. 373; ante, 356, note (s); and Henderson v. Appleton, ante, 356, note (t).
(t) 1d. ibid.

(u) Id. ibid.

(r) Camidge r. Allenby, 6 B. & C. 373; ante, 356, note (s); Beeching r. Gower, Holt,

C. N. P. 313; ante, 383, note (o). (x) Beeching v. Gower, Holt, C. N. P. 313; ante, 383, note (o), cited in Camidge v. Allenby, 6 Bar. & C. 381; and per Bayley, J. id. 388; antc, 356, note (s).

PART 6

37 106

19.8

-31%

0.4 for

333 XX

3.50

..............................

7 - 81

; (f.0

: : :e•

1.418" ં ગુજ,

JI 10!

: :500

ă.

rine

- 73 Of

·e 01

ru.

ent

. did

....

, ::(i)

3735 red

17.5 me.

۾ ٿ di.

,i je

in ·si-

...

'n

¥ 15

3;

e

. .

payment for goods sold, and at eleven o'clock on that day those bankers had I. Of Prestopped payment, but neither the plaintiffs nor the defendant knew of it; and sentment the plaintiff did not circulate or transfer the notes, nor present them for payment, and on the 17th of December required the defendant to take them back, and he refusing, the plaintiff sued him for the price of the goods, the Time of court held that the defendant *was discharged from liability, and that the Presentplaintiff should either have negotiated the notes, or forwarded them for pay-ment. ment on the day after he received them, and to have given due notice of non- [*385] payment (y).

But where a country banker's note, payable on demand, had been transferred by A. to B. and the bankers stopped payment before B. could, in the ordinary course of business, present the same for payment, and thereupon, before the expiration of such time B. offered to return the note to A., but he refused to take it: it was held, that B. was not bound to present the same formerly to the banker's for payment, nor to give any further notice to A. of the non-payment (z).

With respect to a check on a banker, it is now settled, that it suffices to Checks on present it for payment to the banker at any time during banking hours (in be present-London, five o'clock) on the day after it is received, and that no laches can ed for paybe imputed to the holder in not presenting it for payment early in the morn-ment during of the second day, although the bankers paid drafts on them until four ing the hours of o'clock in the afternoon, and then stopped payment(b). And where a per- business on son in London received a check upon a London banker, between one and the day aftwo o'clock, and lodged it soon after four with his banker, and the latter presented it between five and six, and got it marked as a good check, and the received next day at noon presented it for payment at the clearing-house, the court (a). held that there had been no unreasonable delay either by the holder in not presenting it for payment on the first day, which he might have done, or by his banker in presenting it at the clearing-house only on the following day at noon; it being proved to be the usage among such bankers not to pay checks presented by one banker to another after four o'clock, but only to mark them, if good, and to pay them the next day at the clearing-house (c). *And al- [*386]

(y) Camidge v. Allenby, 6 B. & C. 373; see the facts and judgment, ante, 356, note (s).

(2) Henderson v. Appleton, ante, 356, note

(t).(a) See further as to checks, post, C. XI. (b) Pocklington r. Silvester, Sittings at Guild-hall, after Trinity Term, 57 Geo. 3. This was an action brought by the plaintiffs, for the amount of a check given by the defendants to the plaintiffs. The defendants drew the check on their bankers, Messra. Mainwaring and Co., which was paid to the plaintills at eleven o'clock in the morning on the 16th of November, 1817, which was not presented till near five o'clock on the 17th. The bankers stopped payment at four o'clock on the 17th of November, and the defendants had notice thereof that evening. At the trial before Gibbs, C. J., at Guildhall, he directed a verdict for the plaintiff, on the ground that the plaintiff had the whole of the banking hours of the next day to present the check for payment. The jury, however, contrary to the direction of the judge, found for defendants. In the ensuing term, the plaintiff obtained a rule for a new trial, and upon the second trial, before Burrough, J., at Guildhall, 10th of December, 1817, he directed a verdict for the plaintiff. saying, that whatever doubts had been formerly entertained, it was now established as a rule of law, that the party receiving a check on a banker has the whole of the banking hours of the next day to present it for payment. The jury found accordingly. See Robson and another v. Bennett and another, 2 Taunt 388, next note; and Rickford v. Ridge, 2 Campb. 537, (Chit. j. 819); post, 386, note (e); see also ante, 383. note (m).

(c) Robson v. Bennett, 2 Taunt, 388, (Chit. j. 794).

Per Mansfield, C. J. "The whole question amounts merely to this; a man who has bought goods, and given a draft on a banker, contends, that he has paid for those goods, though the plaintiff has never received the money. A draft on Bloxam and Co. was drawn on the 11th of September; on that day it was carried to the house of the drawee, and in the language of those persons was marked; the effect of that marking is similar to the accepting of a bill; for he admits thereby assets, and makes himself liable to pay. It is the practice of the bankers not to pay bills of this description, which are sentment for Payın ent.

5thly, Time of Presentment.

Checks on Bankers.

1. Of Pre- though as between a London banker and his customer the former may, according to the usage there, be bound to present a crossed check, paid in by the latter, to the drawee at the clearing-house on the same day, provided it be paid in in sufficient time to enable the banker to do so, yet, as between the payee and drawer of a crossed check, there is no obligation on the part of the payee, who receives and sends such check to his banker's in time for presentment, to see that it is cleared on the same day, and the drawer will continue liable, in case of dishonour, though it be not presented till the fol-

If a check on a banker be delivered to a person at a place distant from the place where it is payable, it will suffice to forward it by post or otherwise to some person residing at the latter, on the day after it is received, and it will suffice for him to present it on the third day. And it has been holden that a London banker who receives a check by the general post, is not bound to present it for payment until the following day(e). But where a check presented after four o'clock, but to mark them; and it is usual that bills marked on one day are carried to the clearing-house where their clerks meet, and paid there on the next day. Therefore it is the same thing as if a banker had written on a check, 'We pay this to-morrow at the clearing-house.' On the next day, after marking the check, the banker stops payment; the holder's clerk goes to the clearing house, where no clerk attends from Messrs. Bloxam's, and the bill is not paid, and the first question is, whether there is any laches as to the time of presentment? As to that, the case of Appleton v. Sweetapple decides, that a check need not be presented on the day on which it was drawn: now this bill was in fact presented and accepted on the very day on which it was drawn. reason of that haste probably was, in order to fix the banker, lest the drawer should be insolvent before the next day, bankers being usually persons of great substance, whereas the drawer may be of less credit; the mark on the check is an engagement to pay at a particular place: is not then the presenting it at that place equivalent to presenting at the banking-house? It seems that it is; and that it therefore is no laches; consequently the surplus of the money for the coals remains due, and judgment must be entered for the plaintiff." See also Reynolds n. Chettle, 2 Campb. 596, (Chit. j. 823); Selw. Ni. Pri. 9th edit. 354.

(d) Bodington v. Schlencker, 4 B. & Ad. 752; 1 N. & M. 540; more fully post, C. XI.

(e) Rickford v. Ridge, 2 Campb. 537, (Chit. j. 819). The plaintiffs, bankers at Aylesbury, gave the defendant cash for a check upon Smith and Co bankers, in London; and in an action to recover this money, it appeared that they took the check on the 13th June; but instead of sending it to London by the post of that day, which they might have done, they sent it by a morning coach on the 14th, and their bankers, to whom it was directed, received it between three and four o'clock on the same day, and presented it at Smith's house at noon on the 15th, when payment was refused. It was proved that bankers to the west of St. Paul's, where the plaintiff's bankers resided, sent out checks and bills for payment only once in the day, and that generally before the arrival of the post; and therefore such as arrived by the post on one day generally remained with them until the following morning; so that had this check arrived by the post on the 14th, it would not have been presented until the 15th. The question therefore was, whether such practice were reasonable? It was admitted that a different practice prevailed to the east of St. Paul's. Lord Ellenborough said, "the holder of a check is not bound to give notice of its dishonour to the drawer for the purpose of charging the person from whom he received it. He does enough if he presents it with due diligence to the bankers on whom it is drawn, and gives due notice of its dishonour to those only against whom he seeks his remedy. The question here is, whether, if the check had arrived by post on the 14th, the bankers were bound to present it for payment the same day? This must be decided by the law-merchant. I cannot hear of any arbitrary distinction between one part of the city and another. It is not competent to bankers to lay down one rule for the eastward of St. Paul's, and another for the westward. They may as well fix upon St. Peter's at Rome. It is always to be considered whether, under the circumstances of the case, the check has been presented with reasonable diligence. This is what the law-merchant requires. The rule, that the moment a check is received by the post, it should invariably be sent out for payment, would be most inconvonient and unreasonable. In Liverpool and other great towns different posts arrive at different hours; but it would be impossible to have clerks constantly ready to carry out all the bills and checks that may arrive in the course of the day; nor if it were possible, is it requisite, that all other business being laid aside, parties should devote themselves to the presentment of checks. The rule to be adopted must be a rule of convenience; and it seems to me to be convenient and reasonable, that checks received in the course of one day should be presented the next. Is this practice consistent with the law-merchant? It cannot alter it. Bankers would be kept in a continual fever if they were obliged to send out a check the moment it is paid in. The arrangement mentioned by the plaintiff's witnesses appears subservient to general convenience, and not contrary to the law-merchant, which merePART I

17. K.

1000

1-13 60

105 145

123.00

er Tu ne ja

a ƙa

1.2

· trund

C.S.C.

े र*द्रा*द्रि े व्राद्र

1 77

- 2 - P/Y

نغاز براب 57137 upracet agraf 10

yr lu

K TO THE 100 T

count i

~1505

130 no.

ride

og# user.

1.30 114

n ast het

- 200 118

) pê

: coffe

ggal

ηΛΙ

r be 450 her rept rid

. nd

۸۶:

911 dd

2000 drawn by one F. upon a banker at Bath was, on Tuesday the 28th March, I. Of Prereceived from the defendant at one of the branches of the North Wilts bank sentment for Payat Malmesbury, and was on the same day remitted to the chief office at Melk-ment. sham, twelve miles from Bath, and thence to Bath on the 30th, and presented for *payment on Friday the 31st and dishonoured, it was held, that 5thly, the presentment was not made in due course, so as to entitle the holders to Time of resort to the defendant (f).

Present-[*387]

It will be observed that this rule allowing the party receiving a bill, note, Conseor check, payable on demand, until the next day to present it for payment, quences of will not enable a succession of persons to keep such instrument long in circu-several lation, so as to retain the liability of all the parties, in case the same should lay in Preultimately be dishonoured by the maker of the note or drawee of the $\operatorname{check}(g)$. sentment, And though each party may be allowed a day, as between him and the par- occasioned by a sucty from whom he received a check, it would be otherwise as to the drawer, cession of if the banker should, during a succession of several days, fail, and would Holders. have paid if the check had been presented on the day after it was drawn; a check being an instrument not in general intended by the drawer to be long in circulation, and in that respect differing from a country banker's note, which is known to all parties to have been intended to be in circulation, and not so promptly presented for payment as a check.

A presentment for payment of a bill, payable on a day certain, should in Hour of all cases be made within a reasonable time before the expiration of the day when the when it is due; and if by the known custom of any particular place bills are Presentonly payable within limited hours, a presentment there, out of those hours, ment should be would be improper(h); and this rule extends also to a presentment out of the made. hours of business to a person of a particular description, where, by the known custom of the place, all such persons begin and leave off business at stated hours(i). And therefore when a bill is accepted payable at a banker's, it must be presented there before five o'clock, or the usual hour of shutting up their shop, and presentment afterwards will not entitle the notary to protest i(k)(1). And no inference is to be drawn from the circumstance ly requires checks to be presented with reasonable diligence." See also Williams v. Smith, 2 Bar. & Ald. 496, (Chit. j. 1055); ante, 383, note (q); and Boyd r. Emmerson, 4 N. & M. 99; 2 Ad. & El. 184, S. C.; post, 39!, note (j); and more fully, post, Ch. XI.

(f) Moule v. Brown, 5 Scott, 694; 4 Bing. N. C. 266, S. C.

(g) Admitted in Boehm v. Stirling, 7 T. R.

425; anle, 217, note (m), Time of Transfer.
(h) Per Lord Ellenborough, in Parker r. Gordon, 6 Esp. Rep. 42; 7 East, 385; 3 Smith R. 358, (Chit. j. 727); and see, in particular, observations of Lawrence, J., id.; and Elford v. Teed, 1 Maule & S. 28, (Chit. j. 879); Marias, 2d edit. 187.

(i) Bayl. 5th ed. 224; Leftley v. Mills, 4 T. R. 170, (Chit. j. 478); Marius, 2d edit. 187. (k) Parker v. Gordon, 7 East, 385; 3 Smith, 858; 6 Esp. R. 41, (Chit. j. 727); Elford r. Teed, I Maule & S. 28, (Chit. j. 879); Jameson v. Swinton, 2 Taunt. 224; 2 Campb. 374, (Chit j. 782); Selw. N. P. 9th edit. 354; Wilkins r. Jadis, 2 B. & Adol. 188; 1 M. & Rob. 41, (Chit. j. 1537).

Parker v. Gordon. The drawee accepted the bill, payable at Davison and Co. his bankers; at the part of the town where Davison and Co. lived, bankers shut up at six o'clock. 'The bill was not presented for payment until after six, when the shop was shut up, and the clerks one. In an action against the drawer, Lord Ellenborough held, that this was not a good presentment, and nonsuited the plaintiff; and on a motion for a new trial, the court held. that if a party took an acceptance, payable at a banker's he bound himself to present the bill during the banking hours; and therefore rule

(1) \{ A presentment of a draft payable at a particular bank, to the cashier for payment at the bank, on the day it fell due, but after business hours, who refused payment because the acceptors had no funds, was held sufficient, in Flint r. Rogers, 15 Maine Rep. 67.

If a note is payable "at bank," no particular one being named, the hour will be determined by the usual banking hours at the bank or several banks in the place where the note is payable. Church v. Clark, 21 Pick. 310. }

sentment for Payment.

5thly, Time of Presentment. r *388 l

I. Of Pro- of the bill being presented by a notary in the evening that it had before been duly presented within the banking-hours (1). However, a presentment of a bill at a banker's, where it is payable, is sufficient, although it be made after banking-hours, provided a person be stationed there by the banker, to return And when the *party to pay answers, and he refuses to pay the bill(m). the bill or note is not a banker, a presentment at any time, not during the hours of rest, however late in the evening, will in general suffice (n). And it has been decided, that a presentment between eight and nine o'clock in the evening, at the house of a trader or merchant, is quite sufficient(o); and this, although the house be shut up and no person there to give an answer(p).

> refused. Lawrence and Le Blanc, Js. said, the holder was not bound to take such an acceptance.

(1) Elford v. Teed, I Maule & S. 28, (Chit.

j. 879). (m) Garnett v. Woodcock, 1 Stark. R. 475; 6 Maule & S. 44, (Chit. j. 879, 881). Indorsee against acceptor. The bill was drawn by Hudson in Lancashire, upon defendants in London. for 6701., payable to drawer's order, and indorsed by them to plaintiff. Defendants had accepted the bill payable at Denison's and Co. bankers, London. The bill had been presented at Denison's and Co. between seven and eight in the evening on the day it became due, and a boy returned for answer, no orders. Campbell, for defendants, contended, that since the bill was drawn payable in London, and had been accepted payable at Denison's and Co. a presentment there was necessary; and that this was not a sufficient presentment, and cited Parker v. Gordon, 7 East, 385; Elford v. Teed, 1 Maule & S. 28, where the court held, that sentment at a banker's after banking hours, was a nullity, although the presentment in that case had been made by a notary. He admitted, that when the bill had been made payable at a merchant's, a presentment after banking bours, where a negative answer had been returned on presentment of the bill, had been deemed to be sufficient; but this was the case of a presentment at a banker's. Lord Ellenborough, "Bankers do not usually pay at so late an hour; but if a person be left there who gives a negative answer, there is no difference between that case and that of a presentment at a merchant's. I think it is perfectly clear, that if a banker appoint a person to attend, in order to give an answer, a presentment would be sufficient if it were made before twelve at night." Verdict for the plaintiff. In the easning term, Campbell moved for a new trial; and cited Parker v. Gordon, 7 East, 385, where Lawrence, J. says, "the party might have re-fused to take this special acceptance; but if he chose to take the acceptance payable in that manner, payable at the banker's, does he not agree to take it payable at the usual banking hours?" Lord Ellenborough, "In that case no answer was given upon the presentment of the bill. Upon the trial, I laid down nothing but, that if a servant was stationed for the purpose of giving an answer, it was sufficient. general, there are two presentments, one in the morning, and the other in the evening; but if there be a presentment in the evening, and the party is ready to give an answer, he does all The banker returned an that is necessary.

answer by the mouth of his servant, and non constat, but that he was stationed there for the express purpose." Rule refused. See post, 821 (43).

(n) Barclay v. Bailey, 2 Campb. 527, (Chit. j. 818). Action against drawer of a bill, accepted by Hardy. At eight in the evening of the day the bill became due, it was presented at the house mentioned on the face of it, as the drawee's place of residence, when the answer given by a person who came to the door, was, that "Mr. Hardy had become bankrupt, and removed into another quarter of the town."
On the part of the defendant it was proved, that he had a person stationed at this house for the purpose of taking up the bill, from nine in the morning till four in the afternoon, but that no one presented it during that time; and it was insisted, that a presentment so late as eight in the evening was insufficient to charge the drawer. Lord Ellenborough, "I think this presentment sufficient; a common trader is different from bankers, and has not any peculiar hours for paying or receiving money; if the presentment had been during the hours of rest, it would have been altogether unavailing; but eight in the evening cannot be considered an unseasonable hour for demanding payment at the house of a private merchant, who has accepted a bill." The plaintiff had a verdict. S. P. Jameson v. Swinton, 2 Taunt. 224; 2 Campb. 374, (Chit. j. 782); Bancroft v. Hall, Holt, 476, (Chit. j. 968); Wilkins v. Jadis, 2 B. & Ad. 188.

Morgan v. Davison, 1 Stark. Rep. 114. Assumpeit by indorsee of a bill against drawer. The bill was accepted payable at Herring and Dishardsun's Control court London. The Richardson's, Copthal-court, London. The plaintiff proved presentment at Herring and Richardson's, who were not bankers, in Copthal-court, on the day when the bill became due, between six and seven in the evening, when no one was there but a girl left to take care of the counting-house. Lord Ellenborough held, that this was a sufficient presentment; the hour was not an improper one, and the holder might reasonably expect to find the party in his counting-house at that time. See further, Friggs v. Newman, 10 Moore, 249; 1 Car. & (e) Triggs v. Newman, 10 Moore, 249; 1 Car. & P. 631, S. C.

(p) Wilkins v. Jadis, 2 B. & Adol. 188; 1 Moo. & Rob. 41, (Chit. j. 1857). A present-ment at twelve o'clock at night, when a person has retired to rest, would be unreasonable. Per Lord Tenterden, C. J. ib.

388

PAR: 1.

: .::: bta

12.16 i to reun

n to pr uric 🗷

. Axi

sek is St

: 200 🕮

ewer 1.

101. 12d 12

jeje lit 🏖

پين سيخ

527, CM

1 34.10

eterze d

, prencial ત્રી ૧, છ 🎽

L + 1380

loor, mil.

is rapy, and he wer

u proted.

, book in um rate # o, be: 📂 ءَ علا ; ب ie 39 68 ji ille in (12 pr

H INCH.

300 M ng his gre 41

. 4/1/ 5

has ac-. . 1

224.2

- Hall. Jada, İ

1. 15

griver. 10 13d

19 IN 100 er:Br ≓n!o₫,

, (360

locip it; 🕊 hoid.

di II her.

1. Š

9; l

: 1

Pr

By the 4 & 5 W. 4, c. 15, s. 1, government bills, check, drafts, and or- I. Of Preders, are not to be payable at the bank of England after three o'clock(q).

for Pay-

Provided the party entitled to a bill or note produce it as soon as the im-Thus it has been Present-And it would pediment has been removed, and in the mean time take every step in his what expower to obtain payment at the appointed time, a delay in presenting the in- lay in a strument itself at maturity may be excused, on account of any accident or punctual circumstance not attributable to the party's own fault(r). considered, that the detention of the bill by contrary winds, or the holder's having been robbed of the bill, or the like would *afford an adequate excuse, [*389] provided he present as soon afterwards as he is able(s). So the occupation of the country by an enemy will constitute an adequate excuse for de-But a notice of the reason why the bill itself cannot be produced should be given; and a demand of payment should, if possible, be made on the very day the instrument falls due; and if it be a foreign bill, it should be duly protested, in case the drawee should refuse payment (u). be advisable also to tender an adequate indemnity to the acceptor or maker of a note, and to request him to pay, without his insisting on production of the instrument; after which he should keep the money ready to pay when the bill is produced, and this at his own risk, in case his agent, holding the money, And notice of all the circumstances and of the non-payment should be given to all the other parties; and if the bill has been stolen or lost. public notice should be given as advised in a preceding page (w).

But the circumstance of the holder having received a bill very near the time of its becoming due, constitutes no excuse for a neglect to present it for payment at maturity, for he might renounce it if he did not choose to undertake that duty, and send the bill back to the party from whom he received it; but if he keep it, he is bound to use reasonable and due diligence in presenting it: and, therefore, where the plaintiff, in Yorkshire, on the 26th of December, received a bill of exchange, payable in London, which became due on the 28th, and kept it in his own hands until the 29th, when he sent it by post to his banker's in Lincoln, who duly forwarded it to London for presentment, and the bill was dishonoured, it was held that the plaintiff had by his laches lost his remedy against the drawer and indorsers (x). But it has been considered in France, that if an indorser himself transfer a bill so late to the holder as to render it impracticable to present it precisely at maturity, he cannot take advantage of a delay in presentment so occasioned by himself, though the prior indorsers and the drawer may (y).

In considering the necessity of a due presentment for acceptance(z) and 6thly, for payment(a), and the time when the same should be made, we have an- Conseticipated this inquiry; and it may suffice to observe, that on principle, per-quences of Laches, haps, more exactness and punctuality in a presentment for payment may rea- and how sonably be required than even in a notice of nonpayment, because a prompt waived. and regular demand of payment may frequently obtain payment from an acceptor of a bill and maker of a note, who is in a state of progressive insol-

```
(q) See the act, Chit. & II. Stat. 397, 400.
```

⁽¹⁾ See ante, 358, et seq. (s) In America. Young v. Forbes, Morri- j. 872).

son, 1580; Thornpson, 483. (t) Patience v. Townley, 2 Smith. R. 224, (Chit. j. 714).

⁽u) Molloy, pl. 27; Pothier, pl. 144. (v) Dent r. Dunn, 3 Campb. 296, (Chit. j.

^{877.)}

⁽w) Ante, 253, 254.

⁽x) Anderton r. Beck, 16 East, 248, (Chit.

⁽y) Pardess. 451; and see Boehm v. Stirling, 7 T. R. 425; 2 Esp. 575, (Chit. j. 598); ante, 217, note (m).

⁽z) Ante, 272 to 290.

⁽a) Ante, 353. et. seg.

for Payment. 6thly, Consequences of Laches, and how waired.

1. Of Pre- vency, when a subsequent application of the same nature would become unavailing; whereas the loss of a day or more in giving notice of non-payment rarely makes any actual difference. The rules applicable to delay in notice of non-payment will in general apply, and with more force, to delay in due demand of payment. And even if an hour be lost, the laches will in some cases deprive the holder of all remedy against any party not primarily liable. But we have seen, that even in the case of a special acceptance payable at a particular place, and made according to the recent act, although a pre-[*390] sentment at that place is essential to be made *before the acceptor can be sued, still a delay in making presentment there on the very day when the bill'fell due, will not discharge the acceptor, unless he prove that he has really sustained damages by the delay, as by a banker in the mean time failing (b).

The delay in making due presentment for payment may be excused or waived by a subsequent promise, or by other circumstances which we shall find will preclude a party from taking advantage of the neglect to give notice of non-payment(c). And it has recently been determined, that the new rules as to pleading make no difference as to the effect of a subsequent promise, and that although a precise issue be joined on the fact of presentment, a promise made by the defendant to pay the bill or note after it became due is primâ facie evidence to prove the issue(d). So the want of effects in the hands of the acceptor, excuses the indorsee of an accommodation bill from presenting it for payment, as well as from giving notice of dishonour to the drawer(e).

Circumstances arising be-Payment.

If at any instant before the actual payment of a bill or check, given upon a condition, the drawer discover that the condition has not been performed, he may stop the payment thereof to the party who has thus eluded the consentment dition (f); and a banker who, upon presentment of a bill or check for payand actual ment, cancels the acceptance or drawer's name by mistake, may yet, upon discovering his error before actual payment, effectually resist such payment as if he had not so cancelled the draft(g). And where the drawee of a bill, on presentment for payment, said, "This bill will be paid, but we cannot allow you for a duplicate protest," and the holder refuses to receive payment without the charges of such protest, it was held, that the drawee So where the bankers, at whose house was not bound to pay the bill(h). by the terms of the acceptance the bill was payable, had received money for the express purpose of taking up the bill two days after it became due, and upon tendering it to the holders and demanding the bill, found that it had been sent back protested for non-payment to the persons who indorsed it to the holders, it was decided, that such bankers, having received fresh orders not to pay the bill, were not liable to an action by the holders for money had and received, when, upon the bill's being got back and tendered to them,

(b) Rhodes v. Gent, 5 Bar. & Ald. 244, (Chit. j. 1124); Bayl. 5th edit. 244.

(c) Post, Chap. X. s. i.; and see aute, 358, et seq. 388, 389.

(d) Croxon v. Worthen, 5 Mee. & Wels. 5; citing Lundie v. Robertson, 7 Fast, 232; post, Ch. X. s. i.

(e) Terry v. Parker, 1 Nev. & Perry, 752; 6 Ad. & El. 502, S. C. And see De Berdt v. Atkinson, 2 H. Bla. 336; ante, 273, note (u), 358, note (c); and post, Ch. X. s. i.; but observe, in that case the defendant was not the party accommodated, but had lent his name as payee and indorser to accommodate the maker of the note: as an authority that in such case a presentment is unnecessary it clearly cannot be supported. See the judgment in Terry v.

(f) Wienholt v. Spitta, 3 Campb. 376, (Chit. j. 890).

(g) Raper v. Birkbeck, 15 East, 17, (Chit. . 851); Fernandey v. Glynn, I Campb. 426; Novelli v. Rossi, 2 B. & Ad. 757; ante, 309; and see Wilkinson v. Johnson, 3 Bar. & Cres. 492, (Chit. j. 1231); 5 Dowl. & Ry. 403, S. C.; post, s. ii. as to payments by mistake.

(h) Anderson r. Heath, 4 Maule & S. 303,

(Chit. j. 936); ante, 809, note (r).

1:11 ;

٠.

112.52

. 1 %

1.2 3

1,62

11 %

. (195 11 c

197 rzá!

10,39

141

11.7

d:

(20 cell

111.00

, 14

100

and 33

110

) 155 13d

10.

they refused to pay the money(i). And when a customer pays into his I. Of Prebanker's, in the ordinary way, a check drawn upon them by another of their for Payment, the bankers are entitled to the same time for ascertaining whether the check will be paid, and giving notice of dishonour (in case it be resolved by them not to pay the check), as in the case where the check is drawn upon other bankers; and, therefore, in such a case no promise to pay the check quences of will be *implied from the absence of notice until the following day: in order laches, and how to make the bankers liable, at all events, the customer should demand paywaired.

ment, or request that the amount may be placed to his credit; and an assent [*391] on the part of the bankers to such demand or request would raise an implied promise to pay, or give credit for the amount(j). But we have seen, that if one banker presents for payment to another banker a check on him in the usual course, and the latter marks it as approved, importing that it shall be paid the next day at the clearing-house, this is binding on the latter, and is equivalent to an acceptance, and he must, at all events, pays it(k).

If the maker of a promissory note pay money into the hands of an agent to retire it, and the agent tenders the money to the holder, on condition of having it delivered up, and the note being mislaid, this condition is not complied with, and the agent afterwards becomes bankrupt, with the money in his hands, it has been decided that the maker is still responsible on the note(l).

II. OF PAYMENT.

II. Of Payment.

Before the drawee of a bill or maker of a note pays, he should be first lat, Prewell satisfied that his supposed signature, and that of the first indorser of liminary each, are genuine, and the latter made by the proper person(m), and that the sum to be paid was inserted by the drawer, and not subsequently altered(n), and that the person who presents for payment is entitled to receive it, especially after notice of loss(o), or of the holder's bankruptcy(p), or of the drawer's death, when a bill has not been previously accepted(q), and no adequate indemnity be tendered; nor after countermand of a general indorsement, or mere authority to receive payment(r).

So an indorser or party who transferred a bill or note returned to him, and called upon to take it up, should also perfectly assure himself, not only that the party applying for payment is the lawful holder of the bill, but also that there have not been any laches either by such holder or any other party; for if there have been laches, and prior parties have been thereby dis-

(i) Stewart v. Fry, 1 Moore, 74; Holt, C. N. P. 372, (Chit. j. 984); ante, 322, n. (p). When money is to be considered as particularly appropriated to payment of a bill, or not, see the cases, ante, 321 to 323. And see generally as to the appropriation of payments, post, s. ii.

(j) Boyd r. Emmerson, 4 Nev. & M. 99; 2 Adol. & Ell. 184, S. C.; more fully, post, Ch.

(k) Robson r. Bennett, 2 Taunt. 388, (Ch. j. 794), ante, 385, et seq.

(1) Dent v. Dunn, 3 Campb. 296, (Chit. j. 877).

(m) East India Company v. Tritton, 3 Bar. & C. 280; 5 Dowl. & Ry. 214, (Chit. j. 1216); Mead v. Young. 4 T. R. 28, (Chit. j. 467):

ante, 28, note (m); Price v. Neale, Burr. 1354; 1 Bla. R. 390, (Chit. j. 364); Smith v. Mercer, 6 Taunt. 76; 1 Marsh. 453, (Chit. j. 923); Cocks v. Masterman, post, 426, note (o); Bayl. 5th edit. 320.

(n) Bulkeley v. Butler, 2 Bar. & C. 434; 3 Dow. & Ry. 625, (Chit. j. 1294); ante, 159, 160, note (p), 281, 282, note (m); Bayl. 5th edit. 322.

(o) Ante, 259 to 261; Lovell r. Martin, 4 Taunt. 799, (Chit. j. 889); 1 Pardess. 427, 444.

(p) 1 Pardess. 427.

(q) Ante, 282, note (y); Hammonds r. Barclay, 2 East, 227, (Chit. j. 646).

(r) I Pardess. 427, 428.

Digitized by Google

charged, an indorser, by unnecessarily paying the bill, will not revive the lia-II. Of Payment bility of the prior parties, or be enabled to recover from them; as where a bill has been refused acceptance, and due notice thereof not given(s), or where one of several parties has lost a day in giving notice of non-pay-[*392] ment(t). So a banker who pays a *forged check of his customer must bear the loss (u); though a refusal to pay a genuine check, having sufficient funds in hand, will subject him to an action at the suit of the customer(v).

2dly, By whom Payment to be made.

Payment of a bill or note may not only be made by the drawee of the former or maker of the latter, but also by any other party to it; and in the case of a bill, even by a total stranger, as where a payment is made supra protest(x), which will be spoken of hereafter (y); and that of payment by the bail of one of the parties (z). If a party be sued on a bill of exchange, and it appear that the plaintiff has agreed with a third person that if he will advance part of the sum for the defendant, the plaintiff will take that in discharge of the whole debt, and such third person so advances it, this is a good defence to the action(a).

Of Payments by a Bankrupt (b).

So also all payments bona fide made by a bankrupt, or any person on his behalf, to a person not having notice of any act of bankruptcy, and not being a fraudulent preference, are protected by the statutes 6 Geo. 4, c. 16, s. 82, and 2 & 3 Vict. c. 29(c). We have already considered some of the decisions affecting the construction of the former acts(d), and what are considered fraudulent preferences(e). We have also seen that the 6 Geo. 4, c. 16, s. 82, is not, like the 19 Geo. 2, c. 32, confined to payments

(s) Roscoe v. Hardy, 12 East, 434; 2 Campb. 458, (Chit. j. 801); ante, 215, n. (x). In this case, as in Turner v. Leach, 4 B. & A. 454, next note, the action was against a prior party to the bill. When want of notice to plaintiff no answer to an action founded on an implied indemnity, Huntley v. Sanderson, 1 C. & M. 467; 3 Tyrw. 469, S. C.; ante, 331, note (z), 343, note (e).
(t) Turner v. Leach, 4 B. & Ald. 454, (Ch.

j. 1108)

(u) Hall v. Fuller, 5 B. & C. 750; 8 D. & R. 464, S. C.; ante, 261, note (u); and post, As to Payments by mistake.
(v) Marzetti v. Williams, 1 B. Ad. 415; ante, 281, note (k); and post, Ch. XI.

(x) Poth. pl. 170.

(y) Ch. X. s. ii.

(z) Hull v. Pitfield, 1 Wils. 46, (Chit. j. 306). Payment of a note by the bail of the maker, is a discharge to the indorser. Id. ibid.
(a) Welby v. Drake, 1 Car. & P. 557.

(b) See ante, 202 to 212, as to transfers by bankrupt.

(c) See these enactments, ante, 206. In Terrington v. Hargreaves, 5 Bing. 489, the 6 G. 4, c. 16, s. 82, was held retrospective.

(d) Ante, 206 to 208. (e) Ante, 208 to 210; Vacher v. Cocks, 1 Bar. & Adol. 145. An army agent was in the habit of advancing money to his customers on their pay and pensions, by checks on his bankers. Having overdrawn his banking account, he received a new credit from the bankers, and engaged, in return, to pay over to them, on receipt, the sums which usually came to his hands half-yearly from government, for the discharge of pensions. The agreement was not known to the persons who issued these funds. He committed an act of bankruptcy unknown to the bankers, and having subsequently received some government remittances, paid them over according to the above arrangement, being indebted to the bankers in more than the amount. It was made a question whether such payments were justifiable, or a fraudulent preference? But it was admitted, that if the sums were put into the bank merely to enable the bankrupt to go on in business for a time, these were not payments in fraud of creditors.

Churchill v. Crease, 5 Bing. 197. 1st, A payment made in June, 1825, by a debtor bonk fide without intention of fraudulent preference, eight days before a commission of bankrupt was issued against him, was held to be protected under the 82d sect. of 6 Geo. 4, c. 16. 2nd, The debtor, a prisoner, went eight days before a commission of bankrupt was sued out against him, to a fire office, to receive money payable to him in respect of a loss by fire; a creditor, for labour done, who knew the time when the money was to be paid, without any intimation from the debtor, met him at the office, and obtained out of the sum so received payment of his own debt, not knowing that his debtor was a prisoner or insolvent; and a jury having negatived fraud, it was held that this was not a fraudulent preference by the debtor. And see Jones v. Fort, 9 B. & C. 764; Abbott v. Pomfret, 1 Bing. N. C. 462; antc, 210, notes (c), (d).

247 !

~ (v)

< 9t

23

T 3

11 27

JT 12 . II

.. 15

5 31

4. IE

. 4,0

1 3

me f merië.

11

He

are I

101.5

, 660

13

, 481

019

1100 pel

p: 10

pa,

, Mar

'n.

ŋġ.

jê.

r.

ij

made in the course of trade, and for goods sold, or on a bill or note, but ex- 11. Of tends to all bona fide payments; and further, that the recent act 2 & 3 Vict. Payment. c. 29, protects all bona fide contracts, dealings, and transactions by and with any bankrupt before the date and issuing of the fiat, and without notice of the act of bankruptcy; and, therefore, it is unnecessary to notice the decisions upon this question under the prior statutes (f)(1).

*By the general Insolvent Act, 7 Geo. 4, c. 57, s. 32, (re-enacted 1 & By an In-2 Vict. c. 110, s. 59), a voluntary payment by an insolvent, within three solvent. months before his imprisonment, is void(g). And it will be equally void [*393] though made more than three months before the imprisonment, if made with the intention of petitioning (h).

Payment should always be made to the real proprietor of the bill(i) or to 3dly, To one of several partners (k), or to some person authorized by him to receive $\frac{\text{whom}}{\text{Payment}}$ it, as a factor, &c. (l)(2); and payment to the payee will, consequently, be should be made.

(f) See anie, 205 to 207. Upon the old acts it was held, that payment of a bill to a creditor by a bankrupt under an arrest, after a secret act of bankruptcy, was a payment in the course of trade; Cox v. Morgan, 2 B. & P. 398; Ex parte Farr, 8 Ves. 515; sed vide Southey v. Butler, 8 B. & P. 237; Blogg v. Phillips, 2 Campb. 129; Cullen, 238, 239; Bayly v. Schofield, 1 Maule & S. 338. But if the payment were intended as a fraudulent preference, it would not be valid. Singleton v. Butler, 2 B. & Pul. 283; Southey r. Butler, 8 B. & Pul. 237. If the holder of a bill gave time to the acceptor upon condition that he should allow interest, and he afterwards paid the bill, having previously committed a secret act of bankruptcy, this was held not a payment in the usual course of trade within the meaning of the statute. Vernon v. Hall, 2 T. R. 648, (Chit. j. 446); and see 1 Montagu, 311 to 313; 2 Ves. 550; Cullen, 234. So where A. having recovered a verdict against B. who afterwards committed an act of bankruptcy, and A not having had notice thereof, took a bill drawn by B. on C. for the amount of the sum recovered, payable at a distant period, which bill was afterwards paid: it was determined that this payment was not protected by the statute, and consequently that A. was liable to refund the money received by him to the assignees of B., Pinkerton v. Marshall, 2 Hen. Bla. 334. And where bankers having accepted bills for the accommodation of a trader, he, after committing an act of bankruptcy, but before a commission was sued out, lodged money with them to take up the bills, which did not become due till after a commission was sued out, and were then regularly paid by the acceptors, it was held, that they were bound to refund this money to the assignees, and that they neither had a right of set-off under 5 Geo. 2, c. 30, nor could protect themselves under 19 G. 2, c. 32, as having received the money in payment of bills of exchange in the ordinary course of trade. Tamplin and others, assignees of Visich, a bankrapt, v. Diggins and others, 2 Campb. 312, (Chit. j 780). And where bankers, after a secret act of bankruptcy of the acceptor, paid a bill for him, accepted payable at their house, and he afterwards remitted the money to them, it was decided that they were liable to refund; because the bankrupt was not liable to them on the bill, and his repayment to them was only in satisfaction of a loan, which was not a payment protected by the statute. Holroyd v. White-head, 3 Campb. 530, 533; 2 Rose, 145; 5 Taunt. 444; 1 Marsh. 128, (Chit. j. 905). So if bankers paid a check drawn upon them by a trader after a secret act of bankruptcy, it was held they could not retain money received to cover such check, id. ibid. So it was decided, that the assignees of a bankrupt were entitled to recover back money paid by the bankrupt to the defendant after a secret act of bankruptcy (though before the date of the commission), which the defendant had before recovered by judgment against the bankrupt in an action on a promissory note reserving interest half-yearly, given for the balance of an account amongst other things consisting of money lent, such note not being given in the usual and ordinary course of dealing, so as to be protected by 19 G. 2, c. 32. And us to a set-off mot being provided for till the 6 G. 4, c. 16, s. 50, see Kinder v. Butterworth, 6 Bar. & C. 42; 9 Dow. & Ry. 47, S. C.; and ante, 318, note (o); and post, Part II. Ch. VIII. Bankruptcy.

(g) Herbert v. Wilcox, 6 Bing. 208; ante,

212, note (r).

(h) Beck v. Smith, 2 M. & W. 191; ante, 212, where see as to what amounts to a roluntary payment.

(i) Poth. pl. 142, 143, 164.

(k) Duff v. East India Company, 15 Ves.

(1) Favenc v. Bennett, 11 East, 40. Payment to the plaintiff's attorney suffices. Coore v. Callaway, 1 Esp. Rep. 115, 116; 1 Bla. Rep. 85; 1 Campb. 478. Aliler to the agent or clerk to plaintiff 's attorney; Yates v. Frecklington, Dougl. 622; post, 394, note (v).

^{(1) {} Payment by last endorser will not destroy the negotiability of an indersement; or by a prior endorser, if the subsequent indorsements are struck out before it is again negotiated. Wallace v. Branch Bank, 1 Ala. Rep. N. S. 565.

⁽²⁾ On presenting a note or bill for payment, the holder must have the bill with him, otherwise the demand will not be deemed effectual so as to charge the other parties. Freeman v.

II. Of Payment. 3dly, To whom to be made.

inoperative, if he have ceased to be the proprietor of it by having indorsed it to another person, and the drawee has notice of the fact(m); nor ought payment to be made to the wrongful holder and detainer of a bill(u). bill be payable to A. B. only, and not negotiable, it is said that A. B. in person must appear and demand payment (o). If the holder of a bill die, payment should not be made to his personal representative, unless he has a power of administering his effects(p). Payment, however, to a person having obtained probate of a forged will of a deceased party, will be valid; although if the supposed testator were living it would be otherwise (q). On a [*394] bill payable to A. *or order, to the use of B., payment should be made to A. or his indorsee, and not to $B_{\cdot}(r)$. If a bill be beneficial to a minor, payment to him would be valid, though it is said that it ought to be made to his guardian(s)(1); and a payment to a married woman, after knowledge of that fact, without the concurrence of her husband, would not discharge the person making it(t). When a bill is indersed to a person merely for the purpose of receiving payment for the indorser, and the authority given to the indorsee is afterwards revoked, either by the party himself or by operation of law, as by his death, payment to the indorsee will not discharge the person making it, if he had notice of the revocation (u); this doctrine, however, is objected to by Beawes, in his Lex Mercatoria(x); and it must certainly be confined to the single case of an indorsement to an agent, for the purpose of his receiving payment for his principal. Payment of debts should not, in general, be made to a mere sub-agent (y); though payment to a person found

(m) Poth. pl. 164. (n) 1 Pardess. 444.

(o) Marius, 4th edit. 34; Sigourney v. Lloyd, 8 Bar. & C. 629; 3 Man. & Ry. 58, (Chit. j. 1412); 5 Bing. 525; 3 Moore & P. 229; 3 Younge & J. 220, S. C. in error; ante, 232, 233, notes (n), (p), as to restrictive indorsements.

(p) Poth. pl. 166.

(q) Allen v. Dundas, 3 T. R. 125. As to forgery of power of attorney to obtain stock, see Rex v. Fauntleroy, 2 Bing 413; 1 C. & P. 421, S. C.

(r) Cramlington r. Evans, 2 Vent. 310;

Carth. 5, (Chit. j. 174); Marchington v. Vernon, 1 B. & P. 101, note (c); Smith v. Kendall, 6 T. R. 123, 124; 1 Esp. 231, (Chit. j. 533); ante, 202, note (u).

(s) Poth. pl. 166.

(1) Barlow r. Bishop, 1 East, 167; 3 East, 226, (Chit. j. 637); ante, 201, note (e).
(u) Poth. 168; 1 Pardess. 437, 438; et Mar. 72, 73; sed quære Tate r. Hilbert, 2 Ves. jun. 114, 115, 118, 121, (Chit. j. 510); 16 Ves. 450; ante, 282, note (y), 287, note (n). (x) Pl. 219.

(y) Yates v. Frecklington, Dougl. 622.

Boynton, 7 Mass. Rep. 483. { Farmer's Bank v. Duvall, 7 Gill & John. 78. But see Gallagher v. Roberts, 2 Fairf. 489. } And as the whole of a set of exchange constitute but one bill, payment to the holder is good, which so ever of the set he may happen to have in his possession. Durkin v. Cranston, 7 John. Rep. 422. Payment to the general indorsee of a bill is good, and cannot be affected by any transactions between him and the person by whom it was remitted; and if the bill has been protested for non-payment, he may waive the default and accept payment. Durkin v. Cranston. But where a note was indorsed by the defendant for the accommodation of the makers, who were then in good credit, and before negotiating they became insolvent, and the defendant then directed them not to part with the note, which they promised, but afterwards passed it to the plaintiffs with full notice of all the circumstances, in satisfaction of a debt, held that the plaintiffs could not support an action on the note. Skelding et al. r. Warren, 15 Johns. Rep. 270.

Payment to the holder of a note, may protect the indorser and maker from the claim of the former; though it may extinguish his right against them, it does not extinguish that of the indorser, who pays against the previous indorser and maker. Louisiana Bank r. Roberts, 4 Miller's

Louis. Rep. 530. The plaintiffs in an action on the second set of a foreign bill of Exchange, protested for nonacceptance, with the protests thereto attached, can recover without producing the first of the same set, or accounting for its non-production. Downes r. Church, 13 Pet. 205.

If the payee of a note pay a holder whom he knows had no right to recover, it will not be an extinguishment of the debt. Netherville r. Stevens, 2 How. 642.

(1) {So payment to a person non compos mentis, under guardianship, the payor having knowledge of the guardianship, is not valid. Leonard v. Leonard, 14 Pick. 280. }

1187

1.1

1 12

. . . .

r.31

1.027

th:

.

1.4

131

7

13.

i be

53.0

. 19

nd.

100

11 3

£15.

130

nd:

us.

y)l

Ю-ρđ.

W

h-

the note.

in a merchant's counting-house, and appearing to be entrusted with the conduct of the business there, is a good payment to the merchant, notwithstand- Payment. ing it turns out that such person was never employed by him(z). However, adly, To in ordinary cases, the mere production of a bill of exchange or note indersed whom to in blank by the proper person, or mere production of a check, is sufficient to be made. warrant the payment to the person who produces it, for the possession of an instrument so indorsed, affords presumptive evidence of the holder's ownership or agency to receive payment(a), and this without reference to the circumstance of his being the habitual agent of the same party (b)(1). banker or agent has become a bankrupt, we have seen that his assignees may receive payment without being liable to an action of trover, upon the supposition that such receipt is a conversion of the bill, and will be merely liable to pay over the proceeds to the rightful owner(c). It is neither necessary (d)nor prudent to pay a bill or note to a party who is not the holder, nor without his first producing and delivering up the instrument, for otherwise the party paying may be liable to pay over again to another party who may really be the holder, or entitled to receive payment, unless the latter has afterwards received payment from another party (e); and if for want of distinct evidence of a payment, it should be in doubt whether it was made, the mere circumstance of the instrument not having been given up will afford a presumption against the party who alleges he has paid it (f). But we have seen (g) that if there be clear proof of the destruction of the bill or note, or it be not negotiable, or has not been *indorsed or only specially indorsed, its non-production [*395] furnishes no excuse for non-payment. And, accordingly, in a very recent case(h) it was held to be no answer to an action on a promissory note, not made payable to bearer or order, that when the note became due the defendant was ready to pay on the note being produced and delivered up to him, and always had been and still was ready to pay on the production of

In general when the holder of a bill or note indorsed in blank, or payable to bearer, loses or is robbed of it, and the person finding or stealing it presents it to the drawee at the time it is due, and he pays it bona fide in the course of business, without knowing of the loss or robbery such payment will discharge him(i); and although he had notice of such fact, yet if the person

(z) Barrett v. Deere, Mood. & M. 200; see Corfield v. Parsons, 1 C. & M. 730, 733.

(a) Owen v. Barrow, 1 New Rep. 103, (Chit j. 703); Anon. 12 Mod. 564, (Chit. j. 218); Pal. P. & A. 181.

(b) Anon. 12 Mod. 554; 2 Ld. Raym. 930; Pal. P. & A. 181.

(c) Ante, 359; Tennant v. Strachan, Moo. & M. 377; 4 Car. & P. 31, (Chit. j. 1450). Bills of exchange were deposited with bankers before their bankruptcy, and, handed over by them on the day of their bankruptcy to A. B. who received the proceeds of some of them, and handed over those monies and the remaining bills to the assignees, as soon as they were appointed; and it was held that the assignees were not liable in trover for the bills of which A. B. received the proceeds.

(d) Hansard v. Robinson, 7 B. & C. 90; 9 Dow. & Ry. 860, (Chit. j 1349); ante, 266, note (a).

(c) Fielder v. Carr, 5 Bing. 13; 2 Moore & P. 46, (Chit. j. 1405).

(f) Buzzard r. Flecknoe, 1 Stark. R. 823, (Chit. j. 966); Brombridge v. Osborne, 1 Stark. R. 374.

(g) Aute, 268.

(h) Wain r. Bayley, 2 Perry & Dav. 507.

(i) Ante, 254 to 256; Smith v. Shepperd, Hil. Term, 16 Geo. 3; ante, 261, note

Had there been an existing demand due from the factor to the purchaser at the time of the transfer of the note, quere if such demand might have been set off in an action by the principal.

Ibid.

⁽¹⁾ Where a factor sells the goods of his principal without disclosing his agency, and takes the note of the purchaser, payable to himself or hearer at a future day, and before maturity transfers the note to his principal, payment by the purchaser to the factor, after such transfer and before the note falls due, is no bar to a recovery in an action by the principal as indorsee against the purchaser as maker of the note. Mitchell v. Bristoll, 10 Wend. Rep. 492.

C

ď

D

Ę

d

16

Ü

Ð

Ė

ä

II. Of Payment. 8dly, To whom to be made.

presenting the bill to him was a bona fide holder, such notice would not invalidate the payment (k)(1). (But after notice of a loss, payment should not be made to the finder or any other person without his establishing a clear title or giving an adequate indemnity (l); and in general, if an acceptor or a banker at whose house a bill is made payable, has notice of the loss, and afterwards incautiously pay it, or having afterwards discounted it, debits his customer with the amount, he will have to pay the bill over again to the rightful owner(m). Nor will a payment before a bill or check is due discharge the drawee, unless made to the real proprietor of it; and therefore, where a banker paid a check the day before it bore date, which had been lost by the payee, it was adjudged that he was liable to repay the amount to the person losing it(n); and it is perhaps advisable, that an acceptor should in no case, without adequate indemnity, pay a bill before it is due(o), or after notice from the drawer or indorser not to pay it(p). And if banker pay a check under such circumstances as are sufficient to convince a jury that the payment was not made bon? fide, they cannot take credit for the amount in their account with their customer (q); and where a person pays a sum of money into a banker's for a special purpose, viz. to pay a particular bill, and the banker's clerk by mistake pays the money to the holder of another bill, he may sue the bankers for the amount, but not the party to whom the payment was made(r). Where a bill, transferable only by indorsement, and not indorsed by the proper party, is lost by the person entitled to indorse, no other person can transfer the interest in the bill, and consequently a payment by the drawee even to a bonû fide holder will not in such case be protected(s). It has been held, that in an action by bankers to recover the amount of a bill made payable at their banking-house and paid by them, it is necessary for them not only to prove the hand-writing of the defendant (the acceptor) but also that of the payee, being the first indorser, for the acceptor, by accepting payable at a banker's, only requests the latter to pay it to the payee or his order, and not to any person who presents it; and that if the banker pays it with-[*396] out *ascertaining the indorsement to be genuine, it is at his own risk(t). consequence of a payment in case of forgery will be considered hereafter(u).

Payment to a person or his order, after the knowledge of his having committed an act of bankruptcy, would be ineffectual(x). Thus it has been holden, that if a banker pay the draft of a trader keeping cash with him, after notice of an act of bankruptcy committed by the latter, the assignees may recover the money paid, either from the banker(y) or from the payee of the (k) Pierson v. Hutchinson, 2 Campb. 211; 6 Esp. 126, (Chit. j. 776); ante, 265, note (z); and Bevan v. Hill, 2 Campb. 381, (Chit. j. 788); ante, 267, note (c).

(1) 1 Pardess. 427.

(m) Lovell v. Martin, 4 Taunt. 799, (Chit.

j. 889); ante, 259, note (d).

(n) Da Silva v. Fuller, ante, 260, note (l); and see post, Time of Payment.

(o) Com. Dig. tit. Merchant, F. 7; Mar. 129, 130.

v(p) Bacon v. Searles, 1 H. Bla. 89, (Chit. j. 446); Mar. 129; Com. Dig. tit. Merchant, F. 7.
(q) See ante, 257; Scholey v. Ramsbottom,

2 Campb. 485, (Chit. j. 807); post Payment by Mistake; Lovell v. Martin, 4 Taunt. 799; supra, note (m).

(r) Rogers v. Kelly, 2 Campb. 123.

(s) Mead v. Young, 4 T. R. 32, (Chit. j. 467); ante, 198, note (e), 261, note (z); Long v. Buillie, 2 Campb. 214, (Chit. j. 777); ante, 268, note (i).

(t) Per Lord Ellenhorough, in Forster v. Clements, 2 Campb. 17, (Chit. j. 765); post, Evidence-Indorsement. And see Johnson r. Windle, 3 Bing. N. C. 225; 3 Scott, 603, S. C.; ante, 261, note (s); Hall v. Fuller, 5 B. & C. 750; post, Payment by Mistake.

(u) Post, 426, 427.

(x) Kitchen v. Bartsch, 7 East, 53; 1 B. & P. 378; Cooke's Bankrupt Laws, 584, 585; Eden's Bankrupt Laws, 252.
(y) Id. ibid., Vernon v. Hankey, 2 T. R.

113, (Chit. j. 433); 3 Bro. 313; Pryn v. Beal,

⁽¹⁾ But if he have notice before payment that the bill has been lost, he pays it at his own peril, and if it turn out that the party had no title, he will be liable to the real owner. Lovell v. Martin, 4 Taunt. Rep. 749. See Gorgerat v. M'Carty, 1 Yeates' Rep. 94.

di.

13 . . 1

12.3

.

: · •

. 27

1352 τX

X B

(TE

1.0 × 17

1430

.21

1733 35 58

[[FZ

100 12.

): D

غوا ۾

10

· bu

.13 : 1

gride.

1

. .

M.

뉉

10

(11

12.

ø.

8

check, if such payee also had notice of the bankruptcy(z), unless the payment were compulsion of law(a), but still, until a commission has issued Payment. against the holder, there is no defence to an action at his suit(b); and after saly, T_0 action bona fide brought by such party, it should seem that the defendant whom to might safely pay the money into Court, in order to prevent further costs(c).

So a payment made to a bankrupt or his order, and before the date of the Of Paycommission, and without notice of act of bankruptcy, will in all cases discharge the person making it, it being protected by the statutes, 6 Gco. 4, c. 16, s. 82, and 2 & 3 Vict. c. 29(d); and it has been holden, that if a debtor, not having notice of the act of bankruptcy of his creditor, give him his acceptance in discharge of the debt, he may afterwards pay such acceptance to the holder of the bill, although between the time when he accepted, and the time when the bill became due, he heard of the bankruptcy; the giving, indorsing, or accepting a hill of exchange, being considered as equivalent to an immediate payment within the meaning of the 6 Geo. 4, which protects bona fide payments made to a bankrupt(e). And under the 1 Jac. 1, c. 15, s. 14, it was held, in a court of error, that a payment made to a bankrupt, or the acceptance of a bill on his account, even after a commission issued, was protected, the same as a payment before a commission issued, if the party paying or accepting had not notice in fact of such commission (f).

*We have already seen that a bill or check should not be prematurely 4thly, id(x): Marius gives particular directions on this point(h). The holder Within paid(g); Marius gives particular directions on this point(h). cannot be compelled to receive payment before, or to give time afterwards (i). what Time Payment The general rule with respect to the time allowed for the payment of money, must be when a day certain is appointed, is, that the party bound has till the last made. moment of the day to pay it(k); but it is otherwise with respect to foreign [*397] gan, 2 B. & P. 898.

(z) Vernon v. Hanson, 2 T. R. 257.

(a) 14 Ves. 557; 1 Mont. 316; but see

Blogg v. Phillips, 2 Campb. 129
(b) Prichell v. Down, 3 Campb. 131. Held, that where two partners have stopped payment, and before a commission of bankrupt is taken out against one, a debtor to the firm, who knows of the stoppage, cannot refuse to pay money due to them, on the ground that the other may have committed an act of bankruptcy, although, if that had been the case, his assignees might call upon the debtor to pay a moiety of the money a second time. Per Lord Ellenborough, C. J. "The defendants are not under the protection of the act, 46 Geo. 8, c. 185, s. 1, but before it was passed they could not have justified refusing to pay the balance in their hands under similar circumstances, to whatever subsequent inconvenience the pay-ment might have exposed them. Till the ment might have exposed them. party has actually become a bankrupt, and a commission has been taken out against him, he may sue his debtors. There may be peril in paying a man who is known to have stopped payment, but that affords no defence to an action for a debt justly due to him." Verdict for the plaintiffs. (c) Foster v. Allanson, 2 T. R. 479; 14

East, 588; 2 Ves. jun. 104 to 106.

(d) Sec ante, 206; Coles v. Robins. 3 Campb. 183; Cash r. Young, 2 B & C. 413;

3 Keb. 231; Freem. 349, S. C.; Cox v. Mor- 3 D. & R. 652, S. C. Under the 1 Jac. 1, c. 15, s. 14, a payment to a bankrupt was not protected unless the party making it was strictly a debtor to the bankrupt. Bishop v. Crawshay, 3 B. & C. 415; 5 D. & R. 279, S. C.

(c) Wilkins v. Casey, 7 T. R. 711; ante, 207, note (h); Bayl. 5th edit. 316; and see Foxcrast v. Devonshire, I Bla Rep. 193, (Chit.

j. 353); 3 Campb. 185.

(f) Sowerby r. Brooks, on error, in K. B. from C. P., 4 Bar. & Ald. 523, upon 1 Jac. 1, c. 15, s. 14. On 7th October, a commission issued against Carbutt, but it was not in the Gazette till 5th November. On 30th October. Sowerby accepted a bill drawn on him by Carbutt for 95/. 4s. a sum he owed Carbutt. Sowerby did not know of the commission, or that Carbutt was a bankrupt or insolvent at the time he so accepted. Carbutt's assignce sued Sowerby for the old debt, and he relied on his acceptance, which he paid when due, as a discharge. In C. P. (3 Moore, 157) it was held no discharge, on the ground that issuing a commission was notice to all the world of the bankruptcy, but upon a writ of error the Court of K. B. reversed the judgment. See now as to what shall be deemed constructive notice of an act of bankruptcy, 6 Geo. 4, c 16, s. 83, ante, 208.

(g) Ante, 395, 396; see 1 Pardess 432; Burbridge v. Manners, 3 Campb. 194, (Ch. j 855.)

(h) Marius, 1th edit. 31.

(i) 1 Pardess. 423.

(k) Hudson v. Barton, I Rol. Rep. 189; 1

ĺχ

17 æ

æ

Di ed

ď

d

10

0 ij

ì

Ħ

II. Of Payment. 4thly, Time of Payment.

bills, for as the protest of non-payment of them should be made on the last day of grace(l), and so as to be sent, if possible, by the post on that day, it follows that the holder may insist on payment on demand, or at least before the hours of business are expired (m).

With respect to inland bills it has been much discussed whether the acceptor has not the whole day for payment. On the one hand a bill of exchange has been assimilated to other contracts, in which the party has till the last instant of the day to pay the same: but on the other hand it has been urged, that the contract of an acceptor of a bill or maker of a note, is to pay on demand on the appointed day, and that if payment be not made on such demand, the contract is broken: and the holder may treat the bill or note as dishonoured(n). The latter doctrine appears now to be established; and, therefore, where the acceptor having said, at eleven o'clock in the day, that he would not pay the bill, it was decided that the holder might immediately resort to the drawer, so that notice of the dishonour might be given on the same day(o). And if the house at which the bill is made payable be shut [*398] up, *and no one there, this will be deemed equivalent to a refusal to pay, and notice of dishonour may immediately be given (p). However, it is not usual or necessary to give notice of non-payment before the following morning, and therefore there can be no objection to the allowance of the whole day on which the bill becomes due, to pay it in(q). If the holder make a second presentment of an inland bill on the last day of grace, the acceptor may insist on paying it when such presentment is made, without paying the fees of noting or protesting, notwithstanding such presentment be made after banking-hours, and expressly for the purpose of noting and protesting, because the statute does not authorize a protest until after the last day of Saund. 288, note 17; Leftley v. Mills, 4 T. R.

173, (Chit. j. 473).
(1) Lassel v. Lewis, t Lord Raym. 743, (Chit. j. 192); et post, Ch. X. s. i.; sed quære, see report of the same case, 1 Salk. 132, nom. Hill v. Lewis; Vin. Ab. tit. Time, A. 2, pl. 3; Anon. Lutw. 1593.

(m) Colkett v. Freeman, 2 T. R. 61, (Chit.

(m) Correct v. Freeman, 2 I. R. 01, (Chit. j. 441); Parker v. Gordon, 7 East, 385; 3 Smith's Rep. 358, (Chit. j. 727).

(n) Leftley v. Mills, 4 T. R. 170, (Chit. j. 473); arguments of Kenyon, C. J. and Buller, J. disputed by Lord Alvanley, C. J. in Haynes v. Birks, 3 Bos. & Pul. 602, (Chit. j. 630).

(o) Ex parte Moline, 1 Rose, 303; 19 Ves. 216, (Chit. j. 871); Burbridge c. Manners, 3 Campb. 193, (Chit. j. 855); Hume v. Peploe, 8 East, 169, (Chit. j. 732). Ex parte Moline, 1 Rose, 203. In this case the point was, the acceptor having said, at eleven o'clock in the day, that he would not pay the bill, whether the holder could immediately resort to the drawer? The Lord Chancellor was of opinion that he could. Sir Samuel Romilly mentioned Burbridge v. Manners, 8 Campb. 194, S. P. Quære, whether notice on such day, where there was no unqualified refusal, would do; see Hartley r. Case, 4 B. & C. 339; 6 D. & R. 595; 1 Car. & P. 555, 556, 677, (Chit. j. 1263). See rost, Ch. X. s. i. as to the time of giving notice.

Burbridge v. Manners, 3 Campb. 193, (Chit.

defendant, indorsed by him to one Tinson, and by Tinson to the plaintiff. The note was regalarly presented for payment in the forenoon of the day it became due, when payment was refused, and in the afternoon of the same day the plaintiff caused notice of its dishonour to be sent to the defendant. Park, for the defendant, objected that this was not sufficient notice of the dishonour Finney, the maker of the note, had the whole of the day it became due to pay it, and till the last minute of that day it could not be considered as dishonoured. The notice therefore stated what was untrue, and was evidently premature. Per Lord Ellenborough, "I think the note was dishonoured as soon as the maker had refused payment on the day when it became due, and the notice sent to the defendant must have answered all the purposes for which notice in such case is required. holder of a bill or note gives notice of its dishonour in reasonable time the day after it is due, but he may gire such notice as soon as it has been dishonoured, the day it becomes due; and the other party cannot complain of the extraordinary dilligence used to give him information." Verdict for the plaintiff. And see observations as to giving notice on the same day, in Cocks v. Masterman, post, 426, n. (0); Bayl. 5th edit. 320.

(p) Hine v. Allely, 4 B. & Ad. 624; 1 N.

i M. 433, S. C.

(q) Leftley v. Mills, 4 T. R. 170, (Chit. j. 473); Vin Ab. tit. Time, A. 2, pl. 3; Haynes j. 855). This was an action on a promissory around for 101l. 15s. 5d. dated 11th October, v. Birks, 3 Bos. & Pul. 599, (Chit. j. 690); 1810, drawn by J. Linney, payable three and see per Bayley, J. in Hartley v. Case, 1 nonths after date at Frisci and Co.'s to the C. & P. 677. ARL

. 25

1.1 20

-31 De

T. K.

. . . 1

7.5 14: 00E

€ to par

10 :43

1.28 d. 2%

21.1.5

.

it. 00

: III

n pal.

5 30

Y.2

1 - 1

, cat 1

ii the 3110 i. he ist of

M. 196 1 75 . . 3

1.6% lgr 🕏

10.00

de ore of

- 10.

· 75

-- 54

p 197

. 154

. 10

00 S

(e) (e)

...

TW

عوا

: 5

.. 1

ge:

p1.

fer-

ببو

9);

Ŋ.

grace(r). But it has been decided, that in an action against the acceptor a plea of a tender made after the day of payment of a bill of exchange and be- Payment. fore action brought, is insufficient; although the plea aver that the defendant 4thly, was always ready to pay from the time of the tender, and that the sum ten- Time of dered was the whole money then due, owing, or payable to the plaintiff in Payment. respect of the bill, with interest from the time of the default, for the damages sustained by the plaintiff by reason of the non-performance of the promise, because the neglect to pay on the day when the bill was due established that the defendant was not always ready from the time when the bill was due, which is always essential to the validity of a tender(s)(1). And such plea will be equally bad though it allege that the defendant was always ready to pay from the time when the bill became due, instead of from the time of the tender(t). And though in Walker v. Barnes(u) it was held, that a drawer or indorser might tender within a reasonable time after notice, as it was not to be expected that he should be ready at the very instant he received notice to pay the amount, yet, in a more recent case(x), it was held to be no defence to an action against an indorser, that it was commenced before a reasonable time had elapsed after notice of the dishonour; and that the only remedy the defendant has is to apply to the court to stay proceedings on payment of costs.

*Independently of the Statute of Limitations, if a promissory note of twen- Presumpty years date be unaccounted for, it affords a presumption of payment(y); tion of but it is not conclusive evidence thereof, and especially in a case where, al- Payment, though the promissory note made abroad was over due more than twenty Time. years, yet the plaintiff resided abroad for a considerable time as an alien en- [*399] emy(z).

The payment of a bill or note must always be made in money, and an 5thly,

(r) Leftley v. Mills, 4 T. R. 170, (Chit. j. 473); Poth. pl. 140, 174; see post, Ch. X. s. i. Protest for Non-payment—When necessa-

(s) Hume v. Peploe, 8 East, 168, (Chit. j.

722.) (t) Poole v. Tumbridge, 2 Mee. & Wels. 223; 5 Dowl. 468; 1 Murr. & H. 32, S. C. Indorsee v. Acceptor. Plea, that after the bill became due and before the commencement of this suit, defendant tendered to the plaintiff the amount of the bill, with the interest from the day it became due, and that he hath always, from the time when the bill became due, been ready to pay the plaintiff the amount with in-terest aforesaid: held bad on special demurrer. Per Lord Abinger, C. B. "I am of opinion that this plea is bad. If the question be merely whether the acceptor can plead a tender after the day of payment, it is bad on the authority of Hume v. Peploe, (8 East, 168). I will not say that if this case arose—that the acceptor went on the day that the bill became due to the house of the holder, for the purpose of paying it, and could not find him, but on a subsequent day when be found him, tendered him the money-I am not prepared to say that in such a case the rules of law ought to be pressed so far how made, as to render the party liable to an action the and what next day after the bill becomes due, and not to amounts to allow him to plead that tender, by which means it. the proceedings of a court of law are made nothing else but machinery to increase costs. But it is consistent with the present plea, that the defendant knew where the holder lived, but did not take the pains to tender him the money on the day it became payable. If he knows where the holder is to be found, he clearly ought to go and pay the debt. Even, therefore, if Hume v. Peploe did not apply, the plea does not disclose a sufficient defence.

(u) 1 Marsh. 36; 5 Taunt. 240, (Chit. j. 989); ante, 341, note (p).

(x) Siggers v. Lewis, 2 Dowl. P. C. 181; 1 Crom. M. & Ros. 370; 4 Tyrw. 847, S. C.; semble, overruling Walker v. Barnes, 1 Marsh.

(y) Duffield v. Creed, 5 Esp. R. 52, (Chit. . 684). And see the 3 & 4 W. 4, c. 42, s. 3, limiting the time for the recovery of specialty debts to twenty years.

(z) Du Belloix v. Lord Waterpark, 1 D. & R. 16, (Chit. j. 1128).

⁽¹⁾ Caldwell v. Cassidy, S Cowen's Rep. 271. Curley v. Vance, 17 Mass. Rep. 389. By the common law and practice of Connecticut such tender would be good. Tracy r. Strong, 2 Conn. Rep. 659

II. Of Payment. 5thly, agent authorised to receive payment generally cannot take goods in pay-When a bill is drawn here, and payable in a foreign country in ment(a)(1). foreign coin, the value of which is reduced by the government of that coun-How made try, it is said that the bill shall be payable according to the value of the moand what amounts to ney at the time it was drawn(b). But though a war between this and a foreign country may in some cases excuse the obligation on a British subject to pay a bill in such foreign country(c); yet where a note was made payable in Paris, or at the choice of the bearer in England, according to the course of exchange upon Paris, it was holden, that as the direct course of exchange between London and Paris had ceased, the holder was entitled to recover upon the note, according to the circuitous course of exchange by Hamburgh at the time the note was presented (d). The effect of payment by a remittance of bills by post, which are lost, has also already been stated(e); and we have seen, that bank-notes and country bankers' notes should be remitted in halves and by different conveyances (f). Payment is frequently made by a draft on a banker, in which case, if the person receiving the draft, do not use due diligence to get it paid, the person from whom he received it, and every other party to the bill, will be discharged, but nototherwise, unless the holder expressly agreed to run all risks(g); for a banker's check is not money (h)(2); and it has been holden, that the act of writing a receipt in full will not be evidence of such agreement (i) (3). The delivery of an over-due bill of the vendor in payment for goods sold by him, has, in one instance, been considered as a complete payment; as where the defendant, who had ordered goods for ready money, paid for them by returning to the vendor's agent a bill accepted by the vendor, which had been due and dishonoured before the goods were ordered; the agent, at first, re-

> (a) Howard v. Chapman, 4 Car. & P. 508. (b) Da Costa v. Cole, Skin. 272, (Chit. j.

179). (c) Pollard v. Herries, 3 Bos & Pul. 340,

(Chit. j. 672).
(d) Pollard v. Herries, 3 Bos. & Pul. 335.

(e) Ante, 236.

(f) Ante, 237, and ante, 383, Time of Presentment, where we have seen that a few hours delay, occasioned by that mode of remittance, would not be deemed laches

(g) Vernon v. Boverie, 2 Show. 296, (Chit. j. 166); Ward v. Evans, 2 Ld. Raym. 930, (Chit j. 216); Anon. 12 Mod. 521, S. C.; Vin. Ab. tit. Payment, A.; Dent v. Duna, 3 Campb. 296, (Chit. j. 877); ante, 178.

(h) See Moore v. Bartrup, 2 D. & R. 25; 1

B. & C. 5, (Chit. j. 1153).

(i) Ante, 172 to 181.

(1) So it has been held in New York, that a receipt for a note as cash, is not evidence that it is received as an absolute payment. Tobey v. Barber, 5 John. Rep. 68. Putnam v. Lewis, 8 John. Rep. 389.

In an action against the maker by the holder of a promissory note, indorsed after it was dishonoured, the defendant proved, that there being an unsettled account between himself and the payee, the payee agreed to take up the note from a creditor, to whom he had indorsed it, and upon a settlement of the account, to deliver it to the defendant; that the payee did take it up for that purpose, and that there was a balance due from him to the defendant, exceeding the amount of the note; held, that this agreement operated as a payment of the note. Peabody v. Peters, 5 Pick. 1.

(2) A check upon a bank, given in the ordinary course of business, is not presumed to be received as an absolute payment, even if the drawer have funds in the bank, but as the means whereby the holder may procure the money. Cromwell v. Wing & Lovett, I Hall's Rep. 56.

The holder of a check in such a case, becomes the agent of the drawer to collect the money; and if guilty of no negligence, whereby an actual injury is sustained by the drawer, he will not be answerable, if from any peculiar circumstances attending the bank, the check is not paid.

In a suit against the drawer for the consideration of such a check, the holder may treat it as a nullity and resort to his original cause of action. Ibid.

(3) A negotiable note given for a subsisting debt will not be regarded as payment when it is otherwise understood or agreed by the parties, at the time. Gilmore v. Bussey, 3 Fairf. 418.

Where an acceptance has been received to be collected and applied in payment of a precedent debt, the creditor is bound to use due diligence in its collection, or it will be holden as a satisfaction of his own deht, by reason of his laches. Cochran v. Wheeler, 7 N. Hamp. 202. }

1.81

. 35

. 1.7.1

65

100

1.

1.23

بمرازر

223

31.75

eg (1)

أواحا

3 175

25.7

No. of the

g (20)

1.1

مع المريخ n iii

176 180

bi ie

مينو_{ل (}

(), (t)

13:

ازه د ۱ د

110

25, 1

the fire

13.

7 J

20

1.1

g: đ

ر. ن_ا

10

:125

iń.

(RX

HC.

11

fused to take the bill, but ultimately carried it to the vendor, who kept it, II. Of and the vendor having become bankrupt, the court in an action brought by Payment. his assignees to recover the value of the goods, held this transaction equiva-5thly, lent to payment(k). But a bill or note cannot be set off unless it be due(l). How made

When payment is made by the drawee giving a draft on a banker, Marius and what amounts to advises the holder not to give up the bill until the drast be *paid(m). For-[*400] merly the usage in London was otherwise when the drawee was a respectable person in trade; and in one case it was decided, that a banker having a bill remitted to him to present for payment, was not guilty of negligence in giving it up upon receiving from the acceptor a check upon another banker for the amount payable the same day, although such check be afterwards dishonoured(n); but in a subsequent case it was considered, that the drawer and indorsers of a bill would be discharged by the holder's taking a check from and delivering up the bill to the acceptor, in case the check were not paid; because the drawer and indorsers have a right to insist on the production of the bill, and to have it delivered up on payment by them (o). holder of a draft on a banker receive payment thereof in the banker's notes instead of cash, and the banker fail, the drawer of the check will be discharged (p). But if a creditor, on any other account than a bill of exchange, is offered cash in payment of his debt, or a check upon a banker, from an agent of his debtor, and prefer the latter, this does not discharge the debtor, if the check is dishonoured, although the agent fails, with a balance of his principal in his hands to a much greater amount (q). When twenty years have elapsed since the date of a note, &c. payment may be presumed unless the contrary appear (r). And when bills are taken in payment of a debt, and the party sues upon the original consideration, payment of the bills will be presumed till the contrary appear(s). So the acceptance by a creditor of a check in his favour, drawn by his debtor, operates as payment unless dishonoured(t)(1). And it has been holden, that the production of a check drawn by the defendant, payable to the plaintiff and indorsed by him, is evidence of the payment(u), but the mere insertion of the party's name in the draft would not have that effect(x); and it has been held, that proof of the (k) Mayer v. Nias, 1 Bing. 311; 8 Moore, 275, (Chit. ij. 1189). See Elaud v. Karr, 1 East, 375; Fair v. M'Iver, 16 East, 130, (Ch. j. 865). But see Lackington v. Combes, 6 Bing. N. C. 71; post, Part II. Ch. VIII. s. v. as to question of set-off under bankrupt act.

(1) In re Goodchild, 2 Law J. 137. (m) Mar. 21; Ward v. Evans, 12 Mod. 521, (Chit. j. 216); Vernon v. Boverie, 2 Show. 395, (Chit. j. 166); ante, 368, 369, Mode of Presentment.

(n) Ante, 368; Russell v. Hankey, 6 T. R. 12, (Chit. j. 530); Paley Prin. & Ag. 8, 87, 144, 186, 187; and see Turner v. Mead, 1 Stra. 416, (Chit. j. 248); Hayward v. The Bank of England, 1 Stra. 550, (Chit. j. 252); Kyd, 43; Mar. 121; See Haynes v. Birks, 8 B. & P. 601, (Chit. j. 690), as to sanctioning usage.

(o) Powell v. Roche, Sittings at Guildhall, before Lord Ellenborough, A. D. 1807, MS.; 6 Esp. 76, (Chit. j. 731); and see Mar. 22; et ante, 353, note (b), as to recovering at law without producing a bill, &c.; and post, Ch. X. s. i. as to sending a protested bill.

(p) Vernon v. Boverie, 2 Show. 296, (Chit.

J. 166).
(q) Everett v. Collins, 2 Campb. 515, (Ch. j. 818); and see Dent v. Dunn, 3 Campb. 296, (Chit. j. 877); Marsh v. Peddar, Holt, C. N. P. 72, 278, (Chit. j. 945); Tapley v. Masters, 8 T. R. 451, (Chit. j. 625); Wyatt v. Marquess of Hertford, 3 East, 147, (Chit. j. 664).
(r) Duffield r. Creed, 5 Esp. Rep. 52, (Ch.

j. 684); ante, 399, note (y).
(s) Hebden v. Hartsink, 4 Esp. Rep. 46.

(s) Hebden v. Hartsink, 4 Esp. Rep. 46, (Chit. j. 640).
(t) Pearce v. Davis, 1 Mood. & Rob. 365.

(t) Pearce v. Davis, I Mood. & Rob. 365.
 (u) Egg v. Barnet, 3 Esp. 196, (Chit. j. 626).

(x) Egg v. Barnet, 3 Esp. Rep. 196; Pearce v. Davis, 1 Mood. & Rob. 365; Pfiel v. Van Batenberg, 2 Campb. 439, (Chit. j. 797).

Digitized by Google

^{(1) {} Where bank bills are received in payment of a debt, which bank had failed prior to their acceptance by the creditor, but such failure was unknown to either party at the time; Held that the creditor must suffer the loss. Scruggs v. Gase, S Yerg. 175. But see Lightbody v. Ontario Bank, 11 Wend. 9, and Harley v. Thornton, 2 Hill, 509, where it was held that in such a case the loss falls on the party paying, and not on the party receiving. } á

13

0i

Payment.

5thly,

delivery and payment of a check to the plaintiff is not sufficient evidence of a debt, in order to support a set-off, unless it be shewn upon what consideration and under what circumstances the check was given (y); and it has even How made been held, that the mere circumstance of a check being made payable to A., amounts to. and of A.'s having received payment of it, is not evidence that the maker gave it to him(z).

[*491]

*We have already seen, that a deed reciting the actual payment of money is conclusive at law against the recovery of such money; but not so where from the whole tenor of the deed it shews no such payment was made(a). A judgment without satisfaction is no payment(b).

As bills of exchange differ from other debts in respect of their assignable quality, it has been decided, that a negotiable bill of exchange is not to be considered as paid or satisfied by the drawer's bequeathing a larger legacy to the party in whose favour it was drawn, although such party continued to be holder at the time of the testator's death(c). But in another case it was held, that a debt on a note was discharged by an entry in the testator's hand, that the debtor should pay no interest, nor should he, the testator, take the principal, unless greatly distressed, it being proved that the testator died in affluent circumstances (d).

Credit given to the holder of a bill, by the party ultimately liable, is tantamount to payment; but it is otherwise as to credit given by a party not ultimately liable, as where the credit is given by the banker of the holder, such banker not being a party to the bill(e). Upon this principle it has been held, that if bankers' notes be paid into another banking-house, having transactions with the former, who by the course of dealing and with the consent of the latter, give credit for, instead of giving cash for the amount of the notes, and fail, the latter must bear the loss(f).

(y) Aubert v. Walsh, 4 Taunt. 293, (Chit. j. 860); see also Cary v. Gerrish, 4 Esp. Rep. 9, (Chit. j. 635).

(z) Lloyd v. Sandilands, Gow, C. N. P. 15. A receipt on the back of a bill is evidence of payment. Scholey v. Walsby, Peake R. 25. But the production of a bill of exchange from the custody of the acceptor is not prim's facie evidence of his having paid it, without proof that it was once in circulation after it had been accepted. Pfiel v. Van Batenberg, 2 Campb. 439. And in such case payment is not to be presumed from a receipt indorsed on the bill, unless this receipt is known to be in the handwriting of the person entitled to demand payment, id. See post, Sthly, as to the Receipt for Payment.

(a) Ante, 314.

(b) Tarleton v. Allhusen, 2 Ad. & Ellis, 32. A purchaser of goods accepted a bill for the price, which the vendor indorsed over; the indorsee recovered judgment on the bill against the purchaser, but did not take out execution; afterwards the vendor took up the bill and received a mortgage from the purchaser, from which, however, there were no proceeds: held, that the vendor was not, in point of law, paid for the goods.

(c) Carr v. Eastabrook, 3 Ves. 561, (Chit. j. 572); 2 Roper, 20.

(d) Aston, executor, v. Pye, C. P. Easter Term, 28 Geo. 3, cited in Eldon v. Smyth, 5 Ves. 350. Judgment for defendant; action for £300, upon a note of hand given by defendant to his uncle, payable twelve months after date. The cause was tried at the Sittings after Trinity Term. Verdict for the plaintiff, subject to the opinion of the court. The case was this: Thomas Pye, the uncle, made his will the 17th August, 1785, and after his death the executors found the following entry: " Henry James Pye pays no interest, nor shall I ever take the principal unless greatly distressed;" which entry bears date subsequent to the will. Upon the case coming on to be argued, the court advised a reference to the Ecclesiastical Court, who refused to prove the same as a testamentary paper, whereupon the court considered the same as a discharge, and that the paper would operate as a bar against the executors. As to how far the gift of a legacy by the holder of a bill, whose claim is barred by the Statute of Limitations, may be enforced, see 4 Bro. C. C. 227.

(e) Per Patteson, J. in Atkins v. Owen, 4 Nev. & Man. 123, 125; 2 Ad. & El. 35, S. C.; and see the same case 6 N. & M. 309; 4 Ad. & El. 819.

(f) Gillard v. Wise and others, 5 B. & C. 134; 7 Dow. & Ry. 523, (Chit. j. 1276). A. on the 18th March, 1824, paid into the Totness country bank a quantity of notes of a bank at Dartmouth to bear interest from that day. Totness bankers sent the notes early on the following morning to the Dartmouth bank; upon the receipt of them there the latter, according to the usual course of dealing with the Totness

्धी।

∴ 4.

ંડજ

30

.

100 1.15

,- , X

111

. . . .

1.7

7:18

7. 100

10

10.20

1.00

of the

1.0

. 10

7-34

 $\omega \in \mathbb{R}$

. 125

, 73

. 198

· [4:

17

337

血液 أعارا

, جد

1 /11-

51

Ņ.

p#

14,6

111-

1,

ş. 4

14.

s!

If money be paid into a banking-house, to be placed to the credit of II. Of another, upon a condition, the money in the mean time to stand in the bank- Payment. ers' books in the name of the party paying it in, it is at his risk; and the 5thly, loss is his, if the bankers fail before the condition is complied with, though How made the other party had written to desire it to be paid in *generally(g). where A. in October authorised his debtor B. to discharge the amount by [*402] paying it to A.'s bankers at Maidstone, and owing to a mistake B. did not then pay it, but B. who kept an account with the same bankers, transferred the same to A.'s credit on Friday, the 9th December, and A. being at a distance did not receive notice of this transfer till the Sunday following, and on that day the bankers failed, it was holden that this was a sufficient payment by B.(h).

But and what amounts to.

With respect to the application of payments in general, where a party 6thly, of owes two or more distinct debts, and pays money generally to the creditor, the Appliwithout directing or shewing his intention that it shall be applied in satisfac- Payments. tion of one of the debts in particular, the creditor may apply it in discharge Separate of any one of the debts he may think fit; and this even to the prejudice of a Accounts. party who was surety for one of the debts(i); and although one of the debts bankers, gave them credit in account for the amount of the notes. The course of business between the two banks was, that if the Totness bank received notes of the Dartmouth bank in the course of the day, they sent the notes on the following morning to the Dartmouth bank. If the Dartmouth bank received notes of the Totness bank, they, at the close of the business of the day, sent them to the Totness bank. If the balance of the day was in favour of either bank, the account was paid by a bill upon their respective agents in London. The Dartmouth bank continued to pay their notes until the evening of the 19th. Held, as between A. and the Totness bankers, the taking of credit in account for the amount of the Dartmouth notes was equivalent to payment to the Totness bankers, and therefore that A. was entitled to recover the amount from them. Ante, 368, note (p).

(g) Culley v. Short, 1 Cooper Eq. Ca. 148; see ante, 36, as to the liability of an agent paying his principal's money into his bankers' hands.

(h) Eyles v. Ellis, 4 Bing. 112. A mere prospective engagement to give credit does not. however, amount to payment; Peddar c. Watt, Peake Add. 41; ante, 180, note (a).

(i) Goddard r. Cox, 2 Stra. 1194; Bosanquet v. Wray, 6 Taunt. 597; 2 Marsh. 319, S. C.; Kirby v Duke of Marlborough, 2 Maule & S. 18; Plomer v. Long, 1 Stark. R. 153; Cro. Eliz 68; Campbell v. Hodgson, Gow. N. P. C. 74; Hall v. Wood, 14 East, 243, note, and cases in the following notes.

Neale r. Bird, 1 B. & C. 657; 3 D. & R. 158, S. C. A sold goods to B., at whose risk they were shipped for Lisbon, to be paid for by bills drawn upon R. & Co. C. went as supercargo and trustee for A. and B., and was to retain possession of the goods, until the amount of the bills drawn upon R. & Co. was remitted, and then the bill of lading was to be given up to B. B. directed R. & Co. to effect an insurance, which was done at his expense, and not in pursuance of any agreement between him and A. The ship, with the goods on board, was captured, and the underwriters paid a total loss to R. & Co., who gave B. credit for the money, part of which they paid over to him, and part to his assignces after he had become bankrupt. R. & Co paid part of the bills drawn upon them, and rejected others; in an action brought against them by A. for money had and received to his use; held, that they were not bound to apply the money paid on the policy to the discharge of the bills drawn by B. for the goods. The defendants, in answer to an application by plaintiff, stated that they could say nothing about some of the bills in question not then accepted, and that their fate must depend upon the state of Williams's account when they become due : Held, that this was not a conditional acceptance, and did not bind R. & Co. to apply to the payment of the bills any money that they might receive on account of Williams.

58

Where A. gave an accommodation acceptance to B., which B gave to C. as a security for some acceptances of his, and these acceptances, when they became due, were paid by B. out of the produce of other acceptances given by C.; but A.'s acceptance was not given up, though C. was desired not to present it, and A. was informed that it would not be presented. it was held that the original transaction was continued; and A. not calling for the delivery of the bill must be presumed to have allowed it to remain as a security in the hands of C., for such of his acceptances as were subsequent to those for which it was at first given. Wood-roffe r. Hayne, 1 Car. & P. 600, (Chit. j. 1241); and see Attwood v. Crowdie, I Stark, R 483, (Chit. j. 979); ante, 218, note (r), 305, note (y).

The doctrine applies to cases where one of the debts is due on specialty, id.; Western v. Westerne, 2 Vern 606; Peters v. Anderson, 5 Taunt. 597; or where one is a judgment, and be secured only by an unstamped bill, the holder may apply the payment in discharge of that in preference to another duly stamped bill(k). So although 6thly, Ap- one of two *debts be barred by the Statute of Limitations, the creditor is at liberty to appropriate a general payment in discharge of the debt so bar-And where in an action for the balance of a banking account, the question between the parties was whether a disputed sum, above six years old, had been paid by the plaintiffs with the defendant's authority or not; it was held, that the jury having found that the payment was authorised by the defendant, the plaintiffs were entitled to apply subsequent unappropriated payments of the defendant in discharge of the sum in question, so as to prevent the operation of the Statute of Limitations (m).

М

II. Of Payment plication of Payments. [*403 |

> Where A. has a legal claim against B. as the acceptor of a bill of exchange, and has also possession of a mortgage deed, executed by B. to a third person, of which he might compel an assignment in equity, and B. pays money to A. on account, without prejudice to his claim on any securities, the law applies such payment to the bill of exchange(n). And where a promissory note had been given by a surety, for goods to be supplied to his principal, and not in respect of a previously existing debt, and goods were subsequently supplied, and payments were from time to time made by the principal, in respect of some of which discount was allowed for prompt payment, it was inferred in favour of the surety that all these payments were intended in liquidation of the latter account(o).

> If a debtor owe a debt contracted whilst he was a trader within the bankrupt laws, and another debt contracted afterwards, and make a general payment, if nothing be said respecting the application, the law applies the payment to the first demand; and, therefore, the creditor could not take out a commission of bankruptcy in respect of it(p). And if a person have two demand upon another, one arising out of a lawful contract, the other out of a contract forbidden by law, and the debtor make a payment, which is not specifically appropriated by either party at the time of the receipt, the law will appropriate it to the well-founded and legal demand (q). And where both demands are legal, if the payment be wholly unappropriated by either the other a simple contract debt, Brazier v. Bryant, 2 Dowl. 477; Chitty v. Naish, id. 511; or where the prior debt is merely equitable, Bo-sanquet v. Wray, 6 Taunt. 597; 2 Marsh. 319, S. C.; but a general payment unappropriated by the creditor must be applied to a prior legal, and not to a subsequent equitable demand, Goddard v. Hodges, 1 C. & M. 33; 3 Tyrw. 259, S. C.; and post, 403; see Chit. j. on Contracts, 279; 3 Chit. Com. Law, 133, 134. It is not necessary that the party should expressly declare how the money is to be appropriated; it will suffice if such direction or appropriation can from circumstances be implied. Shaw v. Picton, 4 B. & C. 713; 7 D. & R. 201, S. C.; Chitty v. Naish, 2 Dowl. 511; Marryatt v. White, 2 Stark. R. 101; Peters v. Anderson, 5 Taunt. 597.

(k) Biggs v. Dwight, 1 Man. & Ry. 808, (Chit. j. 1360). A. the acceptor of two bills for 25l. and 50l., both over-due, paid 22l. 10s. to B. the holder, "on account;" B. said, "he wished to have the full amount of the 25l. bill;" A. replied, "he had no more mones then, but would pay some more soon." B. then indorsed on the 25l. bill, "Received 22l. 10s. in part of two bills." Held, that B. might appropriate the payment to the 251. bill, though void for want of a stamp.

(1) Mills v. Fowkes, 5 Bing. N. C. 455; 7 Scott, 444, S. C. The rule of civil law, that a general payment is to be applied to the more burthensome debt, is unknown to our law. Per Tindal, C. J. ib. As to the time of application, see infra.

(m) Williams r. Griffith, 5 Mee. & W. 800.
(n) Birch v. Tebbutt, 2 Stark. R. 7.

(o) Marryatts v. White, 2 Stark. R. 101. (p) Meggot v. Mills, 1 Ld. Raym. 296; Dawe r. Holdsworth, Peake, 645; but note, these cases were decided upon the supposed criminality of an act of bankruptcy. See observations in Peters v. Anderson, 5 Taunt. 596, (q) Wright v. Laing, 3 B. & C. 165; 4 D. & Ry. 783, (Chit. j. 1213); Ribbans v. Crickett, 1 Bos. & P. 264; Ex parte Randleson, 2 Den. & Chit. 534; but see Biggs v. Dwight, 1 Man. & Ry. 308; ante, 402, note (k); Philpot v. Jones, 2 Ad. & El. 41; Cruikshanks v. Rose, 1 Mood. & Rob. 100; that the creditor may apply such payment in discharge of the contract forbidden by law. 7417.1

.110

. . . . 2

. 2

A 183

1 30% $ d br 🏖

300

. ja 34

(i 0 B 24

B :35

Jr4, 100

1000

أور غاز

K Lin , jjeli

1500

مقالنا ،

1 31.

٠ ١٩٢٠

اللا م اللا م

10 :10

a lo no 10

10 IT

5. 9.6

nine de gr

().t.

x (36)

.

. 18

FP.

3(0).

esp.

50 th

المرافأ

. 10

ŶÓ,

4 D.

77.k. 10, 2 1, 1

;15

party, the law will apply it to the earlier debt(r). In neither case, howev- II. Of er, is the creditor bound to make the appropriation at the time of payment, Payment. but may make his election at any time before action(s); nor is he bound to 6thly, Apnetify the appropriation by any specific act, and, it should seem, that his plication of election is sufficiently manifested by bringing the action (t). And the right of election or appropriation by the creditor is not exercised by him merely Applicaby entries made in his own private books, and is not complete or lost to him tion. *until such election or appropriation has been communicated to the opposite [*404] party(u).

But this doctrine does not apply where there are no distinct accounts, or Joint Acwhere separate accounts are treated as one entire account by all parties, as counts. in an account with bankers, when the payments, advances, and receipts on each side are to be considered as applicable in reduction of the earliest part of the account (v).

Where bankers discounted for the drawer a bill accepted for his accommodation, and after it was dishonoured were informed of the fact, and requested by the drawer not to apply to the acceptor, and afterwards the drawee's account with them was in his favour, it was decided that the balance being once turned in his favour, the bill was to be considered as satisfied, although afterwards the drawer became insolvent, and was much indebted to them in consequence of subsequent advances(x). And where a per-

(r) Per Tindal, C. J. in Mills v. Fowkes, 5 Bing. N. C. 461.

(s) Simson v. Ingham, 2 B. & C. 65; 3 D. & R. 249, S. C.; post, 408, n. (1); Mills v. Fowkes, 5 Bing N. C. 455; 7 Scott, 444, S. C.; Philpot v. Jones, 2 Ad. & El. 41. In the last case it was said by Taunton, J. that the appropriation might be made at any time before the case came under the consideration of a jury. It should seem, therefore, that the application by law can rarely be of any service to the debtor.

(t) Id. ib.; Peters v. Anderson, 5 Taunt. 596.

(u) Simson v. Ingham, 2 B. & Cress. 65; 8 D. & R. 249, S. C.; post, 408, n. (l) Where the consignor of goods appropriates the proceeds thereof in discharge of a particular antecedent debt, he may alter the application of those proceeds at any time before the goods come to the possession of the party whose debt they were to discharge, unless notice has been given to him of the prior appropriation; Hankey v. Hunter, Peake's Add. Ca. 107, per Lord

(v) Clayton's case, cited 1 Meriv. 585, 608; per Bayley, J. in Bodenham v. Purchas, 2 B. & Al. 39, 45; and see other cases, 2 Bridgm. lodex, 586, 587, 2d edit. tit. Trade; Harrison's Index, vols. 2 and 3, p. 893 to 897, 2442, 3d edit. tit. Debtor and Creditor.

As to the obligation of bankers to apply a general payment in discharge of a particular demand, see Kilsby v. Williams, 5 B. & Ald. 816; ante, 821, note (m).

As to the lien of bankers upon securities in their hands for the balance of their general account, see Jourdaine v. Lefevre, 1 Esp. R. 66; Davis v. Bowsher, 5 T. R. 488; Giles v. Perkins, 9 East, 14; Scott v. Franklin, 15 East, 428; Bolland v. Bygrave, Ry. & Moo. 271;

Wilson v. Balfour, 2 Campb. 579; Lucas v. Dorrien, 7 Taunt. 278; 1 Moore, 29, S. C. When a banker's acceptances exceed the cash balance in his hands, he holds collateral securities for value; Bosanquet v. Dudman, 1 Stark. R. 1; ante, 74, note (*); and see further, post, Part II. Ch. VIII. s vi. Bankruptcy.

(x) Marsh and another v. Houlditch, Sittings Westminster, after Easter Term, 1818, before Mr. Justice Abbott. Assumpsit on a bill for 500L, dated 28th June, 1811, payable three months after date, drawn by Joel George Young upon and accepted by the defendant for the accommodation of the drawer, and in-dorsed by him to the plaintiffs. The drawer, on being released, swore as follows:-In June 1811, I re-opened my account with the plaintiff, when the bill for 500/. was discounted. I had other bills with them, they were discounted together, I had credit for that sum in my account; no other bills were discounted for me during this account. Defendant had no consideration whatever for this bill; I was aware of the time of its becoming due. that day I called at defendant's house, he was not at home, I think I found a banker's ticket there. That day or the next, I saw Mr. Fauntleroy, (one of the plaintiffs,) I told him the bill was an accommodation from defendant to me; that I should take it up and requested him not to apply to defendant. He said, very well, and requested me to take it up as soon as I could; he did not like defendant's bills, and had had trouble enough with him. I said he might depend upon me; he said he should look to me and not mind him. The bill was due the 1st of October; I paid in 1041, at the time of the conversation; shortly afterwards the balance was in my farour. In the course of the month I paid in 10001., and did not draw out above 200/. Some months afterwards, for the first

II. Of Payment. Joint Accounts.

son who kept cash with a banker, *deposited with him the note of a third person for a sum of money, telling him, at the same time, that it was a note 6thly, Ap-made for his accommodation, and afterwards paid a sum of money into the plication of bank without making any specific appropriation of it; it was held, that this money must be placed, as far as it would go, towards the discharge of the then existing debt, and the banker could not hold the maker of the note responsible for more than the balance remaining due at the time of such payment, although he afterwards trusted his debtor with a further sum of mo-So where the defendant accepted a bill of exchange drawn by C. who indorsed it to his bankers, and they entered it on the credit side of C.'s account, but the bill having been dishonoured, entered it afterwards on the debit side, and a few days after the dishonour, the defendant paid the amount of the bill to C., but omitted to take it out of the banker's hands; and C. subsequently paid into the bank on his general account more than enough to cover all the items of the account preceding the bill item, and that item also; and the bankers, for a space of three years, treated the bill as paid, and they then sued defendant on his acceptance; it was holden, that he was not liable; and that the circumstance of the banker's proving the balance under a commission against their customer, without excepting the bills, afforded evidence that they no longer consider them as subsisting securities (z).

But if a bill or note be intended as a continuing security, then the circumstance of the party depositing it with his bankers, having afterwards at one time had a balance in his favour, will not be deemed a satisfaction of the instrument, but the same may afterwards be enforced against all the parties for the balance subsequently becoming due(a).

time, I heard again of this bill; I failed in October 1812, heard of application to defendant from him, and went to plaintiffs upon it. In May the bill was at rest completely; 20th and 23d of May I paid monies, but cannot recollect on what particular account. I went to plaintiffs on my general accounts, after defendant had had a letter from the plaintiffs; I had an interview with them, and they agreed I should clear up my account as soon as I could; they wanted security or would make me no more advances; they had a security from me in January, but could make no use of it. Abbott. J. to plaintiffs' counsel, "Unless you can alter the fact of the conversation, it is an answer to the action. The banking account of the drawer with the plaintiffs having, at one time after the bill was due, been in his favour to a larger amount than the bill, the plaintiffs were bound to apply the balance in discharge of that bill, and could not keep it as a security for a fluctuating balance, which might ultimately be-come due to them." Plaintiffs nonsuited. See Bloxsome v. Neale, ante, 219, note (t); Hammersley v. Knowlys, 2 Esp. R. 665; post, 405, note (y); 1 Meriv. 589; Dawe r. Holdsworth, Peake P. 64, 65, S. P.; but see Tinson r. Francis, 1 Campb. 19; Attwood r. Crowdie, 1 Stark. R. 483, and Bosanquet r. Dudman, id. 1; ante, 217, note (m), 218, note (r), 305. note (y), semb. contra.

(y) Hammersley v. Knowlys, 2 Esp. R. 665;

(Chit. j. 611).

(z) Field and others v. Carr, 5 Bing. 13; 2 Moore & P. 46, (Chit. j. 1405); and see Bayl. 5th edit. 317, 318.

(a) Pesse v. Hirst, 10 Bar. & C. 122; 5

Man. & Ry. 88, (Chit. j. 1456); and see Williams r. Rawlinson, 3 Bing. 71; 10 Moore, 362; Ry. & M. 233; Field v. Carr. 5 Bing.

Pease r. Hirst, 10 Bar. & C. 122; 5 Man. & Ry. SS, (Chit. j. 1456). The analysis of that case is thus: A. wishing to obtain credit with his bankers. with his bankers, in 1817 prevailed upon three persons to join him in a promissory note, whereby they jointly and severally promised to pay the bankers or order 3001. The bankers gave A. credit in his pass-book for 300l. on account of the note, and charged him with interest for the same yearly. Upon two of the partners retiring from the banking-house, a balance was struck between the old and new firm, and a promissory note was delivered to the new firm, but not indorsed to them. A. at one time had in the hands of his bankers a balance exceeding the amount of the note. He paid interest to the banking-house annually, and it was held, first, that the note being payable to the firm of the banking-house or order, and being evidently intended to be a continuing security, the makers were liable upon it, notwithstanding a change in the members of the banking-house; and secondly, that an action on the note (the same not having been indorsed) was properly brought in the name of the payee of the note; and thirdly, that the note was not discharged by reason of A. at one time having in the hands of the banker a balance exceeding in amount the sum secured by the note; and fourthly, that the payment of interest within six years by A. on the note was evidence of an acknowledgment by all the joint makers of the note, so as to take the case out of the Statute of Limitations.

12

77.

ηI -

127

....

22 113

1

.

31 330

- - 0

ون م

A 36 11.0

1.7

1.15

130

1412

100

, 391 77

-2"

.

., 14 T D

10.1

ثبر

::

17

di.

-10

٠

:0

į) (

And where A., a solicitor in the country, received from a client a sum II. Of of money, which was to be paid by him into the Court of Chancery on the Payment. client's account, and A. obtained a bill for the sum from a country banker, 6thly, and remitted it to his bankers in London, without stating, the reason for Applicawhich the amount had been paid to him; and at the same time A. was in-tion of debted to his bankers in 450l. for which they held securities, and as to which they kept an account separate from his general account; and A. died; and a few days afterwards the bill became due and was paid, and the bankers carried the amount to A.'s general account; and the bankers, for sometime after they had received notice from the client of the circumstances under which the amount of the bill had been paid to A., continued to keep the accounts separate, *but ultimately deducted the 450l. from the proceeds of the [*406] bill, and paid the balance to his executrix; it was held, that as there was no agreement binding the bankers to keep separate accounts as to the 450l. and the amount of the bill, and as they had no notice till after the amount was received of the purpose for which it was intended to be applied, the client was not entitled to recover from them any part of the proceeds of the bill(b).

If after a partnership is dissolved or new partners are admitted, a party Dissolution who had previous dealings with the old firm deals with the new firm, and still ship. continues the same accounts, he does not thereby discharge the old firm(c); but if payments are made by such party and the account is continued, with an alteration of the partner's name, it seems that such payments are to be carried to the old account(d).

Where the plaintiff carried on dealings in one general and unbroken account with A. one of the defendants, as his banker and army-agent, from a period before 1807 up to 1819, when A. became bankrupt, and a balance was struck, none having been before struck since 1816; and in 1807, the defendant B. became a partner with A., and continued so till 1817, but the partnership was secret and unknown to the plaintiff till A.'s bankruptcy, defendant B. never interfering (to the knowledge of the plaintiff) in the business carried on by A.; and at the expiration of the partnership in 1817, a balance was due from the defendants to the plaintiff; and between the expiration of the partnership and A.'s bankruptcy, A. paid to plaintiff, and also received from plaintiff, several sums; in an action against the defendants for the balance due from them at the expiration of the partnership, (A. having pleaded his bankruptcy and certificate), it was held that B. might consider the sums paid by A. to the plaintiff, after the expiration of the partnership, as paid in reduction of the balance due at the expiration of the partnership, and might take the credit for them, without giving credit for any sums received after the expiration of the partnership by A. on account of the plain-And where A. and B., partners, were indebted to the plaintiff, and after the dissolution of the partnership, B. also became indebted on his separate account to the plaintiff, it was held, that in the absence of any specific appropriation by either party, payments made by B., after the dissolution, must go in reduction of the entire account, and consequently must discharge the earlier items (f). But where a partner in trade was separately liable for a debt contracted by him before the partnership, and was also liable for a copartnership debt, and paid to the creditor money generally on account, it

⁽b) Grigg v. Cocks, 4 Sim. 439. (c) Gough r. Davies, 4 Price, 200.

⁽d) Strange v. Lee, 3 East, 488; Bodenham, v. Purchas, 2 Bar. & Ald. 39. See Newmarch. v. Clay. 14 East, 239; ante, 51, n. (m).

⁽e) Brooke v. Enderby, 2 Brod. & B. 70; 4 Moore, 501, S. C.

⁽f) Smith v. Wigley, 3 Moore & S. 174. (g) Thompson v. Brown and another, Mood & M. 40.

T2

Ð

11 のでは、12 元

II. Of Payment.

6thly, Application of Payments.

Joint Accounts.

has held, that the creditor could not apply the money in discharge of the separate debt, it appearing that the money so paid was partnership property (g).

If one of several partners dies, and the partnership is in debt, and the surviving partners continue their dealings with a particular creditor, and the latter joins the transactions of the old and new firms in one entire account, then the payments made from time to time by the surviving partners must be applied to the old debts, because it is to be presumed that all the parties have consented that it should be considered as one entire account, and that the death of one of [*407] the partners has produced *no alteration(h). And where a bond was given to the several persons constituting the firm of a banking-house, conditioned for the repayment of the balance of an account, and of such further sums as the bankers might advance to the obligor, and one of the partners died, and a new partner was taken into the firm, and at that time a considerable balance was due from the obligor to the firm; and advances were afterwards made by the bankers, and payments made to them on account of the obligor; and the latter was credited by the new firm with the several payments, and charged with the original debt and subsequent advances, as constituting items in one entire account, and the balance due at the time of the partner's death was considerably reduced, and that reduced balance, by order of the obligor, was transferred by the bankers to the account of another customer, who with his assent, was charged with the then debt of the obligor; and the person so charged having become insolvent, the surviving partners of the original firm brought their action upon the bond; it was held, that as they had not originally treated it as a distinct account, but had blended it in the general account with other transactions, they were not at liberty so to treat it at a subsequent period; and that having received in different payments a sum more than sufficient to discharge the debt due upon the bond at the time of the death of the deceased partner, the bond was to be considered as paid(i). the same principle, if A., the widow and administratrix of B., continue B.'s trade after his decease, and B. at his death is indebted to C. on a balance of an account, and A. continue to receive goods from and to make payments to C., as B. had done, and she be charged in account by C. with the debt, and the payments made by her to C. exceed the debt, but a balance is ultimately due to C.; B.'s debt is discharged by A.'s payments(k). But where A., B. and Co., country bankers, had a cash account with C. & Co., London bankers, who were in the habit of transmitting to the former monthly statements of mutual debits and credits; and A. died, leaving a large balance due from himself and B. & Co, to C. & Co., who for two months afterwards made no alteration in their own books as to the mode of keeping the account, but continued it as before; and in the interval, money was transmitted to C. & Co. from the country bank sufficient to pay off the balance due from the firm at the time of A.'s death; and during the two months no accounts were transmitted to the country bank; but at the end of that time two separate accounts were sent, one called the old account, made up to the death of A., without giving credit for the money received since his death, in liquidation of the balance at that time due from the firm; and the other called the new account, comprising the two months, giving credit for the sums received during that period; in an action by C. & Co. on a joint and several indemnity bond given by A. and B. against the heirs of A. for the balance due at his death, it

⁽h) Per Bayley, J. in Simson v. Ingham, 2 B. & C. 72; 3 D. & R. 252, S. C.; post, 408, note (1). As to the equitable claim on the estate of a deceased partner in a banking-house, see Devaynes v. Noble, 1 Meriv. 568.

⁽i) Bodenham v. Purchas, 2 B. & Al. 89.

2417 1

. 55

- 1.

· 20

St X

1,510

e3 !.

. 3: 12

. :211

أوارية

11.0

: .8

111

, im

....

T.

أعام

.

13. O

or d

(1,2)

310

J., :105

:12

Je

ďć

[sit ä

im

115.

: 15

1:1

1

11,

21

was held, that C. & Co. by continuing their own private accounts against A. II. of and B. for two months after the death of A., as theretofore, were not estop- Payment. ped from suing his heirs, as entries in their books did not amount to a complete appropriation by them of the several payments to the old account, such appropriation not being complete until it was communicated to the party to be affected by it; and, therefore, that notwithstanding those entries they were *en- [*408] titled to apply the payments received subsequently to the death of A. to the debt of the new firm (l).

If after a bill or note has become due, the holder for adequate considera-7thly. tion agrees with the drawee of the bill, or maker of the note, to give him time quences of for payment, without the concurrence of the other parties entitled to sue such giving drawee or maker on the bill or note, they will thereby in general be discharged Time to or from all liabilty, although the holder may have given due notice of the non-Acceptor, And if without such *a consideration he take fresh security, as &c.

*409]

(1) Simson v. Ingham, 3 Dow. & Ry. 549; 2 Bar. & C. 65, S. C. Where an account is delivered by an agent, in which he charges himself with a balance, and he continues to receive monies for his principal, his subsequent payments are not necessarily to be first applied to the extinction of the previous balance, when the subsequent receipts are equal to the subsequent payments; Lysaght v. Walker, 5 Bligh, N. S. 1; and see Taylor v. Kymer, 3 Bar. & Adol. 320.

(m) See 1 Pardess. 423, 424; and reasons in Philpot v. Bryant, 4 Bing. 719; and 1 Moore

& P. 754, (Chit. j. 1887) Anderson v. George, London Sittings after Trin. Term, 1757, cor. Lord Mansfield, Selw. N. P. 9th edit. 390, (Chit. j 346). Indorsee against indorser of a promissory note, presented for payment when due. The maker desired two or three days time to pay it in, and so from time to time, which was given to him by the then holders. Lord Mansfield said, " here is an actual credit given for eight days, and the loss must fall on the plaintiff; and therefore there was a verdict for the defendant.'

In Tindal v. Brown, 1 T. R. 169, (Chit. j. 431), per Buller, J. "As to giving time, the holder does it at his peril; and that circumstance alone would be sufficient to decide this case. For in no case has it been determined, that the indorser is liable after the holder of the note has given time to the maker. English v. Darley, 2 Bos. & Pul. 61; 3 Esp. 49, (Chit. j. 620). The holder of a bill sued the indorser and acceptor, and took out execution against the acceptor, and received 1001. from him, and took his bond and warrant of attorney, for payment of the remainder by instalments, with interest and costs, excepting only a nominal sum, to enable him to support actions against the other parties. He then brought on to trial this action against the indorser. Lord Eldon thought that the bargain to give indulgence to the acceptor was a bar, and nonsuited the plaintiff; and on motion for a new trial, the court was clear that the nonsuit was right; because giving time to the acceptor was a pledge that he should have time from all the other parties, and the holder had no right to give such pledge, and yet hold the other parties liable. Per Lord Eldon, C. J. "It is very clear that the holder of a bill may, at his election, sue any or all of the parties to it; and that if they all become bankrupt, he may prove against the estates of all, unless he receive part of the debt from any one; and although the debt be reduced from time to time by dividends. no part of the proof shall be expunged under any of the commissions, till 20s. in the pound have been received. As long as the holder is passive, all his remedies remain; and if any of the parties be discharged by the act of law, as by an insolvent debtor's act, that operation of law shall not prejudice the holder. spect to Hayling v. Mullhall, (post, 418, n. (k), it may be observed, that the marginal abstract of that case is incorrect; for it appears from the report, that the person first sued was a subsequent indorser: had the plaintiff first sued the prior indorser, and discharged him from execution, it would have afforded sufficient objection to an action against a subsequent indorser. If holder a enter into an agreement with a prior indorser in the morning not to sue him for a certain period of time, and then oblige a subseauent indorser in the evening to pay the debt, the latter must immediately resort to the very person for payment to whom the holder has pledged his faith that he shall not be sued. the case Ex parte Smith, Lord Thurlow, after consulting with all the judges, was of opinion that the holder of a bill, by entering into a composition with the acceptor, discharged the indorser; and accordingly ordered the proof against the estate of the latter to be expunged, proceeding on the ground of the acceptor's lia-bility being varied by the act of the holder. We all remember the case where Mr. Richard Burke being co-surety for an annuity, the grantee gave time to the principal, and yet argued that Mr. Burke was not relieved thereby, though the principal was: but it was answered that the grantee could make no demand on the the co-surety, because he must, by so doing, enforce a payment from the principal, contrary to the agreement. Here the plaintiff, having taken a new security from the acceptor, has discharged the defendant."

Clark v. Devlin, 8 Bos. & Pul. 363, (Chit. Per Lord Alvanley, C. J. " If the holder of a bill, without the knowledge of the other parties, give time to the acceptor, he cannot afterwards call on the other parties without an injury to the person to whom he has given time. In such case, therefore, those parties his ß 27

U

U n ī:

Í

3

3

II. Of Payment. 7thly, giring &c.

a renewed bill or a cognovit, or warrant of attorney, and also agree to give time, he thereby discharges the drawer and indorsers (n). It is said however, that the merely taking fresh security payable at a future day, but without a bar-Consequences of gain to give time, will not discharge the drawer, it appearing that the second security was taken only as a collateral security (o). But it is submitted, Time to or that the mere receiving further security payable at a future day, would in general imply an engagement to wait till it becomes due. And in a late case(p) it was held, that if A., the drawer of a bill, indorse it to B., and B. afterwards indorses it back to A., who indorses it to C.; the taking of a cognorit by C. from A. discharges B., provided the identity of A. as the first and last indorser of the bill be established, and C.'s knowledge of such identity be shown.

There is no obligation of active diligence on the part of the holder to sue · the acceptor or any other party, and he may be passive and forbear to sue as long as he chooses; but he must not so agree to give time to the accep-will be discharged. But a man is not bound to seek his remedy against the acceptor if he sign judgment against him, he will not be bound to prosecute that judgment." Per Chambre, J. "The acceptor of a bill is to be considered as the principal debtor, and the other parties as sureties only; the holder, therefore, who is the creditor, ought not so to negotiate with the acceptor as to prejudice the remaining parties to the bill. On this ground English v. Darley proceeded. If a creditor give time to the principal debtor, the collateral sureties are discharged, both at law and in equity. But in this case defendant having assented to the payment by instalments, cannot now complain of being prejudiced by the conduct of the holder. Rule discharged. See post, 415.

Gould v. Robson, 8 East, 576, (Chit. j. 735). The holder of a bill, upon its becoming due, received part payment of the acceptor, and took a bill from him at a future short date for the remainder, and agreed to keep the original bill in his hands in the interion as a security. He now sued the defendant as indorser, and this was relied upon as a defence. Lord Ellenborough thought at the trial, that it did not amount to giving time to the acceptor and the plaintiff had a verdict; but upon motion for a new trial, he and the court were satisfied that it did, and a nonsuit was entered. Lord Ellenborough said, "How can a man be said not to be injured, if his means of suing be abridged by the nct of another? If the plaintiffs, holders of the bill, had called immediately upon the defendant for payment, as soon as the bill was dishonoured they might immediately have sued the acceptor and the other parties on the bill. I had some doubts on the trial, but am inclined to think now that time was given. The holder has the dominion of the bill at the time: he may make what arrangements he pleases with the acceptor, but he does that at his peril; and if he thereby alter the situation of any other person on the bill, to the prejudice of that person, he cannot afterwards proceed against him. As to the taking part-payment, no person can ob-ject to it, because it is in aid of all the others who are liable upon the bill; but here the holder did something more, he took a new bill from the acceptor, and was to keep the original bill till the other was paid. This is an agreement that in the mean time the original bill should not be enforced; such is at least the effect of the agreement, and therefore I think time was given."

Smith v. Beckett, 13 East, 187, (Chit. j. 816). Where the defendant lent his indorse ment on a promissory note to the drawer, which note was payable on demand, for the purpose of enabling him to raise the money on that security from the plaintiffs, his bankers, who agreed to make advances thereon for six months, held, that the bankers, who had renewed their advances at the end of the six months, without the knowledge or consent of the defendant, could not recover upon the note thus indorsed by him, without proof of demand on the drawer, and a regular notice of the dishonour to the defendant.

(n) See last note. (a) Pring v. Clarkson, 1 Bar. & C. 14; 2 Dowl. & Ry. 78, (Chit. j. 1153); but see observations, Bayl. 5th edit. 345; Bedford v. Deakin, and Bickley v. Hickman, 2 Stark. R.

178, (Chit. j. 1040). (p) Hall v. Cole, 4 Ad & Ellis, 577; 6 Nev. & M. 124; 1 Har. & W. 722, S. C. There the declaration stated that A. drew a bill payable to his own order on W.; that "the said A." indorsed to defendant, who indorsed to "the said A." who indorsed to plaintiff, and that W. did not pay, of which defendant had notice. Defendant plended that after the dis-honour the plaintiff, without defendant's authority, took from "the said A." a cognovit in an action commenced by the plaintiff against A. for the recovery of the sum specified in the bill, and by the cognovit agreed to give, and did, without defendant's authority, actually give, to A. longer time for payment than the time in which plaintiff might have obtained judgment against A.; and it was held that, upon this declaration, it must be intended that the person to whom defendant indorsed was, and was known by plaintiff to be, the person who indorsed to defendant; and that the plea therefore was sufficient, though it did not state in what character A. had been sued by the plaintiff, the action against defendant being in any case in fraud of the cognovit.

tor as to preclude himself from suing him, and suspend his remedy against him in prejudice of the drawer and indorsers (q)(1). This rule is founded Payment. on the principle that the holder, by entering into a binding engagement to 7thly, give time to the acceptor, renders him less *active in endeavoring to satisfy Consethe bill than he probably would otherwise be, if he continued liable to an quences of immediate action at the suit of the holder; besides, if a holder agree to give Time to or indulgence for a certain period of time to any one of the parties to a bill, this Releasing takes away his right to call upon that party for payment before the period &c. expires; and not only to call upon him, but on all the intermediate parties; [*410] for otherwise, if he were to oblige them to pay the bill, they could immediately resort against the very person whom the holder has indulged, which would be inconsistent with his agreement, and a fraud upon him(r). unless the agreement to give time be made with some party to the bill it will not operate as a discharge of any of the parties thereto(s). In courts of equity the now settled doctrine is, that giving time to a principal without the concurrence of a surety, discharges the latter (t)(2), and if the obligee of a bond with a surety, without communication with the surety, take notes from (9) Per Lord Eldon, in Wright v. Simpson, 6 Ves. 734; see also Trent Navigation Company e. Harley, 10 East, 40; Clark e. Wilson, 3 M. & W. 208; post, 416, note (r). The same rule applies to the case of a guarantee, Combe r. Wolfe, S Bing. 156; 1 Moore & S. 241, S. C.; but see Carr r. Brown, 7 bing. 508; 5 Law J. 12, S C.

(r) Per Bayley, J. in Claridge v. Dalton, 4 Maule & Sel. 232, (Chit. j. 924); and see Hall v. Cole, 4 Ad. & El. 577; ante, 409, iod List

1.5

Ŗ

4.

*!

4.

(s) Lyon v. Holt, 5 Mee. & W. 250. To a declaration by the indorsee of a bill of exchange alleged to have been indorsed by the drawer to the defendant, by the defendant to W. and by W. to the plaintiff, the defendant pleaded, that the bill was indersed by the defendant to II. for his accommodation and without consideration; that II. indorsed it to W.; that the alleged indorsement by the defendant to W., in the declaration mentioned, was the said indorsement by the defendant to II., and by him to W.; and that after the bill became due and was dishonoured, the plaintiff and II. stated an account respecting this and other dishonoured bills, on which H, was liable to the plaintiff. and agreed to take from B. renewed bills in lieu of them, and not to press any parties for payment of the original bills during the currency of the latter, and averred that the substituted bills were originally drawn and accepted and delivered to the plaintiff, without the defendant's knowledge or consent, and that the plaintill gave time thereby to the parties in the original bills. At the trial the agreement alleged in the plea was proved in substance, but it appeared that II. did not indorse the bill to W. It was held, that this indersement was a material part of the defence, since, unless H. was a party liable on the bill, the agreement between the plaintiff and II. was not such a giving of time as to discharge the defendant; and therefore that the plea was not proved, and the plaintill was entitled to a verdict.

(1) The Covernor and Company of the Bank of Ireland v. Beresford, 6 Dow, 333, (Chit. j. 1952); and Arther v. Hale, 4 Bing. 464; 1 Moore & P. 2-5, S. C.; and see Tidd, 9th rdit 12 0.

An agreement by which the holder of a promissory note gives time to the maker, will discharge the indorser, if it be to the prejudice of the latter. Wood c. Jetierson County Bank, 9 Cowen, 194. { Hill r. Bostick, 10 Yerg 410. And if no express agreement by the holder, to give time to the principal debtor is proved, yet if he take a collateral security payable at a future time, in the absence of proof to the contrary, an engagement to wait until the security becomes due will be presumed. Ibid. }

An agreement between the creditor and principal debtor for delay, or otherwise changing the nature of the contract to the prejudice of the surety, in order to discharge the latter, must be made on sufficient consideration, and binding in law upon the parties: a mere agreement by the holder of a bill with the drawer, for delay, without consideration, though without any communication with, or assent of the inderser, will not discharge the latter, after his responsibility has been fixed by due notice of dishonour. M'Lemore v. Powell, 12 Wheat 554.

(2) Inderser of a promissory note, the surety of the maker, is respectible only on condition of

⁽¹⁾ To the same effect are several cases decided in the United States. The people r. Janson, 7 John. Rep. 332. Hunt r. The United States, 1 Gal is. Rep. 32. See Doming r. Norton, Kirby's Rep. 397. Ludlow r. Limond, 1 Caines' Ca. t. Walsh r. Baillie, 10 John. Rep. 180. Rathbone r. Warren, 10 John. Rep. 587. Comm. of Berlis Co. r. Ross, 3 Binn. 523. King v. Baldwin, 2 John. Cha. Rep. 554 Burn v. Poaug's Adm., 3 Dessaus, Cha. Rep. 604. Butler v. Hamilton, 2 Dessaus, Cha. Rep. 230. Rutledge v. Greenwood, 2 Dessaus, Cha. Rep. 589. { Huie r. Bailey, 16 Louis. Rep. 213. }

(1

Н

ŗij

:3

Payment. 7thly, Consequences of giving Time to or Acceptor, the principal, and give further time, the surety would in some cases be discharged(u); though he would not be so at law(x), (except in the case of bail(y),) for a specialty is not discharged by a mere simple contract(z).

II. Of

*The acceptor of a bill is primarily liable; and the drawer and indorsers may be considered in the nature of sureties for the performance of his act(a). Therefore the taking of a bond or a negotiable security, payable at a future distant day, from the acceptor of a bill or maker of a note, without the assent of the other parties thereto, would discharge them from liability (b). And where the indorsce of a bill having sued the acceptor to judgment, and taken out execution, received of him a sum of money in part-payment, and took his security for the residue, with the exception of only a nominal sum, it was holden, that he was thereby precluded from afterwards suing the indorser(c); and the letting such acceptor out of custody on a ca. sa. would have the same effect(d); and if the holder of a bill of exchange, when due, after taking part-payment from the acceptor, agree to take a new acceptance from him for the remainder, payable at a future day, and that in the mean time the holder should keep the original bill in his hands as a security; such agreement amounts to giving time and new credit to the acceptor, and discharges the indorser, who was no party to such agreement, though (u) Rees v. Berrington, 2 Ves. jun. 540, (Chit. j. 544); 6 Ves. 805; Skip v. Huey, 3 Atk. 91; 9 Mod. 439, (Chit. j. 308, 309); Bac. Ab. tit. Obligation; and id. vol. vii. tit. Obligation, 506; English v. Darley, 2 Bos. & P. 62; 2 Esp. 49, (Chit. j. 620); ante, 408, nute (m).

Rees v. Berrington, 2 Ves. jun. 540, (Chit. j. 544). Rees became surety in a joint and several bond, conditioned for the payment to the obligee of a certain sum, with interest, by two instalments; the first on the 31st December, 1789, and the second on the 31st December, 1790. In September 1790, the whole sum being unpaid, the obligee took promissory notes from the principal obligor for payment of the debt by instalments at extended periods, which notes were afterwards exchanged for others, payable at more distant days. This arrangement was without the knowledge of Rees. The principal obligor afterwards became bankrupt, and the executor of the obligee sued Rees, the surety; and on a bill filed for an injunction, the Chancellor held that the surety was discharged by this indulgence having been given without his consent to the principal. Vide English r. Darley, 2 Bos. Pul. 61; ante, 408, note (m).

As to when a surety by bond or by simple contract is discharged by giving time in general, see Tidd, 9th edit. 1260.

(x) Davy v. Prendergrass, 5 B. & Al. 187; 2 Chit. 336, S. C.; Drake v. Mitchell, 3 East, 251, (Chit. j. 665).

(y) Willison v. Whitaker, 2 Marsh. 383; 7
Taunt. 53, S. C; Brickwood v. Anniss, 5

Taunt. 614; 1 Marsh. 250, S. C. The plaintiff, after final judgment, having taken bills payable at a future day, in satisfaction of the debt, the Court directed an exoneretur to be entered on the bail-piece: because the principle is, that where the plaintiff has disarmed himself from proceeding against the principal, the bail are discharged; but where he has not, by taking a security payable at a future day, precluded himself from proceeding, he may, although he has agreed without consideration to give time to the principal, proceed against the bail. See also Thomas v. Young, 15 East, 617; and Willison v. Whitaker, 7 Taunt. 54, 55; 2 Marsh. 383, S. C; 8 Taunt. 28; 4 B. & Ald. 91; 7 Price, 223; Tidd, 9th edit. 1260. But a surety is not discharged by neglect to give him notice of the extent of the defalcation of the principal, Goring v. Edmunds, 6 Bing. 94.

(z) See per Tindal, C. J. in Combe v. Wolfe, 8 Bing. 156, 161; 1 Moore & S. 241, S. C.
(a) Clark v. Devlin, 3 Bos. & Pul. 363,

866, (Chit. j. 674); ante, 408, note (m).
(b) Claxton v. Smith, 3 Mod. 87, (Chit. j. 167, 168, 171); but see ante, 409, note (o). (c) English r. Darley, 2 Bos. & Pul. 61; 3 Esp. Rep. 49, (Chit. j. 620); infra; Clark r. Devlin, 3 Bos. & Pul. 363, (Chit. j. 674); ante, 408, note (m); Walwyn r. St. Quintin, 1 Bos. & Pul. 652; 2 Esp. 514, (Chit. j. 578); Exparte Wilson, 11 Ves. 411, (Chit. j. 720).

(d) Id. ibid.; 2 Swanst. 190, for principle, sed vide Pole v. Ford, 2 Chit. Rep. 125, (Chit. j. 958), where it was held, that giving time to the acceptor after judgment against him, did not discharge the drawer.

the prosecution of the maker with due diligence, to insolvency. Morrison's Exrs. v Taylor, 6 Monroe's Rep. 89.

An admission that an obligor was insolvent at the time of making the obligation, held not to be an admission of his insolvency when it fell due. Hume v. Long, Id. 119.

The same diligence against the principal is required in chancery, to charge the assignor as at law. Ib.

the drawer might have had no effects in the hands of the acceptor (e). Similar indulgence to a drawer or a prior indorser would also discharge all subsequent parties (f)(1). And where the defendant lent his indorsement on a 7thly, promissory note to the drawer, which note was payable on demand, to enable greenest of Payment.

a 7thly,
Consequences of giving
Time to or Releasing
Acceptor,

(e) Gould v. Robson, 8 East, 576, (Chit. j. to recover against a subsequent one."
735); ante, 409.
So also in English v. Darley, 2 B.

f) Id. ibid.

...

- C. E.

77.7

i -517.

0.71

1 ...

10:45

2.80

هدر ۱۰۰۰ اور

15- 3-4

e 15:25

. . 3

17

... ng I

14. 64.

.. (20 X

(.e:2

b. $4

, 11 s

11/,≉

11.

147

. + 30

7 70

Wif

.

41

1.5

gkf

.....

Ba

. Es

. 10

1 196

-e t

100

1, 6

1 1

Per Bayley, J in Cluridge v. Dalton, 4 Maule

& S. 232, 233, (Chit. j. 934).

Smith v. Knox, 8 Esp. Rep. 46, (Chit. j. 617). Per Lord Eldon, "It is said that the holder may discharge any of the indorsers after taking them in execution, and yet have recourse to the others. I doubt the law as stated so generally. I am disposed to be of opinion, that if the holder discharge a prior indorser, he will find it difficult to recover against a subsequent one."

So also in English v. Darley, 2 B. & P. 61, (Chit. j. 620), ante, 408, note (m), Lord Eldon, Acceptor, after adverting to the inaccuracy of the marginal abstract of the case of Hayling v. Mullhall, said, "Had the plaintiff first sued a prior indorser, and discharged him from execution, it would have afforded a sufficient objection to an action against a subsequent indorser." See Hayling v. Mullhall, 2 Bla. Rep. 1235, (Ch. j. 400); post, 418, note (k).

(1) In various cases decided in the United States, the same principles have been recognized. Scarborough v. Harris, 1 Bay's Rep. 177. Robertson v. Vogle, 1 Dall. Rep. 252. James v. Badger, 1 John. Cas. 131. Kenworthy v. Hopkins, 1 John. Cas. 107. If the holder receive part payment from the maker when a note becomes due, and before giving notice to the indorser, allows further credit to him, the indorser is discharged. Cain v. Colwell, 3 John. Rep. 384. See Lynch v. Reynolds, 16 John. Rep. 42. But if the holder receive part payment and give due notice to the indorser, the latter will be holden for the payment of the residue. James v. Badger, 1 John. Cas. 131. Kennedy v. Motte, 3 M'Cord, 13. And it has been declared that any credit given by the holder of a bill to the drawer, acceptor, indorser, or promissor, is a consent to hold the demand upon their responsibility, and that the holder has no remedy afterwards but against them, where the circumstances of the transaction have rendered them liable absolutely, and at all events. Shaw v. Griffith, 7 Mass. Rep. 494. But it is admitted that this rule does not hold where the acceptor is discharged by the holder, and the drawer is sued, having in his hands funds of the acceptor, which have been retained for the express purpose of paying the bill. Sargeant v. Appleton, 6 Mass. Rep. 55. And there seem to be other cases in which the rule has received qualifications. See Hubby v. Prown, 16 John. Rep. 70.

The holder having protested a bill for non-acceptance, and given due notice to the other parties to the bill, took collateral security from the drawer, and afterwards upon learning that it was probable that the drawee would pay the bill at maturity, relinquished the security. The greater part of the bill was paid at maturity, and it was regularly protested for non-payment of the residue. It was held, that as the holder had not given time to the drawer, but had merely taken security without giving new credit, the indorser was not discharged. It was in effect no more than if the holder of a bill or note had taken part payment from one of the parties. Hurd v. Little,

12 Mass. Rep. 502.

If the holder of a note release one of the joint makers, excepting from such liability as he may be under to the indersers, the latter cannot in an action by the holder against them, set up such release as a discharge. Stewart v. Eden, 2 Caines' Rep. 121.

A part payment by one joint promissor is no discharge of the others from payment of the residue, nor can it be averred as a sufficient consideration for such discharge. Ruggles v. Patten, 8 Mass. Rep. 480.

A several suit and judgment against one joint promissor of a note, is no bar to a joint action against both, upon the same note. Sheehy r. Mandeville, 6 Cranch, 253. But see contra Black r. Smith, 9 Serg. & Rawle, 142. Robertson c. Smith, 18 Johns. Rep. 459. Ward r. Johnson, 13 Mass. Rep. 148.

The holder of a negotiable note, who gives further time to, or enters into a new contract with the drawer, does not thereby discharge the indorser. Bennet c. Maule, Gilmer, 205.

It seems, that if the holder of a note who has sucd the maker, obtain a judgment, and agree in consideration thereof, not to issue execution before a certain day, before which day he could not, by the practice of the court, have otherwise obtained a judgment; this is not such an indulgence to the maker as will discharge the indorser. Hallett r. Holmes, 18 Johns. 28.

Where the indorser was also a party to the instrument by which the maker was released, and joined in the release as a creditor of the maker, it was held under the circumstances, that the indorser was not discharged by the release of the maker. Bruen c. Marquand, 17 Johns. 58.

To discharge a surely on the ground of the omission of the creditor to proceed against the principal debtor when requested so to do, it must appear that the principal was solvent at the time of the request, within the jurisdiction of the state in which the suit against the surely is instituted, and that the creditor, without any reasonable excuse, neglected or refused to proceed, until the principal debtor became insolvent and unable to pay. Warner v. Beardsley, 8 Wend. Rep. 194.

Surety is not released by the long delay of the obliged to sue the principal, who in the time becomes insolvent and removes out of the state. Stout v. Ashten, 5 Monroe's Rep. 252.

II. Of Payment. 7thly, Consequences of Acceptor, him to raise money on that security from the plaintiff, his banker, who agreed to make advances thereon for six months, it was held, that the bankers, who had renewed their advances at the end of the six months without the knowledge of the defendant, could not recover upon the note thus indorsed by him, without proof of the demand on the drawer, and a regular notice of the disgiving Time to or honour to the defendant; and the taking a cognovit, payable by instalments at Releasing a distant time, might discharge the drawer(g). And as it is a rule of law that a debt once released or suspended by the act of the party is always so(h); the releasing an acceptor or other prior party to a bill or note, would discharge a subsequent party; and where in an action on a promissory note against a party who has indorsed it for the accommodation of the maker, it appeared that the plaintiff, the indorsee, had signed an agreement to accept from the maker of the note five shillings in the pound, in full of his demand, on having a collateral security for that sum from a third person, it was held, that this dis-[*412] charged the defendant(i). *On the other hand, where the creditors of an insolvent agreed, by an instrument not under seal, that they would accept, in full satisfaction of their debts, twelve shillings in the pound, payable by instalments, and would release him from all demands; and one of the creditors, who signed for the whole amount of his debt, held, at the time, as a security for part, a bill of exchange drawn by the debtor, and accepted by a third person; it was held, the money due on this bill having been afterwards paid by the acceptor, that the creditor might retain it, the agreement of composition not containing any stipulation for the giving up of securities, and the effect of it not being to extinguish the original debt(k).

But the mere change or addition of securities, without expressly relinquishing the original debts, nor suspending for a time the creditor's right of action, will not, either at law or in equity, discharge a surety or party to a And accepting a mere collateral security from the acceptor, will not discharge the other parties to a bill; and where a bill of exchange having been dishonoured, the acceptor transmitted a new bill for a larger amount to the payee, but had not any communication with him respecting the first, and the payee discounted the second bill with the holder of the first, which he received back as part of the amount, and afterwards for a valuable consideration indorsed it to the plaintiff; it was held, that the second bill was merely a collateral security, and the receipt of it by the payee did not amount to giving time to the acceptor of the first bill, so as to exonerate the drawer (m).

Where B. being indebted to A. procured C. to join with him in giving a joint and several promissory note for the amount, and afterwards, having become further indebted, and being pressed by A. for further security, by deed (reciting the debt, and that for a part, a note had been given by him (B.) and C., and that A. having demanded payment of the debt, B. had requested him to accept a further security), assigned to A. all his household goods, &c. as a further security, with a proviso, that he should not be deprived of the possession of the property assigned until after three days notice; it was held that this deed did not extinguish or suspend the remedy on the note, but that

(Chit. j. 998); see Nicholls v. Norris, 3 B. &

Ad. 41, post, 420, note (u).
(1) Boultbee v. Stubbs, 18 Ves. 20; 5 Dow, 234; 3 East, 251; Pring v. Clarkson, 1 B. & C. 14; 2 Dow. & Ry. 78, (Chit. j. 1153); ante, 403, note (a).

(m) Pring v. Clarkson, 1 Bar. & C. 14; 2
Dow. & Rv. 78, (Chit. j. 1153); ante, 403.

note (o).

⁽g) Smith v. Becket, 13 East, 187, (Chit. j. 816); The King v. Sheriff of Surrey, I Taunt. 161; Smith v. Knox, 3 Esp. R. 46, (Chit. j. 617); and Willison v. Whitaker, 2 Marsh. R. 883; 7 Taunt. 53, S. C.; ante, 410, note (y).

⁽i) Lewis v. Jones, 4 B. & C. 506; 6 Dow. & Ry. 576, (Chit. j. 1265). See a learned note, 4 B. & C. 515, 516, collecting all the cases. (k) Thomas v. Courtnay, 1 B. & Ald. 1,

A. might, notwithstanding the deed, suc C. at any time(n). And a compo- 11. Of sition with the acceptor or other party to a bill, reserving the remedy for the Payment. remainder against the other parties, and made with their consent, would not, 7thly, either at law or in equity, discharge such other parties(o).

As already observed (p), there is no obligation on the part of the holder to quences of use active diligence, and after regular notice of the non-payment of a bill, the Time to or holder may tacitly forbear to sue the acceptor, provided he do not absolutely Releasing agree for sufficient consideration to give a precise time (q); and may receive $\overset{\text{Acceptor}}{\&c}$. proposals for a security without prejudicing the claims on the other parties (r), and it has even been holden, *that agreeing (after a bill has become due and [*413] been regularly protested for non-payment, and notice thereof given) not to press the acceptor, will not discharge the drawer(s); and it is clear that such an agreement entered into with a third person not a party to the bill, will not have the effect of discharging any of the parties to the bill(t). the holders of a bill of exchange which had been refused payment by the acceptor, gave notice thereof to the drawers, but informed them that they had reason to believe it would be taken up in a few days, and offered to retain the bill till the end of the week, unless they received their instructions to the contrary, it was held, that such conduct did not discharge the drawer, although no further notice of non-payment was given (u).

It seems that in the older cases, any absolute and distinct agreement to give the acceptor time, was considered as discharging the drawer and indorsers, without any distinction whether or not such agreement was founded on a sufficient consideration to bind the party making it, because, at least,

(n) Twopenny v. Young, 3 Bar. & C. 268; 5 Dow. & Ry. 259, (Chit. j. 1215); and see Dean v. Newhall, 8 T. R. 168.

(0) But it would be otherwise if without their assent, see Boultbee v. Stubbs, 18 Ves. 20; and sec Lewis r. Jones, 4 B. & C. 507; 6 Dow. & Ry. 576, (Chit. j. 1265).

(p); Ante, 409.

.1

(q) Second resolution in Walwyn v. St. Quintin, 1 Bos & P. 652; 2 Esp. 514, (Chit j. 578); Selw. N. P. 9th edit. 363; Wright v. Simpson, 6 Ves. 734.

(r) Hewet v. Goodrich, 2 Car. & P. 468, (Chit. j. 1315); Walwyn r. St. Quintin, 1 Bos. & Pul 652; 2 Esp. R. 514, (Chit. j. 578). In an action by indorsees against the drawer of a bill, it appeared that after the bill had become due and been protested for non-payment, though no notice thereof had been given to the defendant, he having no effects in the hands of the acceptor, the plaintiffs received part of the money on account of the indorser, and that to an application from the acceptor, stating that it was probable he should be able to pay at a future period, they returned for answer that they would not press him. It was urged, that either of these facts discharged the drawer; but the court, after argument and time taken to consider, held that they did not, and awarded the postca to the plaintifis. Eyre, C. J. said, "That had this forbearance to sue the acceptor taken place before noting and protesting for non-payment, so that the bill had not been demanded when it was due, it is clear that the drawer would have been discharged; it would have been giving a new credit to the acceptor. But that after protest for non-payment, and notice to the drawer, or an equivalent to a notice, a right to sue the drawer had attached; another holder was not bound to sue the acceptor; he might therefore forbear to sue him." Manning's Index, 72.

(s) Walwyn v. St. Quintin, 1 Bos. & P. 652, supra; 2 Esp. 515, (Chit. j. 578).

(t) Lyon v. Holt, 5 M. & W. 250; ante,

410, note (s).

(u) Forster v. Jurdison, 16 East, 105, (Chit. 862). The plaintiffs were indorsees of a bill of exchange drawn by the defendants on J. L. and accepted by him. The bill was duly presented for payment and dishonoured. but the acceptor requested the plaintfls to keep the bill a week, and he should be able to pay it. The plaintiffs gave the defendants notice of the dishonour, and of the acceptor's request, and added, they would keep the bill till the end of the week, unless they heard from them to the contrary. It was contended for the defendants, that the plaintiffs should have given them notice, at the end of the week, of the bill not having been paid, and by which laches they were discharged. Wood, B. before whom the cause was tried, was of that opinion, and a verdict was found for the defendants. A rule for a new trial was afterwards obtained, and on cause shewn, the court were of opinion that the plaintiffs had done every thing which was incumbent upon them to give themselves a title under the bill, and that by their letters, they at most took upon themselves an agency on the part of the defendants to get payment of the bill, and in that character they continued to hold for the defendants, and that after the notice received by the defendants, the latter were bound to look after the acceptor, and the rule was made absolute.

II of Payment. Consequences of Acceptor, the acceptor relying on the honour of the party making it, and that he would abide by it, would naturally relax in his endeavours to pay the bill before the enlarged time, and in the mean time might pay less accommodating hold $e_{is}(x)$. But of late a distinction has been taken, and a new doctrine has sprung up and been acted upon, namely, that even an express agreement not giring sprung up and been acted upon, namely, that even an express agreement not Time to or to sue, made after giving notice of non-payment, but without sufficient con-Releasing sideration, and without taking any security, being nudum pactum, will not discharge the other parties (y). If the holder has not entered into such an 1 *414] agreement *as to disable himself from suing the acceptor, he has not discharged the other parties (z). And, therefore, where the executor of the acceptor of a bill verbally promised to pay the holder out of her own estate, provided he would forbear to sue, and the holder forbore to sue in consequence, it was held, that as the promise was void by the statute against frauds, the drawer of the bill was not discharged by the holder's having promised to give time, and having delayed to sue under such circumstances(a). And it has been decided, that where all parties have had due notice of the dishonour of a bill, a subsequent indorser is not discharged by a treaty between the attorney of the holder and the drawer and acceptor, that the holder should wait a given time for the payment of the balance, in consideration of receiving from the acceptor and prior indorser, by a certain time, a stipulated proportion of the amount, a part only of which proportion was afterwards paid, although the subsequent indorser had no notice of such treaty or the result, nor was informed of the payment of any part of the money due on the bill, or of the ultimate non-payment of the balance till some months after the original dishonour of the bill(b).

And though we have just seen, that taking a cognorit pavable at a very distant time, might discharge the drawer and indorsers(c); it would be otherwise if a cognovit or warrant of attorney be taken without giving time (d). And it should seem that the taking from an acceptor, after action brought against him, a warrant of attorney payable by instalments, the last of which would fall due before the time when, in the ordinary course of proceedings, the plaintiff could have obtained judgment against the acceptor, will not discharge the other parties to the bill; especially if it be taken after action com-

(x) See cases, ante, 408, note (m).
(y) Semble Walwyn v. St. Quintin, 1 Bos. & P. 655; 2 Esp. 515, (Chit. j. 578); Dean v. Newhall, 8 T. R. 168; Fitch v. Sutton, 5 East, 230; 1 Smith, 415, S. C.; Carstairs v. Rolleston, 5 Taunt. 551; 1 Marsh. 207, (Chit. 100). j. 909); Bayl. 5th edit. 342; Clarke v. Wilson,

3 M. & W. 208, post, 416, note (r) Arundel Bank v. Goble, K. B. 1817. Action by indorsee against drawer of a bill. The plaintiffs were the holders when the bill became due, and duly presented the same to the ac-ceptor for payment, and wrote a letter to the defendant in due time, informing him of the dishonour, but that from the promise of the acceptor they expected the same would be shortly paid. Afterwards the acceptor applied to them for indulgence for some months. They in reply wrote to the acceptor, that they would give him the time, but that they should expect in-The cause was tried on the Home Circuit, before Burroughs, J. when it was contended by Nolan and Comyn for the defendant, that this indulgence to the acceptor dishcharged the drawer; but the jury found a verdict for the plaintiff. On motion to the Court of K. B. for a new trial, the court held, that as no fresh security was taken from the acceptor, the agreement of the plaintiffs, to wait without consideration, did not discharge the drawer, because the acceptor might, notwithstanding such agreement, be sued at the next instant, and that the understanding that interest should be paid by the acceptor made no difference. Rule refused. The accuracy of this report of the case was recognised in Philpot v. Briant, 4 Bing. 721; 1 Moore & P. 754, (Chit. j 1337); see also Willison v. Whitaker, 2 Marsh. 383; 7 Taunt. 53, S. C; and Brickwood v. Anniss, 5 Taunt. 614; 1 Marsh. 250, S. C.; ante, 410, note (y); and Bayley, 5th edit. 341, S. P.

(z) Hewet and another r. Goodrich, 2 Car.

(2) Hewer and anomaly to the September of the September o

(b) Badnall r. Samuel, 3 Price, 521, (Chit. j. 985).

(c) Aute, 409.

(d) Ayrey v. Davenport, 2 New Rep. 474. (Chit. j. 736); Price c. Edmunds, 10 B. & C 578, (Chit. j. 1488).

menced against such acceptor, and also against such other parties(e). In II. Of another case it was held, that taking a cognovit of the acceptor after action Payment. brought against him, and by that giving him three weeks time before enter-7thly, ing up judgment, is not such a giving time as will discharge the other parties Conseto the bill (f). And it has been held, that after action brought against a principal debtor on a note, the taking a cognorit from him for the debt, payable Time to or by instalments, with a stipulation that execution might issue for the whole on Releasing one default, will not discharge a co-maker of the note, who was a surety, as some of the instalments were payable before the *plaintiff, by adverse pro-[*415] ceedings, could have obtained execution(g); and in another case it appears to have been considered, that giving time to an acceptor, after action brought against him, would not discharge the drawer or indorsers (h).

A party sued as surety on a bill is not entitled to the inspection of a deed in the plaintiff's possession, by which it is suggested time has been given to the principal debtor, but to which deed the surety is no party (i).

If there be any evidence of the assent of the drawer or indorser to the se- Consecurity being taken from and time given to the acceptor (k), or if after notice quences of of the time having been given, the drawer or indorser promise to pay (1), he prior Inis precluded from taking advantage of the indulgence to the acceptor. So dulgence, where the holder of a bill of exchange, of which payment had been refused, &c. informed the drawer of his intention to take security from the acceptor, and the drawer answered, "you may do as you like, for I am discharged for want of notice," and it appeared that due notice had been given, it was held that this amounted to an assent on the part of the drawer, and that the holder might still sue him after taking security from the acceptor(m). So where, in an action by indorsee against the drawer of a bill of exchange, the defence was, that time had been given to the acceptor, and to meet such defence a copy of a paper, which the defendant had promised to sign, was offered in evidence, and by which the defendant consented to the plaintiff's "using any means to obtain payment from the acceptor, without prejudice of his right to recover from the drawer;" it was held, that that amounted to an assent to (e) Lec r. Levi, 4 B. & C. 390; 6 Dow. & Ry. 475, (Ch. j. 1264); 1 Car. & P. 553, S. C. But note, this case (before the new rules) was decided on the ground of such facts not being receivable in evidence under the general issue. See English v Darley, 3 Bos. & Pul. 61; Hall v. Cole, 4 Ad. & El. 577; ante, 408, 409; in the latter case, however, the plea expressly averred that more time was given than would have been necessary to have obtained judgment.

As to giving time to a principal after taking assignment of bail bond, not discharging the bail to sheriff, see Woosman v. Price, 1 Cromp.

(f) Jay v. Warren, 1 Car. & P. 532, (Chit. j. 1241).

 $\cap J$

(g) Price v. Edmunds, 10 B. & C. 579, (Chit. j. 1483).

(h) Pike v. Sweet, 1 Dans. & Lloyd, 159;

Moody & M. 226, (Chit. j. 1410).
(i) Smith v. Winter, 3 Mee. & Wels. 309;

1 Horn & Hurl. 45, S. C.

(k) Clark v. Devlin, 3 Bos. & Pul. 863, (Chit. j. 674). Atkinson, the acceptor of a bill, having been arrested by the holder, offered him a warrant of attorney for the amount of the bill, payable by instalments. This offer the holder mentioned to the defendant, the drawer, proposing to accept it, who said, " you may do as you like, for I have had no notice of the non-payment." In fact he had had notice. The court held, that this amounted to an assent on the part of the defendant to the security being taken; and therefore that the defendant was not discharged by this indulgence to the acceptor. See ante, 408, 409, note (m), Selw. 9th edit. 364.

(i) Stevens r. Lynch, 12 East, 38; 2 Campb. 832, (Chit. j. 782). The indorsee against the drawer of a bill. Defence, that the plaintiff had given time to the acceptor, in answer to which it was proved, that the defendant knew of such time having been given; but that, con-ceiving himself to be still liable, three months after the bill became due, he said to the plaintiff, "I know I am liable, and if Jones (the acceptor) does not pay it, I will." Upon this Lord Ellenborough directed a verdict to be found for the plaintiff; and, upon motion for a new trial, the court held the direction right, and refused a rule; and see 2 Swanst. 186, 192.

(m) Id. ibid.

II. Of 7thly. Consequences of Acceptor, the holder's giving time, if he should think it advisable; and also that this Payment. paper did not require any stamp(n). But in another case(0), where the holder of a bill of exchange, on its becoming due, allowed the acceptor to renew it, without consulting the indorser, but the indorser afterwards said to the acceptor, "it was the best thing that could be done;" it was held, that giving the acceptor, which was the nest thing that could be done; it was neid, that Time to or the indorser was nevertheless discharged, because this was not a recognition Releasing of the terms granted by the holder to the acceptor, but such approbation must be considered as referring to the acceptor of the bill, to whom the arrangement was obviously advantageous.

Where A. indorsed to S. and Co., as a security for advances made to him by them, certain promissory notes made by B.; and while the notes were running, A. stopped payment, and a deed was executed by him and [*416] several of his creditors, and amongst them by S. and Co., *whereby his affairs were placed in the hands of inspectors, and the creditors, parties to the deed, agreed on certain terms not to call for or compel payment of the debts due from him for the period of three years; and after the execution of this deed by A. and S. and Co. and before the notes became due, B. signed a written consent to the creditors signing the deed, and giving time to A., without prejudice to their claims on her, B.; it was held, that her liability on the notes to S. and Co. was thereby revived (p).

The giving time to, or taking security from, one of several joint acceptors Effect of of a bill, or makers of a note, will not discharge the other acceptors or makers from liability (q): and it has been doubted, whether one of several makseveral Ac- ers of a joint and several note is at liberty to shew that he in fact was mereceptors or ly a surety, and as such discharged by indulgence to the other (r). But a Makers of formal release under seal of such one would discharge the rest(s), unless ina Note.

> (n) Hill v. Johnson, 3 Car. & P. 456, (Ch. j. 1417)

> (o) Withall v. Masterman, 2 Campb. 179,

(Chit. j. 773); Selw. 9th edit. 365. (p) Smith r. Winter, 4 Mees. & W. 454. Quære, as to the power of one partner to bind the others by the execution of such deed, ib.

(q) Bedford v. Deakin, 2 B. & Ald. 210; 2 Stark. 178, (Chit. j. 1040); and see David v. Ellice, 5 B. & C. 196; 7 D. & R. 690; 1 C. & P. 368, (Chit. j. 1278); Lodgo v. Dicas, 3 B. & Ald. 611. In Bedford v. Deakin, where one of three partners, after a dissolution of partnership, undertook by deed to pay a particular partnership debt on two bills of exchange, and that was communicated to the holder, who consented to take the separate notes of the one partner for the amount, strictly reserving his right against all three, and retained possession of the original bills; and it was held, that the separate notes having proved unproductive, he might still resort to his remedy against the other partners; and that the taking, under these circumstances, the separate notes, and even afterwards renewing them several times successively, did not amount to satisfaction of the joint And see Dunn r. Slee, Holt, C. N. P. 339.

In Perfect v. Musgrave, 6 Price, 111, (Chit. 1044), it was held, that one of two drawers of a joint promissory note, payable twelve months after date, who is surety to the other for the amount, is not discharged by the drawer not having demanded payment from the surety when due, nor till after having entered into a deed of composition with the principal and his other creditors, and received the composition money.

(r) Price v. Edmunds, 10 B. & C. 578, (Chit. j. 1483); ante, 414, 415, note (g).

In Clarke v. Wilson, 3 M. & W. 208, which was an action by the payee against the maker of a promissory note, and in which this question was intended to be raised, the defendant pleaded that it was a joint and several note made by the defendant and T. S., and that the defendant entered into it at the request of T. S., and for his accommodation, and in order that he might get it discounted by the plaintiffs; that the defendant had no other value or consideration for making it, and that he made it as a mere surety for T. S., of which plaintiffs had notice; and that although the note was due in the hands of the plaintiff for six months, yet the defendant had no notice, till the commencement of this suit, of its non-payment by T. S.; and that the plaintiff gave time for payment to T. S., to the prejudice and without the knowledge or consent of the defendant: and it was held, that such plea was bad on general demurrer as shewing only a giving of time without setting out any contract that was binding on the plaintiff: the general question, therefore, whether one of two makers of a joint and several promissory note can shew by purol that he is liable as surety only, was not decided.

(s) Co. Lit. 232; 2 Roll. Ab. 410, pl. 47,

1:

١.

1

ii.

5, 35

. 10

نثا

Y

12 . 1

110

15

171

1

1.

:

þ

1

deed the instrument of release contain merely a covenant not to sue that one(t); and this legal operation of a release to one of several acceptors, &c. Payment. may be restrained in some cases by the express terms of the instrument(u); 7thly, though it cannot be defeated by a mere parol agreement (v).

It has been decided, that the release of a surety, and still more of a prin-quences of cipal, may have the effect of discharging a co-surety (x).

*In the instances before stated (y), where the laches of the holder in not Releasing giving notice of the non-acceptance of a bill, will be excused by the circum- Acceptor, stances of the drawer, indorser, &c. not having effects in the hands of the 1 *417] drawee, such parties would also not be discharged by the holder's giving time to or taking security from the acceptor(z). Therefore the holder for a valuable consideration of a bill, accepted for the accommodation of the drawer, may prove the bill under a commission against the drawer, notwithstanding he has taken security from the acceptor, and given him time for giving Time to or

412, G.; Bac. Ab. Release, G.; and see Nicholson r. Revill, 4 Ad. & El. 675, post, 418, (t) Deane v. Newhall, S T. R. 168; Twopenny v. Younge, 8 B. & C. 212; 5 D. & R.

(u) Solly r. Ellerman, 2 Moore, 90; 2 B & B. 38, S. C., where a release was given to one of two partners, with a proviso that it should not operate to deprive the plaintiff of any remedy which he otherwise would have against the other partner, and that he might, notwithstanding the release, sue them jointly, and it was held he might do so. But see the judgment of the court in Nicholson r. Revill, 4 Ad. & El. 675; 6 N. & M. 192, S. C.

(v) Brooks v. Stuart, 1 Perry & Dav. 615; Cocks v. Nash, 9 Bing. 341; 2 Moore & S.

434, S. C.

(x) Stirling r. Forester, 8 Bligh, R. 575, 590. The bank of Scotland having discounted bills to the amount of $0001., which were dishonoured, the acceptors, becoming bankrupts, agree with the drawers to retain the dishonoured bills, and receive the dividends which might become payable from the bankrupt's cstate; and, as additional security, to take four promissory notes indorsed by four sureties of 2000l. each, to guarantee the unsatisfied bills, or any balance upon them, which might remain unpuid, to the extent of 2000l. each. This agreement having been carried into effect, when the notes was nearly due, upon the application of the original debtors for delay of payment, the bank of Scotland gave up one of the promissory notes, and accepted a new one from the surety, who had indorsed it: renewed notes were also given by two other of the sureties, and, with the fourth surety, a treaty was carried on respecting a renewal, pending which he died. The dishonoured bills had also been delivered over by the bank to the original debtors, upon the treaty for the renewal of the notes. Held (reversing protanto the judgment of the Court below), that the fourth surety and his estate, by the legal effect of the transaction, was discharged as to three-fourths, and liable only us to one fourth of the balance due upon the dishonoured bills, after giving credit for all monies received or receivable from any of the parties upon the bills or their estates; and that on payment of such fourth part of such balance. the bank were responsible to the estate of the fourth surety for all future dividends upon the dishonoured bills.

Formerly it was supposed, that in the case where one of the several sureties paid the whole debt owing from the principal, his remedy was only in equity for a contribution, but, in modern times, it has been held, that if one in the nature of a surety pays a debt, he may minimum an action against the party liable for the debt.

(y) Ante, 327 to 330. (z) Walwyn v. St Quintin, 1 Bos. & P. 652; 2 Esp. Rep. 516, 517, (Chit. j. 578); Gould r. Robson, 8 East, 576, (Chit. j. 735); ante, 409, n. (m); Ex parte Holden, Cooke's B. L. 167.

Collet r. Haigh, 8 Campb. 281, (Chit. j. 877). This was an action on a bill of exchange, drawn by the defendant upon J. Dufton, accepted by him, and indorsed to the plaintiffs. It appeared that when the bill became due, the plaintiffs gave time for some weeks to Dufton, upon his lodging some security in their hands, which did not turn out to be available; but it was likewise proved, that Dufton had accepted the bill merely for the defendant's ac commodation, without any consideration whatsoever. Lord Ellenborough ruled, that under these circumstances the defendant was not discharged by the time given to the neceptor. The drawer of an accommodation bill must be considered as the principal debtor, and the acceptor only in the light of a surety. reason why notice of the dishonour of a bill must in general be given to the drawer, is, that he may recoup himself by withdrawing his effects from the hands of the acceptor, and he is discharged by time given to the acceptor without his consent, because his remedy over against the acceptor may thus be materially affeeted. But where the hill is accepted merely for the accommedation of the drawer, he has no effects to withdraw, and no remedy to pursue, when conquelled to pay. He therefore suffers no injury either by want of notice, or by time being given to the acceptor; and in an action on the bill, he cannot defend himself upon either of these grounds. Verdict for plainpayment(a); but this would not be allowed if the bill was drawn for the accommodation of the acceptor(b). So if the acceptor of a bill be merely an agent for the drawer, who is the purchaser of goods, the holder's renewing the bill without the consent of the drawer will not discharge him(c).

II. Of Payment.

Of receiving Part-Payment of the Acceptor, Ac. [*418]

It appears to have been holden, that if on presentment for payment the holder takes less than the whole sum due thereon of the acceptor or *indorser, in part satisfaction, without the assent of the other parties to the bill, he thereby discharges them, because, as has been said, it is an election to receive payment from the acceptor (d). But it is now settled, that the holder may receive part-payment from the acceptor or indorser, and may sue the other parties for the residue, provided he do not also release or give time to the acceptor for the payment of such residue(e); and if the holder of a joint and several promissory note enter up judgment by cognovit against one of the makers, and levy part under a f_i . f_a ., this is no discharge of the other (f). The holder, however, of a joint and several promissory note of A. and B., by discharging A. discharges B. also: where, therefore, the holder of two such notes, one of which only is due, receives from A. a sum exceeding the amount of the note which is due, and exceeding A.'s moiety of the two sums for which he is liable on both notes, and gives up the note which is due, and erases A.'s name from the other note, A. is discharged, and thereby B. also(g).

It is said, that if the drawee have, on presentment for acceptance, engaged to pay only a part, and the holder has given notice of such partial acceptance to the other parties, he should, when the bill becomes due, receive of the drawee the sum for which he accepted, and cause a protest again to be made for non-payment of the remaining sum (h).

Effect of Indulgence to subseties, &c.

Though the giving time to an acceptor or indorser will thus in general discharge all subsequent indorsers, who would be entitled to resort to the quent Par- party indulged (i); the giving time to a subsequent indorser will not discharge a prior indorser(k); and, therefore, the holder of a bill may sue a prior in-

L. 167; 1 Mont. 153; Cullen, 100.

(b) Hill v. Read, Dow. & Ry. C. N. P. 26. (c) Clark v. Noel, 8 Campb. 411, (Chit. j. 896). Held, that the purchaser of goods, to be paid for by bill upon his agent, is not discharged by the seller taking a renewal of the bill, without giving him notice, if the agent had not funds in his hands to pay the bill when it became due. Lord Ellenborough was of opin-ion, that Aaron was only in the nature of a surety, and remarked, that as he was not in cash to pay the bill when it became due, it was rather in favour of the defendant to allow it to be renewed. The debt was originally due from the defendant, and the security taken from his agent could be no extinction of it. It was impossible to say the purchaser of goods could be discharged under these circumstances by want of notice, like the drawer of a bill of exchange. The plaintiffs had a verdict, which, in the ensuing term, upon a motion for a new trial, was approved of by the court.

(d) Hewitt v. Goodrich, 2 Carr. & P. 468, (Chit. j. 1315); Tassel v. Lewis, 2 Ld. Raym. 744, (Chit. j. 192); Kellock v. Robinson, 2 Stra. 745, (Chit. j. 264); Sel. Ca. 147, S. C.;

(a) Id. ibid. Ex parte Holden, Cooke's B. Bul. N. P. 273; Hull v. Pitfield, 1 Wils. 48, (Chit. j. 306).

(e) Gould v. Robson, S East, 580, (Chit. j. 735); ante, 409, note (m); Walwyn v. St. Quintin, 1 Bos. & Pul. 652; 2 Esp. 515, (Ch. j. 578); Bul. Ni. Pri. 271, 273, 275; Mar. 86.

(f) Ayrey v. Davenport, 2 New Rep. 474, (Chit j. 736); Ex parte Gifford, 6 Ves. 805. But see the observations of the court upon the latter case in Nicholson v. Revill, 4 Ad. & El. 675, 683; 6 N. & M. 192, S. C.

(g) Micholson v. Revill, 6 Nev. & M. 192; 4 Ad. & El. 675; 1 Har. & W. 756, S. C.

(h) Mar. 69, 85, 86.

(i) Smith v. Knox, 3 Esp. Rep. 46, (Chit. j. 617); and observation in English v. Darley, 2 Bos. & Pul. 62, (Chit. j. 620); ante, 405, note (m). When time given to a party who is both first and last indorser will discharge an intermediate indorser, Hall v. Cole, 4 Ad. & El. 577; ante, 409, note (p).

(k) Claridge v. Dalton, 4 Maule & S. 282, (Chit. j. 934); Hayling v. Mullhall, 2 Bla. R. 1285; English v. Darley, 2 Bos. & Pul. 61, (Chit. j. 620); Smith v. Knox, 3 Esp. Rep. 47, (Chit. j. 617); Nadin v. Battie, 5 East, 147; 1 Smith, 362, S. C.; and see Ex parte Barcley, hitt.

11.20

7007 8

12/13

77.2

چېن. ا

1 1 2

A 198

1. 75

1 3 / 3

S 196

C: : 12

me : Y

....

376 B.

ory T

17:50

30.00 18 B. P

0.00

30000 (6,88 %

n to be

2000

10 12

(127

(10: I

ii 0

131

1:3

5 0

12.9

p 171.

. #

30 P 50

192

C.

12 ..

100 ф J

, p

232 R

61.

Ø.

Ø:

dorser after having let a subsequent indorser, whom he had taken in execution, out of gaol, on a letter of license, without paying the debt(l). has been decided, that the holder of an accommodation note, who has re-7thly, ceived a composition from, and who has covenanted not to sue the payee for Consewhose accommodation the note was *made, may, notwithstanding, sue the quences of maker, though on payment of it, he, the maker, will have a right of action Time to or against the payee(m); and if the holder release to the payee all claims in re- Releasing spect of the note, not knowing that the maker is a surety only, this will not &c. discharge the latter(n); and although at the time of executing the release the [*419] holder knows the bill or note to have been made for the accommodation of the payee, this will not discharge the acceptor or maker, provided he did not know it at the time of the indorsement(o). The giving time to an acceptor will not discharge the drawer if the acceptance was to accommodate the drawer, and he ought to have provided for it (p). And it has long been settled, that if the holder of an accommodation bill receive a part from the drawer, and take a promise from him upon the back of the bill for the payment of the residue, at an enlarged time, such act will not discharge the ac-And though in one case it was held, that if the indorsee of a bill of exchange, having notice that it was accepted without consideration, receive part-payment from the drawer, and give him time to pay the residue,

And it Payment.

7 Ves. 597, (Chit. j. 656); Bayl. 5th edit. 254; Selw. 9th edit. 365.

Claridge v. Dalton, 4 Maule & S. 232, 233, (Chit. j. 934). Per Bayley, J. "If the holder gave time to the payee, he cannot call on the indorsers; but this rule does not apply to a party lower down on the bill, as if the fifth indorsee were to give time to the last indorser for six months, proposing in the meanwhile to endeavour to get payment from the indorsers lower down on the bill: this might well be done."

Hayling v. Mullhall, 2 Bla. Rep. 1235, (Ch. 400). A bill was indorsed by Sheridan to Boon, and by him to the plaintiff: he sued Boon, and took him in execution, but discharged him upon a letter of license. He then sued Sheridan, for whom the defendant became bail; and upon an action against the defendant, he contended, that the debt was satisfied by the imprisonment of Boon, but the court was clear it was not, and Mullhall was obliged to pay the money. See the observations on the error in the marginal analysis of this case, in English v. Darley, 2 Bos. & Pul. 62, (Chit. j. 620); ante, 408, note (m).

(1) Hayling v. Mullhall, 2 Bla Rep. 1235; supra, note (k). And see decisions as to reducing and expunging proof in case of bank-ruptcy, post, Part II. Ch. VIII. s. iv. (m) Mallet v. Thompson, 5 Esp. R. 178, (Chit. j. 702); and see Maltby v. Carstairs, 7 Bar. & C. 735; 1 Man. & R. 549, (Chit. j.

(n) Carstairs v. Rolleston, 5 Taunt. 551; 1 Marsh. 207, (Chit. j. 909). To an action by the indorsees of a promissory note against the maker, the defendant pleaded that he made the note as surety only for the payee, and that the plaintiffs had released the payee from all claims in respect of the said note, without alleging that the plaintiffs had notice of the want of consideration between the defendant and payee. Held, that the release did not operate as an extinguishment of the consideration which the plaintiffs had given to the payee for the note, so as to make it a note without consideration between themselves and the defendant, and, therefore, that the plea was bad on general demurrer. Gibbs, C. J. "This case has been argued on the only ground on which it could be supported for a moment, and ingenuity has furnished an argument which I had not discovered. The object of the defendant was to accommodate the payee, and I admit that the payee could not have sued the maker of the note, nor could an indorsee have done so, unless he had given consideration for it. But it is insisted, that the release which has been given by the bankrupts, who were indersees to the original payee, operates as an extinguishment of the consideration which they gave for it, and therefore puts them in the condition of indorsees without consideration. I am not of that opinion; the indorsement was for a valuable consideration, and the indorsees had the security of the defendant as maker of the note for their debt, and though they released the original payee, they still retain their remedy against the maker. Whatever might have been the case if the bankropts had had notice that the instrument was given originally without consideration, as to which I give no opinion. I am decided, that as the matter now stands, the plaintifis' right of action remains against the defendant." The rest of the court concurred in the opinion of the C. J. Judgment for the plaintitls.

(o) Harrison v. Courtauld, 3 B. : Ad. 86; anle, 315, 316, note (y). (p) Collet v. Haigh, 3 Campb. 281, (Chit. j.

877); antc, 417, note (z).

(q) Ellis v. Galindo, cited in Dingwall v. Dunster, Dougl. 250, (Chit. j. 403, 427); and see Rolfe v. Wyatt, 5 C. & P. 181. See also ante, 315, 316.

11. Of Payment.
Tably, Conse
The payment of the thereby discharges the acceptor (r); yet in subsequent cases a different doctrine has been established(s). Entering into an *agreement of composition with the drawer, without any clause as to delivering up securities, and without extinguishing the original debt, does not preclude the holder from quences of giving

Time to or

(r) See Laxton v. Peat, 2 Campb. 185, (Ch. Releasing j. 773). But the doctrine in that case seems to Acceptor, have been disputed by Gibbs, J. in the case of Kerrison v. Cooke, 3 Campb. 302, (Chit. j. [*420 | 885), who denied any distinction between an acceptor in the ordinary course of business, and an accommodation acceptor. And Lord Eldon (in 11 Ves. 411) also objected to any such distinction; and in the case of Anderson v. Cleveland, 13 East, 430, notes, (Chit. j. 400), Lord Mansfield seems to have been of opinion, that a neglect to call upon the acceptor affords no defence, saying that the maker of a note, and the acceptor of a bill remain liable; the acceptance is proof of the acceptor's having effects in hand, and he ought never to part with them, unless he is sure that the bill has been paid by the drawer. And see Dingwall v. Dunster, Dougl. 235, 247, (Chit. j. 401); Mallet v. Thompson, 5 Esp. Rep. 178, (Chit. j. 702). In the Trent Navigation Company v. Harley, 10 East, 34, the court considered that the neglect of the obligee of a bond to compel the principal to ac-

(s) Kerrison v. Cooke, 3 Campb. 262, (Chit. j. 885); Ragget v. Axmoro, 4 Taunt. 730, (Chit. j. 881); Fentum v. Pocock, 5 Taunt. 192; 1 Marsh. 14, (Chit. j. 896); Carstairs v. Rolleston, 5 Taunt. 551; 1 Marsh. 507, (Chit. j. 909); Mallet v. Thompson, 5 Esp. Rep. 178, (Chit. j. 702); Rolfe v. Wyatt, 5 C. & P. 181; Harrison v. Courtauld, 3 B. & Ad. 36; Nichols count did not release the surety from his limbil-

v. Norris, ib. 41. Kerrison v. Cooke, 3 Campb. 362, (Chit. j. 835). Indorsee against acceptor. The plaintiff, after notice that the bill was accepted for the accommodation of the drawer, gave time to the drawer without concurrence of the defendant, and yet it was held the plaintiff was entitled to recover. Per Gibbs, J. admitting Laxton v. Peat to be law, of which grave doubts have been entertained, the present case may be distinguished from it. Lord Elleuborough's decision there proceeded upon the ground that the drawer, according to the understanding of the different parties to the bill, was considered as primarily liable, and was in the first instance looked to for payment. But here payment is demanded of the acceptor when the bill becomes due, and he then promises to pay it. This shews that he was held liable, as in the common case of the acceptor of a bill of exchange, and I am of opinion that he was not discharged by time given, under these circumstances, to the drawer. I am sorry the term "accommodation bill" ever found its way into the law, or that parties were allowed to get rid of the obligations they profess to contract, by putting their names to negotiable securities.

Fentum v. Pocock, 5 Taunt. 192; 1 Marsh. 507, (Chit. j. 896); cited and approved of in The Bank of Ireland v. Beresford, 6 Dow's Rep. 232; Price v. Edmunds, 10 Bar. & Cree. 584; ante, 416, note (r); and Nichols v. Norris, 3 B. & Ad. 41; infra, note (u) Indorsee against acceptor. When the bill became due it was duly presented for payment, and refused; and the plaintiff was then informed that it was an accommodation bill, and that defendant had no effects of the drawer. The plaintiff received from the drawer 651., in part discharge of the bill, and afterwards, without the concurrence of the acceptor, took a cognovit from the drawer, payable by instalments; and it was held that this did not discharge the acceptor. Per Lord Mansfield, C. J. " No doubt if the defendant can succeed in establishing the principle, that we must so subvert and pervert the situation of the parties, as to make the acceptor merely a surety, and the drawer the principal, the consequence contended for must follow. The case of Laxton v Peat certainly is the first in which it was ever supposed that the acceptor of a bill of exchange was not the first person and the last person compellable to pay that bill to the holder of it, and that any thing could discharge the acceptor except paymentor a release; and I never before knew there was any difference between an acceptance given for an accommodation and an acceptance for value. When I first saw that case in Campbell, I was in the same state as Mr. Justice Gibbs, and doubted a great deal whether it could be law. The case of Collet v. Haigh must be considered not as a separate decision, but as resting on the nuthority of the former. It is utterly impossible for any judge, whatever his learning and abilities may be, to decide at once rightly upon every point that comes before him at Nisi Prius; and whoever looks through Campbell's Reports will be greatly surprised to see, among such an immense number of questions, many of them of the most important kind, which came before that noble and learned judge, not that there are mistakes, but that he is, in by far the most of the causes, so wonderfully right, beyond the proportion of any other judges. But in this case we think that we are bound to differ from him, and to hold that it is impossible for us to consider the acceptor of an accommodation bill in the light of the surety for the payment of the drawer, and that we cannot therefore say that he is discharged by the indulgence shown to the drawer: certainly the paying respect to accommodation bills is not what one would wish to do, seeing the mischiefs arising from them. One might find here a very important distinction between this case and the case decided by Lord Ellenborough, namely, that here the person taking the bill did not, at the time when he took it, know that it was an accommodation bill, and that if he did not then know it, what does it signify what came to his knowledge afterwards, if he took the bill for a valuable consideration; but it is better not to rest this case upon that foundation; for as it appears to me, if the holder had known in the clearest manner at the time of his taking the

inti

1

0.00

١٠٠.: ! •

111

-2 $ 5

17.5

--, 1%

, -> 1

, 1

. . . .

\,

, 1

. 11

- 131

50

... el

* *

; se

, ij

ازير

100

٠, ١٠

· P

....

.47

1

۱. ع

(, 1

. . .

....

وزل. 11 . 13

'n

recovering from the acceptor, and retaining the money so recovered(t); and still less is the acceptor discharged where by the composition deed it is ex- Payment. pressly stipulated that the creditors shall not thereby be prevented from suing on any securities they hold(u). We have seen, however, that the acceptor of an accommodation *bill may be discharged by the holders, who are bank- [*421] ers of the drawer, receiving more than sufficient to cover it (x).

If the acceptor of a bill, or maker of a note, have become a bankrupt, the Of provholder may, without the assent of the other parties, prove the bill under the ing under commission, and receive dividends, and will not thereby discharge the other mission, or parties to the bill from their respective liabilities to him, if he have given regular against an parties to the bill from their respective habitudes to him, it is in a solution notice of non-payment (y)(1). So the circumstance of one of the parties to Debtor, a bill having been charged in execution, and discharged as an insolvent debt- and of or does not preclude the holder from proceeding against the other par-compoundties(z).

ing with

But if the holder of a bill compound with the acceptor or other party, ceptor. without the assent of the drawer or other subsequent parties, he thereby releases them from their liabilities, if they had effects in the hands of the acceptor or prior indorser; for there is a material distinction between taking a sum of money in part satisfaction of a debt, as in the case of a dividend by compulsion of law under a commission of bankruptcy, or discharge under bill, that it was merely an accommodation bill, it would make no manner of difference; for he who accepts a bill, whether for value or to serve a friend, makes himself in all events liable as the acceptor, and nothing can discharge him but payment or a release. The case before Gibbs, J. has shaken this decision in Laxton v. Peat, and we think rightly; the case cited, English r. Darley, is not applicable, where the giving time to an acceptor was held to be a discharge of an indorser, who stands only in the situation of a surety for the first. The rule therefore which has been obtained for setting aside the verdict, and entering a nonsuit, must be discharged."

(t) Thomas v. Courtney, 1 B. & Ald. 1, (Chit. j. 998); ante, 412, n. (k); Mattley v. Carstairs, 7 B. & C. 735; 1 Man. & Ry. 549, 8. C

(u) Nichols v. Norris, 8 B. & Ad. 41. gave a promissory note payable to B. (for which A. had received no consideration), as a security for goods to be sold to B. on credit; and B. indorsed the note over to the creditors. B. nfterwards executed a deed of composition with the creditors, by which he undertook to pay his debt to them by instalments, and it was stipulated that they should not be prevented by that arrangement from suing on any securities which they held, and that on any default in paying the instalments the deed should be void: held, that the delay granted to B. by this agreement did not discharge A; et per Parke, J. ib. 42, "I am of opinion that Fentum v. Pocock, (5 Taunt. 195) is sound law, and that the present case falls within its authority; independently of which, there is an answer to the present objection, in the proviso which reserves a power of enforcing the securities at any time." See Ex parte Glendiening, 1 Buck, 517, as to the effect of a special reservation of securities.

(x) Ante, 404, note (x)

(y) See observations in English v. Darley, ante, 408, note (m); Ex parte Wilson, 11 Ves. 412, (Chit. j. 720); Stock v. Mawson, 1 Bos. & Pul. 286; see Langdale v. Parry, 2 D. & R. 337. A surety for a bankrupt is not discharged by the creditor's signing the bankrupt's certificate, even after notice from the surety not to do Browne v. Carr, 7 Bing. 508; 1 M. & P. 497, S. C.

(z) Macdonald v. Bovington, 4 T. R. 825, (Chit. j. 497). A bill drawn by Macdonald on Bovington was indorsed to Thompson, who charged Bovington in execution on it. Povington was discharged as an insolvent, then Thompson sued Macdonald, and recovered. Macdonald paid the bill, sued Bovington, and charged him in execution, and on a rule nisi to discharge him and cause shewn, it was urged that Bovington had satisfied the bill by being charged in execution at the suit of Thompson. Sed per Lord Kenyon, "nothing can be clearer than that he has not; it was a mere formal satisfaction as to Thompson, not like actual payment, and when Macdonald was obliged to pay the bill, a new cause of action arose against the defendant by the payment, without regard to what passed in the former action." And per Buller, J. "the consequence would be, that because the drawer was obliged to pay the holder, the acceptor would be discharged without paying either." Rule discharged.

⁽¹⁾ So it has been held in New York, that the proceeding under a commission of bankruptcy in London, against the acceptor, was no discharge of the indorser of a bill drawn here. Kenworthy v. Hopkins, 1 John. Cas. 107.

II. Of Payment.

sequences quences of Releasing Acceptor, &c. [*422]

the insolvent act, and the voluntarily taking a sum in satisfaction of such debt, where the party has an option to refuse less than the whole, but com-7thly, Con- pounds with the acceptor, and thereby releases and deprives all other parties to the bill of the right of resorting to him(a). And it seems questionable whether, if the holder had the consent of the other parties that he might acgiving Time to or cept the composition and hold them liable, without resorting to the principal debtor, *he would not still be deprived of his remedy against them, if the composition operated as a release of the debt, inasmuch as it would be a fraud on the other creditors, who had supposed they had contracted with each other on equal terms (b). Though the agent of the holder by mistake signed a composition deed in favour of the acceptor, thinking that the proceedings were a bankruptcy, yet it was decided that the drawer was dis-And where the indorser of a bill of exchange becomes bank-

> (a) Ex parte Wilson, 11 Ves. 410, (Chit. j. 720); post, 422, note (c); Cooke's Bank. Law, 168; Cullen, 158, 159, and cases there cited; Ex parte Smith, 3 Bro. C. C. 1; Lewis r. Jones, 8 Bar. & Cres. 556; 6 Dow. & Ry. Jones, 8 Dar. & Clea. 550, 5 Don. & 251. 567, (Chit. j. 1265). See observations in English v. Darley, ante, 408, note (m), and post, Part II. Ch. VIII. Bankruptcy; 1 Mont. 546. Quare, as to the effect of a composition between the creditor and a surety in discharging a co-surety, Nicholson v. Revill, 6 Nev. & M. 192; S. C. 4 Ad. & El. 675; 1 Har. & W. 756.

> Ex parte Smith, 8 Bro. C. C. 1, (Chit. j. 457). Lewis and Potter indorsed certain bills and notes to Esdaile, and between bankrupt. Esdaile proved the amount of the bills and notes under their commission, and afterwards received a composition from the acceptors of the bills, and the makers of the notes, and gave them a full discharge without the knowledge of the assignees of Lewis and Potter. On petition by the assignees to have the debt in respect of the bills and notes expunged, the Chancellor held, that by discharging the acceptors and makers without the consent of the indorser, the latter was discharged also. To the same effect is the case of Ex parte Wilson, 11 Ves. 410. See also Smith v. Knox, 3 Esp. Rep. 46, (Chit. j.

> In a case where an action was brought by several partners, as indorsees of a promissory note against the defendant as indorser, and it appeared in evidence that one of the partners had discharged a prior indorser by a deed of composition, it was holden, that such deed operated as a release to the defendant. Ellison and others v. Dezell, Bristol Summer Assizes, 1811, Selw. 9th edit. 365.

> (b) See per Littledale, J. in Lewis v. Jones, 4 Bar. & Cres. 506, 514; 6 Dow. & Ry. 567, > (Chit. j. 1265). (c) Ex parte Wilson, 11 Ves. 410, (Chit j. 720). In July, 1799, A. P. Pourtales and A. G. Pourtales drew two bills of exchange upon Claessen, Kieckhoefer, and Co. of Hamburgh, at three months after date, for 350l. and 2501. payable to the order of the petitioner, for a valuable consideration. The bills were accepted; but before they were due, the acceptors stopped payment, and the bills were returned protested. The drawers afterwards became bankrupt. The petitioner's proof in respect of the bills was objected to, until he should have had recourse to the estate of the acceptors, and have received such dividend as should be payable from their estate. The petitioner sent the bills to his agent at Hamburgh for that purpose, who received a dividend from the estate of the acceptors, and was afterwards admitted to prove the residue of his debt under the commission against the drawers: but before any dividend was received under that proof, it appeared that no proceeding in nature of a commission of bankruptcy had issued against the acceptors, but their affairs were settled by a deed of composition, which the petitioner's agent had signed upon receiving the dividend, in full discharge of the estate of the acceptors. The petition prayed that the dividends under the commission should be paid to the petitioner. It was admitted there was no fraud; but the deed of composition was signed, and the dividend received by his agent without inquiry. The petition stated, that the assignees and the solicitor under the commission pressed the petitioner to apply and receive what might be obtained from the estate of the acceptors, representing, that he should prove for the residue; but upon the affidavits there was no special undertaking; and the transaction appeared to originate in a mistake of all parties; supposing the proceeding at Hamburgh was in the nature of bankruptcy. The Lord Chancellor, "The law is not disputed: it was very well settled by Lord Thurlow, upon great deliberation, that, if a person, having security of drawer and acceptor, with offects (a distinction much to be regretted, having given very mischievous authenticity to accommodation paper) gives the acceptor time, and much more if the holder fully discharges the acceptor by composition, the holder can no longer make a demand upon the drawer, whether solvent or not; for this reason, that if the drawer could come upon the acceptor afterwards, the acceptor does not receive any benefit by the composition. The nature of the contract must therefore be, that the holder shall so deal with the bill, that no third person shall come upon the acceptor in consequence of his act. I remember Lord Thurlow said he had consulted the judges upon that case. The decision is therefore of very high authority. Lord Rosslyn was struck with this considera-tion, that if the holder did all he could substantially do for the benefit of the persons whose

MAL.

. 326

. .

."8

4.2

. 13

.. 20

りむ

2 50

3: 15

: 33

. 37

57 🕏

~ X1

, "12

. 3

y:# egt.

- 1

4 X

gri d

-:35 . 10

· (MC

7.4 771

-,21

ن≱ ئ

ا پد

y #

...

:#

y 1

3

9 12 ď

perø, yl-

gf.

10 ge.

Ņ

į

rupt, and the holder proves the amount of the bill under his commission, and afterwards compounds with and discharges the acceptor without the consent Pa) mentof the assignees of the indorser, he thereby also discharges the indorser's estates, and the proof of his debt must *be expunged(d). If the composition [*423] deed operates as a release and extinguishment of the original claim, the holder has no remedy against any of the parties to the bill(e). But we have seen that the compounding with or releasing a drawer would not discharge an acceptor, although he had accepted for the accommodation of the drawer, unless so expressly stipulated (f).

On payment of the amount of a bill or note, it has been considered doubt- Sthly, Of ful whether a person paying can insist on a receipt being given(g); but now the Rethe party, it should seem, is entitled to demand a receipt (h). It is usual Payment. to give a receipt on the back of a bill, and it has been said, that it is the duty of bankers to make some memorandum on bills and notes paid by them(i). Such receipt need not, like other receipts, be stamped (k). Where a part is paid, the person paying should take care to have the partial receipt marked on the bill, or he may, as is said, be liable to pay the amount again to a bonû fide indorsee(1). Where an action was brought by the indorser of a bill (who had paid it to an indorsee) against the acceptor, he was nonsuited, although he produced the bill and protest, because he could not produce a receipt for the money paid by him to the indorsee upon the protest, according to the custom of merchants; though Holt, C. J. seemed to be of opinion, that if the plaintiff could have proved payment by any evidence, it would have been sufficient (m)(1). However, a receipt is an admission only, and names were upon the bill, that was all that could be expected, and held that he should, if he really acted for the benefit of the other parties by taking a composition from the acceptor, go on against the drawer. But the misfortune of that is, that the other parties have a right by law to consider what is for their benefit, and are the judges of that; and that has been carried so far, that the actual bankruptcy of the acceptor does not dispense with the necessity of notice to the drawer. That being the law, I felt a wish to find that part of the petition sustained, which represents, that the assignees and the solicitor pressed the petitioner to get what benefit he could in the affairs at Hamburgh, intimating that he should afterwards prove under the commission. But the affidavits amount only to this, that the assignees and the solicitor, being persuaded that there was a bankruptcy at Hamburgh, and a dividend actually set apart, so that in bankruptcy it was to be considered as received in diminution of the proof, do make that representation; and that the petitioner shall receive dividends under that bankruptcy, before he comes to prove under the commisson in this country, and the future dividends after proof. The petitioner accordingly sent to his agent at Hamburgh, not inquiring whether the proceedings there was a bankruptcy or a composition, and the agent signed the deed of composition, which, in respect of payments under it, actually discharges the acceptor. The question whether the petitioner was by fraud drawn in, or required to sign the deed of composition is a more question of fact. The whole was a common mistake, under the apprehension of all, that it was a bankruptcy; but, that being misapprehension, the consequence from not knowing what the act was, must fall upon the person who did the act, who therefore having, by himself or his agent, accepted a composition in full of the whole demand, is unfortunately, but effectually, under circumstances, that exclude any demand by him against the drawer's estate.

(d) Ex parte Smith, 3 Bro. C. C. 1, (Chit. 457); ante, 421, note (a); Cooke's Bank. Law, 168, 169; Cullen, 158, 159; 1 Mont. 546; and Ex parte Wilson, 11 Ves. 410; ante. 422, note (c).

(e) Lewis v. Jones, 4 Bar. & Cres. 507; 6 D. & R. 567, (Chit. j. 1265); Ex parte Hall, 1 Dea. Rep. 171; post, Part II. Ch. VIII. s. iv.

Bankruptcy—What Bills proveable.
(f) Ante, 418, 419; Maltby v. Carstairs, 7
B. & C. 785; 1 Man. & Ry. 549, S. C.

(g) Cole v. Blake, Peake N. P. 179, 180; see Green v. Croft, 2 Hen. Bla. 80 to 82.

(h) 48 Geo. 8, c. 126, s. 5.

(i) Burbridge v. Manners, 3 Campb. 193. (Chit. j. 855).

(k) 44 Geo. 3, c. 98, Sched. A.; 28 Geo. 8, c. 49, s. 4 and 7. See the exemptions in 55 Geo. 8, c. 184, Sched. part 1, tit. Receipts; ante, 111.

(1) Cooper v. Davies, 1 Esp. R. 463, (ht. j. 548).

(m) Mendez v. Carreroon, Ld. Raym. 742, (Chit. j. 215).

(I

(2

ĮΝ

ŧ.

ed

t

2

II. Of Payment. Sthly, Of the Receipt for Payment.

the general rule is, that an admission, though evidence against the person who made it and those claiming under him, is not conclusive evidence except as to the person who may have been induced by it to alter his condition (n): a receipt may, therefore, be contradicted or explained; and there is no case in which a receipt upon a negotiable instrument has been considered to be an exception to the general rule; on the contrary Lord Kenyon, in the case of Scholey v. Walsby (o), was of opinion, that a receipt on the back of a bill might be explained by parol evidence, and shewn to be a receipt from the drawer, and not from the acceptor. Accordingly, where a bill of exchange was drawn by A. on B. and indorsed to C., and the bill was not satisfied when due, but part payments were afterwards made by the drawer and acceptor, and two years after it had become due, D. paid the balance to C., the holder, and the latter indorsed the bill, and wrote a receipt on it in general terms; it was held, that such receipt was not conclusive evidence that the bill had been satisfied either by the acceptor or drawer, but that parol testimony was admissible to explain it; and it appearing thereby that D. paid the balance, not on the account of the acceptor or drawer, but in order to acquire an interest in the bill as purchaser, it might be indorsed by D. after it became due, so as to give the indorsee all the rights which C., the holder, [*424] had before the indorsement, and *such indorsee might recover from the drawer the balance unpaid by him(p). So, in a very recent case (q), where a receipt had been given by one partner in the name of the firm, but without the knowledge of the other partners, such receipt was held not to be conclusive evidence against the firm in an action brought by them to recover the balance due upon a bill of exchange. But inasmuch as a general receipt on the back of a bill of exchange is prima facie evidence of its having been paid by the acceptor(r)(1), it would perhaps be advisable, in all cases when payment is made by a drawer or indorser, for the holder to state in the receipt by whom it was paid. It has however been held, that the mere production of a bill of exchange from the custody of the acceptor is not prima facie evidence of his having paid it, without proof that it was once in circulation after it had been accepted(2); nor is payment to be presumed from a receipt indorsed on the bill, unless such receipt is shewn to be in the handwriting of a person entitled to demand payment(s)(3). Though in another > (n) Stranton v. Rastal, 2 T. R. 366; Wyatt v. Marquis of Hertford, 3 East, 147; Herne v. Rogers, 9 B. & C. 586.

(o) Peake's Rep. 24, 25.

(r) Scholey v. Walsby, Peake R. 25, (Chit.

j. 469); but see Pfiel v. Van Battenberg, 2 Campb. 439, (Ch. j. 797); infra, next note.
(8) Pfiel v. Van Battenburg, 2 Campb. 439, (Chit. j. 797). See this case more fully, post, Part II. Ch. V. s. i. Evidence—Proof of Plaintiff's interest, &c. The delivery of a check to the payee operates as payment until dishonoured; Pierce v. Davis, 1 Mood. & Rob. 365; ante, 173, note (u).

(2) { But if it is proved that it has been put in circulation by the drawer, the possession of the draft by the accommodation acceptor is sufficient to enable him to recover. Wilkinson v. Phelps, 16 Louis. Rep. 304; Baring v. Clark, 19 Pick. 220.

⁽p) Graves v. Key, 3 Bar. & Adol. 313. (q) Farrar v. Huchinson, 1 Perry & Dav. 437; overruling Alner v. George, 1 Camp. 392; and see Benson v. Bennett, ib. note; Scaife v. Jackson, 3 B. & C. 421; 5 D. & R. 290, S. C.

⁽¹⁾ The possession of a joint note by one of the drawers, with a receipt of payment by the holder or possessor, indorsed on it by the person entitled to receive it, is prima fucie evidence of the liability of the other drawer to refund one half of the note. Ingram v. Croft, 7 Louisiana

⁽³⁾ It has been held in Pennsylvania that the mere production of the bill and protest without a receipt of the money, is not sufficient evidence in an action by the indorser against the acceptor, that the indorser has paid the same to a subsequent indorsee. Gorgerat v. M'Carty, 9 Dall., Rep. 144, S. C. 1 Yates' Rep. 94. And the mere possession of a note by an indorsee, who had indorsed it to another porson, is not sufficient evidence of his right of action against a prior

127

n ra

. . .

- :

...

٠,٠

Ú.

1

; 🕮

1. :::

A 2

1.3

. 2

, (u

-11

Ţ.F

(d

4.

ومورا

. .

,7 73)

- 1

្នា

٠

1 . 1

ı.

case(t) it was held, that payment of money might be proved by the lender producing a check drawn by him upon his banker, in favour of the borrow- Payment. er, and indorsed by the latter, although without such indorsement it would stally, Of not be evidence(u). And where an unstamped promissory note was indors- the Reed with a receipt for interest, Lord Ellenborough, C. J. is reported to have Payment. left it to the jury, that though they could not consider the note, containing this endorsement, as read in evidence, for want of a stamp, yet the receipt might be read as evidence for them to consider whether a principal sum of money was not thereby admitted to be due from the defendant to the plaintiff, yielding an interest equivalent to the sum which the indorsement purported, without any reference to the note itself(x). We have seen, that a deed reciting the actual payment of money, is conclusive at law against the recovery of such money; but not so where from the whole tenor of the deed it shows no such payment was made (y).

Indorsements of partial payments made by the holder himself might, before the 9 Geo. 4, c. 14, s. 3, in some cases, be sufficient to take the case out of the Statute of Limitations. On this point Lord Ellenborough observed, "I have been at a loss to see the principle on which these receipts in the hand-writing of the creditor have sometimes been admitted as evidence against the debtor, and I am of opinion they cannot properly be admitted, unless they are proved to have been written at a time when the effect of them was clearly in contradiction to the writer's interest(z). But this has been altered by the above statute(a).

It has been considered, with analogy to the presumption of payment of a bond after twenty years have elapsed, that a note payable on demand, and dated upwards of twenty years before the commencement of *the action, [*425] may be presumed to have been paid(b). But in an action by the payee of a bill of exchange, accepted by the defendant for a valuable consideration, evidence that the plaintiff has been discharged as an insolvent debtor since

(1) Egg v. Barnett, 3 Eap R. 196. (Chit. j.

(u) Aubert v. Walsh, 4 Taunt. 293; Gow, N. P. C. 15, (Chit. j. 860); ante, 400, n. (y).

(x) Manley r. Peel, 5 Esp. Rep. 121, sed

(y) Ante, 314, notes (k), (l). (z) Rose r. Bryant, 2 Campb. 523.

(a) 9 Geo. 4, c. 14, s. 3, post, Part II. Ch. IV. Defences and Pleas.

(b) Duffield v. Creed, 5 Esp. Rep. 52. (Chit. j. 684); Tidd, 9th edit. 19.

indorser, without a re-assignment or receipt from the last indorser. Welch v. Lindo, 7 Cranch,

An intermediate indorser of a note may sue a previous indorser without showing actual payment by such intermediate indorser, to any subsequent indorsee, by a receipt, and without showing an indorsement back to such intermediate indorser. Possession of the note is, prima facie, sufficient evidence of payment. Norris v. Badger, 6 Cowen, 449. Elsworth v. Brewer, 11 Pick. Rep. 816.

If a person who endorses a bill to another, for value or collection, shall again come into the possession of it, he shall be regarded, unless the contrary appear in evidence, as the bona fide holder of the bill, and entitled to recover; although there may be upon it his own or a subsequent endorsement, which he may strike from the bill or not at his pleasure. Warren v. Gilman, 15 Maine Rep. 70; Green v. Jackson, id. 136; Mourain v. Deval, 12 Louis. Rep. 93; Freeland v. Hodge, id. 177. Pond v. Storrs, 18 Conn. 412. Possession of a note endorsed in blank is prima evidence of property in the plaintiff, sufficient to throw the burthen of proof on the defendant. Burns v. Haynes, 13 Louis. Rep. 12; Colton v. Union Eank, 15 id. 369; Waring v. Crawford, 14 id. 376; Netterville v. Stevens, 2 How. Rep. 643; Mullen v. French, 9 Watts, 96; Lord v. Appleton, 15 Maine 270. So where bills of exchange were specially endorsed, and the endorsement still remained uncancelled, and there were no re-endorsements or other evidence of any subsequent assignment, it was held, that possession by the original endorser is prima facial evidence that he is the owner of them. Picquet v. Curtis, 1 Sum. 478. But see Hart v. Windle 18 June 19 June dle, 15 Louis. Rep. 265. And the possession, by an indorsec, of a negotiable promissory note or of a bill of exchange, is presumptive evidence, not only of the fact that it was thus transferred to him upon a good consideration, but also of the fact that it was thus transferred before it was due and dishonoured. Pratt r. Adams, 7 Paige, 616. }

61

II. Of Payment. the bill became due, and has given in a blank schedule, is not enough to shew that the bill has been satisfied (c)(1).

8thly, Of the Recoipt for Payment.

Upon payment or satisfaction of a bill or note, the party making such payment should take care that the instrument be delivered up to him, or that his payment or satisfaction be indorsed, or he may be liable to an action by a third person, who was a holder of the bill before it became due, for the recovery of the amount (d)(2). And, therefore, where an indorser delivered to the holder another bill, and plaintiff, who was also an indorser, was called upon and paid the full amount of the first bill, not knowing of the deposit, it was held, that he might sue the depositing indorser for the full amount(e). And where there is a competition of evidence upon the question, whether the security has been satisfied by payment, it has been held, that the possession of that security by the claimant ought to turn the scale, and entitle him to a verdict(f). And where A. gave an accommodation acceptance to B., which B. gave to C., as a security for some acceptances of his, and these acceptances, when they became due, were paid by B. out of the produce of other acceptances given by C., but A.'s acceptance was not given up, though C. was desired not to present it, and A. was informed that it would not be presented, it was held, that the original transaction was continued, and A. not calling for the delivery of the bill, must be presumed to have allowed it to remain as a security in the hands of C. for such of his acceptances as were subsequent to those for which it was at first given (g). The cases in which the production of the bill or note, in order to entitle a party to demand payment, is dispensed with, have already been considered (h).

9thly, Of the Effect of Payment, and of Payments by Mistake, &c.

The effect of payment may in a great measure be collected from the immediately preceding paragraphs, and from what has been said with respect to a transfer of a bill of exchange after it has been paid(i). If a person, without having a full knowledge of facts, or a reasonable means of ascertaining them, pay a bill, which he is under no legal obligation to discharge, and where the person whom he pays has been guilty of laches, which, had the bill not been paid, would, in an action brought upon it, be a sufficient ground of defence, he may, especially if prejudiced by the laches by having been deprived of his remedy against other parties, recover back the money from him, as had and received to his use; and this point of law seems to be fully settled by a And where a party knowing a check to be post-dated, *and late decision(k). that the drawers were insolvent, but concealing those facts, presented it for

(c) Hart v. Newman, 3 Campb. 13, (Chit. j. 832).

(d) Buzzard v. Flecknoe, 1 Stark. R. 333, (Chit. j. 966); ante, 394, note (f).

(e) Id. ibid.

(f) Brombridge v. Osborne, 1 Stark. R. 374, ante, 394, note (f).

(g) Woodroffe v. Hayne, 1 Car. & P. 600, (Chit. j. 1241); and see Attwood v. Crodie, 1 Stark. R. 483, (Chit. j. 979).

(h) Ante, 268, 394, 395. (i) Ante, 223, 224; see also Hull r. Pitfield, 1 Wils. 46, (Chit. j. 306); Bacon v. Searles, 1 Hen. Bla. 88, (Chit. j. 449).

(k) Milnes v. Duncan, 6 Bar. & C. 671; 9 D. & R. 731, (Chit. j. 1330). A hill of exchange was drawn in Ircland upon the stamp required by law there, and which was less in amount than the stamp required for such a bill drawn in England, but there was nothing on the face of the bill to shew that it had been drawn in Ireland. The holder in England neglected to present it for payment, and held it a month after it was due. The acceptor having become bankrupt, the holder applied for payment to the defendant, from whom he had received it; the latter refused to pay it, alleging, that the holder had made it his own by his

(1) { On the subject of presumption of payment of a bill arising from lapse of time, see Hopkirk v. Page, 2 Brock. 20. }

⁽²⁾ When the original payee is in possession of a note, on which his name is indorsed in blank, no proof of a re-transfer is necessary to enable the holder to recover. Barbarin v. Daniels, 7 Louis. Rep. 479.

11!

1.19

10 48

. . 72

6. 16 ₫ ३

42,22

5 2

, (c) x

1,23

4000

, j. 7.

į ini

76. T

 $< \mu/2$

r. 100

-- g 3.7

j), r2

1, 5

1,18

110

e 1

.j}r!

j. 120 i iy

10

(دي

€2

A 1

. 18

. 12

1, 23

110 √ bi

, 38 . 1

, 59

100

payment to the plaintiffs, who were the bankers of such drawers, and who, without knowledge of these facts, paid its amount, although they had no funds Payment of the drawers in their hands at the time, but expected some in the course of 9thly, Of the day, it was held, that the plaintiffs were entitled to recover it back in an the Effect action for money had and received (l). But an inderser who has paid the of Payholder of a returned bill in ignorance of his laches, in not giving due notice of Payholder of Payholder of a returned bill in ignorance of his laches, in not giving due notice of Payholder of Payh of non-acceptance, cannot sue a prior indorser or the drawer who has been mean by discharged by such laches; for the ignorance of the party so paying, though Mistake, blameless, and which has prevented his availing himself of the laches as a defence, cannot alter or revive the liability of the prior party who has been discharged by the same laches (m). Nor can a party who has knowingly and voluntarily paid a bill of exchange which the policy of the law would have enabled him to resist the payment of, sue for money had and received to recover back the amount (n).

So where a bill purporting to have been accepted by ${f A}$, payable at the Forgery. plaintiffs' bank, was presented for payment to the plaintiffs on the day when it became due, and the latter believing it to be the genuine acceptance of A., paid the amount, and on the following day having discovered the acceptance to be a forgery, they gave notice of that fact to the defendant, to whom they had paid the bill, and required him to return the money, it was held, that the latter was entitled to know on the very day when it became due, whether it was honoured or dishonoured, and that no notice of the forgery having been given on that day, the plaintiffs, who had paid the money, were not entitled to recover it back(o). And where A. drew a bill on B. in the country, making it *payable at the house of C. in London, without authority from C., and B. 1 *427] laches. The holder then threatened to sue him, alleging that the bill was void, on the ground that it was drawn on an improper stamp, (in which case we have seen the laches would have been no answer). The indorser inspected the bill, and finding that the stamp was not that required for a bill of the same amount drawn in England, but ignorant of the fact that it had been drawn in Ireland, paid the amount to the holder; and it was held, that this was money paid in ignorance of the fact, and there being no laches imputable to the party who paid the money in not making due inquiries, he might recover it back in an action for money had and received. See the judgment of Bay-

(1) Martin v. Morgan, 3 Moore, 635; Gow, 128; 1 Bro & B. 289, (Chit. j. 1065).

(m) Roscoe v. Hardy, 12 East, 434; 2 Campb. 458, (Chit. j. 801); Turner v. Leach, 4 B. & Ald. 454, (Chit. j. 1108), S. P.; ante, 391, note (t). When such laches no defence as between principal and agent in action founded upon an implied indemnity, Huntley v. Sanderson, 1 C. & M. 467; 3 Tyrw. 469, S. C.; ante, 331, note (z), 343, note (c).

(n) Wilson v. Ray, 2 Perry & Dav. 253;

ante, 86, note (k). (0) Cocks and others v. Masterman and others, 9 B. & C. 902; Dans. & Lloyd R. 329, S. C.; 4 Man. & Ry. 676, (Chit. j 1446). Bayley, J. "The case of Wilkinson v. Johnson, 8 Bar. & C. 428; 5 Dow. & Ry. 403, (Chit. j. 1231), post, 427, n. (r), was relied on. That case differs from the present in one material point, viz. that the notice of the forgery was given on the very day when payment was made, and so as to enable the defendant to send notice of the dishonour to the prior parties on that day. In this case we give no opinion upon the point whether the plaintiffs would have been entitled to recover, if notice of the forgery had been given to the defendants on the very day on which the bill was paid, so as to enable the defendants on that day to have sent notice to the other parties on the bill. But we are all of opinion, that the holder of a bill is entitled to know on the day when it becomes due, whether it is an honoured or dishonoured bill. and that if he receive the money, and is suffered to retain it during the whole of that day, the parties who paid it cannot recover it back. The holder, indeed, is not bound by law (if the bill be dishonoured by the acceptor) to take any steps against the other parties to the bill till the day after it is dishonoured; but he is entitled to do so if he thinks fit, and the parties who pay the bill ought not by their negligence to deprive the holder of any right or privilege. If we were to hold that the plaintiffs were entitled to recover, it would be in effect saying that the plaintiffs might deprive the holder of a bill of his right to take steps against the parties to the bill on the day when it becomes due." Judgment for the defendants. See the reasons and decisions, post, 430, 431; and see ante, 260, 261. But in Archer v. Bank of England, 2 Dougl. 638, money paid in honour of a bill with a forged indorsement was recovered back, though it did not appear that notice of the forgery was given on the day of payment, Buller, J. dissentiente.

d

II. Of Payment. 9thly, Of the Effect of Payment, and of Payments by Mistake, & c.

accepted the bill in this form, without giving notice to C. or providing for the payment of the bill at C.'s house, and A. negotiated the bill, which upon becoming due was presented by the holder to C., who paid it under the supposition that the bill so presented was another bill of a different amount and date, drawn by B. on and accepted by himself, and did not discover his mistake until a fortnight afterwards, when the other bill was presented, and B. became bankrupt, it was held, that C. could not recover against A. in an action for money had and received (p). But it should seem, that if A. himself had received payment of the bill, he would have been liable, he having no authority to make the bill payable at C.'s house(q). And where a party, having by mistake paid a bill for the honour of a supposed indorser, but immediately afterwards discovered that the indorsement was forged, and gave notice thereof on the same day to the parties who received the money, it was held, that he might recover it back from him; and this, although the banker had cancelled the indorsements, such cancelling by mistake not having discharged the indorsers, and the party receiving the money being enabled by the prompt notice of non-payment, given to him on the same day, to give notice of the circumstances to such indorsers, and being, therefore, precisely in the same situation as if the bill had been refused payment on presentment(r).

The amount of some forged instruments, paid or received by mistake, appears in some cases to have been considered as recoverable back without regard to any inquiry whether the forgery was immediately discovered and communicated, as in the case of bank-notes, navy-bills, and victualling-bills. Thus where a forged navy-bill was discounted by A. for B., both being ignorant of the fraud, it was held, that the discounter might recover back the amount, because the supposed navy-bill was not such as it purported to be; and Gibbs, C. J. assimilated the case to that of a forged bank note, where a party is answerable that the instrument is that which it purports to be(s). So where a victualling bill was fraudulently altered and enlarged, and was [•428] paid by the Victualling Office, on whom it was drawn, before the *forgery was discovered, the court decided that the money was recoverable back(t).

Where bankers discounted for the defendants a bill which they did not indorse, and it turned out that the names of the drawer and acceptor were (p) Davis v. Wateon and another, 2 Nev. & Man. 709.

was in defendant's notary, who brought the bills to them as genuine, and thereby led them into the mistake; they corrected the mistake in time to prevent any party to the bills being discharged by want of notice, and before the situation of any of the parties could have been altered. The cancelling the indorsements being by mistake did not vacate them, the indorsers might still be sued; and if such cancellation caused damage or additional expence to any one, it might make plaintiffs liable to bear that damage, but that damage would not necessarily extend to the whole amount of the bills, and therefore there was no defence to the action." Postea to plaintiffs. See post, 430, 431. That a cancellution by mistake does not vitiate, see Fernandey v. Glynn, 1 Campb. 426, note; ante, 296, note (m); Novelli v. Rossi, 2 B. & Ad.

757; ante, 309, note (t).
(s) Jones v. Ryde, 5 Taunt. 488; 1 Marsh. 157, (Chit. j. 906); ante, 245, note (k)

(t) Bruce v. Bruce, 5 Taunt. 495; 1 Marsh. 165, (Chit. j. 908); recognized in Wilkinson v. Johnson, 3 Bar. & C. 428; 5 D & Ry. 403, (Chit. j. 1231).

⁽q) Id ibid. (r) Wilkinson, v. Johnson, 3 B. & C. 428; 5 D. & R. 403, (Chit. j. 1231). Three bills with an indorsement in the name of "A. Heywood, Sons, and Co." being dishonoured, the notary carried them to plaintiffs, the London bankers of A. Heywood, Sous, and Co. that they might take them up for the honour of A. Heywood, Sons, and Co., which they did immediately, at about 11, A. M. Plaintitis cancelled the name of every indorser subsequent to the name of A. Heywood, Sons, and Co. by running the pen through them as soon as they paid the bills. But plaintiffs very soon discovered that the indorsements were forged, and before 1, P. M. they gave notice to Smith and Co., defendant's agents, (by whom the notary had been employed and who had received the money,) and demanded the money back, and on non-payment sued defendants. Case and two arguments, and after time to consider, the Court held plaintiffs entitled to recover; "that they were not alone to blame; part of the fault

A'

ŗ

"

: 3 . 21-

ņ."

1.

_ 10

13

- [2

1.5

.,

×

*

ſ

11

1 30 ηţ

ø

forged, it was held, that the bankers might recover the amount from the defendants, although it appeared that they were bill-brokers, and acted only Payment. as agents, and had paid over the amount; because they delivered the instru- 9thly, of ment to the plaintiffs as a bill, whereas it turned out not to be a bill(u).

We have seen that if a check, which has the genuine signature of the of Paydrawer, be fraudulently altered to a larger sum, and the banker, by mistake, of Paypays it, he cannot debit his customer with the larger amount (x). But if a ments by bill or check be drawn in so careless and improper a manner, as thereby to &c. enable a third person to practise the fraud, then the customer, and not the banker, must bear the loss (y). And as it is the regular *and usual course [*429] of business in commercial transactions to deliver out a bill of exchange, left for acceptance, to any person who mentions the amount and describes any private mark or number upon it, if the clerk of the party leaving it by his conduct enables a stranger to discover the mark or number, in consequence (u) Fuller v. Smith, Ry. & Mood. 49; and 1 Car. & P. 197, (Chit. j. 1205); ante, 245, note (k).

(x) Anie, 261, 262; Hall v. Fuller, 5 Bar. & Cres. 750; 8 Dow. & Ry. 464, (Chit. j.

1294); and post, 480, note (m). (y) Young v. Grote, 4 Bing. 259; 12 Moore, 484, (Chit. j. 1844). A customer of a banker delivered to his wife certain printed checks signed by himself, but with blanks for the sums, requesting his wife to fill up the blanks according to the exigency of his business. She caused one to be filled up with the words " fifty pounds, two shillings," the fifty being commenced with a small letter, and placed in the middle of a line, the figures 50l. 2s. were also placed at a considerable distance from the printed £; in this state she delivered the check to her husband's clerk to receive the amount, whereupon he inserted, at the beginning of the line in which the word fifty was written, the words "three hundred and," and the figure 8 between the £ and the 50, and the bankers having paid the 8501. 2s. it was held that the loss must fall on the customer. And per Best, C. J. "Although I entertain no doubt on the subject, this is a case of considerable importance, and the question has been properly raised by the ar-bitrator. Undoubtedly a banker who pays a forged check is in general bound to pay the amount again to his customer, because, in the first instance, he pays without authority. this principle the two cases which have been cited were decided, because it is the duty of the banker to be acquainted with his customer's hand-writing, and the banker, not the customer, must suffer, if a payment be made without authority. But though that rule be perfectly well established, yet if it be the fault of the customer that the banker pays more than he ought, he cannot be called on to pay again. That principle has been well illustrated by Pothier, in commenting on the case put by Scacchia, 'Cependant si c'etait par la faute du tireur que le banquier eat ete induit en erreur, le tireur n'ayant pas eu le soin d'ecrire sa lettre de manier à prevenir les falsifications patues s'il avait ecrit en chiffres la somme tiree par la lettre et qu'on est ajoute zero, le tireur serait en ce cas tenu d'indemniser le banquier de ce qu'il a souffert de la sulsification de la lettre à laquelle le tireur par sa faute a donne lieu; et c'este a ce cas qu'on droit restreindre la decision de Scacchia.' In the the present case, was it not the fault of Young that Grote & Co. paid 3501. instead of 501.? Young leaves a blank check in the care of his wife. It is urged, indeed, that the business of merchants requires them to sign checks in blank, and leave them to be filled up by agents; if that be so, the person selected for the care of such a check ought at least to be a person conversant with business as well as trustworthy; but it was not likely that the drawer's wife should be acquainted with business, and she, acting as her husband's agent, ought not to have trusted to receive the contents of the check any person with whose character she was not perfectly acquainted. If Young, instead of leaving the check with a female, had left it with a man of business, he would have guarded against fraud in the mode of filling it up; he would have placed the word fifty at the beginning of the second line, and would have commenced it with a capital letter, so that it could not have had the appearance of following pro-perly after a preceding word; he would also have placed the figure 5 so near to the printed £ as to prevent the possibility of interpolation. It was by the neglect of these ordinary precautions that Grote and Co. were induced to pay. The case of Smith v. Mercer bears no resemblance to the present, but Chambre, J. grounded his judgment on the same principle as that on which we now proceed. In Hall r. Fuller the check was properly drawn by the plaintiff in the first instance, the words which he had written were expunged and supplied by others in a different hand-writing, and the alteration was made, not by the plaintiff's clerk or a person improperly trusted by him, but by an entire stranger, who accidentally became possessed of the check. If the banker had been discharged, in that case there could be none in which he would be liable. We decide here on the ground that the banker has been misled by want of proper caution on the part of his cus-tomer." And see Morrison r. Buchanan & C. & P. 18; S. P. next note.

r d

П

Payment.

9thly, Of the Effect of Payment, and of Payments by Mistake, &c.

of which the bill is delivered out to him, the party leaving it cannot maintain trover for the bill against the party who so delivered it out(z).

In France, it seems that if a drawee should, after paying a bill, discover that his own name was forged, or that he had originally accepted for a smaller sum, he cannot recover back any part from the holder(a); but that if any person pay a bill for the honour of the indorsers, he has a right afterwards to require the holder, whom he paid, to state the name and residence of at least his immediate indorser, and if that indorsement appear to be forged, the party so paying may recover back from the holder the money so paid to him(b).

Where A. paid a sum of money into his bankers for a specific purpose, and the bankers' clerk, by mistake, paid this money to B., for whom it was not intended, it was held, that A. could not maintain an action against B. to recover it back, but must sue the bankers, and they sue B.(c)(1). appears to have been considered, that if the holder of a check, immediately after the death of the drawer, and before the banker is apprised of it, receive the amount, he will not be liable to refund, though in general the death of a party is a countermand of a bare authority (d). Where bills of exchange drawn upon and accepted by the East India Company in favour of W. H., in India, were afterwards indorsed to D. and C., by a person assuming to act as an agent for W. H., under a supposed authority given by a power of attorney, which was seen and inspected by the acceptors; and D. and C. indorsed the bills to B. and Co. their bankers, in order that they might, as their agents, present them for payment when due; and B. and Co. put their names on the back of the bills, presented them for payment, and received the amount, which they soon after paid over to their principals; and it was afterwards discovered that the power of attorney was no authority for the agent to indorse the bills, and the authorised indorsee of W. H. recovered the amount against the East India Company, it was held, that as the Company paid the bills on the faith of the power of attorney, and not of the indorsement, they could not recover back the amount of defendants B. and Co., they also having paid over the money before notice of the facts(e).

We have already seen who must bear the loss in the case of a lost bill, If bankers pay a cancelled check, drawn by a customer, under circumstances which ought to have induced them to make inquiries before paying it, and which shew a want of bona fides in making the payment(g); [*430] for if they pay a check after notice from their *customer not to do so, they (z) Morrison v. Buchanan, 6 Car. & P. 18. II. Ch. IV. Defences and Pleas.

(a) 1 Pardess. 476.

(b) Id. 474, 475

(c) Rogers v. Kelly, 2 Campb. 123. (d) Tate v. Hilbert, 2 Ves. jun. 118, (Chit.

j. 510); ante, 282, note (y).

(e) East India Company v. Tritton, 3 B. & C. 280; 5 D. & R. 214, (Chit. j. 1216); ante, 28, note (m).

(f) Ante, 253, &c. The rule laid down ante, 257, viz. that to defeat the claim of the holder of a lost bill, &c. who has given value, a case of mala fides must be established, has since been recognized in the late case of Uther v. Rich, 2 Perry & Dav. 579, 585, post, Part

(g) See ante, 257, and last note; Scholey v. Ramsbottom, 2 Campb. 485, (Chit. j 807); et Pothier Traite du Contrat de Change, part 1, c. 4, s. 99, ct seq.

Scholey v. Ramsbottom, 2 Campb. 485, (Chit. j. 807). The defendants were bankers, with whom the plaintiff kept cash. an action to recover the balance of his account, and the only question was, whether they were entitled to take credit for a sum of 366l. On Wednesday, the 20th September, 1809, the plaintiff being indebted to Messrs. Miller and Co. drew a check in their favour, in the following form :-

⁽¹⁾ So where money remitted to pay one bill was applied to the payment of another bill, it was held that no action lay against the holder of the latter in favor of the party remitting the money, but he must look up to the other parties to rectify the mistake, if any was made. v. Murray, 9 John Rep. 171.

33

÷.

£.

II. Of

cannot take credit for the amount in their account. We have before noticed the effect of a delivery of a bill, &c. in payment(h).

It has been decided (i), that in an action for money had and received by 9thly, of the holder of a bill of exchange against a person who has received a sum of the Effect money from the acceptor to satisfy it, any defence may be set up which of Payment, and would have been available if the action had been brought against the accept- of Pay-In trover for bank-notes, to prove that they belonged to plain- ments by tiff, the evidence was, that they had been delivered out by a banker's clerk &c. (to what person he could not tell), in payment of a check which was payable to the plaintiff or bearer, and this was held to be prima facie evidence of property (k). If upon a bill becoming due, the party to it requests another to pay the amount out of a particular fund, and the latter agrees to comply with that request, in consequence of which the holder gives up the bill, he will be entitled to seek for payment out of the fund in pursuance of the agree- \mathbf{m} ent(l) .

With respect to payments by mistake of bills or notes where there has been forgery, the decisions and opinions have been contradictory. It seems however clear on principle as well as authority, that a drawee of a bill, or a banker acting for his customer, cannot, in case he pays a bill where the drawer's signature has been forged, or where the sum has been fraudulently enlarged, without the fault of the drawer, debit the drawer with the sum so paid without his authority, or recover the amount from him(m). But there are many conflicting decisions upon the question, whether the party paying shall be allowed to recover back the money from the person to whom he has inadvertently paid. It has been contended, that if the party paid was a bond fide holder, ignorant of the forgery, then he ought not to be obliged to refund under any circumstances, although he could not have enforced payment, and although he had immediate notice of the forgery, because the drawee was bound to know the hand-writing of the drawer and the genuineness of the bill(n), and because the holder being ignorant of the forgery, ought to have the benefit of the accident of such payment *by mistake, and not [*431] to be compelled to refund (a) W But on the other hand it may be observed, that "London, Sept. 20, 1809.

"Messrs Ramsbottom, Newman, Ramsbottom and Co. pay Mesers. Miller and Co. or bearer, three hundred and sixty-six pounds. "ROBERT SCHOLEY."

But finding that the sum was incorrect, he tore the check into four pieces, which he threw from him, and drew another in the same form for 360l. The latter was presented for payment, and paid by the defendants the same day. On Monday, the 25th of September, the first check was likewise presented for payment by a person unknown. The four pieces into which it had been torn were then neatly pasted together upon another slip of paper, but the rents were quite visible, and the face of the check was soiled and dirty. The defendant's clerk paid it, however, without making any inquiries. Lord Ellenborough was of opinion, that under these circumstances, bankers were not justified in paying the check, and the jury found a verdict for the plaintiff for 3661.

(h) Ante, 172. (i) Redshaw v. Jackson, 1 Campb. 362, (Chit. j. 751).

(k) Richard v. Carr, 1 Campb. 551.

(1) Yates v. Groves, 1 Ves. jun. 280. (m) Hall v. Fuller, 5 Bar. & Cres. 750; 8 Dowl. & Ry. 464, (Chit. j. 1294); ante, 262, note (x). Plaintiff lent Wagstaffe a check on his bankers for 31. Wagstaffe altered the 81. into 2001 and defendants paid it. They insisted on charging plaintiff with 2001. and on a special case it was objected, that plaintiff ought not to have drawn for so small an amount as 31., and that as the forgery could not have been detected by ordinary observation, therefore the payment ought to be allowed. But the Court said, that it did not appear defendants had ever prohibited plaintiff from drawing for so low a sum, and hard as the case might be, defendants had authority to charge against plaintiff such sums only as plaintiff had ordered him to pay, and here plaintiff had only ordered him to pay 81., so plaintiff recovered.(n) See the opinions of Dallas and Heath, Justices, in Smith v. Mercer, 6 Taunt. 76; 1 Marsh. 453, (Chit. j. 923); ante, 261, n. (u), and post, 431, note (r).

(o) Id. ibid.; and Price v. Neale, 3 Burr.
1355; 1 Bla. R. 390, (Chit. j. 364, 365).

Digitized by Google

J

þ

II. Of 9thly, Of the Effect of Payment, and of Payments by Mistake. & c.

the holder who obtained payment cannot be considered as having altogether shewn sufficient circumspection; he might, before he discounted or received the instrument in payment, have made more inquiries as to the signatures and genuineness of the instrument, even of the drawer or indorsers themselves; and if he thought fit to rely on the bare representation of the party from whom he took it, there is no reason that he should profit by the accidental payment, when the loss had already attached upon himself, and why he should be allowed to retain the money, when, by an immediate notice of the forgery, he is enabled to proceed against all other parties precisely the same as if the payment had not been made, and, consequently, the payment to him has not in the least altered his situation, or occasioned any delay or prejudice. It seems, that of late, upon questions of this nature, these latter considerations have influenced the court in determining, whether or not the money shall be recoverable back; and it will be found, on examining the older cases, that there were facts affording a distinction, and that upon attempting to reconcile them they are not so contradictory as might, on first view, have been supposed (p).

It has been decided that a drawee, who had accepted and afterwards paid a bill, and who had waited a considerable time after discovering that the drawer's name was forged, could not recover back the amount, for there, by his acceptance, he gave credit to the bill, and thereby induced the plaintiff to take it, and he also delayed giving notice of the forgery (q). So, in another case, where bankers paid a forged acceptance, supposed to have been made by their customer, and payable at their bank, but did not discover or give notice of the forgery to the party they had paid for a week afterwards, it was held, that such delay precluded them from recovering back the amount, because thereby the means of resorting, with affect, to the prior parties, was prejudiced if not defeated (r); but the court were not unanimous in that decision, Chambre, J. being of opinion that the case came within the general [*432] *rule, of money paid under a mistake of facts, being recoverable back, and that, therefore, the defendant was liable to refund; and Dallas and Heath,

Two forged bills were drawn upon the plaintiff, which he accepted and paid. On discovering the forgery, he brought this action for money had and received, to recover back the money; but on a case reserved, the court held, that it would not lie; and Lord Mansfield said, it was incumbent on him to have been satisfied, before he accepted or paid them, that the bills were in the drawer's hand. And in Smith v. Chester, 1 T. R. 655, (Chit. j. 439), Buller, J. says, when a bill is presented for acceptance, the acceptor looks to the handwriting of the drawer, which he is afterwards procluded from disputing, and it is on that account that he is liable, even though the bill is forged.

(p) See the cases, ante, 426, 427. (q) Price v. Neale, 3 Burr. 1355; 1 Bla. R.

890, (Chit. j. 364, 365); ante, 430, note (o).
(r) Smith v. Mercer, 6 Taunt. 76; 1 Marsh. 453, (Chit. j. 923). A bill of exchange, with a forged acceptance, purporting to be payable at the house of A. and Co. bankers, in London, with whom the supposed acceptor keeps cash, is indorsed to B. for a valuable consideration; B. indorses it to his agent in London, who presents it on the 23d of April, at the kouse of A.

and Co for payment: A. and Co. pay it, and after keeping it until the 30th of April, send it to the supposed acceptor, who disavows it; A. and Co. thereupon immediately afterwards give notice of the forgery to B., and demand repayment, which B. refuses; all parties are ignorant of the fraud: held, that A. and Co. by paying the bill, without ascertaining that the acceptance was genuine, and delaying to give notice for a week, were precluded from recov-ering the amount from B., for it is a general principle that the acceptor is bound to know the hand-writing of the drawer; and therefore, it is more by his fault or negligence than by mistake if he pays on a forged signature. Chambre, 9. dissentiente. N. B. In Wilkinson v. Johnson, 3 Bar. & C. 437; 5 Dow. & Ry. 403, (Chit. j. 1231), Abbott, C. J. said, "It is not easy to reconcile the opinions of some of the judges in this case of Smith v. Mercer, with v. Bruce, t Marsh. 165; 5 Taunt. 495, (Chit. j. 908)." But note, Gibbs, C. J. decided But note, Gibbs, C. J. decided Smith v. Mercer principally on the delay of a week in giving notice, which reconciles that case with the recent decisions.

ht,

.!!

4-4-4

. 738

. 2 18

110 . . :: J Y

1.4 7 ្តវន 1. 7 5, 11 主流 , 130

Justices, thinking otherwise, on the ground that it was the plaintiff's duty to know their customer's hand before they paid the bill; and Gibbs, C. J. be- Payment. ing the only judge who put the case on its true ground, viz. the plaintiff's delay in giving notice of the forgery, and having thereby destroyed the defendant's remedy over.

62

*CHAPTER X.

OF NON-PAYMENT:—NECESSARY PROCEEDINGS THEREON, AND OF PAYMENT SUPRA PROTEST.

433

ib. 455

466

I.	OF Non-PAYMENT, AND NECES-
	SARY PROCEEDINGS THEREON
	1. When Notice of Non-payment necessary or not; Consequences of Omission; and what excuses such Omission
	2. When Protest as well as Notice ne-

3. When a mere Notice suffices, and how given

4. Time of making Protest and giving
Notice	475
5. By whom to be given	493
6. To whom	496
7. Liability of Parties thereupon	499
8. How Consequences of Laches waired	ib.
9. Liability of Agents for Neglect to give Notice	507
10. Of Retraite Bills	ib.
II OF PAYMENT SUPRA PROTEST	508

Œ

da io

d ŗ,

N

Ľ

ċ١

I. Of Nonpayment, and neces sary Proceedings thereon.

I. OF Non-payment, and necessary Proceedings thereon.

Conduct of Holder in eneral on Non-payment.

In general, if on presentment for payment, the drawee of the bill or maker of a note refuse to pay the amount, it is incumbent on the holder, if it be a foreign bill, to protest for non-payment, and whether it be foreign or inland, or a promissory note, the holder must in general give notice of the non-payment by the drawee or maker to all the other parties against whom he means to proceed, or they will be discharged from their respective liabilities(a)(1). The conduct which the holder should pursue on non-payment is very similar to that which should be adopted on non-acceptance, which we have previously considered(b); but it will be advisable here to arrange all the law on the subject under the above subdivisions, even at the risk of repetition, but omitting any detail of the decisions and rules more peculiarly applicable to cases of non-acceptance.

(a) Smith v. Wilson, Andrew's Reports, 187, R. 239, (Chit. j. 506). (Chit. j. 285, 286); Rogers v. Stephens, 2 T. (b) Ante, 325 to 343. R. 718, (Chit. j. 446); Gale v. Walsh, 5 T.

Where in a notice of non-payment dated on the day that a draft falls due, it is stated that the where in a notice of non-payment acted on the day that a draft fails due, it is stated that the draft was protested on the evening before, for non-payment, and that the holders look to the indorser for payment, it is right and proper to submit the question to a jury, whether or not the defendant has been misled. Ontario Bank v. Betrie, 3 Wend. Rep. 456.

A notice of protest to an indorser that the note of A. B. indorsed by him is protested for non-payment, is sufficient to put him on inquiry, although the amount of the note is erroneously stational in the sufficient to be the sufficient to be a are satisfied that the indorser was not misled by the notice, they are authorized to find a verdict against him. Bank of Rochester v. Gould, 9 Wend. Rep. 279.

And see Bank of Alexandria v. Swann, 9 Peters, 38; Mills v. The Bank of the U. S., 11 Wheat. 431.

Where a note is indorsed, however, upon which nothing is due, it is a fraud, and notice is not necessary to subject the indorser. Bissell v. Bozman, 2 Dev. Eq. Rep. 162.

⁽¹⁾ If there be a slight mistake in the description of the note or bill it will not vitiate the notice, if the party would not be led into an error by it. As if in case of a note payable at a bank, where the indorser had no other note but the one described, the time when it became due should be wrongly stated. Smith v. Whiting, 12 Mass. Rep. 6; or the sum should be mistaken. Reed v. Seizas, 2 John. Cas. 337.

3

10

24.

λ

The general rule is, that in case a bill, check, or note, be not paid on the I. Of Nonday it has been duly presented for payment, notice must be duly given or payment, forwarded in the manner and within the time presently stated, to the draw-and neces-sary Proer and indorsers of the bill or check, and to the indorsers of the promisso- ceedings ry note, or the parties to whom notice has not been so given will be dis-thereon. charged from liability, not only to pay the instrument itself, but also the debt 1st, When or transaction in respect of which he became a party to it(c). Thus, the Notice of neglect to give notice to the drawer of a *renewed bill, not only discharges Non-payhim from liability to pay that bill, but also discharges him from liability to mention pay the prior bill, to satisfy which it was drawn(d); and this, although it be not; Conexpressly agreed that the taking such second bill shall not exonerate any of sequences expressly agreed that the taking such second bill shall not exonerate any of of Omisthe parties to the first bill until actual payment (e). And if one of the parties, sion; and even in blameless ignorance of the laches of the holder, should pay him or what exany other party the amount of the bill, the person so paying will not be able cuses such to recover from the drawer or indorser or other party who had been so pre-viously discharged; so that no indorser can safely pay a bill without first ascertaining whether or not due notice of non-acceptance or non-payment has been given (f).

Even an express verbal agreement between all the parties to a bill or note, that it shall not be put in suit till certain estates have been sold, although it mislead and induce the holder not to give regular notice of non-payment when the bill or note falls due, constitutes no excuse for such neglect; because, in point of law, no such parol agreement is available to the party as a defence to an immediate action; and as it is inoperative for one purpose it ought not to have any effect, and therefore, notwithstanding it, notice should be given(g). And although there are some exceptions excusing the omission to give notice, yet they are so qualified, that it is very imprudent in any case to rely on them, and every cautious holder should, immediately after he has received notice of the dishonour of a bill or note, give a separate and distinct notice thereof, not only to his immediate indorser, but to every

(c) Smith v. Wilson, Andr. Rep. 187, (Ch. j. 285, 286); Rogers v. Stephens, 2 T. R. 713, (Chit. j. 446); Gale v. Walsh, 5 T. R. 239, (Chit. j. 506); Bridges v. Berry, 3 Taunt. 130, (Chit. j. 804); 3 Maule & S. 362; Rucker v. Hiller, 16 East, 43; 3 Campb. 217, (Chit. j. 861)

In Bridges v. Berry the defendant was accepttor of a prior bill, and after it was dishonoured he drew and indorsed a larger bill, on a third person, in payment, and delivered it to plaintiffs, who paid him the difference, and which bill was dishonoured, but no notice thereof given to defendants. Action on beth bills, and Mansfield, C. J. held, that by such laches defendant was discharged from liability to pay either of the bills.

It is not, however the practice among respectable houses to take advantage of a slight omission or irregularity in giving notice of dis-honour, except where an actual loss or injury has arisen from the neglect.

(d) Sec cases, ante, 433, note (c).

(e) Reid v. Coats, 6 Bro. P. C. 21st Feb. 1794. Where on a bill of exchange being dishonoured and protested, a fresh bill was received by the holder (accepted by new parties) as an additional security; held, that the holder was bound to use due diligence to obtain payment of this latter bill, and that in a case of gross neglect in so doing, he shall not recover against the acceptor or indorsers of the first bill, though the acceptors of the second bill become bankrupt, and though in the receipt given for such second bill, it is expressly stated to be agreed " that such bill was in no respect to exonerate the acceptors of the first bill, or any of the parties thereby bound, until actual payment thereof made.

(f) Roscoe v. Hardy, 12 East, 434; 2 Campb. 458, (Chit. j. 801); ante, 215, n. (x), see also ante, 391, n. (s), 426, n. (m). And yet it has been held, that if, after presentment for acceptance and refusal, and neglect of the holder to give due notice of such dishonour, the bolder indorse the bill to a new party before it becomes due, he, if ignorant of such laches, may recover on the bill. O'Keefe v. Dunn, 6 Taunt. 805; 1 Marsh. 613; 5 Maule & S. 282, (Chit. j. 937); ante, 214, note (r), affirmed on error. This distinction proceeds on the impracticability of ascertaining, in some cases, whether or not, and at what time, a bill has been refused acceptance, whereas every person can in general ascertain whether there have been laches as to non-payment.

(g) Free v. Hawkins, Holt, C. N. P. 550; 9 Taunt. 92; 1 Moore, 28, 535, (Chit. j. 1000); and see Gunson v. Metz, 2 Dowl. & R. 334; 1 Bar. & C. 193, (Chit. j. 1168).

1

ĺ

5

١

and necessary Proceedings thereon.

Notice of Non-payment necessary or not; Consequences of Omission; and what excuses such Omission.

in general necessary. [*435]

I. Of Non- other party to the instrument, whether by indorsement or transfer by mere delivery or by guarantee, or otherwise responsible for the payment; for although the want of effects may in some cases excuse the neglect, or a notice from any party to a bill may enure to the use of the holder, yet these are mere accidents in his favour on which no prudent person should rely. We 1st, When will now proceed to consider the exceptions to the general rule requiring notice, and their qualifications.

We have seen, that if the bill or note were given on a wrong stamp, the neglect to present it for payment, or togive notice of the refusal, will not prejudice(h). And if a bill or note be so framed as to afford the indorser no remedy over against the drawer or maker, as if it be not made payable to order, and consequently not negotiable, the want of notice of dishonour will not preclude any indorsee from suing his immediate indorsers for the original consideration of the bill or note(i). *And where a bill has been previously re-When not fused acceptance, and due notice thereof given, it has been considered unnecessary to give notice of the subsequent refusal to pay, because a right of action against the drawer and indorsers had previously been complete on their receiving notice of non-acceptance (k)(1). So, if the holder has given due notice of non-payment, but intimated that he expects the bill will be paid at the end of the week, and that he will keep it that time without incurring expense unless he hears from the defendant to the contrary, he need not give a further notice of the non-payment at the end of the time unless he engaged to do so, and actual damage be sustained (l). So, if a bill were given only as a collateral security, and the party causing it to be made or delivered to the holder were no party to it, it will be seen that he will not be discharged from his original liability to pay the prior debt, unless he has been actually prejudiced by the want of notice(m). And as no laches are imputable to the Crown, if a bill be seized under an extent before it is due, the neglect of the officer of the Crown to give notice of the dishonour, will not discharge the drawer or indorsers (n). And where persons who are bankers, as well for the acceptor as for the drawer, receive a bill from the drawer, and give credit for it in account between them, and before it becomes due receive directions from the acceptor to stop the payment of it at their bank, where it is by the acceptance made payable, and they do so accordingly, it suffices for them to give to the drawer general notice of non-payment, and > (h) Anie, 124, 125; Wilson v. Vysar, 4 Taunt. 288, (Chit. j. 860); Cundy v. Marriot, 1 Bar. & Adol. 696, (Chit. j. 1522).

> (i) Plimley v. Westley, 2 Scott, 428; S. C.

> 2 Bing. N. C. 249; 1 Hodges, 324, S. C. See ante, 177; see also ante, 242, note (i), that in such case the indorser cannot be sued as the drawer of a new bill.

> (k) Price v. Dardell, Sittings at Guildhall, London, 11th December, 1794, cor. Lord Ken-yon, His lordship said, "It is in no case necessary to give notice when it is a second dishon-our;" and in De la Torre v. Barclay and another, 1 Stark. C. N. P. 7, (Chit. j. 905), Lord Ellenborough said, "That as the bill had been protested for non-acceptance, a second protest was perfectly gratuitous and unnecessary. See also Forster v. Jurdison, 16 East, 105, (Ch. j. 862); and see Hickling v. Hardy, 7 Taunt. 312; 1 Moore, 61, (Chit. j. 983); ante, 259, note (p)

(1) Forster v. Jurdison East, 105, (Chit. j. 862).

(m) See post, 441 to 443.

(n) West on Extents, 28, 29.

⁽¹⁾ Williams v. Robinson, 18 Louis. Rep. 419; Jordan v. Bell, 8 Port, 53. So where one draws a bill on himself and accepts it, and is afterwards sued as drawer, in default of payment. Smith v. Paul, 8 Port. 503. So where the drawer agreed with the payee that in case of non-payment by the drawer, the payee should wait until a certain day, when the drawer would pay the bill, notice was held not to be necessary till such day, and if the drawer died before such day, no notice was necessary to his executors. Long v. Moore, 2 Brev. 172. }

PART L

31.38

i, Ţ.

38.3

1.40

3.3

, : #A

. .

1,3

14.2

, (R

1 , 110

j k

X X

. 12

75

, Ř

10

30727

124

4.5

70.

Led

. .

C ø

39

they need not give any notice to the drawer of the private directions, which I. Of Nonare confidential(o).

The reason why the law in general requires the holder to give prompt no- sary Protice of non-payment by the drawee of a bill or maker of a note is, that the coolings drawer of a bill and indorser of the note may, by such notice, be enabled thereon. forthwith to withdraw his effects from the hands of the drawee or maker, or Why the to stop those which were about to be delivered to him, and to suspend any Lawingefurther credit, and that the drawer and indorsers respectively take the necessary prompt measures against all parties liable to them to obtain and enforce Detriment payment; and if such prompt notice be delayed, it is a presumption of law to Indonsthat the drawer and indorsers have been prejudiced(p). Such damage is ers, &c. always in this country presumed (q), and almost the only allowed proof of ∞ , &c. the negative is that of the entire want of effects in the hands of the drawee continually, from the time of drawing the bill until and after the day it fell due, and this under such circumstances as to establish that the drawer had no right to expect the drawee, or any other person, to accept or pay, and that the notice of non-payment would have been of no use to the drawer, because he could not have sued the drawee, or any other person, on account of his neglect to pay; nor will any other *proof, however clear, that the drawee [*436] had not, in fact, been prejudiced by the want of notice, be admitted (r). And it is always presumed, until the contrary has been proved, that the drawer of a bill had effects in the hands of the drawee, or had a right to draw upon him for the amount, and that the indorser or assignor had given value for it, and that each has been prejudiced by the holders neglect to give due notice, by the delay in the opportunity of resorting to the prior parties liable to them respectively(s); for if due notice had been given to them, they might, by instant solicitation and pressure, perhaps have obtained payment or security from the drawee, and a day or even an hour's delay, in mercantile affairs, will frequently occasion a total non-payment, when, by a prompt notice, payment might have been obtained(t). This presumption of damage or prejudice having arisen from the laches of the holder, is so strong and uniform, that it is only allowed to be rebutted by one description of proof, viz. that the party who objects to the want of notice had no effects in the hands of the drawee, and that the bill was for his accommodation, and consequently that he had no right to draw, and that the notice of non-payment would have been of no avail to him; and in no other case is evidence admissible to shew that in truth the drawer or indorser was not prejudiced by and neces-

(o) Crosse v. Smith, 1 Maule & S. 454,

(Chit. j. 886).
(p) Whitfield v. Savage, 2 Bos. & Pul. 280, (Chit. j. 630); Orr v. Magennis, 7 East, 862; 2 Smith, 328, (Chit. j. 726); Claridge v. Dalton, 4 Maule & S. 226, (Chit. j. 934); Long v. Scott, 8 Bar. & Ald. 621.

(q) Id. ibid. In France it seems that the drawer is sometimes required to prove affirmatively that he had effects in hands of drawee. 1 Pardess. 458.

(r) Per Abbott, C. J. Hill v. Heap, Dow. & Ry. N. P. C. 59; Dennis v. Morrice, 3 Esp. Rep. 158, (Chit. j. 626). In an action on a bill brought by an indorsee against the drawer, it appeared that no notice had been given to the defendant of non-payment by the acceptor, to excuse which, the plaintiff offered to prove that in fact the defendant had not been prejudiced by the want of such notice. But Lord Kenyon said, "The only case in which notice is dispensed with is, where the drawer has no effects in the hands of the drawee. would be extending the rule still further than ever has been done, and opening new sources of litigation, in investigating whether, in fact, the drawer did receive a prejudice from the want of notice or not." He rejected the evidence, and nonsuited the plaintiff. Sed vide Pothier Traite du Contrat de Change, part I., chap. 5, num. 157, 158. It was formerly held, that a neglect to give notice did not furnish a defence, unless the defendant could prove that he was actually prejudiced thereby, Meggadon v. Holt, 12 Mod. 15; 1 Show. 317, (Chit. j. 182).

(s) Per Buller, J. in Bickerdike v. Bollman,

1 T. R. 406, 409, (Chit. j. 435).

(t) Russell v. Langstaffe, Dougl. 497, 515, (Chit. j. 415); and Esdaile v. Sowerby, 11 East, 114, (Chit. j. 767).

sary Proceedings thereon.

I. Of Non- the neglect (u). And although the holder may be certain that he can prove that the drawer had no effects in the hands of the drawee, yet, as there are so frequently exceptions even to that circumstance constituting any excuse, it would be most imprudent in any such case to omit giving a proper no-

Want of effects.

But if the bill was accepted for the accommodation of the drawer, and he when it ex- expressly or impliedly engaged to pay it(x), or if the drawer of a bill, from cuses No- the time of making it to the time when it was due, had no effects or property whatever in the hands of the drawee or acceptor, and had no right upon any other ground to expect that the bill would be paid by him, or anyother party to the bill, he is prim? facie not entitled to notice of the dishonour of the [*437] bill(y)(1); nor can be object, in *such case, that a foreign bill has not been > (u) Dennis v. Morrice, 3 Esp. Rep. 158, (Chit. j. 626), supra, note (r); Bayl. 5th edit. $02.

> (x) Sharp v. Bailey, 9 Bar. & C. 44; 4 Man. & Ry. 18, (Chit. j. 1416); and cases in the next note.

> next note.
>
> (y) Sharp v. Bailey, 9 B. & C. 44; 4 Man. & Ry. 18, (Chit. j. 1416); Cory r. Scott, 3 Bar. & Ald. 619, (Chit. j. 1081); Claridge v. Dalton, 4 Maule & S. 229. (Chit. j. 934); Legge v. Thorpe, 2 Campb. 310; 12 East, 171, (Chit. j. 783); Terry v. Parker, 6 Ad. & El. 502; 1 N. & P. 752, S. C.; ante, 390, note (e). where the rule, principle, and inconveniences are stated; and see Walwyn v. St. Quintin, 1 B. & P. 654, 655, (Chit. j. 578); Clegg r. Cotton, 8 B. & P. 241, 242, (Chit. j. 657); Gale v. Walsh, 5 T. R. 239, (Chit. j. 506); Poth. pl. 157; Bickerdike r. Bollman, 1 T. R. 105; Goodall v. Dolley, 1 T. R. 712, (Chit. j. 440); Rogers v. Stephens, 2 T. R. 713, (Chit. j. 446); Nicholson v. Gouthit, 2 Hen. Bla. 610, (Chit. j. 556); Staples v. Okines, 1 Esp. Rep. 833, (Chit. j. 544); Wilkes v. Jacks, Peake's C. N. P. 202. The progress of the cases on this subject is also stated in Brown v. Maffey, 15 East, 216. See also as to the French law, Pothier, pl. 157, 158; and the reasoning Pailliet Man. de Droit Français, 842.

Bickerdike, assignee, v. Bollman, 1 T. R. 405, (Chit. j. 435). The only question upon a case reserved was, whether the bill the bankrupt had drawn in favour of the petitioning creditor, upon a man, who then, and from that time till the bill became due, was one of the bankrupt's creditors, had discharged so much of the petitioning creditor's debts, no notice having been given of its dishonour to the bankrupt; and the court, after argument, were of opinion it had not, because the reason why notice is in general necessary is, that the drawer may, without delay, withdraw his effects from the drawee, and that no injury may happen to him from want of notice; but where the drawer has no effects in the hands of the drawee, he cannot be injured, and is not entitled to any notice. In Brown v. Maffey, 15 East, 221, Lord Ellenborough, C. J. observed, "that the doctrine of dispensing with notice of the dishonour of a bill, had grown almost entirely out of this case, and that though there might have been previous decisions to the same effect at nisi prius, yet none had been brought in revision before the court till this case; that decision dispensed with notice to the drawer, where he knew before-hand he had no effects in the hands of the drawce, and had no reason to expect that the bill would be paid when it became Goodall v. Dolley, 1 T. R. 712, (Chit. j. 440). In this case, upon the application for a new trial, the plaintiff's counsel offered an affidavit that the drawer had no effects in the hands of the drawee; but the court thought that made no difference, the action being brought against the payee; but by Buller, J. "Had the action been against the drawer, I should have been willing to let in the affidavit; tha

(1) A party who draws a check on a bank without funds in the bank to meet it, is not entitled to notice of non-payment nor is he discharged by the holder's not presenting it in due time. Eichelberger v. Finley, 8 Har. & Johns. 381.

drawer is entitled to notice. Dickins v. Beal, 10 Peters, 572: Hopkirk v. Paige, 2 Brock. 20.
But unless he draws under some such circumstances, his drawing without funds, property, or authority, puts the transaction out of the pale of commercial usage and law. Ibid. See also Bloodgood v. Hawthorn, 9 Curry's Louis. 124. }

An established exception to the general rule that notice of the dishonor of a bill must be given to the drawer, is where he has no funds in the bands of the drawee; but of this exception there are some modifications: If the drawer has made, or is making a consignment to the draw-ee, and draws before the consignment comes to hand: if the goods are in transitu, but the bill of lading is omitted to be sent to the consignee, or the goods were lost: if the drawer has any funds or property in the hands of the drawee, or there is a fluctuating balance between them: or a reasonable expectation that the bill would be paid: or if the drawer has been in the habit of accepting the bills of the drawer, without regard to the state of their accounts, this would be deemed equivalent to effects: or if there was a running account between them: in all these cases the

m::

1 1.

1111

ېلىرد .

101 . 1

. ,

م ماران ماران

i jy Tri

· 101-

1,3

. ; 411

- 11 ¥

~;#d

ط رس er 35 ليق إ

, Mi

.~ve

. 44

: :#

ı M

: ()

re 😾

1

ابيرا

j.JK

2.

N

k

In this case, the drawer, being himself the real debtor, ac- I. Of Nonpresented (z). quires no right of action against the acceptor by paying the bill, and suffers payment, no injury from want of notice of non-acceptance or non-payment, and there-sary Profore the laches of the holder afford him no defence(a). So where the draw- coodings er had supplied the drawee with goods on credit, which did not elapse until thereon. after the bill would fall due, and the drawer had no right to draw the bill, it 1st, When was held, that he was not discharged by want of notice of non-payment(b). Notice of And in America, this doctrine has been on the same principle extended to ment necases where the transaction between the drawer and drawee has been illegal, cessary or and which consequently he could not have enforced against the drawee(c). not; Con-We have seen that if the drawer of a bill make it payable at his own house, of Oznisthe jury may fairly infer that it was accepted for his accommodation, and sion; and consequently that it was not necessary to give him notice of non-payment; what exfor why did he, the drawer, make the bill payable at his own house, unless or Omission. he was to provide for the payment of it when it was due(d)?

But it is no excuse for not giving notice to the indorser of a bill, that the acceptor had no effects of the drawer(e). And although no consideration has passed between the payee and drawer of a bill of *exchange, it is not to [*438] be considered an accommodation bill as to the latter, if there was a valuable consideration as between the payee and the acceptor (f). So where a person, without consideration, but without fraud, and at the request of another person, indorsed a bill, the drawer and acceptor of which proved to be fictitious, it was held, that he was entitled to due notice of the dishonour(g).

would be like the case of Bickerdike v. Bollman. If the drawer has no effects in the hands of the drawee, he cannot be injured by want of Legge v. Thorpe, 12 East, 171; 2 Campb. 810, (Chit. j. 783), was a case of non-acceptance, in which the same sule was laid down, see the case, ante, 327, note (r).

(z) Legge r. Thorpe, 2 Campb. 310; 12
East, 171, S. C.; ante, 327, note (r).

(a) Per Chambre, J. in Leach v. Hewitt, 4 Taunt. 783, (Chit. j. 881); 1 Pardess. 458,

(b) Claridge v. Dalton, 4 Maule & S. 226,

(Chit. j. 984); post, 446, note (u), et seq.
(c) In Copp v. M'Dougall, 9 Mass. R. 1; Bayl. Amer. edit. 204, where Sewell, J. in giving the opinion of the court to the above effect, compared this to the case of a bill where the drawer had no funds in the hands of the drawee, and said, "when the promise or acceptance is void, as is the case of usury between the drawer and acceptor, if he will resort to that defence sgainst his promise, the contract becomes, as it respects the indorser, a draft accepted without funds, that is, in the case of a promissory note.'

(d) Sharp r. Bailey, 9 Bar. & Cres. 44; 7 Law J. 138, K. B.; 4 M. & Ry. 4, (Chit. j.

1416); ante, 158, note (f).
(e) Wilks v. Jacks, Peake R. 202. The French law is the same. 1 Pardess. 459. In an action against inderser of a bill, drawn by Vaughan on Eustace and Holland, it appeared that notice had not been given to defendant, upon which plaintiff offered to show that Vaughan had no effects in the hands of Eustace and Holland. Sed per Lord Kenyon, C. J. "That circumstance will not avail the plaintiff, the rule extends only to actions brought against the drawer; the indorser is in all cases entitled to notice, for he has no concern with the accounts between the drawer and the drawee." The plaintiff then proved a letter from the defendant, acknowledging the debt, and promising to pay, and upon that he had a verdict.

(f) Scott r. Lifford, 1 Campb. 246; 9 East, 847, (Chit. j. 747, 749). Payee against drauer; the defence was, that the bill was drawn without consideration, and that the plaintiffs had received satisfaction. Agar having an acceptance due to the plaintiffs, requested it to be renewed, to which they consented, provided the defendant would draw a bill upon Agar fer the amount, which he was to accept, and which was accordingly done. Agar also lodged policies of insurance to a large amount with the plaintiffs, by way of collateral security, upon which a certain per centage had since been awarded due upon them. Lord Ellenborough held, that the bill was not an accommodation bill, there having been a consideration between the payers and acceptor, and that if it had been proved that the plaintiffs had received any thing upon the policies, that would pro tanto be satisfaction, that the plaintiffs were entitled to recover the whole sum mentioned in the bill, and must deliver up the policies or refund the money received under them.

(g) Leach v. Hewitt, 4 Taunt. 731, (Chit. j. S81). Action against indorser of a bill, purporting to be drawn by Rogers, Crooke, and Co., and dated from the Northampton Bank, and purporting to be accepted by Rogers and Co., Lombard Street, in favour of defendant. It appeared that defendant had indored the bill at the request of one Cuttle, and that it had come to the hands of the plaintiff for a velocide I. Of Nonpayment. and neces sary Proceedings thereon.

Notice of Non-payment necessary or not; Consequences of Omission; and what excuses such Omission.

[*439]

It was decided in one case, that where a bill has been drawn for the accommodation of the payee, and the drawer had no effects in the hands of the drawee, though the payee had, such drawer is not entitled to notice of nonpayment(h)(1); but that decision was doubted and finally over-ruled; and whenever a party to a bill is entitled to his remedy over against another par-1st, When ty, either on the bill or otherwise, as he may be prejudiced by the delay in giving him notice of the dishonour, he is entitled to due notice thereof(i). It has, therefore, been held, that the drawer of a dishonoured bill is entitled to the notice of the dishonour, although he knew that the bill would not be paid by the acceptor, provided he had any reason or right to expect that it would be paid by any other person, or provided he have any remedy over against such persons(k). And where a bill was drawn by A. upon B. for the accommodation of C., who indorsed it for value to D., and neither A. nor C. had any effects in the hands of B., and the bill was dishonoured by B., it was held, that the drawer was nevertheless entitled to notice(l).

> *It has been holden, that if the payer of a note lend his name, and indorse it merely to give it credit, and to enable the maker to raise money upon it, and knows at the time that the maker is insolvent, this is not a fair transaction, and he therefore is not entitled to notice, and it is no defence for him, that the note was not properly presented for payment(m). But as the payee consideration. When the bill became due, no such persons as Rogers and Co. were to be found in Lombard Street, nor the drawers at Northampton. After four days, the plaintiff found the defendant, who lived in Clerkenwell. The defence was, that he had not had due notice of the dishonour of the bill. There was no evidence that the defendant was party to the fraud. Mansfield, C. J. directed the jury, that if the conduct of the defendant was not fraudulent he was entitled to notice, and the jury finding that the defendant was not privy to the fraud, the plaintiff was nonsuited; and upon a rule to set aside the nonsuit, and for a new trial, the court held, that the defendant was entitled to notice, and discharged the rule.

(h) Walwyn v. St. Quintin, 1 B. & P. 652; 2 Esp. Rep. 515, (Chit. j. 578). In an action by the indorser against the drawer of a bill, it appeared to have been drawn to accommodate the payee, who had placed securities, on which he wished to raise money, in the hands of the acceptor; the defendant had no effects in the hands of the drawee, and no notice having been given to him of the dishonour of the bill, the question was, whether that were made necessary by the payee's having effects in the hands of the drawee. Eyre, C. J. directed a verdict for the defendant, with liberty for the plaintiff to move to enter a verdict for him. After a rule nisi accordingly, and cause shewn, the court held that the defendant was not enti-But the plaintiff recovered on tled to notice. another ground.

(i) See Norton v. Pickering, 8 Bar. & C. 610; 3 Man. & Ry. 23; Dans. & Ll. 210, (Chit. j. 1411); Cory v. Scott, 3 Bar. & Ald. 619, (Chit. j. 1081); Rucker v. Hiller, 16 East, 3; 8 Campb. 217, (Chit. j. 861); post, 446, note (1); Laffitte v. Slatter, 6 Bing. 623; 4 Moore & P. 457, (Chit. j. 1502); Smith v. Beckett, 18 East, 187, (Chit. j. 816); post, 439, note (n); and Brown v. Maffey, 15 East, 187, (Chit. j. 816); post, 439, note (n); and Brown v. Maffey, 15 East, 187, (Chit. j. 816); post, 439, note (n); and Brown v. Maffey, 15 East, 187, (Chit. j. 816); post, 439, note (n); and Brown v. Maffey, 15 East, 187, (Chit. j. 816); post, 439, note (n); and Brown v. Maffey, 15 East, 187, (Chit. j. 816); post, 439, note (n); and Brown v. Maffey, 15 East, 187, (Chit. j. 816); post, 446, note (n); and Brown v. Maffey, 15 East, 187, (Chit. j. 816); post, 446, note (n); post, 216, (Chit. j. 852); post, 440, note (p); Bayl. 306.

(k) Laffitte v. Slatter, 6 Bing. 623; 4 Moore

& P. 457, (Chit. j. 1502.)

& P. 457, (Chit. j. 1502.)

(1) Norton v. Pickering, 8 B. & C. 610; 3

Man. & Ry. 23; Dans. & Ll. 210, (Chit. j. 1411). In this case, Walwyn v. St. Quintin, 1 B. & P. 652, was quoted as in direct contradiction to Cory v. Scott, S B. & Ald. 619, and Lord Tenterden said, "I think the case of Cory v. Scott, S B. & Ald. 619, was properly decided, and that it must govern the present case. It may be questionable whether it might not have been more conducive to the interests of commerce, to have decided that the holder of a bill is not at liberty to give evidence of any circumstance to excuse the want of notice. Here the defendant does not seek to avail himself of circumstances dehors the bill. He being drawer of the bill, by the law of merchants was entitled to notice of dishonour. The plaintiff does attempt to get rid of the law-merchant, for he says the acceptor has no effects of the drawer in his hands. I think the defendant was entitled to notice of dishonour, and that the nonsuit was right." Rule refused.

(m) De Berdt v. Atkinson, 2 Hen. Bla. 336, (Chit. j. 526). In an action against the payee of a note, it appeared that the note was not pre-

A drawer of a bill accepted for his accommodation is not entitled to notice of non-payment, Evans v. Norris, 1 Ala. Rep. n. 5, 511; But where a bill is drawn by the defendant for the accommodation of the acceptors, within the knowledge of the payees, the want of funds in the hands of the acceptors belonging to the drawer, will not excuse the omission of notice. Shirley v. Fellows, 9 Port. 800. } sented for payment till the day after it became due, and that no notice was given to the defendant till five days after such presentment, but it also appearing that the defendant gave no value for the note, that he lent his name merely to give it credit, and that he knew at the time the maker was insolvent, Eyre, C. J. directed the rule to shew cause why a new trial should not be had was granted, and upon cause shewn, Eyre, C. J. said, "If the maker is not known to be insolvent, insolvency will not excuse the want of an early demand, but knowledge exclades all presumption, which would otherwise arise; here the money was to be raised upon the defendant's credit; he meant to guarantee the payment, and no loss could happen to him from the want of notice." And per Buller, J. "the general rule is only applicable to fair transactions, where the bill or note has been given for value in the ordinary course of trade. It is said, insolvency does not take away the necessity of notice; that is true, where the value has been given, but no further; here the defendant lent his name merely to give credit to the note, and was not an indorser in the com-

Justices, concurring, the rule was discharged.

In Sisson v. Tomlinson, Selw. N. P. Oth ed. 335, and observed upon in Brown r. Maffey, 15 East, 222, Lord Ellenborough, C. J. ruled, on the authority of the preceding case, that where the indorser has not given any consideration for a bill, and knows at the time the drawer has not any effects in the hands of the drawee he (the indorser) is not entitled to notice of non-payment as a bon't fide indorser for 307, note 160, it is observed, that the courts appear to have proceeded on a misapplication of the rule which obtains as to accommodation acceptances; in those cases, the drawer being himself the real debtor, acquires no right of action against the acceptor by paying the bill, and suffers no injury from want of notice of non-payment by the acceptor. But in this case the maker of the note was the real debtor, and the payee the mere surety, having a clear right of

But in Bayley on Bills, 3d edit. 136; 5th ed.

a valuable consideration would be.

Heath and Rooke.

mon course of business."

jury to find for the plaintiff, which they did.

್ರಾ∵2≱ 8 10 MB -1. IX

HILL

: 2: 2:

yedi d ox 🗷 *: TE

À F s Bib لم منوز

5 ld 15 1 H. بن 15.1

; 3% 1 par-: 1/201 11. 1

عنن 10.7 9. 38 , (° -160 15 ; 34

w d n d 11 yγ :10 1 11

ألفاق IJ, :36 10 jje

٠

100

 $\{ \{ 1, \} \}$

10-21

ह सिहि

63

would in that case, upon paying the note, have a clear right of action against I. Of Nonthe maker, it should seem, that the decisions alluded to are erroneous, and payment, that he is entitled to notice of the dishonour(n)(1). And in a very recent sary P_{ro} case(o) the court said, *that De Berdt v. Atkinson could hardly be support- ceedings ed, inasmuch as the defendant there was not the party for whose accommo- thereon. dation the note was made, but, on the contrary, lent his name to accommo- 1st, When date the maker. And where a bill was drawn for the accommodation of a Notice of remote indorsee, and the names of all the prior parties were lent to him, it ment newas holden, in an action against one of those parties, an indorser, that the cessary or latter was entitled to notice of the dishonour of the bill, because, upon pay-not; Conrequences of Omission: and action against the maker, upon paying the note, what exand therefore entitled to notice, to enable him cuses such to exert that right; see Terry r. Parker, 6 Ad. Omission. & El. 502, 507, 508, infra, note (o); and see Lafitte v. Slatter, 6 Bing. 523, (Chit. j. 1502); which proves that knowledge that a bill will not be paid by the acceptor is no excuse for want of notice; see also Smith v. Beckett, 13 East, 187, (Chit j. 816); and next note; and Brown v. Matfey, 15 East, 216, (Chit. j. 852); in which latter case it was holden, that an indorser is entitled to notice of dishonour, although he has not received any value for his indorsement, if he did not know that the bill was an accommodation bill in its inception.

(n) Smith r. Beckett, 13 East, 187, (Chit. i. 816); Bayl. 3d edit. 136; 5th edit. 308; and see Nicholson c. Gouthit, 2 Hen. Bla. 609, (Chit. j. 556); just, 441, note (u); Norton v. Pickering, 8 Bar. Cres. 610; 3 Man. & Ry. 23; Dans. & Ll. 210, (Chit. j. 1411); ante.

438, notes (I), and supra, note (m). Smith r. Beckett, 13 Last, 187, (Chit. j. $16). In an action against the pavec and indorser of a note drawn by Canning, dated 28th October, 1809, and payable on demand, it appeared that the defendant had lent his name to this and other notes, merely to enable Canning to obtain credit with the plaintiffs, his bankers. he having then lately stopped payment, which was well known to all the parties. The plaintills made advances for six months on these notes, which advances they afterwards renewed, without any communication with the defendant. On the 28d May, 1810, Canning became bankrupt, and payment was afterwards demanded and refused, but no notice of this dishonour was given to the defendant. Lord Ellenborough thought a notice necessary, and nonsuited the plaintiffs; and on a notion to set aside the nonsuit, De Berdt v Atkinson was cited, but the court held clearly, that a notice was necessary, especially as the advances had been renewed without the plaintiff's knowledge, and see Free r. Hawkins, 8 Taunt. 92;

Holt, C. N. P. 559. (a) Terry r. Parker, 6 Ad. & El. 502, 507, 508; 1 N. & P. 752, 755, S. C.

^{(1) \} Where a note was indersed for the accommodation of the maker, the inderser having no funds in the makers hands; and during all the time from the making of the note until its arriving at maturity, the maker was insolvent, but that fact was not known to the indorser, at the time of his indersement; held, that these circumstances did not constitute any ground for dispensing with notice to the indorser. Holland r. Turner, 10 Con. 308. }

and necessary Proceedings thereon.

Notice of Non-payment necessary or not; Consequences of Omission; and what excuses such Omission. [*441]

I. Of Non- ing it, he would be entitled to sue such indorse for re-payment (p)(1). And the same point was determined in an action against the drawer(q). But if the payee and indorser of a note lend his name to secure a composition from the maker to a creditor, and take effects of the maker's sufficient to pay it, he is not entitled to notice, because it would be a fraud in him to call upon the 1st, When maker who had thus deposited effects in his hands to answer the amount of his indersement (r)(2). So in France an inderser or party to whom funds

> (p) Brown v. Maffey, 15 East, 216, (Chit. j. 852), where a bill was drawn, accepted, and indorsed by several indorsers, for the accommodation of the last indorser, and the acceptor had no effects of the drawer in his hands, but that fact was not known to the defendant, one of the prior indorsers; it was held, that the defendant, was entitled to notice of the dis-honour before the holder could maintain an action against him, in order to enable him (even if he had no remedy upon the bill), to call immediately upon the last indorser to whom he had lent the security of his indorsement, without value received, and who had received the money upon that security. Lord Ellenborough, after observing upon the case of Bickerdike v. Bollman, (ante, 437), said, "that decision dispensed with notice to the drawer, where he knew beforehand that he had no effects in the hands of the drawee, and had no reason to expect that the bill would be paid when it became due. But that exception must be taken with some restrictions, which, since I have sat here, I have often had occasion to put upon it, as where a drawer, though he might not have effects at the time of the drawing of the bill in the drawee's hands, has a running account with him, and there is a fluctuating balance between them, and the drawer has reasonable ground to expect that he shall have effects in the drawee's hands when the bill becomes due; in such cases I have always held the drawer to be entitled to notice, because he draws the bill upon a reasonable presumption that it will be honoured, (vide Orr v. Magennis, 7 East, 259; 2 Smith, 328, (Chit. j. 726); Legge v. Thorpe, 12 East, 171, (Chit j. 783)), when indeed it is a mere accommodation bill, without assets in hand or any expected, no notice to the drawer is necessary according to the established authorities; but I should be sorry to extend the doctrine further. It is said, however, that I extended it to the case of an indorser, in Sisson v Tombisson, (aute, 430, n (m)). But without surrendering that case, the circumstances of which were different from the present, and may make it at least more questionable, here it is clear that the defendant had no knowledge of the neceptor's having no assets of the drawer in his hands, and that the drawer put his name to it merely as a cosurety for Woods, and therefore, when it was dishonoured, it became most material to the defendant, that he should have had notice, in order to enable him to proceed against Woods, for whom he was in substance, though not in form, a surety; for, if he had no notice, he might lose his benefit of reimbursement against Woods, who had received the money upon the security of the defendant. I therefore think that the nonsuit was proper for want of such notice." Grose, J. concurred, and Bayley, J. said, "he was of the same opinion, and that the foundation of Mr. Justice Buller's opinion in Bickerdike v. Bollman, was this, that the drawer, having no assets in the drawee's hands, could not be injured by the non-payment of the bill, or the want of notice that it had been dishonoured: and that is true, as against the drawer, but as against an indorser, who is not the party to provide for taking up the bill in the first instance, and who has a remedy over, the want of notice is an injury to him. In Corney v. Mendez Da Costa, I Esp. R. 302, (Chit. j. 538), it would have been a fraud in the indorser to call upon the maker of the note, because, before it became due, the maker had deposited effects in his hands to answer the amount of his indorsement, and therefore he had no right to complain of the want of notice. But in this case, if the defendant had had notice of the non-payment at the time, he would have been enabled to call upon Woods immediately. The case of Smith v. Beckett has established, that a party does not waive his right to notice by lending his indorsement as a security to enable the drawer to raise money on it " Rule discharged. See also Latitte v. Slatter, 6 Bing. 623; 4 Moore & P. 457. (Chit. j. 1502).

(q) Cery v. Scott, 3 B. & Ald. 619, (Chit.

(r) Cerney v. Da Costa, 1 Esp. Rep. 303, (Chit. j. 535). Da Costa and Co. compounded with their creditors, and to secure the conposition, draw notes in favour of the defendant, which he indorsed to the creditors. The dcfor band took a Treets of Da Costa and Co. at the time to the amount of the composition, and an action being brought against him upon one of these indorsements, he insisted that he had had .

(2) An indorser of a promissory note, who, before the note falls due, takes an assignment of all the estate of the maker to meet his responsibility, is hable, although no demand of payment is made, and notice of non-payment is not given. Mechanic's Bank of N. Y. v. Griswold, 7 Wend.

Rep. 165.

⁽¹⁾ The relative rights and duties of parties who indorse a promissory note for the accommodation of the maker, are the same as in the case of a business note; so that due notice of the dishonor of such accommodation note having been given, a subsequent indorser who pays it, may recover of a prior indorser the whole amount paid, and not merely a contribution as in the case of sureties. Church v. Barlow, 9 Pick. Rep. 547.

have been remitted to pay a bill, is not discharged by want of notice(s); and I. Of Nonin America, where the drawer of a check withdrew his funds from the bank- payment, ers, it was held, that no ice of the non-paym at of the check was not requisary Proste(t). It has been not been that I come in it. site(t). It has however been held, that it is no excuse for not having pre-ceedings sented a note in time for payment, that the defendant indor cd it to guaran-thereon. tee a debt due from the maker, or that the defendant knew, before it was 1st, When due, that the malier could not pay it, and had desired a banker, at whose Notice of house it was made payable, to send it to him, and he would pay it(u)(1).

In general, if the bill or note be given as a collateral security, and the cessary or party delivering it were no party to it, either by indorsing or transferring it not; Conby delivery when payable to bearer, but merely caused it to be drawn or in-sequences of Omisdorsed, or delivered over by a third person as a security, or has merely sion; and guaranteed the payment, it has been considered that he is not within the whatexcustom of merchants an indorser or party to it, so as to be absolutely enti- cuses such tled to strict regular notice, nor discharged from his liability by the neglect of the holder to give him such notice, unless he can show by express evidence, or by inference, that he has actually sustained loss or damage by the omission(x)(2); for if a person deliver over a bill to another without indorsing it, he does not subject himself to the obligations of the law-merchant, and cannot be sued upon the bill, and as he does not cubject himself to the obligation he is not entitled to the advantages(y); and if he can prove that he has sustain-no notice of the non-payment of the note until five weeks after it was due; but Buller, J. held that he was not entitled to notice, and the plaintiff had a verdict. See observations on this case in Brown v. Maffey, 15 Uest, 222, 223, (Chit. j. 852); ante, 449, et reg. in notes; Pa-ker v. Birch, 3 Campb 107, (Chit. j. 848); post, 449, seems to the same effect, that the amount of deposited effects are received to the use of the holder.

() 1 Pardess, 459, 460. () Conroy v. Warren, 9 Johns. Ca. 259; Bayl. 148, American edit.; Roscoe, 389, note thought, as he knew the note would not be paid at Drury and Co.'s and had provided money for it, and as his indorsement was by way of guarantee, he was not insured by the delay, and that the request to send the notes to him was either a waiver of notice or notice by anticipation; but on a rule aisi to enter a nonsuit, and cause shown, though he thought the justice of the case was clearly with the plaintiff, he thought he could not recover; for though the indorsement was by way of guarantee, it was liable to all the legal consequences of an indorsement; and Couthit's promise to pay was only to pay such as should be duly presented at Drury's. Heath and Rooke, Justices, were of the same opinion, and the rule was made abso-

(u) Nicholson v. Gouthit, 2 Hen. Pla. 609, (Chit. j. 556). Gouthit and Purton undertock to guarantee an instalment on the debt of Green, and for that purpose Green drew notes payable to Gouthit at Drury and Co.'s, which Gouthit and Burton indersed, after which they were delivered to the creditors. Pefore they became due, Gouthit inquired at Drury and Co.'s if they had any effects, and on their soying they had not, he desired them to send the notes to him and he would pay them. Many notes were accordingly presented and paid, but the note in question not being presented till three days after it was due. Got thit is fixed to pay it. Burton had supplied bim with money to take up all the notes, but as this was not presented when due, he had returned the money destined to pay it. An action was brought against Gouthit, and upon the trial, Evre, C. J.

(x) Warrington r. Purbor, 8 East, 242; 6 Esp. 89, (Chit. j. 7.3); Phillips e. Astling, 2 Thant. 203, (Chit. j. 777); Swinyard r. Bowes, 5 Yaule & S. (2, (Chit j. 955); Holbrow v. Wilkins, I Bar. & Cres. 10; 2 D. & Ry. 59, (Chit j 1652); Van Wort c. Woolley, 3 Bar, & Cros 409; 5 D. & Ry. 347; 1 Ry. & M. 4. (Chit. j. 1205). But see observations of Dayley, J. in Canadzo r. Allenby, 6 Bar & Cres. 513; 9 D. & Ry, 391, (Chit. j. 1319); a. le, "5", note (s); see further, post, 6thly, us to whose notice must be given

(y) Fer Abbott, C. J. in Van Wart v. Woolley, 3 For. & Co.s. 480; 5 D. & Ry. 847; 1 P.y. & M. 4, (Chit j. 1205).

Erwin r. Lamborn, 1 Har. 125, V

⁽¹⁾ The inderser of a note not negatible has no right in an action against him, to insist upon a previous demand of the profess and notice of non-payment; the indersement is equivalent to a guaranty that the note will be peid, and not a conditional undertailing to pay if the maker does not; an absolute guaranty may be written over the indersement, upon which a recovery may be had. Seymour v. Van Hyck, S.Wend, Rep. 493.

[2] {True v. Harding, 3 Fairf, 193; Reynolds et al. v. Douglass, 12 Peters, 497. Contra.

th.

P., it.

 $J^{(k)}$

200

 $\bar{\mathbf{A}}_{ij}$

10

 \mathcal{G}_{i}

i

Ē.

3

'n

Ü

.

H

sury Proceedings thereon.

Notice of Non-payment necessary or not; Conequences of Omission; and what excuses such Omission. [*442]

I. Of Non- ed damage, then he is only discharged to the extent of such actual damage(z)(1). If the parties who ought primarily to have paid the bill or note were solvent at the time when the same became due, and for some time afterwards, and only subsequently became insolvent, before notice, an inference of actual damage from the want of notice to the party guaranteeing, or other-1st, When wise collaterally liable, will *prevail(a), until rebutted by actual proof, that if notice had been given, payment would not have been obtained(b). But if the parties became bankrupt, or wholly insolvent before the bill or note fell due, then the inference will be, that no injury arose from the want of notice; though that inference may also be rebutte $\tilde{d}(c)$. Thus it was decided, that a person who had guaranteed the payment of money to be paid by a bill, was entitled (though no party to it) to insist on the neglect to make a proper presentment, or to give due notice of the dishonour of such bill(d), the drawer having become insolvent after it became due. In another case, the defendant, being indebted to the plaintiff for goods sold, and C. being indebted to the defendant, the plaintiff, with the consent of defendant, drew a bill on C. payable at two months, which C. accepted, but afterwards dishonoured, and it was held, that the defendant was not entitled to notice of the dishonour, his name not being on the bill, and that the bill was not to be esteemed a complete payment of the debt under the Statute of Anne(e); but then it appeared that the drawee was certainly, from the time the bill fell due, not in a condition to pay it. And it has been held, that proof that before the bill became due, the parties liable upon it were bankrupt or insolvent, will be prima facie evidence that a demand upon them would have been of no avail, and will dispense with the necessity of making such presentment or giving notice, because the same strictness of proof is not necessary to charge a guarantee, as is necessary to support an action upon the bill itself, and the circumstances created a presumption that the guarantee was not prejuced by [*443] the want of notice (f)(2). Thus *where the plaintiffs sold goods to C. and (z) Id. ibid. (a) Phillips v. Astling, 2 Taunt. 205, (Chit. j. 777); and see observations of Abbott, C. J. in Holbrow v. Wilkins, 1 Bar. & Cres. 10; 2 D.

& Ry. 59, (Chit. j. 1652).
(b) Swinyard v. Bowes, 5 Maule & S. 62. (c) Warrington v. Furbor, S. East, 242; 6 Esp. 89, S. C.; Holbrow v. Wilkins, 1 Bar. &

Cres. 10; 2 D. & Rv. 59, (Chit. j. 1652).
(d) Phillips v. Astling, 2 Taunt. 206, (Chit. j. 777). The declaration stated, that in consideration that the plaintiffs would sell and deliver to Davenport and Finney certain goods, to be paid by a bill, to be drawn by D. and F. upon Houghton, at six months; the defendant undertook to guarantee the payment of such bill. It then averred delivery of the goods, acceptance of the bill, its presentment for payment, and dishonour. At the trial it appeared, that Houghton was at sea when the bill became due, which was on the 14th July, 1808, but that he had an agent residing in London, authorized to accept bills, and who had accepted this. That no presentment for payment was made to this agent when the bill became due; that on the 16th July, the plaintiff gave D. and F. notice that the bill remained unpaid, but no notice was given to the defendants. In February, 1909, Davenport and Finney became insolvent, and Houghton was declared bankrupt in 1809, after which payment was demanded of the defendants. A verdict was found for the plaintiff, but upon a rule nisi for entering a nonsuit, after referring to Warrington v. Furbor, (8 East, 242, and infra, note (f) said, that here the insolvency of the drawers and the bankruptcy of the acceptor did not hap-pen until long after the bill became due, and that for any thing that appeared, if the money had been demanded either of the drawer or acceptor, the bill might have been paid, but that the necessary steps not having been taken to obtain payment from the parties who were liable upon the bill, and solvent, the guarantee must be discharged, and therefore they made Taunt 130, (Chit. j. 804); Bishop v. Rowe, 3

Maule & S. 362, (Chit. j. 921); Cory v. Scott,
3 B. & Ald. 619, (Chit. j. 1081).

(e) Swinyard r. Bowes, 5 Maule & S. 62,

(Chit. j. 955).

(f) Warrington v. Furbor, 8 East, 242; 6
Esp. R. 89, (Chit. j. 733). The defendant applied to one Martin, to purchase some goods to the amount of 1000l., the price of which the plaintiffs undertook to guarantee at a credit of

(1) { Reynolds et al. r. Douglass, ubi supra. }

⁽²⁾ On a guaranty of a promissory note drawn and indorsed by others, if the drawer and in-

P., and took their acceptance for the amount, half of which was guaranteed I Of Nonby the defendant, and before the bill became due, C. and P. became insol- payment, vent, of which the defendant was then informed, and also that the plaintiffs sary Prolooked to him for the sum which he had guaranteed, it was held, that under ceedings these circumstances it was unnecessary for the plaintiffs to present the bill thereon. when due, or give the defendant notice of the non-payment of it(g). where A. and Co. resident in America, employed B. resident at Birming- Notice of ham in this country, to purchase and ship goods for them, and on account of ment nesuch purchases they sent to B. a bill drawn by C. in America on D. in Lon- cessary or don, but did not indorse it; and B. employed his bankers to present the bill not; Confor acceptance, and D. refused to accept, but of this the bankers did not of Omisgive notice until the day of payment, when it was again presented and dis-sion; and bonoured; and before the bill arrived in this country, C. became bankrupt, what exand he had not, either when the bill was drawn, or at any time before it be-Omission. came due, any funds in the hands of D., the drawee; in an action by B. against the bankers, for negligence in not giving him notice of the non-acceptance, it was held, that inasmuch as A. and Co., not having indorsed the bill, were not entitled to notice of dishonour, and still remained liable to B. for the price of the goods sent to them, and the drawer was not entitled to notice, as he had no funds in the hands of the drawce, B. could not recover the whole amount of the bill, but only such damages as he had actually sustained in consequence of having been delayed in the pursuit of his remedy against the drawer(h). And where even the party's name is on the bill, yet if he give a bond conditioned for payment by the acceptor, within a month after it was due, without any stipulation about notice, the want of notice is no defence, the bond being an absolute engagement that payment should be made (i). But we have seen, that the drawer of a renewed bill is, six months. The goods were furnished, and the defendant accepted a bill at six months for the amount. This bill became due 3d December, 1801, but on the 21st November preceding, the defendants became bankrupts, and the plaintiffs were obliged to pay Martin 1000/, on their guarantee, and now brought this action to be reimbursed; one of the objections made by the defendant at the trial was, that the plaintiffs had not proved a presentment of the bill to the defendant for payment, without which it was insisted, that Martin could not have recovered against the plaintiffs on their guarantee, and therefore, that the latter had paid the money in their own wrong. Lord Ellenborough held the proof unnecessary, this not being an action on the bill, and it being obvious that notice would have been unavailable, the defendants having been then recently stripped of all their property, and the plaintiffs had a verdict; and on a rule nisi to set it aside, and cause shewn, the court held the verdict right, and Lawrence, J. said, "the guarantees were not prevented from shewing that they ought not to have been called upon at all, for that the principal debtors could have paid the bill if demanded of them." Rule discharged. But in Murray v. King, 5 Bar. & Ald. 165, (Chit. j. 1119), he considered this case as broken in upon by the case of Phillips v. Astling, They, however, are distinguishable in the material fact of the insolvency having occurred before the bill was due in one case, but in the other afterwards, and see Holbrow v. Wilkins, 1 Bar. & Cres. 10; 2 D. & Ry. 59, (Chit. j. 1652).

.:

: 1

(g) Holbrow v. Wilkins, 1 Bar. & Cres. 10; 2 Dow. & Ry. 59, (Chit. j. 1652).

(h) Van Wart r. Woolley, 3 Bar. & Cres. 439; 5 Dow. & Ry. 874, (Chit. j. 1235). On the new trial, A. D. 1830, it appeared that the whole debt had been satisfied, and that therefore the plaintiff was entitled to recover, and he did recover only nominal damages, id; Mood. & M. 520.

(i) Morray v. King, 5 B. & Ald. 165, (Chit. j. 1119).

dorser are insolvent when the note becomes due, this would prima facie be evidence that the guarantor was not prejudiced, and therefore the giving him notice of non-payment is in such case dispensed with. Gibbs r. Cannon, 9 Serg. & Ruwle, 198. | Erwin r. Lamborn, 1 Harr. Del. R. 125. }

Where the maker of a promissory note is utterly insolvent, so that process against him would be useless, the guarantor will be bound by his indorsement, though no suit be brought against the maker. Prentiss r. Danielson, 5 Conn Rep. 175.

(1)

Υř. 2:1

50

4

Ö

75

Э

'n

sary Proceedings thereon.

Notice of Non-payment necessary or not; Consequences of Omission; and what excuses such Omission.

I. Of Non-by the neglect to give notice of the dishonour of it, not only discharged from payment, the Hallibly to pay it, but also from all Hability to pay the prior bill(k), and neces-

The dectrine, that unless a person is a party to a bill or note, he cannot complain of the want of regular notice of the dishonour, must be understood with coal-iderable qualification; and we have seen, that if a person has trans-1st, When ferreal, by mere delivery, a note payable to beaver, he is entided to regular notice, for though he has not indorsed, he, as having been the bearer, is to be considered as a party to the instrument(l).

It is no excuse for not giving notice to the dra ver, that on an apprehension that the bill would be dishonoured, he ledged other money *which he had of the drawee's in the hands of the indorser, on an undertaking by the indorser, that he would return it whenever it should appear that he was exonerated from the bill; for his having other money of the drawee's does not entitle him to apply it to the dishonored bill, unless he had notice of the dishonour(m). And where the defendant, as drawer of the bill, was at 「*444] that time liable on his acceptances given to a much greater amount for the accommodation of the acceptor of the bill in question, it was held, that the plaintiff, the indorsee, was not relieved from the necessity of proving notice of the dishonour(n). Nor is it any excuse for not giving notice to the drawer of the bill, if he had effects in the hands of the drawee, that the drawce represented to the drawer, when the bill was drawn, that he should not be able to provide for it, and that the drawer thereby understood that he should have to provide for it(e).

> If at any time between the drawing of the bill and its presentment and dishonour, the drawee had some effects or property of the drawer in his hands, though insufficient to pay the amount, he will nevertheless, in general, be entitled to notice of the dishonour, and the laches of the holder will discharge him from liability; for this case differs from that where there are no effects whatever of the drawer in the hands of the drawee at the time, because the drawer must then know that he is drawing upon accommedation, and without any reasonable expectation that the bill will be honoured; but if he have

(k) Bridges v. Berry, 3 Taunt. 120, (Chit j. 804); ante, 436, note (c).

(1) Camidge v. Allenby, 6 Par. & Cres. 373; 9 D. & Ry. 3)1, (Chit. j. 1319); ante, 35), note (s). And see further, post, 6thly, As to whom Notice must be given.

(m) Clegg v. Cotton, 3 B. & P. 233, (Chit. j. 657). Indorsee against the drawer of a bill. The bill was drawn in America, on Cuiler, ef Liverpool, in favour of Miller and Robertson, and by them indersed to Booth and Co., and it afterwards came to the plaintiff's hands. It was dated in 1794, and drawn at ninety days sight. In 1800, the defendant having other effects of Cullen's in his hands, deposited them with Miller and Robertson, and Looth and Co., on an undertaking from them, that they would return these effects whenever it should appear that they were exonerated from this bill. Cullen afterwards became bankrupt. The defendant was arrested, and then said he should apply to Cullen's assignees to bail him, for he had ledged property in America to answer the bill, and if he was discharged for want of notice, he should pay it over to them. Acceptance and payment were both refused, but no notice was ever given of it to the defendant. Chambre, J. nonsuited the plaintiff, on the ground that the defendant was discharged for want of notice; and on a rule nisi to set aside the nonsuit, and cause shewn. the court held, that the special circumstances did not excuse the want of notice; that there was no fraud in the defendant, which was the ground of the rule for dispensing with notice, and that when Miller and Robertson, and Booth and Co. were exonerated, which they were by want of notice, the money deposited with them belonged to Cullen's assignces. Rule discharg-

Note. It did not appear that the defendant had got back the property which he deposited, but that circumstance was not relied on. See further, 1 Pardess, 450, 460

(n) Spooner v. Gardiner, Ryan & Mood 84, (Chit. j. 1211).

(e) Staples v. Oxines, 1 Esp. R. 332, (Chit. 544). In an action against the drawer of a bill, the defence was want of notice. The plaintiff thereupon called the acceptor, who proved, that when the bill was drawn, he was indebted to the defendant in more than the amount of the bill, but that he then represented to the defendant that it would not be in his power to provide for the bill when it should become due, and that it was therefore then understood between them that the defendant should provide for it; and it was contended, that this superseded the necessity of giving the defendant notice. Lat Lord Kenyon held that it did not, and nonsuited the plaintiff.

some effects at the time, it would be dangerous and inconvenient, merely on 1. Of Nonaccount of the shifting of a balance, to hold notice not to be necessary; it payment, would be introducing a number of collateral issues upon every case upon a and necesbill of exchange, to examine how the accounts stood between the drawer cerdings and the drawee, from the time the bill was drawn, down to the time when thereon. it was dishonoured (p). For the same reason, if the *drawer of a bill of 1st, When exchange, when it is presented for acceptance, has effects in the hands of Notice of the drawees, though he is indebted to them in a much larger amount, and Non-payment nethey, with his privity, have appropriated the effects in their hands to the cessary or satisfaction of their debt, he is entitled to notice of the dishonour(q).

(p) Orr v. Magennis, 7 East, 359; 3 Smith, 328, (Chit. j. 726); Llackhan v. Poren, 2 Campb. 503, (Chit. j. 818); Hammend v. Dufrene, 3 Campb. 145, (Chit. j. 848); Thackray v. Blackett, 3 Campb. 164, (Chit j. 84.).

Orr v. Magennis. In an action by the payers against the drawer of a foreign bill, payable at ninety days after sight, the declaration averred presentment for acceptance and refusal, presentment for payment and refusal, and protest for non-payment; it then averred, that at the time of making the bill, and from thence until presentment for payment, the defendant had no effects in the hands of the drawees. At the trial it appeared, that at the time of drawing the bill, the defendant had effects in the hands of the drawees, but to what amount did not appear; but that when the bill was presented for acceptance, and thence until presentment for payment, he had not any. The bill was only noted for non-acceptance, but was protested for non-payment, no notice of non-acceptance was given to the defendant. The plaintiffs had paid the amount to an indorsec. They were nonsuited for want of proving protest for and notice of non-accept: nce. On motion to set aside the nonsuit, Bickerdike v. Loflman and other cases were cited to show that no notice, and therefore no protest, was necessary. But Lord Ellenborough said, that that case went on the ground that there were no checks in the hands of the drawee at the tine when the bill was drawn, and the other cases followed on the same ground, but that no case, had extended the exemption to cases where the drawee had effects of the drawer in his bonds at the time when the bill was drawn, though the belance neight vary afterwards, and be turned into the opposite scale. Rule refused.

Hammond v. Dufrene, 3 Campb. 145, (Chit. j. 838). Action on a bill for 3047, 47s, 40d. drawn by defendant upon and accepted by Messrs. Dufrene and Penny, payable at three months. To excuse the proof of notice to the defendant of the dishonour of the bill, one of the acceptors was called, who stated, that when the bill was drawn and accepted, they had no effects of the drawee in their hands, but that before the bill became due, he paid a sum of 400%, on their account. Parke, for the plaintiff, insisted, that this was an accommedation kill, and that the drawer therefore was not entitled to notice of its dishonour. Lord Ellenborough said, I think the drawer has a right to notice of the dishonour of a bill, if he has effects in the hands of the acceptor at any time before it becomes due. In that case, he may reasonably expect, that the bill will be regularly paid, and he sion; and may be prejudiced by receiving no notice that it what exis dishonouted. I am aware that the inquiry cuses such has generally been as to the state of accounts. Omission. between the drawer and the drawee, when the bill was drawn or accepted; but I conceive the [*445] whole period noist be looked to, from the drawing of the bill till it becomes due, and that notice is replaite if the drawer has effects in the hands of the drawer, at any time during that interval: therefore, if the defendant in this case paid a sum of money for Mes rs. Dufrene and Penny, before the 28th of July, you must prove that he had due notice it was not paid on that day by the acceptors. The case was afterwards brought before the court, but the direction of the judge at Nisi Prius upon this point was not question-

Thackray v. Blackett, 3 Campb. 164, (Chit. i. 348). The drawer of two bills of exchange, before they became due, received notice that they were accidentally destroyed, and was called upon to give others in their stend, according to the statute of 9 & 10 Will, 2, c. 17. When the bills were drawn, he had no effects in the hands of the acceptors, but before either was due, they were indebted to him to an amount less than one of the bills, and became bankingt; held, that he was nevertheless entitled to notice of the dishonour of both bills. Lord Ellenborough said, "The excuse of want of effects in their hands, I think is unavailing as to both bills; I cannot make any distinction between the two. If there was an open account between the parties, and the acceptors were indebted in any sum to the drawer before the bills became due, I cannot say that he must necessarily have been aware, before hand, that either of them would be dishonoured. Judges of the greatest authority have doubted of the propriety of the rule laid down in Bickerdike v. Bolhoan, and I certainly will not give it any extension." Plaintiff nonsuited.

But see the reasoning in 1 Pardess, 459,

(q) Blackhan r. Doren, 2 Campb. 503, (Chit. j. 849). This was an action against the drawer of a bill for 250% payable after sight, of which acceptance had been refused; and to excuse the want of notice of non-acceptance, it was proved, that when the bill was presented, though the drawer had effects in the hands of the drawce to the amount of 1500%, yet that he owed them 10,000%, or 11,000%, and that they had appropriated the effects to go in satisfaction of the debt: this appropriation, however, was without the defendant's privity. Lord

Nor not; Con-

sary Proceedings thereon.

Notice of Non-payment necessary or not; Consequences of Omission; and what excuses such Omission.

1. Of Non- is actual value in the hands of the *drawce at the time of drawing, essenpayment, tially necessary to entitle the drawer to notice of dishonour of the bill, for circumstances may exist which would give the drawer good ground to consider he had a right to draw a bill upon his correspondent; as where he has consigned effects to him to answer the bill, though they may not have come 1st, When to him at the time when the bill is presented for acceptance(1); to which may be added the case of bills drawn in respect of other fair mercantile agreements (r). So it is no excuse for not giving notice to the drawer that he had, in fact, no funds in the hands of the drawee, if he had made provision to have such funds there, and might reasonably expect they were there; as where a bill was drawn in respect of a cargo shipped by the drawer to this kingdom, and in the hands of a broker, who was to pay the proceeds to the drawee to enable him to take up the bill, in which case notice was held And, therefore, where the drawer had sold and shipped goods to the drawee, and drew the bill before they had arrived, and the drawee not having received the bill of lading, refused to accept the goods because they were damaged, and who refused to accept the bill, it was decided that the drawer was discharged for want of notice(t). But if the vendor of goods sold upon credit, draws upon the purchaser a bill, which would be due long before the expiration of the stipulated credit, he is not entitled to notice of the dishonour, because he had no reasonable expectation that the drawee would honour the bill, but on the contrary, a pretty clear assurance that it

> Ellenborough said, "If a man draws upon a house, with whom he has no account, he knows that the bill will not be accepted; he can suffer no injury from want of notice of its dishonour, and therefore he is not entitled to such notice, but the case is quite otherwise where the drawer has a fluctuating balance in the hands of the drawee; there notice is peculiarly requisite. Without this, how can the drawer know that credit has been refused to him, and that his bill has been dishonoured? It is said here, that the effects in the hands of the drawees were all appropriated to discharge their own debt; but that appropriation should appear by writing, and the defendant should be a party to it. wish that notice had never been dispensed with, then we should not have been troubled with investigating accounts between drawer and drawee. I certainly will not relax the rule still further, which I should do if I were to hold that notice was unnecessary in the present case." Plaintiff nonsuited; but see Smith r. Thatcher, 4 Bar. Ald. 200, (Chit. j. 1100); Roscoe, 224; Bayl. 5th edit. 311; post, 447, > (r) Per Lord Ellenborough, in Legge v. Thorpe, 12 East, 175; 1 Campb. 310, (Chit. j. 783); per Eyre, C. J. in Walwyn r. St. Quintin, 1 Bos. & P. 654; 2 Esp. 515, (Chit. j. 578); Ex parte Wilson, 11 Ves. 411, (Chit. j. 720).

> (s) Robins v. Gibson, 3 Campb. 334, (Chit. j. 885); see also 12 East, 175; 1 Bos. & P.

> (t) Rucker v. Hiller, 16 East, 43; 3 Campb. 217, 334, (Chit. j. 861). Where one draws a bill of exchange with a bonh fide reasonable expectation of having assets in the hands of the drawee, as by having shipped goods on his account, which were on their way to the drawee, but without the bill of lading or invoice, the drawer is entitled to notice of the dishonour, though in fact the goods had not come to the hands of the drawee at the time when the bill was presented for acceptance, or he had rejected them, and he returned it, marked "no effects." Lord Ellenborough, C. J. said, "When the drawer draws his bill on the toni fide expectation of assets in the hands of the drawee to answer it, it would be carrying the case of Bickerdike v. Bollman further than has ever been done, if he were not at all events entitled to notice of the dishonour. And I know the opinion of my Lord Chancellor to be, that the doctrine of that case ought not to be pushed further. The case is very different where the party knows that he has no right to draw the bill. There are many occasions where a drawee may be justified in refusing, from motives of prudence, to accept a bill, on which notice ought nevertheless to be given to the drawer; and if we were to extend the exception further, it would come at last to a general dispensation with notice of the dishonour in all cases where the drawce had no assets in hand at the very time of presenting the bill; and thus get rid of the general rule requiring notice, than which nothing is more convenient in the commercial world. A bona fide reasonable expectation of assets in the hands of the drawee has been several times held to be sufficient to entitle the drawer to notice of the dishonour, though such expectation may ultimately have failed to be realized.'

^{(1) {} Dickins v. Beale, 10 Peters, 572; Bloodgood v. Hawthorn, 9 Louis, 124. } would be dishonoured(u). And in one *case it seems to have been suggest- I. Of Noned, that the want of notice is no defence where the defendant had not, at payment, the time the bill became due, sufficient effects, although he had such when sary Prothe bill was drawn; as where the party having 712l. at his banker's, accept-ceedings ed a bill for 3001., payable there, but when due he had only 411., in which thereon. case notice to him was considered unnecessary; but the decision proceeded 1st, When on the ground that an acceptor is not entitled to notice, and therefore cannot Notice of be relied upon as altering the general rule(x). Where the drawer of a bill of ment neexchange had no effects in the hands of the acceptor from the time of draw-cessary or ing the bill till it became due, but the acceptor had received from the draw-not; Coner prior to this bill on which the action was brought, acceptances of the sequences of Omisdrawer, upon which he had raised money, some of which acceptances had sion; and been returned dishonoured, and others were outstanding, it was held that the what exdrawer was entitled to notice of dishonour of the bill(y). And it should cuses such Omission. seem, that although the drawer or other party may not have advanced money or goods to the drawee, yet if he has deposited short bills or polices, or even title-deeds, in his hands, or has accepted cross bills, and had reasonable ground to expect that the drawee would accept or pay in respect thereof, he is entitled to notice of the dishonour(z).

(u) Claridge v. Dulton, 4 Maule & S. 226, (Chit. j. 934). The drawer of a bill of exchange, who has no effects in the hands of the drawee, except that he has supplied him with goods upon credit, which credit does not expire till long after the bill would become due, is not discharged by want of notice of the dishonour. Time given by indorsee to the payee does not discharge the drawee. Lord Ellenborough, C. J. said, "I accede to the proposition, that where there are any funds in the hands of the drawee, so that the drawer has a right to expect, or even where there are not any funds, if the bill be drawn under such circumstances as may induce the drawer to entertain a reasonable expectation that the bill will be accepted and paid, the person so drawing it is entitled to notice; but this bill was drawn in anticipation of the credit, and without any assurance of accommodation; and Bayley, J. said, "The case of Bickerdike v. Bollman has established, and I am disposed to think rightly, that a party who cannot be prejudiced by want of notice shall not be entitled to require it; but this rule extends only to cases where the party has no effects, or is not likely to have effects, or has no expectation that he will have any. In all other cases, the drawer is entitled to notice, and this is required in order that he may withdraw forthwith out of the hands of the drawee such effects as he may happen to have, or may stop those which he is in a course of putting into his hands. But at the period when the bill was refused payment, the defendant was not in a condition to have taken any steps against Pickford, the drawee, so as to derive any benefit from a notice; therefore he was not entitled to notice."

. . .

1

. .

11 - 10 . 42

. 19

. .

d Z

18 18 18

(x) Smith v. Thatcher, 4 B. & Ald. 200, (Chit. j. 1100); Roscoe, 221; Bayl. 5th edit.

(y) Spooner v. Gardiner, Ry. & Mood. S4, (Chit. j. 1211).

(z) In Walwyn r. St. Quintin, 2 Esp. R. 515, (Chit. j. 578). Eyre, C. J. left it to the jury to say, whether title-deeds were effects or not, and they found in the affirmative. See 1 Bos. & P. 652, S. C.; ante, 438, note (h).

Ex parte Heath, 2 Ves. & Bea. 240; 2 Rose, 141, (Chit. j. 894). In this case a distinction was taken as to the necessity of notice to the drawer of a dishonoured bill, depending on the fact whether the acceptor has effects, or whether it arose out of a single transaction, or out of rarious dealings. In the latter case it was held, that notice is equally necessary without effects. And it seems that securities, as title-deeds and short bills, are effects for this purpose. The Lord Chancellor said, "I have often lamented the consequences of the distinction introduced in modern times, as to the necessity of giving notice of the non-payment or non-acceptance of a bill of exchange, whether the acceptor had or had not effects, and I have the satisfaction of finding, that my opinion has been adopted by the courts of law. According to the old rule, a bill of exchange, purporting upon the face of it to be for value received, the implication of law from the acceptance was that the acceptor had effects. Then they came to this general doctrine, that it is not necessary for the holder to give notice, if he can shew that the acceptor had no effects. The first objection is, who is to decide whether there are effects or not? In the simple case, where there is nothing but the particular bill, and no other dealing between them, there is no difficulty; but if there are complicuted engagements, and various accommodation transactions, no one can say whether there are off cts or not, and there cannot be a stronger instance than that in the case of Walwyn r. St. Quintin (2 Esp. R. 515, ante, 438, n. (h)) referred to; Lord Chief Justice Eyre, a very good lawyer, left it to the jury to decide, without any solution of the question, whether titledec is are effects; but a rule that securities cannot be effects in any case would be quite destructive of all commercial dealing. Are not short bills, for instance, effects? Is it of no importance to the holder to have notice that he may withdraw them from the possession of the acI. Of Nonpayment, and necessary Proceedings thereon.

Notice of Non-payment necessary or not; Consequences of Omission; and what excuses such Omission.

The proof that the drawer had no effects in the hands of the *drawee only affords a prima facie excuse for the want of due notice of the dishonour, and it may be rebutted by its appearing that the drawer, on taking up the bill, would be entitled to some remedy over against some other party, as a right to sue the acceptor or any other party, or by shewing that he has been ac-1st, When tually prejudiced by the want of notice (a); as if the bill were drawn for the accommodation of the acceptor(b), or payee or indorser(c). And there is a distinction as to the necessity for notice to the drawer of a dishonoured bill, when accepted for the accommodation of the drawer, in a single transaction, and a case of various dealings, the excess for the accommodation of the drawer or acceptor; in the latter case, notice is equally necessary, without So where W. drew a bill upon a person to whom he actual effects (d)(1). had been sending goods for sale, and who accepted the bill, neither party knowing the state of accounts between them, and it turned out that W., at the time, was indebted to the drawee, yet the court held that this was not to be considered as an accommodation bill within the acceptation of that term, and consequently that there was no implied contract of indemnity as to If, in an action against the drawer of an accommodation bill, the defendant relies upon special damage resulting from the want of notice, it is incumbent upon him to prove that fact affirmatively, although the declaration allege (unnecessarily) that the defendant has not sustained damage, and issue be taken thereon (f).

Question whether Holder may pro-Funds. when he has discharged Party on Bill or Note.

Where a bill has been refused acceptance or payment, and the drawer has either stopped or withdrawn the effects from the hands of the drawee, though he may be primâ facie discharged by the neglect to give him due notice, it seems that in France and America the holder might recover from him the amount of such funds(g); but there is no decision to such effect in the coun-The case most like it is that of the payee and indorser of a note, or the drawer of a bill having received money from the maker of the note or acceptor of the bill, for the express purpose of paying it, and who has in that case been considered liable to the extent of that money to be sued for ceptor? The courts were obliged necessarily to decide, that if bills were accepted for the accommodation of the drawer, and there was nothing but that paper between them, notice was not necessary, the drawer being, as between him and the acceptor, first liable; but if bills were drawn for the accommodation of the acceptor, the transaction being for his benefit, there must be notice without effects, and if in the result of various dealings, the surplus of accommodation is on the side of the acceptor, he is, with regard to the drawer, exactly in the same situation of an acceptor having effects, and the failure to give notice may be equally detrimen-tal, I will, in this instance, give an inquiry. It is upon the petitioner to prove, that in all this complication, there is nothing which the law calls effects, he may therefore have liberty to call a meeting, and must pay the costs of this application.'

(a) Brown v. Maffey, 15 East, 216, (Chit. j. 852); Cory v. Scott, 3 Bar. & Ald. 619, (Chit. j. 1081); Norton v. Pickering, 8 Bar. & Cres. 610; 3 M. & R. 23; Dans. & Ll. 210, (Chit. j. 1411); overruling Walwyn v. St. Quintin,

1 Bos. & P. 552; Bayl. 5th edit. 297; Roscoe,

(b) Ex parte Heath, 2 Ves. & Bea. 240; 2 Rose, 141, (Chit. j. 894).

(c) Cory v. Scott, 3 Bar. & Ald. 619, (Chit. j. 1081); Norton v. Pickering, 8 Bar. & C. 610; 3 M. & Ry. 23; Dans. & Ll. 210, (Chit. j. 1411); ante, 438.

(d) Ex parte Heath, 2 Ves. & Bea. 240, (Ch. j. 994).

(e) Bignall v. Andrews, 7 Bing. 217; 4 M.

& P. 839, S. C.

(f) Fitzgerald v. Williams, 6 Bing N. C. 68. { 8 Scott, 271, S. C. } Indorsee v. Drawer. Plaintiff, by way of excuse for not giving notice of dishonour, averred that defendant had no funds in the hands of the acceptor, nor had he sustained any damage for want of notice: defendant pleaded that he had sustained damage, because the acceptor had promised him to provide for the bill: held, that it was not incumbent on the plaintiff to prove that the defendant had sustained no damage.

(g) Ante, 440, 441; 1 Pardess. 459, 460; Conroy v. Warren, 9 Johns. Cases, 259.

MT:

::15

٠.

... 7

.....

1 2

. 1

2. 11 ;

. 3 ... 3

100

3.38

т : 25

1.5

. . .

. . .

ي در پ

i -. 1

100

3. . !

غوا ا

-10

4

0

, y

75

d

) pê .

je 調

11

money had and received, although he had not had notice of the dishonour(h). I. Of Non-In such a case as that of Rucker v. Hiller, where the bill was refused ac-payment, ceptance, because the goods did not answer the sample, it should seem un- sary Proreasonable to allow the drawer to keep the goods and not pay the holder(i); ceedings and in a work of high authority it is suggested, that if the drawer got back thereon. the goods, he would be liable to the extent(k). *But we have seen, that [*449] where the drawer, apprehending that the bill would be dishonoured, placed other money which he had of the drawee's in the hands of an indorser, on his undertaking to return it when he should have been exonerated from the bill, the neglect of the holder to give due notice was not excused, because the drawer, having such money in hand, was not justified in applying it in taking up the bill, unless he had notice of the dishonour. (l).

The death(m), known bankruptcy(n), or known insolvency(o), of the Death, drawee or acceptor, or maker of a note, or an offer of composition by the Bankruptacceptor not acceded to, with a declaration, in the presence of the drawer Excuse. and holder, that he (the acceptor) had not and should not provide for the (h) Corney v. Da Costa, 1 Esp. Rep. 203, (Chit. j. 538), as observed upon in Brown v. Maffey, 15 East, 222, (Chit. j. 852); and see Baker v. Birch, 3 Campb. 107, (Chit. j. 848); post, 149; Bayl. 5th edit. 303.

(i) Rucker v. Hiller, 16 East, 43; ante, 446, note (t)

(k) Bayl. 5th edit. 296

(1) Clegg v. Cotton, 3 B. & P. 239, (Chit. j. 657).

(m) Poth. pl. 146; 1 Pardess. 450; see ante, 357.

(n) Russell r. Langstaffe, Dougl. 497, 515, (Chit. j. 415); Esdaile v. Sowerby, 11 East, 114, (Chit. j. 767); Ex parte Wilson, 11 Ves. 412, (Chit. j. 720); Boultbee r. Stubbs, 18 Ves. 21; Whitfield v. Savage, 2 Bos. & Pul. 279, (Chit. j. 630); Thackray r. Blackett, 3 Campb. 165, (Chit. j. 849); Rohde r. Proctor, 4 Bar. & Cres. 517; 6 Dow. & Ry. 610, (Chit. j. 1269); Ex parte Johnston, 1 Mont. & Ayr. 622; 3 Dea. & Chit. 433, S. C.; Baker r. Birch, 3 Campb. 107, (Chit. j. 848), accord.; Ex parte Smith, 3 Bro. C. C. 1, (Chit. j. 457), contra. See ante, 354, 355.

In Russell r. Langstaffe, Dougl. 497, 515, (Chit. j. 415), Lee said, arguendo, that it had frequently been ruled by Lord Mansfield at Guildhall, that it is not an excuse for not making a demand on a note or bill, or for not giving notice of non-payment, that the drawer or acceptor has become a bankrupt, as many means may remain of obtaining payment by the assistance of friends or otherwise; and Lord Mansfield, who was in court, did not deny the assertion. This dictum was also referred to arguendo in Bickerdike v. Bollman, 1 T. R. 408, (Chit. j. 435).

In Nicholson v. Gouthit, 2 H. Bla. 609, (Chit. j. 556), Eyre, C. J. said, "It sounds harsh that a known bankruztry should not be equivalent to a demand or notice; but the rule is to strong to be dispensed with."

Esdaile r. Sowerby, 11 East, 114, (Chit j. 767). Indorsees of a bill, drawn by Cheetham upon Hill, payable to defendants, and by them indorsed to plaintiffs, verdict for plaintiff, subject to a case. The bill, which was payable in London, became due on Saturday, 20th February, and was then dishonoured. By a mistake the notice of non-payment was not given to the defendants till the 27th, whereas it ought to have been given on the 24th, and payment was refused, on the ground of these laches. Before the bill became due the drawer had stopped payment and become bankrupt, and the acceptor was insolvent. The drawer had himself apprised the defendant of his situation at the time of his stopping payment, and that this bill would not be paid, and they knew that the acceptor had no funds but such as the drawer furnished him with; and on the 25th February they admitted to the plaintiff's agent, that they knew of the insolvency of the drawer and acceptor. It was contended that notice of the dishonour was unnecessary. But the court was clear that the insolvency of the drawer and acceptor, and the knowledge of it, did not dispense with the necessity of giving notice of the dishonour of the bill to the defendants. And Lord Ellenborough said, "It is too late now to contend that the insolvency of the drawer or acceptor dispenses with the necessity of a demand of payment or of notice of the dishonour."

Boultbee v. Stubbs, 18 Ves. 21. The Lord Chancellor, after deciding that indulgence to the principal, by taking a mortgage and giving time, discharges the surety, though such conduct may be for the benefit of the surety, said, "It is in most cases for the advantage of the surety, but the law takes so little notice of that circumstance, that if the acceptor of a bill becomes bankrupt, the holder must give notice to the drawer, as another person has no right to judge what are his remedies, and the original implied contract being, that as far as the nature of the original security will admit, the surety paying the debt shall stand in the place of the creditor."

(o) Ante, 354, 355, and supra, note (n). In Baker r. Birch, 3 Campb. 107, (Chit. j. 848), the acceptor told the drawer before the bill became due that he could not pay it, and that the drawer must give the latter five guin-

ì

and necessary Proceedings thereon. Notice of Non-payment necessary or not; Consequences of Omission; and what excuses such Omission. [*450]

1. Of Non- bill(p), or his being in prison(q), or the notorious stopping payment of a payment, banker(r), constitute no excuses, either at law or in equity, or in bankruptcy, for the neglect to give due notice of non-acceptance or non-payment;(1) because many means may remain of obtaining payment by the assistance of friends or otherwise, of which it is reasonable that *the drawer and indorsers 1st, When should have the opportunity of availing themselves, and it is not competent to the holders to shew that the delay in giving notice has not in fact been prejudicial(s). It has been observed, that it sounds harsh that the known bankruptcy of the acceptor should not be deemed equivalent to a demand or notice, but the rule is too strong to be dispensed with; and a holder of a bill has no right to judge what may be the remedies over of a party liable on a bill(t). It is no excuse that the chance of obtaining any thing upon the remedy over was hopeless—that the person or persons against whom that remedy would apply were insolvent or bankrupts, or had absconded. Parties are entitled to have that chance offered to them; and if they are abridged of it, the law, which is founded upon the usage and custom of merchants, says they are discharged (u). Nor can evidence of a parol agreement, not to require payment at the appointed time, be received to excuse the neglect to give due notice(x); for we have seen that such a stipulation would not be available as a defence, and being inoperative for that purpose, it ought to be equally so as an excuse for laches (y). And an agreement between the parties to a bill, that it should not be put in suit till certain estates were sold, isno excuse for want of notice (z). Nor will the circumstance of the drawee's having informed the drawer, before the bill was presented for acceptance or became due, that he could not honour it, be a sufficient excuse for not giv> ens towards it, and Lord Ellenborough held that the holder might recover the five guineas as money had and received, but no more. (p) Ex parte Bignold, 2 Mont. & Ayr. 633;

1 Dea. 712, S. C. (q) Per Lord Alvanley, C. J. in Haynes v. Birks, 3 B. & P. 601, (Chit. j. 690).

(r) Camidge v. Allenby, 6 Bar. & Cres. 282; 9 Dow. & Ry. 391, (Chit. j. 1319); Henderson v. Appleton, ante, 356, 357.
(s) Esdaile v. Sowerby, 11 East, 114, (Chit.

767); Russell v. Langstaffe, Dougl. 515, (Chit. j. 415); Bickerdike v. Bollman, 1 T. R. 408, (Chit. j. 435); De Berdt v. Atkinson, 2 Hen. Bla. 336, (Chit. j. 526); Nicholson v. Gouthit, 2 H. Bla. 612, (Chit. j. 556); and admitted by the court in Warrington v. Furbor, 8 East, 245 to 247, (Chit. j. 733); Cory v. Scott, 3 B. & Ald. 623, (Chit. j. 1081); and see reasons in Rohde v. Proctor, 4 Bar. & Cres. 517; 6 D. & Ry. 610, (Chit. j. 1269).

(t) Per Eyre, C. J. in Nicholson v. Gouthit, 2 Hen. Bla. 609; and per Lord Eldon, in Boultbee v. Stubbs, 18 Vcs. 21.

(u) Per cur. in Rohde v. Proctor, 4 Bar. & (a) xer cur. in Konge r. Proctor, 4 Bar. & Cres. 517; 6 D. & Ry. 610, (Chit. j. 1269).
(x) Free v. Hawkins, 8 Taunt. 92; Holt, C. N. P. 550, (Chit. j. 1000); ante, 434, note (g); see also ante, 142 to 144.
(y) Id. ibid.

(z) Supra, note (x).

(1) Although some doubt once existed upon the subject, it seems now to be settled in the United States, that the bankruptcy or insolvency of the drawer of a bill or maker of a note, at the time when the note or bill was given or was payable, is no excuse for not giving notice of the non-payment to the indorser, even though the indorsement should have been for the tice of the non-payment to the indorser, even though the indorsement should have been for the mere accommodation of the drawer or maker. May v. Coffin, 4 Mass. Rep. 341. Farnum v. Fowle, 12 Mass. Rep. 89. Crossen v. Hutchinson, 9 Mass. Rep. 205. Sanford v. Dillaway, 10 Mass. Rep. 52. Jackson v. Richards, 2 Caines' Rep. 343. Bank of America v. Varden, 2 Dall. Rep. 78. Mallory v. Kirwan, 2 Dall. Rep. 192. Warder v. Carson's Executors, 2 Dall. Rep. 233. Bank of America v. Petit, 4 Dall. Rep. 197. Ball v. Dennis, 4 Dall. Rep. 168. And see Agan v. M'Manus, 11 John. Rep. 189. Hussey v. Freeman, 10 Mass. Rep. 34. Stothart v. Parker, Overt. Rep. 261. contra. Buck v. Cotton, 2 Conn. Rep. 126. See Barker v. Parker, 6 Pick. 80. Course & M'Farlane v. Shackleford, 2 Nott & M'Cord, 283.

I have the inderser of a note, proof of demand of, and due diligence to obtain payment from the maker, who was declared bankrupt, or was notoriously insolvent, is not necessary, nor is notice to the indorser. Clark v. Minton, 2 Brev. 185; but a reputed insolvency merely is not sufficient to excuse the omission to give notice. Kiddell v. Ford, 3 Id. 178. But an administrator of an indorser, appointed before the maturity of the note, and who has given notice of such appointment, is entitled to the same notice as his intestate would have been.

Oriental Bank v. Blake, 22 Pick. 206. }

3117.1

1

11.4

...

1. xi

.: 7 · · · " 317

; · · y

1.

1 30

. ti

) Y 1.51

71.2

di

11 . 1

: ** : !*

s jf. M

٠.

141

1 ķ

ø

And where A., to accommodate B., lent him a bill drawn I. Of Noning notice (a). by himself upon and accepted by C., who had effects of his in his hands, Payment, and B. indorsed it to D., who indorsed it over; and the day before the bill and necessary Probecame due B. paid the amount to A., who, on hearing that C. had failed, ceedings gave B. a check for the amount of the bill, and sent him with it to D. to en- thereon. able him to pay the bill when due; and four days after that time A., learning 1st, When that payment had not been demanded, desired D. not to pay the bill, as no Notice of notice of non-payment had been given by the holder, and offered to indemnimeat necmeat necfy him, notwithstanding which D. afterwards paid the bill; it was holden, county or first, that D. paid the bill in his own wrong; and, secondly, that A. was en- not; Contitled to recover back the money paid into the hands of D. by B. in an acof Omistion for money had and received (b). Again, in Esdaile v. Sowerby (c), it sion; and was held, that though the indorsers of a bill of exchange had full knowledge what exof the bankruptcy of the drawer and of the insolvency of the acceptor before Omission. the bill became due, and that it was impossible it *could be paid, yet that [*451] they were discharged by the holders not giving them due notice, on account of a mistake, by mis-directing a letter containing such notice.

But where the drawer of a bill, a few days before it became due, stated What to the holder that he had no regular residence, and that he would call and amounts to see if the bill had been paid by the acceptor, it was held that he was not en- sation with titled to notice of its dishonour, he having thus dispensed with it(d); and an Notice. order by the drawer to the drawee not to pay the bill, if presented, dispenses with notice of dishonour, though not with the presentment itself(e); and if the drawer, on being applied to by the holder, before the bill is due, to know if it will be paid, answer, that it will not, he is not entitled to notice of nonpayment(f): and where one of several drawers of a bill was also the acceptor, it was held, in an action against the drawers, that proof of these circumstances dispensed with the necessity for proving that notice of non-payment was in fact given, because notice to one of several joint drawers of a bill is sufficient, and the acceptor being himself a drawer, he had notice of his own default(p)(1).

(a) Nicholson v. Gouthit, 2 Hen. Bla. 612, (Chit. j. 556); Staples v. Okines, 1 Esp. Rep. 332, (Chit. j. 544); Ex parte Bignold, 2 M. & A. 63; ante, 449, note (p). In Esdaile r. Sowerby, 11 East, 117, (Chit. j. 767), Lord Ellenborough observed, that as to the knowledge of the dishonour being equivalent to due notice of it given to him by the holder, the case of Nicholson v. Gouthit is so decisive an authority against that doctrine, that we cannot enter even into the discussion of it.

(b) Whitfield v. Savage, 2 B. & P. 277, (Chit. j. 630); Clegg v. Cotton, 3 B. & P. 239, (Chit j. 657); but see Brett v. Levett, 13 East, 213, 214, (Chit. j. 820), as to an acknowledgment by a drawer before the bill became due that he knew it would not be paid, post, 451,

(c) 11 East, 114, (Chit. j. 767); ante, 449, note (n); but see Brett v. Levett, 18 East, 213, 214, (Chit. j. 820), post, 451, note (f).

(d) Phipson v. Kneller, 4 Campb. 285; 1

Stark. 116, (Chit. j. 946).
(e) Hill v. Heap, Dowl. & Ry. C. N. P. 57, but quære the distinction. See also Prideaux v. Collier, 2 Stark. Rep. 57, (Chit. j. 989); see post, 5thly, By whom Notice must be given.

(f) Brett v. Levett, 13 East, 214, (Chit. j 820); Burgh v. Legge, 5 M. & W. 418; post,

(g) Porthouse v. Parker and others, 1 Camp. 82, (Chit. j. 741), in which Lord Ellenborough held, that the plaintiff was not bound to prove that the defendant had received express notice of the dishonour of the bill, which must necessarily have been known to one of them, and the knowledge of one was the knowledge of all. But if there was any fraud in the transaction, a different rule would prevail; per Lord Ellenborough in Bignold v. Waterhouse, 1 Maule & 8. 259.

⁽¹⁾ The doctrines in some of the cases cited in this section, do not seem easily reconcileable; it will be necessary for the judicious reader carefully to weigh and consider them. Many decisions have occurred in the United States on the same questions. It seems to be generally acknowledged that the want of effects in the hands of the drawee will be a sufficient excuse as

I. Of Nonpayment. and neces sary Proceedings thereon.

In general, the drawer will, as already observed, be at liberty to rebut the presumption that he could not have been damnified, raised by the proof of his having no effects in the hands of the drawee, by proving that he has real-against the drawer for not giving him notice of the non-acceptance or non-payment of a bill. 1st, When Hoffman r. Smith, 1 Caines' Rep. 157. Tunno v. Lague, 2 John. Cas. t. Frothingham r. Notice of Price's Ex., 1 Bay's Rep. 291. Warder v. Tucker, 7 Mass. Rep. 449. So, the drawer, having no funds in the hands of the acceptor, or having withdrawn them without giving notice of the bill, and intercepting all other funds before they reach the acceptor, is not entitled to strict notice of non-payment; because he had no right to expect that the bill would be honored. Valk v. Simmons, 4 Mason, 113. See Van Wart v. Smith and Holly, 1 Wend. 219. But if the drawer have a right to draw in consequence of engagements between himself and the drawee, or in consequence of engagements made to the drawce, or from any other cause, he ought to be considered as drawing upon funds in the hands of the drawee, and as therefore entitled to strict notice. French v. Bank of Columbia, 4 Cranch, 141. The Court of King's Bench have also recently declared that a bona fide reasonable expectation of assets in the hands of the drawee had been several times held to be sufficient to entitle the drawer to notice of the dishonor, though such expectation may have ultimately failed of being realized. Reuker r. Hiller, 16 East's Rep. 43. And if a note be made for the accommodation of the indorser, and the money raised on it by a discount in the market, is in fact received by him, he may be considered as a drawer without funds in the hands of an acceptor, and not entitled to notice of non-payment by the maker, 4 Cranch, 141. Agan v. M'Manus, 11 John. Rep. 180. But the same reasons do not appear to exist where the note has been mude and discounted for the accommodation of the maker; and the indorser is in such case therefore entitled to strict notice, 4 Cranch, 141. And an indorser of a bill for the accommodation of the drawer is in all cases entitled to strict notice, although the drawee had no effects of the drawer in his hands. Warder v. Tucker, 7 Mass Rep. 449. borough v. Harris, 1 Bay's Rep. 177. Frothingham v. Price's Ex. 1 Bay's Rep. 291. May v. Coffin, 4 Mass. Rep. 341. Brown v. Maffley, 15 East's Rep. 216. Hussey v. Freeman, 10 Mass. Rep. 86. But where the drawee of a bill refused to accept or pay, notice need not be given to the indorser, if the bill was drawn and indorsed for the accommodation of the drawer, with the knowledge of the indorser, and there being no expectation that the bill would be paid by the drawee. Farmers' Bank v. Vanmeter, 4 Rand, 553.

Non-payment necessary or not; Consequences of Omission; and what excuses such Omission.

Where a bill was drawn, accepted and indorsed, by several indorsers, for the accommodation Farmers' Bank v. Vanmeter, 4 Rand, 553.

of the last indorser, and the drawee had no effects in his hands, but this fact was not known to the defendant, who was a prior indorser, it was held that the defendant could not be charged without strict notice of the dishonour of the bill, because he would on payment have been entitled to call upon the last indorser, for whom he was, in fact, security. Brown r. Maffey, 15

East, 216.

And a person, who, without consideration, but without fraud, indorses a bill, in which both drawer and acceptor are fictitious persons, is entitled to strict notice, for he has only placed himself in the situation of a common indorser. Leach v. Hewitt, 4 Taunt. Rep. 731.

When upon a bill payable at so many days after sight, the holder presents the bill for acceptance, and elects to consider what passes on such presentment as a non-acceptance, (though in strictness he might have otherwise acted,) and protests the bill for non-acceptance, he is bound by such election, as to all the other parties to the bill, and must give due notice to them of the dishonor accordingly, otherwise they will be discharged. Mitchell v. Degrand, 1 Mason's Rep. 176.

It lies on the holder of a bill to prove that the drawer had no effects in the hands of the drawee in order to excuse the want of notice. Baxter v. Graves, 2 Marsh. 152.

The drawer of a bill is entitled to notice of its dishonour though the drawee be not indebted to him when the bill was drawn or fell due, provided the drawer had reasonable ground to believe that it would be honored, and a written authority from the drawee to the drawer for the latter to draw is sufficient ground. Austin v. Rodman, 1 Hawks, 194.

Where the drawer of a hill is a partner of the house or firm on which it is drawn, it is not necessary for the holder to prove that notice of its dishonor was given to the drawer. Gowan v.

Jackson, 20 Johns. 176.

Where a demand cannot be made on the drawer, notice must nevertheless be given to the indorser, and that within as short a period after having ascertained that the demand could not be made as if the demand had been made. Price v. Young, 1 M'Cord, 399. See Galpin v.

Hard, 3 M'Cord, 394. Barker v. Parker, 6 Pick. 80.

Where there are any funds of the drawer in the hands of the drawee, or if at the time the bill is drawn there are circumstances sufficient to induce a reasonable expectation that the bill will be accepted or paid, the drawer is entitled to notice of its dishonor, and to due diligence in the presentment of it. Robinson v. Ames, 20 Johns. 146. Thus where there were dealings and an open account between the drawer and the drawee and the latter had received considerable shipments of cotton from the drawer, and accepted previous bills, but on account of a fall in the price of the cotton its value was not equal to the amount of the accepted bills, and the last bill drawn was therefore protested for want of funds, it was held that the drawer was entitled to no-1bid.

Notice of non-payment must be given back to the indorser, in order to charge him, notwithstanding the insolvency of the maker. Nash v. Harrington, 2 Aikin, 9.

111.

2.55

₹.⊾

٠ ٨

. 4

, ,

1. 3

ly sustained damage(h); and a surety for the acceptor, who has been obliged L of Nonto pay the amount of the bill in consequence of the acceptor's bankruptcy, payment, need not, in an action against him for money paid, prove the due present-and neces ment of the bill, &c. (i).

ceedings

A party may, by his own agreement, dispense with the necessity of no-thereon. tice of dishonour; and where the drawer and indorser of a bill of exchange 1st, When entered into a bond, conditioned to pay the bill within one month after it be- Notice of came due, if not paid by the acceptor, they were held not entitled to notice Non-payof dishonour(k); but, as we have just seen, an agreement between the par- country or ties to a bill not to put it in suit till certain estates were sold, is no excuse(1). not; Con-In an action by the indorsee against the drawer of a bill, the plaintiff did not sequences of Omisprove any notice of dishonour to the defendant, but gave in evidence an sion; and agreement made between a prior indorser and the drawer after the bill be- what excame due, which recited that the defendant had drawn money on the bill in Cuses such Omission. question—that it was over-due, and ought to be in the hands of the prior indorser—and that it was agreed that the latter should take the money due to him upon the bill by instalments; it was held that this was evidence that the drawer was at that time liable to pay the bill, and dispensed with other proof of notice of dishonour (m)(1).

*A neglect or delay to give, or delay in giving immediate notice, may al- Delay in so be excused by some other circumstances. Thus, the absconding or ab-giving Nosence of the drawer or indorser may excuse the neglect to advise him(n); excused. and the sudden illness or death of the holder or his agent, or other acci-[*452] dent(o), or forcible obstruction(o), may constitute an excuse for the want of a regular notice to any of the parties, provided it be given as soon as possible

(h) Ante, 448; but see Rogers v. Stephens,

2 T. R. 713, (Chit. j. 446).
(i) Warrington v. Furbor, 8 East, 242; 6

Esp. 89, S. C.

(k) Murray v. King, 5 B. & Al. 165, (Chit. j. 1119). See Soward v. Palmer, 2 Moore, 274. (Chit. j. 1025).

(1) Free v. Hawkins, S Taunt. 92; Holt, C. N. P. 550, (Chit. j. 1000); ante, 450, note (x).

(m) Gunson and others v. Metz, 1 B. & C.

193; 2 D. & Ry. 334, (Chit. j. 1168).
(a) Walwyn v. St. Quintin, 2 Esp. Rep. 516; 1 B. & P. 652, (Chit. j. 578); Bul. N. P. 273, 274; and see Crosse v. Smith, 1 Maule & S. 545, (Chit. j. 886); Bowes v. Howe, 5 Taunt. 30, (Chit. j. 892).

(0) There is no reported case deciding whether accident will excuse a delay in giving notice of non-acceptance or non-payment. In Hilton r. Shepherd, 6 East, 16, in notes, (Chit. j. 710), Garrow and Russell contended, that whether due notice has been given in reasonable time, must, from the necessity of the thing, be a question of fact for the consideration of the jury; that it depended upon a thousand combinations of circumstances, which could not be-reduced to rule; if the party were taken ill, if .. he lost his senses, if he were under duress, &c. how could laches be imputed to him? Suppose he were prevented from giving notice, within the time named, by a physical impossibility. Such a rule of law must depend upon the distance, upon the course of the post, upon the state of the roads, upon accidents, all which it is absurd to imagine. Lord Kenyon, C. J. "I cannot conceive how this can be a matter of law. I can understand that the law should require that due diligence shall be used, but that it should be laid down that the notice must be given that day or the next, or at any preciso time, under whatever circumstances, is, I own, beyond my comprehension. I should rather have conceived, that whether due diligence had er had not been used was a question for the jury to consider, under all the circumstances of the accident, necessity, and the like. This, however, is a question very fit to be considered, and when it goes down to trial again I shall advise the jury to find a special verdict. I find invincible objections in my own mind to consider that the rule of law requiring due dili-gence is tied down to the next day." In Dar-

^{(1) {} An express waiver of protest dispenses with its necessity. Carmena v. Mix, 15 Louis. Rep. 165; but a mere admission of liability by the indorser will not charge him if he has not been duly notified. Barkalow v. Johnson, 1 Harr. 397. But an express promise to pay, made with full knowledge of the laches, will cure the same, 7 Port. 175. Whether a waiver of notice by the indorser the day before demand, saying he knew the bills would not be paid, will excuse the omission to give notice, see Burgh v. Legge, 5 Mee. & Wels. 418. See also Bush v. Hayes, 1 Irish Law Rep. 327; Creamer Perry, 17 Pick. 332; Hoover v. Glascock, 16 Louis. Rep. 242; M'Mshan v. Grant, Id. 479; Sussex Bank v. Baldwin, 2 Harr. 487; Tebbetts v. Dowd, 23 Wend. 379. >

and necessary Proceedings thereon.

I Of Non- after the impediment is removed. So the circumstance of an indorser himself having handed over to the indorsee the bill too late to make protest, or give notice in the time usually required, would preclude him from objecting to the delay (p). But absence from home in consequence of the dangerous illness of a near relative, is no excuse for not leaving there a competent agent to receive and forward notice (q).

Delay in

*The holder of a bill of exchange is also excused for not giving regular nogiving No- tice of its being dishonoured to an indorser, of whose place of residence he is ignorant(r), if he use reasonable diligence to discover where the indorser [*453] may be found(s)(1). And Lord Ellenborough observed, "When the hold> bishire v. Parker, 6 East, 3; 2 Smith, 195, (Chit. j. 707), it was held, that reasonable time is a matter of law for the court. In Poth. pl. 144, and Pardess. du Contrat de Change, pl. 426, it is considered that inevitable accident excuses delay, provided notice be given as soon as circumstances will admit; and it is stated that the death of a correspondent, to whom the bill has been sent for presentment, and a sudden accident happening to a messenger will excuse delay. In America the decisions are contradictory, whether the prevalence of a malig-nant fever, or epidemic, would excuse delay of notice during its continuance. Tunno v. Lague, 2 Johns. Cas. 1; Roosevell v. Woodhull, Anth. N. P. 35; Bayl. Amer. edit. 175. In Thompson on Bills, 548, the excuse as to accidents is laid down as in the above text, but that the accident must not be attributable to the holder's And in Young v. Forbes, Morrison, 1580; Thompson, 483, it is stated to have been the opinion of London merchants, that any cause preventing the holder, without his fault, from protesting the bill, as his detention by contrary winds, or sickness, would excuse him from protesting It certainly is not the practice among merchants of respectability to avail themselves of the neglect to give immediate no-tice of dishonour, where no loss has resulted from the delay.

(p) 1 Pardess. 451.
(q) Turner v. Leach, sittings at Guildhall, post, Hilary Term, 1818, cor. Lord Ellenbor-Assumpsit by the eleventh indorser of a bill of exchange against the eighth indorser, for default of pryment. It appeared that in due time, on the 4th September, 1817, the It appeared that returned bill, with notice of the dishonour, was left at the house or Richard Bennett, the tenth indorser, inclosed in a letter addressed to him. That in consequence of the dangerous illness of his wife at a distant place, he had, on the 1st September, left his house in care of a lad, who had no authority to open letters, intending to return on the 3d September, but that in consequence of the increased dangerous illness of his wife, he did not return till after the 8th September, on which day his brother opened the letter, and immediately gave notice of the dishonour of the bill to the plaintiff, who paid it, and then called upon the defendant, who insisted that he was discharged for want of earlier notice. It was urged for the plaintiff, that the dangerous illness of Richard Bennett's wife excused his absence from home, and the delay in giving notice of the dishonour, and that as the dishonour of a bill is contrary to the contract and expectation of the parties, there is no reason for requiring an indorser to be in the way, or to appoint an agent in his absence to provide for such an event. But Lord Ellenborough ruled that these circumstances constituted no excuse for the delay in giving notice. A case was reserved upon another point. See 4 Bar. & Ald. 451, (Chit. j. 1109); and Smith v. Mullett, 2 Campb. 208, (Chit. j. 775). Sed quære as to the doctrine, that the illness and consequent absence did not constitute a sufficient excuse in in this case. Is a party to a bill obliged to be at home, or have a competent agent there at all times, to forward notice of dishonour of a bill, which is an irregularity in breach of the im-pliet contract, as well of the drawer and indorsers as of the acceptor, that a bill should be duly honoured?

(r) Poth pl. 144; but a mistake in directing a letter is no excuse. Esdaile v. Sowerby, 11

East, 114, (Chit. j. 767); ante, 449, note (n).
(s) Bateman v. Joseph, 2 Campb. 461; 12
East, 433, (Chit. j. 801); ante, 337, note (s); Browning v. Kinnear, 1 Gow's Rep. 81, (Chit. j. 1054); post. 454, note (a). What is due diligence, see Harrison v. Fitzhenry, 3 Esp. R. 240. Quære, whether reasonable diligence is

The certificate of the notary who makes the protest is prima facie evidence that due diligence was used to find the residence of the maker and endorser of a note, and that notice to the endors-or was put in the post office. Delarigue v. Amet, 14 Louis. Rep. 437.

^{(1) {} Nichol v. Hill, 7 Yerg 305. The general rule is that a party is bound to exercise reasonable, not excessive diligence. Sussex Bank v. Baldwin, 2 Harrison, 487. Bank of Utica v. Bender, 21 Wend. 643; Roberts v. Mason, 1 Ala. Rep. (New Series) 373; Clark v. Bigelow, Inquiry made of such persons where a security is made payable as may reason-16 Maine, 246. ably be supposed to know the residence of the endorser, is diligent inquiry, in legal contempla-Marsh v. Barr, 1 Meigs, 68. Where there is no dispute as to the facts, what is reasonable diligence is a question of law for the court to determine. Bank of Utica v. Bender, 21 Wend. 643; Remer v. Downer, 23 id. 620. Contra. Thompson v. Bank of South Carolina, 3 Hill, 77.

3487

513

.; 13

+ 2

Ŗ

er of a bill of exchange does not know where the indorser is to be be found, I. Of Nonit would be very hard if he lost his remedy by not communicating immediate payment, notice of the dishonour of the bill; and I think the law lays down no such sary Prorigid rule.) The holder must not allow himself to remain in a state of passive ceedings and contented ignorance; but if he uses reasonable diligence to discover the thereon. residence of the indorser, I conceive that notice given as soon as this is dis- Delay in covered is due notice of the dishonour of the bill, within the usage and cus-giving Notom of merchants(t)." And where the traveller of A., a tradesman, receiv-tice, when ed in the course of business a promissory note, which he delivered to his excused. master, and the note having been returned to A. dishonoured, the latter, not Ignorance knowing the address of the next preceding indorser, wrote to his traveller, of resiwho was then absent from home, to inquire respecting it; it was held, that A. was not guilty of laches, although several days elapsed before he received an answer, and before he gave notice to the next party, as he had used due diligence in ascertaining his address(u); and a delay of two days, after ascertaining the residence, in forwarding notice has been excused, the holder and his attorney occupying that time (x). And it has been considered sufficient, when a promissory note has been dishonoured, to make inquiries at the maker's for the residence of the payer (y). But in a subsequent case it was held, that, to excuse the not giving regular notice of the dishonour of a bill to an indorser, it is not enough to shew that the holder, being ignorant of his residence, made inquiries upon the subject at the place where the bill was payable: he should have inquired of every other party to the bill, and have applied to all persons of the same name in the directory (z). However, applying to the last indorser, and last but *one, the day after the bill was due, [*454] to ascertain where the drawer lives, and on his not being in the way calling again the next day, and then giving the drawer notice, has been considered sufficient(a). And sending verbal notice to a merchant's counting-house is sufficient, and if no person be there in the ordinary hours of business, it is not necessary to leave or send a written one, nor is it nece sary to make in-in this case a question of fact or law? Sturges v. Derrick, Wightw. 76; 12 East, 433; 2 Campb. 461; 3 Campb. 262; 6 East, 3. As to what is reasonable diligence, see 4 Maule & S. 49. It is a mixed question of law and fact to be left to the jury after the judge has stated to them the law. See ante, 336, 337.

(t) Boteman v. Joseph, 2 Campb. 462; 12 East, 433, (Chit. j. 801). In this case the plaintiff received notice of dishonour on the 30th September, and did not give notice to the defendant until the 4th October; and see Browning v. Kinnear, Gow's Rep. 81, (Chit. j. 1054). (u) Baldwin r. Richardson and another, 1 Bar. & Cres. 245; 2 D. & Ry. 285, (Chit. j.

(x) Firth v. Thrush, 8 Bar. & Cres. 387; 2 M. & Ry. 359; Dans. & Ll. 151, (Chit. j.

(y) Sturges v. Derrick, Wightw. R. 76, (Ch. j. 800).

(z) Beveridge r. Burgis, 8 Campb. 262, (Chit. j. 870). Indersee against inderser of a bill. The plaintiff had given the defendant no notice of its dishonour till several months after it became due; the excuse alleged for this omission was, that the plaintiff was ignorant of the defendant's address, which did not appear upon the bill, but the only evidence adduced to shew that he had used any diligence to discover this, was, that he had made inquiries upon the subject at a house in the Old Bailey, where the bill was made payable by the acceptor. Lord Ellenborough, "Ignorance of the indorser's residence may excuse the want of due notice, but the party must shew that he has used reasonable diligence to find it out. Has he done so here? How should it be expected that the requisite information should be obtained where the bill was payable? Inquiries might have been made of the other persons whose names appeared upon the bill, and application might have been made to persons of the same name with the defendant, whose addresses are set down in the directory. Ignorance may excuse notice, but reasonable diligence must be used to obtain knowledge." Plaintill nonsuit-

(a) Browning r. Kinnear, Gow's Rep. 81, 'hit. j. 1054). The defendant indorsed to (Chit. j. 1054). Newman, he to Maberly, he to Chesterman, and he to plaintiff. The bill became due 23d November; on 24th plaintiff applied to Chesterman to know where defendant lived. Chesterman could not tell, and referred him to Maberly. He called on Maberly at 4 P. M., but Maberly not being at home, he did not call again till next morning, and then Maberly gave him the information, and he gave notice to defendant. Dallas, C. J. left the question of rea-

But in the

ф case of the bankruptcy of a drawer or indorser, notice of the dishonour must

I. Of Non-quiries after the party so as to give him notice elsewhere (b)(1). payment, and necessary Proceedings thereon.

sonable diligence to the jury, stating his opinion that due diligence had been observed. (b) Goldsmith and others v. Bland and othif they thought the defendants ought to have had somebody in the counting-house at the time, he was of opinion that the plaintiffs had done all that was necessary by sending their clerk; that the notice was in law sufficient, if the time

ers, cor. Lord Eldon, 1st March, 1800, Bayl. 5th edit. 246, (Chit. j. 626). The plaintiffs Delay in giving Notice, when sued the defendants as indorsers of two foreign bills, and to prove notice the plaintiffs shewed excused. that they sent a clerk to the defendants' counting-house, near the Exchange, between four and five o'clock in the afternoon; nobody was in the counting-house; the clerk saw a servant girl at the house, who said that nobody was in the way, and he returned, having left no mes-sage with her. Lord Eldon told the jury, that was regular, whether the defendants were solvent at the time or not. The jury thought the defendants ought to have had somebody in the counting-house at the time, and that the plaintiffs had done all that was necessary. for the plaintiffs, for 1633l.

Crosse v. Smith, 1 Maule & S. 545, (Chit. i. 886). Notice to the drawers of non-payment of a bill of exchange, by sending to their counting-house during the hours of business on two successive days, knocking there, and making noise sufficient to be heard by persons within, and waiting there several minutes, the inner door of the counting-house being locked, is sufficient without leaving a notice in writing, or sending by the post, though some of the drawers lived at a small distance from the place. See also Bowes v. Howe, 5 Taunt. 30, (Chit. j. 892); ante, 355, note (p).

(1) Where the holder, who was ignorant of the indorser's residence, sent the notice to A. who was acquainted with it, requesting him to add to the direction the indorsee's place of residence, it was held, that reasonable diligence had been used. Hartford Bank v. Stedman, 3 Conn. Rep. 489.

It is not incumbent on the indorser of a promissory note to show the holder where the maker is to be found, so that he may make a demand on the maker, where no application is made to him by the holder. Duncan v. M'Cullough, 4 Serg. & Rawle, 480.

If the maker of a promissory note is not to be found when the note becomes due, a demand on him of payment is not necessary in order to charge the indorser. But it is necessary to prove either a demand, or due diligence in endeavoring to make a demand. Duncan v. M'Cullough, 4 Serg. & Rawle, 480.

When the holder of a bill was ignorant of the drawer's place of residence, but it appeared that he had not used due diligence to make inquiry, a notice put into the post office directed to a place other than that in which the drawer lived, was held to be insufficient. Barnwell v. Mitchell, 3 Conn. Rep. 1. The failure of a bank holding a bill payable after date for collection, to give notice to the drawer, that the drawee was not found at home, when called upon to accept the bill, will not discharge the drawer. Bank of Washington v. Triplett, 1 Peters, 25.

So where the notary called at the house of the indorser, which was shut up and the door locked, and was informed that the indorser and his family had left town, on a visit; but whether for a day, week, or month, he did not know, nor did he inquire. He made use of no further diligence to ascertain whither the indorser had gone, or whether he left any agent in town. He also left a notice at the house of the next neighbor, with a request that it might be delivered to the indorser when he should return: Held, that this was sufficient diligence to charge the indorser. Williams v. Bank of the United States, 2 Peters, 96, 100. See Galpin v. Hard, 3 M'Cord, 894.

And where the drawer of a bill or maker of a note, has removed from the place where the instrument represents him to reside, or where he resided when it was drawn, the holder is bound to use reasonable diligence to find out the place to which he has removed, and if he succeed, he must present it for payment, to charge the indorser. Id.

In Maine, it has been determined, that where the residence of the drawer of a bill is unknown to the holder, he ought to inquire of the other parties to the bill, if their residence is known to

Hill v. Varrell, 3 Greenl. 233. Where a note is payable at a bank, it is not necessary to make any personal demand of the maker elsewhere. Bank of the United States v. Carneal, 2 Peters, 543 A promissory note was made at Georgetown, payable at the Bank of Columbia in that town; the indorser living in the county of Alexandria within the district of Columbia, and having what was alleged to be a place of business, in the city of Washington; and notice of non-payment, inclosed in a letter and superscribed with his name, was put into the post-office at Georgetown, addressed to him at that place. Held, that the notice was sufficient to charge the indorser. Bank of Columbia v. Lawrence, 1 Peters, 578. Q notice of dishonor by a special messenger. Id. Quere as to the necessity and propriety of sending Notice of non-payment must be given to the indorser of a promissory note, indorsed after due, as in any other case. Course & M'Farlane v. Shackleford, 2 Nott & M'Cord, 283. Poole v. Tolleson, 1 M'Cord, 199. Stockman v. Riley, 2 M'Cord, 398.

If the maker of a promissory note be absent when it falls due, demand should be made at his domicil if he have any; otherwise, diligent search for him will be sufficient. Whittier v. Graffam, 8 Greeni. 82.

m:

).: _ 3

Im b. 41.

1 1/2

.v 75 4 5 %

يتستا

e i es

100

J. 18

. 10

.....

2.1

7 12

-0,4

, 3

. 21

1 . 1

مري

; 50

7

7

¥

. 5

j.

11

1.

still be given to the bankrupt or his assignee(c); and if the bankrupt's house I. Of Noncontinue open, and the messenger of the assignees be in it, notice of the dis- payment, honour should be left there(d); though it does not appear to be absolutely and necessary Prosettled whether, in the event of the bankruptcy of a party entitled to notice, ceedings the holder is bound to endeavour to find out the assignees at all events.

The holder of a bill of exchange is also excused for not giving notice in Pablic the usual time, by the circumstance of the day on which he should regularly Feetival, have given notice being a public festival, on which he is strictly forbidden by Rest Day,

(c) Rohde v. Proctor, 4 Bar. & Cres. 517; 6 D. & By. 610, (Chit. j. 1269); Ex parte Johnston, 1 Mont. & Ayr. 622; 3 Dea. & C. 433, S. C.; Cooke's B. L. 168; Cullen's B. L. 100; Mont. B. L. 143, note; Eden's B. L. 132, acc.; Ex parte Smith, 3 Bro. C. C. 1, (Chit. j. 457), contra. (d) Rohde v. Proctor, 4 Bar. & Cres. 517; 6 D. & Ry 610, (Chit. j. 1269); Ex parte Johnston, 3 Mont. & Ayr. 622; 3 Dea. & Chit. 433, S. C.

A notice of protest need not state who was the holder of the bill. Shreive v. Duckham, 1 Litt. 194.

Two notes dated in October and fulling due in January and February following, were indorsed by the defendant, who was an Englishman, a master mariner and an unmarried man, having no botne in this country, and, when in England, residing in Liverpool. On the 12th of December, he wrote from Boston to the holder at Providence, that he should leave Boston in a day or two for Liverpool, but in fact he remained in Boston till the middle of March. The holder did not know of this fact nor of his residing in Liverpool, and sent no notice to him of the dishonour of the bill, neither did it appear that the holder made any inquiries for his residence. due diligence had not been used to give notice to the indorser. Hodges v. Galt, 8 Pick. Rep.

Notice of protest, sent to a town where a note bore date, where the officers of the bank were told by the person who presented it for discount the indorser resided, and where in fact he did reside until a few weeks previous to the date of the note, was held sufficient to charge the indors-Bank of Utica v. Davidson, 5 Wend. Rep. 587.

If the holder of a bill uses reasonable diligence to discover the residence of the indorser, notice given as soon as this is discovered, is due notice of the dishonour of the bill, within the usage and costom of merchants. Preston v. Dayson et al., 7 Louisiana Rep. 7.

When notice is directed to the post office nearest the residence of the indorser, that is proof that he received the notice. Dunlap v. Thompson & Dreunen, 5 Yerger's Rep.

So, where the indorser lived at A. five years before the note fell due, and the notary made diligent inquiry for his place of residence, and was informed it was at Paris, a notice directed to Paris will be sufficient, though the defendant might have removed his residence to B. a few days before the note fell due. Ibid.

But where the indorser lived at A., and the notice was directed to him at B., where he was supposed to have been when the note fell due, the charge of the Court, that if the jury believed it probable the defendant received notice at the latter place as soon as he would if the notice had been sent to the former, was held to be erroneous. Ibid.

If notice of protest is shown to have been sent to the indorser at a post office in the parish where he resides, it lies with him to show that there is another post office nearer to his residence.

Yeatman v. Erwin et al., 7 Miller's Louisiana Rep. 268.

According to the act of the legislature, passed the 13th March, 1827, concerning protests of bills and notes, whenever the notary certifies that after diligent inquiry for the residence of the party intended to be charged by notice, he is unable to find it, and has lodged the notice in the nearest post office, addressed to him at the place where the contract was made, it is deemed equivalent to a personal notice. Preston v. Dayson et al., 7 Louisiana Rep. 7.

The holder of a bill or note ought not to avail himself of the ignorance of the notary as to the residence of the indorsers, in giving them notice of protest; if he knows, he must disclose their residence, or it seems, that his neglect will discharge the indorsers.

Where the place of an indorser's residence is established at the time when a note having the usual time of bankable paper to run is discounted, and is at such a distance from the place of payment as to repel the presumption that a removal, (in case it happens before the note falls due,) would come to the knowledge of the holders, and no actual knowledge is brought home to them, a notice of demand and non-payment directed to such place of residence is sufficient, although the indorser has in fact, in the mean time, become a resident of another place. Bank of Utica v. Phillips, 8 Wend. Rep. 408.

See further as to what is sufficient notice of dishonor, Strange v. Price, 2 Per. & Day. 278; Messenger v. Southey, 1 Scott's New Rep. 180; Brush v. Hayes, 1 Irish Law Rep. 327; S. C. 1 Gebb & Sig. 658; Lewis v. Gamperty, 6 Mec. & Wels. 339. Green r. Durling, 15 Maine,

141. } ia

01 ï

Ù

Ü

b ū Ś

bi

b

i

sary Proceedings thereon.

I. Of Non-his religion to attend to any secular affairs (e). And the time of protesting and giving notice where a bill or note falls due on Good Friday or Christmasday, proclaimed Fast or Thanksgiving-days, is expressly provided for in this country (f). So he is excused if the political state of a country renders it impossible to give *it(g)(1). But the loss or destruction of an accepted bill affords no excuse for the delay in giving notice of non-payment (h). And the misdirection by mistake of a letter giving notice of the dishonour will be no excuse for the consequent delay, unless it were attributable to the default of the drawer or indorser himself (i).

2dly, When Protest for Non-payment necessary or advisable, and mode of Protesting. *455]

As already observed, when treating of the protest for non-acceptance (k), the conduct which the holder must pursue on the dishonour of a foreign bill differs materially from that which he must adopt in the case of an inland bill. Whenever notice of non-payment of a foreign bill is necessary, a protest(1) must also be made, which, though apparently mere matter of form, is, by the custom of merchants, indispensably necessary, and cannot be supplied by witnesses or oath of the party, or in any other way(m), and, as it is said, forms part of the constitution of a foreign bill of exchange; because it is the solemn declaration of a notary, who is a public officer recognised in all parts of Europe, that a due presentment and dishonour have taken place, and all countries give credit to his certificate of the facts; and the mere production of this protest, without further proof of the signature or affixing of the seal (though not so if made here(n)) will, in the case of a bill payable and pro-

(e) Lindo v. Unsworth, 2 Campb. 602, (Ch. j. 824). Notice of the dishonour of a bill was sent to the plaintiff in London, the 8th of October, but he being a Jew, and the 8th of October being the day of the greatest Jewish festival throughout the year, on which all Jews are prohibited from attending to any secular affairs, gave no notice by the post of that day to the defendant, who lived at Lancaster, but sent it to him by the post of the 9th. Lord Ellenborough held, that the plaintiff was excused from giving notice on the Sth, on the ground of his religion, and that the notice sent off on the 9th was sufficient. The plaintiff had a verdict.

(f) 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 15; post, Time of giring Notice, &c.

(g) Patience v. Townley, 2 Smith's Rep.

223, (Chit. j. 714.) (h) Poth. pl. 125; Thackray v. Blackett, 3 Campb. 164, (Chit. j. 849); Manning's Index, 69.

(i) Esdaile v. Sowerby, 11 East, 114, (Chit. j. 767).

(k) Ante, 332, et seq.

(1) See the form, post, 462. In Scotland, inland as well as foreign bills must be protested, to entitle the holder to recover against the drawer and indorsers, even for the principal sum. Furguson and Co. v. Belsh, 17th June, 1803; Morr. App. to Bills, No. 13; Glen. 2d edit. 189. The Irish act, 9 Geo. 4, c. 24, s. 4, authorizes the protesting of inland bills above

(m) Rogers v. Stephens, 2 T. R. 713, (Chit. j. 446); Gale v. Walsh, 5 T. R. 239, (Chit. j. 506); Orr r. Magennis, 7 East, 359, 360; 2

Smith, 328, (Chit. j. 726); Brough v. Perkins, Ld. Raym. 993; 6 Mod. 80; 1 Salk. 131, (Chit. j. 223, 224); Bul. N. P. 271. A pro-test is the only legal notice in the case of a foreign bill. Per Lord Mansfield in Salomons v. Stavely, 3 Dougl. 298.

Rogers v. Stephens, 2 T. R. 713, (Chit. j. 446). In an action against the drawer of a foreign bill of exchange, it appeared that the bill had been noted for non-acceptance, but there was no protest, and this was pressed as a ground for nonsuit. Lord Kenyon admitted the objection, but upon the other circumstances thought this a case in which a protest was not necessary.

Gale v. Walsh, 5 T. R. 239, (Chit. j. 506). In an action against the drawer of a foreign bill it was reserved as a point, whether it was necessary to prove a protest for non-payment, and the court thought it is so clear, upon motion to enter a nonsuit, that they suggested to the plaintiff's counsel the expediency of making the rule absolute in the first instance, and upon their acquiescence, it was accordingly done; they afterwards, however, wished to have it opened, upon an idea that the drawer had no effects in the hands of the drawee; but it appearing upon the report that the idea was not well founded, the rule stood. And in Brough v. Perkins, Ld. Raym. 993; 6 Mod. 80; Salk. 131, (Chit. j. 228, 224), Holt, C. J. says, "A protest on a foreign bill is a part of the custom."

(n) Chesmere v. Noyes, 4 Campb. 129, (Chit. j. 929). A notarial protest under seal, is no evidence that a foreign bill has been presented for payment in England, ib. And see

^{(1) {} For instance a war between this country and the one where it is payable. But notice must be given within a reasonable time after peace. Hopkirk v. Page, 2 Brock. 20. >

4

340

34 M

. 13

ەر.

: 0

*

. 7

18

X.

tested out of this country, be evidence of the dishonour of the bill(0); and I. Of Nonon the other hand, if made here, all foreign courts give credit to it(p); and payment, it cannot be supplied by mere proof of noting for non-payment(1). A bill and necessary Prodrawn in Ireland upon England, is, we have seen, to be considered as a for-ceedings eign bill, and therefore must be protested for non-payment(q). But proof thereon. that the drawer had no effects in the hands of the drawee at the time of 2dly, drawing the bill, or *at any time afterwards, will in this country excuse the When want of a protest, as well as want of due notice, and prevent the drawer Non-payfrom being discharged (r). So a subsequent promise by drawer to pay the ment nebill may preclude him from availing himself of the want of a protest(s). cessary or However, it is not advisable, in any case, to omit protesting a foreign bill, advisable, and mode because in foreign courts they would probably not be entirely governed by of Protestthe exception allowed by our courts (t). If the drawer or indorser has re-ing. quested that in case of dishonour it shall be returned without protest, then [*456] we have seen that he cannot object to the want of it(u).

With respect to the protest, it should always be made according to the law of the place where the payment ought to have been made, though with regard to the notice of the dishonour it must be given to the drawer within the time, and according to the law of the place where the bill was drawn; and to the indorsers, according to the law of the places where their indorscments were made(x). In France any holder, whether lawfully so or not, may cause a valid protest to be made for non-acceptance, but a valid protest for non-payment can only be made by a lawful holder(y). However, a mere agent, authorised to receive payment, may cause the protest to be made(z).

As the English holder of a bill, drawn or indorsed in France, or other foreign country, may lose his remedy against such foreign drawer or indorser, unless he conforms to the law of the foreign country, it is material to inquire what is the law of that place. Thus, if the English holder neglect to observe the law of France as to the time of protest and notice, and proceed in a French court against the drawer or indorser there, and whose contract was there made, he will (at least in that country) lose his legal remedy against them, although he may have strictly observed all steps required by the law of England(a). On the other hand the French law does not assume to dictate what delay may be allowed in giving notice to and proceeding against Marin v. Palmer, 6 C. & P. 466, as to necesity of calling subscribing witness to English protest. See further, post, Part II. Ch. V. s. i. Evidence.

(0) Anon. 12 Mod. 345; Dupays r. Shepherd, Holt, 297; Chesmer v. Noyes, 4 Campb. 129, (Chit. j. 929); 2 Roll. Rep. 346; 10 Mod. 66; Peake Evid. 4th edit. 80, 74, in notes.

(p) Molloy, 281; Da Costa v. Cole, Skin.

272, pl. 1, (Chit. j. 179).
(q) Chaters v. Boll, 4 Esp. Rep. 48, (Chit. j. 636); and Mahoney v. Ashlin, 2 B. & Ad. 478; ante, 10.

(r) Orr v. Magennis, 7 East, 359; 2 Smith, 328, (Chit j. 720); Legge v. Thorpe, 2 Campb. 310; 12 East, 171, (Chit. j. 783); Gale v. Walsh, 5 T. R. 239, (Chit. j. 506); Chaters v. Bell, 4 Esp. Rep. 49, (Chit. j. 636).

(s) Patterson v. Becher, 6 Moore 319, (Chit. j. 1126); Gibbon v. Coggon, 2 Campb. 188,

(Chit. j. 774).

(t) Per Lord Ellenborough, in Legge v.
Thorpe, 12 East, 177, 178; 2 Campb. 310, (Chit. j. 783); 4 Pardess. 225, S. P.

(u) Ante, 165.

(x) 4 Pardess. 227, 230; Poth. pl. 155.

(y) 1 Pardess. 444.

(z) Id. 443, 444.

(a) 4 Pardess. 225, 226, 230, 231; 1 Pardess. 453 to 455; ante, 167 to 172, As to the Construction, &c. of Bills.

^{(1) {} Fleming v. M'Clure, 1 Brev. 429. But a protest is unnecessary in the case of an inland bill or note. Evans v. Gordon, 8 Port. 142; Gilman r. Lewis, 15 Maine Rep. 452. Sale v. Branch Bank at Decatur, 1 Ala. Rep. N. S. 425. As to the proof of protest and what it is evidence of, See Halliday v. M Dougall, 20 Wend. 81. Smith v. Janes, Id. 192; Maccoun v. Atchafalaya Bank, 13 Louis. Rep. 342; Homes v. Smith, 16 Maine Rep. 181; Warren v. Warren, Id. 259; Poydras v. Bell, 14 Louis. Rep. 391; Delarigne v. Arnet, Id. 437. }

ĉН

æ fa:

61

Di

10

1

de

(ii

Ķ à

i

E

¥

and necessary Proceedings thereon.

2dly, When Protest for non-Payment necessary or advisable, and mode *457]

1. Of Non- a person who drew or indorsed a bill in England, or other foreign country, whose liabilities are regulated, and are to be given effect to (even in France), according to the law of England, or the other foreign country where there are conflicting regulations in different countries in regard to commerce(b). And if the French courts mistake the English law relating to an English bill transaction, their erroneous decree will not preclude a correct decision in the English courts, or prevent the holder from recovering here(c).

In France, if the bill has been drawn payable at a different place than the domicile of the drawee, the demand of the protesting officer should be made upon the person, and at the place pointed out by the acceptance. the acceptor of his own accord has accepted the bill payable elsewhere, the of Protest- bill must be there presented accordingly, so as to charge the acceptor and the indorsers (d).

It is also essential in France, in case of an acceptance for honour, *to present the bill to the original drawee, and also to such acceptor, and to protest for non-payment by each; and if a bill has been addressed to a third person "au besoin," a presentment and protest there also should be made(e).

On the subject of presentment and protest, it is laid dawn in the Code de Commerce, liv. i. tit. viii. s. xii. art. 173, as follows;—" Les protêts faute d'acceptation ou de paiement sont faits par deux notaires ou par un notaire et deux temoins ou par un huissier et deux temoins. Le protêt doit et re fait au domicile de celui sur qui la lettre de change était payable, ou à son dernier domicile connu; au domicile des personnes in diquées par la lettre de change pour la prayer au besoin; au domicile du tiers qui a accepté par intervention. Le tout par un seul et meme acte. En cas de fausse indication de domicile le protet est precédé d'un acte de perquisition (f)." And from the same authority, it appears that the instrument of protest itself must contain an exact copy of the bill, and state whether the drawee was presest or absent, and the reason, if any assigned, for non-payment, and it seems that in all other respects it should resemble an English protest(g).

Modes of Protesting in England.

In this country, when the drawee, on presentment of the foreign bill on the morning of the day when it falls due, refuses or neglects to pay the same, the holder, or some other person if he be ill or absent (h), should cause it to

(b) 1 Pardess. 455; 4 Id. 197 to 235.

(c) Novelli v. Rossi, 2 Bar. & Adol. 757.

(d) 1 Pardess. 447.

(e) 1 Pardess. 447.

(f) Code de Commerce, liv. i. tit. viii. s. xii. art. 173; See Pailliet Man. de Droit Frangais; 1 Pardess. 444.

(g) 1 Pardess. 444. On a recent trial the following evidence was given by a French advocate of twenty years practice:

"There is no difference as to liability to the holder between the maker of a promissory note and the acceptor of a bill of exchange. The and the acceptor of a bill of exchange. The same law prevails as to both. The holder of the bill and the note have the same formalities to go through. The formality necessary to ena-ble the holder of a promissory note to recover against the maker is the protest, which is signed by a sheriff's officer or a notary, on the propo-sition of the last holder; and the protest must be in writing. A copy of these registers or acts must be kept, under a severe penalty. The protest must be made within twenty-four hours from the time of the note's becoming due, and it must contain a copy of the instrument. If the maker had become bankrupt, a protest is necessary, to have recourse against the indorser, and ought to be signified to the indorser within a fortnight previous to the protest. Payment of the note must be demanded at the residence of of the maker, or at the place of payment, if any is specified. If the party's residence differ from the place specified for payment, it is absolutely necessary to present it where it purports to be made, whether that is the residence of the maker or not. The protest must contain a statement that that has been done." Trimbey v. Vignier, 6 Car. & P. 25, 26. This case, however, was ultimately decided upon a different point, viz, the insufficiency of the indorsement; and the court expressed no opinion respecting the protest. See I Bing. N. C. 151; 4 Moore & S. 695; ante, 170, note (b), 225, 226, note (a).

(h) Molloy, b. 9, c. 10, s. 17. We have seen, that the absence of the holder from his

PART I

16 124

. .)

٠. ك

. . . 2

- 33

5.4

· . 3

: ::4

. 1154

1. 1

36

·V

, K

11 4

192

. 12

0.0

00

1 10

≰ 5

41.

er

25.

×

ij

٠,

For this purpose he should carry the bill to a notary(i), who I. Of Nonis to present it again to the drawee, and demand payment, which should, in Payment, case the bill was drawn on or accepted payable at a banker's, be during the sary Prousual hours of business, and in London ought not to be later than five ceedings o'clock (k); and if the drawee again refuse to pay, the notary is thereupon, in thereon. the first instance, to make a minute, consisting of his initials, the month, day 2dly, and year, and the reason, if assigned, for non-payment. The next step When which the notary is to adopt is to draw up the protest(1), which is a *formal Protest for declaration on production of the bill itself, if it can be obtained, or otherwise ment neon a copy(m), that it has been presented for payment, and how, and that cessary or payment was refused, and why, and that the holder intends to recover all advisable, damages and expenses which he or his principal, or any other party to the of Pro-The minute above testing. bill, may sustain on account of the non-payment (n). mentioned, made on the bill itself, is usually termed noting the bill, but this, [*458] Buller, J. observed, is unknown in the law, as distinguished from the protest, and is merely a preliminary step, and though it has grown into practice within these few years, it will not in any case supply the want of a protest(o), the demand of payment is the material thing. In case there be not any public notary at the place where the bill is dishonoured, it is expressly provided as to inland bills, that they may be protested for non-payment by any substantial person of that place, in the presence of two or more witnesses(p). It is said it should be made between sun-rise and sun-set. should in general be made in the place where payment is refused; but where a bill is drawn abroad, directed to the drawce at Southampton, or at any other place, requesting him to pay the bill in London, the protest for nonpayment, it is said, may be made either at Southampton or in London(q); but unless the bill has been specially accepted, payable at a particular place only, and not otherwise or elsewhere, the protest may always be made in the place to which it was addressed (r). We have seen, however, that since the 2 & 3 Will. 4, c. 98, bills made payable at a place other than the residence of the drawee may be protested in that place(s). A copy of the bill should, it is said, be prefixed to all protests, with the indorsements transcribed verbatim, and with an account of the reason given by the party why he does not honour the bill(t). Protests made in this country, must, in order to their being received in evidence, be written on paper stamped with an appropriate stamp (u).

residence or place of business, even on account of dangerous illness of a near relation, has been considered no excuse for delay, and that therefore some person in his absence should make protest, &c. Turner v. Lench, ante, 452, note (q).

(i) See the nature of this office explained in Burn's Eccl. Law, tit. Notary Public; and Brooke's Office of Notary; and see regulations in 41 Geo. 3, c. 79, as altered and amended by 8 & 4 Will. 4, c. 70, (Chit. Stat. 185; Chit. & H. Stat. 699. See also the King v. Scriveners' Company, 10 Bar. & Cress. 511, (Chit. j. 1481).

(k) Parker v. Gordon, 7 East, 385; 3 Smith,

358; 6 Esp. 41, (Chit. j. 727).
(1) Per Holt, C. J. in Buller c. Crips, 6 Mod. 29, (Chit. j. 222); Selw. N. P. 336, 9th

(m) Dehers v. Harriot, 1 Show. 164, (Chit. j. 485).

(n) Poth. pl. 84; Mall. 264; Mar. 16. (o) Per Buller, J. in Leftley v. Mills, 4 T. R. 175, (Chit. j. 473). In the case of inland bills, however, the noting is generally the only ceremony observed, and even this is not necessary. Rogers v. Stephens, 2 T. R. 713, (Chit. 446); Gale v. Walsh, 5 T. R. 239, (Chit. j. 506); Bul. N. P. 271; and see Orr v. Magennis, 7 East, 859; 2 Smith, 328, (Chit. j. 726).

(p) 9 & 10 Will. 3, c. 17, s. i.

(q) Mar. 107; ante, 333.

(r) See Mitchel v. Baring, 10 B. & C. 4; 4 Car. & P. 35; M. & M. 381, (Chit. j. 1454); ante, 347, note (u).

(s) Ante, 349. (t) Poth. pl. 135; 1 Pardess. 444.

(u) See 55 Geo. 3, c. 184, which repeals 44 Geo. 3, c. 98, and 48 Geo. 3, c. 149; post, I. Of Nonpayment. and NecessarvProceedings thereon.

tice, and whether a demand of Payment ry's Clerk will suffice.

In practice, in this country, the holder of bills or notes, whether foreign or inland, himself or by his agent presents the same for payment on the day they fall due, between nine in the morning and five in the evening, and if not paid he then sends all his foreign bills to a regular notary public, who sends one or more of his clerks round with such bills in the evening, to the re-'The Prac- spective drawces' residences, and then produces the bills, and again requires payment, and of the charges for noting, and if not paid he reports to his principal the terms of refusal, and the principal notary afterwards, at his leisure, or as soon as required, draws up his formal protest. There does not by a Nota- appear to be any decision in full court, whether or not such demand by the clerk of the notary is sufficient. Mr. Justice Buller, in the case of Leftley v. Mills(x), appears at least to have doubted whether the notary himself [*459] ought not to make the demand; but it may be observed, *that his observation was a mere dictum, as far as relates to the custom of merchants, or to foreign bills, for the case before the court related only to an inland bill, and to the construction of the statute 9 & 10 Will. 3, c. 17, s. 1. In France, the demand must be made by two notaries, or by one notary or one huissier, in the presence of two witnesses, but that is a mere local regulation, and not part of the general custom of merchants. In a former edition of this work, it was stated, "that the demand must, it is said, in the case of a foreign bill, be made by a notary public himself, to whom credit is given, because he is a public officer, and that it cannot be made by his clerk, and that such doctrine was sanctioned in a late case, in which the court observed, that the rule requiring the attestation of a notary public ought to be strictly observed(y)." But the practice of notaries in London and Liverpool, it appears, is in direct opposition to the supposed necessity for the notary public himself demanding payment. A correspondence took place upon this subject, which is stated in the note(z). It will be observed, that the statute 9

(x) 4 T. R. 175.

(y) Chitty on Bills, 7th edit. 216, 217, referring to Mr. Justice Buller's judgment in Leftley v. Mills, 4 'T. R. 175, (Chit. j. 473); and Ex parte Worsley, 2 II. Bla. 275, but adding a (z) The correspondence was as follows:-Liverpool, Castle Street, 6th October, 1829.

By the direction of a General Meeting of the Association of Liverpool Notaries, held on the 26th ult. I have the honour of addressing you, for the purpose of most respectfully drawing your attention to an inaccuracy or oversight in your Treatise upon Bills of Exchange, which, in the opinion of the Members of the Association, is calculated to mislead, and to create confusion.

In the 7th edition, p. 217, you state, that the presentment " in case of a foreign bill," must, it is said, be made by a notary public himself, to whom credit is given, because he is a public officer, and "cannot be made by his clerk." In support of this position, an observation is cited of Mr. Justice Buller, in Leftley v. Mills, 4 T. R. 175, (Chit j 473); but strange as it may seem, that case, far from supporting this position, actually arose not upon a foreign but upon an inland bill, and the point to be decided was, not as to the due presentment, but as to whether an inland bill, payable after sight, came within the provisions of the 9 & 10 Wil.

3, c. 17, so as to be entitled to the benefit of a protest; and the observation of Mr. Justice Buller, was a mere general one, that the demand of a foreign bill must be made by a notary, an expression perfectly common, and such as most men would use when not going into detail; but he no where draws the distinction between a presentment by a notary and a notary's clerk; neither does he venture to assert, that it cannot be made by his clerk. You proceed to state, that the doctrine in question was sanctioned by a late case, in which the court observed, that the rule requiring the attestation of a notary ought to be strictly observed, and quote Ex parte Worsley, 2 Hen. Bla. 275; a case which, so far from bearing out this position, arose upon the affidavit of acknowledgment of a warrant of attorney in a recovery, being sworn abroad, and not attested by a notary; and from one end of the case to the other, bills of exchange are neither mentioned nor alluded to

The fact is, that the presentment and protests of foreign bills in this country is entirely regnlated by mercantile custom, there not being any statute upon the subject; and commercial usage fully sanctions the presentment of them by notaries' clerks, both for acceptance and payment, and the protesting them upon such presentment. I can even go further, and observe, not only that by mercantile usage such presentment is correct and regular, and is al11 :

4

Geo. 4, c. 24, s. 13, *regulating the protesting of bills of exchange in Ire- 1. Of Nonland, states that the notary may present or cause the bill to be presented, payment, most invariably adopted, but that as far back as the memory of the oldest notary here can extend, it has always been the custom so to present them. Indeed, one gentleman, now a member of the Association, was, during his clerkship, once subpænaed and attended upon a trial in the King's Bench, at Guildhall, and was allowed by the late Lord C. J. Ellenborough to give evidence of such a presentment by him of

In fact, the commercial business must instantly come to a stand if a different rule prevailed; because it would be just as impossible for all the bills in this country to be presented in person by notaries as by bankers.

These observations will also apply to the remarks in p. 812, as to inland bills, where it is stated, that it is doubtful whether the clerk of a notary can, under the statute 9 & 10 Will. 3, c. 17, make the demand of payment. On examining the point closely, it will not appear doubtful; because, though that act authorizes the holders of inland bills in certain cases to cause them "to be protested by a notary public," it is completely silent as to the proper person to present them; the act, therefore, left the presentment to be regulated by commercial usage, and most indisputably, by the custom of merchants, it is quite sufficient to effect the presentment (as is almost always done) through the medium of the notary's clerk.

Permit me respectfully to remark, (though not exactly connected with the above points,) with reference to your observation in p. 312, that this act having directed a sum not exceeding sixpence to be charged for the protest, no larger sum can be demanded; that the clause in the act is considered as clearly repealed by the various stamp acts, particularly 55 Geo. 3, c. 184, which impose an ad valorem duty on protests of bills, on which the smallest duty is much more than sixpence.

I take the liberty of adding, that the Members of the Association are nearly all attornies, as well as notaries, and are desirous, in order to prevent confusion and doubt, that those inaccuracies should be rectified.

I have the honour of respectfully subjoining an extract of the resolutions of the meeting; and in the hope that you will not consider these suggestions as intrusive, and that you will not object to have these inaccuracies rectified in the next edition of the Treatise,

I remain, Sir, very respectfully, Your obedient Servant, RICHARD BROOKE, Secretary to the Association of Liverpool Notaries.

J. Chitty, Esq.

[Extract from the Resolutions of the Meeting of the Association of Liverpool Notarics, held on the 26th September, 1829.]

Resolved,-That it is the opinion of this Meeting, that there is an inaccuracy in that part of Mr. Chitty's Treatise on Bills of exchange which states to the effect, that it is incumbent ceedings upon notaries to present in person foreign bills thereon. of exchange prior to protesting them, and that the presentment by clerks will not suffice, is Corresponunfounded, and at variance with mercantile dence on

Resolved,-That such presentment by nota- of Presentries' clerks is correct, and is sanctioned by ment by a mercantile usage; and that the Secretary be Notary's instructed to adopt such measures, by corres- Clerk. pondence with Mr Chitty, personal interview, or otherwise, as may be deemed advisable, in order respectfully to point out such inaccuracy, and to solicit him to cause it to be rectified.

Mr. Chitty's Answer, 9th Oct. 1829.

Bir,

With respect to the supposed inaccuracy in the 7th edition of my Treatise on Bills, you will observe, that in p. 217, I state the position merely as the dictum of Mr. Justice Buller, and add, sed quære, a mode of asserting and supporting a legal proposition, which evidently denotes that the author gives it as the doctrine of others, without adopting it as his own opinion, or stating it as a settled point, so that, unless I am mistaken in assuming that Mr. Justice Buller, in Leftley r. Mills, 4 T. R. 175, so laid down the law, I am not guilty of any error. Now the report of that case states, that the bill was noted by a clerk of Lockart's who was a notary, and that Buller, J. said, "It is material too to consider by whom the demand was made in this case. I am not satisfied that it was a proper demand, for it was only made by the notary's clerk. The demand of a foreign bill must be made ly a notary public, to whom credit is given, because he is a public officer." Now it is clear from these expressions, that Buller, J. meant to say, that in case of a foreign bill, the protest must be made by the notary himself, and not Ly his clerk, and I do not understand how his judgment can be read in any other sense. In Bacon's Ab. tit. " Merchant," vol. iv. 725, 5th ed. by Gwillim, referring to Leftley v. Mills, it is expressly said, "The demand of payment of a bill must be made by a notary himself, and not by his clerk." The case of Ex parte Worsley, 2 Hen. Bla. 275, was mere'y referred to, to shew what credit was given to the formal certificate of a notary public. In the late case of Vanderwall r. Tyrrell, Mood. & Mal. N. P. Rep. 97, it was held, that there must be a protest before one person can pay for the honour of another. The case is very shortly reported, and does not state the facts fully. It appeared on the trial, that an articled clerk of the notary presented the bill in the evening, and demanded payment, and afterwards drew up the protest, and then his principal signed and scaled in the usual form, upon which Lord Tenterden, in strong terms, said, that it was a void protest, that it was a false certificate, that the notary had signed a paper, stating I presented and demanded, &c. when it appeared in evidence, that oniv and necessary Pro-

the subject

C

I. Of Non- which would *seem to import that he may send any third person to make presentment; and the recent decision of the Court of Common Pleas in payment, and neces sary Pro. ceedings thereon.

his clerk had presented the bill, and he himself knew nothing of the presentment, and that he had certified a falsity, and the plaintiff was Correspon- nonsuited.

dence on ment by a Notary's Clerk.

It will be found, that in all foreign counthe subject tries the demand and protest must be by the of Present- notary himself, or some public officer, or by two reputable inhabitants. See Forbes on Bills, 116; Code Napolcon, Code de Com-Pailliet Manuel de Droit Français; Com. Dig. Merchant, F. 10; Postlethway's Dict. tit. Notary Public; and see Burn's Eccl. Law, tit. Notary, where it is said, that the certificate of a notary that he has done an act, is equal to the testimony of two witnesses. He is a known public officer, to whose formal protests and acts all countries give credit. In France two notaries must protest, or one notary or one huissier and two witnesses. Now if this formal act can be delegated to a clerk, (who, perhaps, has not been a month in the office of the notary,) all the regularity and security incident to the office of a notary would be defeated. It will not be contended, that if a protest truly stated that the clerk of the notary presented the bill, such protest would be sufficient in any country, and is it to be supposed that it would be tolerated, that a notary shall be allowed falsely to certify a fact? Certainly such a position could not be sustained. If the inconvenience to the notary, by attending in person to demand and make protest, is too great for so small a remuneration, then he must charge more, which he may do in case of foreign bills; and if there are not sufficient notaries to perform the duty, then the number must be increased, but no inconvenience can justify the certificate of a falsehood. It may be very material, especially in the case of foreign bills, (and as to inland a protest is useless,) that the demand, and account of the particulars of the refusal, and reasons assigned for non-payment, should be made by a person of known experience: a proper demand may be essential to obtain payment, and a proper account of the reasons for refusal to accept or pay may be very material to forward to the foreign country, in order that the proper steps may be taken. will be observed, that it by no means follows that all bills must be presented by a notary, for it suffices, in the first instance, for any individual to present bills for acceptance or payment; and all that is requisite is, that the foreign bills which have already been dishonoured, should, on the same day, be again presented by the nctary himself.

As to inland bills, you refer to p. 312, and seem to think that the statute 9 & 10 Will. 3, c. 17, is silent us to who shall present the hill, but you will observe that the statute, after requiring that a notary, or in default of a notary some other substantial person in the place in the presence of two witnesses, shall make protest, prescribes the form of the protest, which runs—"Know all men, that I, A. B. on, &c. at the usual place of abode of the said —, have demanded payment of the bill of which the above is a copy. &c." Now this very form evidently shews, that the act meant to require the notary himself to go to the residence of the drawee, and there demand payment. This enactment also affords evidence of what the legislature then considered to be the proper course in England of making protest, and may be called in aid in shewing what the common law is as to foreign bills. Upon the whole, therefore, I think it is clear, that strictly the notary himself must, in all cases, make demand of payment before he protests.

I also think it clear, that the positive enactment in the statute of William, that no more shall be taken for the protest than 6d. cannot be violated. As to the amount of stamp duty, that of course may be taken in addition. The stamp was introduced by subsequent acts, and that expense may, I think, impliedly be added. As to foreign bills, as there is no act of parliament regulating the charges, I think any reasonable charge may be made, whether more or less than those named in the Notary's Table of Fees of July, 1797.

J. CHITTY. 9th Oct. 1829.

To Richard Brooke, Esq. Secretary to the Association of Liverpool Notaries, Liverpool.

Change Alley, City. 3d November, 1829.

At a meeting of the Committee of the Society of Public Notaries of London, held, the 29th October, 1829, the Chairman submitted a communication, made by the Secretary of the Association of Liverpool Notaries, of certain resolutions agreed upon at a meeting of that Association, held at Liverpool, the 26th September, 1829, viz.

"Resolved,-That it is the opinion of this Meeting, that there is an inaccuracy in that part of Mr. Chitty's Treatise on Bills of Exchange which states to the effect, that it is incumbent upon notaries to present, in person, foreign bills of exchange prior to protesting them, and that the presentment by clerks will not suffice, is unfounded, and at variance with mercantile usage."

"Resolved,—That such presentment by notaries' clerks is correct, and sanctioned by mercantile usage, and that the Secretary be instructed to adopt such measures, by correspondence with Mr. Chitty, personal interview, or otherwise, as may be deemed advisable, in order respecifully to point out such inaccuracy, and to solicit him to cause it to be rectified in the said Treatise, or in any other in which it may appear; and also for that purpose to address the Society of London Notaries, to obtain their cooperation on the subject."

Upon reading the same, it was resolved,— That the opinions expressed in the said two resclutions by the Association of Liverpool Notaries, do in all respects meet the entire concurrence of this Meeting, and that the Secretary be directed respectfully to communicate such concurrence to Joseph Chitty, Esq.

*Poole v. Dicas(a), where it was held, that an entry of the dishonour of a bill I. Of Nonof exchange, made in the usual course of business, at the time of dishonour, payment, in the book of a notary by his clerk, who presented the bill, might be given sary Proin evidence in an action on the bill, upon proof of the death of the clerk who ceedings made the entry, would also imply that it is sufficient for the clerk of the no-thereon. tary to make the presentment; and, indeed, it is expressly said by Tindal, C. 2dly. J. in that case to be the duty of the notary's clerk to make the presentment. When Protest for But, still, in no case does this point appear to have been directly brought Non-paybefore the court; and, therefore, although as a general rule a presentment ment neby the notary himself may be impracticable, owing to the multiplicity of bills advisable, requiring presentment on the same day, yet, in particular cases, where the and mode amount of the bill to be protested is considerable, it may be prudent that the of Protestnotary should himself demand payment, and make his own minute of the an-ing.

In thus following the directions of the Committee, I abstain from any further remark, than that under the existing duties of notaries in London, as regards foreign bills, it is utterly impossible that such bills can be presented by them in person throughout the vast extent of this metropolis and its environs, unaided by their clerks, a fact of which every person acquainted with the routine of merchant's and banker's business is fully aware.

I have the honour to be, Most respectfully, Sir, Your obedient Servant. JAMES COMERFORD, Secretary to the Society of London Notaries,

J. Chitty, Esq.

. 11

After several other letters from the Sacretary of the Society of London Notaries, and my having requested references to certain works and forms, the following letter was received:-

Change Alley, 8th October, 1831.

Having laid before the Committee of the Society of Public Notaries in London (whom it has been difficult to convene at this season of the year) your letter to me of the 12th of August, I am directed by the Committee to reply to its contents as follows:-

The Committee do not possess any of the works alluded to in your said letter.

Their practice may be said to be guided principally by mercantile usage, and by their general experience, aided by the customs which have been handed down to them by their predecessors of upwards of one hundred years, the whole as controlled by acts of the legislature, and the decisions of courts of law, and not governed by foreign writers on bills, or the practice in foreign countries.

The Committee are unable to furnish forms or foreign protests, as such documents very rarely come before them, and in no case is it necessary to take copies of or register them. The foreign protests may, however, be said to agree in substance with the protests of bills of exchange made in London, and in some countries a copy of the protest is left with the drawee, and the noting of a bill is not understood as forming a separate and distinct act from the protest, inusmuch as it is customary (at least in France) to protest all dishonoured bills, whether inland or foreign, on the day after maturity (days of grace being abolished).

The Committee having long felt that, however the practice of the public notaries of London may be in perfect accordance with the views of the oldest and most respectable merchants on the Royal Exchange, that it would still be desirable that many points should be ex-plicitly defined by an act of parliament, rather than left to the incertitude of doubtful opinions, or of occasional decisions of an apparently conflicting nature; and it was in this view that they looked forward with much anxiety to the proposed bill for defining the liability of parties on bills of exchange, on the subject of which notice had been given in parliament by Mr. Ward, one of the late members for the city, to which measure I have already had occasion to refer, in my letter to you of 4th May, 1830.

I beg further to state, that notwithstanding the recent decision in Mitchel r. Baring, the Committee consider that the only proper place of making a protest for non-payment is in the city or town where a bill is made payable, according to its tenor, and that they consider the court to have been guided in its decision by the peculiar wording of the acceptance by the defendants, who were considered, by such acceptance, to have called upon the plaintiff to protest for non-payment in Liverpool.

In conclusion, I beg to refer you to the 9 Geo. 4, c. 21, as regulating the protesting of bills of exchange in Ireland, in section 13 of which act it will be seen, that the notary " may present, or cause the bill to be presented; these words they consider are not to be construed as conferring a power, but as confirming and referring to a previously existing and recognised daily practice, a fact capable of proof, by reference to notarial registers of one hundred years date.

I have the honour, &c. JAMES COMERFORD,

Secretary to the Committee of the Society of Public Notaries of London. See further, post, 477. (e) 1 Bing. N. C. 619; S. C. I Scott, 600;

1 Hodges, 162; and see Sutton v. Gregory, Peake's Add. Ca. 150.

CI

payment, eary Proceedings thereon.

I. of Non- swer given by the drawee to him; for supposing that it should hereafter be considered that it was his duty so to have acted, and that in consequence of any omission a drawer or indorser should be discharged, he would be liable to compensate the loss.

> The protest for non-payment of a foreign bill, thus to be made by a notary public, varies in point of form, according to the country in which it is made: in England the form of it is as follows:-

Form of Protest.

ON THIS DAY, the first of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and forty, at the request of A. B. bearer of the original bill of exchange, whereof a true copy is on the other side written, I, Y. Z., of London, notary public, by royal authority, duly admitted and sworn, did exhibit the said bill.

[Here the presentment is stated, and to whom made, and the reason, if assigned, for non-payment.]

Wherefore I, the said notary, at the request aforesaid, have protested, and by these presents do solemnly protest as well against the drawer, acceptor, and indersers of the said bill of exchange, as against all others whom it may concern, for exchange, re-exchange, and all costs, charges, damages, and interest, suffered and to be suffered, for want of payment of the said original bill. Thus done and protested in London aforesaid, in the presence of E. F. (b).

[The expenses of noting and protest are then subscribed, for the amount of which, see

Table of Fees of 1797 in the Appendix.]

*By the former regulation of the 44 Geo. 3, c. 98, Schedule A., a stamp duty of 5s. was imposed on the protest, without reference to the amount of the bill; but by the subsequent acts, 48 Geo. 3, c. 149, and 55 Geo. 3, c. 184, Schedule A. part 1, title Protest, the duties are as follows:—

Protest of any bill of exchange or promissory note for any sum of money (c).

	•			8. d.
Slamp.	Not amounting to 201.			20
	Amounting to 201., and not amounting to 1001.			3 0
	Amounting to 1001., and not amounting to 5001.			50
	Amounting to 500l, or upward.	•	•	10 0

Date.

The protest should not bear date before the bill is duc(d), but as it must, in the case of a foreign bill, be made on the last day of grace(e), it must bear date generally on that day; but an inland bill is not to be protested till the day after the third day of grace (f). When an accepted bill is protested for non-payment, Marius recommends the protest to be sent to the drawer or indorser, and the accepted bill to be kept, unless express orders be given by those parties to the contrary, because the protest for non-payment, with the second accepted bill, will be sufficient proof against the drawer, though not against the acceptor (g)(1). But according to another writer (h), the

(b) It is said to be unnecessary to have an attesting witness, but that the protest must bear the official seal as well as signature of the notary. See Brooke's Office of Notary, p. 73, and see various forms, ib. 218 to 227.

(c) It has been observed, that the ad valorem duty being laid upon the amount of each bill, one protest cannot combine two bills, unless the holder goes to the expense of having a separate stamp impressed in respect of each; and then it would perhaps be found objectionable and inconvenient, and not so well adapted to subsequent proceedings, as adhering to the customary plan of having a separate protest for each bill. Brooke's Office of Notary, p. 78, where see some just remarks upon the amount of duty imposed.

(d) Mar. 103; Campbell v. French, 6 T. R. 212; 2 Hen Bla. 163, (Chit. j. 541).

(e) Leftley v. Mills, 4 T. R. 170, (Chit. j. 473); ante, 458 note (o), et post, 475, 479; Selw. Ni. Pri. 9th edit. 360, note.

(f) Leftley v. Mills, 4 T. R. 170, (Chit. j.

473); post, 475, 479. (g) Mar. 120.

(h) Beawes, pl. 220; Lovelass on Bills, 100; and see observations in Hansard r. Robinson, 7 B. & C. 90; 9 Dow. & Ry. 860, (Chit. j. 1340); ante, 366, note (a), and ante, 353, note (b).

⁽¹⁾ Where one of a set of exchange has been accepted, and protested for non-payment, presenting the protest of the accepted bill together with one of the set, which has neither been ac-

drawer or indorser would not be obliged to pay without having the accepted I. Of Nonbill delivered up to him, as he would otherwise perhaps have no evidence of payment, the acceptance against the acceptor. Where payment of a non-accepted and necessary Probill is refused, it is agreed on all hands that there is no risk in sending back ceedings the bill with the protest(i). Where only part of the money for which the thereon. bill is payable is tendered, that part may be taken, and the bill must be protested for non-payment of the residue(j).

It was formerly doubted whether, if the drawer or indorser were abroad Of sending or out of England, the making the protest alone would be sufficient, or whe- Copy of ther it was not necessary that a copy of it, or some other memorial, should and Notice within a reasonable time be sent with a letter of advice, or notice of the dis-thereof. bonour, to the persons on whom the holder means to call for payment(k); although if the drawer or indorser intended to be proceeded against were in England at the time of the dishonour, it was not essential (though always advisable) that a copy *of the protest should accompany the notice of non- [*464] payment(l). But it is now clearly settled, that in giving notice of non-payment to the drawer of a foreign bill resident abroad, it is sufficient to inform him that the bill has been protested, without sending a copy of the protest(m).

(i) Mar. 121.

٦ćſ

R

١,

(j) Mar. 68, 85 to 87; Walwyn v. St. Quin-1 Bos. & Pul. 652; 2 Esp. 514, (Chit. j. 578).

(k) Poth. pl. 148; and see Orr v. Magennis, 7 East, 359; 2 Smith, 328, (Chit. j. This seems to have been admitted to be in general necessary, see Robins v. Gibson, 1 Maule & S. 288; 3 Campb. 334, (Chit. j. 885). In America the decisions seem contradictory, whether it is necessary that a copy of protest should accompany the notice of dishonour, Blakeley v. Grant, 6 Mass. R. 386; Bayl. Amer. edit. 176, acc.; Lenox v. Leverett, 10 Mass. R. 1, a subsequent case contra, and that it is not necessary.

(1) Robins v. Gibson, 3 Campb. 334; Cromwell v. Hynson, 2 Esp. Rep. 211, 512, (Chit. j. 571); Pothier Trait: du Contrat de Change, part 1, c. 5, s. 150; Chaters v. Bell, 4 Esp. Rep. 48, (Chit. j. 636); Manning's Ind. 66, acc.; Goostrey v. Mead, Bul. N. P. 271; Gilb. Evid. 79; Lovelass on Bills, 99; Selw. N. P. 9th edit. 360, semb. contra.

Robins v. Gibson, 3 Campb. 334; 1 Maule & S. 88, (Chit. j. 885). In an action against the drawer of a foreign bill of exchange the plaintiff proved, that a protest was regularly drawn up, and also that the drawer had arrived in Enlgand before the bill became due, and that a letter was sent to his house, stating, that the bill was dishonoured, but not communicating the protest or a copy of it, the defendant contended, that the protest should have accompanied the notice. Lord Ellenborough was of opinion, that under the circumstances of the case, enough had, been done, and the plaintiff had a verdict; and upon metion for a new trial, the court being of opinion it was sufficient that the bill was protested, and that the defendant had notice of the fact of its dishonour, although the protest was not communicated to him, and refused the rule, and Lord Ellenborough said, "It did not appear that the defendant requested to have the protest, and it would be hazarding too much to leave it without some request; he had due notice of the fact of the dishonour of the bill; and as the circumstances of parties alter, the rule respecting notice also changes, according to the convenience of the case. the party is abroad, he cannot know of the fact of the bill's having been protested, except by having notice of the protest itself; but if he be at home, it is easy for him, by making inquiry, to ascertain that fuct." Rule refused.

In Cromwell v. Hynson, 2 Esp. Rep. 511, (Chit. j. 571), though at the time of the dishonour the defendant was not in England, but in Jamaica, where he indersed the bill, yet as his wife resided at his house at Stepney, it was holden sefficient that notice of non-payment was left there, and without any copy of protest. Per Lord Kenyon.

In America, in one of the latest cases it was held, that though a protest must be produced at the trial of an action against the indorser of a foreign bill, it is not necessary that the notice to him should be accompanied by the protest, Lenox v. Leverett, 10 Mass. R. I. But in an earlier decision, Parsons, C. J. said, "As to the notice of the protest of a foreign bill, a copy of the protest should be given or offered to the drawer, or due diligence used to furnish him with this notice before he can be charged, Blakeley r. Grant, 6 Mass. R. 386; Bayl. 176, Amer. edit.

(m) Goodman v. Harvey, 4 Ad. & El. 870; 6 Nev. & Man. 372, S. C; ante, 334.

cepted nor protested, to the indorser, and a demand of payment will be a sufficient notice to charge him. Kenworthy v. Hopkins, 1 John. Ca. 107. And in such case it is not necessary to produce the protested bill at the time of the notice and demand on the indorser. Ibid. And see Lenox v. Leverett, 10 Mass. Rep. 1.

II

r,

1

and necessary Proceedings thereon.

2dly, When Protest for Non-payment necessary or advisable, and mode of Protest-

I. Of Non- Nor is it necessary or advisable, in any case, to send the protested bill(n). payment. But a notice of the dishonour of the bill should in all cases be immediately given (o). It has been held, that the protest for non-acceptance or non-payment may be drawn up at any time before the trial, provided the bill be noted in due time (p)(1).

At common law, no inland bill could be protested for non-payment; *but by the statue 9 & 10 Will. 3, c. 17(q), it was enacted, that all bills of exchange drawn in, or dated at any place in England, for the sum of five pounds or upwards, upon any person in London, or elsewhere in England, in which bills of exchange shall be expressed value received, and payable at a certain number of days, weeks, or months, after the date thereof, after presentation and written acceptance, and after the expiration of the days of grace, the holder, or his agent, may cause the bill to be protested by a notary public, *465] and in default of such notary public, by any other substantial person in the place, in the presence of two witnesses; refusal or neglect being first made of due payment of the same: which protest shall be made and written under a copy of the bill of exchange, in the words or form following:—

"Know all men, that I, A. B., on the day of at the usual place of abode of the said have demanded payment of the bill, of which the above is a copy, which the said did not pay, wherefore I, the said A. B., do hereby protest the said bill. Dated this day of

The act directs that this protest shall, within fourteen days after it is made, be sent, or notice of it given to the party from whom the bill was received, who is, upon producing such protest, to repay the bill, together with all interest and charges from the day such bill was protested; for which protest shall be paid a sum not exceeding the sum of sixpence.

(n) Mar. 68, 86, 87, 120; Lovelass on Bills, 100; ante, 463, note (h).

(0) Id. ibid.; Hart v. King, 12 Mod. 309, (Chit. j. 212); Anon. I Vent. 45; Orr v. Magennis, 7 East, 359; 2 Smith, 328, (Chit. j. 726).

(p) Chaters v. Bell, 4 Esp. Rep. 48; Selw. 9th edit. 360, S. C.; Goostrey v. Mend, Bul. N. P. 272, observed on in Orr v. Magennis, 7 East, 361; 2 Smith, 328, (Chit. j. 726); Rogers v. Stephens, 2 T. R. 714, (Chit. j. 446); Manning's Ind. 66; Robins v. Gibson, 1 Maule

& S. 288; 3 Campb. 334, (Chit. j. 885). Chaters v. Bell, 4 Esp. Rep. 48, (Chit. j. 636). In an action by an indorsee against the indorser of a foreign bill, it appeared that the bill became due on the 24th April, when payment was demanded and refused, and the bill was noted for non-payment. Regular notice of the dishonour given to the defendant, but he refused payment because there was no protest. On the 14th May, the protest was formerly drawn up, and this action was afterwards brought. Lord Kenyon said, "he was of opinion, that if the bill was regularly noted at the time, the protest might be made at a future period." A verdict was found for the plaintiff, but the point was reserved; and on the case coming on to be tried on a venire de novo, before Lord Ellenborough, his lordship expressed his concurrence with the opinion of Lord Kenyon. But in Selw. 9th edit. 360, it is stated, that a case was reserved in Chaters v. Bell for the opinion of the court, and that the court after argument, conceiving the question to be of great importance, directed it to be turned into a special verdict, but that the sum in dispute being small, and the parties unwilling to incur the expense of a special verdict, the recommendation of the court was not attended to, and the case was not mentioned

This doctrine accords with the practice in other cases. Thus, though convictions by justices must, at the time they are pronounced, be according to law, yet they may be drawn up formally at any time afterwards, when required to be proved, Massey r. Johnson, 12 East, 32; Rex v. Barker, 1 East, 182; Rex v. Picton, 2 East, 198; Still v. Wells, 7 East, 553; 6 Esp. 36; Bridgett v. Coyney, 1 Man. & Ry. Mag. Ca. 1.

(q) And see the Irish Act, 9 Geo. 4, c. 24,

^{(1) \(\}lambda \) As to what is a sufficient notice of protest in point of form, see Shepherd v. Jonte, 14 Louis Rep. 246; Sussex Bank r. Baldwin, 2 Harr. 487. }

Some observations have already been made on this statute (r). It has 1 of Nonbeen decided, that the holder of a bill payable after sight, is not entitled to Phyment. the cumulative remedy given by this statute(s), and that a bill within the sary Promeaning of the act, cannot be noted on protected and market a bill within the sary Promeaning of the act, cannot be noted or protested until the day after the last ceedings day of grace(t). It has also been decided, that as the directions of the stat-thereon. ute are positive that no sum exceeding sixpence shall be taken for the protest, 2dly, no larger sum can legally be denemded, notwithstanding it is customary to When charge more(u). It is doubtful whether the clerk of a notary can, under Non-paythis statute, make the demand of payment, though we have seen that such is ment nethe constant practice(x). 'I he act only gives an additional remedy, and cessary or does not take away the common-law one, and therefore it is not necessary advisable, to protect it below in all amon of interest. It below in all amon of interest it below in all amon of interest. to protest, it being, in all cases of inland bills, sufficient to give notice of of Pronon-payment(y); and the holder is entitled to claim interest from the draw-testing er, although there is no protest(z). In practice, a protest of an *inland bill [*466] for non-payment is seldom made, but it is only noted for non-payment, and which noting is of no utility, except with a view to the evidence, or where any of the parties to the bill are sued abroad, or their property is attached in a foreign country, in respect of the amount owing on the bill, when a protest will be necessary, and must be sent out(a). And we have seen, that a protest made in this country cannot be proved by the mere production of it, as when made or used abroad, but the notary himself must be called to prove the making it(b). The 3 Geo. 2, c. 26, ss. 7, 8, requiring a protest to be made on the non-payment of coal notes given pursuant to that act, is now repealed by the 47 Geo. 3, Sess. 2, c. 68, s. 28.

In all cases, whether or not a protest be necessary, notice must be given adly,

R. 170, (Chit. j. 473).

(s) Id. ibid.; post, 479, note (l).

(t) Id. ibid.

£. .

.d 5

; 1

٠,٠

10

.

N

×

1 ĸ,

ŗ.

3.

٢.

(u) Id. ibid. See the list of notary's fees in the Appendix. Semble, that the expenses of noting are not recoverable in the case of an inland bill. Kendrick v. Lomax, 2 C. & J. 407.

(x) Ante, 458, 459, note (z).

(y) Brough v. Parkins, 2 Ld Raym. 992, (Chit. j. 222); Harris r. Benson, 2 Stra. 910, (Chit. j. 271); Lumley v. Palmer, 2 Stra. 1000; 7 Mod. 216, (Chit. j 275); 3 & 4 Ann. c. 9, s. 5; 2 Bla. Com. 469. N. B. Harris v. Benson, virtually overruled in Windle v. Andrews; see note (z).

(z) Windle v. Andrews; 2 B. & Ald. 696;

2 Stark 425, (Chit. j. 1062).

Windle v. Andrews, 2 B. & Ald. 696, was an action against the drawer of an inland bill, and a rule nisi was obtained to strike out the interest from the verdict, on the ground that there had been no protest; but upon shewing cause, the court held, that the want of a protest afforded no ground for disallowing interest, where notice of the dishonour of the bill had been duly given; that the object of 9 & 10 Will. 8, and 3 & 4 Ann. c. 9, s. 4, was to give interest, damages, and costs, in cases in which it was supposed that they were not recoverable at common law, not to deprive a plaintiff of them in any case in which the common law would give them; that the 5th section, containing the words of deprivation, was by way of proviso only, to qualify the additional benefit

(r) Ante, 458, 459; Leftley v. Mills, 4 T. that the statutes of Anne and William were Non-paysupposed, for the first time, to give; that the provise in the 8th section contained words to secure to a plaintiff all his common-law rights, and that the right to damages was a common-law right; that it was upon this principle only that the constant allowance of interest, when there has been no protest, could be explained; given. that the 5th section contained words to annul parol acceptances. And in Rex v. Meggott, Eyre, C. J. of the King's Bench held, that they had that effect; that that notice was corrected in Lumley v. Palmer, 2 Stra. 1000, upon the principle now adopted by the court; that the 5th section of the 3 & 4 Ann. c. 9, deprived a party of no remedy he had at common law; that that case must be considered as having virtually over-ruled Harris v. Benson, 2 Stra. 910, (Chit. j. 271), Trinity Term, 5 Geo. 2, and that from that time, from any thing which appeared to the contrary, parol acceptances had been held binding, and interest had been allowed against the drawers and indorsers of all inland bills, though no instance could be shewn in which any such bill had been protested. Bayley on Bills, 5th ed. 263, note 90.

(a) See Brooke's Office of Notary, 76, 77, where a recent instance is given of an attachment laid in the United States of America, on property of the acceptor of several inland bills, upon which judgment was obtained in the foreign court, previously to which it became necessary to send out protests of the bills.

(b) Chesmer v. Noyes, 4 Campb. 129, (Chit.

j. 929); ante, 455, note (n).

Notice of ment will

and necessary Proceedings thereon.

3dly, When a mere Notice of Non-payment will suffice, without Protest, and how it is to be given.

Form of Notice.

LOf Non- of the non-payment of every foreign and inland bill, promissory note, and check, otherwise, for the reasons before stated(c), the drawer of the bill and indersers will be discharged from all liability (1). There is no precise form of words necessary to be used in giving notice of the non-payment of a bill. any act of the holder, distinctly signifying a presentment to and refusal by the drawee, will be a sufficient notice(2). It has indeed been said, that it is not enough to state in the notice that the drawee has refused to honour, but that it must go farther, and express that the holder does not intend to give credit to the drawee(d)(3); but it should seem, that as the only reason why notice is required, is, that the drawer and indorsers may have the earliest opportunity of resorting to the parties liable to them, it is not necessary that their liability should be stated to them, because that is a legal consequence of the dishonour, of which they must necessarily be apprised by mere notice of the fact of non-payment (e) (4). The notice, however, should inform the party to whom it is addressed, either in express terms or by necessary implication, or at all events by reasonable intendment, what the bill or note is, that it has become due, that it has been duly presented to the drawee or maker, and that payment has been refused(f). That the party receiving the notice is entitled to this information, and that it is not enough merely to inform him that he is looked to for payment, seems now to be fully admitted, but whether the form of the notice is such as to convey the requisite information is frequently a question of much doubt and difficulty, and it is certainly not easy to reconcile some of the decisions on this important We will first notice those cases in which the notice has been [*467] held insufficient, *in order at once to introduce the decisions upon which the present doctrine is said to be founded:—thus a letter from an indorsee to a drawer, stating, "I am desired to apply to you for the payment of the sum of 150l., due to myself, on a draft drawn by Mr. Case on Mr. Case, which I hope you will, on receipt, discharge, to prevent the necessity of proceedings, which otherwise will immediately take place," was held insufficient(g). So a letter in the following form—"Gentlemen, A bill for 683l., drawn by

(c) Ante, 433 to 455. (d) Tindall v. Brown, 1 T. R. 167, 199, (Chit. j. 481), per Ashurst, J.; and see per Buller, J. ib. 170.

(e) Shaw r. Croft, coram Lord Kenyon, Sittings after Trinity Term, 1798, MS. and other cases, post, and Selw. 9th ed. 332, 335.

(f) See cases in the following notes.

(g) Hartley v. Case, 4 Bar. & Cres. 339; 6 D. & Ry. 505; 1 Car. & P. 555, (Chit. j. 1263). Abbott, C. J. at the trial, was of opinion, that as this letter did not apprise the party of the fact of dishonour, but contained a mere demand of payment, it was insufficient, and the plaintiff was nonsuited; and a rule for a new trial having been granted, Abbott, C. J. on discharging the rule said, "There is no precise form of words necessary to be used in giving notice of the dishonour of a bill of exchange, but the language used must be such as to convey notice to the party what the bill is, and that payment of it has been refused by the acceptor. Here the letter in question did not convey to the defendant any such notice, it does not even say that the bill was ever accepted, we therefore think the notice was insufficient.'

(2) { Thus where the owner of a bill advised of its non-acceptance mentions that fact to the indorsers, and suggests to them to provide for its payment at maturity, it was held that as to form, which is not material, this was a sufficient notice. Higgins v. Morrison's Ex'r, 4 Dana,

(3) The law has prescribed no particular form for such notice. The object of it is merely to inform the indorser of the non-payment by the maker, and that he is held liable for the payment thereof. Bank of Alexandria r. Swann, 9 Peters, 33.

(4) The notice is sufficient if it state the non-payment; and it is not necessary to state expressly, for it is justly implied, that the holder looks to the indorser. 3 Kent's Com. 2d ed. 105. See also Lenox v. Leverett, 10 Mass. Rep. 1. Wallace v. Agry, 4 Mason Rep. 336. Kenworthy r. Hopkins, 1 Johns. Cases, 107.

⁽¹⁾ This is true only where there has been a previous acceptance of a bill; for if the bill has been dishonoured on presentment for acceptance, and due notice thereof given to the other parties, no presentment for payment or notice and protest for non-payment, is in general necessary.

11

12 .*1

,vi

d

, #

.,

71

.7

Ċ

Mr. Joseph Keats upon Messrs. Daniel Jones and Co., and bearing your I. Of Nonindorsement, has been put into our hands by the assignees of Mr. J. R. Al- payment, zedo, with directions to take legal measures for the recovery thereof, unless sury Proimmediately paid to, Gentlemen, Your's, &c. J. and S. Pearce," was held ceedings And where an indorsee of a promissory note wrote to the thereon. insufficient (h). indorser the following letter,-" The note for 2001. drawn by H. H. dated What not 19th July last, payable three months after date, and indorsed by you, be-sufficient came due yesterday, and is returned to me unpaid, I therefore request you Notice of Dishonour. will let me have the amount forthwith:" it was held not a sufficient notice of The following was also held not a sufficient *notice: [*468] dishonour(i)(1).

(h) Solarte v. Palmer, tried before Lord Tenterden, C. J. to whose direction a bill of exceptions was tendered, and the case brought before the Court of Exchequer Chamber upon a writ of error, 7 Bing. 530; 5 M. & P. 475; 1 C. & J. 417; 1 Tyr. 371; 9 Law J. 121.

Per Tindal, C. J. in delivering the judgment of the court of error, "The question in this case is, whether the direction of Lord Tenterden to the jury, 'That the letter given in evidence at the trial, and set out spon the bill of exceptions, was not sufficient notice of the dishonour and non-payment of the bill, and that apon such evidence the jury ought to find a ver-dict for the defendants,' was a proper direction or not? And we are of opinion that the direction was proper, and that the judgment which has been given for the defendants must be af-

"The notice of dishonour, which is commonly substituted in this country in the place of a formal protest, such formal protest being essential in other countries to enable the plaintiff to recover, (Pothier Traite du Contrat de Change, part i. cap. 5, s. 2, art. i. s. 5.) most certainly does not require all the precision and formality which accompanied the regular protest, for which it has been substituted. But it should at least inform the party to whom it is addressed, either in express terms or by necessary implication that the bill has been dishonoured, and that the holder looks to him for payment of the amount.

"The allegation in the declaration is, that the bill has been presented to the acceptor, who has refused payment, whereof the defendant has had notice; and, consequently, to satisfy this allegation, though no express form of words is necessary, the notice should convey an intimation to the party to whom it is addressed, that the bill is in fact dishonoured. Now, looking at this notice, we think no such intimation is conveyed in terms, or is to be necessarily inferred from its contents.

"Besides, it is perfectly consistent with this notice that the bill has never been presented at all, and that the plaintiff means to rely upon some legal excuse for the non-presentment The present case is stronger against the sufficiency of the notice than that of Hartley v. Case, where there was at least an allegation that the bill had become due, which is not found here. This letter may not improbably have been written with a different intent than that of giving notice of the dishonour to the indorser, and may have been information that an action was about to be brought by the attorney, taking for granted that the notice of the bill's dishonour had been given in the ordinary way, before the bill was put into his hands for the purpose of suing thereon. At all events, however intended, it appears to us not to amount to such notice. We think therefore the judgment ought to be affirm-Judgment affirmed.

The case was afterwards carried up to the House of Lords, where the judgment was also affirmed, 2 Clark & Finelly, 93; 1 Bing. N. C. 194; 1 Scott, 1

(i) Boulton v. Welsh, 3 Bing. N. C. 688; 4 Scott, 425, S. C.; see Honlditch v. Cauty, 4 Bing. N. C. 411; 6 Scott, 209, S. C. Sed vide Grugeon v. Smith, 6 Ad. & El. 499; 2 Nev. & Per. 303; and Hedger r. Stevenson, 2 M. & W. 799; Edmonds r. Cates, 2 Jurist. 183, cor. Lord Abinger, C. B. post, 468, note (n).

Per Tindal, C. J. in Boulton r. Welsh, "I am wholly unable to distinguish this case from those which have been referred to, (Hartley r. Case and Solarte v. Palmer,) without having resort to a subtlety and niceness that would entirely destroy the practical utility of the rule those cases have solemnly laid down, viz. that the notice of dishonour must inform the party to whom it is addressed, either in express ferms or by necessary implication, that the bill or note has been dishonoured by the acceptor or maker, and that the holder looks to him for payment. I cannot but regret in the present case the necessity I feel for holding the notice insufficient; but it certainly does not give the de-fendant information whence he is bound to know that payment of the note has been duly demanded of the maker and refused by him. The letter merely states that the note became due on the day preceding, and was returned unpaid: consistently with that notice, there may have been no presentment to the maker of The form of the protest given by the 9 & 10 Will. 3, c. 17, for non-payment of a bill is as follows,—(see form, aute, 465). The two important points upon which the notice must be precise, are, the presentment of the bill or note to the acceptor or maker, and the nonpayment. The letter in the present case is deficient in the former requisite. I therefore think this rule must be made absolute." It was freely admitted by the court that no mercantile or

and neces sary Proceedings thereon.

What not a sufficient Notice of Dishonour.

What sufficient.

[*469]

I. Of Non- "Messrs. Strange and Co. inform Mr. Price that J. B.'s acceptance 875l. is not paid. As indorser, Mr. Price is called upon to pay the money, which will be expected immediately (k)." So a letter stating, "A bill for 30l., dated 18th August, 1837, at three months, drawn and indorsed by R. E., upon and accepted by W. T., and indorsed by you; lies at my office due and unpaid," was held insufficient, and that it would not have been sufficient even though the defendant had himself treated it as a notice of a dishonour(1). And a notice stating the bill to have been drawn by the party, when, in fact, he was not the drawer, but only an indorser, is bad, as mis-stating the facts(m). The following notices have, however, been held sufficient:—"your note has been returned dishonoured(n)." So, "your bill drawn on T. T. and accepted by him, is this day returned, with charges, to which we request your immediate attention(o)(1)." So a letter in these *words;—"Sir, I am desired by Mr. H. to give you notice, that a promissory note, dated August 10th, 1835, made by S. T. for 991. 183. payable to your order two months after date thereof, became due yesterday, and has been returned un-I have to request you will please remit the amount thereof, with 1s. 6d. noting, free of postage, by return of post(p)." So a letter to the payee > ordinary man could misunderstand the notice in this case.

(k) Strange v. Price, 2 Perry & Dav. 278. Per Denman, C. J. "Some doubt certainly has been thrown on Solarte v. Palmer, (7 Bing. 530, ante, 467, n. (h),) but as observed by my brother Parke in Hedger v. Steavenson (2 M. & W. 799, post, 469, n. (p),) we are bound by it, and I think it governs the present case. The notice there, after describing the bill, stated that legal proceedings would be taken for the recovery thereof. It might have been held, no doubt, on such a notice that the party was fully apprised for the facts of the case, but it is clear that the law now requires express notice of the acceptor having refused payment as well as of the party being called upon to pay."

Littledale, J. "In general, no doubt, such a notice as this would give sufficient information to the parties concerned; but in laying down a general rule, we must take care and prevent its being too wide. Now it certainly is consistent with this notice that the bill was not presented at all, or it might not have been paid through the laches of the holder."

Patteson, J. "I granted leave to move for a nonsuit in this case, as I thought it might by possibility be distinguished from Solarte v. Palmer, and I was very anxious that it should, but I confess that I am unable to do so. It is said that the defendant is called upon to pay as indorser of the bill, but so he was in Solarte v. Palmer; and again, it is singular that the date of the bill and of the time of its becoming due is not stated in either case. I do not say that it should be stated, but it ought to appear by necessary inference that the bill was due."

Coleridge, J. " The word returned does imply that the bill had been presented and refused payment. So also does the word dishonoured, and so does the notification that the bill has come back with notarial charges.'

In the course of the argument, Littledale, J. observed, " The word returned implies that the bill has been indorsed over to some person, and has been returned to the holder, but it is not the word technically applicable in the case of dishonour, for suppose the holder presented the bill himself he would not use that word in giving notice."

(1) Phillips v. Gould, 8 C. & P. 355.

(m) Beauchamp v. Cash, Dow. & Ry. Ca. Ni. Pri. 3. But in America, where a notice of dishonour calling the note Jotham Cushings note, instead of Jotham Cushmans, and describing it as due 6th January, when it was due on 3d January, the jury were directed to find for the plaintiff, unless they thought defendant was really misled. Smith v. Whiting, 12 Mass. Rep. 6; Bayl. 162, Amer. edit.

(n) Edmonds v. Cates, 2 Jurist, 183, cor.

Lord Abinger, C. B.

(0) Gurgeon v. Smith, 2 Nev. & Perry, 303; 6 Adol. & Ellis, 499, S. C. Lord Denman, C. J. "In Solarte v. Palmer, (ante, 467, n. (h).) an inference might fairly have been drawn that no presentment to the acceptor had been in fact made. It is impossible to do so here." teson, J. "Solarte v. Palmer is a very different case. The notice there contained nothing relating to dishonour by the acceptor; whereas here there is express notice that the bill is returned with charges; and it is impossible to doubt that this is a statement of its having been returned dishonoured." Littledale and Coleridge, Js. concurred. See the next case; sed vide Boulton v. Welsh, 3 Bing. N. C. 688; ante, 467, n. (i); Houldtich v. Cauty, 4 Bing. N. C. 411, post, 470, note (s).

(p) Hedger v. Steavenson, 2 Mee. & Wels. 799; 5 Dowl. 771, S. C. Per Parke, B. "The first question, which is one of considerable importance, is, whether there is a sufficient notice of dishonour. The law upon this point and indorser of a note, in these terms,—" Mr. Ellis (the maker) is unable to I. Of Nonpay the note for a few days: he says he shall be ready in a week, which will payment, be in time for us—only form to acquaint you(q)." And where a bill of ex-sary Prochange, indorsed in blank, was left by the indorsee at the office of R., an coodings attorney, to be presented by him, and on being presented by R., was dis-thereon. honoured, whereupon R. wrote to the drawer on the following *day, de- What a scribing the bill, and stating that it was returned dishonoured, and remained sufficient unpaid, and that he was desired to give notice thereof, and subscribed his Notice of Dishonour, name and residence to the letter; this was held a sufficient notice of dishon- [*470] our, though he did not state on whose behalf he applied, or where the bill was lying(r). And in an action by indorsees against an indorser of a bill of exchange, the following letter was addressed by the plaintiffs to the defendant,—" Messrs. H. are surprised to hear that Mrs. G.'s bill was returned to is established in Solarte v. Palmer, (7 Bing. 530; 1 Bing. N. C. 194; ante, 467, n. (h),) which confirmed that of Hartley v. Case, (4 B. & C. 339; ante, 467, n. (g), against the previous opinion of the profession. It is certain that after the case of Tindal v. Brown, (1 T. R. 167) there was an impression that it was sufficient if the notice conveyed an intimution that the party to whom it was given was looked to for payment of the bill or note. Hartley v. Case first made an alteration in the law, and decided that the view so taken was not correct. The rule there laid down by Lord Tenterden was, that though no precise form of words was necessary to be used in giving notice of dishonour, yet the language employed must be such as to convey notice to the party what the bill is, and that payment of it has been refused by the acceptor. Upon the authority of that case, the Court of Exchequer Chamber and the House of Lords decided Solarte r. Palmer, and held the notice there used insufficient. By that decision we are bound, though I am not prepared to say that I am bound by all the reasoning or language of the learned judges in giving their opinion, and therefore should myself doubt whether we could go so far as to say that it ought to appear upon the face of the instrument, by express terms or necessary implication, that the bill was presented and dishonoured;' it seems to me enough if it appears by reasonable intendment, and would be inferred by any man of business, that the bill has been presented to the acceptor, and not paid by him. However, supposing that we are bound by the precise expression of Tindal, C. J. in delivering judgment in the Exchequer Chamber, we ought not to put a strict construction on the term 'necessary implication;' for were we to do so, it would be difficult for any mercantile man to conduct business without the constant aid of a solicitor. We must not put such a meaning on that expression, as to say that the language of the instrument must be so precise as to exclude the possibility of any other inference than that the bill has been so presented and returned unpaid. On the subject of the term 'necessary implication' Lord Eldon says, 'Necessary implication means not natural necessity, but so strong a probability that an intention contrary to that which is imputed cannot be supposed.' (Wilkinson v. Adam, 1 Ves. & B. 466). If we adopt such a rule of construc-

· · 1

...

ï

1. 2

4

٠. ۲

.

. 7

d

B

tion in the present case, could any doubt be entertained by any mercantile man who received this notice, that the note had been presented to the maker when due, and was not honoured? Look at the language of the notice, 'I am desired to give you notice that a promissory note made by Samuel Thompson for 991. 18s., payable to your order, became due yesterday, and has been returned unpaid. I have to request you will remit the amount thereof, with 1s. 6d. noting.' It states the time when the note became due, and that it had been returned unpaid. Can any one doubt the use of the term 'returned unpaid?' The word 'returned' is almost a technical term in matters of this nature, and means that the bill has come to maturity, has been presented, and has not been paid. Upon reading this notice I should say, that it appears from it, by necessary implication (in the meaning I attach to the term), that the note has been duly presented and dishonoured. This is the opinion which I should have formed previously to the case of Boulton v. Welsh, (3 Bing. N. C. 688, ante, 467, n. (i),) and we are not called upon to overrule that case without some authority to the contrary. The notice in Grugeon v. Smith, (6 Ad. & El. 499, ante. 468, n. (o),) was in the same terms as the present; and as we must determine to which of the two cases we will subscribe, I must say I think that the one in the Common Pleas was not rightly determined. There is indeed one circumstance mentioned in this notice of dishonour, which does not appear in the notice of Boulton v. Welsh, viz that the bill had been noted: that constitutes a distinction between the two cases; but I disclaim to go on that distinction. In Solarte v. Palmer it was contended that there was no intimation that the bill had been presented for payment, or that it was unpaid, or even that it was due, and the argument for the sufficiency of the notice rested on the authority of Tindal v. Brown, on its containing sufficient information that the party was held liable to the holder. In the present case I think no mercantile man, upon reading the notice, could possibly misunderstand its meaning; and therefore on that ground I think the rule to enter a verdict for the defendant ought to be discharged."

(q) Margeson v. Goble, 2 Chit. Rep. 364. (r) Woodthorpe r. Laws, 2 Mee. & Wels. and necessary Proceedings thereon.

What a sufficient Notice of Dishonour

I. Of Non- the holder unpaid:" on the evening of the same day the defendant called on the plaintiffs, expressed his surprise that the bill had not been paid, and promised to write to the parties in Edinburgh, and that he would see it paid, but made no objection to the sufficiency of the notice he had received: at the trial it was left to the jury to say whether or not the letter and the conversation together amounted to a notice of dishonour, and the jury having found for the plaintiffs, the court refused to disturb their verdict(s). The grounds upon which these several decisions proceeded will be found fully stated in the notes. The difference of opinion which exists among some of the learned judges, with respect to the sufficiency of the notice, is perhaps more to be lamented than the extreme nicety required in framing the notice itself; though it is certainly much to be regretted that learned judges should feel themselves so fettered by authority as to hold that notice insufficient the true import of which, it is admitted, no mercantile or even ordinary person can misunderstand. Some degree of strictness, however, in the form of notice is evidently essential, particularly in the case of an indorser, who is frequently without the means of ascertaining whether a due presentment has been made and payment refused, and who, if he pays the bill in ignorance of the laches of the holder, may lose his remedy over against a prior and solvent party(t).

> (s) Houlditch v. Cauty, 6 Scott, 209; 4 Bing. N. C. 411, S. C. Per Tindul, C. J. "With regard to the second plea, that there was no notice or an insufficient notice of dishonour, we have been strenuously urged, upon the authority of two cases determined in the King's Bench and Exchequer respectively, about the time of and since our late decision in this court of Boulton v. Welsh, viz. Grugeon v. Smith, and Hodges v. Steavenson, to say that the judgment we then pronounced is not warranted by law, or at least if not improper, is one that we ought not to be disposed to carry further. I see no reason, however, for holding Boulton r. Welsh to be a judgment not warrant-ed by law. It certainly went the full length of Solarte r. Palmer, but no further; I should not be slow to recede from an opinion, when properly satisfied that it had been too hastily formed: but I am not satisfied by any thing that was said in Grugeon v. Smith or Hedger v. Steavenson to recall any part of what fell from me in Boulton r. Welsh. In each of those cases there appeared a circumstance that did not exist in Boulton v. Welsh: in the one the party was informed that the bill was 'returned with charges,' in the other a demand was made of 1s. 6d. for 'noting:' which would necessarily convey to the mind of the person addressed that the bill in the one case and the note in the other had been presented for payment and was dishonoured. However I am perfectly ready to reconsider the decision in Beulton v. Welsh, provided I be not called upon to depart from the principle laid down in Solarte v. Palmer. Taking the letter in this case alone, it appears to me that it would fall short of a proper notice; it merely states that the bill 'was returned to the holder unpaid.' That approximates very closely to the notice in Boulton r. Welsh. But upon the same day on which the notice was given, the defendant called at the counting house of the plaintiffs, expressed his surprise and regret that the bill had not been paid, and promised to write immediately to Edinburgh on the subject and that the bill should be paid. It appears to me, that coupling that conversation with the letter we are bound to hold that the defendant has had a regular and sufficient notice. The parties being thus together, a single word from the defendant intimating dissatisfaction with the form of the notice, would have enabled the plaintiffs to supply the deficiency. The plaintiffs having thus been fulled into a false security, I think we ought to be astute to discover grounds for holding the notice sufficient; and the jury having had all the facts fully before them, and having found their verdict upon the express footing of a valid notice, whether verbal or in writing is perfectly immaterial, I, for one, am not disposed to disturb it."

(t) The following comprehensive form is suggested as expedient to be adopted upon the dishonour of an inland bill, and it may be readily altered and adapted to every particular case:-

"No. 5, Cornhill, London, "Dated 5th March, A. D. 1840.

"Sir, [or "Gentlemen,"]
"I hereby give you notice, that the bill of exchange, dated 1st January, 1840, last past, drawn by A. B. of —, in the county of —, on and accepted by C. D. of No. —, — Street, London, and whereby the said A. B. requested the said C. D. two months after the date thereof, to pay to the said A. B. or his order 501., and which was indorsed by the said A. B. to E. F. of, &c. and by the said E. F. to G. H. of, &c. and also by the said G. H. to you, and also by you, and whereof I am now the lawful holder, was yesterday, the 4th day of March instant, duly presented to the said C. D. for payment thereof, but was and is unpaid and dishonoured, the said C. D. refusing [or "neglecting"] to pay the same and stating that, &c. [according to the answer given to the notary] and I request you immediately to

*With respect to the mode of giving the notice, personal service is not I. of Nonnecessary, nor is it requisite to leave a written notice at the residence of the payment, party, but it is sufficient to send to, or leave verbal notice at the counting- sary Prohouse or place of abode of the party without leaving notice in writing(u); ceedings and the giving such verbal notice to a servant at his home, the defendant thereon. having left no clerk in his counting-house as it was his duty to do, suf- Mode of fices(x). So where a person, sent by the holder of a dishonoured bill, call-giving Noed at the drawer's house the day after it became due, and there saw his wife, and told her that he had brought *back the bill that had been dishonoured; May be and she said she knew nothing about it, but would tell her husband of it rerbal. when he came home; and the party then went away, not leaving any written [*472] notice; this was held sufficient notice of dishonour (y). And if a witness verbally tell the drawer of a bill of exchange that his bill for 301., drawn on T., has come back dishonoured, and produces the bill, and points out to the drawer the notary's mark upon it, this is a sufficient notice of dishon-And if the drawer has a counting-house where he transacts business, and at which the bill was addressed, it suffices to apply there for the purpose of giving notice, without attempting to give or leave notice at the pay the amount to me, to prevent the expense of litigation

, w.

. ...

, t h : 3 - 3

... 8

5*

....

d,

.

. 3

ø.

4

· 🛪

44

Á ţĊ

_

×

ď.

21

"I am, Sir,
"Yours obediently,
"L. M.

"To I. K. merchant, [or, "Messrs. I. K. and Co." according to the fact] at —, in the county of —." county of ---.

Although it is certainly unnecessary, and not the practice to frame the notice thus formally, it may be expedient, when time and circumstances will allow, to state the residence of the drawer and prior indorsers to the party to whom the notice is given, and who may have forgotten the same, so as to enable him immediately to forward the like notice to and sue them. A duplicate of such letter should be kept, and it will be prudent, for fear of the death of one, that at least two competent witnesses should examine the original letter with the duplicate, and both be able to swear that such original letter was put into the proper post, duly directed, and within the proper time; and it will be advisable, in order to avoid the necessity for numerous witnesses and complication of proof, which sometimes creates insurmountable difficulty, to let the very same two persons who saw the holder sign his name to the original and duplicate letter, put the same into the chief or proper post-office, and not to employ any intervening person. See Hetherington v. Kemp, 4 Camp. 193, (Chit. j. 932); and post, Part II. Ch. V. Evidence.

(u) Crosse v. Smith, 1 Maule & S. 545, (Chit. j. 886); Goldsmith v. Bland, Bayl. 5th. ed. 246, et post, 472; and when personal service is not necessary, see Jones r. Marsh, 4 T. R. 465; Brandon v. Brandon, 1 B. & P. 394.

Goldsmith and others v. Bland and others, at Guildhall, cor. Lord Eldon, 1st March, 1800, (Chit. j. 826). The plaintiffs sued the defendants as indorsers of two foreign bills, and to prove notice the plaintiffs shewed that they sent a clerk to the defendant's counting-house near the Exchange, between four and five o'clock in the afternoon; nobody was in the countinghouse; the clerk saw a servant girl at the house, who said that nobody was in the way, and he returned, having left no message with her. Lord Edon told the jury that if they thought the defendants ought to have had somebody in the counting house at the time, he was of opinion that the plaintiffs had done all that was necessary, by sending their clerk; that the notice was in law sufficient, if the time was regular, whether the defendants were solvent at the time or not. The jury thought that the defendants ought to have had somebody in the counting-house at the time, and that the plaintiffs had done all that was necessary. Verdict for the plaintiffs for 16331. And see Bayl. 5th edit. 246.

Crosse v. Smith, 1 Maule & S. 545, (Chit. j. 886). Notice to the drawers of non-payment of a bill of exchange, by sending to their counting house, during the hours of business, on two successive days, knocking there, and making noise sufficient to be heard by persons within, and waiting there several minutes, the inner door of the counting-house being locked, is sufficient, without leaving a notice in writing, or sending by the post, though some of the drawers live at a small distance from the place. Per Lord Ellenborough, "The counting-house is a place where all appointments respecting the business, and all notices, should be addressed. and it is the duty of the merchant to take care that a proper person be in attendance." It has, however, been argued, that notice in writing, lest at the counting-house, or put into the post, was necessary, but the law does not require it, and with whom was it to be left? Putting a letter into the post is only one mode of giving notice, but where both parties are residing in the same town, sending a clerk is a more regular and less exceptionable mode, and see Bancroft v. Hall, Holt, C. N. P. 476, (Chit. j. 968); post, 473, note (g). (x) Id. ibid.

(y) Housego v. Cowne, 2 Mec. & Wels. 848.

(2) Phillips r. Gould, 8 Car. & P. 855.

payment, and necessary Proceedings thereon.

By Post.

I. Of Non- residence of the drawer(a). And it is sufficient, both in the case of a foreign and an inland bill, to send twice during hours of business, and to knock there and wait a short time, and then go away without leaving or sending any written notice (b). So it suffices in all cases to send notice by the post, properly directed(c), (even though the letter should miscarry(d)); for it would be very unreasonable to make it incumbent on the holder to send a giving No- person with the notice, where perhaps the distance may be very great(e); tice. and indeed there is considerable risk in sending notice by a private hand, where there is a regular post, for if the notice arrive a day later by the former than by the latter, the parties may be discharged (f). But it is reported to have been decided, that the holder of a dishonoured bill is not bound to send notice to the drawer by the mail or first conveyance that sets out from [*473] the place where such holder resides, and that it is sufficient, provided *there be no essential delay, if he send notice by a private hand, and although such notice should thereby reach the drawer later in the same day than if it had been sent by the mail, he will not, on that account, be discharged (g). safer course, however, is to send by the regular post.

> (a) Anle, 471, note (u). In America it was held, that if an indorser has shut up his town house, and retired to his house in the country, intended only as a temporary residence, it suffices to put a notice through a keyhole of the town house. Steward v. Eden, 2 Cain. Rep. 121.

(b) Id. ibid.(c) Esdaile v. Sowerby, 11 East, 117, (Chit.

j. 767).

(d) Saunderson v. Judge, 2 Hen. Bla. 509, (Chit. j. 545), infra; Dobree v. Eastwood, 3 Car. & P. 250, (Chit. j. 1370), post, 491, note (s), et seq.

(e) Saunderson v. Judge, 2 H. Bla. 509, (Ch. j. 545); Kufh r. Weston, 3 Esp. R. 54, (Chit. j. 617); Haynes v. Birks, 3 Bos. & Pul. 602, (Chit. j. 690); Parker v. Gordon, 7 East, 385, 386; 3 Smith, 358; 6 Esp. 41, (Chit. j. 727); Pearson v. Cranlan, 2 Smith's Rep. 404, (Chit. j. 715); post, 474, note (0); Langdon v. Hulls, 5 Esp. Rep. 157, (Chit. j. 697), acc.; Dale v. Lubbock, 1 Barnard. B. R. 199; Pothier Traite du Contrat de Change, part 1, ch. 5, sect. 2, art. 1, 3, 4, semb. contra. Kufh v. Weston, 3 Esp. Rep. 54, (Chit. j. 617). Notice of the non-acceptance or nonpayment of a bill of exchange is sufficiently given by proving that a letter was regularly put into the post, informing the party of the fact. Assumpsit on a foreign bill of exchange drawn by Garde, at Exeter, on Messrs. Guetano and Co. at Genoa. The defendants indorsed the bill to the plaintiffs. The bill was presented for acceptance at Genoa, and the acceptance re-fused. The defence was, that it had not been presented in a reasonable time, nor the protest for non-acceptance sent to this country as soon as it ought to have been, and that therefore the defendants had not had due notice of its being dishonoured. In answer to this it was proved, that the bill had been put into the post-office at London, the third day after it was received from the defendants, which was the first Italian postday after it had been so received. It was further proved, that from the disturbed state of Italy, for some time before, the regular post had been interrupted, and the bill had not arrived at Genoa till a month after it became due; that it was immediately presented for acceptance, which being refused, it was protested, and the protest sent off immediately by the post to England. Lord Kenyon said, "That the defendants grounded their defence on the supposed laches of the plaintiff, but he was of opinion, that if the plaintiffs had sent the bill by the ordinary course of the post, they had done all they were called upon to do; that they could not foresee that the post would be interrupted, and it could not be expected that they should send the bill by a special messenger, or any extraordinary mode of conveyance." His lordship said, he therefore thought the plaintiffs had been guilty of no laches, and were entitled to recover, and they accordingly had a verdict.

Saunderson v. Judge, 2 Hen. Bla. 509, (Chit. j. 545). The holder of a note wrote to the defendant, who was one of the indorsers, to say it was dishonoured, and put the letter in the post, but there was no evidence that it ever reached the defendant, and the court held, that proof of sending the letter by the post was quite (f) Darbishire v. Parker, 6 East, 8, 9; 2 Smith, 195, (Chit. j. 707).

(g) Bancroft r. Hall, Holt, C. N. P. 476, (Chit. j. 968). This was an action against the drawer of a bill of exchange, who resided at Liverpool; the bill was accepted by one Hind, payable in London, and indorsed by the defendant to the plaintiff. The bill being dishonoured, notice was given to the plaintiff, who lived at Manchester, on the 24th of May. On that day he sent a letter, by a private hand, to his agent at Liverpool, directing him to give Hall notice of the acceptor's default. On the 25th, in the afternoon, the agent received the letter, and went, about six or seven in the evening, to the counting-house of Hall, but after knocking at the door and ringing a bell, no one came to receive a message. The merchants' counting-houses at Liverpool do not shut up till eight or nine. The 26th was a Sunday, and notice was not in fact given till the morning of the Notice of the dishonour of a bill sent by the two-penny post is sufficient, I. Of Nonwhere the parties live within its limits, whether near or at a distance from payment, each other, but it must be proved that the letter, conveying the notice, was sary Proput into the receiving-house on the next day at such an hour, that according ceedings to the course of the post, it would be delivered to the party to whom it is thereon. addressed, on the day when he was entitled to receive notice of the dishon- Mode of our(h). But in a country town, where the post does not leave until seven giving Noo'clock in the evening, it should seem sufficient to send notice by such post, although the party to whom it is addressed resides within a few miles of the post town, and the notice will not be received till the following morn-

Where notice is to be sent from London by the general post, it has been held, that the letter, giving such notice, should be put into the general postoffice in St. Martin's le Grand, or at a receiving-house, and that the delivery to a bell-man in the street will not be sufficient(k); and it is obvious that the notice should in all cases be forwarded by some person who will afterwards be competent to prove it, and by a person who saw the holder sign the notice, and who himself put it in the post, so as to avoid multiplicity of proof, which is necessary where there has been the intervention of several persons(l).

BILL:

4

1.

٤

Where there is no post, it is sufficient to send notice by the ordinary mode of conveyance, though notice by a special messenger might arrive earlier; and therefore in the case of a foreign bill, it is sufficient to send it by the first regular ship bound for the place to which it is to be sent, and it is no [*474] objection, that if sent by a ship bound elsewhere, it would, by accident have arrived sooner, though the holder wrote other letters by that ship to the place to which the notice was to be sent(m). If the deputy post-master, 27th. It was objected for the defendant, that the notice was not in time after the London letter reached Manchester. A mail set out next morning to Liverpool. The plaintiff should have sent the notice by the mail, which reached Liverpool by ten o'clock; if he prefers a private conveyance, or if he attempts to give notice earlier than by law he is bound to do, and fails in giving an effectual notice, he is not therefore exempt from giving proper legal no-

Bayley, J. " Notice must be given in time, but all a man's other business is not to be suspended for the sake of giving the most expeditious notice. He is not bound to write by post as the only conveyance, or to to send a letter by the very first channel which offers. He may write to a frieud, and send by a private conveyance. Here the notice reaches Liver-pool on the 25th. No expedition could have brought it earlier. Between six and seven in the evening of that day, the witness goes to the defendant's counting-house, and it is shut up. A merchant's counting-house or residence of trade, is not like a banker's shop, which closes universally at a known hour. It was the defendant's fault that he did not receive notice on the 25th, which he might have done if he had kept his counting-house open till eight or nine, which are the customary hours of closing them at Liverpool." Verdict for the plaintiff. And see Bayley, 5th edit. 280; but see Beeching v. Gower, Holt, C. N. P. 315, (Chit. j. 966); post, 487, n. (p).

(h) See post, 483, 484; Scott r. Lifford, 1 Campb. 246; 9 East, 347, (Chit. j. 747); Smith v. Mullett, 2 Campb. 208, (Chit. j. 775); Hilton v. Fairclough, 2 Campb. 633, (Chit. j. 826); Dobree v. Eastwood, 3 Car. & P. 250, (Chit. j. 1370); post, 491, note (s), et seq.; 2 Phil. on Evid. 19, 35; Edmonds v. Cates, post, 484, note (u).

(i) Boyd r. Emmerson 4 Nev. & Man. 99;

2 Àd. & El. 184, S. C.

(k) Ante, 237; Hawkins r. Rutt, Peak. R. 186, (Chit. j. 511); Roscoe, 206. Sed quære, if the latter would not be sufficient.

(1) Ante, 471, end of note (1) (m) Muilman r. D'Eguino, 2 Hen. Bla. 565, (Chit. j. 549). To debt on bond conditional to pay certain bills drawn on India, at sixty days sight, in case they should be returned protested, defendant pleaded, that he had not notice so soon as he should have had: it appeared that notice was sent by the first English ships, but that by the accidental conveyance of a foreign ship, not bound for England, and by which the holder wrote to England upon other matters, notice might have been sent sooner, and would have arrived sooner; but Eyre, C. J. told the jury, that notice by the first regular ships bound for England was sufficient, and that it was not necessary to send notice by the chance conveyance of a foreign ship. The jury found for the plaintiff, and the court was satisfied with the verdict, and refused a new trial. See also Darbishire v. Parker, 6 East, 7; 2 Smith, 195, (Chit. j. 707).

and necessary Proceedings thereon.

Mode of giving Notice.

I. Of Non- in a country town, should neglect to deliver the letter in the usual time, but there is nevertheless time to send the notice by a special messenger, it should be done(n). It has been decided, that where it is necessary or more convenient for the holder to send notice by other conveyance than the post, he may send a special messenger, and he may recover the reasonable expences incurred by that mode of giving notice(o).

> When the party entitled to notice is abroad at the time of the dishonour, if he have a place of residence in England, notice should be left there, and a demand of acceptance or payment on his wife or servant there would be regular(p).

If by Post, Letters must be accurately directed.

When the notice is to be sent in a letter by post, care must be observed that the letter be accurately directed, for any mistake occasioning delay, and which might have been avoided by due care, will deprive the holder of all remedy against the party to whom the notice ought to have been given(q). If the party reside in a city or large town, the direction should not be to him at that place generally, but state the particular street or part of the town where he resides, and his trade or occupation, so as to prevent the risk of misdelivery, which might at least occasion delay in the proper person receiving such notice; therefore it has been held, that a notice to an indorser thus, "Mr. Haynes, Bristol," is too general and insufficient, without express evidence that the proper party received it in due time, because the place being so populous, there may be many persons of the same name there (r). But [*475] where the drawer himself chooses to date his bill so generally as *" Manchester(s)," or "London(t)," it implies, that a letter sent to the post-office, and so directed, will find him; and, therefore, a notice thus generally addressed to the drawer will be sufficient; at least, to go to the jury, that he had had due notice of the dishonour; nor will the fact of the acceptor's residence being stated in the acceptance, and of whom inquiries might have been made as to the residence of the drawer, render such notice insufficient(u). Every prudent holder should, however, in all cases, make active inquiries, and write the fullest description on a letter giving notice (v); and it has been suggested, that if it be proved that there was a directory for the place where it is supposed the indorser or drawer resides, then that the adop-

(n) Horden v. Dalton, 1 Car. & P. 181,

(Chit. j. 1204).

found a verdict for the plaintiff for the amount of the bill, and the full charge for the expences; and Lawrence, J. said, "In some parts of Yorkshire, where the manufactures live at a distance from the post towns, the letters may lie for a long time before they are called for, and it may be necessary to send notice by a special mes-senger;" and Lord Ellenborough, C. J. observed, "That it was rightly left to the jury, if it was left for them to say, whether the special messenger was necessary, and also whether the charge was reasonable." Rule nisi refused.

(p) Crouwell v. Hynson, 2 Esp. Rep. 511, (Chit. j 571); ante, 464, note (l); Walwyn v. St. Quintin, 1 B. & Pul. 652; 2 Esp. 514, (Chit. j 578); sed vide 5 Esp. Rep. 175.
(q) Esdaile v. Sowerby, 11 East, 117, (Chit.

j. 767). (r) Walter v. Haynes, Ryan. & Mood. 149, (Chit. j. 1227).

(s) Mann v. Moors, Ryan & Mood. 249,

(Chit. j. 1260), (t) Clarke r. Sharpe, 3 M. & W. 166; 1 Horn & H. 35, S. C.

(u) Id. ibid.

(v) Bayl. 5th edit. 230.

⁽o) Pearson v. Cranlan, 2 Smith's Rep. 404, (Chit. j. 715). Assumpsit on a bill of exchange for 30l., indorsed by the defendant to the plaintiff. The plaintiff demanded the amount of the bill and 2l. 12s. 9d. costs. The defendant tendered 3ll. 11s. 9d., the expence incurred was on account of a messenger employ-ed in giving the notice. The defendant ob-jected that the holder of a bill was not entitled to give notice by a special messenger, but only by the ordinary course of the post. It was agreed, that if a special messenger should be allowed, it was not an unreasonable charge. The 311. 11s. 9d. having been tendered, and that fact pleaded, and this objection being made to the legality of the charge, the defendant's counsel contended, that the plaintiff should be nonsuited, but the learned judge overruled the objection, and expressly left it to the jury to say whether the sending by a special messenger was done wantonly or not; and it appeared that the letter possibly would not have reached the defendant for a fortnight, as he lived out of the usual course of the post, and upon this the jury tion of the address given in such directory might, perhaps, be held suffi- L Of Noncient(x). It is not usual to advertise the dishonour of a bill or note in the payment. public papers; but where the sum is considerable, and all other inquiries af- and necester an indorser have failed, it might be expedient to adopt that means of giv- ceedings ing notice(1).

(x) Id. 231.

Mode of giving Notice.

(1) The holder is bound to use due diligence to give notice of the non-acceptance, as well as non-payment of a bill to the drawer and inderser, whom he intends to charge. Tunno r. Lague, 2 John. Cas. 1. Berry v. Robinson, 9 John. Rep. 121. Hussey v. Freeman, 10 Mass. Rep. 84. The agent of the holder is not bound to give notice of the dishonor of a bill to the drawer or indorsers, but is only bound to give notice to his principal, and to transmit to him the requisite protests, in order that the holder may give notice to the drawer and indorsers of the dishonour of the bill. Tunno v. Legue. Colt v. Noble, 5 Mass. Rep. 167. And if the egent undertakes to give notice, it will be good, if given as early as it could have been received from the holder r. Lague.

 The liability of the drawer or inderser of a disheneured bill depends not on actual notice. but on reasonable diligence; which is in all cases tantamount to actual notice, whether given or not. Dickins v. Beal, 10 Peters, 572.

Notice of the dishonour of bills of exchange must be made out in two ways: 1. That the bills have been duly protested for non-acceptance; and due and legal diligence used in giving notice thereof; in which case the legal presumption of its receipt in time would attach. 2. By proof that the notice actually came to hind in proper time; though the letter containing the notice was not properly directed, or sent by the most expeditions or direct route. Hid.

Where a note has been discounted by a brack it sames that it would not be due diligence if the notary inquired only of the directors and onicers of the bank, respecting the residence of the first indorser. Stuckert v. Anderson, 3 Whart 116. Whether or not due diligence was used in making inquiry for the indorser is a mixed question of law and fact. The Court are to give their opinion on the law to the jury, according to the circumstances as they appear. But the jary must decide the fact whether there was due efficience or not. Hild.

And see with respect to sufficiency of notice, and due diligence, the following cases: Catabill Bank v. Stall, 15 Wend 364; Helland v. Turner, 19 Conn. 308; Farmer's Plank v. Duvall, 7

Gill & John. 79. }

··r

•. ••

نها . .

1/15

. .

. .

100

31

. 5

130

13

194

j.

.

جر. امر 1 أو

51.

314

'91

31

Where the parties reside in the some town or city, the notice of non-acceptance or non-payment must be personal, or left at the dwelling-house or place of business of the party to be charged by the notice. Ireland v. Kip, 10 John. Rep. 410, S. C. 11 John. Rep. 222. Williams v. Bank of the United States, 2 Peters, 96. And where the parties lived in New York, and notice of non-payment of a note was put into the post-once in the city, directed to the indorser, who resided at Kip's Bay, (about three miles and a half from the post-office, and within the city.) but the letter carriers did not carry letters to that distance, it was held, that the notice was insufficient. Ibid. In case of a temporary removal of the inderser from the place where powment is to be made, notice, at his last place of residence there, will be sufficient. Stewart r. Eden, 2 Caines' Rep. 121. But see Blakeley r. Grant, 6 Mass Rep. 256. If the agent of the holder call at the indorser's house, and finding it shut up, and that he had gone out of town, put a letter into the post-office addressed to him, informing him of the non-payment or non-acceptance, it will be sufficient notice. Ogden r. Cowley, 2 John. Rep. 274. Withams r. Bank of the United States, ut supra. Galpin'e, Hard, 3 M'Cord, 394. A bill was drawn and dated at New York, on persons residing there, who accepted it; but the drawers in fact resided at Petersburgh in Virginia. The bill being protested for non-payment, on the same day or the next day, two letters were put into the post-office, giving notice to the drawers, one directed to New York, and the other to Norfolk, the supposed place of their residence. It was held, that as it did not appear that the holder knew where the drawers lived, he had used due diligence, and the notice was good. Chapman v. Libscombe, 1 John. Rep. 291.

A citizen of the United States drew a bill in the East Indies, payable in London which was transmitted by the holder to his agent in London, and being there dishonoured, was returned to the holder in the East Indies, with the protest; it was held, that notice of the dishonour of the bill sent to the United States, to the drawer by the holder after the receiving the protests in the East Indies, was good, and that the holder was not board to have sent notice through his agent direct from London to the United States, ofthough he I vew the den will of the drawer in the United States. Colt v. Noble, 5 Mass. Rep. 167.

If due diligence he used to give notice to the party to be characed, and he cannot be found, this is equivalent to due notice. Ogden r. Cowley, 2 John. Rep. 274. Blakeley v. Crant, 6 Mass. Rep. 386. But a written notice in such case, left at a former dwelling-house of the party, in which neither he nor his family then resided, is no proof to support an allegation of notice in fact even though it should elsewhere be received by the wife of the party, unless she was constituted his agent. Blakeley v. Grant. Put see Stewart v. Eden, 2 Calors' Rep. 121.

The putting of a letter into the post-office, giving notice of the dishonour of a note or bill, is sufficient notice, although no proof is given of its having been actually received. Munn v. Baid-

U

1. Of Nonpayment, and neces sary Proceedings thereon.

The time of making protest, we have seen, is to be regulated by the law of the place where it is made; but the time of giving notice thereof, or of tice.

General Rule.

win, 6 Mass. Rep. 316. Miller v. Hackley, 5 John. Rep. 375. Bank of Columbia v Lawrence, 1 Peters, 578. And it is a general rule, that if the party to be affected by a notice reside in a different city or place from the holder, the notice may be sent through the post-office to the post-4thly, different city of place from the nonice, the notice may be sent through the place. The Time of making See also Freeman v. Boynton, 7 Mass. Rep. 483. See Bank of Columbia v. Lawrence, ut supra. of making See also Freeman v. Boynton, 7 Mass. Rep. 483. See Bank of Columbia v. Lawrence, ut supra. Protest and Bank of the United States v. Carneal, 2 Peters, 543. Whittier v. Graffam, 3 Greenl. 82. Mead giving No- v. Engs, 5 Cowen, 303.

But it is decided in the cases of Bank of Geneva r. Howlett, 4 Wend 329, and Cuyler r. Nellis, Idem, 398, that it is not indispensable that notice should be sent to the office nearest to the residence of a party, nor even to the town in which he resides; that it is sufficient if it be sent to the office to which he usually resorts for his letters.

And if an indorser receives notice of the dishonour of a bill or note, he must immediately give notice to all the prior parties whom he intends to charge. Morgan v. Woodworth, 3 John. Cas. 89. Notice of non-payment of a bill or note, must, generally, be given by an indorser to the in-dorser next before him, by the next post, after he himself has received notice of the dishonor; and so on to the drawer. But this rule is not inflexible. Notice may be given by the next practicable post. Reasonable diligence is all that is required. Mead r. Engs, 5 Cowen, 303.

But if business be suspended in a city during two months, by a contagious disorder, it will excuse the want of notice during that period. Tunno v. Lague, 2 John. Cas. 1.

The holder of a bill must use reasonable diligence to ascertain the residence of the drawer for the purpose of giving him notice of its dishonor. It is not sufficient to look for the drawer at the place where the bill is dated, if his residence be elsewhere. Fisher v. Evans, 5 Binney's Rep. 541. Freeman v. Boynton. But notice left with the family of a sea-faring man during his absence, is sufficient. Fisher v. Evans. Blakeley v. Grant, 6 Mass. Rep. 396. Freeman v. Boynton.

In general, if at the time when a note or bill falls due, the indorser or drawer is absent from the state, and has left no known agent to receive notice, there is no necessity to prove a notice in order to charge him upon non-acceptance or non-payment by the maker or drawee. Blakeley v. Grant, 6 Muss. Rep. 388. And when at the maturity of a note, the maker was out of the state, and the holder left a written demand of payment at his dwelling-house, not knowing of his absence, and on the same day gave notice to the indorsers, it was held sufficient to bind the latter. Sanger v. Stimpson, 8 Mass. Rep. 260. And if the maker has absconded before a note becomes due, and this fact is known to the indorser, it has been held that no demand of payment on him is necessary to charge the indorser. Putuan v. Sullivan, 4 Mass. Rep. 45.

Where the holder and indorser of a foreign bill of exchange both reside in the same city, proof of notice to the indorser within three days after advice of the dishonour of the bill is insufficient. Bryden r. Bryden, 11 John Rep. 187. So the neglect to notify to an indorser of the default of payment of a note by the maker, for eight days after its dishonor, the parties living at the time within four miles of each other, is such laches as discharges the indorser. Hussey v. Freeman, 10 Mass. 84.

Where the indorser lives in the same town with the maker, notice ought to be given to him upon the same day on which the demand is made upon the maker. Woodbridge v. Brigham, 12 Mass. Rep. 403. Where the maker of a note appointed a place to notify to him the note's falling due, a notice and demand at such place is sufficient to charge the indorser. State Bank v. Hurd, 12 Mass. Rep. 172. See Brent's Exis. v. Bank of the Metropolis, 1 Peters, 89.

A demand of payment should be made on the last day of grace, and notice of the default of the maker be put into the post-office early enough to be sent by the mail of the succeeding day, where the indorser resides in a different place. Lenox et al. v. Roberts, 2 Wheaton, 877. Townsley et al. v. Springer, 1 Miller's Louis. Rep. 122.

{ Bank of Alexandria v. Swann, 9

Notice to the indorser is in time if put into the post-office on the next day, and if there be two mails a day it is not necessary that it should be put in in time for the first mail. Whitwell v. Johnson, 17 Mass. 449.

The holder of an inland bill or note is not obliged to send notice of non-payment until the next day after its dishonor. Hartford Bank r. Stedman, 3 Conn. Rep. 489.

Where the parties to a note or bill reside in different towns notice may be sent by mail. Hartford Bank v. Stedman, 3 Conn. Rep. 489.

When the third day of grace falls on Saturday the notice of non-payment need not be given until the next Monday. Williams v. Matthews, 3 Conn. 252.

Where the indorser lives in another town notice put into the post-office is sufficient, although never received. Shed v. Bret, 1 Pick. 401. And if the indorser does not live in a post-town sending the notice to the nearest post-town is perhaps sufficient. Ibid. Bussard v. Levering, 6 Wheat. 102.

Where notice to the indorser of a promissory note of which a bank is holder, is given according to the usage of the bank, it is sufficient to charge the indorser. Bank of United States v. Norwood, C. C. U. S. 1 Harr. & Johns. 423. Brent's Exrs. v. Bank of the Metropolis, ut supra.

When a note is payable at a bank, it is not necessary to make any personal demand upon the the non-payment, is to be regulated by the law of the place where the draw-I. Of Noner or indorsers respectively resided at the time when the bill was drawn or payment, and necessary Proeeedings maker elsewhere. Bank of the United States v. Carneal, 2 Peters, 543. As to the rules to be cheered in giving notice of non-payment when a note is payable at a bank, see Bank of Columbia v. Lawrence, 1 Peters, 578. Brent's Exrs. v Bank of the Metropolis, ut supra. Fullerton 4thly, v. Bank of the United States, 1 Peters, 604. A note being dated at a particular place, does not The Time render it payable at that place alone; and if the maker is not to be found at that place, the holdof making er is not excused from inquiring elsewhere. Galpin v. Hard, 3 M'Cord, 394. Protest.

Although notice of the non-payment of a note be not left at the proper place, but in fact is reand giving ceived by the inderser, and is so proved, or from the evidence, can be fairly inferred by the jury, Notice. it is sufficient to charge the indorser. Bank of the United States v. Corcoran, 2 Peters, 121.

Notice of dishonor sent by mail is sufficient and proper between places where post-offices are established, but where the indorser lives in the country and not on a post road, a special messenger ought to be employed or other means used to convey the notice with the same certainty and dispatch. Bank of Logan v. Butler, 3 Litt. 493. See Bank of Columbia v. Lawrence, 1 Peters, 578. Notice sent by a notary public and by mail to the indorser is sufficient. Crissen v. Williams, 1 Marsh. 456.

Notice of the non-acceptance of a foreign bill must be given to the indorser in due and convenient time of which the court are to judge. Phillips v. M'Curdy, 1 Har. & Johns. 187. It seems now to be well settled, that when the facts are ascertained, what shall constitute due diligence, is a question of law to be determined by the court. Bank of Columbia v. Lawrence, 1 Peters, 578. See Bank of the United States v. Corcornn, 2 Peters, 121. | Nash v. Harrington, 2 Ai-But see Braban v. Raglanet, 1 Minor, S5, where it is held to be a question for the jury. }

The law does not require of the holder of a note or bill that he shall give the earliest possible.

Bank of Utica v. Smith, 18 Johns. 230.

Where the makers of a negotiable note resided in New York, the holders at Elizabethtown, and the indorser in the neighborhood of Rahway, and the notary who protested the note in New York transmitted notice of protest by the next insil to the holder at Elizabethtown who sent the notice by the next mail to the indorser, it was held that the notice to the indorser was in time.

State Bank v. Ayres, 2 Hals. 130. A promissory note was made negotiable and payable at the Newbern branch of the State Bank of North Carolina, and fell due on the 11th December, the indurser lived in Newbern near to the bank. Notice of non-payment was not given to him until the 17th of December. Held that he was discharged by this laches. State Bank v. Smith, 2 Munf. 70.

Notice of protest must go by the first mail after the protest. Dodge r. Bank of Kentucky, 2

Marsh. 615.

100 .11

18

7 :2

. 1

After a refusal by the maker of a promissory note to pay, on demand, made on the day when the note fell due, the note is dishonored and notice may be immediately given to the indorser. Shed r. Bret, 1 Pick. 401.

Though a demand on the drawer of a bill cannot be made, yet the law will not dispense with notice to the indorser: And the circumstances which prevent the demand must be stated. Price v. Young, 1 M'Cord, 339. And such notice should be given in as short a period after ascertaining that demand cannot be made, as if demand had been made, and the bill dishonored, viz. as soon as may be conveniently practicable. Id.

Where an indorser resided in one town, within two and a half miles of a post-office, and carried on business in another town where there was also a post-office at the distance of four and a half miles from his residence, and he received letters and kept a postage account at the latter office, it was held, that notice of the protest of a note might be sent to either place. Bank of Geneva r. Howlett, 4 Wend. Rep. 328.

The holder of negotiable paper seeking to charge indorsers is bound to make inquiries as to the proper office to which notice must be sent. Cayler v. Nellis, 4 Wend. Rep. 398.

Where the notary public called at the boarding house where the indorser lodged, and inquired of a fellow boarder for him, and, being informed he was not within, left with the fellow boarder a notice directed to him of the non-payment of a note of which he was indorser, requesting him to deliver it; it was held that the notice was sufficient to make the indorser liable for the payment of the bill. Bank of the United States r. Hatch, 6 Peters' Rep. 250

The rule respecting notice to indorsers, varies with the pursuits of the parties. The same strictness is not required between farmers, resident in the country, as between merchants, resident in the towns. In the first case, what is due diligence must be left to the jury under the direction of the Court. Brittain Ex'r. r. Johnson, 1 Dave. Rep. 293.

The indersee of a negotiable note, to fix the liability of an inderser, must use such diligence as in all reasonable probability will bring home to the indorser notice of the non-payment thereof. Barker v. Hall, 1 Martin & Yerger's Rep. 183.

To place a notice of non-payment in the post-office at Nashville, directed to the indorser, living 71 miles from Nashville, in the same county, and no post-office nearer such indorser and he but seldom visiting Nashville, is insufficient. A private messenger should have been sent with notice, the indorsec's agent living in Nashville, and knowing where the indorser resided. 1b.

Digitized by Google

and necessary Proceedings thereon. 4thly,

I. of Non- indersed (y). In France a bill cannot be protested till the day after it falls In England(a), Scotland, and America, it must, at least, be noted on due(z). the day it falls due. In France, at least, five days are allowed for giving notice to the French drawer and indorser of the dishonour, and two months when disbonoured in England. But in England the notice must be actually given or forwarded, when by general post, the day after the dishonour, and each indors-The Time er must successively give or forward the notice to his immediate indorser on of making the day after notice was received by him. The holder of a foreign bill must giving No- keep in view the foreign law as well as that of his own country, and in case of inland bills and notes he must carefully observe the local law, or he may lose all his remedies. In all countries a premature protest or notice, i. e. one made or given before the bill was dishonoured, would be invalid(b); but in England it should seem, that when on the last day of grace there has, early in the morning, been a demand and positive refusal to pay, an immediate notice of non-payment may be given on that day(c). In all cases, although the law allows a day to each party, yet it is advisable to give it as soon as practicable. We will now more particularly examine the important rules on this subject.

In France.

In France a protest for non-payment must not be made until the day after the day when the bill became due, that entire day being allowed by law to the drawee to prepare for and make payment; but it is otherwise with respect to bills payable at sight, when the terms of the bill denote that the party is to pay upon demand; and therefore the protest may in that case be *476] made on the very day of presentment(d). *If the day for making the pro-

(y) Ante, 456; 4 Pardess, 227, 230; Poth. 871); ante, 327, note (o), and post, 481, n.

pl. 155.

(2) 1 Pardess. 441, 446, 454. (a) Leftley v. Mids, 4 T. R. 174, (Chit. j 473); ante, 463, note (e); and see ante, 397.

(b) 1 Pardess. 452.

(c) Ex parte Moline, 19 Ves. 216, (Chit. j.

(g).

(d) 1 Pardess. 446. Le prot t faute de paiement ne doit être fait que le lendemain du jour de l'echance, ce jour-l'a etant en entier accorde pour faire les demarches necessaries à l'effect d'obtenir le paiement à l'amiable. La

An indersee, to fix the inderser, must present the note for payment at the time it falls due, and must give notice to the indorser of non-payment within a reasonable time, which, according to the general rule, if he resides in the same place, must be on the same day, or at farthest by the next day, or if in a different place, by the next post. Whittlesey et al. v. Dean, 2 Aiken's Rep.

Notice from the indersee to the inderser of non-payment by the maker, is necessary to enable the indorsee to maintain an action against the indorser. Nash v. Harrington, 1 Aiken's Rep. 39. And due ditigence must be used by the inclorace in giving such notice; but what is due diligence, is partly a question of law, and partly a question of fact, in deciding which, the period the note has been payable before the indorsement, the insolvency of the maker, the improbabilitv of his paving or growing worse by delay, the relative distance of the indorser, indorsee and maker, and the fact this of communication between them are all to be considered. Ibid.

Where the law in England requires demand by the indersee, and notice back to the inderser on the same day, to charge him, if the facilities of demand and notice are the same here, the rule of law is the same. Nash r. Harrington, 2 Aiken's Rep. 9.

As to what is or is not a sufficient notice, or due diligence, see also the following cases: Reston liank v. Ucdges, 9 Pick. 420; Church v. Barlow, Idem, 547; Talbot v. Clark, 8 Pick. 51; Nashville Bank r. Bennett, ! Yerg 166; Flack v. Green, 3 Gill. & John. 474; Paterson Bank r. Butler, 7 Helst. 268; Butler v. Duval, 4 Yerg. 265; Sewall v. Russell, 3 Wend. 276; Ogden v. Debbin, 2 Hull, 112; Walker v. Tunstall, 3 How, 209; Whittemere v. Leake, 14 Louis, Rep. 392; Thorn v. Rice, 15 Maine Rep. 263; Lord v. Appleton, Id. 270; Thompson v. Eank of the State, 3 Hill, 77; Marsh v. Ban, 1 Meigs, 68; Downer v. Remer, 21 Wend, 10; Bank of Utica v. Bender, Id. 643; Fitler v. Morris, 6 Whart, 406; Rugles v. Jackson, 19 Wend, 383; McClair v. Waters, 9 Dana, 55, 6; Wilcox v. M'Nutt, 2 How, 776; Bank of Louis, v. Watson, 15 Louis, Rep. 28; Jones v. Mausker, Id. 51; Comm. Bank v. Gove, Id. 113; Bank of Louis v. Mausker, Id. 115; Union Bank v. Grimshaw, Id. 321; Coulon v. Champlin. Id. 541; Foreman v. Wickoff, 16 Louis. Rep. 20; Harrison v. Bowen, Id. 232; Nott v. Beard. 1d, 203. >

. !

20

7.0

6

X

. 1

٠, إ

1

test should fall on a Sunday, or legalized holiday, then the protest is to be I. Of Nonmade on the day after it(e); and if the distance of parties or other circum-payment, stances occasion delay, a reasonable further time on making the protest will sary Pronot prejudice (f). A premature protest no doubt would be unavailing (g). ceedings In France also, the time within which the notice of dishonour must be given, thereon. differs materially from that required in England, and affords more indulgence 4thly, Thus it there suffices if the protest be notified within five of making days, reckoned from the date of the protest, when the drawer or indorser Protest resides within fifteen miles (h); and if the party to whom the notice is to be and giving given resides more than fifteen miles from the place where the bill was pay- Notice. able, the time is increased in proportion, and according to such increased in France. distance; but if the last of the five days be a Sunday, the notice must arrive the day before. When the bill drawn in France falls due in a foreign country (as in England), the drawer and indorsers resident in France must have notice within two months after the date of the protest, and when the bill is payable in other countries more or less prescribed time is allowed(i); and if the English holder neglect to observe the law of France as to the time of protest, and notice and proceeding in France, he will lose his remedy against the French drawer and indorsers (k). The French law does not assume to determine what delay may be allowed in giving notice to and proceeding against the drawer and indorsers residing in a foreign country. general they are regulated and are to be given effect to in France according to the law of such foreign country, where there are conflicting regulations in the different countries in regard to commerce (l).

In France, also, the formalities to be observed after the protest has been made are two—the notice of the protest, and the citation in justice. The first is independent of the second, which is only a consequence, and is not necessary, unless the notice of protest is not followed by payment, therefore one does not supply the place of the other. The time within which the notice ought to be given is impliedly limited to that of the citation, because that mode of pursuit ought to take place on default of payment within the prescribed space of time, which commences the day after the protest (m). copy of the protest, and of all it ought to contain, should be given at the head of the summons, so that each party interested may know all that relates to the process directed against him(n). In France it appears that both these steps, viz. notice of protest, and proceeding in a court by summons, &c. are essential, unless upon a friendly notice of protest a drawer or indorser promise to pay, accompanied with a request not to take proceedings, which promise, if complied with, is not barred *by the five years limitation usually [*477] affecting bills(o). In that country, if a party incautiously pay upon notice of protest, he cannot, although he may have lost his remedy against the prior indorsers, recover back from the holder the money, on ascertaining that his nature des choses indique cependant une exception relativement aux lettres à rue. La demande en acceptation et en paiement se confondant pour ces sortes de lettres, on ne peut constater le refus de les accepter sans constater celui de las payer. Si le jour auquel tombe le protet est un Dimanche ou une fete autorisee legalement dans de le lieu, il doit etre fait le jour suivant. Nous disons dans le lieu, parce qu'en principe general le protet devant être fait suivant les lois du pays on la lettre est payable, les reglemens de l'autorite competente qui autorisent certaines fetes, quoique non celebrees partout, doivent etre observes

(e) 1 Pardess. 446.

(f) Id. 447, 448.

(g) Id. 452; Marius, 103; Campbell v. French, 6 T. R. 212, S. P.; 2 Hen. Bla. 163, (Chit. j. 341). (h) 1 Pardess. 453, 456.

(i) Id. 454. (k) 4 Pardess. 225, 226, 230, 231; 1 Pardess. 453 to 455.

(1) 1 Pardess. 455; 4 Pardess. 197 to 235; ante, 170, 171.

(m) 1 Pardess. 456

(n) Id. ibid.

(o) Pardess. 457, 459.

Digitized by Google

sary Proceedings thereon. of making Notice.

I of Non- conduct has been informal in the protest, or otherwise, unless in case of depayment, ceit or fraud, &c.(p).

In Scotland the notary should, as in England, demand payment on the last day of grace, when the bill falls due. But it is not necessary there to draw up the formal protest on that day; it suffices to note it then, and to The Time give notice of the dishonour in due course, and draw up the formal protest afterwards(q). But then it must appear that the extended protest was ultiand giving mately perfected from authentic evidence, for otherwise it would be invalid(r); and in one of the best Scotch Treatises on Bills, it is observed, "It seems to be now held in Scotland and England, that noting is a kind of incipient protest, which will be considered as sufficient in the mean time, provided the instrument of protest is regularly extended afterwards(s)."

In England.

In Scotland.

It was said by Buller, J. with reference to protesting foreign bills in England, " all the books agree that the protest must be made on the last day of grace(t)," and within the usual hours of business(u): but modern decisions explain this expression only to mean that the substantial demand of payment must be made by a notary on that day, and not that the formal protest, which is a mere statement of such demand and of the result, shall be extended or completed on that day(x). The established custom of merchants requires that a formal demand of payment shall be made on that day by a notary, being a known public officer of experience, and sworn to perform his duty so as to prevent any irregularity or uncertainty in the sufficiency of the demand; and that such notary's solemn declaration of what has passed may afterwards be resorted to in evidence of the transaction. But it may now be considered as settled in England, as well as Scotland and in America, that it is sufficient to note a foreign bill for non-payment on the day of refusal, and that the protest may be formally drawn up and signed, or, as it is technically termed, extended by the notary, and truly ante-dated at any time after (y); but it is said it should be made before the commencement of the suit(z). It is imprudent, however, to delay the completion of the formal protest; for if the notary himself should die, or be absent, perhaps no sufficient protest could be afterwards obtained; and with reference to a decision in Scotland, though it in general suffices to draw up a protest at any time, yet the ultimate protest must be completed from authentic evidence, and not [*478] by extracts from a previous defective protest, without *such adequate evidence(a). We have seen(b) that since the 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 58, it is not necessary in the case of an acceptor for honour, or referee in case of need, to present the bill, or to forward the same for presentment to such acceptor or referee till the day following the day on which it becomes due; and, therefore, the time for protesting a bill on the default of an acceptor for honour, or referee in case of need, will be extended accordingly.

(p) Id. 458.

(q) Brown v. Hutchinson, Mor. App. to Bills, No. 21; Glen. 194, 2d edit.

(r) Barbour v. Newall, 23d May, 1828, 11 Shaw Rep. 328; Glen. 195, 2d edit.

(s) Thompson on Bills, 477.
(t) Per Buller, J. in Leftley v. Mills, 4 T.
R. 174, (Chit. j. 473); Tassel v. Lewis, Ld.
Raym. 743, (Chit. j. 192); Anon. Lord Raym.
743, (Chit. j. 216); Coleman v. Sayer, 2 Stra. 829, (Chit. j. 267); Marius, 97; Bayl. 5th (u) Marius, 112.(x) Bul. N. P. 272; Chaters v. Bell, 4 Esp.

R. 48, (Chit. j. 686); Selw. N. P. 9th edit. 360; ante, 464, note (p)

(y) See Chaters v. Bell, 4 Esp. R. 48, (Chit. 636), and other cases, ante, 464, note (p). Same law in Scotland, Brown v. Hutchinson, 8th December, 1807, Mor. App. to Bills, 21; Glen. 194, 2d edit; Thompson on Bills, 477, supra, note (s). Same rule in America, see Lennox v. Leverett, 10 Mass. Rep. 1; but see Blakeley v. Grant, 6 id. 386; ante, 464.

(2) Bayl. 5th edit. 266, 267.

(a) Barbour v. Newall, 23d May, 1823, 11 Shaw, Rep. 328; Glen. 195, 2d edit.

(b) Ante, 351.

1. 1 ٠,٠

1

14

٠,;

ŵ

17.00

u

After the noting or protest, notice of the dishonour of a foreign bill must I. Of Nonbe given to all the parties against whom the holder means to proceed for payment, payment, within a reasonable time after the dishonour of the bill(c); we have sary Proseen, however, that in giving notice to the drawer or indorser of a foreign ceedings bill, resident abread, it is not necessary that a copy of the protest should ac-thereon. company such notice(d). Much discussion has taken place upon the ques- General tion whether the court or the jury are to determine in each case, whether or Rule, Notice to be not more than a reasonable time has been suffered to clapse(r); but it seems given withnow to be settled, that what is a reasonable time for giving notice, is in new in a reascases, where no precise rule applicable to the case has been previously laid onable Time, and down, partly a question of fact and partly of law; the jury are to find the how confacts, such as the distance at which the persons live from each other, the strued. course of the post, and all other circumstances applicable to the case; but when these facts have been ascertained, the reasonableness of the time becomes a question of law, and consequently to be determined by the court. and not the jury (f).

If notice of the non-payment of a foreign bill is to be given to a person Notice of in this country, the time of giving it would, it should seem, be governed by Non-paythe rules and practice applicable to inland bills and notes(g). But if the Foreign notice is to be forwarded to a drawer or indorser abroad, then it will be Bill most safest if it be sent by the very next regular post or ordinary conveyance. be forIt has indeed been said, that notice *ought to be forwarded on the very day next Post of refusal, if any post or ordinary conveyance sets out on that day(h); and or regular if not, then by the next earliest ordinary conveyance(i). And unquestiona- Conveybly if such expedition can be effected, it is advisable to send off notice by ance. the foreign post of the same day, especially if there should be no foreign post to the same place for some considerable time afterwards. But if the reasoning in some of the cases on inland bills be not inapplicable, it should seem that there is no legal necessity for a holder omissis omnibus aliis negotiis, to

(c) Darbishire v. Parker, 6 East, 8, 14, 16; 2 Smith, 195, (Chit. j. 707); Haynes v. Birks,

3 Bos. & P. 601, (Chit. j. 690). (d) Goodman v. Harvey, 4 Ad. & El. 870;

6 Nev. & Man. 372; anle, 464, note (m). (e) Tindal v. Brown, 1 T. R. 168, (Chit. j.

431). (f) Ante, 837, 879. Fer Ld. Mansfield, C. J. and Boller, J. in Tindal v. Brown, 1 T. R. 168, (Chit. j. 431); Darbishire v. Parker, 6 East, 3, 9, 10, 12; 2 Smith, 195, (Chit. j. 707); post, 485, note (k): Haynes v. Birks, 8 B. & P. 599, (Chit. j. 690); post, 488, note (r); Browning r. Kinnear, Gow, N. P. Rep. 81, (Chit j. 1054); acc. ante, 454, note (a).
Bateman v. Joseph, 12 East, 433, (Chit. j.
S01); 2 Campb, 461, S. C.; ante, 327, n. (s); see also per Groso, J. in Scott v. Lifford, 9 East, 847; 1 Campb. 246, (Chit. j. 747, 749); Sturges v. Derrick, Wightw. 76, (Chit. j. 800). In America also, the same general rule, in dif-ferent terms, has been laid down. The question of reasonable notice is a compound of law and fact, to be submitted to a jury;" per Kent, C. J. in Taylor v. Bryden, 8 Johns. R. 138. "What is a reasonable notice is a question of law, to be decided by the court as econ as the facts necessary to the decision are ascertained;"

per Sewell, J. in Hussey v. Freeman, 10 Mass. R. 84; and see Huddock v. Murray, 1 N. Hamp. Rep. 140; Whitwell v. Johnson, 17 Mass. R. 453. "What is reasonable is a mixed question of law and fact, but when the facts are ascertained, it becomes purely a question of law;" Spencer, J., Bryden r. Bryden, 11 Johns. R. 137. In some other cases it was considered a question of fact; Bayl. 144, Amer. edit. And in Russell v. Langstaffe, Dough. 514, 515, (Chit. j. 415), it was admitted by counsel, that what shall be deemed reasonable notice ought properly to be decided by the jury.

(g) In Rothschild v. Barnes, 2 Jurist, 1084, Q. B., it was doubted at what time notice of dishonour should be given to an English indorser of a bill drawn upon and dishonoured by a party in Paris; and also whether a custom could be established to vary the time for giving notice of dishonour in such a case from both the English rule and the French law.

(h) Leftley v. Mills, 4 T. R. 174, (Chit. j. 473); Anon. Ld. Raym. 743, (Chit. j. 216); Coleman v. Sayer, 2 Stra. 829, (Chit. j. 267); Mar. 97.

(i) Muilman v. D'Eguino, 2 Hen. Bla. 565, (Chit. j. 549); Williams v. Smith, 2 Bar. & Ald. 496, (Chit. j. 1055).

and necessary Proceedings thereon.

Time of protesting Inland Bills.

I. (X Non- devote himself in such hurry to the causing protest to be made, and forwarding notice by post of the same day in every case (k).

> We have seen, that by the express terms of the statute 9 & 10 Will. 3, c. 17, no inland bill can be protested until the expiration of the days of grace, and of course neither the protest can be made, or notice thereof given, until the day after it falls dae(l). If such a protest be made, though unnecessarly so, the same, with notice thereof, is by the 2d section of the same act, to be forwarded, within fourteen days after it was made, to the parties for whom it is intended.

. When to where a Inland Bill or Note due on Good Friday, &c.

The 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 15, provides, that when a bill or note would be protest and give Notice payable, under the 39 & 40 Geo. 3, c. 42, or otherwise on the day preceding Good Friday or Christmas-day, it shall not be necessary to give notice Foreign or of the dishonour thereof, until the day after such Good Friday or Christmasday, and that when Christmas-day falls on a Monday, it shall not be neceswould oth-sary to give notice of the dishonour of a bill due on the preceding Saturday, erwise fall before the Tuesday following such Christmas-day; and that when bills or notes shall fall due upon days appointed by proclamation for solemn fasts or days of thanksgiving, or upon the day next preceding the same, the bills shall be payable the day before such proclaimed day, and may, in case of nonpayment, be noted and protested on such preceding day; and that it shall not [*480] be necessary to give notice of the dishonour until the day after such *proclaimed day, and that Good Friday and Christmas-day, and every such Fast or Thanksgiving-day shall, as relates to bills and notes, be considered as a Sunday(m). But these regulations do not extend to Scotland(n). The Irish Act 9 Geo. 4, c. 24, however, contains similar provisions(0).

Time when Notice of Non-pay-Inland Bill or Note may and must cessaryEv-

We will now consider the time when notice of the non-payment of an inland bill, check, promissory note, or cash note, may and must be given. It must be kept in view, that it is incumbent on the holder to prove distinctly ment of an and by positive evidence, that due notice of the non-payment was given to the party sued, and that it cannot be left to inference or presumption(p).

be given, 246, (Chit. j 747, 749); Geill v. Jeremy, and the ne- Mood. & M. 61, (Chit. j. 1335). (1) The words of the statute 9 & 10 Will. idence of 3, c. 17, s. 1, which enable holders to make the fact to protest of bills are, "after the expiration of the be secured. days of grace: see ante, 465; and see Leftley
v. Mills, 4 T. R. 170, (Chit. j. 473). An inland bill for 201. 7s., payable fourteen days after sight, became due the 24th of April, 1790. A banker's clerk called with it for payment in the morning, and the acceptor not being at home, left word where it lay. After six, another of the clerks, who was a notary, noted it, and between seven and eight the first clerk went with it again; the acceptor tendered him the amount of the bill and sixpence over, but he insisted on 2s. 6d. for the noting, and that sum not being paid, an action was brought against the acceptor, who pleaded the tender. Lord Kenyon thought the tender of the amount of the bill at any time of the day it was payable was sufficient, upon which the jury found a verdict for the defendant. A rule to show cause why there should not be a new trial was afterwards granted, and upon cause shewn, Lord Kenyon thought the acceptor had till the last minute of the day of grace to pay the bill, and that it could not be noted or protested till the following day. Buller, J. thought they were payable at any time of the last day of grace upon demand, so as such demand was made within reasonable hours, and that they might be protested on that day. Grose, J. declined giving any opinion upon these points, but the whole court concurred that the bill in question could not be noted, because it was payable within a limited time after sight, and the stat-nte authorises the noting of such inland bills only as are payable after date. Lord Kenyon also thought the sixpence tendered was sufficient for the noting, and the rule was discharged. Semble, that the expenses of noting an inland bill are not recoverable; Kendrick v. Lomax, 2 C. & J. 407. Lord Tenterden invariably refused to allow them.

(k) Scott v. Lifford, 9 East, 347; 1 Campb.

(m) 7 & S Geo. 4, c. 15, ss. 1, 2, 3.

(n) Id. s. 4.

(o) 9 Geo. 4, c. 24, ss. 9, 10, 11.

(p) Lawson and another, assignees of Schiffper r. Sherwood, I Stark. Rep. 314, (Chit. j. 959). In an action by indorsee against indors-

So the party who puts a letter, giving notice of the dishonour of a bill, into L Of Nonthe post-office, must be able to swear with certainty that he put the letter in payment, himself, and not that he was doubtful whether he did not deliver it to another sary Proclerk to put it in(q); but if a porter be called, and he says, that although he ceedings has no recollection of the letter in question, yet that he invariably carried to thereon. the post-office all the letters found on his master's table, and another witness prove that a particular letter, giving notice, was so left, that may suffice (r). So with respect to the time of the day when a letter forwarding notice is put into the post-office, if the witness be doubtful whether it was in before or after five o'clock, when it is material that it was before that hour, the jury will probably find against the plaintiff(s). We have suggested the expediency of giving the notice in such a manner as to prevent any multiplicity of witnesses or proof(t). If the notice of dishonour sent to the drawer of a bill arrives too late through misdirection, it is for the jury to say whether the holder used due diligence to find the drawer's address (u). And where notice reaches the drawer of a bill too late, having first by mistake been sent to a wrong person, and such mistake arises from the indistinctness of the drawer's writing on the bill, he is not discharged (x). And a letter written by the drawer to the holder of a bill, six days after the day on which the drawer should have received notice of dishonour, and containing ambiguous expressions respecting the non-payment of the bill, was held to be properly left to the jury as evidence from which they might or might not infer that notice had been given on the proper day (y).

It was once thought, that it would be sufficient to charge the *drawer if Progress of notice of the dishonour of a bill were given to him even at the end of two the general months, unless he had in the interim sustained some actual damage by the the Time But such a delay has long been considered inexcusable; and a of giving general rule was laid down, as in the case of foreign bills, that the notice Notice of must be given within a reasonable time(u). However, courts and juries, in Bill or the application of that general rule, gave very contradictory verdicts and Note. decisions, and until recently there was much uncertainty in the result; but [*481] now precise rules have been fixed, which will probably govern in every case that can arise.

Rules as to Inland Bills

may be

It seems, that a prospective notice that a bill or note will not be paid, re-Present er, a witness stated that either two or three days after the dishonour of the bill, notice was given by letter to the defendant, notice in two days being in time, but notice on the third too late; and it was held, that it cannot be left as a question for the jury whether notice was given in time, although the defendant has had notice to produce the letter which would ascertain the time. Per Lord Ellenborough: "The witness says two or three days, but the third day would be too late. It lies upon the plaintiff to shew that notice was given in due time, and I cannot go upon probable evidence without positive proof of the fact, nor can I infer due no-tice from the non-production of the letter, the only consequence is, that you may give parol evidence of it. The onus probandi lies upon the plaintiff, and since he has not proved due notice, he must be called." Plaintiffs nonsuited.

.,1

. 21

ŗ

, go

,y;

, ;*

. 9

107

(q) Hawkes v. Salter, 4 Bing. Rep. 715; 1 Moore & P. 750, (Chit. j. 1387).

(r) Hetherington r. Kemp, 4 Campb. 192, and Notes. (Chit. j. 932); see further, post, Part II. Ch. Notice V. Evidence.

(s) Dobree v. Eastwood, 3 Car. & P. 250, given on Chit i. 1370); post, 491, note (s), et seq. Day when (Chit. j. 1370); post, 491, note (s), et seq.

Bill or Note (t) Ante, 471, end of note (t). (u) Siggers r. Brown, 1 Mood. & Rob. 520; due, but see ante, 474, as to the manner of directing a not before. letter containing notice of dishonour.

(x) Hewitt v. Thompson, 1 Mood. & Rob.

(y) Booth r. Jacobs, 3 Nev. & Man. 351. (z) Butler v Play, ! Mod. 27, (Chit. j. 161); Sharfield r. Witherby, Comb. 152, (Chit. j. 171); Mogadara v. Holt, 1 Show. $18; 12 Mod. 15, (Chit. j. 182).

(a) See ante, 478; and Darbishire r. Parker, 6 East, 5; 2 Smith, 195, (Chit. j. 707); post, 485, note (k); Baldwin v. Richardson, 1 Bar. & Cres. 247; 2 D. & R. 285, (Chit. j.

Digitized by Google

payment, and necessary Proceedings thereon.

1. Of Non ceived before it falls due, will not, in general, suffice, because by application and pressure of payment, it is possible that payment might, notwithstanding such previous intimation, be obtained, and this is one reason why the circumstance of an acceptor having, before a bill became due, informed the drawer of his insolvency and inability to pay, affords no excuse for want of regular notice, unless the drawer has expressly dispensed with the necessity for giving notice(b); and this although the drawer, being informed the day before the bill fell due, that the acceptor would not pay, promised to see what he could do, and endeavour to provide effects(c). However, where the drawer of a bill became bankrupt, and subsequently to the act of bankruptcy, and before it fell due, the drawer, on being asked if the bill would be paid, answered, "No; that it would come back;" it was held that this was sufficient to supply the want of notice(d). So if an indorser, the day the bill falls due, call on the holder and tell him that he knows the bill will not be paid, that it is no use sending him a two-penny post letter the next day to give him notice, as it is not worth the money, and that he will send the holder money in part payment of the bill on a future day, this will dispense with notice(e).

It has been doubted, whether in the case of an inland bill or promissory note payable after date or sight, or on a particular event, the holder can legally give notice of the non-payment on the day when it falls due, or whether the drawee or maker is not entitled to the whole of that day to pay it in, without any reference to banking hours; and whether it can be considered as But though in dishonoured until the whole of that day has elapsed (f)(1). general, when a payment is to be made on a day certain, the party is not in default until the expiration of it, the law-merchant considers the contract of an acceptor of a bill or maker of a note to have been to pay on demand, at any part of that day, and therefore it seems clear, that notice of non-payment may be given on the last day of grace, whenever after due presentment and demand, the drawee makes an unqualified refusal to pay at all (g). [*482] *in a more recent case it was held, that notice of dishonour may be given on the same day that the bill falls due, although there may not have been an absolute refusal, but a mere neglect to pay on presentment(h). If the house at which the bill is made payable be shut up, and no one there, it is the same It should seem, that in these cases of notice of dishonour given on the day on which the bill is payable, the notice will be good or bad as the acceptor may or may not afterwards pay the bill: if he does not after-

(b) Staples v. Okines, 1 Esp. Rep. 332, (Chit. j. 544); Prideaux v. Collier, 2 Stark. Rep. 37, (Chit. j. 989) as a refusal(i).

(c) Prideaux v. Collier, 2 Stark Rep. 57, (Chit. j. 989.)

(d) Brett v. Levett, 13 East, 213, (Chit j.

(e) Burgh v. Legge, 5 M. & W. 418; and see other cases, ante, 451. But in these cases of dispensation with notice care must be taken in pleading to state specially the facts relied upon as shewing such dispensation, and a general allegation of notice will not suffice. Id. ib. See post, Part II. Ch. II. Declaration.

(f) Leftley v. Mills, 4 T. R. 170, (Chit. j.

473); ante, 465; Haynes v. Birks, 3 Bos. & P. 602, (Chit. j. 690); Colket v. Freeman, 2 T. R. 59, (Chit. j. 441); Hartley v. Case, 1 Car. & P. 555; 4 B. & C. 339; 6 Dowl. & Ry. 505, (Chit. j. 1268).

(g) Burbridge v. Manners, 3 Campb. 195, (Chit. j. 855); Ex parte Moline, 19 Ves. 216; 1 Rose, 303, (Chit. j. 871); ante, 397, n. (o); Hartley v. Case, 1 Car. & P. 556; and other cuses, ante, 467.

(h) Clowes v. Chaldecott, 7 Law J. 147, K. B. H. T. 1839.

(i) Hine v. Allely, 4 Bar. & Adol. 624; 1 Nev. & Man. 433, S. C.

^{(1) {} In the case of Haslett v. Ehrick, 1 Nott & M'Cord, 116, it was held that a notice on the third day of grace, after bank hours, was not too early. >

11.1

. ."1 17

. ir

1.02 8 31

- MT ٧Ŋ

.:11

(79 k

300

12

PL 0 ġ.â

0.12 ત્રહ્યું કો

 \mathcal{M}, \mathcal{B}

.35

. 72

1277

1

....

170 πi,

12

wards pay it, the notice is good; and if he does, it of course comes to noth- I. Of Non-A premature notice, we have seen, would be inoperative(1).

and Necessary Pro-

It is settled, that it is never necessary to give or forward notice of the non-ceedings payment on the same day when a bill or note falls due(m)(1), whether the thereon. instrument was circulated only in London or in the country, and whether or But it is nonot the drawer or indorsers reside in the same town where the dishonour sery to fortook place, and this without regard to the nearness of residence, or whether ward Noor not the holder might readily have given the notice, or put a letter in the tice on post on that day, or whether or not a post goes out from the place of dis- Bill or honour on the same day, or not until or after the third day (n). In all these Note falls cases, it suffices to cause notice to be received on the next day, by the pre- due, and ceding indorser, when resident in or near the same place; and where the par-But it must ties do not reside in or near the place of the dishonour, it suffices to forward be given or notice by the general post that goes out on the day after the refusal, or if forwarded there be no post on that day, then on the third day, though thereby the On next drawer or indorser may not, in fact, receive notice till the third day, or sometimes, according to the course of the post, not until the fourth or even sub-The reason why it has been decided that it shall in no case be necessary to give notice on the day of the dishonour, or on the same day when an indorser receives notice, although the indorser may even live in the same street as the holder, and although the post may go out on the same day, and not on the next, is to prevent nice and difficult inquiries whether or not in this or that particular case, the holder could conveniently have given notice on the same day, or whether the pressure of other business did not prevent him from so doing, the affirmative or negative of which might be in the knowledge only of the holder himself, or might become a very critical inquiry, and be very difficult and uncertain in legal proof. Another reason is, that the holder ought not to be required omissis omnibus aliis negotiis to occupy himself immediately in forwarding notice to the prior parties, when by delaying that step till the next morning, he would, after the press of other business had subsided, have in the evening, or early the next morning before his general business commences, time to look into his accounts with the other parties, and to consider his best steps to obtain payment from them, and to ascertain their precise residences, and to prepare and forward, either

Corp v. M'Comb, 1 John. Ca. 328.

Where a dishonored note was left with the inderser, who was an attorney, to collect the same, this was held not to be a sufficient notice to charge him as indorser. Agan v. M'Manus, 11 John.

⁽k) See per Abbot, C. J. in Hartley v. Case, 1 Car. & P. 556.

⁽¹⁾ Ante, 475. (m) Darbishire v. Parker, 6 East, 8, 9, 10; 28mith, 195, (Chit. j. 707); Tindall v. Brown, 1 T. R. 168, 169, (Chit. j. 431); Russell v. j. 1335); post, 486, note (l).

Langstaffe, Dougl. 515, (Chit. j 415); Muilman r. D'Eguino, 2 Hen. Bla. 565, (Chit. j. 540; Burbridge r. Manners, 8 Campb. 198, (Chit. j. 859); anle, 481, note (g).
(n) Geill r. Jeremy, Mood. & M 61, (Chit.

⁽¹⁾ But it has been held in Mussachusetts that where the indorser lives in the same town with the promissor, he ought to have notice on the same day on which there is a demand and refusal of payment. Woodbright v. Brigham, 12 Mass. Rep. 403. But see Langdale v. Trimmer, 15 East, 291. Bennett c. Raugh, 2 Taunt Rep. 387. And it is certain that if default be made in the payment of a note the day on which it becomes due, a notice to, and demand on, the indorsers afterwards on the same day is not too early. Widgery v. Munroe, 6 Mass. Rep. 449.

Rep. 180.

The holder of an inland bill or note is not obliged to send notice of non-payment until the next.

The holder of an inland bill or note is not obliged to send notice of non-payment until the next.

Steadman 3 Conn. Rep. 489; but if demand has been dny after its dishonor. Hartford Bank r. Stedman, 8 Conn. Rep. 489; but if demand has been made on the maker of a note on the third day of grace, notice to the indorser may be given on that day, and is sufficient. Lindenberger c. Beall, 6 Wheat. 104.

and necessary Proceedings thereon.

But the Holder must give or forward Notice the Day after the Disbonour.

I. Of Non- by hand or by *such next day's post, a proper notice to all the parties against whom he means to proceed to enforce payment(o)(1).

> But the rule is now well settled, that the holder must, in order to subject all the parties to actions at his suit, give or forward all his notices to every one of the indorsers, and to the drawer, whose residences he can ascertain on the day after the bill or note was dishonoured; and if he omit to give or forward such direct and distinct notice to each, he may be deprived of all remedy against the omitted party (p)(2), unless some other party to the bill has given him notice of the dishonour in due time, in which case the latter notice will enure to the benefit of any holder (q). Formerly, indeed, it seems, that when notice was to be given by the general post, it was considered that a party ought to forward it on the same day he had received it, if there was a reasonable time, as a few hours, between the receipt of the notice and the going out of the post from the same place; thus, Mr. Justice Lawrence said. "The general rule as collected from the cases seems to be, with respect to persons living in the same town, that the notice shall be given by the next day; and with regard to such as live at different places, that it should be sent by the next post (i. e. the post on the very day of receiving it); but that if in any particular place, the post should go out so early after the receipt of the intelligence, as that it would be inconvenient to require a strict adherence to such general rule, then with respect to a case so circumstanced, it would not be reasonable to require the notice to be sent till the second post(r)." But the inquiry into circumstances whether or not the notice might readily have been forwarded by the post of the same day having been found inconvenient, the rule was afterwards settled so as always to exclude the necessity of forwarding notice until the day after a party has himself received notice(s); and therefore Lord Tenterden, long after the above dictum of Lawrence, J. said, "The time within which notice of the dishonour of a bill must be given, I have always understood to be the departure of the post on the day following that in which the party receives the intelligence of the dishonour(t)."

Distinction whether Parties reside in or near same Place or not.

But there is a very material distinction in the time of giving or forwarding notice in cases where the parties reside in or near the same town, and when notice may be readily given on the day after the dishonour or notice of it, either verbally or by special messenger, or by local post, and cases where the parties reside at a distance, and when the ordinary mode of communication is by general post.

(o) See the reasons assigned in Smith v. Mullett, 2 Campb. 208, (Chit. j. 775); post, 484, note (u), and 490, note (o); Scott v. Lifford, 9 East, 347; 1 Campb. 246, (Chit. j. 747); Williams v. Smith, 2 Bar. & Ald. 496, (Chit. 1055); Geill v. Jeremy, Mood. & M 61, (Chit. j. 1835); post, 486, note (l).
(p) Dobree v. Eastwood, 3 Car. & P. 250,

(Chit. j. 1370).

(q) Post, 493 to 496.

(r) Per Lawrence, J. in Darbishire v. Parker, 6 East, 3; 3 Smith, 195, (Chit. j. 707).

(2) Geill v. Jeremy, MS. and Mood. & M. 61, (Chit. j. 1335); post, 486, note (1). (t) Id. ibid. Per Abbott, C. J. in Williams

v. Smith, 2 Barn. & Ald. 500, (Chit. j. 1055); and Bray v. Hadwen, 5 Maule & S. 68, (Chit. j. 957).

of business. Bank of Alexandria v. Swann, 9 Peters' Rep. 33.
(2) { Lenox v. Roberts, 2 Wheat. 377; Bank of Alexandria v. Swann, 9 Peters, 33; TownsJey v. Springer, 1 Miller's Louis. Rep. 122. }

⁽¹⁾ The law does not require the utmost possible diligence in the holder in giving notice of the dishonor of the note; all that is required is ordinary diligence; and what shall constitute reasonable diligence ought to be regulated with a view to practical convenience, and the usual course

RT I

37

.

.5

133 mE

3130

. 13 }

11

, , ,

وبل :

11:

75 D

+ 1

: 3"

15 13

1.

, in 29

Thus, when the parties reside in the same town, the holder or other per- I. Of Nonson to give the notice must, on the day after the dishonour, or on the day payment, after he received the notice, cause notice to be actually forwarded by the sary Propost or otherwise, to his next immediate indorser, sufficiently early in the ceedings day that the latter may actually receive the same(u) *before the expiration thereon. of that day; and therefore in London, if a letter containing such notice be Where the put into the post-office after six o'clock in the afternoon of the second day, Parties reand in consequence thereof it is not received till the morning of the third day, near the the party who ought to have actually received the notice on the second day same will be discharged (v). But where a bill fell due on Saturday, and was pre-Town. sented by a notary, and dishonoured; and on Monday morning notice of the [*484] dishonour was given by the notary to the holder (the first indorsee), who, on the evening of the same day gave notice to the drawer by a letter put into the two-penny post so late that it did not reach its destination till the Tuesday morning, all the parties being resident in London, it was held that the notice was in time (x). In London, letters put into the local post (usually termed the two-penny post) are delivered in the metropolis six times within the same day that they were put in, viz. at ten, twelve, two, four, six, and eight o'clock; and, therefore, letters put into the post-office or a receivinghouse, any hour before six o'clock in the evening, ought regularly to be delivered on the same day; but letters not put into the post-office until after six o'clock in the evening, will not be delivered until eight o'clock on the following morning: when out of the metropolis, and within twelve miles, there are only four deliveries in each day to and from the metropolis, viz. at eight, twelve, two, and six o'clock, and a letter put into any proper office in London before two(y) o'clock in the afternoon, will be delivered on the same day, at any place within such distance of twelve miles; and a letter put into a country office within that distance before two o'clock, ought properly to be delivered in London on the same day. The holder or party forwarding the notice may give it verbally, or he may put a letter into the two-penny post, directed even to an indorser who resides in the same street(z). If he send notice by a private hand, it must be given or left at (u) Smith v. Mullett, 2 Campb. 208, (Chit. j. 775); post, 490, note (o); Dobree v. Eastwood, 3 Car. & P. 250, (Chit. j. 1370); post, 491, note (s), et seq. How letter to be addressed, anie, 474; and see anie, 480.

Smith v. Mullett. Per Lord Ellenborough: " It is of great importance that there should be an established rule on this subject, and I think there can be none more convenient than that, where the parties reside in London, each party should have a day to give notice. I have said before, that the holder of a bill of exchange is not, omissis omnibus aliis negotiis, to devote himself to giving notice of its dishonour. It is enough if this be done with reasonable expedition. If you limit a man to a fractional part of a day, it will come to a question how swiftly the notice can be conveyed; a man and horse must be employed, and you will have a race against time. But here a day has been lost. The plaintiff had notice himself on the Monday, and does not give notice to his indorser till the Wednesday. If the party has an entire day, he must send off his letter, conveying the notice, within post time of that day." The plaintiff was nonsuited. See the case, post, 490, n. (o).

Edmonds v. Cates, cor. Lord Abinger, C. B., 2 Jurist, 515. Plaintiff, the indorsee of a promissory note, the day after it has been dishonoured writes to the defendant, the payee and indorser, who lives in the same city, a letter containing a notice of dishonour, which letter is put into the two-penny post before 8 P. M. on that day, but is not delivered till the day after, of which it bears the post-mark, 8 A. M.; this notice is not in time.

(v) Id. ibid.; Bayl. 5th edit. 268; Smith v. Mullett, post, 490, note (o). See as to country post, Boyd r. Emmerson, 4 Nev. & Man. 99;

2 Ad. & El. 184, S. C.; ante, 473, note (i). (x) Poole r. Dicas, 1 Scott, 600; 1 Bing. N. C. 649; 1 Hodges, 162, S. C. Semble, that it would have sufficed to have put the letter into the post on Tuesday in time to be received on that day. See post, 490.

(y) Or if put into the principal office, then before three o'clock.

(z) Scott v. Lifford, 9 East, 347; 1 Campb. 249, (Chit. j. 747), S. C.; Smith v. Mullett, 2 Campb. 208, (Chit. j. 775); Marsh v. Maxwell, 2 Campb. 210, (Chit. j. 776); Jameson r. Swinton, 2 Campb. 374, (Chit. j. 782); Hilton v. Fairclough, 2 Campb. 633, (Chit. j. 826); Haynes r. Birks, 3 Bos. & Pul. 599, (Chit. j. 690); Williams v. Smith, 2 Bar. & Ald. 500, (Chit. j. 1055).

and necessary Proceedings thereon. [*495]

I. Of Non- the indorser's residence before the expiration of that day(a); if to a banker, payment, during the hours of business; but to any other person the hour is not material(b). If by an irregularity in the post-office, a letter put in *in due time be not delivered till the third day, it should seem that such laches will not prejudice(c).

Hour of the Notice to be given.

As the giving notice of non-payment is not a mere form or ceremony, like Day when that of protest, it ought obviously, if practicable, to be so given as to be actually received; and though, when considering the mode of giving notice, we have seen that it is not absolutely necessary to leave a written notice, and that it suffices to make a verbal application during the usual hours of business(d); yet it is recommended to leave a written notice when an actual notice cannot be personally communicated to the party himself. cases, where the indorser's residence is unknown, but he is known to resort, during certain hours, to a particular place, as to the Royal Exchange, the Bank of England, Corn Exchange, or any public office, the notice ought to be given during those hours(e); and to bankers who are known to shut up their place of business at a certain hour, notice ought to be given there before that hour, though if a person be stationed there to transact business after that time, notice to him would suffice (f)(1). In other cases notice, or application to give notice, at any reasonable time, (not during the hours of rest), as between eight and nine in the evening, would suffice (g). Sending notice by a messenger, instead of the post, although he do not arrive quite so early as the post, will not prejudice, provided he deliver the notice on the same day as that on which it would have arrived by the post(h).

Where the Parties do not reside in or near the same Town.

When the parties do not reside in the same place, and the notice is to be sent by the general post, then the holder or party to give the notice must take care to forward notice by the post of the next day after the dishonour, or after he received notice of such dishonour, whether that post sets off from the place where he is early or late(i); and if there be no post on such next day, then he must send off notice by the very next post that occurs after that [*486] day(k); but he is not legally bound, on *account of there being no post on (a) Bancroft v. Hall, Holt, C. N. P. 476, (Chit. j. 968).

(b) Jameson v. Swinton, 2 Taunt. 224; 2 Campb. 373, (Chit. j. 782); Bancroft v. Hall, Holt, C. N. P. 476, (Chit. j. 968).

(c) Dobrec v. Eastwood, 3 Car. & P. 250, (Chit. j. 1370); post, 491, note (s), et seq.

(d) Ante, 471, 472; Crosse v. Smith, 1 Maule & S. 545, (Chit. j. 886).

(e) Semble, with analogy to the cases as to the time of presentment, ante, 387; and see Bancroft v. Hall, Holt, C. N. P. 476, (Chit. j. 968); ante, 473, note (g).

(f) Semble, from analogy to cases of presentment for payment, ante 387; Parker v. Gordon, 7 East, 385; 3 Smith, 358; 6 Esp. 41, (Chit. j. 727); Garnet v. Woodcock, 1 Stark. Rep. 475; 6 Maule & S. 44, (Chit. j. 979, 981); ante, 387, note (m).

(g) Jameson v. Swinton, 2 Taunt. 224,

(Chit. j. 782); Bancroft v. Hall, Holt, C. N. P. 476, (Chit. j. 968); ante; 473, note (g). See also the cases of presentment for payment, ante, 387, 388; Barclay v. Bailey, 2 Campb. 527, (Chit. j. 818); Morgan v. Davison, 1 Stark. Rep. 114.

(h) Bancroft v. Hall, Holt, C. N. P. 476, (Chit. j. 968); ante, 473, note (g). Aliter if a day be lost. See Darbishire v. Parker, 6 East, 8, 9; 2 Smith, 195, S. C.; Bayl. 5th edit. 230.

(i) Darbishire v. Parker, 6 East, 3; Bray v. Hadwen, 5 Maule & S. 68, (Chit. j. 957); Williams v. Smith, 2 B. & Al. 496, (Chit. j. 1055)

(k) Darbishire v. Parker, 6 East, 8; 2 Smith, 195, (Chit. j. 707); and see Boyd v. Emmerson, 4 N. & M. 99; 2 Ad. & El. 184, S. C.; ante, 473, note (i). Caution required in directing letter, ante, 474; and see ante, 480.

⁽¹⁾ The law generally speaking does not regard the fractions of a day; and although the demand of payment of a promissory note at the bank is required to be made during banking hours, it would be unreasonable to require notice of non-payment to be sent to the indorser on the same day. Bank of Alexandria v. Swann, 9 Peters, 33.

Ai I

٠.

, , I

.

9 A.

5 X

.

, p

1.7

·...

٠. ..

٠,٠,٠

3

1.

٠. i. i

155

17

ه رم

:3

, . , .

13

) (

*

the day after he receives notice, to forward it on the very day he receives I. Of Nonit(l).

s I. Of Nonpayment, and necessary Proceedings thereon.

Where notice of the dishonour of a bill of exchange by the acceptor, in London, was sent by the post to the holder in Manchester, where the letter was delivered out between eight and nine o'clock' in the morning, and the post went out for Liverpool, where the drawer lived, between twelve at noon and one, and the holder did not send notice to the drawer by the post either of the same day or next, but sent it in a letter by a private person on the latter day, who did not deliver it to the drawer till two hours after the post delivery, and only about one hour before the post left Liverpool for London, whereby the drawer was so agitated that he could not write in time for that day's post to London; it was holden, that at all events the holder had made the bill his own by his laches; for whether reasonable notice be a question of law or of fact, or whether the general rule of law require notice of the dishonour of a bill to be sent to a party living at another place by the next post after it is received, (by which must be understood the next practicable post in point of time and distance,) and whether four hours between the coming in and going out of the post be a sufficient interval in point of practical convenience to receive the notice, and to prepare a letter of advice to the drawer, at all events the holder ought to have written by the post of the next day after notice received by him, and ought not to have delayed the receipt of notice by the drawer until after the arrival of the next post, by sending the letter by a private hand. Darbishire v. Parker, 6 East, 3.

Where the parties do not reside in the same place, and the notice is sent by the post, the rule is, that it is sufficient to send it by the post of the day after that on which the party for-warding it receives the notice of dishonour, although the post may leave on the day upon which he receives it, in sufficient time to afford him an opportunity of sending the notice by that post. Thus, where the indorsee of a bill, payable at a banker's in London, deposited it with his bankers in the country, who caused it to be presented for payment on the 14th, when it was dishonoured, and notice sent by post to the country bankers on the 15th, which reached them on the morning of the 17th, (Sunday,) and they on the next day sent notice by the post to the plaintiffs, but not before twelve at noon, at which hour a post set out for the place where the indersee lived, which would have brought the notice a day earlier, it was held that this notice was within time. Per Lord Ellenborough, "It has been laid down, I believe, since the case of Darbishire v. Parker, 6 East, 3, as a rule of practice, that each party into whose hands a dishonoured bill may pass should be allowed one entire day for the purpose of giving notice; a different rule would subject every party to the inconvenience of giving an account of all his other engagements, in order to prove that he could not reasonably be expected to send notice by the same day's post which brought it. The rule is, I believe, in conformity with what Murins states upon the subject of notice, and it ceedings has been uniformly acted upon at Guildhall by thereon, this court for some time. It has, moreover, this advantage, that it excludes all discussion as to the particular occupation of the party on that day." Bray v. Hadwen, 5 Maule & S. 68, (Chit. j. 957).

Where the defendant being indebted to plaintiff, paid him the debt in country bank notes on a Friday, several hours before the post went out, and the plaintiff transmitted them partly by a couch on Saturday, and partly by Sunday night's post, and both parts arrived in London on Monday, and were presented for payment and dishonoured on Tuesday, it was held that the plaintiff had not been guilty of laches in not transmitting the notes by the post of Friday. Per Abbott, C. J. "It is of the greatest importance to commerce, that some plain and precise rule should be laid down to guide persons in all cases as to the time within which notices of the dishonour of bills must be given. That time I have always understood to be the departure of the post on the day following that in which the party receives the intelligence of the dishonour. If, instead of that rule, we were to say that the party must give notice by the next practicable post, we should raise in many cases difficult questions of fact, and should, according to the peculiar local situations of parties, give them more or less facility in complying with the rule. But no dispute can arise from adopting the rule which I have stated." Williams v. Smith, 2 Bar. & Ald. 496, (Chit. j. 1055).

Where notice of dishonour of a bill was received by plaintiff by letter on the 6th April, being a Sunday, and on the Tuesday evening he sent notice by the post to the defendant, the court held that the plaintiff was not bound to open the letter till the Monday morning, and that taking him to have received notice of the dishonour at that time, he had done quite sufficient in transmitting it to the defendant by the next day's post. Wright v. Shaweross, 2 B. & Ald. 501, note, (Chit. j. 1057); and see Langdale v. Trimmer, 15 East, 293, (Chit. j. 837); Malynes, B. 3, c. 6, s. 1, 1st edit. 265; Mar. 2d edit. 24; Bayl. 5th ed. 268.

(1) Geill v. Jeremy, Mood. & M. 61, (Chit. j. 1335).

Geill r. Jeremy and Blagg, Guildhall, Sittings after Hilary Term, 1827, before Abbott, C. J. MS. Assumpsit on a bill for 491. 6s. 10d. at four months, drawn by defendants on Shepherd, indorsed by defendants to plaintiff, at Lowe Mills, near Chorley, Lancashire, who indorsed the said bill to Messrs. Clayton and Co., Bankers, at Pieston, who indorsed the same to Messrs. Glynn and Co., Bankers, in London. On Saturday, the 26th August, 1826, the bill was presented for payment by Glynn and Co. at Shepherds, in Great Surry Street, Blackfriars Road, and dishonoured. On Monday, the 28th, Glynn and Co. sent the bill by post to Clayton and Co. at Preston; it arrived there on Wednes-

I. Of Nonpayment, and necessary Proceedings thereon.

tice by a Messenger sufficient.

*We have seen, when considering the modes of giving notice, that it may be given either by the post, or by a special messenger or private hand(m); but if, when there is a regular post, and the notice be nevertheless sent by a private conveyance, care must be observed that it arrive as soon, or at least on the same day that a notice by the post would have arrived(n). When No- be no post for a considerable time after a party receives notice, it may then be incumbent on him to forward notice to his immediate indorser by the next ordinary conveyance, or even by a special messenger, as in some parts of Yorkshire, where the manufacturers reside at a distance from the post town, and the letters might, if not so forwarded, lie for a long time before they are called for, in which case it may be necessary to send notice by a special messenger, and the expense of which would then be recoverable(o). notice be unnecessarily forwarded by a private hand or unusual conveyance, and miscarry, or be delayed a day beyond the usual time, the party giving the notice may thereby lose his remedies (p).

We have seen, that with respect to country bankers' notes, if they be delivered and received under ignorance of the banker having previously stopped payment, the holder must nevertheless, on the day after he receives them, either put them in circulation, or present them for payment, or return or offer to return them, or must, on the third day, forward notice of the non-day. On the same day Clayton sent the bill in a letter by post to plaintiff, who resided at Lowe Mills, within about half a mile of Whittle-le-Woods, being a distance of two miles and a quarter from Chorley, the latter being the post town. Such letter arrived in Chorley at six o'clock on the morning of the following Thursday, the 31st August, and was thence transmitted by a foot-post (the usual conveyance between Chorley and Whittle-le-Woods, and which foot-post leaves Chorley at eight o'clock) to the residence of the plaintiff, who received such letter on Thursday aforesaid, about nine o'clock in the morning of that day; and it was admitted that he might have written and sent a letter by the return of the foot-postman on that day, he not leaving Whittle-le-Woods till six o'clock in the evening, or he might have sent a letter to the post-office, in Chorley aforesaid, on that day, which is open for the reception of letters until nine o'clock at night. And in case a letter had been written and so sent, such letter would have left the Chorley post-office by the mail on the Friday morning, between five and six o'clock, and would have arrived and been delivered in London on the morning of the following day, Saturday; but that no letter-bag is made up at Chorley on Fridays, so that if the plaintiff had written and sent such letter on the Friday, it could not, by the ordinary course of the post, have arrived and been delivered in London before Monday. On Saturday, the 2d September, the plaintiff wrote by the post to his agent in London, inclosing the bill, and such letter arrived on Monday morning, and the plaintiff's agent, on the same day, gave notice of the dishonour to the defendants

Mr. Storks, for the defendant, contended, that under these circumstances the defendants were discharged; but per Abbott, C. J. "I consider the rule to be too well settled to be disturbed, viz. That a party who receives notice of the dishonour of a bill is not bound, under any circumstances, to forward notice to the prior party on the same day, but may wait till the next day; and if no post proceeds from the adjacent town or village on such next day, it then suffices if he puts a letter in the post on any following day, so that it be forwarded by the next practicable post; and it sufficed in this case, that the plaintiff had put the letter in the post on the Saturday; for if he had done so on the Friday, it would not have been forwarded till the Saturday night, and it was immaterial whether the letter laid in the post-office or remained in the plaintiff's hands till the Saturday. In these cases it is of great importance to have a fixed rule, and not to resort to nice questions of the sufficiency in each particular case of a certain number of hours or The general rule is, that the party minutes. need not write on the very day that he receives the notice. If there be no post on the following day, it makes no difference. The next post after the day on which he receives the no-tice is soon enough." The plaintiff obtained a verdict. See the printed report of this case in Mood. & M. 61; see also Hawkes v. Safter, 4 Bing. 715; 1 M. & P. 750, (Chit. j. 1387).

(m) Ante, 471 to 475. (n) Darbishire v. Parker, 6 East, 8, 9; 2 Smith, 195, (Chit. j. 707); ante, 485, note (k); Bancroft v. Hall, Holt, C. N. P. 476, (Chit. j. 968); ante, 473, note (g); and see Boyd v. Emmerson, 4 Nev. & Man. 99; 2 Ad. & El. 184; anle, 473, note (i).

(o) Pearson v. Cranlan, 2 Smith's Rep. 404, (Chit. j. 715); ante, 474, note (o); Holdern v. Dalton, 1 Car. & P. 181, (Chit. j. 1204).

(p) Id. ibid. and ante, 472, note (f), 473, note (g); Beeching v. Gower, Holt, C. N. P. 315, (Chit. j. 966).

1127

7.43

. .1

zY

,5 V

11.

, ¥

1.75

: 1

جا نبر

. 9

1.7

1

านาร

1.41

- 306

g A c; A ni f

الا. : 72 . . *

-313

11 1

. .

.7

17

9 10

102

...

: 9

.36

ŗ

1

4,3

11 . 3

1, 4

. 1

ε

payment, or he will be deprived of all remedy, except against the bankers I. Of Nonor their estate(a). and necessary Pro-When notice of a bill having been dishonoured is received on a Sunday, ceedings it is to be considered as not received until the following Monday, and the thereon. party receiving it is not bound to open or attend to the letter giving him the Sunday is notice till the Monday; and although a post may go out on the latter day, he for receivis not legally bound to forward notice until the following Tuesday (r). There-ing or forfore, where a bill became due on "Saturday at Norwich, and was dishonour-warding ed, and the defendant, the drawer, lived near North Walsham, fourteen Notice, and is strictly miles from Norwich, and the post lest Norwich for North Walsham at half- Dies non past nine in the morning, it was considered sufficient to put a letter into the [*488] nost-office at Norwich before the mail started on the Tuesday morning(s). And where the bankers of the holder of a bill received on a Sunday morning notice of its dishonour, which they wrote to apprize the holder of on Monday, but put the letter into the post after twelve o'clock at noon, at which time the mail started, so that it did not go till the next day, it was holden, that they were not obliged to open the letter on the Sunday, nor to attend to it, and that they had all Monday to write; and that as far as they were concerned, there had been no improper delay(t). The same point was decided in a subsequent case (u). We have also seen, that the statute 7 & 8 Geo. 4. c. 15, precludes the Good Frincecessity for giving notice of non-payment on Good Friday, Christmas-day, mas-day, and Fast and Thanksgiving-days(x). And at common law, and independ- Fust and ently of that statute, if a notice be received on a Good Friday or Christmas- Thanksday, it is not to be considered as received until the next day, and notice days, Jewneed not be forwarded by the party who actually received it on one of those ish Festidays, until the third day afterwards (y). And in the spirit of toleration it has vals. &c.

(q) Camidge v. Allenby, 6 B. & C. 373; 9 Dowl. & Ryl. 391, (Chit. j. 1319); and Henderson v. Appleton, ante, 356, 357.

(r) Hawkes r. Salter, 4 Bing. 715; 1 Mon. & P. 750, (Chit. j. 1387); Wright r. Shaw-cross, 2 B. & Ald. 501, n.; Langdale r. Trimmer, 15 East, 293, (Chit. j. $57); Haynes v. Birks, 3 B. & P. 599; and see Poole v. Dicas, 1 Scott, 600, ante, 484, n. (y).

Haynes v. Birks, 3 B. & P. 599, (Chit. j. A bill, indorsed in blank, was deposited by the holder with his bankers. It became due on Saturday, and was presented for payment about two o'clock on that day, and payment being refused, the bill was noted, and again presented between nine and ten in the evening by a notary, and on Monday the bankers informed the holder that the bill was dishonoured, who, on Monday, about moon, gave notice by the post to the indurser; and it appearing that the holder lived at Knightsbridge, and the indorser in Tottenham Court Road, it was holden that this notice was sufficient to entitle the holder to recover against the indorser; and Lord Alvanley, C. J. observed, that as soon as a banker is informed of the non-payment of a bill, it becomes his business to acquaint his principal of that circumstance; and that if a bill be returned to a banker, he is bound to give notice to his principal that very day, if he oan do so by using ordinary diligence (not so now); but that in the last-mentioned case it was impossible for the bankers on Saturday night to give notice to the plaintiff, since the bill was not presented by the notury till between nine and ten o'clock. On Sunday, of course, they were not bound to do so; and on Monday they did apprize the plaintiff of the non-payment; but it did not appear at what time on Monday the plaintiff received the no-tice. The plaintiff was not bound to be at home the whole of the day; and supposing him to have returned home late on that day, he was not bound to send a special messenger to the defendant. If he informed the defendant by the course of the post, it was sufficient. Certainly he was bound to write by the twopenny post on Monday (not so now); and supposing him to have done so, the defendant would only receive his letter on Tuesday. It appeared that on Tuesday he did receive the notice. The court could not so nicely measure the minutes as to consider whether the precise time of the receipt corresponds with the time at which a letter sent by the post on Monday night would arrive.

(s) Hawkes r. Salter, 4 Bing. 715.

(1) Bray v. Hadwen, 5 Maule & S. 63, (Chit. j. 957).
(u) Wright v. Shawerosa, 2 B. & Al. 501.

(x) Ante, 877, 378, 479

(y) Tassell v. Lewis, Lord Raym. 748,

ceedings thereon.

to a bill or Note has till the next day after he received Notice to give No-[*489]

I. Of Non- been held, that a Jew is not obliged to forward notice on the day of a great payment, Jewish festival, during which it is unlawful for any persons of that persuasary Pro- sion to attend to any sort of business(z).

It is usual for the holder only to give notice to the person from *whom Each Party he immediately received the bill or note, especially if he is ignorant of the residence of the other parties, and if so, his neglect to give notice to the other prior indorsers, and to the drawer, cannot, on any sound principle, deprive either of the indorsers of the right to proceed against the person who indorsed to him, and all prior parties, provided he in his turn has duly for-The rule is therefore clearly settled, that each party to a warded notice. bill or note, whether by indorsement or mere delivery, has in all cases, until the day after he has received notice, to give or forward notice to his prior indorser, and so on till the notice has reached the drawer(a)(1). rule is so strongly fixed, that a party receiving notice of the dishonour of a bill, need not give or forward notice to the party immediately before him, till the next post after the day on which he himself received notice, although he might easily have forwarded it on that day, and although there is no post on the day following (b). The reasons on which this rule is founded, are the same as those applicable to the first notice of dishonour(c). where a bill of exchange passed through the hands of five persons, all of whom lived in London or the neighbourhood, and the bill, when due, being dishonoured, the holder gave notice on the same day to the fifth indorser, and he, on the next day, to the fourth, and he, on the next day, to the third, and he, on the next day to the second, and he, on the same day to the first, the court were of opinion, on a case finding these facts, that due diligence had been used (d), indeed, both the first and last notices were given a day sooner than was requisite. The usual expression, is "each indorser has a day," and this is strictly correct when all the parties live in London; but > (Chit. j. 192); Wright v. Shawcross, 2 Bar. & Ald. 501, (Chit. j. 1057, note); ante, 377, 378; Scott v. Lifford, 9 East, 347; 1 Campb. 246, (Chit. j. 747).

> (z) Lindo v. Unsworth, 2 Campb. 602, (Chit. j. 824); ante, 454, note (e). Per Lord Ellenborough: "The law required him to give notice with reasonable diligence, and I think he did so, if he sent off the letter as soon as he could after the determination of the festival, during which he was absolutely forbid to attend to secular affairs The law-merchant respects the religion of different people. For this reason we are not obliged to give notice of the dis honour of a bill on our Sunday."

(a) Darbishire v. Parker, 6 East, 3; 2 Smith, 195, (Chit. j. 707); ante, 485, note (k); Smith v. Mullett, 2 Campb. 208, (Chit. j. 775); post, 490, note (o); Jameson v. Swinton, 2 Campb. 374, (Chit. j. 782); 2 Taunt 224, S. C.; post, 495, note (u); Bayl. 5th ed. 268.

(b) Geill v. Jeremy, Mood. & M. 61, (Chit.

j. 1335); ante, 486, note (l).

(c) Ante, 483, et seq. (d) Hilton v. Shepherd, 6 East, 14, (Chit. j. 710); Smith v. Mullett, 2 Campb. 208, (Chit. j. 775); and see Jameson v. Swinton, 2 Campb. 374; 2 Taunt. 224, (Chit. j. 782).

⁽¹⁾ Brown et al. v. Ferguson, 4 Leigh's Rep. 37. But the over diligence of one party to a bill, shall not supply the under diligence of others; and though the drawer or indorser sought to be charged, in fact receive notice as early as he would have been regularly entitled to it, yet the holder, in order to charge him is bound to show due diligence in each and every party through whose hands the bill has passed, the onus probandi, in such case, lying on the plaintiff to prove due diligence, not on the defendant, to prove negligence. Ib.

[{] Where all the parties reside in the same town this is a reasonable usage; but the holder of a note or bill who deposites it in a bank for collection is not entitled to regard the bank as holder, and to claim an additional day to give notice to the indorser, or drawer, except where it is the usage of the bank to give notice to the holder alone. Where it is the usage of the bank to give notice to all the indorsers, &c., the bank cannot be regarded otherwise than as the mere agent of the holder throughout; and the latter is bound to give netice, at farthest, on the last day of grace. Johnson v. Harth, 1 Bai. 482. >

MI.

779

- 1

'. a 1 7. 32

7, 170

3.21

6.14

1:12

2.31

> .7

. .

22.35

- '. 2º

. . . . 1

22

......

·••••

٠٠٠٠,

::xt

, car

81 . 10

..1 ~2

: 33

χ$,

1.5

. 1 7

ď

į, rit

18

'n,

¥

.

1

where they reside in different parts of the country, then, according to the I. Of Noncourse of the post, frequently several days may intervene between each.

A banker, and perhaps other agents, holding or transferring a bill, note, ceedings or check, to obtain payment, when not acting as a mere servant, is considered, as respects this rule, as a distinct holder or party to the instrument, A Banker and he is also allowed a day to give notice to his customer or employer as Agent, if he had himself been a holder in his own right(e). *This has been frequent- when conly decided as to town bankers (f), and extends to country bankers (g), and sidered as to bankers acting as agents for other bankers abroad, who themselves were Holder agents, and vice $vers\hat{a}(h)$; but in such case the agency must not, it seems, be within that unnecessarily exercised by returning the bill back again to the first holder Rule. for him to give notice, when the party residing abroad happens to be in Eng- [*490] land, and could himself have given direct notice to the prior indorser without the second intervention of the London banker(i). The rule also extends as well to bills and notes as to checks deposited in the hands of a banker to receive payment, instead of the party himself receiving payment, although in consequence of such deposit the notice of dishonour is postponed a day(k). Therefore in these cases, when a bill, note, or check, in the hands of a banker on behalf of his customer, falls due on a Saturday, he need not give notice of the dishonour to his customer till the Monday following, nor the latter till the Tuesday (1). And where a difficulty had arisen in finding out the residence of an indorser, and an attorney was employed to find him out, and he at length ascertained it, the court held, that with reference to this rule, he might take the next day to inform and consult with his client, the holder, and that it sufficed to forward notice to the discovered indorser on the third day(m).

and necessary Pro-

In the succession of notices between the holder and the drawer of a bill, Conseor first indorser of a note, where there are several intervening parties, a Day havwhether by indorsement or transfer by mere delivery, as each party thus has ing been

(e) Haynes v. Birks, 3 Bos. & Pul. 599, (Chit. j. 690); Scott v. Lifford, 9 East, 847; 1 Campb. 246, (Chit. j. 747); Langdale v. Trimmer, 15 East, 291, (Chit. j. 857); Bray v. Hadwen, 5 M. & Sel. 68, (Chit. j. 957); Daly v. Slatter, 4 Car. & P. 200, (Chit. j. 1487); Robson v. Bennett, 2 Taunt. 388, (Chit. j. 794); Firth r. Thrush, 8 Bar. & C. 387; 2 M. & Ry.

359; Dans. & L. 151, (Chit. j. 1398).
Robson v. Bennett, 2 Taunt. 388, it was held, that a person receiving a check on a banker is equally authorised in lodging it with his own banker to obtain payment, as he would be in paying it away in the course of trade, although, in consequence thereof, the notice of dishonour is postponed a day, one day being allowed for notice from the payee to the drawer, after the day on which notice is given by the bankers to the payee, and the bankers are to be considered as distinct holders.

Scott v. Lifford, 9 East, 347; 1 Campb. 249, (Chit. j. 747), where the indorsee of a bill of exchange lodged it with his bankers, who presented it for payment on the fourth, when it was dishonoured, and on the fifth they returned it to the indorsee, who gave notice of the dishonour on the sixth by the twopenny poet; it was held that such notice was reasonable. And Lord Ellenborough, C. J. said, "I cannot say that the holder, on the return of the bill dishonoured to him, is bound omissis omnibus aliis negotiis to post off immediately with notice; if reasonable diligence has been used it is sufficient."

(f) Langdale v. Trimmer, 15 East, 291, (Chit. j. 857); Haynes v. Birks, 3 Bos. & Pul. 599, (Chit. j. 690); Scott r. Lifford, 9 East, 347; 1 Campb. 249, (Chit. j. 747).

(g) Bray v. Hadwen, 5 Maule & S. 68, (Ch. j. 957); ante, 486, note (k)

(h) Daly v. Slatter, 4 Car. & P. 200, (Chit. j. 1487); but a case was reserved.

(i) Id. ibid.

(k) Robson r. Bennett, 2 Taunt. 388, (Chit. j. 794); ante, 489, note (e).

(1) See the cases, ante, 482, et seq.; Poole v. Dicas, 1 Scott, 600; ante, 484, note(y). Note, Lord Alvanley in Haynes v. Birks, 3 Bos. & Pul. 599, (Chit. j. 690); ante, 488, note(r), said, " It is the duty of bankers to give notice on the same day to their customer when they can." But it is now quite out of the course of business to do so, unless the customer calls and inquires on the day when the bill falls due.

(m) Firth v. Thrush, 8 B. & C. 387; 2 M. & Ry. 859; Dans. & Ll. 151, (Chit. j. 1398).

sary l'roceedings thereon. Consequences of a Day having been lost.

1. Of Non- a day, and by the course of the post sometimes more time is occupied, sereral days may be and frequently are legally occupied without laches, and this even where all or many of the respective parties may reside in the same town, and some of them even in the same street(n). But if any one party miss a day in duly giving or forwarding notice, without legal excuse, a link in the chain of regular notice is broken, and all the prior parties are primâ facie discharged from liability to be sued(o); nor can any party who has been discharged by *such laches safely pay, for he has no right to waive the objection and pay in his own wrong, and thereby charge prior parties (p). [*491] And where there have been several indorsers or transferrers by mere delivery, it is not enough that the drawer or indorsers have received notice in > (n) Smith v. Mullett, 2 Campb. 208; Scott v. Lifford, 9 East, 347; 1 Campb. 249, (Chit. j.

(0) Smith v. Mullett, 2 Campb. 208, 374; Marsh v. Maxwell, id. 210, (Chit. j. 776); Turner v. Leach, 4 Bar. & Ald 451, (Chit. j.

Smith v. Mullett, 2 Campb 200, 374, (Chit. j. 775), which was an action by the fourth against the first indorsee, all the parties to which resided in London; it appeared that the plaintiff received notice of the dishonour of the bill from his indorsee on the 20th of the month, and gave notice to his immediate indorser, by a letter put into the twopenny post-office, on the evening of the 21st, but so late that it was not delivered out till the morning of the 22d: it was held, that by this neglect the plaintiff had discharged all the prior indorsers, although in the course of the 22d, notice of the dishonour was given both to the second indorsee and to the defendants. And Lord Ellenborough in this case said, " It is of great importance that there should be an established rule upon this subject; and I think that there can be none more convenient than that, where the parties reside in London, each party shall have a day to give notice. I have before said the holder of a bill of exchange is not, omissis omnibus allis negotis, to devote himself to give notice of its dishonour. It is enough if this be done with reasonable expedition. If you limit a man to the fractional part of a day, it will come to a question how swiftly the notice can be conveyed. A man and a horse must be employed, and you will have a race against time. But and you will have a race against time. But here a day has been lost. The plaintiff had notice himself on Monday, and does not give notice to his indorser till Wednesday. If a party has an entire day, he must send off his letter conveying the notice within post-time of that day. The plaintiff only wrote the letter to Aylett on the Tuesday; it might as well have continued in his writing-desk on the Tuesday night as lie at the post-office. He has clearly been guilty of laches, by which the defendant is discharged(1)."

In Marsh v. Maxwell, 2 Campb. 210, (Chit. 776), Lord Ellenborough ruled, that upon the dishonour of a bill, it is not enough that the drawer or indorser receives notice in as many days as there are subsequent indorsers, unless it is shewn that each indorsee gave notice within a day after receiving it; and that if any one has been beyond the day, the drawer and prior indorsers are discharged. Turner v. Leach, 4 Barn. & Ald. 451, (Chit. j. 1108). The plaintiff was the eleventh indorser of a bill, the defendant the eighth. The plaintiff had indorsed to Bennett, Bennett to Fletcher, Fletcher to Hordem, and Hordem to The bill was dishonoured on Satur-Sansom. day, the 30th of August, and on Monday, 1st of September, Sansom gave notice to Hordem. This reached Hordem the 2d, on which day he gave notice to Fletcher. Fletcher gave notice to Bennett on the 3d, which reached Bennett on the 4th, but Bennett did nothing till the Sth, when he gave notice to the plaintiff, who paid the bill. It was argued, that if notice had been given to each successive indorser in the regular course, the defendant would not have received it at an earlier period; but the court held, that the plaintiff had been discharged by the laches of Bennett, and that he could not, by paying the bill, place the prior indorsers in a worse situation than that in which they would otherwise have been.

(p) Turner v. Leach, 4 Bar. & Ald. 451, supra. The same law prevails in France; 1 Pardess 455. What not a payment in party's own wrong; Huntley v. Sanderson, 1 C. & M. 467; 3 Tyr. 469, S. C.; ante, 331, n. (2).

do, 5 Manf. 252.

⁽¹⁾ It is a settled rule that notice is necessary from the last indorser to every prior indorser, whom he means to charge, immediately after he himself receives notice of the dishonor. Morgan v. Woodworth, 3 John. Ca. 89. And generally, notice of non-payment of a bill, must be given by an indorser to the indorser next before him, by the next post, after he himself has received notice of the dishonor; but this rule is not inflexible. It is understood to mean the next convenient and practicable post. Leiber v. Goodrich, 5 Cowen, 186. And it is said that the last indorser ought in such case immediately to take up the note, and become himself the real holder. Ibid. And see Morgan v. Van Ingen, 2 John. Rep. 204. And notice to an indorser before a demand on the maker is a nulity. Griffin v. Goff, 12 John. Rep. 423.

The first indorser in point of time is not of course first responsible. Chalmers et al. v. M'Mur-2481 .

::. 10-

13

٠٠٠,

× 2

. .

:3 1. 127

. 3

1 02 ., ; 9

. .

. . .

. 54

1 12

. 18

211

. 7

.

. '$

. .

1 2

...

P,- 123

: 17

- '$

· 2

::5

. .

75

Ġ.

J1 $

.j!

7 1

,411

Ç V.

:12

ď

, A

-10-

,

2

ä

as many days as there were subsequent indorsees, unless it appear that each I. Of Nonindorsee gave or duly forwarded notice to his immediate indorser (or trans- payment, ferrer by delivery) in due time after he has received notice, for if any one sary Prohas delayed beyond his day, the drawer and prior indorsers are discharge ceedings ed(q); and it is no answer that if notice had been given to each successive thereon. indorser in the regular course, the defendant would not have received it at an earlier period; for if any one or more of the indorsers give notice more expeditiously than he need have done, all the prior parties are entitled to the benefit thereof, and neither is entitled on that account to excuse his own delay, or occupy more than the day allowed to him(r). So if there are several indorsers of a bill, and the last indorsee and holder resorts, in the first instance, to the first of such indorsers, he is not entitled to as many days as there are indorsers to give notice of the dishonour to him, but must give it in the same time as he would have been obliged to have done if he had resorted at first to his own immediate indorser(s).

*However, a notice from any party to a bill, though not from the plaintiff, But a Notice in due

Time from any Party *492]

(q) Per Lord Ellenborough in Marsh v. Maxwell, 2 Campb. 210, (Chit. j. 776); Turner v. Leach, 4 B. & Ald. 451, supra; Dobree v. Eastwood, 3 Car. & P. 250; infra, n. (s); Bayl. 5th ed. 275.

(r) Id ibid.

(s) Dobree v. Eastwood, 3 Car. & P. 250, (Chit. j. 1370). Assumpsit on a bill of exchange for 1001., drawn by the defendant and indorsed by him to Lawford, by Lawford to Pope, by Pope to Parker, and by Parker to the plaintiff. According to the evidence at the trial, it appeared that the bill became due and was dishonoured on the 27th October, 1826. A witness proved, that on the 28th, which was a Saturday, he put, on the part of the plaintiffs, a notice of the dishonour into the twopenny post, in Berner's Street, Oxford Street, directed to the defendant at Belvidere Wharf, on the Lamboth side of Westminster Bridge. He stated that he put it in the post about fire or six o'clock in the evening. One of the post-marks on the letter was of the date of the 30th.

Wilde, Serjeant, for the defendant, contended that the notice was not sufficient; it ought to have been so given as to reach the party to whom it was addressed on the 28th, and the post-mark of the 30th shews that it was not delivered till that day. The principle is this, that a party in a case like the present, where the residence of the drawer is so near, may either send a special messenger or use the twopenny post; but if he chooses to use the post instead of the special messenger, he must take care so to use it that the party to whom he is sending may not be delayed by it. He cited Smith v. Mullett, 2 Campb. 208, (Chit. j. 775); and Lawson and another v. Sherwood, I Stark. 814, (Chit. j. 959).

Burrough, J .- " Supposing the letter to have been put into the post on the 28th, early enough to be delivered on that day in the ordinary course of business, but from some delay in the office it was not delivered till the 30th. I apprehend that the fault of the post-office is not to prejudice the plaintiff.

Wilde, Serjeant.—" It is to be presumed that the post-office does its duty regularly as a to the Inpublic office, and it is upon this supposition that strument the sending a letter by the post is evidence of suffices. notice at all."

E. Lawes, Serjeant, and Curwood, for the plaintiff:—"The notice was clearly in time on the 30th. The defendant was fourth indorsee, reckoning from the plaintiff, the holder. He was entitled to time for inquiring as to the residence of a person who was not his immediate indorsee." They cited Scott v. Lifford, 1 Cumpb. 246; 9 East, 847, (Chit. j. 747).

Wilde, Serjeant .- "The case of Scott v. Lifford is mentioned in the case I cited, and ruled not to apply.

The witness was then called up again, and said that he put the letter into the post before five o'clock. Burrough, J .- " I will leave it to the jury to say whether the letter was put in early enough to reach the defendant on the 28th."

Burrough, J .- "The holder of a bill may. when it has been dishonoured, either resort to his immediate indorser, and then he must give him notice within the proper time, or he may resort to the drawer, and then he must give him notice within the same time. It is not that the holder of the bill has as many days as there are indorsers, but that each indorser has his own day. If the letter was put into the postoffice at such an hour on the 28th as that it could be delivered in the course of that day, then the notice will be sufficient, otherwise it

His lordship then left the question to the jury, who stated it as their opinion, that if the letter was put in on the 28th, it was not put in in time to reach the defendant that night, and found their verdict for defendant. In Marsh v. Maxwell, mentioned in a note in page 210 of 2 Campb. Lord Ellenborough held, that upon the dishonour of a bill, it is not enough that the drawer or indorser receives notice in as many days as there are subsequent indorsees, unless it is shown that each indorsec gave notice within a day after receiving it.

and necessary Proceedings thereon.

I. Of Non- will, if received in due time, without a day having been lost by any one in payment, the due succession of the several notices, enure to the benefit of the holder and of plaintiff, though he have not himself given the defendant any notice(t).

What exdiate No-

We have seen what circumstances, such as the want of effects, will excuse cuses De-lay in givthe total omission to give notice of non-payment(u). A delay in giving the ing imme- notice within the time usually required, may also be excused by some circumstances, such as the hindrance of superior force (x), sudden illness of the holder (y), the not going out of a post till the third day after the dishonour (z), a delay or irregularity in the post-office (a), or other circumstances (b), some of which have been already noticed (c). But the circumstances of a party having lost or been robbed of a bill does not, we have seen, dispense with the necessity for regularly demanding payment, and giving due notice of the non-payment(d). We have also seen, that the holder will be excused in the delay of giving notice in the usual time, by the day on which he should regularly have given notice being a day on which he is strictly forbidden by his religion to attend to any secular affairs (e), or by the absconding of the drawer or indorser (f).

Ignorance

If the residence of the party to whom the notice ought to be given be or remain in a state of passive dence, &c. not known to the holder, he must nevertheless not remain in a state of passive and contented ignorance, but must use due diligence to discover his resi-[*493] dence(g), and if he do, then the indorser remains liable, *though a month or more may have elapsed before actual notice be given; and if he, before the bill becomes due, apply to one of the parties to ascertain the residence of the indorser, and he decline giving him any information, the holder need not, after the bill becomes due, renew his inquiries of that party (h); but in general the holder should not only immediately apply to all the parties to the bill for information, but also make inquiries and send notice to the place where it may reasonably be supposed the party resides, and if he has employed an attorney, who at length discovers the residence, we have seen that it will suffice if the attorney on the next day consults with his client, and the latter, on the third day, forwards the notice to the discovered indorser, though, in general, notice ought to be given on the next day(i). letter from the holder, giving notice of the dishonour, containing this passage, "I did not know where, till within these few days, you were to be found," is not to be taken as proving that the notice was not given on the next day after the residence of the party was discovered (k). Where the traveller of a tradesman received in the course of business a promissory note, which was delivered to him for the use of his principal, without indorsing it, and the note having been returned to the principal dishonoured, and the latter, not knowing the address of the next preceding indorser, wrote to his traveller, > (t) Post, 493 to 496, By whom notice must be given; Bray v. Hadwen, 5 Maule & S. 68, (Chit. j. 957); ante, 486, note (1).

(u) Ante, 436 to 448. (x) 1 Pardess. 451. (y) Ante, 452, note (o).

(z) Geill v. Jeremy, Mood. & M. 61, (Chit. j. 1335); anle, 486, note (l).
(a) Dobree v. Eastwood, 3 Car. & P. 250,

(Chit. j. 1870); ante, 491, note (s).
(b) Poth. pl. 144.

(c) Anie, 452 to 454.

(d) Anie, 455.

(e) Ante, 454.

(f) Sturges v. Derrick, Wightw. 76, (Chit. j. 800).

(g) Per Lord Ellenborough in Bateman v. Joseph, 2 Campb. 461; 12 East, 433, (Chit. j.

801); ante, 478, note (f).
(h) Per Bayley, J. in Firth v. Thrush, 8 B. & Cress. 387, 398; 2 M. & Ry. 359; Dans.

& L. 151, (Chit. j. 1398).
(i) Id. ibid.; ante, 490, note (m).

(k) Kerby v. England, 2 Car. & P. 300, (Chit. j. 1303).

211:1

74 ¥:

7

. . . h

12-12

, frat

- 1

. .

, N

أجير- م .;:

100

. السرية J. 12

: :::

1. 104

 $\gamma \phi''$

1.1

, 1.

١

14

23

, X

الى

غز ا

10.5

. 6

1

who was then absent from home, to inquire respecting it, it was held, L Of Nonthat such principal was not guilty of laches, although it was urged that the Payment, traveller ought to have stated the residence when he remitted the notes, and and necessary Prothough several days clapsed before he received an answer, and thereupon he eeedings gave notice to the next party, as he had used due diligence in ascertaining thereon.

So if the indorser has himself occasioned or assented to the delay, he may be precluded from complaining of the absence of the earlier notice, as in the case before noticed of a transfer upon or after the day of payment, rendering it impracticable to present or give notice in the ordinary time; but this estoppel is confined to that particular indorser, and will not preclude prior indorsers from availing themselves of the irregularity (m).

We have seen, that the notoriety of the insolvency of the drawee, as in the 5thly, By case of bankruptcy, constitutes no excuse for the neglect of the holder to whom Nogive notice of non-acceptance and non-payment to the drawer and in-given. dorsers(n); and it appears to have been considered, that such notice must come from the holder(o), and that it will not suffice if it come *from any [*494] other party, because notice is required, not merely that the parties may immediately call on those who are liable to them for an indemnity, but it must import that the holder intends to stand on his legal rights, and to resort to them for payment(p); and therefore, where the drawer having notice before the bill was due, that the acceptor had failed, gave another person money to pay the bill, and the holder neglected to give notice of the dishonour, it was holden that the drawer was discharged (q). And in a subsequent case it was held, that notice of the dishonour of a bill of exchange must be given to the drawer and indorsers by the holder himself, or some person authorised by him, or at least not by a mere stranger (r)(1). We have seen, that a valid pro-

(1) Baldwin v. Richardson and another, 1 B. & C. 245; 2 Dowl. & Ry. 285, (Chit. j. 1169).

(m) Ante, 389; 1 Pardess. 451. (n) Ante, 449; Esdaile v. Sowerby, 11 East,

117, (Chit. j. 767).

(o) Tindal v. Brown, 1 T. R. 170, (Chit. j. 431); Ex parte Barclay, 7 Ves. 597, 598, (Chit. j. 656); Staples v. Okines, 1 Esp. Rep. 833, (Chit. j. 544); ante, 444, note (0); Kyd, 125; but see post, 494.

Tindal v. Brown, 1 T. R. 167, 186, (Chit. Per Ashurst, J .- "Notice means something more than knowledge, because it is competent to the holder to give credit to the maker. It is not enough to say that the maker of a note does not intend to pay, but that the holder does not intend to give credit to such maker; the party ought to know whether the holder intends to give credit to the maker, or to resort to him." Per Buller, J.—"The notice ought to purport that the holder looks to the party for payment, and a notice from another person cannot be sufficient, it must come from the holder.'

Ex parte Barclay, 7 Ves. 597, (Chit. j. 66). Barclay was indorsee and holder of two bills drawn by Kemp upon Denrlow, and indorsed by Clay to Barclay. These bills were dishonoured, of which Clay gave notice to Kemp, and on petition by Barclay to be allowed to prove these bills under a commission of bankrupt issued against Kemp, one question was, whether this notice from Clay, and no from Barclay, the holder, was sufficient. And Lord Eldon, after referring to Tindal v. Brown, held that the notice ought to have come from the holder, and dismissed the petition. he said, "The settled doctrine is, according to the language of Mr. Justice Buller in Tindal v. Brown, and there is great reason in it, for the ground of discharging the drawee is, that the holder gives credit to some persons liable as between him and the drawee. Notice from any other person that the bill is not paid, is not notice that the holder does not give credit to a third person. The doctrine has been acted upon very often since." In Selw. N. P. 9th edit. 332, it is observed, that in this case the attention of the court was not directed to Lord Kenyon's opinion in Shaw v. Croft, infra note (u). But see infra, note (u).

(p) Id. ibid.

(q) Nicholson v. Gouthit, 2 Hen. Bla. 612, (Chit. j. 556); ante, 441, note (u); Whitfield v. Savage, 2 B. & Pul. 277, (Chit. j. 630); and see Esdaile v. Sowerby, 11 East, 114, 117, (Chit. j. 767).

(r) Stewart v. Kennett, 2 Campb. 177, (Ch.

⁽¹⁾ The holder of a promissory note, who receives and indorses it for the sake of collection only, although a mere agent, is to be considered as the real holder, for the purpose of receiving and transmitting notices. Ogden et al. v. Dobbin & Evans, 2 Hall's Rep. 112.

ceedings thereon.

1. Of Non- test for non-acceptance and notice thereof, may be made and given by any holder, whether legally so or not; but it is said, that a valid protest for nonpayment can only be made by a lawful holder entitled to demand and receive payment(s). Where the drawee having effects of the drawer in his hands, represented to the drawer at the time the bill was drawn, that he should not be able to provide for it, and the drawer thereby understood that he should have to provide for it, this nevertheless was considered not to excuse the want of notice of non-payment from the holder(t).

Notice from any Parly to the Bill or Note sufficient.

However, according to the more recent decisions, it is not absolutely necessary that the notice should come from the person who holds the bill when it has been dishonoured, and it suffices if it be given after the bill was dishonoured, by any person who is a party to the bill, or who would, on the same being returned to him, and after paying it be entitled to require reimbursement, and such notice will, in general, enure to the benefit of all the antecedent parties, and render a further notice from any of those parties unnecessary, because it makes no difference who gives the information, since the object of the notice is, that the parties may have recourse to the acceptor(u); if it were otherwise, *the holder might secure his own right against

[*495]

j. 772). The notice of non-payment had been given by Cutler, who had been employed by the original parties to the bill to get it discounted, but it did not appear that he had any authority or direction from any party to the bill to give notice of the dishonour. Per Lord Ellenborough.-" If you could make Cutler the agent of the holder of the bill, the notice would be sufficient; but in reality he was a mere stranger. The bill, when dishonoured, lay at the bankers of Abbott, with whom Cutler had no sort of connection. But the notice must come from the person who can give the drawer or indorsee his immediate remedy upon the bill, otherwise it is merely an historical fact. this case Cutler was not possessed of the bill, and had no controul over it. The defendant, therefore, is not proved to have had any legal notice of the dishonour of the bill, and is discharged from the liability he contracted by indorsing it." Plaintiff nonsuited.

(s) 1 Partess. 443, 444; ante, 456.

(t) Staples v. Okines, 1 Esp. Rep. 332, (Ch.

j 544).

(u) Bayl. 5th ed. 254, Kyd, 126; Selw. 9th edit. 332; Shaw v. Croft, MS.; Jameson v. Swinton, 2 Campb. 373; 2 Taunt. 224, (Chit. j. 782); Wilson r. Swabey, 1 Stark. Rep. 34, (Chit. j. 934); Newen r. Gill, 8 C. & P. 367; Chapman r. Keane, 3 Ad. & Ell. 193, post, 495, note (z).

Shaw r. Croft, cor. Lord Kenyon, Sittings after Trin. Term, 1798, MS; and see Selw. N. P. 9th ed. 882. Assumpsit by the holder of a bill against the drawer. Defence; no regular notice of dishonour; but it being proved that a message had been left at the drawer's house by the acceptor, stating that the bill had been dishonoured, Lord Kenyon said, "that it made no difference who apprised the drawer, since the object of the notice was, that the drawer might have recourse to the acceptor.'

Jameson v. Swinton, 2 Campb. 873; 2 Taunt. 224, (Chit. j. 782). Action by the second indersee of a bill of exchange drawn by the defendant, payable to his own order, and indorsed by him to G. Elsom. The bill became due on Saturday the Sth of July, when it was in the hands of the plaintiff's bankers. On Monday, the 10th, they returned it dishonoured to the plaintiffs, who, in the evening of that day, gave notice of the dishonour to Elsom, their indorser. Elsom, between eight and nine o'clock in the evening of the following day, gave a like notice to the defendant. The plaintiffs and Elsom resided in London, the defendant at Islington. For the defendant, it was insisted that the plaintiffs were bound to give notice themselves to the drawer, and all the indorsers against whom they meant to have any remedy. They could not avail themselves of a notice given by a third person. Per Law-rence, J.—" I do not remember to have heard the first point made before, but I am of opinion that the drawer or indorser is liable to all subsequent indorsees, if he had due notice of the dishonour of the bill from any person who is a party to it. Such a notice must serve all the purposes for which the giving of notice is required. The drawer or indorser is authoritatively informed that the bill is dishonoured; he is enabled to take it up if he pleases, and he may immediately proceed against the acceptor or prior indorser, and it does seem to me that the defendant in this case had due notice of the dishonour of the bill from Elsom. This is allowing only one day to each party, which, when the parties all reside in the same town, seems now to be the established rule." Verdict for the plaintiff.

Wilson r. Swabey, 1 Stark. Rep. 31, (Chit. j. 934). Assumpsit by the indorsee against the drawer of a bill of exchange. The bill became due on Thursday, the 2d of March; notice of the dishonour was communicated to Lewis, an indorser, on the Friday, and by him to the defendant on the Saturday. For the defendant, it was objected, that the notice had not been given by the party who sued upon the bill, but Lord Ellenborough said, "That notice from any his immediate indorser by regular notice, while the latter, and every other I. Of Nonparty to the bill, would be deprived of all remedy against prior indorsers and payment, the drawer, unless each of those parties should in succession take up the bill sury Proimmediately on receiving notice of dishonour, a supposition which cannot ceedings reasonably be made (x). And therefore it has been held, that if the drawer thereon. or indorser of a bill of exchange receive due notice of its dishonour from any 5thly, By person who is a party to it, he is directly liable upon it to a subsequent in- whom Nodorser, from whom he had no notice of the dishonour(y). So, an indorsee, given. who has indorsed over, and is not the holder at the time of maturity and disbonour, may give notice at such time to an earlier party, and afterwards taking up the bill and suing such party may avail himself of such notice (z). And it has been decided, in an action by the indorsee against the drawer, that it is sufficient if the drawer had notice of the dishonour even from the And where a party to a bill gave notice of dishonour in *the [*496] name of an indorsee, without any authority from him, to an indorser, it was held that this was a sufficient notice (b). It is, however, advisable for each party, immediately upon receipt of notice, to give a fresh notice to each of the parties who would thereupon be liable over to him, and against whom he must prove notice(c)(1). As already observed, the notice should be given by some agent or servant who will be competent to prove it, and not by the holder in person, in the absence of a competent witness(2).

person who was a party to the bill was sufficient." Verdict for the plaintiff.

111

40° W

111

- 2

19 23

1. 17

23.75

. . 11

· Y e D

....

. . 1

٠,٠,٠

. . 1

· · 216

...4

, IF

, ~:

O

J.y

- 4

¥

.3

13 ħ.

,

r'.

. .

. 1

n

(x) Per curiam, in Keane v. Chapman, 3 Ad. & El. 193, infra, note (z).

(y) Jameson r. Swinton, 2 Campb. 273; 2 Taunt. 224, (Chit. j. 782); Wilson v. Swabey, 1 Stark. Rep. 34; supra, note (u).

(z) Chapman v. Keane, 3 Ad. & Ell. 193; 4 Nev. & Man. 607; 1 Har. & Wol. 165, S. C., expressly overruling Tindal r. Brown, 1 T. R. 167; 2 T. R. 186, as to this point.

In an action by the indorsee against the drawer of a bill of exchange, the declaration stated the dishonour of the bill (in the usual form), "of which the defendant then had no-tice." Plea, that the defendant "had not notice from the plaintiff of the non-payment of the said bill of exchange." It was proved that the indorsee received notice of the dishonour from the plaintiff, and that the indorser's clerk, and not the plaintiff, gave notice to the defendant; this was held sufficient; Newen v. Gill, 8 Car. & P. 367.

(a) Rosher v. Kieran, 4 Campb. 87, (Chit. j. 919). This was an action by the plaintiffs, as indorsees, against the defendant as drawer of a bill of exchange for 1000l., dated Dundalk, 28th of February, 1814, payable to the order of the drawer at ninety days after date, and accepted by Thomas Rowcroft, at Smith's, Payne, and Smith's, bankers, in London. The question was, whether the defendant had received due notice of the dishonour of the bill. The bill became due on the 30th of May, when it was presented for payment and dishonoured. On the same day the acceptor wrote a letter to the drawer, stating that he had not been able to pay it, and that it was then in the hands of the plaintiffs. Lord Ellenborough held this notice from the acceptor sufficient, and the plaintiffs had a verdict And see Stewart v. Kennett, 2 Campb. 177, (Chit. j. 772); Shaw v. Croft, ante, 494, note (u). In Bayl. 5th ed. 254, it is thus observed upon the case of Rosher r. Kieran, "but that might, perhaps, have been on the ground that the acceptor wrote for the plaintiff, and as his agent." In America it has been held, that notice to the drawer from a drawee, who refuses acceptance, is not sufficient; Stanton v. Blossom, 12 Mass. 116; Bayl. 163, Amer. edit.

(b) Regerson v. Hare, 1 Jurist, 71.

(c) Bayl. 5th edit. 255, 256; Kyd, 126,

(1) { In Peyroux v. Dubertrand, 11 Curry's Louis, 82, held necessary. }

(2) If an indorser receive notice of the dishonor of a bill or note, he must immediately take it up and give notice to all the antecedent parties, whom he means to charge, otherwise they will not be holden. Morgan v. Woodworth, 3 John. Cas. 89.

A bill was drawn by the defendant, at New Orleans, on Philadelphia, in favor of the plaintiff, and was by him indorsed, in full, to a third person, and regularly protested for non acceptance, and was by him indorsed, in full, to a tilitude person, and regarders protested for non acceptance, and non-payment; but no notice of the dishonor of the bill was proved to have been given to the drawer. The indorsement being in full, cannot be stricken out at the time of trial; the want of notice destroys the plaintiff's right to recover from the defendant. Craig r. Brown, 1 Peters' Rep. 171.

In an action against the first indorser of a note by a subsequent indorser, it is sufficient if it appear that notice of non-payment was given to the defendant by the holder, and the right of action of the plaintiff is not affected by a delay for more than a year to take up the note and bring sary Proceedings thereon.

6thly, To whom Notice must be given.

I. Of Non- holder became bankrupt it is the duty of the official assignee to give notice payment, of dishonour(d).

The notice of non-payment, when necessary, must be given to all the parties to whom the holder of the bill means to resort for payment, and though proof that the drawer had no effects in the hands of the acceptor will be an excuse for want of notice with respect to him, it will not have that operation with respect to any of the indorsers; for they have nothing to do with the accounts between the drawer and the drawee(e); and an indorser is entitled to notice, although the drawer and acceptor were fictitious (f); and though if the drawer and drawee be the same person, no notice of non-acceptance need be given to the former(g), it would be otherwise as regards an indors-If the party entitled to notice be a bankrupt, notice should be given to him before the choice of assignees, and after such choice, to them(h); and if notice has been given to to the bankrupt, before the choice of assignees, it is not necessary to give another notice to the assignees when they have been chosen, the former sufficing, because the bankrupt represents his estate till assignees have been chosen(i); but if the bankrupt has absconded, and a messenger be in possession, notice should be given to him and to the petitioning creditor; and if assignees have been appointed, then to them, or the parties will be discharged, and the bill not proveable under the commission (k). [*497] If the party be dead, notice should be given *to his executor or administrator(l), and it is expedient, though not in general absolutely necessary, to give

(d) See Rule of the Court of Review, dated February 15th, 1932, to this effect; post, Appendix.

(e) See Brown v. Maffey, 15 East, 216, (Chit. j. 852); Goodall v. Dolley, 1 T. R. 712, (Chit. j. 440); Wilkes v. Jacks, Penke's Rep. 202; Walwyn v. St. Quintin, 1 Bos. & Pul. 216; 2 Esp. R. 515, (Chit. j. 578); ante, 439, note (h).

(f) Ante, 339, note (q). (g) Roach v. Ostler, 1 Man. & Ry. 120, (Chit. j. 1359); ante, 339, note (r); and it was further held, that a letter written by A. B. the drawer to the payee of a bill, expressing his apprehension that it would be dishonoured, coupled with the fact that the place to which the bill is directed, is the usual residence of A. B. the drawer, when in England, is evidence from which a jury may infer the identity of the drawer and drawee.

drawer and drawee.

(h) See Ex parte Moline, 19 Ves. 216, (Chit. j. 871); Rhode v. Proctor, 4 Bar. & Cres. 517; 6 Dow. & Ry. 610, (Chit. j. 1269); Camidge v. Allenby, 6 Bar. & Cres. 373; 9 Dow. & Ry. 391, (Chit. j. 1319); Ex parte Johnston, 1 Mont. & Ayr. 622; 3 Dea. & Chit. 433, S. C.; Ex parte Chappel, 3 Mont.

& Ayr. 490; 3 Dea. 218, S. C. In Thompson's Law of Bills, 535, it is laid down, in case of the bankruptcy of the drawer, or of an indorser, notice must be given to the bankrupt, or to the trustee vested with his estates for the behoof of his creditors.

(i) Per Lord Eldon, C. J. in Ex parte Moline, 19 Ves. 216, (Chit. j. 871). The drawer of a bill became bankrupt; the bill was dishonoured the day of the second meeting under the commission, and notice was given to him before the choice of assignees; and Lord Eldon held this sufficient, and that it was not necessary also to give notice to his assignees.

(k) Rhode v. Proctor, 4 Bar. & Cres. 517; 6 Dow. & Ry. 610, (Chit. j. 1269). Bills drawn by Rains on Lachlan, became due in June, 1818. The former absconded, and on the 20th a commission issued against him, and defendants were his assignees. On the 23d of April, 1818, Lachlan also became bankrupt. No notice was given to Rains' assignees, or to the messenger; and it was held, that the bills were not proveable for want of notice. And see Ex parte Johnston, 1 Mont. & Ayr. 622; Ex parte Chappel, 3 Mont. & Ayr. 490.

(1) There are no English decisions to this his action against the defendant. Stafford v. Yates, 18 John. 328. One to whom a bill or note has been indersed, merely as agent to collect (e. g. a bunk) is considered as a holder for the purpose of giving and receiving notice of non-payment; and he is not bound to give notice of nonpayment directly to all prior parties; but may notice his next immediate indorser, who is bound to notice his indorser, &c. in the same manner as if the bill or note had been negotiated in the usual course of business for valuable consideration. Mead v. Engs, 5 Cowen, 303.

If an indorser receive notice from any one who is a party, he is liable to any subsequent in-dorser, though he may have received no notice from him. Id.

{ Proof of notice of protest to the indorsers results from the certificate of the notary, duly made according to law. Peyroux v. Dubertrand, ubi supra. }

CHAP. X.] 1127 1

135

131

1 3

....... هيور سال منظر سال

4374

2001

· ; Y

.

5.3

1: 9 .,-;1

() 2#

... · 18

....6

y :=15

215

. .

. [3

: : 5

~; e# à

::::

913

, , 3

. 1

. 3

. 4.

فورو

. 52

g 🖰

, e 38.

. 13

۲:

,; $

18 12

.:

- i notice to a person who has guaranteed the payment of the bill(m). When I. Of Nonthe party entitled to notice is abroad at the time of the dishonour, if he have payment, a place of residence in England, it will be sufficient to leave notice of non- sary Propayment at that place, and a demand of payment from his wife or servant ceedings will in such case be regular(n)(1); and Lord Tenterden inclined to think, thereon. that where a bill had been indorsed by a person as agent, it might suffice to 6thly, give him notice of the dishonour(o); but notice to the general attorney of a whom Noparty is insufficient (p).

Where a bill or note is transferrable by mere delivery, without indorsement, a person who so delivers it seems to be considered a party to the instrument for the purpose of notice(q); but where a person has merely guaranteed the payment, &c., it is generally laid down, that as he is no party to the instrument, he is not, by the custom of merchants, so absolutely entitled to notice of the dishonour as to be necessarily discharged from liability by the omission to give him notice; but that if he can shew, that for want of regular notice he has sustained actual damage, he will have a defence at least pro tanto(r).

It was once thought, that notice of non-payment must in all cases be giv- Notice is en to the drawer of the bill(s), and demand of payment made of him, or that tial to be in default thereof, the indorsers would be discharged, notwithstanding they given to had regular notice, because, for want of notice to the drawer, the indorsers the Party were without remedy against him, after they had successively taken up the intended to be proceed-This opinion, however, so far as it related to foreign bills, was over- ed against ruled in the case of Bromly v. Frazier(1); and in its relation to inland bille, by Holder. in the case of Heylin and others against Adamson(u), and as to checks on bankers, in Rickford v. Ridge(v), on the principle, that to require a debe given.

effect. In America it has been so decided; and that if there are no personal representatives at the time, a notice sent to the residence of the deceased party's family is sufficient, and that it is not necessary to give notice afterwards to executors or administrators, subsequently becoming such. Merchants' Bank r. Birch, 17 Johns. Rep. 25; Bayl. 418, Amer. edit.; ante, 339.

(m) Ante, 326, 339. When notice need not be given of a substituted bill, see Bishop v. Rowe, 3 Maule & S. 362; Hickling v. Hardy, 7 Taunt. 312; 1 Moore, 61, S. C.

(n) Cromwell v. Hynson, 2 Esp. Rep. 511, 512, (Chit. j. 571); Wulwyn v. St. Quintin, 1 B. & P. 652; 2 Esp. Rep. 515, (Chit. j. 578); but see 5 Esp. Rep. 175.

(o) Firth v. Thrush, 8 Bar. & Cres. 387; 2 Man. & Ry. 359; Dans. & L. 151, (Chit. j. 1398); but semble, that if a party be merely authorised in a particular instance to indorse, and be not a general agent, then notice to him would not be a sufficient notice to his principal.

(p) See the judgment in Cross v. Smith, 1 Maule & S. 545, (Chit. j. 886).

(q) See Camidge v. Allenby, 6 Bar. & Cres. 373; 9 Dow. & Ry. 391, (Chit. j 1319); ante, 356, note (s); see also ante, 441, 443.

(r) See ante, 441 to 443; Bayl. 5th edit. 286 to 288.

(s) According to the Anonymous report in 1 Salk. 126, and S. C. reported as Lambert v. Oaks, Holt's Rep. 117, it was so held in an action on a bill of exchange. But it appears from the report of the same case in 1 Ld. Raym. 443, and the note in 1 Salk. 126, that the action and judgment related to a promissory note, and the word drawer was there used to describe the person primarily liable on the note, viz. the maker; and in this view of the case the decision was correct; and see Lord Mansheld's observations in Hevlin v. Adamson, 2 Burr. 669; and 2 Kenyon's Rep. 379, upon the mistakes of the reporters, which being explained, reconcile most of the cases.

(1) Bromley v. Frazier, 1 Stra. 441; Selw. 9th edit. 334.

(u) Heylin r. Adamson, 2 Burr. 669, (Chit. j. 349); Pardo v. Fuller, Com. Rep. 579, (Ch. j. 286); Bromley r. Frazier, 1 Stra. 441; Selw. 9th edit. 336.

(r) Rickford v. Ridge, 2 Campb. 539, (Chit. 819). Per Lord Ellenborough, "The hold-

Digitized by Google

⁽¹⁾ Where, previous to a note falling due, the indorser had died at sea, but the fact was not known to the holder, and no administration was granted for several months after the note fell due, it was held, that notice left at the last place of residence of the indorser in New York, and another sent to the residence of his family in the country, through the post-office, was sufficient, although no notice had been given to the defendants, the executors of the indorsers. Merchant's Bank v. Birch, 17 Johns. 25.

sary Proceedings thercon.

whom Notice mast be given.

I. Of Non- mand of the drawer, or *prior indorser, would be laying such a clog upon payment, bills, as would deter every person from taking them; besides, the acceptor is primarily liable, and as the act of indorsing a bill is equivalent to drawing a new bill, every indorser thereby separately undertakes as well as the drawer that the drawee shall honour the bill, and the holder may consequently imme-6thly, To diately resort to him, without calling on any of the other parties(1); and it is the business of the indorser, as soon as he has received notice himself, to forward the like notice to the drawer, and all persons to whom he means to re-[*498] sort(x). However, it is advisable for the holder to give notice to every party as soon as he can ascertain his residence, for otherwise he will be without remedy against him, unless some other party to the bill has given him notice, in which case such notice may enure to his use (y).

With respect to inland bills protested for non-payment, the 9 & 10 Will. 3, c. 17, s. 2, directs the protest or notice thereof to be given to the person from whom the bill was received (z). The preceding observations relative to notice from the holder enuring to the benefit of the antecedent party here apply (a). Notice to one of the several partners, joint indorsers, is considered as equivalent to notice to all(2), and if one of several drawers be also the acceptor, and there be no fraud in the transaction, no notice in fact is necessary to the other drawers (b), and as we have already seen, a mere guarantee, whose name is not on the bill or note, is not in general entitled to notice(c). Nor, as we have seen, is it necessary to give notice to a party who has by his conduct dispensed with it, as by engaging to call on the holder, and ascertain whether the acceptor had paid the bill, or the like (d); and where a bill has been accepted payable at a particular place, it is no er of a check is not bound to give notice of its dishonour to the drawer for the purpose of charging the person from whom he received it. He does enough if he presents it with due diligence to the banker on whom it is drawn, and gives due notice of its dishonour to those only against whom he seeks his remedy.'

(x) See same cases and observations in Edwards v. Dick, 4 Bar. & Ald. 212, (Chit. j.

1079).

(y) Ante, 494, 495. (z) Et vide Heylin r. Adamson, 1 Burr. 674, (Chit. j. 349).

(a) Ante, 494, 495. (b) Porthouse v. Parker, 1 Campb S2, (Ch. j. 741); Alderson v. Pope, 1 Campb. 404, (Ch. 755); and see Jacaud v. French, 12 East, j. 755); and see Jacand v. French, 12 Edw., $17, 322, 323, (Chit. j. 789); and per Lord Ellenborough, in Bignold v. Waterhouse, 1 Maule & S. 259.

Porthouse v. Parker, 1 Campb. 82, (Chit. j. 741). This was an action against the drawees of a bill of exchange for 4611. 3s. at the suit of the payee. The bill purported to be drawn by one Wood, as the agent of George, James, and John Parker. There was no proof that Wood had authority from the defendants to draw the bill, but a witness swore that he, as the agent of John Parker, the drawee, and one of the defendants had accepted it on his account. Lord Ellenborough held, that the bill having been accepted by order of one of the defendants, this was sufficient evidence of its having been regularly drawn; and further, that the acceptor being likewise a drawer, there would be no occasion for the plaintiff to prove that the defendants had received express notice of the dishonour of the bill, as this must necessarily bave been known to one of them, and the knowledge of the one was the knowledge of all. Verdict for the plaintiff.

In Bignold v. Waterhouse, 1 Maule & S. 259, Lord Ellenborough said, "It is a general rule, indeed, that where several are concerned together in partnership, notice to one is equivalent to notice to all, but that rule presumes that the transaction is bond fide. Here, however, the case is different, the agreement is made with one of the defendants for his individual benefit alone, and the others are not parties concerned, not being made privy to the agreement. It was incumbent, therefore, on the plaintiffs, to shew that notice was given to the other part-

See Dwight v. Schovill, 2 Conn. R. 654; Bayl. 5th edit. 159. But if the parties are not partners, the acknowledgment by one of having received notice will not affect the other. Shepherd v. Hawkey, 1 Conn Rep. 368; Bayl. Amer. edit. 183

(c) Ante, 442.

(d) Ante, 451, et seq. 481.

 ^{(1) {} Peyroux v. Dubertrand, 11 Louis. 32. }
 (2) If reasonable notice of dishonour is given to one of several joint indorsers, all are bound by it. Dodge v. Bank of Kentucky, 2 Marsh. 616.
 { Higgins v. Morrison's Ex'r.. 4 Dana, 105; Mages v. Dunbar, 10 Louis. 546.

MIN:

2.00

.

1. 31

.... : or 1

27733

0.13

0.57 . 1. 2

A: 175

10 112

× 73

C# 101

31's 25

1. 36

اق ن 3 354

3 25

· . /

11:33

· , 'y

 \sqrt{I}

: 30

6.13

.4 ×4

75 . . . x

...

, , ,,

27 . 1

1 ţ: لام.

ابرو

A 298

. . # 4.18 الاز

. 15

470

, A 1

. .

لزة

, pt

113

.11 gr.

defence in an action against the drawer, that notice of the non-payment was I. Of Non-And where the drawee has accepted a bill payment, not given to the acceptor(e). payable at a banker's, he is not in general entitled to notice of non-payment, sary Probecause such an acceptance constitutes the bankers his agents, and he must ceedings see that his agents do their duty, especially where his effects in the *hands of thereon. the bankers are so small, that he could not reasonably expect they would [*499] pay it, nor does it make any legal difference that they had more than sufficient in their hands, for the terms of acceptance are not equivalent to a check upon the bankers (f). And the circumstance of the bankers having failed, with assets of the acceptor in their hands, makes no difference (g). acceptance were special, and qualified, pursuant to the 1 & 2 Geo. 4, c. 78, the acceptor might be discharged by the omission to demand payment at maturity, though not by the neglect to give him notice of the dishonour(h). And, for the same reasons, if a note be made payable in the body of it at a banker's, the maker is not entitled to notice of the non-payment there(i). In America it was decided, that where a note has been indorsed by two persons not in partnership, the written acknowledgment of one, that he had received due notice, is not sufficient to charge them both (i).

It seems that the drawer and indorser have not, as formerly supposed, a 7thly, Liareasonable time allowed them to pay the bill, after notice of the dishonour, Drawer but that they are bound to pay immediately on receiving notice of dishonour, and IDin the same manner as an acceptor is bound to pay on the presentment of dorsers on the bill, and consequently cannot plead a tender where payment is not offer-Non-payed till the following day(k). But the drawer and indorsers may, it should ment seem, like the acceptor of a bill, insist on the production of the bill before they pay (l), and require the bill to be delivered to them, unless an action be depending against another party to the bill, in which case the holder may have a right to retain the bill until paid his costs.

With respect to the amount of the sum which the drawer and indorsers are bound to pay, they are liable, when a bill has been protested, not only to the payment of the principal sum, but to damages, interest, &c.(m). This subject will be more fully discussed when we come to treat of the sum recoverable in an action upon a bill or note (n).

If the holder of a bill neglect to present it for payment when necessary, or to give notice of non-payment to those persons entitled to object to the want of it, such conduct, we have seen, discharges them from all their respective liabilities(o).

The consequences, however, of a neglect to give notice of non-payment of 8thly, How a bill or note, or to protest a foreign bill, may be waired by the person enti- the Consetled to take advantage of them. Thus it has been decided, that a payment a Neglect to give Nobe waived.

(e) Edwards v. Dick, 4 Bar. & Ald. 212, (Chit. j. 1079); see ante, 359, as to how far acceptor is discharged by not presenting at a particular place.

(f) Smith v. Thatcher, 4 Bar. & Ald. 200, (Chit. j. 1100); Treacher v. Hinton, 4 Bar. & Ald. 413, (Chit. j. 1107); Edwards v. Dick, 4 Bar. & Ald. 212, (Chit. j. 1079).

(g) Sebage v. Abitbol, 4 Maule & S. 462; 1 Stark. R. 79, (Chit. j. 942, 947); Rhodes v. Gent, 5 Bar. & Ald. 244, (Chit. j. 1124); Jenner v. Haydon, 4 Bar. & Cres. 1; 6 Dow. & Ry. 7, S. C

(h) Ante, 152, 153; and Roscoe on Bills,

(i) Pearse v. Pembertly, 8 Campb. 261, (Ch. tice may j. 870).

(j) Shepherd v. Hawkey, 1 Conn. R. 868; &c.(p). Bayl. Amer. edit. 193; ante, 498, note (b).

(k) See ante, 341; Siggers v. Lewis, 1 C., M. & R. 370; 2 Dowl. 681, S. C.

(1) Ante, 353; Hansard v. Robinson, 7 Bar. & Cres. 90; 9 Dow. & Ry. 860, (Chit. j. 1840).

(m) 9 & 10 Will. 3, c. 17, and 8 & 4 Anne, c. 9; ante, 465.

(n) See post, Part II. Ch. VI. (o) Ante, 389, 890, 483, 484.

(p) When notice dispensed with, ante, 451, el seq. 481.

payment, sary Proceedings thereon.

Notice.

I. Of Non of a part (q), or a promise to pay the whole or *part (r), or to "see it paid (s)," Payment, or an acknowledgment that "it must be paid (t)(1)," or a promise that "he

(q) Vaughan v. Fuller, 2 Stra. 1246, (Chit. j. 318), was an action against the indorser of a note, and it being proved that the defendant Waiver of had paid part, Lee, C. J. held that that made the proof of demand upon the maker unneces-

> Holford v. Wilson, 1 Taunt. 12, (Chit. j. Action by indorsee against drawer of a bill, dishonoured by acceptor. The defendant had paid part of the money due upon the bill without making objection for want of notice of the dishonour, and the court held, upon a motion for a new trial, that from this the jury were warranted in presuming that due notice had been given.

> (r) Selw. N. P. 9th edit. 57; Haddock v. Bury, Mich. Term, 3 Geo. 2, MS. Burnet, J. 7 East, 236, n. (α), (Chit. j. 724). Per Lord Raymond, C. J. "If an indorsee has neglected to demand of the maker of the note in duc time, a subsequent promise to pay by the indorser will cure this laches."

> Whitaker v. Morris, Worcester, Lent Ass. 1756, MS.; 1 Esp. Rep. 58; Select Ca. 171, (Chit. j. 338). Plaintiff received a note of Yardley, payable to defendant. When it was due plaintiff sent the note to demand the money, but not finding Yardley, he kept the note for seventeen or eighteen days, during which time it was proved that he used due diligence to find him; he then wrote to his agent to inform the defendant, who returned no answer. About ten days after the agent went to defendant, who acknowledged receipt of the letter, and said, the reason why he had not sent an answer was, that Yardley had promised to order payment in London, and as it was not paid, "that he would certainly pay it the day after." The defendant's witnesses proved that Yardley was solvent when the note became due, and for some time after, but then was insolvent. Per Wilmot, J. " Holding the note for so long a time was unreasonable, and would have discharged the defendant, if, when he received the first notice, he had disclaimed the having any thing to do with it, but by his conduct, he has waived the neglect and acquitted the plaintiff;" however, he left it to the jury, who found for the defendant.

Lundie v. Robertson, 7 East, 231; 3 Smith Rep. 225, (Chit. j. 724). Indorsee against indorser of a bill; no evidence was given of presentment or notice, but it was proved, that upon being called upon by the plaintiff's clerk some months after the bill was due, the defendant said " he had not the cash by him, but if the clerk would call in a day or two and bring the account (meaning of the expences) he would pay it." The bill was shewn to him at the time; on the second application, he offered a bill on London for the debt and expences, which was refused; he then said that " he had not had regular notice, but as the debt was justly due, he would pay it." Chambre, J. thought this sufficient, and verdict for the plaintiff. On a rule nisi for a new trial, and cause shewn, Lord Ellenborough said, " The case admits of no doubt; it was to be presumed prima facie from the promise to pay, that the bill had been presented in time, and that due notice had been given, that no objection could be made to payment, and that every thing had been rightly done: this superseded the necessity of the ordinary proof; the other conversation does not vary the case, for though the defendant said he had not had notice, he waived that objection. See Croxon v. Worthen, 5 M. & W. 5; post, 502, note (e); and see Gibbon r. Coggon, 2 Campb. 188, (Chit. j. 774); post, 501, n. (a), where, from the drawer's promising to pay a bill, Lord Ellenborough directed the jury to presume that it had been duly protested. See also Taylor r. Jones, 2 Campb. 105, (Chit. j. 781) 771); post, 505, n. (a); and the observations of Park, J. in Houlditch v. Cauty, 6 Scott, 208, 228 to 230; 4 Bing. N. C. 411, S. C.; and of Tindal, C. J. in Hicks r. Duke of Beaufort, 5 Scott, 598, 604; 4 Bing. N. C. 229, 232, S. C.; post, 505, note (x).

(s) Hopes v. Alder, 6 East, 16, (Chit. j. 711). Action against drawer, to whom no notice of non-payment had been given. It was proved, that upon a meeting some time after, but before the action brought between the plaintiff and defendant, the latter said, "I will see it paid." It was urged for the plaintiff, that this subsequent promise, for which there was certainly an equitable consideration, subjected the defendant to liability. This was admitted by the defendant's counsel, and Lord Kenyon, C. J. said, "This subsequent promise was decisive."

(t) Rogers v. Stephens, 2 T. R. 713, (Chit. 446). In an action against the drawer of a foreign bill, an objection was taken that there was no protest, but it appearing that the defendant had no effects in the hands of the drawces when the bills were drawn, or afterwards, and that on being pressed for payment by the plaintiff's agent after the bill was dishonoured, he had said "it must be paid;" Lord Kenyon thought a protest or notice unnecessary, and directed the jury to find for the plaintiff, which they did. A rule was afterwards granted to shew cause why there should not be a new trial, and it was stated then, and upon shewing cause, that the defendant had really been prejudiced by want of notice to the amount of the bill: that he had advanced money to one Calvert to the amount before the bill was drawn; that Calvert desired him to draw on the drawees as Calvert's agents; that he did so on a supposition that Calvert had effects in their hands; that he afterwards settled with Calvert, and upon a reliance that the bill was paid, delivered him up effects to more than the value of the bill, and that Calvert was since insolvent; that the defendant was prepared with evidence to this effect, but that Lord Kenyon delivered it as his opinion that it did not make hit.

^{(1) {} Reynolds c. Douglass, 12 Peters, 497. }

D. I.

t i... 2

E. IX 22

The seek R1 173

Maria V

26 1 10

F British Till

//pai/0 6 ****

; · 1

> 21

150 %

24 222 3

-). }

4 50 · · · 8

. . . 13

. [, 4 X

.... O

. . . 4

N2 4

. 12 th

1 1

. ×

۶ را .

٤ , , . 7

. + A 12:25

. .

3.

٠, ٠

. 7

...

نا را

. 3

.. 3

. 5

;- 4

....

ą, j

U, 47

ıß

will set the matter to rights (u)," or a *qualified promise (r)(1) or a mere 1. Of Nonunaccepted offer of composition (10), made by the person insisting on the want Payment. of notice (after he was aware of the laches) to the holder of a bill, amounts sary Proto a waiver of the consequence of the laches of the holder, and admits his ceedings right of action. Where there has not been an express waiver of notice of thereon. dishonour, facts implying a waiver must be left to the jury; thus where the Wairer of plaintiff, in an action against the drawer of a bill of exchange, does not prove Notice. express notice, given in due time, of the dishonour of the bill, but relies upon certain facts in the defendant's own conduct, subsequently, as shewing that he had notice, and knew that he was liable to pay, those facts must be left to the jury, and the judge at Nisi Prius will not pronounce upon their legal effect, without submitting the case to the jury (x).

In some of the cases upon this subject the effect of such partial payment, Promise to or promise to pay, has been carried still further, and been considered not sufficient. merely as a waiver of the right to object to the laches, but even as an admission that the bill or note had in fact been regularly presented and protested, and that due notice of dishonour had been given; and this even in cases where the party who paid or promised, afterwards stated, that in fact he had not had due notice, &c.; because it is to be inferred, that the part-payment or promise to pay would not have been made, unless all the circumstances had concurred to subject the party to liability, and induce him to make such payment or promise (y). Thus, where an indorsee, three months after a bill became due, demanded payment of the indorser, who first promised to pay it if he would call again with the account, and afterwards said that he had not had regular notice, but as the debt was justly due he would pay it; it was held, that the first conversation being an absolute promise to pay the bill, was prima facie an admission that the bill had been presented to the accept-a protest or notice necessary. Lord Kenyon see also Wilkes v. Jacks, Peake, 202. did not recollect that this evidence was offered, but he and all the court thought it answered by the defendant's admission that "the bill must be paid," because that was an admission that the plaintiff had a right to resort to him upon the bill, and that be had received no damage by the want of notice, and was a promise to pay.

(u) Anson v. Bayley, Bul. N. P. 276. The indorsee of a note presented it for payment, but the maker pretended that the payee had promised not to indorse it over without acquainting him, and so put off the indorsee from time to time for three weeks; at the end of that period the indorsee wrote twice to the payee stating what he had done, and the maker's excuse; the payee answered, that "when he came to town he would set the matter right;" and upon an action by the indorsee against the payee, the jury found for the plaintiff, though the maker became bankrupt before the second letter was written, and though he continued solvent for three weeks after the note was due;

(v) Semble; Fletcher v. Froggatt, Guildhall, 8d March, 1827, MS., and 2 Car. & P. 569,

S. C.; post, 506, note (f).
(w) Margetson v. Aitken, 3 Car. & P. 338; Dans. & L. 157, (Chit. j. 1408); Dixon r. Elliott, 5 C. & P. 437; but see Standage r. Creighton, ib. 706, and other cases, post, 506.
(x) Rickett r. Toulmin, 7 Law J. 108, K.
B. M. T. 1828.

(y) Lundie v. Robertson, 7 East, 281; 3 Smith's R. 225, (Chit. j. 724); ante, 500, n. (r); and the other cases in the notes. And see per Tindal, C. J. in Hicks v. Duke of Beaufort, 5 Scott, 598, 604; 4 Bing. N. C. 229, 232; S. C. post, 505, note (x).

It is upon this ground of presumption, that in pleading, the general allegation of notice suffices, where there has been a wairer of notice; while in the case of a dispensation with notice, the facts shewing such dispensation must be specially averred. See Burgh v. Legge, 5 M. & W. 418, 419; post, Part II. Ch. II. Decla-

(1) { Reynolds r. Douglass, 12 Peters, 497. But a promise to pay, qualified with a condition which was rejected, is not a waiver. Ibid.

A recognition of the parties to a letter of credit, of their obligation to pay as guarantors under a supposed liability, which did not arise from the facts of the case, and of which facts they were ignorant, would not be a waiver of the notice they were entitled to have of the acceptance of their guaranty. Ibid. }

Ĉ

¥

ď

ч

ú

a

2 ķ

0 ŀ

and necessary Proceedings thereon.

Notice.

I. Of Non- or for payment in due time, and had been dishonoured, and that due notice had been given of it to the indorser, and superseded the necessity of other proof to satisfy those averments in the declaration; and that the second conversation only limited the inference from the former, so far as the want of regular notice of the dishonour to the defendant went, which objection he Waiser of then waived (z). So where the drawer of a foreign bill upon being applied to for payment, said, "my affairs are at this moment deranged, but I shall be glad to pay it as soon as my accounts with my agent are cleared," it was decided that it was unnecessary to prove the averment of the protest of [*502] the bill(a)(2). *And where in an action by the indorsee against the drawer of a bill, the plaintiff did not prove any notice of dishonour to the defendant, but gave in evidence an agreement made between a prior indorser and the drawer, after the bill became due, which recited that the defendant had drawn, amongst others, the bill in question, that it was over-due, and ought to be in the hands of the prior indorser, and that it was agreed the latter should take the money due to him upon the bill by instalments; it was held, that this was evidence that the drawer was at that time liable to pay the bill, and dispensed with other proof of notice of dishonour(b). Again, where in an action against the drawer, in lieu of proof of actual notice the defendant's letter was proved, stating, "that he was an accommodation drawer, and that the bill would be paid before next Term," though not saying "by defendant." Lord Ellenborough said, "the defendant does not rely upon the want of notice, but undertakes that the bill will be duly paid before the Term, either by himself or the acceptor; I think the evidence sufficient(c)."

> (z) Lundie v. Robertson, 7 East, 231, (Ch. j. 724); ante, 500, note (r); and see Gibbon v. Coggon, 2 Campb. 188, (Chit. j. 774), where, from the drawer's promising to pay a bill, Lord Ellenborough directed the jury to presume that it had been duly protested. See also Taylor v. Jones, 2 Campb. 105, (Chit. j. 771).

(a) Gibbon v. Coggon, 2 Campb. 189, (Ch. j. 774); Greenway v. Hindley, 4 Campb. 52, (Chit. j 914); Patterson v Beecher, 6 Moore, 319, (Chit. j. 1126).

(b) Gunson v Metz, 1 Bar. & Cres. 193; 2

D. & R. 334, (Chit. j. 1168).

(c) Wood v. Brown, 1 Stark. R. 217; 2 East, 471, n., (Chit. j. 953;) tamen vide Hicks

Where the drawer of a protested bill, on being applied to for payment on behalf of the holder, acknowledged the debt to be due, and promised to pay it; saying nothing about notice; it was held, that the holder was not bound to prove notice, on the trial. Walker r. Laverty, 6 Munf.

An unconditional promise by the indorser of a bill or note to pay it, or an acknowledgment of his liability, and knowledge of his discharge by the laches of the holder, will amount to an implied waiver of due notice of a demand of the drawce, acceptor or maker. Thornton r. Wynn, i Wheat. 193.

So, where the indorser of a promissory note, before it became payable, agreed with the holder, in consideration of time being given, that he would pay the note; it was held, that this was equivalent to proof of demand and notice, and satisfied the usual averments of demand and notice in the declaration. Norton r. Lewis, 2 Conn. Rep. 487. ⟨ Higgins v. Morrison's Ex'r., 4 Dana, 103. }

So also, when a bill is returned protested, and the drawer, on payment being demanded, promises to pay, he cannot afterwards resist the payment, on the ground that due notice of the protest was not given. Pate v. M'Clure, 4 Rand, 164.

And so, where the plaintiff, indorsee of a promissory note, who lived in New York, observed, when he received it, to his immediate indorser, who lived elsewhere, that he had no confidence in the other parties to the note, and did not know them, and should look wholly to the defendant, the indorser; who replied, that he should be in New York when the note would become due, and would take it up, if it were not paid by any other party to it;—Held, that this was a waiver of the right to notice of dishonor; and that an attempt on the part of the plaintiff to give notice, did not affect the question. Boyd r. Cleveland, 4 Pick. 525.

⁽¹⁾ To the same effect are decisions made in the United States. A promise by an indorser to pay a note or bill dispenses with the necessity of proving a demand on the maker or drawee, on notice to himself. Pierson v. Hooker, 3 John. Rep. 68. Hopkins v. Liswell, 12 Mass. Rep.

... 74 No diame 1.117

PART

ា វាម

17 253 Y

1.51 . 3

4 1

7 TL

... 2 , Var 4.103 21. 1

...... , , , . .

. · 4. - 62 , H:2 4

. 17 1

100 .,/1

:124 17. 16

100 (1

. 13

. . 4150

15,4

()H

where the drawer of a bill being asked if he was aware that the bill had been I. Of Nondishonoured, answered, "Yes, I have had a civil letter from Mr. G. on the payment, subject; and I will call and arrange it;" in an action against him it was held, sary Prothat the above admission relieved the plaintiff from the necessity of proving ceedings And the new rules of pleading have introduced no thereon. a regular notice (d). alteration in this respect, therefore, although a specific issue be now Waiter of joined upon the allegation of notice, a promise to pay the amount of the bill Notice.

or note will be equally evidence to support such issue(e). It seems to have been once considered, that a misapprehension of the legal Misappreliability would prevent a subsequent promise to pay from being obligatory, Legal and that even money paid in pursuance of such promise might be recovered Liability. back(f). But from subsequent cases it appears that *such doctrine is not [•503] law(g), and that money paid by one knowing (or having the means of such knowledge in his power) all the circumstances, cannot, unless there has been deceit or fraud on the part of the holder, be recovered back again on account of such payment having been made under an ignorance of the law, although the party paying expressly declared that he paid without prejudice(h). And as an objection made by a drawer or indorser to pay the bill, on the ground of the want of notice, is stricti juris, and frequently does not meet the justice of the case, it is to be inferred from the same cases, and it is indeed now clearly established, that even a mere promise to pay, made after notice of the facts and laches of the holder, would be binding, though

v. Duke of Benufort, 5 Scott, 598; 4 Bing. N. C. 229; post, 505, note (x), that such evidence would not be conclusive.

(d) Norris v. Salomonson, 4 Scott, 257.

(e) Croxon v. Worthen, 5 M. & W. 5. This was an action by the indorser against the maker of a promissory note, made payable at the defendant's bankers, and a promise by the defendant to pay the amount of the note by instalments, was held sufficient, upon the authority of Lundie r. Robertson, 7 East, 231; anle, 500, note (r), to dispense with proof of a due presentment, notwithstanding issue had been taken on the fact of presentment. Per Alderson, B: "The defendant is supposed to know the law: he knows, therefore, that he is not linble unless the note has been duly presented; with that knowledge he undertakes to pay it. Is not that evidence for the jury that he knows it has been presented? I do not see how the new rules make any difference. Before they were framed, all the material allegations of the declaration were put in issue by the general issue; therefore the plaintiff was to prove allthat is, each and every of them: now, each must be separately denied; but still the same evidence will apply to the particular allegation put in issue.

(f) Chatfield v. Paxton and Co., Sittings after Trinity term, 38 Geo. 3, K. B. MS; 2 East, 471, n. The plaintiff gave a bill to the defendants on Luard and Co. The defendants gave time to the acceptors, and they afterwards became insolvent, of both which circumstances the defendants gave the plaintiff notice, and he at their request, in a letter, accepted another bill, which he afterwards paid; and this action was brought to recover back the money paid. Lord Kenyon: "My opinion is against the defendants; it is not only necessary that the plaintiff should know all the facts, but that he should know the legal consequences of them; it seems to me that the plaintiff did not know the legal consequences of them, and that he paid this money under an idea that he might be compelled to pay it. When the defendants granted this indulgence of two months to Luard and Co., they gave it at their own risk. Where a man, knowing all the facts explicitly, and being under no misapprehensions with regard to any of them, nor of the law acting upon them, chooses to pay a sum of money, volenti non fit injuri', he shall not recover it back again; but the letters of the plaintiff in this case prove directly the contrary, for they are written in a complaining style." Verdict for the plaintiff, 200cl, and interest, from the time of pay-Erskine and Giles for the plaintiff. Gibbs for the defendants. See this case observed upon in Bilbie v. Lumley, 2 East, 471; and Williams r. Partholomew, I B. & P. 526. In Stevens r. Lynch, 12 East, 38; 2 Campb. 332, (Chit j. 782); the court said this case proceeded on the ground that the party was ignorant of the facts. In Roscoe on Bills, 220, there is this observation, "differently reported 2 Fast, 471, n.; 5 Taunt. 155. But when this case was afterwards brought before the K. B. there were other circumstances of fact relied on, and it was so doubtful at last on what precise ground the case turned, that it was not reported, 2 East, 471; and the opinion of Lord Kenyon is not now considered to be law; see Bibbe r. Lumley, 2 East, 463; Brisbans v. Da. cres. 5 Tount. 143; and as appears from the case of Stevens r. Lynch, isfea, note (k).

(g) Bilbie v. Lumley, 2 Fast, 469; Prisbane r. Dacres, 5 Taunt. 143; Williams r. Bartholomew, 1 B. & P. 326; Stephens r. Lynch, 12 Last, 38; 2 Camp 332, (Chit j. 782).

(h) See also Brown r. M'Kinnally, 1 Esp. Rep. 279; Marriott v. Hampton, 2 Esp. Rep. 546; Cartwright r. Rowiey, id. 723.

and neces. sary Proceedings thereon.

Notice.

L of Non- the party making it misapprehended the law(i). Therefore, where the drawer of a bill of exchange, knowing that time had been given by the holder to the acceptor, but apprehending that he was still liable upon the bill in default of the acceptor, three months after it was due, said, "I know I am liable, and if the acceptor does not pay it I will," it was adjudged that he Wairer of was bound by such promise; and the Court said, "that the cases above referred to proceeded on the mistake of the person paying the money under an ignorance or misconception of the facts of the case, but that in the principal case the defendant had made the promise with a full knowledge of the circumstances three months after the bill had been dishonoured, and could not now defend himself upon the ground of his ignorance of law when he

Promise to Pay after declara-[504]

A promise to pay made after a declaration filed or delivered, not only precludes the party from availing himself of the laches of the holder, but also dispenses with evidence in proof of the allegations in such declaration(m); and if the promise be made to any party holding the bill, *another person who has afterwards taken it up may avail himself of such promise, and sue the party making it(n). And a recital in an agreement between the

And such a promise will dispense with the neces-

(i) Cooper v. Wall, Guildhall, K. B. 1820, before Abbott, C. J. Scarlett and Chitty for the plaintiff, and Marryatt for defendant Action against drawer. No evidence of presentment to acceptor or notice of non-payment to drawer. The bill was due Saturday, 7th August, 1819. On 12th August witness called with bill on defendant, and informed him that at request of plaintiff, the holder, he called for payment. Defendant said he was sorry the acceptor had not paid the money, that he had promised to advance the money, but that he had deceived him, and that he, defendant, would see the acceptor upon the business, and they would call on the holder; and per Abbott, C. J., "This is sufficient to waive laches of holder (though Marryatt contended that there ought to be an express waiver), and if the drawer deal with the bill after it has been dishonoured, that suffices to charge him."

(k) Stevens v. Lynch, 12 East, 38; 2 Campb. 822, (Chit. j. 782); and see Taylor v. Jones, made the promise (k).

sity for a protest of a foreign bill(l)(1).

22 Campb. 105, (Chit. j. 771).
(1) Patterson v. Becher, 6 Moore, 319, (Chit. j. 1126); Gibbon v. Coggon, 2 Campb. 188, 189, (Chit. j. 774); Stevens v. Lynch, 2 Campb. 332, 833; 12 East, 38; Greenway v.

Hindley, 4 Campb. 52, (Chit. j. 914).

(m) Hopley r. Dufresne, 15 East, 275, (Chit. j. 856). Action against indorser of a bill accepted payable at a banker's. Defence, no regular presentment during banking hours. The declaration alleged a due presentment for payment, and after such declaration filed, the defendant applied to the plaintiff for the indulgence of a further extension of time to pay the bill, which was insisted on as a waiver of the defective presentation. For defendant it was contended, that there could be no waiver of the defective presentation, without shewing that the defendant knew, in fact, of the defect at the time, which, though attempted to be, was not shewn in this case. For this was cited Blesard v. Hirst (ante, 343, note (d)), where a subsequent promise by an indorser to pay the bill having been made under ignorance of the prior laches of the holder, by which he was discharged, was held to be no waiver of the objection. For the plaintiff, the counsel relied principally on the waiver which took place after declaration, containing the allegation that the bill was duly presented for payment, was filed; and therefore, after the defendant's attention was called to the fact, and he referred to Lundie v. Robertson (7 East, 231, ante, 500, note (r)), where a promise by an indorser to pay the bill three months after it became due, was held to be prima fucie evidence of his admission that the bill had been presented to the acceptor for payment in due time, and dishonoured, and due notice of it given to him. Lord Ellenborough, C. J., stopping the argument, said that the court thought that it should have been left to the jury to say whether, under the circumstances of the case, the defendant had notice at the time of his application for indulgence, that there had been no due presentation, and therefore made the rule absolute.

(n) Potter v. Rayworth, 13 East, 417, (Chit. j. 826). Indorsee of a note against the payee and indorser. It appeared that the note, which had been negotiated in the country, had been indorsed by the defendant to Fulford, by him to the plaintiff, by the plaintiff to Kirton, and by him to others, before it became due. A fortnight after it became due, Kirton, who had taken it up, called on the defendant, who, until then, had received no notice of its dishonour, the defendant then promised Kirton to pay him the next day; having failed in this, Kirton re-

⁽¹⁾ Where there has been laches in not giving notice to the indorser of the non-acceptance of a foreign bill, a promise by the indorser to pay, is not binding on him. Philips v. M'Curdy, 1 Harr. & Johns. 187.

.7117

... i.

6.3

70

17.1

. . . X

J. 12

○ 11/1 25 . 147

e , con

, y k

. · · · 25 . . 17 - 1

..- 121

. . 11

· 12

. 13

...iek

40.

بلإيو

, (7

o 3

. (1

- /#

· 4

: j #

.

1.15

1 18

1

1 . 12

41 .1

, ×

٦,

34

-,50,

- 5 g je

drawer and first indorsee, recognizing an existing liability of the drawer to pay L Of Nonthe bill, may be given in evidence to dispense with notice in an action against Payment. such drawer, at the suit of a subsequent indorsee(o).

and neces sary Proceedings

If, however, a promise to pay be made without a knowledge of the fact thereon. of a previous refusal to accept, it will not be binding (p)(1); and even a pay- Waiver of ment under such circumstances might, if the party making it were prejudiced Notice. by the conduct of the holder, and there were any wilful concealment on his Ignerance part, be recovered back(q); though it should seem, that according to the $\sqrt[q]{Laches}$. French law the party paying could not recover back the money, unless the party receiving was guilty of deceit or fraud(r). A promise to pay made after a bill becomes due is considered an admission of regular presentment for payment and of due notice, or at least waives the objection, because the party must be supposed to have known when the bill became due, and must have actually known or might readily have ascertained the fact whether or not there had been laches; and therefore when such a promise has been made, the plaintiff may avail himself of it, without proving that the defendant *knew that the bill had actually been presented and refused(s). But the [*505] fact of the bill having been previously presented for acceptance and refused, lies peculiarly within the knowledge of the party so presenting, and there is no inference that a party who promises to pay after the bill became due knew of the refusal to accept, or of the neglect to give him notice of such refusal; and therefore his promise to pay is not any waiver of the neglect, unless the plaintiff prove that the defendant had actual knowledge of it when he promised to pay. Attention to this distinction will reconcile the cases(t).

sorted to the plaintiff, who paid the amount, and the defence now being the want of notice, the question was, whether the plaintiff could avail himself of this promise so made to Kirton. Graham, B. directed a verdict for the plaintiff, and on motion to sot it aside, the court held that this promise was an acknowledgment by the defendant either with notice, or that without notice, he was the proper person to pay the note, and refused a rule. Lord Ellenborough, C. J. said, "Whether the promise to pay were made to the plaintiff or any other party who held the note at the time, it is equally evidence that the defendant was conscious of his liability to pay the note, which must be because he had had due notice of the dishonour." Bayley, J. considered the promise by the defendant either as an acknowledgment that he had had due notice of the dishonour, or that without such notice he was the proper person to pay the note, as for the party for whose use it was drawn. Rule absolute.

(o) Gunson v. Metz, 1 Bar. & Cres 193; 2

D. & R. 334, (Chit. j. 1168); ante, 502, n. (b). (p) Blesard v. Hirst, 5 Burr. 2672, (Chit j. 384); Goodall v. Dolley, 1 T. R. 712, (Chit. j. 410); ante, 343, note (d); Williams v. Bartholomew, 1 B. & P. 326; Stevens r. Lynch, 2 Campb. 333, admitted in 12 East, 39, (Chit. j. 782); Hopley r. Dufresne, 15 East, 276, 277, (Chit. j. 856); ante, 503, note (m). And see Pickiu r. Graham, 1 C. & M. 725; 3 Tyr.

923, S. C.; post, 506, note (c).

(q) Chatfield r. Paxton, ante, 502, n. (f). Martin r. Morgan, 3 Moore, 635; 1 Gow, C. N. P. 123; 1 B & B. 289, (Chit. j. 1065); Williams v. Bartholomew, 1 B. & P. 326; Bilbie v. Lumley, 2 East, 469; Malcom v. Fullarton, 2 T. R. 645. Quære, if not prejudiced, could be sustain such action? Farmer v. Arundel, 2 Bla. Rep. 824; Price v. Neal, 1 Bla. Rep. 399; 3 Burr. 1353, (Chit. j. 364); Ancher v. Bank of England, Dong. 637, (Chit. j. 406); Dize v Dickinson, 1 T R. 285. ble, he could; see Milnes v. Duncan, 6 Bar, & Cres. 671; 9 Dowl. & Ry. 731, (Chit. j. 1330); anle, 425, note (k).

(r) 1 Pardess. 458.

(s) In Taylor v. Jones, 2 Campb. 105, (Chit. . 771), it was contended for defendant, who had promised to pay, that the plaintiff ought to show that at the time of such promise the defendant had full knowledge of the laches of the holder; but Bayley, J. held, "that where a party to a bill or note, knowing it to be due, and knowing that he was entitled to have it presented when due to the acceptor or maker, and to receive notice of its dishonour, promises to pay it, this is presumptive evidence of the presentment and notice, and he is bound by the promise so made."

(t) Blesard v. Hirst, 5 Burr. 2670, (Chit. j. 384); and Geodall r. Dolley, 1 T. R. 712, (Chit. j. 440); ante, 343, note (d), where cases

^{(1) {} So where the drawer, upon the supposition that a demand had been made upon the drawce, which was not the fact, promised to pay, it was held not binding. Tickner v. Roberts, 11 Curry's Louis. 14. }

1. Of Nonpayment, and necessary Proceedings thereon.

Notice.

pay, when not sufficient.

The conduct also of the party insisting on the want of notice must, in general, be unequivocal, and his promise must amount to an admission of the holder's right to receive payment. The cases seem to go to this extentwhere the drawer of a bill, after it has been dishonoured, makes a distinct promise to pay, such promise is evidence that he has received notice of dis-Waiter of honour; and the reason is this, that men are not prone to make admissions adverse to their own interest; and therefore where the drawer promises pay-Promise to ment, it is to be presumed that he does so because he is conscious that he is To that extent goes Lundie v. Robertson(u), and no further(x). liable. Where, therefore, the drawer of a bill, on being applied to for payment, said, "If the acceptor does not pay, I must, but exhaust all your influence with the acceptor first," and the drawer afterwards directed the applicant to raise the money on the lives of himself and acceptor, it was held, that this admission was not to be taken as conclusive evidence of defendants having received or waived notice of dishonour(x). And where a foreigner said only, "I am not acquainted with your laws, if I am bound to pay it I will," such promise was not considered a waiver of the objection of want of notice (y): and it has been considered, that if the promise were made on the arrest, it shall not prejudice(z); but this doctrine seems questionable(z). And where the drawer, after having been arrested, upon being asked what he had to propose by way of settlement, said, "I am willing to give my bill at one or two months," but which was rejected, this was held not to obviate the necessity of proving notice; and Lord Ellenborough observed, "This offer is neither an acknowledgment nor a waiver to obviate the necessity of expressly proving notice of the dishonour of the bill. He might have offered to [*506] give his acceptance at one or two months, although being *entitled to notice of the dishonour of the former bill, he had received none, and although, upon this compromise being refused, he meant to rely upon the objection. If the plaintiff accepted the offer, good and well; if not, things were to remain on the same footing as before it was made(a). So an offer on the part of the indorser of a bill to pay part of the amount and the costs, and to give a warrant of attorney for the residue, will not dispense with proof of notice of dishonour(b). And where the day after a bill of exchange had been dishonoured in London, and before the fact of the dishonour could be known in Yorkshire, the drawer's clerk called in Yorkshire upon the indorser prior to the holder and a conversation took place as to the bill being likely to come back, and the clerk said, "I suppose there will be no alternative but my taking up the bill, and if you will bring it to Sheffield on Tuesday, I will pay the money;" and the indorser did not receive either the bill or notice until some days after the Tuesday, and notice of dishonour was not given to the drawer in due time; it was held, that such promise was not sufficient to dispense > of a promise to pay after an unknown refusal to accept. Lundie v. Robertson, 7 East, 231, (Chit. j. 724), and the other cases referred to, ante, 500, note (r), were cases of a promise after a neglect to give notice of non-payment, which must have been known to the defendant.

 (u) 7 East, 231; ante, 500, note (r).
 (x) Per Tindal, C. J. in Hicks v. Duke of Beaufort, 5 Scott, 598, 604; 4 Bing. N. C. 229, 232, S. C.

(y) Dennis v. Morris, 3 Esp. Rep. 158.

(Chit. j. 626).
(z) Rouse r. Redwood, 1 Esp. Rep. 153. Defendant, on being arrested, said to the plaintiff "that it was true the note had his name on it, but that he had security, though he wished for time to pay it." Lord Kenyon said, "When a person is arrested, and at the time is ignorant of his rights, or whether he is bound by law to pay the demand or not, and under such circumstances makes any confession, and seemingly admits the demand, such admission shall not be allowed to be given in evidence to charge him." Sed quære. But note, Lord Kenyon was probably influenced by the same opinion of the law as that expressed in Chatfield v. Paxton, ante, 502, note (f), since overruled, ante, 503.

(a) Cuming v. French, 2 Campb. 106, note, (Chit. j. 771).

(b) Standage v. Creighton, 5 Car. & P. 406.

1100 with giving due notice of the dishonour to the drawer(c). But we have 1. Of Nonseen, that an offer of composition, although not accepted, is considered as payment, dispensing with proof of notice of dishonour(d).

Where the plaintiff relies on a statement by the indorser after the bill was ceedings due, that he knew he was discharged, but that the plaintiff had behaved so thereon. well to him in money matters that he should take no advantage of it, but Wairer of would pay the money, he must, it is said, also prove a demand on the ac- Notice. ceptor(e).

and neces-

A qualified promise of payment, though an admission of the receipt of due Consenotice, must nevertheless be taken as a qualified promise, and acted upon quence of accordingly (f).

qualified Promise.

It has been considered, that admitting that a drawer of a bill may by cir- Waiver by cumstances impliedly waive his right of defence founded on the laches of the an Indorsholder; yet an indorser can only do so by an express *waiver, there being a be implied. material distinction in this respect between the situation of a drawer and in- | *507] dorser(g).

(c) Pickin v. Graham, 1 Crom & M. 725; 8 Tyrw. 923, S. C. It was also held, that the promise was not binding, having been made in ignorance of the dishonour, see ib. 729.

(d) Ante, 501, note (w). Sed quære, whether the same principle upon which an offer of composition is held to dispense with proof of notice of dishonour, does not apply with equal if not greater force to an offer to pay the whole debt, upon having time. But as in both cases such offer amounts at most to a conditional promise, it is submitted that in neither case, where the offer is unaccepted, ought the party making it to be prejudiced thereby.

(e) Brown v. M'Dermot, 5 Esp. Rep. 265,

(Chit. j. 721).

10

7:37

, . î

, , ,

, -

. :2

.,,1

× 13

. ...

, ,

9

. :

. 14

18

(f) Fletcher v. Froggatt, Guildhall, K. B. 3d March, 1827. Bill for 2141. Payee v. Indorser. Notice was not proved, but defendant had said subsequently, on being applied to, that he was not liable to the amount of more than 701. This was held by Abbott, C. J. to be a qualified admission, and only enabling plaintiff to recover that sum; for the defendant might make that offer, waiving the right to object to the want of notice. S. C. is reported in 2 Car. & P. 569. Assumpsit on a bill of exchange for 2001., by indorsee against drawer. Sufficient notice of dishonour had not been given, but a witness was called, who stated, that in a conversation with the defendant about the bill in question, the defendant said, "I do not mean to insist upon want of notice, but I am only bound to pay you 701." Something was then to be done by some other person in the course of the day on which the conversation took place; and the defendant added, "I will call to-morrow morning and see that all is arranged satisfactorily." Hill, for the defendant, submitted, that at least this admission would only entitle the plaintiffs to the sum mentioned in it. Scarlett, for the plaintiff, contended, that as it was a waiver of the objection on the ground of want of notice, it would entitle the plaintiffs to recover the whole amount of the bill. Abbott, C. J. " The defendant does not say that he will pay, but that he is only bound to pay 701. I think the plaintiff must be satisfied with 701." And verdict accordingly. MS. And see 2 Car.

& P. 569, (Chit. j. 1325).

(g) Borradaile v Lowe, 4 Taunt. 93, (Chit. j. 835); and see Shepherd, Serjeant's, argument, 4 Taunt. 96, 97. The defendant, who was an indorser, in answer to a request to ninke provision for the bill, wrote the following letter:-" Sir, I cannot think of remitting until I receive the draft, therefore, if you think proper, you may return it to Trevor and Co. Whitchurch Old Bank, if you consider me unsafe. 28th January, 1811. (Signed) J. Lowe, Whitchurch. To Mr. John Wilkins." This letter was held not to amount to a waiver of the laches in not giving due notice of non-payment. And per Lord Mansfield, C. J. "I am extremely glad I saved this point; for my mind fluctuated upon it very much at the trial; but, upon a further consideration, I do not find any case in which an indorser, after having been discharged by the laches of the holder, has been held liable upon his indorsement, except where an express promise to pay the bill has been proved. Now the letter of the defendant contains no such express promise, but in a great measure shews, that the defendant was writing under a supposition that he was liable, and that the prior indorsers would pay the bill; for he desires that it may be sent to Trevor and Co. who were the indorsers next in priority; but when he afterwards finds that the case is otherwise, and that the other indersers would not pay, and that he also was discharged, he refuses, as it was still open to him to do. I cannot consider the letter as conveying an absolute promise to pay at all events, whether Trevor and Co. did or not; and I think, in this case, it would be too much to fix the defendant by any such implied promise. In most of the cases where the defendants have been held liable, they have either made an express promise to pay, or a promise when they had a full knowledge at the time that they were discharged, or where there was a real debt binding in conscience due from them; but none of the cases have gone to the extent of making this defendant liable; and to hold that he was, in this instance, would be extending them beyond their fair import."

I. Of Nonpayment. and necessary Proceedings thereon.

A person who has been once discharged by laches from his liability, is always discharged; and therefore where two or more parties to a bill have been so discharged, but one of them not knowing of the laches, pays it, such payment is in his own wrong, and he cannot recover the money from another of such parties (h)(1).

(h) Roscoe v. Hardy, 12 East, 484; 2 Campb. 458, (Chit. j. 801); Turner v. Leach, 4 B. &

Al. 541, (Chit. j 1108); ante, 391, 426, 484. When payment without notice of dishonour no bar to action founded on contract of indemnity, Huntley v. Sanderson, 1 C. & M. 467; 3 Tyrw. 469; ante, 331, note (z), 348, note (e).

(1) There are many circumstances which in point of law amount to a waiver of notice. And the doctrines respecting waiver of notice equally apply to the non-acceptance, and non-payment of bills, and non-payment of notes, the cases on this subject which have been decided in the United States, will be here collected together. If the maker of a note abscond, and the indorser before it becomes due, informs the holder of the fact, and requests delay, and agrees to give a new note for the amount, it is a waiver of demand and notice of non-payment. Leffingwell v. White, 1 John. Cas. 99. So if the indorser, before the note becomes due, takes an assignment of all the property of the maker as security for his indorsements. Bond v. Farnham, 5 Mass. Rep. 170. But it will be otherwise if he take an assignment of property only to secure him against his indorsement of other specified notes | Ibid. See Prentiss v. Danielson, 5 Conn. Rep. 175. So, if the inderser of a note, to protect himself from eventual loss, take collateral security of the maker, on account of the particular note indorsed, it is a waiver of the legal right to require proof of demand on the maker and notice to himself. Mend v. Small, 2 Greenl. 207.

And a waiver of notice or an agreement to be bound by a notice different from that which the law requires, may be inferred from the conduct of the parties. Upon this ground it has been decided in Massachusetts, that if the parties do their business at a particular bank at which a note is made payable, they will be presumed to agree to be bound by the usage of that bank as to demand and notice, although such usage may be entirely at variance with the general rules of law; as for instance, if the usage of the bank be to make a demand on the maker before the note becomes due, or to give notice to the indorser before or after the time required by law; or by putting letters into a post-office, or by any other mode of conveyance varying from the rules of law. Jones v. Fales, 4 Mass. Rep. 245. Widgery v. Munroe, 6 Mass. Rep. 449. President, Directors & Co of the Lincoln and Kennebeck Bank v. Hammett, 9 Mass. Rep. 159. The same v. Page, 9 Mass. 155. These decisions do not seem to have been recognized in any other state; and may perhaps be thought to deserve further consideration. But the general principle running through these cases, seems to have been recognized by the Supreme Court of the United States, in the case of Mills r. Bank of the United States, 11 Wheat. 431, wherein it was held, that although by the general law, demand of payment of a bill or note, must be made on the third day of grace; but where a note is made for the purpose of being negotiated at a bank whose usage is to demand payment and give notice on the fourth day, such usage forms a part of the law of the contract: and it is not necessary that a personal knowledge of the usage should be brought home to the indorser. See Bank of Washington v. Triplett, I Peters, 25.

A promise to pay a dishonoured note or bill made with a full knowledge of all the circumstances, will also be deemed a waiver of a due demand and notice. Donaldson v. Means, 4 Dall. Rep. 109. Pierson v. Hooker, 3 John. Rep. 68. Duryee v. Dennison, 5 John. Rep. 248. Miller v. Hackley, 5 John Rep. 875. Copp v. M'Dugull, 9 Mass. Rep. 1. Hopkins v. Liswell, 12 Mass. Rep. 52. But the promise must be explicit and made out by the most clear and unequivocal evidence. Therefore where the indorser speaking of several bills on different places, and under different circumstances, said "he would take care of them;" or "he would see them paid;" it was held not sufficient evidence of a proprise to pay one of the bills on which no notice of non-acceptance had been given. Miller v. Hackley, 5 John. Rep. 375, and see Griffin v. Goff, 12 John. Rep. 423. And what a man says under the surprise of a sudden and unexpected demand ought to be construed with a good deal of strictness. May v. Coffin, 4 Mass. Rep. 341. Indeed it seems to have been held that under such circumstances a promise to pay a bill which had been protested for non-acceptance, and of which due notice had not been given to the indorsr, did not bind him, as it was wholly without consideration, and especially as he retracted his promise within a few days afterwards. May v. Coffin. And it has been repeatedly decided in-Massachusetts, that if an indorser under ignorance of the law, or through mistake of the law, promise to pay a dishonoured bill or note, he is not bound by such promise. Warder v. Tucker, 7 Mass. Rep. 449. Freeman v. Boynton, 7 Mass. Rep. 483. May v. Coffin. And it seems generally agreed that a promise to pay, or an actual payment under a mistake of the facts, is not binding. Donaldson v. Means. Garland v. The Salem Bank, 9 Mass. Rep. 468. Crain v. Colwell, 8 John. Kep. 384. Tower v. Durell, 9 Mass. Rep. 332. Fotheringham v. Price's Exr's. 1 Bay's Rep. 291. Griffin v. Goff, 12 John. Rep. 423. Trimble v. Thorne, 16 John. 152. But a waiver of a right to notice made by the indorser of a note, does not in general excuse

· 12:

4 .5 4

e 181

-- 14

...

- :4

ntr :

..: *****

11.5 100

. e 10

معزم یا ار

....

ا سود الع , ، ،

1300

, J.

, ...

. % . .

1000

3, 43 , . . . **. . . .

. 125 . . .

.

J-24

.. 10 3.5

. 10

,)ì.

y . P

Liv

, -- :5

-18

, ys

- 14

. i, 5

, 30

. 31

41.75

175

٠, ٧ ٠, ۶

ıø. , A. - 11 100 15. ...

With reference to the decisions upon the liability of an agent who has I. Of Nonneglected to give due notice of non-acceptance, it is clear that an agent, to payment, obtain payment or to forward notice, would be liable to a special action on sary Prothe case to recover compensation for any loss sustained by the neglect of his ceedings duty(i)(1).

In foreign countries, especially in France, when a bill has been duly protested for non-payment, the holder has a right to draw a bill of exchange case of upon the drawer or one of the indorsers, called retraite, and which is com- Neglect. posed, first of the principal sum, and interest from the day of the protest; 10thly, Of secondly, of the expense of the protest; thirdly, of other legal expences, Bill to resuch as bank commission or brokerage, and of journies, when requisite, to imburse obtain payment; fourthly, of the stamp and of the postage of letters, which the Princithe default of payment rendered necessary to write. These charges must pal, Internot exceed what of right ought to be demanded, and the speed of commer- Expenses, cial transactions renders it necessary that the authentic vouchers of such called in charges should accompany the bill. The evidence in support of the charges France is established by an account called "compte de retour," which ought to be annexed to the retraite bill of exchange as well as the protest, or a copy This account ought to name the person on whom the retraite bill is drawn, in order to shew that it relates to such retraite bill, and to avoid the frauds might result from the omission. The account *ought also to announce the [*508] rate of exchange at which the retraite bill is negotiable, and which the law terms rechange(k).

9thly, Lia-

(i) Ante, 273, 331, 332; Van Wart v. Wool- of re-exchange, see 1 Pardess. 461, &c. There ley, 3 Bar. & Cres. 489; 5 Dow. & Ry. 347; 1 R. & M. 4, (Chit. j. 1235).

is no accumulation of re-exchange between indorsers. 1 Pardess. 468.

(k) 1 Pardess 460 to 465. As to amount the holder from demanding payment of the maker at the maturity of the note, for it may be done in the confidence that the maker will punctually pay it. Berkshire Bank v. Jones, 6 Mass. Rep. 524. And a qualified or conditional promise of the indorser to pay, which is rejected by the holder, is not a waiver of notice. Agan r. M'Manus, 11 John. Rep. 180. Crain v. Colwell, 8 John. Rep. 180.

It seems that if an indorsec of a note cannot recover upon it against the maker, by reason of usury between the maker and his indorser, of which usury the indorsee was ignorant at the time of the purchase, he may recover against such indorser, without having given him due notice of the dishonor of the note. Copp v. M'Dugall, 9 Mass. Rep. 1.

If the drawer of a promissory note be known by the indorser to have been insolvent when the note was made, and when it became due, the indorser is, nevertheless, entitled to due notice of non-payment by the drawer. But if the indorser has accepted from the drawer, a general assignment of his estate and effects, notice is not necessary. Barton v. Baker, 1 Serg. & Rawle, 334.

When the drawer of a note is known to be a bankrupt or insolvent, demand and notice are not necessary. Clark v. Minton, 2 Const. Rep. 682. But it must be an utter and declared insolvency of record and known as such to the indorser. Kiddell v. Ford, Ibid. 678.

In an action against the indorser of a note, proof of a waiver of notice will support an allegation of actual notice. Thus, where the indorser of a note applied to a bank to get it discounted, and promised to attend to the renewal of it, and to take care of it; and directed that a notice to the maker should be sent to his care, and such notice was sent accordingly; it was held, that this was a waiver of a regular demand and notice;—or at least, the jury, from these circuinstances, might legally infer a waiver. Taunton Bank v. Richardson, 5 Pick. 436. See Barker v. Parker, 6 Pick. 80.

(1) { But a notary is not liable for omitting to give due notice so long as the holder may resort to other grounds for fixing the indorser in default of the notice and does not avail himself of such grounds. Franklin v. Smith, 21 Wend. 624. }

Digitized by Google

II. OF PAYMENT SUPRA PROTEST.

WE have already considered the nature of the protest for better security, II. Of Payment Suand of an acceptance supra protest, and of the proceedings of the holder, and pra Proultimate payment by such acceptor (l). The nature of a payment supra proiest. test remains to be considered.

Who may pay Supra Protest (l).

Payment of a bill, whether foreign or inland (m), being refused, any third person, not before a party to the bill, as he might have accepted, so he may after protest pay it for the honour of the drawer, or any of the indorsers(n); which payment, as it is always made after protest, is called payment supra protest(o); but the acceptor, if he have previously made a simple acceptance, cannot pay in honour of an indorser, because, as acceptor, he is already bound in that capacity (p); he may, however, when he has accepted a bill without having effects of the drawer in his hands, and no provision has been made by the drawer for payment, suffer the bill to be protested, and then pay supra protest(q), in which case he will have a remedy on the bill against the drawer(r); but that seems unnecessary, excepting as a precaution with regard to evidence, for without it he might, in an action for money paid, though not on the bill, recover all money paid without consideration. A party paying a bill supra protest, which has already been accepted by another, may sue such first acceptor(s); but if a person take up a bill for the bonour of the drawer, he has no right of action against the acceptor, if he accepted it for the accommodation of the drawer(t). A bill previously accepted supra protest must be duly presented for payment to the original drawee, and duly protested for non-payment by him, before the acceptor supra protest can be We have seen, however, that in the case of a bill made payable at a place other than the residence of the drawee, a second presentment to the drawee is dispensed with; and we have also seen, that since the 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 58, the presentment to the acceptor supra protest need not be made until the day after the bill falls due(x). If several persons separately offer to pay supra protest, the holder ought to receive payment from him whose offer is most favourable, or for the honour of most parties (y).

Necessary

In general, no person should pay on honour of a bill, or of a particular precaution party to it, before the bill has been duly protested for non-payment by the drawee(z); and if he do, it will be presumed that his payment is on the behalf of the drawee(a), and he will have no claim upon the drawer or indors-[*509] ers(b). Nor should a party pay after protest, *without ascertaining that the signatures of those for whose honour he pays are genuine, for if he do, and they should turn out to have been forged, he will have no remedy against them; nor can he recover back the amount from the party paid, unless he

> (1) Ante, 349 to 352; 1 Pardess. 430, 464, 465.

(n) Fairly v. Roch, Lutw. 891, 892, (Chit. j. 172); Marius, 128; Bayl. 5th edit. 325. (o) Beawes, 2d edit. pl. 50; Mar. 128. See the custom stated, Lutw. 899.

(p) Beawes, pl. 51.

(q) Id. pl. 52. (τ) Id. ibid.; and Raper v. Birkbeck, 15 East, 17, (Chit. j. 851).

- (s) Ex parte Wackerbath, 5 Ves. 574, (Ch. j 627)
- (t) Ex parte Lambert, 13 Ves. 179, (Chit. j. 732).
 - (u) See anie, 347 to 352.

(x) Ante, 349, 351. (y) 1 Pardess. 430.

- (z) Vandewall v. Tyrrell, Mood. & M. 87, (Chit. j. 1352); Forbes on Bills, 149; ante, 346, note (r).
 - (a) 1 Pardess. 430.
 - (b) Same cases as in notes (z) and (a).

⁽m) Ante, 344; Smith v. Nissen, 1 T. R. (Chit. j. 435). A promissory note is sometimes, but very rarely, paid supra protest.

P127 1

... :::

1.1

. .

11

731

· '}

1 2

,J. 2

. . .

C

1 .57

discovers his mistake, and gives notice to him on the very day of payment, II. Of so as to enable him to give the promptest notice of dishonour, and prevent Payment the discharge of prior parties from want of such notice(c). It is said, that test a person who has paid supra protest, may, in France, summon the holder Necessary whom he has paid, and compel him to communicate the names and residences precaution. of all the indorsers, and at all events of his immediate indorser, and each of them in his turn is also bound to communicate all particulars to his immediate inderser(d). After having thus caused the bill to be protested for nonpayment by the original drawes, and ascertaining that the signatures of the drawer and indorser are genuine, even then a party should not pay supra protest before he has declared to a notary public for whose honour he intends making it, and obtained the notary's certificate (usually termed an act of honour) to that effect; of which declaration the notary must give an account to the parties concerned, either in the protest itself, or in a separate instrument(e)(1). If, however, the acceptor supra protest for the honour of the drawer or indorser, had received his approbation of the previous acceptance, he may then pay the bill without any protest for non-payment (f).

Although, with respect to other debts, a stranger who has no interest in Remedy of them, does not, by paying them, entitle himself to the rights of a creditor, Party payunless he have the consent of the debtor to such payment(g), yet, with re-ing Supra gard to a bill of exchange, a stranger who pays it supra protest for the honour of the bill or generally, becomes an indorsee, and acquires all the same rights, and is entitled to all the same remedies as the holder had, whom he paid, although no formal indorsement or transfer of the bill be made to him(h)(2); and such payment supra protest does not, like a simple payment by the original drawee, operate as a satisfaction of the bill, but itself transfers the holder's rights to the party paying(i); unless the party paying, by his own act, limits and narrows his right. Therefore a party so paying supra protest generally, has a right to sue not only the original acceptor, but

(c) Wilkinson v. Johnston, 3 B. & C. 428; 5 Dowl. & Ry. 403, (Chit. j. 1231); Cocks v. Masterman, 9 B. & C. 902; 4 Man. & Ry. 676; Dans. & Ll. 329, (Chit. j. 1446); Bayl. 5th edit. 320; ante, 426, 427.

(d) 1 Pardess. 474, 475.

(e) Beawes, pl. 53; Mar. 128; Forbes on Bills, 149. As to the necessity of an act of honour upon an acceptance or payment supra protest, see Brooke's Office of Notary, pages 86 to 89, 101; and see forms, ib. 228 to 233. (f) Beawes, pl. 48.

(g) Exall v. Partridge, 8 T. R. 810; 1 Rol. Ab. 11; Lampleigh v. Buthwait, Hob. 105; Stokes v. Lewis, 1 T. R. 20; Williams v. Millington, 1 Hen. Bla. 83; Jenkins v. Tucker, id.

(h) Poth. pl. 171; 1 Pardess. 437, 438; Mertens v. Winnington, 1 Esp. R. 112.

Mertens v. Winnington, 1 Esp. R. 112, (Chit. j. 523). Assumpsit against defendant as drawer of a bill. The bill in question was drawn by the defendant on Carrioni, in Italy, in favour of Webhould. Webbould indorsed it to Burton, Forbes, and Gregory, they sent it to their correspondent in Holland, who sent it to Italy, where it was presented to Carrioni for payment, who refused it, upon which the plaintiffs, who were merchants resident at Venice, paid the bill for the honour of Burton, Forbes, and Gregory, and now brought their action against the defendant as drawer. The counsel for the defendant contended, that where a bill is taken up for honour of any of the parties whose names are on it, that such person only shall be liable. But Lord Kenyon was of opinion, that where a bill is so taken up, that the party who does so is to be considered as an indorsee, paying full value for the bill, and as such entitled to all the remedies to which an indorsee would be entitled, that is, to sue all the parties to the bill, and he therefore directed the jury to find a verdict for the plaintiff. (i) 1 Pardess. 438.

(1) { The payer of a bill supra protest, for the honor of the indorser, must give reasonable notice to the party that he has made such payment for his credit; otherwise he is not liable to refund. Woon v. Pugh et al., 7 Ham. pt. 2d, 164. }

(2) { Where a party to a bill is once exonerated, his liability cannot be revived without his assent; even payment by his friend, for his honor, subjects him to no legal liability. Higgins v. Morrison's Ex'r, 4 Dana, 102. }

IJ. Of Payment Supra Pro-

Remedy of

also all the indorsers and the drawer, either specially upon the custom (k), or perhaps *generally upon a count for money paid for the defendant's use(1), though it is considered safer to declare specially (m). In an action upon a bill with several indorsements by a plaintiff, who has paid the bill under pro-Remedy of test for the honour of one of one indorsers, it is sufficient, even on a ing Supra special demurrer, to state that he paid the bill according to the usage and custom of merchants, without stating that he had paid it to the last indorsee (n). [*510] If a party pay for the honour of a particular indorser, he may then sue all prior indorsers, and the drawer(o), and acceptor, but not subsequent indorsers, he having by such special payment excluded and discharged them, and narrowed and limited his right. In general, a party paying for the honour of the drawer, may sue the acceptor(p); but a person taking up a bill for the honour of the drawer in particular, and not generally for the honour of the bill, has no right against the acceptor without effects (q). a person who has paid supra protest, may compel any prior indorser who has received a guarantee or security to render them available, but he has no claim on any subsequent indorser (r). The reason of this exception to the general rule, precluding a party from constituting himself the creditor of another, without his concurrence, it has been observed, is, that it induces the friends of the drawer or indorsers to render them this service; it tends to prevent the great expense attending the return of a bill, and preserves the credit of the trader(s).

> (k) Fairley v. Roch, Lutw. 891, (Chit. j. 172); and Manning's Index, 70.

> (1) Semble, Smith v. Nissen, 1 T. R. 269, (Chit. j. 435); Vandewall v. Tyrrell, Mood. & M. 37, (Chit. j. 1352); ante, 346, note (r).

(m) In Reid and others v. Smart, Monday, 18th April, 1828, at Gaildhall, before Lord Tenterden, the leading counsel inclined to think, that a plaintiff who has paid bills supra protest for the honour of the payees, who were first indorsers, could not recover on a count for money paid against the drawer, and thereupon special counts were added on the morning of trial, by leave of Lord Tenterden. Plaintiffs were nonsuited for want of a stamp on a letter.

N. B.—There were several special indorsements, and the first by Kennedy and Maitland was special; but Lord Tenterden held, that it was unnecessary for plaintiffs to prove any indorsement excepting that of the first indorsers, who gave it due circulation, and that it was not incumbent on a holder supra protest to prove more than the indorsement, and the protest and payment supra protest, and due notice of dis-honour. A. Gordon, attorney for plaintiffs.

(11) Cox v. Earle, 3 Bar. & Ald. 430, (Chit.

j. 1078).

(o) Mertens v. Winnington, 1 Esp. R. 112, (Chit. j. 523); ante, 509, note (h).

(p) Ex parte Wackerbath, 5 Ves. 574, (Chit. j. 627); see observations on that case in Ex parte Lambert, 13 Ves. 179.

(q) Ex parte Lambert, 13 Ves. 179, (Chit.

j. 782); Bayl. 5th edit. 329, 438.

(r) 1 Pardess. 438.

(s) Beawes, pl. 54; Poth. pl. 171.

hit;

": M. · 301 7. 2012 21 I rars _l

.. 121 77.42

1. 19

(2) 3 11.7 .. Fant 1 190° FE €.2518 . O to 3 - : : :

1. 125

: ::133 17× 🖫

254 EF

: 4.16

:: 178 5 द : जन

70 M ... 13

....

(¥

p 8 12

5°4 1%

لأزبن

:0 (X

*CHAPTER XI.

OF CHECKS ON BANKERS.

Definition of, and Parties to Form of When exempt from Stamp Transfer of May be taken in Execution	 511 Time of Transfer ib. Presentment for Payment, Time of ib. Payment of ib. Liability of Banker for not Paying 513 Rules as to Bills and Notes, appli 	514 g ib.
--	--	--------------

A CHECK or draft on a banker, is a written order or request, addressed to Definition persons carrying on the business of bankers, and drawn upon them by a par- and Parties ty having money in their hands, requesting them to pay, on presentment, to to. a person therein named, or to bearer, a named sum of money.

The form of a check has already been given (a). It nearly resembles a Form. bill of exchange, but it is uniformly payable to bearer, and should be drawn upon a banker, or person acting as such(b).

On account of the daily and immediate use of checks, the 55 Geo. 3, c. When ex-194, has exempted them from stamp duties, provided they be for the pay- empt from ment of money to the bearer on demand, and drawn upon a banker, or a per- Stamp. son acting as such, and residing or transacting the business of a banker, within fifteen miles of the place where such draft or order shall be issued(c), and provided also that such place be specified in such draft or order (d), and that the same shall bear date on or before the day the same shall be issued, and do not direct the payment to be made by bills or promissory notes (e).

We have before considered the decisions upon this enactment (f). these requisites be not strictly observed, an unstamped check cannot in general be read in evidence for any purpose(g), except to prove a crime or These instruments are expressly excepted out of the provisions of the 7 Geo. 4, c. 6, s. 9, and 9 Geo. 4, c. 65, s. 4, and which authorize checks on bankers for sums under 5l.(i).

Where several persons, not partners in trade, as for instance, assignees of a bankrupt, deposit money in the bank, or at an ordinary bankers, all must, at law, sign checks for drawing out the amount; but if one abscond, a court of equity will compel payment to the others (k).

It was once thought that a check drawn on a banker was not *transferable Transfer of. generally, but only so within the bills of mortality (1). But it is now settled, [*512]

(a) Ante, 147. what purposes an unstamped instrument is admissible in evidence, see Stark. on Evid. part (b) Anie, 106, 118. (c) 9 Geo. 4, c. 49, s. 15; anle, 106, n. (u). iv. 1381 to 1393; Coppock v. Bower, 4 M. & (d) Anie, 106, note (x). (e) 55 Geo. 3, c. 184; anie, 106, 107, 118. W. 861; ante, 128, 124. See post, 821, (47). (i) Ante, 150, 151, 160. (k) Ex perte Hunter, 2 Rose, 868, (Chit. j. (f) Ante, 118. (g) Borradaile v. Middleton, 2 Campb. 58, 1246). (Chit. j. 765); ante, 122, 128. (1) Grant v. Vaughan, 8 Berr. 1517, (Chit. (h) Rex v. Pooley, S B. & P. 316. As to j. 365).

CI

ak

of

E

Transfer of.

Of Checke that they are as transferable as bills of exchange, though, strictly speaking, they are not due before payment is demanded, in which respect they differ from bills of exchange and promissory notes, payable on a particular day(m); and therefore the mere circumstance of a person receiving a check, a few days after its date, does not necessarily, as in the case of an over-due bill, subject him to the objections which would have affected it in the hands of the person from whom he received it(n). A banker's check is not considered as money, although it affords the means of receiving money immediately(0), but it is a mere chose in action, not in possession, and not recoverable but by In practice, however, they are taken in payment as cash, and the acceptance by a creditor of a check in his favour, drawn by his debtor, operates as payment, unless dishonoured (q); and it has been decided that a banker in London, receiving bills from his correspondent in the country, to whom they had been indorsed to present for payment, is not guilty of negligence in giving up such bills to the acceptor upon receiving a check on a banker for the amount, although it turn out that such check is dishonour-But a check to operate as a payment must be unconditional in its terms; and, therefore, if a debtor transmit to his creditor a check drawn for a less amount than the debt, and expressed to be for the balance of account, the creditor is not bound to receive it as payment, and may commence an action for the debt, notwithstanding the check is still in his hands unpresented; for the presentment of such a check would at least furnish some evidence that the creditor had received it as payment of the balance of account(s). And even if the check were unconditional, the creditor would have a right to exercise his discretion, whether or not he would receive it as payment, by presenting it(t). We have before considered under what circumstances the production of a check will be evidence of payment to the party named there-In an annuity transaction, a check must be described as such, and not as cash(x); and, in an action for usury, it was held, that the forbearance should be laid from the time when the check was actually received, and not from the time when it was given(y). It is said that checks are not protest-

(m) Per Lord Kenyon, in Boehm v. Stirling, 7 T. R. 430; 2 Esp. 575, (Chit. j. 593).
(n) Rothschild v. Corney, 9 B. & C. 388; 4 M. & Ry. 411; Dans. & Lloyd Rep. 325, (Chit. j. 1430); ante, 221, 222.

(o) See Down v. Hulling, 4 B. & C. 330, 333; 6 D. & R. 455, S. C.

(p) Per curiam, in Moore v. Bartrup, 2 D.

& Ry. 29; 1 Barn. & Cres. 5, (Chit. j. 1153).

(q) Pearce v. Davis, 1 Mood. & R. 365.

The mere fact of a person's drawing such a check in favour of another is not evidence of a

Boswell v. Smith, 6 Car. & P. 60. A. had a claim on B., C., and D. Several months afterwards B. signed a check for a larger sum, in the name of himself and C. and D., as his partners, which was proved to have passed through the hands of A., and to have been appropriated by him to his own purposes. A. died:-Held, in an action by his executors against the three partners for the original claim, that the check, prima facic, was evidence of payment; but there being other circumstances from which a loan of its amount might be inferred, it was left to the jury to say whether it was a loan by B. alone, or by the partnership, although no memorandum or acknowledgment of any kind was produced, by which the executors could ascertain whether it was a loan.

(r) Russell v. Hankey, 7 T. R. 12, (Chit. j. 530); ante, 369, note (x). Sed quære, id. ibid.

(s) Hough v. May, 4 Ad. & El. 954; 6 Nev. & Man. 525; 2 Har. & Wol. 33, S. C. In this case the plaintiff had offered to return the check, but not until after a writ had been issu-

(t) Id. ibid.

(u) Ante, 400.

(x) Poole v. Cabanes, 8 T. R. 328; Duff v. Atkinson, 8 Ves. 577, 580.

(y Borradaile v. Middleton, 2 Campb. 53, (Chit. j. 765).

⁽¹⁾ If a person receives a check drawn by another, and passes it in payment, he stands in the situation of an indorser of a bill; and unless he knew that the drawer had not money in bank, is not liable, except on due notice and diligence. Humphries v. Bicknell, 2 Litt. 299.

11:

. --

.

: 18

i. It

A 2

able(z); and this doctrine seems to be correct, because checks are payable of Checks on *presentment, and the statute 9 & 10 Will. 3, c. 17, applies only to bills on Bankof exchange payable after the date. Since the 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, s. 12, ers. checks are liable to be taken in execution. The criminal law relating to these instruments will hereafter be considered (z).

In the ordinary course of business, a check cannot be circulated, negoti- Time of ated, or transferred, so as to affect the drawer, who has funds in the hands Transfer. of the bankers, after banking hours of the day after he first issued it(a). But where the drawers of a banker's check themselves issued it nine months after it bore date, upon a consideration which afterwards failed, as between them and the persons to whom they delivered it, it was held that they could not be permitted to object to this circumstance in an action brought by a subsequent holder for a valuable consideration, and without notice; though by the general rule, any person receiving a negotiable instrument after it is due, is deemed to have taken it upon the credit of the person from whom he received it, and subject to the same equities as existed between him and the parties sued on such instrument(b)(1).

With respect to the time when a check should be presented for payment, Presentthe general rule seems to be, that it suffices to present it at any time during ment for Payment, banking hours of the day after it was issued, as against the drawer, or as Time of against the party delivering it on the day after it was received from him(c); and where it has been received at a place distant from that where it was payable, then it should be forwarded for presentment on the day after it was received(d).

According to the custom in the City of London, a person receiving a check with his banker's name written across it, pays it in at the banker's, and the banker, if he receives it in time, presents it at the clearing house, and obtains payment the same day: where, however, a debtor paid his creditor by a crossed check, and the latter on the same day transmitted it to his banker's, and the banker negligently (as it was alleged) omitted to present it at the clearing house in time for that day (when it would have been paid), and on the next it was dishonoured, the firm on which it was drawn having stopped payment; it was held that the supposed negligence of the banker, though it might render him liable to his customer, did not discharge the drawer, the holder of the check being entitled, by the general law, to present it the day after he receives it; and no custom of the city being proved as between debtor and creditor, that a crossed check, if received by the latter and sent by him to his banker in sufficient time, must be cleared the same day(e).

(z) Post, Part III.

(a) Ante, 222, 223, 385 to 388.

(e) Boddington v. Schlencker, 4 Barn. & cause was tried before Lord Tenterden, C. J., who left it to the jury whether or not the check was paid into the plaintiff's bankers in time to be presented at the clearing house on the same day. The jury found a verdict for the defendant. On motion for a new trial, Parke, J. said, "there is no doubt that the receiver of a check has till the close of the banking hours on the following day to present it. It is said, however, that there is a particular custom, qualify-⁽z) Grant v. Vaughan, 3 Burr. 1519, (Chit. Adol. 752; 1 Nev. & Man. 540, S. C. The j. 365).

⁽b) Boehm v. Stirling, 7 T. R. 423; 2 Esp. 575, (Chit. j. 593); ante, 222, 387, in notes. (c) Ante, 385 to 387.

⁽d) Ante, 386. When too late; Moule v. Browne, 4 Bing. N. C. 266; 5 Scott, 694, S. C.; ante, 386, 387, note (f).

^{(1) {} A check upon a bank is transferable like a bill of exchange; and the mere circumstance of its being dated on a day after that on which it is taken by the holder is not sufficient in an action against him by the holder, to let the drawer into a defence of want of consideration between him and the payee. Nor is it sufficient to let the drawer into such defence, that the check was taken by the plaintiff in payment of an antacedent debt. Walker v. Geisse, 4 Whart. 252. } of Checks We have seen, that by the practice of London *bankers, if one banker who holds a check drawn upon another banker presents it after four o'clock, though it is not then paid, a mark is put upon it to shew that the drawer has effects, and that it will be paid; and this marking binds the banker to pay on the following day at the clearing house (f).

Payment

Formerly, if the banker on whom the check was drawn had reason to suspect, but had not actual notice, that the drawer had committed an act of bankruptcy, he could not safely pay the draft, because the payment of a check on a banker was not protected by the statute 19 Geo. 2, c. 32, s. 1, which mentioned only bills of exchange and debts for goods sold(g); but such a payment would now be protected by the 82d sect. of the Bankrupt Act, 6 Geo. 4, c. 16(h), and the recent statute 2 & 3 Vict. c. 29. The banker must not pay after notice of a loss(i), nor prematurely (j); and he must take care that the sum in the body of the check was inserted by the authority of the drawer, and not since substituted for a smaller sum, for otherwise he may have to bear the loss of the difference (k), unless his customer enabled the party to practice the fraud by the manner in which he drew the check (l).

Liability of not Paying.

A banker is bound by law to pay a check drawn by a customer with-Banker for in a reasonable time after he, the banker, has received sufficient funds belonging to the customer; and the latter may maintain an action of tort against the banker for refusing payment of a check under such circumstances, although he has not thereby sustained any actual damage(m). But where the [*515] plaintiff, receiving a check drawn upon the *defendants, who were his own bank> ing this rule. The question on that point was not distinctly submitted to the jury, inasmuch as the difference between the usage as affecting the relation of creditors and debtors, and that of customer and banker, was not pointed out; if it had been, I should say that the jury had come to a wrong conclusion on the evidence. The custom contended for, if it could be supposed set out on the record, would appear a very complicated one. It would be a custom as between debtor and creditor, that if the creditor received a crossed check from his debtor, he is not bound to present it till the following day; but that if he hands it to his own banker on the same day, within a reasonable time before four o'clock, for the banker to send it to the clearing-house, and the banker neglects to do so, the creditor is answerable for that neglect as between himself and the debtor, and the debtor is discharged; or that the banker becomes a holder in this special situation, that if he does not present the check at the clearinghouse before four, the debtor is discharged, and the banker must take the consequences of the non-payment. No such custom was established, and it seems to me that the whole of the evidence comes to this point: that if the holder of a crossed check delivers it to his banker on the day he receives it, within a convenient time before the clearing hours, the banker is liable as between him and his customer for neglecting the usual practice; as he would for disobedience of a special direction to present it for payment on that day; but the respective situations of the debtor and creditor are not altered. It comes to the case I put during the argument, that if the helder of a bill places it in his banker's hands on the day on which it is payable, with directions to present it at ten o'clock, and be does not present it till five, in consequence of which it is not paid, that does not discharge the drawer. It has been decided that the bolder of a check may present it at any time he pleases during banking hours on the day after he regeneral rule as between creditor and debtor." Rule absolute. And semble, per Littledale, J., that seven minutes is not a reasonable time for a banker to enter a check and send it to the clearing-house. The defendant paid the amount of the check, and the cause was not tried again.

(f) Ante, 292; Robson v. Bennett, 2 Taunt. 388. (g) Holroyd r. Whitehead, 1 Marsh. 128; 5

Taunt. 444, (Chit. j. 905); but see ante, 396. (h) Ante, 396.

(i) Ante, 897, 425, 429.

(j) Id. ibid. (k) Hall v. Puller, 5 Barn. & Cres. 750; 8 Dowl. & Ryl. 464, (Chit. j. 1294); ante, 427, note (x). (1) Young v. Grote, 4 Bing. 253; 12 Moore, 484, (Chit. j. 1844); ante, 428, note (y).

(m) Marzetti v. Williams, 1 Barn. & Adol. 416; 1 Tyr. 77, n., (Chit. j. 1625). Per Lord Tenterden, C. J.: "I think that the plaintiff is entitled to have a verdict for nominal damages, although he did not prove any actual damage at the trial. I cannot think there can be any difference as to the consequences resulting from a breach of contract by reason of that contract being either express or implied. The only difference between an express and an implied contract is in the mode of substantiatPill

17.12

1. 4

1. 4

. 6

10.13

1701

1.32

.

3 7

1:25

31,10

1 A X F

311

.

للين بر ر.

ار.

4.47

. . . .

الزخر

المعجر

14.19

.,:∵e$

1,713

- 1

3 15,1

., 10

·ų. !

16.45.

10

1 150

طاج ، ् 1 152

علن جازم

ces !*

see s 3

13 1

Fe

ers, took the check to the banking house, where he first gave some directions Of Check to a clerk upon another subject, and then, while the clerk was minuting such on Bankdirections, laid the check on the counter, and said, "Place this to my account," or "credit," and nothing more was said on either side, and the Liability of plaintiff left the check, which was not cancelled, or placed to the plaintiff's Banker for not Paying. credit, or debited to the drawer, who had already overdrawn his account, and the bankers, after making some inquiries after the drawer, which led to no result, gave the plaintiff notice on the following day, that the check would not be paid; it was held, that in the absence of any express direction or demand by the plaintiff at the time of presenting the check, the bankers were entitled to consider it presented to them, not as the agents of the drawer for the purpose of present payment, but as the plaintiff's agents, to place the check to his credit, like any other negotiable security, and obtain payment with reasonable diligence; and, consequently, that no implied promise to pay arose from the check being received without observation, and no further communication made to the plaintiff till the following day (n). Nor is a banker bound to pay a check or bill made payable there, unless presented within the usual hours of business. Where, therefore, a customer of the Bank of England was in the habit of making his acceptances payable at the Bank, and one of such acceptances being presented for payment at eleven o'clock in the morning, was dishonoured for want of effects, and was presented again by a notary at six in the evening, when the same answer was given by a person stationed for that purpose; it was held, that the bank, although they had before six o'clock received sufficient funds, were not bound to pay the bill, it being after the usual hours of business (o)(1).

Rules as to Bills and Notes applicable to.

Most of the rules respecting bills of exchange and promissory notes, espe-

ing it. An express contract is proved by an actual agreement; an implied contract by circumstances, and the general course of dealing between the parties; but whenever a contract is once proved, the consequences resulting from the breach of it must be the same, whether it be proved by direct or circumstantial evidence. The Attorney-General was compelled to admit in this case, that if the action were founded on an express contract, the plaintiff would have been entitled to recover nominal damages, though no actual damage were proved. Now this action is, in fact, founded on a contract, for the banker does contract with his customer that he will pay checks drawn by him, provided he, the banker, has money in his hands belonging to that customer. Here that contract was brokon, for the defendants would not pay the check of the plaintiff, although they had in their hands money belonging to him, and had had a reasonable time to know that such was the fact. In this case the plaintiff might, for the breach of that contract, have declared in assumpsit. So in Burnett v. Lynch, 5 Barn. & Cres. 589, the plaintiff might have declared as for breach of a contract. It is immaterial in such a case whether the action in form be in tort or in assumpsit. It is substantially founded on a contract; and the plaintiff, though he may not have sustained a damage in fact, is entitled to recover nominal damages. At the same time I cannot forbear to observe that it is a discredit to a person and therefore injurious in fact, to have a draft refused payment for so small a sum (871. 7s. 6d.), for it shows that the banker had very little confidence in the customer. It is an act particularly calculated to be injurious to a person in trade. My judgment in this case, however, proceeds on the ground that the action is founded on a contract between the plaintiff and the bankers, that the latter, whenever they should have money in their hands belonging to the plaintiff, or within a reasonable time after they should have received such money, would pay his checks; and there having been a breach of such contract, the plaintiff is entitled to recover nominal damages." Parke, Taunton, and Patteson, Js. concurred. Rule discharged.

Crom., Mee. & Rosc. 744; 1 Gale, 54; 6 Car. & P. 700, S. C. But semble, that it was the duty of the bank to have informed the notary that they had received assets, and that the bill would be paid the following day.

⁽n) Boyd v. Emmerson, 2 Adol. & Ellis, 184; 4 Nev. & Man. 99, S. C.
(o) Whitaker v. The Bank of England, 1

⁽¹⁾ Where the cashier of a bank refuses to pay a check for the want of funds of the drawer, but at the same time advances the money to the bearer, it will be presumed the cashier p. id his own money as a loan, which will authorize him to recover, in a personal action in his own name, against the borrower. Menard v. Cox, 7 Louis. Rep. 167.

Of Checks cially when payable on demand, affect checks on bankers, and therefore it on Bankmay suffice to refer to the preceding parts of the work(1).

Rules as to Bills and Notes applicable to.

 The obligation on the drawee to pay a check and a bill of exchange are the same. Both contain a request from the drawer to the drawee to pay a sum of money to a third person in whose favor the check or bill is drawn. City Bank of New Orleans v. Girard Bank, 10 Curry's Louis. Rep. 562.

An action does not lie on a bank check against the drawer until after notice of presentment and non-payment, but a doubt exists as to the degree of diligence necessary in making such presentment and giving notice. Harker v. Anderson, 21 Wend. 372. See the same case for a full exposition by Mr. Justice Cowen, of the law in relation to bank checks and the differences between them and bills of exchange.

Checks are governed in several particulars by the same rules that prevail in relation to inland bills of exchange, payable either on demand or at a given number of days after sight. Smith v. Janes, 20 Wend. 192.

Due diligence in presentment and notice is required to charge the indorser, but no greater diligence than for bills of exchange. Ib.

In an action by a second indorser against the payee, laches on the part of the first indorsee will not be presumed; nor on the part of a subsequent holder, where the check has been put in circulation by the second inflorsee and remained in circulation only four or five days before presentment; the burden lies on the defendant.

When the parties reside at the same place, the check should be presented on the day it is received, or the following day; and when payable at a different place from that in which it is negotiated, it should be forwarded by mail on the same or the next succeeding day for pre-entments And where by the course of the mail the check may be presented in three days, and the holder instead of putting it in circulation, holds it in possession seven or eight days, he is chargeable with want of diligence. Ib.

How long a bill or check, payable on demand or at a given number of days after sight, may be kept in circulation before presentment, without discharging an indorser is an unsettled question.

The holder of an indorsed check, is entitled to recover against the indorser, on a promise to ly, made after maturity, without direct proof of demand and notice: and the admission of the indorser, that he knows that the check has been dishonoured, that he has received part of the money for which it was given, and his promise to take up and pay the check, are presumptive evidence of demand and notice proper for a jury. Tebbetts v. Dowd, 23 Wend. 379.

The payee of a check is not responsible to a bank for the amount of it paid to him, without fraud on his part, although the bank paid it by mistake, supposing it had funds of the drawer on hand, when in fact it had not. Hull v. Bank of the State, Dudley's Rep. So. Car. 259.

hit.

1:5

. - + 26

. 1 155

5.

*CHAPTER XII.

OF PROMISSORY NOTES—BANKERS' NOTES, AND BANK OF ENGLAND NOTES.

I. OF PROMISSORY NOTES	516	III. OF BANK NOTES	523
Definition and form of	ib.	Origin and Nature of	ib.
Origin of .	ib.	Tender of	524
Negotiability of	517	May be taken in Execution	ib.
Provisions of 3 & 4 Anne, c. 9	ib.		525
Construction of Act	520	IV. FORM AND QUALITIES OF	Pro-
Not affected by 1 & 2 Geo. 4, c. 78	521	MISSORY NOTES, &c.	ib.
II. OF BANKERS NOTES	ib.	I. O. U.	526
Origin and Utility of	ib.	Joint and several Notes	529
Bank restriction Acts	522	Stamps on	531

THE law respecting bills of exchange having been pointed out in the preceding chapters, it remains, in the present, to make a few observations relative to promissory notes, bankers' notes, and Bank of England notes.

I. OF PROMISSORY NOTES.

I. Of Promissory Notes.

A promissory note is defined to be a promise or engagement in writing to Definition pay a specified sum at a time therein limited, or on demand, or at sight, to and a person therein named, or his order, or to the bearer(a). The person who makes the note is called the maker, and the person to whom it is payable the payee, and the person to whom he transfers the interest by indorsement, the indorsee.

The usual form of the instrument is thus:—

Form of.

£50 London, 1st January, 1840. Two months after date (or "on demand,") I promise to pay to Mr. A. B., or order, (Stamp.) fifty pounds, for value received.

[Sometimes are here subscribed, "Payable at Messrs. G. H. and Co. bankers, London." Those words are immaterial when so subscribed at the foot, ante, 154, n. (i), but if inserted in the body of the note they form part of the contract(b).

Observing on the origin and nature of promissory notes, it has been re- Origin of. marked(c), that as commerce advanced in its progress, the multiplicity of its concerns required, in many instances, a less complicated mode of payment and of obtaining credit, than through the medium of bills of exchange, to which there are, in general, three parties. A trader, whose situation and circumstances rendered credit from the merchant or manufacturer who supplied him with goods absolutely necessary, might have so limited a connection with the commercial world at large, that he could not easily furnish his

⁽a) 2 Bla. Com. 467; Bayl. 5th edit. 1 Kyd. (b) Ante, 153, 154, 365. 18; Selw. N. P. 9th edit. 379. (c) Kyd, 18.

I. Of Pro- creditor with a bill of exchange on a *third person, but his own responsibility might be so good, that his engagement to pay, reduced into writing, might be accepted with the same confidence as a bill on another. However, in Origin of. practice, promissory notes are seldom given in ordinary commercial transactions, but are confined to acknowledgments and securities for and modes of paying private debts, out of the usual course of trade, where the vendor usually draws a bill of exchange upon the purchaser, payable at the expiration of the stipulated credit. The validity of these instruments, though favoured by many judges, met with a strenuous opponent in Lord Holt, who, as it has been observed(d), most pertinaciously adhered to his opinion, that no action could be maintained on a promissory note as an instrument, but that it was only to be considered as evidence of a debt. He was of opinion, that actions upon notes, as such, were innovations upon the rules of the common law, and that the declarations upon them amounted to the setting up a new sort of specialty unknown in Westminster Hall(e). The learned judge appears to have retained this opinion in a case (f) where judgment for the plaintiff, in an action on a promissory note, was reversed, on the ground that the custom alleged in the declaration was void, since it tended to bind a man to pay money with-Negotiabil- out any consideration. And certainly, before the statute of Anne, a proity of, &c. missory note was not transferrable by indorsement(g). As observed by Lord Kenyon, C. J. this question exercised the judgments of the most able lawyers of the last century; but the authority and weight which Lord Holt's opinion had in Westminster Hall, made others yield to him; and it was thought necessary to resort to the legislature(h), and accordingly the 3 & 4 Anne, c. 3 & 4 An- 9, (made perpetual by 7 Anne, c. 25, s. 3,) was passed(i), by which, after ne, c. 9.

reciting that it had been held, that notes in writing, signed by the party who made the same, whereby such party promised to pay unto any other person, or his order, any sum of money therein mentioned, were not assignable or indorsable over, within the custom of merchants, to any other person; and that such person to whom the sum of money mentioned in such note was payable, could not maintain an action by the custom of merchants, against the person who first made and signed the same; and that any person to whom such note had been assigned, indorsed, or made payable, could not, within the custom of merchants, maintain any action upon such note against the person who first drew and signed the same, it was to the intent to encourage [*518] trade and commerce, which would be much *advanced if such notes should have the same effect as inland bills of exchange, and should be negotiated in

(d) Brown r. Harraden, 4 T. R. 151, (Chit. j. 470); he continued his dislike to this construction, even after the passing of the 3 & 4 Anne, c. 9; see Garnet v. Clarke, 11 Mod. 226, (Chit j. 229). (e) Clerke v. Martin, 2 Ld. Raym. 758, (Chit. j. 181, 206); Story v. Atkins, 2 Ld. Raym. 1430, (Chit. j. 960); Trier v. Bridgman, 2 East, 359; Walmsley v. Child, 1 Ves. 346, (Chit. j. 323); Blanckenhagen v. Blundell, 2 B. & Ald. 417, (Chit. j. 1054).

(f) Clerke v. Martin, 2 Ld. Raym. 759, (Chit. j. 181, 206); Buller v. Crips, 6 Mod. 29, 30, (Chit. j. 223); Grant v. Vaughan, 3 Burr. 1520, (Chit. j. 365).

(g) Per Lord Tenterden, in De la Chaumette, r. Bank of Eugland, 9 Ear. & Cres. 215; Dans. & L. 319, S. C.; and see 2 Bar. & Adol. 385, (Chit. j. 1419, 1542).

(h) Brown v. Harraden, 4 T. R. 151, (Chit.

j. 470).

Before the statute 3 & 4 Anne, c. 9, many attempts were made to put promissory notes on the footing of bills of exchange, but without success, ride Pearson r. Garrett, 4 Mod. 242, (Ch. j. 198, 199); Clerke v. Martin, 2 Ld. Raym. 757; Salk. 129; Burton v. Souter, Ld. Raym. 774, (Chit. j. 221); and Williams r. Cutting, Ld. Raym. 825; Salk. 24; 7 Mod. 154; 11 Mod. 24, (Chit. j. 220); and see Brown v. Harraden, 4 T. R. 151, 152, (Chit. j. 470)

(i) See observations on this statute, Colchan r. Cooke, Willes, 395, (Chit. j. 298). The act being remedial, and made for the encouragement of trude, should be construed liberally, per curiam, in Milne v. Graham, 2 Dowl. & Ry. 294; 1 Bar. & Cres. 129, (Chit. j. 1168). As to Scotland, see 12 Geo. 3, c. 72, s. 36; and as to Ireland, 9 Geo. 4, c. 24, s. 2.

'11'

.

.. **

: • 2

. . . .

. . .

. . .

. . . .

. ..:

1.15

. . 1

1.

like manner, IT IS ENACTED, "That all notes in writing, made and signed I. Of Proby any person or persons, body politic or corporate, or by the servant or missory agent of any corporation, banker, goldsmith, merchant, or trader, who is usually entrusted by him, her, or them, to sign such promissory notes for Negotiability of, &c. him, her, or them, whereby such person or persons, body politic and corporate, his, her, or their servant or agent as aforesaid, doth or shall promise to of 3 & 4 pay to any other person or persons, body politic and corporate, his, her, or Anne, c. 9. their order, or unto bearer, any sum of money mentioned in such note, shall be taken and construed to be, by virtue thereof, due and payable to any such person or persons, body politic and corporate, to whom the same is made payable; and also, that every such note payable to any person or persons, body politic and corporate, his, her, or their order, shall be assignable or indorsable over, in the same manner as inland bills of exchange are or may be, according to the custom of merchants; and that the person or persons, body politic and corporate, to whom such sum of money is or shall be by such note made payable, shall and may maintain an action for the same, in such manner as he, she, or they might do, upon any inland bills of exchange, made or drawn according to the custom of merchants, against the person or persons, body politic and corporate, who, or whose servant or agent as aforesaid, signed the same; and that any person or persons, body politic and corporate, to whom such note that is payable to any person or persons, body politic and corporate, his, her, or their order, is indorsed or assigned, or the money therein mentioned, ordered to be paid by indorsement thereon, shall and may maintain his, her, or their action for such sum of money, either against the person or persons, body politic and corporate, who, or whose servant or agent as aforesaid, signed such note, or against any of the persons that indorsed the same, in like manner as in cases of inland bills of exchange(1)."

It has been considered that this statute of the 3 & 4 Anne, c. 9, giving the To what like remedy upon promissory notes as upon bills of exchange, (though Notes Act made perputual by the statute 7 Anne, c. 25, passed after the Union with Scotland) does not extend to promissory notes made in Scotland, because such subsequent statute only made the former act, which was a temporary law of England, to have perpetual force here in England(k), but subsequent statutes appear to recognize notes made in Scotland as valid(1). And according to the decision in Milne v. Graham(m), a promissory note

Forbes on Bills, 174.

(1) 39 Geo. 3, c. 107; 12 Geo. 3, c. 72.

(k) King v. Esdale, 6th December, 1711, notes has prevailed long and to a great extent, and we ought not to unsettle that practice, unless express authorities are produced for our guidance in so doing. The words of the statute do not exclude notes made in Scotland, and the reason and probabilities of the case clearly include them in its beneficial operation." The same point was decided in Bentley r. North-

(1) See Du Ponceau in his Treatise on the nature and extent of the jurisdiction of the Courts of the United States, p. 122. See also the Appendix to 1 Cranch Rep.

By the N. Y. Revised Statutes, 1 Vol. 768, promissory notes payable

⁽m) Milne v. Graham, 1 Bar. & Cres. 192; 2 Dow & Ry. 293, (Chit. j. 1168). "The act should be construed liberally, being a remedial law for the encouragement of trade. The practice of suing upon foreign as well as inland

By the N. Y. Revised Statutes, I Vol. 768, promissory notes payable in money to any person, or to the order of any person, or to bearer, are negotiable like Inland Bills of Exchange. In most of the States, the indorsee has all the privileges of an indorsee under the law merchant. In Connecticut a note must be of the amount of $35 or more, and payable to order or bearer, or it is not negotiable. In Indiana, notes payable at chartered banks within the State, are by statute placed on a footing of inland bills of exchange; but other notes are not governed by the law merchant. Bullett c. Scribner, I Black. Ind. Rep. 14. Piatt v. Eades, ib. 81. So in Kentucky the law merchant is not recognized relative to promissory notes. And it is subject to some restrictions in Vermont, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania. 3 Kent's Com. 72—4. Griffith's Law Register, passim.

ity of, &c. [*519]

I. Of Pro- made in Scotland may be sued upon here. And although the statute of Anne appears not to apply to notes made out of this country (n), yet it should seem that notes made in a foreign country would now be held valid Negotiabil- at common law(o), though it would be improper to declare upon them as made, *in pursuance of the statute(p); and it is now settled, that the statute of Anne applies to a note made in Scotland, and all notes are transferrable by indorsement in England(q); and it is now also settled, that promissory notes made in this country are, since that act, negotiable abroad, in the same manner as inland bills of exchange, and, therefore, that a promissory note payable to bearer, made in England, is transferrable by delivery in We have seen, however, that the English holder of a promissory note, made and indorsed in France, cannot sue thereon in this country in his own name, unless the indorsement were made according to the formal-> ouse, Guildhall, 30th May, 1827, before Lord Tenterden, on a note averred to have been made at Glasgow, in Scotland, MS. and see Bently v. Northouse, Mood. & Mal. Rep. 66, (Chit. j. 1335).

(n) Carr v. Shaw, infra, note (p), next page.

(o) In Pollard v. Herries, 3 Bos. & Pul. 335, (Chit. j. 672), a promissory note was made in Paris, payable there or in England, and no objection was taken on that account. Hewit v. Morris, 3 Campb. 303, a declaration on a note made at Paris, stated that it was made in London, and Lord Ellenborough held that this was no variance, because the contract evidenced by a promissory note is transitory, and the place where it purports to be made is immaterial, and the plaintiff recovered. Roche v. Campbell, 3 Campb. 247, (Chit. j. 870), the plaintiff declared on a note made in Ireland, and no objection was taken on that account. In Spiltgerber v. Colm, 1 Stark. R. 125, (Chit. j. 947), the plaintiff declared on a promissory note drawn in Prussia against the maker, and no objection was taken. And see Brown v. Gracy, Dowl. & Ryl. N. P. C. 41, note; and per cur. in Milne v. Graham, 2 D. & Ryl. 294; 1 B. & C. 192, (Chit. j. 1168).

(p) Carr v. Shaw, B. R. Hil. 39 Geo. S, MS., (Chit. j. 614). In an action on a promissory note made at Philadelphia, the first count of the declaration stated that the defendant, at Philadelphia, in parts beyond the seas, to wit, at London, &c., according to the form of the statute, &c., made his note in writing, &c. There were also the common money counts. The defendent demurred specially to the first count, and pleaded the general issue to the others. On the demurrer the court intimated a strong opinion that the statute did not apply to foreign notes, and advised the plaintiff to amend; but on the general issue, Lord Kenyon said, the note, though not within the statute, is evidence to support any of the money counts, and the plaintiff had a verdict, at Guildhall, 1st May, 1799. N. B.—The plendings are entered as of Michaelmas Term, 39 Geo. 3, Roll, 1238. See Bayl. 5th edit. 26, note 57, S. C. Sed vide Milne v. Graham, 1 Barn. & Cres. 192; and 2 Dow. & Ry. 293, S. C.; ante, 518, n. (m). It seems plaintiff there declared in the usual form as on an English note.

(q) Milne v. Graham, I Barn. & Cres. 192;

2 Dowl. & Ryl. 293, (Chit. j. 1168); Bentley v. No thouse, Mood. & M. 66, (Chit. j. 1335); Bayl. 5th edit. 27; ante, 518, note (m).

(r) De La Chaumette r. Bank of England, 2 Barn. & Adol. 385. Trover for a Bank of England note, stolen in this country and sent over to France, and purchased, among several others, by certain bankers at Paris, in the usual course of business, for the purpose of being remitted to the plaintiff in this country, to whom they were indebted. The plaintiff received the note and presented it at the Bank of England, where it was stopped. No fraud was imputed either to the plaintiff or the bankers at Paris, from whom he received the note, the only question being, whether such note was transferrable in France, under the provisions of the statute of Anne. Per Lord Tenterden, C. J.: "An inland bill of exchange was transerrable here before the statute of Anne by the custom of merchants, which was part of the common law introduced into this country in consequence of the practice in other countries. If an inland bill of exchange, drawn and accepted in England, gets to Paris, it is undoubtedly negotia-ble there by the custom of merchants; and if so, what is the effect of the statute of Anne as to promissory notes? It expressly recites, that it was passed to the intent to encourage trade and commerce, which would be much advanced if such notes should have the same effect as inland bills of exchange, and should be negotiated in like manner. The object clearly was to make promissory notes negotiable like English bills. If, therefore, English bills of exchange were negotiable when abroad, these notes ought to be so likewise, in order to satisfy the intention of the legislature; and I find nothing in the enacting part of the statute to restrain their negotiability to England. A note payable to bearer, therefore, is transferrable abroad just as an English bill of exchange drawn in England and remitted to a foreign country would be. It may be true that great injury has been suffered of late by the facility enjoyed of sending stolen notes abroad; but, on the other hand, the negetiability of English notes in foreign countries is a great convenience, as it saves the necessity of carrying abroad specie. The judgment of the court must be for the plaintiff." Littledale Parke and Pattern Is con-Littledale, Parke, and Patteson, Js. concurred. See the former case between the same parties, 9 Barn. & Cres. 209.

BP.

173 . , y

٠,٠,٠

4

: |

1 - 7

7. بر. اید اید

·

ities required by the French law, although at the time of receiving the note I. Of rehe was resident in this country (s). And it has been held, that the forging a missorPy Scotch bank note was not an offence within the English statute 2 Geo. 2, c. 25, against forgery, the note being made payable locally, where it was Negotiabildrawn(t), though it is not necessary that a promissory note should be nego-ity of, &c. tiable in order to be a promissory note within the 2 Geo. 2, c. 25, so as to be the subject of *an indictment for forging it(u). The statute 48 Geo. 3, [*520] c. 149, s. 21, directs, that all promissory notes made out of Great Britain, or purporting to have been so made, shall not be negotiable, circulated, or paid in Great Britain, unless duly stamped as a promissory note made in Great Britain, and subjects the party offending to £20 penalty, with an exemption in favour of notes made payable only in Ireland. The more recent enactment in the statute 55 Geo. 3, c. 184, s. 29, seems only to apply a similar enactment to promissory notes, payable to bearer on demand.

Although the statute 3 & 4 Anne enacts, that all notes in writing, made How signand signed by the party making it, shall be valid and assignable in like man-ed. ner as an inland bill, yet it suffices if his name be written in any part of the note. And it has been held, that if a party write his promissory note thus:—"I, John Dobbins promise to pay," &c. this is as good as a note, "I promise to pay," and subscribed "J. Dobbins(x)." A banker's deposit note payable "with interest to the day of acceptance," does not require any acceptance or presentment otherwise than for payment, as the term " acceptance" means sight(y).

The above statute being a remedial law, and made for the encouragement Construcof trade and commerce, the Courts have construed it liberally (z). The stat4 Anne, c. ute places promissory notes on the same footing as bills of exchange, and con- 9. sequently the decisions and rules relating to the one are in general applicable to the other(a). Thus it has been decided, with respect to the time

4 Moore & S. 695, S. C.; ante, 225 note (a). (t) The King v. Dick, 1 Leach, Cro. Law, 4th edit. 68; 2 East, 925, S. C.

(u) Rex v. Box, 6 Taunt. 325; Russ. & R.

C. C. 300, (Chit. j. 941).

(x) Taylor v. Dobbins, 1 Stra. 339, (Chit. j. 243). In case upon a promissory note, the declaration ran, that the defendant made a note et manu sua propria scripsit. Exception was taken that since the statute he should have said that the defendant signed the note, but the court held it well enough, because laid to be written with his own hand, and there needs no subscription in that case, for it is sufficient if his name is in any part of it. "I, J. S. promise to pay," is as good as "I promise to pay," subscribed "J.S." See also Elliot r. Cowper, 1 Stra. 609; 2 Lord Raym. 1376, (Chit. j. 255); and Vin Abr. tit. Bills of Exchange, 11. (y) Sutton r. Toomer, 7 Barn & Cres. 416; 1 Man. & Ry. 125, (Chit. j. 1352). (z) Selw. N. P. 9th edit. 380; and see per curiam, in Milne v. Graham, 2 Dowl. & Ryl. 293; 1 Barn. & Cres. 192, (Chit. j. 1168); and in De La Chaumette v. Bank of England, 2 Barn. & Ad. 385; ante, 519, note (r).

(a) Bishop v. Young, 2 Bos. & Pul. 80, 84, (Chit. j. 621); Hill v. Halford, 2 Bos. & Pul. 413, (Chit. j. 637); Colchan v. Cooke, Willes, 394, 399, note (b), (Chit. j. 298); Brown v.

(s) Trimbey v. Vignier, 1 Bing. N. C. 151; Harraden, 4 T. R. 152, (Chit. j. 470); Carlos v. Fancourt, 5 T. R. 486, (Chit. j. 515); Heylin v. Adamson, 2 Burr. 669; Bayl. 5th edit. 8; and see Smith v. Kendall, 6 T. R. 123, (Chit. j. 533)

In Heylin v. Adamson, 2 Burr. 669, (Chit. j. 349), the question was, whether the indorsee of a bill was bound to make a demand upon the drawer, as the indersee of a note must upon the maker; and per Lord Mansfield:-" While a note continues in its original shape of a promise from one man to another, it bears no similitude to a bill; but when it is indorsed, the resemblance begins, for then it is an order by the indorser upon the maker to pay the indorsee, which is the very definition of a a bill. The indorser is the drawer, the maker of the note the acceptor, and the indorsee the person to whom it is made payable; and all the authorities, and particularly Lord Hardwicke, in a case of Hamerton v. Mackarell, Mich. 10 Geo. 2, put promissory notes on the same footing with bills of of exchange.

In Brown v. Harraden, 4 T. R. 148, (Chit. j. 470), where the court decided that three days grace should be allowed on promissory notes, Lord Kenyon observed, that the effect of the statute was, that notes were wholly to assume the shape of bills; and Buller, J. added, that the cases cited in the argument shewed clearly that the courts of Westminster had thought the Notes. Construction of 3 &

I. Of Pro- when a note is payable, that there is no *difference between bills and promissory notes; and that the latter, when payable at a stated time, are also entitled to three days of grace when payable to bearer or order(b). And in Carlos v. Fancourt, where the question was, whether or not a note, payable out of 4 Anne, c. a particular fund, could be declared on as a promissory note, it was decided in the negative, "because promissory notes must stand or fall on the same rules by which bills of exchange are governed(c)." In Heylin v. Adamson(d), Lord Mansfield declared, that though, while a promissory note continues in its original shape of a promise from one man to pay to another, it bears no similitude to a bill of exchange, yet, when it is indorsed, the resemblance begins: for then it is an order by the indorser upon the maker of the note to pay to the indorsee: the indorser becomes, as it were, the drawer, the maker of the note the acceptor, and the indorsee the payee (e)(1). This point of resemblance once fixed, the law relative to bills becomes applicable to promissory notes. Hence it is only necessary to refer the reader Not affect to the prior parts of this work. It should be observed, that promissory notes are not mentioned in the act of 1 & 2 Geo. 4, c. 78, relative to the acceptance of bills at a particular place (f); and therefore, if in the body of a note it be made payable at a particular place by any words, a presentment there must be averred and proved, even in an action against the maker; but if the place of payment be only written or printed at the foot, then the place is considered as a mere memorandum, and no presentment there is necessary(g). The stamps upon promissory notes have already been considered(h).

ed by 1 & 2 Geo. 4. c. 78.

> analogy between bills and notes so strong, that to A. only. In addition to these authorities, I the rules established with respect to the one ought also to prevail as to the other; that the language of the preamble of the act was express; that it was the object of the legislature to put notes exactly on the same footing with bills; and that the enacting part pursued that intention. The same doctrine is to be found in Carlos v. Fancourt, 5 T. R. 482, (Chit. j 515); Edie v. East India Company, Burr. 1224, (Ch. j. 358)

In 2 Bla. Com. 470, and Bayl. 5th edit. 2, 3, it is said, that a note may be considered on comparison with a bill as accepted when it is-

(b) Brown v. Harraden, 4 T. R. 152, (Chit. 470). See the preceding note, and cases, Manning's Index, 65.

Smith v. Kendall, 6 T. R. 123, (Chit. j. 533). Three days grace are allowed on a promissory note payable to A., without adding, "or to his order," or "to bearer." Lord Kenyon, C. J. said, "If this were res integra, and there were no decision upon the subject, there would be a great deal of weight in the desendant's objection; but it was decided in a case in Lord Raymond (2 Ld. Raym. 1545) on demurrer, that a note payable to B. without adding, or to his order, or to bearer, was a legal note within the act of parliament. It is also said in Marius, that a note may be made payable either to A. or bearer, A. or order, or have made inquiries among different merchants respecting the practice in allowing the three day's grace, the result of which is, that the Bank of England, and the merchants in London, allow the three days' grace on notes like the present. The opinion of merchants, indeed, would not govern this court in a question of law, but I am glad to find that the practice of the commercial world coinsides with the decision of a court of law. Therefore I think that it would be dangerous now to shake that practice, which is warranted by a solemn decision of this court, by any speculative reasoning on the subject; and consequently this rule must be made absolute to enter a verdict for the plaintiff."

(c) Carlos v. Fancourt, 5 T. R. 486, (Chit. j. 515); Hill v. Halford, 2 Bos. & Pal. 413, (Chit. j. 637).

(d) Heylin v. Adamson, 2 Burr. 676, (Chit. j. 349).

(e) In Bishop v. Young, 2 Bos. & Pul. 83, (Chit. j. 621), the court observed, that this resemblance, so far as regards the remedy by action of debt, does not hold.

(f) Ante, 153, 154, 379. (g) Id. ibid.; and Williams v. Waring, 10 Bar. & Cres. 2; 5 Man. & Ry. 9, (Chit. j. 1453).

(h) Ante, 102 to 125.

By this statute, bills of exchange and promissory notes are placed on the same footing, and the law applicable to bills, is in general applicable to promissory notes. Ibid.

⁽¹⁾ The statute 3 & 4 Anne, ch. 9, declares that promissory notes shall be assignable or indorsable over in the same manner as inland bills of exchange are, or may be, according to the custom of merchants; and power is by the same statute given to indorsees, to maintain actions against the drawers, or prior indorsers of such notes, in the same manner as in cases of inland bills of exchange. Bowie ass. of Ladd v. Duvall, 1 Gill & John. 175.

11

.

, com

.. ; }

. . . $

, «.

. . . eri- 1

, t .

The statute of 3 Geo. 2, c. 26, relative to a particular description of I. Of Pronotes in the coal trade, is no longer in force, being repealed by the 47 Geo. missory 3, sess. 2, c. lxviii. s. 28(i).

Coal Notes repealed.

II. OF BANKERS' NOTES.

II. Of Bankers' Notes. Bankers' cash notes, formerly called goldsmiths' notes, are in effect BANKERS cash notes, formerly called goldsmiths notes, are in effect promissory notes given by bankers, who are originally goldsmiths (k). *From Utility of. Lord Holt's judgment in the case of Buller v. Crips(l), it appears that these [*522] notes were attempted to be introduced by the goldsmiths about thirty years previously to the reign of Queen Anne, and were generally esteemed by the merchants as negotiable; but Lord Holt as strenuously opposed their negotiability as he did that of common promissory notes, and they were not generally settled to be negotiable until the statute of Anne was passed, which relates to these as well as to common promissory notes. They appear originally to have been given by bankers to their customers, as acknowledgments for having received money for their use(m): they may be and generally are payable to bearer. (n). At present, cash notes are seldom made except by country bankers, their use having been superseded by the introduction of checks(o). When formerly issued by London bankers, they were sometimes called shop notes. In point of form they are similar to common promissory notes, payable to bearer on demand, and are stated in pleading as By the 7 Geo. 4, c. 6, the circulation of bankers' or any notes payable to bearer on demand, under the amount of 51. has been put a stop to (with an exception as to those stamped before the 5th February, 1826, and which could only be circulated till the 5th April, 1829(p). The 7 Geo. 4, Bank Rec. 6, 9 Geo. 4, c. 65, and 7 Geo. 4, c. 46, 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 98, and atriction Acts. other acts, regulate such notes (q). By the 10th section of the 7 Geo. 4, mand, they generally pass as cash, whether payable to order or bearer(r); but if presented in due time and dishonoured, they will not amount to payment(s). A tender of them is good, unless objected to on that account(t). Tender. If, however, any part of the consideration of an annuity be paid in country

c. 6, notes under 201., payable to bearer on demand, must be made payable at the bank or place where the same are issued; but such notes may be made payable at several places, provided one of such places be the bank or place where the same are issued. On account of their being payable on de-

(i) See Bayl. 5th edit. 401, 402; 3 Geo. 2, c. 26, s. 7, 8; Smith v. Wilson, And. 187, (Chit. j. 285, 286); Wigan v. Fowler, 1 Stark. 466, (Chit. j. 977, 983).

(k) Moore v. Warren, 1 Str. 415, (Chit. j. 249); Turner v. Mend, 1 Str. 415, (Chit. j. 248); Hayward and the Bank of England, 1 Str. 550, (Chit. j. 252); Smith's Wealth of Nations, vol. i. 445 to 448; but see Brook v. Middleton, 1 Campb. 449, (Chit. j. 757), where they were treated as checks; Selw. N. P. 9th edit. 386. A banker is a mere factor for money, 9 East, 12.

(1) Buller v. Crips, 6 Mod. 29, 30, (Chit. j. 222); Nicholson v. Sedgwick, Ld. Raym. 180, (Chit. j. 203); Horton v. Coggs, 3 Lev. 299,

(Chit. j. 185).
(m) Ford v. Hopkins, Holt, 119; 1 Salk.

(n) Grant v. Vaughan, 3 Burr. 1516, (Chit. j. 365).

(o) See Selw. N. P. 9th edit. 386. (p) Ante, 150. See also 9 Geo. 4, c. 65,

(q) See ante, 16, 17, 61 to 67, 150, 160;

and Bayl. 5th edit. 12 to 15.
(r) Tassal v. Lewis, 1 Ld. Raym. 744, (Chit. j. 192); Peacock r. Rhodes, Dougl. 635, (Chit. j. 408); Owenson v. Morse, 7 T. R. 64.

(s) Owenson v. Morse, 7 T. R. 64; Ward

v. Evans, Ld. Raym. 928, (Chit. j. 216, 218).
(1) Lockyer v. Jones, Peake, C. N. P. 3d edit. 239; 2 C. & J. 16, n. (a); Tiley v. Courtier, 2 C. & J. 16, n. (c), (overruling Mills v. Safford, Peake, 240, n.); Polglass v. Oliver, 2 C. & J. 15; 2 Tyrw. 89, S. C. On the same principle, it should seem, that a London banker's acceptance would be a good tender, if not objected to on that ground. As to the tender of Bank of England notes, see post, 524.

II. Of Bankers' Notes.

bank notes, the dates and times of payment must be set forth in the memorial(u); and if they are deposited with a stakeholder, they cannot be recovered from him as money had and received, unless he agreed to receive [*523] them as money (x). They, like bankers' checks, are generally *transferred from one person to another by delivery. They may, however, be negotiated by indorsement, in which case the act of indorsing will operate as the making of a bill of exchange, and the instrument may be declared on as such against the indorser(y). In other respects they are affected by the same rules as bills of exchange(z). The time when these notes should be presented for payment, is governed by the rules relating to other notes and checks payable on demand, which have already been stated, and to which part of the work the reader is referred (a). If the bankers who issued them should stop payment, the notes must nevertheless be presented in due time for payment, and due notice given to the persons who transferred them, or they must be offered to be returned to him(b). Since the 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, s. 12, these notes are liable to be taken in execution.

Presentment.

III. OF BANK NOTES.

III. Of Bank Notes. Origin and Nature of.

BANK notes owe their origin to the 5 Wm. & Mary, c. 20, s. 19, 20, 29, and the 8 & 9 Wm. 3, c. 20, s. 30, by the first of which statutes power was given to the king to incorporate the persons subscribing towards the raising and paying into the receipt of the Exchequer the sum of 1,200-000l., by the name of "The Governor and Company of the Bank of England." This company, as already noticed, is protected from the effects of competition, by various subsequent statutes(c). These notes (excepting in the case of Bank Post Bills) are payable on demand(1): Lord Mansfield, in Miller v. Race(d), observed, "That these notes are not, like bills of exchange, mere securities, or documents, for debts, nor are so esteemed; but are treated as money in the ordinary course and transactions of business by the general consent of mankind; and on payment of them,

(u) Morris v. Wall, 1 Bos. & Pul. 208.

(x) Pickard v. Bankes, 13 East, 20, (Chit. j. 809). A stake-holder receiving country bank notes as money, and paying their over wrongfully to the original staker, after he had lost the wager, is answerable to the winner, in an action for money had and received to his use. It appeared that the deposit had been made in Hull bank notes, payable to bearer, and not in coin of the realm, and the payment over to the other party was in notes of the same descrip-tion. The learned judge who tried the cause, thought that these were to be considered as money, as between those parties, and therefore the plaintiff recovered a verdict for the amount. It was afterwards moved to set aside the verdict, and by leave to enter a nonsuit. Notes of this description, it was contended, were no more than common promissory notes, or bills of exchange. If these were payable at a future day, they could in no sense be considered as money, but the time of payment cannot alter the nature of the thing. The action should rather have been trover, or upon a special assumpsit; and that Mr. Justice Lawrence, in a similar case, at Stafford, held, that money had and received would not lie. Lord Ellenborough, C. J. " Provincial notes are certainly not money; but if the defendant received them as ten guineas in money, and all parties agreed to treat them as such at the time, he should not now turn round, and say that they were only paper, and not money; as against him it is so much money received by him." Rule refused.

(y) Lovelass on Bills, 58; Mendez v. Carreroon, Lord Raym. 743, (Chit. j. 215); Hill v. Lewis, 1 Salk. 132, 133, (Chit. j. 187); Brown v. Harraden, 4 T. R. 149, (Chit. j. 470).

(z) Hill v. Lewis, 1 Salk. 132, (Ch. j. 187).

(a) Ante, 378 to 385. (b) Camidge v. Allenby, 6 Barn. & Cres. 373; 9 Dowl. & Ryl. 391, (Chit. j. 1319); and Henderson v. Appleton, ante, 384, 395.
(c) Ante, 16, 17, 61 to 67.

(d) Miller v. Race, 1 Burr. 457, (Ch. j. 346). See 3 Atk. 232.

^{(1) {} The rules in reference to demand and notice, applicable to promissory notes and bills of exchange, do not apply to the post-notes of a bank. Key v. Knott, 9 Gill & John. 342. }

hE

1 - 25

1726

. N 3

, training

. . . 121.

1 : 13.2

1,14

) JA

r Ro

. . F

K 25.75

~€

. . .

٠. و a a 😘 می مورد

الصور معنوا رو مرا

· (74

. je

• •á

فجيد

whenever a receipt is required, the receipts are always given as for money, III. Or not as for securities or notes." We have already seen, that by the late im- Bank portant act of 7 Geo. 4, c. 6, (made applicable to bills and notes under 51., payable to bearer on demand, issued in Scotland or Ireland, by 9 Geo. 4, c. 65), no Bank of England note under 51., payable to bearer on demand, can be circulated after the 10th of October, 1826, unless it was made out and bear date before that day; and no such note whatever can be circulated after the 5th of April, 1829(e). They are assignable by delivery (f), and pass by a will which bequeaths all the testator's money or $\cosh(g)$, or all his property in such a house; and they may *pass as a donatio mortis causa(h). [*524] In bankruptcies they cannot be followed as identical and distinguishable from money. If they be lost, an action of trover will not in general lie against the bon? fide holder by the true owner(i). In a case also on the Annuity Act, where the whole consideration was described in the memorial as money, and it appeared that only a part of it was money, and the residue in banknotes, it was decided on the above principle, that the consideration was well set out(k). It has, however, been adjudged, that an action for money had and received will not lie against a finder of them, to recover the value, unless money has actually been received for them (l), though, if not produced on the trial, the receipt of their value will be presumed (m). Formerly bank- May be notes could not be taken in execution(n); but the recent statute 1 & 2 Vict. taken in c. 110, s. 12, expressly authorizes their seizure. Nor was a tender of banknotes sufficient, if objected to at the time of the offer (o); and after the passing of the 59 Geo. 3, c. 149, s. 1, a creditor might arrest his debtor, notwithstanding such a tender, that act having superseded the necessity, in an affidavit to hold to bail, of alleging that no offer had been made to pay the debt in bank-notes payable on demand(p); but now by the late Bank Act, Tender. 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 98, s. 6, such notes are declared to be a legal tender for all sums above 51., except by the Bank of England, or any branch bank thereof. A mode of enforcing payment of them was provided by 8 & 9 Will. 3, c. 20, s. 30, but now, when the right to receive payment is disputed, the course is to proceed by action against the bank, or by action of detinue or trover against the party withholding or converting the same.

Possession is prima facie evidence of property in a bank-note. fore, in trover for a bank-note, it is not a prima facie case for the plaintiff to prove that the note belonged to him, and that the defendant afterwards converted it; but the plaintiff must prove how he lost it, and that he took due precaution to advertise the loss, and then the defendant will be required to prove that he took it bona fide for adequate value (q). And in Lowndes r.

(e) Ante, 150.

(f) Francis v. Nash, Rep. Temp. Hardw. 58, (Chit. j. 277).

(g) Fleming v. Brook, 1 Scho. & Lefr. 318, 319; Stewart v. Marquis of Bute, 11 Ves. 662; ante, 8, note (k).

(h) Ante, 2, 3, notes (e) and (k); 1 Roper, 8 (i) Lowndes v. Anderson, 18 East, 130; ante, 256, note (a); and see present rule as to holder's right in case of loss, &c., ante, 257.

(k) Wright v. Reed, 3 T. R. 554, (Chit. j. 461); Cousins v. Thompson, 6 T. R. 835. The former annuity act was 17 Geo. 3, c. 26; the present act is 53 Geo. 3, c. 141. See Chitty's

Col. Stat. tit. Annuities, page 25, in notes.
(1) Noyes v. Price and another, Sittings, London, post, Hilary Term, 16 Geo. 8, MS. Pelect Cases, 249.

(m) Longchamp v. Kenny, Doug. 138.

(n) Francis r. Nash, Rep T. Hardw. 58, (Chit. j. 277); Knight v. Criddle, 9 East, 48, (Chit. j. 738); Fieldhouse v. Croft, 4 East, 510; Armstead v. Fhilpot, Dougl. 236.

(o) Wright v. Reed, 3 T. R. 554, (Chit. j. 461); Grigby v. Oakes, 2 Bos. & Pul. 526, (Chit. j. 644). See the 56 Geo. 3, c. 68, s.

(p) By the Bank Acts, 38 Geo. 3, c. 1, s. 8; 48 Geo. 3, c. 18, s. 2, & c. passed for restraining cash payments, this allegation in the affidavit was required; but by the 59 Geo. 3, c. 149, s 1, the restrictions on payments in cash under these acts finally ceased.

(q) Ante, 253 to 271; King v. Milsom, 2 Campb. 8. (Chir. j. 701); Richard v. Care, 1 Campb 251.

III. Of Bank Notes.

Anderson(r) it was held, that bank-notes could not be followed by the legal owners into the hands of bon^2 fide holders for valuable consideration without notice. And in Solomons v. The bank of England(s), it was decided that the holder of a bank-note is primî facie entitled to prompt payment of it, and cannot be affected by the previous fraud of any former holder in obtaining it, unless evidence be given to bring it home to his privity. And we [*525] have seen(t), that it is not now sufficient to defeat the claim of *the holder of a negotiable instrument, who has given value, to shew that he took it under circumstances which ought to have excited the suspicion of a prudent and careful man, but it must be shewn that he took it mala fide; and even gross negligence on the part of the holder, though it may be evidence of mala fides, The stealing of these notes is felony (u), and the is not tantamount thereto. forgery of them was also by different statutes, now consolidated into one, declared to be felony (x).

and Qualities of Promissory Notes, Bank Notes, &c.

IV. Form IV. FORM AND QUALITIES OF PROMISSORY NOTES, BANK NOTES, &c.

WE have seen that a formal set of words is, in general, no more essential to the validity of a promissory note, cash note, or Bank of England note, than it is to that of a bill of exchange (y). It is sufficient if a note amount to a promise to pay money. A note whereby a party promises "to pay or cause to be paid," 130l. is a promissory note, and may be declared on as such, and does not require an agreement stamp(z). And a note promising to account with another, or his order, for a certain sum, value received, is a valid promissory note, though it contain no formal promise to pay(a). So where the note set forth in the declaration was, "I acknowledge myself to be indebted to A. in £—, to be paid on demand, for value received;" on demurrer, the court held, that this was a good note within the statute; the words "to be paid" amounting to a promise to pay; observing, that the same words in a lease would amount to a covenant to pay rent(b). promissory note payable to B. (omitting the words "or order"), three months after date, was holden a good note within the statute(c). So where a note was in this form, "I do acknowledge that Sir A. C. has delivered to me all the bonds and notes for which 400l. were paid to him on account of Colonel S., and that Sir A. delivered to me Major G.'s receipt, and bill on me for 10l., which 10l. and 15l. 5s., a balance due to Sir A., I am still indebted, and do promise to pay;" on demurrer the note was adjudged good(d). So a note in this form: "December, 1814, received of Mr. D., &c. 1001., which I promise to pay on demand, with lawful interest," is a good

(r) Lowndes v. Anderson, 13 East, 130; 1

Rose, 99, S. C., 102, n. a., (Chit. j. 810).
(s) Solomons v. The Bank of England, 13

East, 135; ante, 256, note (d) (t) Ante, 257. The rule established by Goodman v. Harvey, 4 Ad. & El. 870; 6 Nev. & Man. 372, S. C., has since been recognized in Uther v. Rich, 2 Perry & Dav. 579, 585.

(u) 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 29, s. 5; post, Part III. Ch. II. Criminal Law—Larceny.
(x) 1 Will. 4, c. 66, s. 3. See former acts, 15 Geo. 2, c. 14, s. 11; 13 Geo. 3, c. 79, s. 1; 41 Geo. 3, c. 39; 2 East's P. C. 876, &c.; 3 Chitty's Crim. Law, 2d edit. 1031, &c. And see further, post, Part III. Ch. I. Criminal Law-Forgery.

(y) Ante, 128, 129,

(z) Lovell v. Hill, 6 Car. & P. 238.

(a) Morris v. Lee, S Mod. 362; 1 Strs. 629; Lord Raym. 1396, (Chit. j. 258); 2 Atk. 32; ante, 128, note (u)

(b) Casborne v. Dutton, Scacc. M. 1 Geo. 2; Selw. 9th ed. 381, note (f); ante, 129, note (u).

(c) Smith v. Kendal, 6 T. R. 123; 1 Esp. 231, (Chit. j. 533); ante, 159, note (i); Moore v. Pain, Rep. T. Hardw. 283, (Chit. j. 282), where Lord Hardwicke, C. J. said this point had been ruled often.

(d) Chadwick v. Allen, Stra. 706, (Chit. j. 263); ante, 129, note (u). See post, 819, (14) "an instrument in the following form, &c.

fil!

1 7E. L

100

2 7.2

" . II:

J. 63

g • - - :

1زي.

1,0

10. ž

4.4

N 21

1 6

(p

Ŋ,

. 15

promissory note(e). And where the promise was by A. to pay so much to IV. Form B., for a debt due from C. to B., it was holden, that it was within the stat- and Quali-B., for a debt due from C. to B., it was noticen, that it was within the statues of Proute, being an absolute promise, and as negotiable as if it had been generally missory for value received (f). Norwill an instrument be the less a promissory note Notes, because it contains also an agreement of another kind, and, therefore, an in-Bank Notes, &c. strument in the following form, "On demand, I promise to pay to A. B., or order, 1001., with lawful interest for the same, for value received, and I have deposited in his hands the title deeds to lands *purchased from, &c. as [*526] a collateral security for the same," is a promissory note assignable under the 3 & 4 Anne, c. 9, s. 1(g). We have seen, that where by the terms of the instrument it is ambiguous whether it is a bill or note, the holder has the option of treating it as one or the other as against the maker(h).

But the mere acknowledgment of a debt without some words from whence a promise to pay money can reasonably be inferred, has no other operation than being mere evidence of a debt(i); and therefore the common memorandum, "I. O. U. such a sum," does not amount to a promissory note, I. O. U. and need not be stamped (k); and the same may be given in evidence in support of a count upon an account stated(1). But an instrument in the following form, "11th October, 1831. I. O. U. 201., to be paid on the 22nd instant, W. B.," requires a stamp, either as a promissory note, or as an agreement for the payment of money of the value of 20l.(m)(1). And an instrument acknowledging the receipt of a draft for the payment of money, and promising to repay the money, is not a promissory note, but a special agreement for the re-payment, depending on the contingency of the draft's being honoured (n). It is advisable, but not necessary, to insert the words "value received(o)(1)."

Promissory notes given in pursuance of the Lords' Act, 32 Geo. 2, c. Repeal of 27, s. 13, in order to prevent the debtor's discharge, must have been given Lorde in a particular form, but that statute has been repealed by the 1 & 2 Vict. Act. c. 110, s. 119(p).

(e) Green v. Davies, 4 Barn. & Cres. 235; 6 Dowl. & Ryl. 306, (Chit. j. 1251). (f) Popplewell r. Wilson, 1 Stra. 264, on error from C. P.; (Chit. j. 243).

(g) Wise v. Charlton, 6 Nev. & Man. 364; 4 Adol. & El. 786; 2 Har. & Wol. 49, S. C. If an instrument containing a mortgage be also a promissory note, it may still be stamped with a mortgage stamp, after the execution, provided it has a promissory note stamp on it at the time it is executed. Id. ibid. See ante, 119.

(h) Ante, 131, 132.

(i) See ante, 130. (k) Israel v. Israel, 1 Campb. 493; Fisher v. Leslie, 1 Esp. Rep. 426; Childers r. Boulnois, Dowl. N. P. C. 8; ante, 130, note (1), acc. But in Guy v. Harris, Sittings after Easter Term, 1800, at Guildhall, in the C. P. before Lord Eldon, such a note was attempted to be given in evidence by way of set-off, but his Lordship ruled that it could not be given in evidence, not being stamped, being a promissory note, though not negotiable. Mr. Serjeant Marshall for the plaintiff. Mr. Sergeant Best for the defendant. Manning's Ind. 215.
(1) Payne v. Jenkins, 4 Car. & P. 324. But an I. O. U. bearing date before the bankruptcy of a trader constitutes no evidence of a petitioning creditor's debt, without some proof that it was in existence before the bankruptcy; Wright v. Lainson, 2 Mee. & Wels. 739; 6 Dowl. 146, S. C.; post, Part II. Ch. VIII. s. Bankruptcy - Petitioning Creditor's

(m) Brooks v. Elkins, 2 Mee & Wels. 74.

(n) Williamson v. Bennett, 2 Campb. 417. (Chit. j. 788); anle, 135, note (k); and see Horne v. Redfearn, 6 Scott, 460; 4 Bing. N. C. 423; S. C., ante, 109, note (g); 130, note (u), as to an Accountable Receipt.

(a) Bishop v. Young, 2 Bos. & Pul. 81, (Chit. j 621); ante, 160, 161. See Cresswell v. Crisp, 2 C. & M. 634.

(p) And note, before this statute, by 1 Will. 4, c. 38, s. 10, prisoners in execution were not entitled on their own petition to the benefit of

⁽¹⁾ See Post, 822, (48).

⁽²⁾ A promissory note for the payment of money, not expressed to be for value received, is not a specialty importing a consideration. Edgerton et al v. Edgerton, 8 Conn. Rep. 6.

IV. Form ties of Promissory Notes. Rank Notes, &c. Requisites of Promis-[*527]

Certain requisites are indispensable to the validity of all promissory and Quali- notes(q); thus they must be made payable at all events(r), and not out of a particular fund(s), which may or may not be productive, nor contingent as to the person by or to whom the payment is to be made(t). But a statement of the consideration for which a note is made will not vitiate it(u). Notes must also be for the payment of money only, and not for the performance of any other act(x); on the latter principle it was adjudged, that a written sory Notes promise to pay 300l. to B. or order, "in three good East India bonds," was not a promissory note (y); and that *an undertaking to "pay money, and deliver up horses and a wharf," on a particular day(z), or an engagement "to pay mon y on demand, or surrender the body of A. B. (a)" would ot operate as a note within the statute of Anne.

A promise by the defendant to pay to plaintiff 261. within a month after Michaelmas, if defendant did not pay the 261., for which the plaintiff stood engaged for his brother T. B., is not a promissory note (b). So a promise to pay A. B. \mathcal{L} , value received, on the death of C. D., provided he leaves either of us sufficient to pay the said sum, or if we shall be otherwise able to pay it(c); and a promise to pay money within so many days after the maker of the note should marry, are not within the statute. So where the promise was to pay A. F. £-, out of the maker's money that should arise from his reversion of £-, when sold, and the declaration averred the sale of the reversion, yet it was holden that the note could not be declared on as a negotiable note under the statute, because the money was to be paid only And in a very recent case (e), the following instrument on a contingency (d). was held to be payable on a contingency, and therefore not a promissory note, "12 months after date I promise to pay A. and B. 500l., to be held by them as collateral security for any monies now owing to them by J. M., which they may be unable to recover on realizing the securities they now hold, and others which may be placed in their hands by him." promise was to pay £- on the sale or produce, immediately when sold, of the White Hart, St. Alban's, Herts, and the goods therein, although it was averred in the declaration that the house and goods were sold, yet the note was considered invalid (f). And a note, whereby the maker promised to pay to A. or to B. and C. a sum therein specified for value received, is not a promissory note within the meaning of the statute of Anne; for if a note is made payable to one or other of two persons, it is payable to either of them only on the contingency of its not being paid to the other(g). And where a note stated that J. S. promised to pay to A. B., or order, a certain sum, the Lords' Act in courts at Westminster, but must have applied to the Insolvent Court; Tidd's Supp 30, note (d). (q) Ante, 132 to 145.

- (r) Ante, 134. (s) Ante, 187.
- (t) Ante, 139.
- (u) Ante, 139. (x) Ante, 132.
- (y) Bul. Ni. Pri. 272; ante, 132. (2) Bul. Ni. Pri. 272; Martin v. Chauntry,
- (2) But. Nt. Fit. 212; Martin r. Chauntry, 2 Strs. 1271; ante, 134, note (u).
 (a) Ante, 138; Jenny v. Herlo, 2 Lord Rsym. 1362, (Chit. J. 253); Smith v. Boehm, Gilb. Cas. L. & E. 93, (Chit. j. 234), cited Lord Raym. 1362; ante, 134; Williams v. Lucas, 1 P. W. 431, note 1.

 (A) Anglaby & Riddulph & Med 269.
- (b) Appleby v. Biddulph, S Mod. 368; ante. 134, note (a).

- (c) Roberts v. Peake, 1 Burr. 323, (Chit. 340); ante, 134, note (b); Beardsley v. Baldwin, Stra. 1351; 7 Mod. 417, (Chit. j. 293).
- (d) Carlos v. Fancourt, 5 T. R. 482, (Chit.
- j. 515); ante, 138, note (e).
 (e) Robins v. May, M. T. 1839, Q. B. 3
 Per. & Dav. ; 3 Jurist, 1188, S. C. Per Denman, C. J. "This instrument gives notice to all the world that it is payable on a contingency." And per Patteson, J. "This is the case of one man promising to pay if another does not." Williams and Coleridge, J.'s concurred. Judgment for defendant.
 - (f) Hill v. Halford, 2 Bos. & Pul. 413,
- (Chit. j. 637); ante, 135, note (i).
 (g) Blackenhagen v. Blundell, 2 Barn. & Ald. 417, (Chit. j. 1054), it was held also no action at common law would lie on such an instrument. .Ante, 140, note (g).

J.P

· 1

2.0

.

. . 7

or Par

15.74

· . I

. . . of

. . ::

. . Tr , ्ः ग्रह

, : P#

1. 376

 λ

ni E ol tor

تنازين

, (166 1, - 186 1, - 1

1 , q. 3. · (Fr

ן שטר אין

1.70

.....

100

مع: و إ

_d 43

i,- $

15.3

and was signed J. S. or else J. G., it was held not to be a note within the IV. Form act(h). The same principle was recognized in the following cases, though and Qualities of Prothe notes were held good.

missory

A promissory note was given to an infant, puyable when he should come Notes, of age, viz. on such a day in such a year, this was holden good; for, per Bank Notes, &c. Denison, J. here is no condition or uncertainty, but it is to be paid certainly, and at all events, only the time of payment is postponed(i). So where the of Promisplaintiff declared in the first count on a promissory note, dated 27th May, sory Notes 1732, whereby defendant promised to pay to H. D., or order, 150 guineas, in general. ten days after the death of his *father, John Cooke, for value received; [*528] which note, after the death of the father (which was laid to be the 2d April, 1741) was duly indorsed by D. to plaintiff; and in the second count, on a promissory note, dated 15th July, 1732, whereby defendant promised to pay H. D. or order, six weeks after the death of his father, fifty guineas, for value received, the like indorsement laid after the death of the father as before; after a general verdict for plaintiff on both notes, it was insisted for defendant, in arrest of judgment, that these notes were not within the statute 3 & 4 Anne, c. 9. After three arguments, Willes, Chief Justice, delivered the opinion of the court in favour of the plaintiff, on the ground that the notes did not depend on any contingency: that there was a certain promise to pay at the time of giving the notes, and the money, by virtue thereof, would become due and payable at one time or other, though it was uncertain when that time would come; that there was not any weight in the objection, that the maker might have died before his father, in which case the notes would have been of no value, because the same might be said of any notes payable at a distant time, that the maker might die worth nothing before the note became payable; he added, that the Court thought that the averment of the death of the father before the indorsement did not make any alteration; because they were of opinion, that if the notes were not within the statute ab initio, they could not become valid by any subsequent event (k). So where the note was to pay within a certain time after a ship belonging to the Royal Navy should have been paid off, it was holden good; because the ship would certainly be paid off some time or other (l).

It has been said(m), that in the application of the rule relative to these instruments being payable at all events, there is a distinction between bills of exchange and promissory notes, and that a note may, in certain cases, be payable on a contingency (n); but it will appear that the cases (o) adduced in support of this distinction, are equally applicable to bills of exchange; and it is now settled, that in general, if a note be payable on a contingency, it will be as inoperative as a bill payable in the same manner (p). It has also been observed (q), that in the application of the principle that these instruments must not be payable out of a particular fund, there is a material dis(h) Ferris v. Bond, 4 B. & A. 679, (Chit. j. 1110); ante, 140, note (e).

(i) Goss v. Nelson, 1 Burr. 226, (Chit. j.

339); ante, 136, note (r).
(k) Colehan v. Cooke, Willes, 393, (Chit. j. 298), affirmed on error. Stra. 1217, ante, 136, note (p).

(1) Andrews v. Franklin, Hil. 3 Geo. 1, B. R. 1 Stra. 24, (Chit. j. 286). Sed quære, see ante, 137, and notes, as to this point.

(m) Kyd, 56.

(o) Cooke r. Colehan, 2 Stra. 1217, (Chit. j. 301); Andrews v. Franklin, 1 Stra. 24, (Chit. j. 286); Goss v. Nelson, 1 Burr. 227, (Chit. j. 339); Evans v. Underwood, 1 Wils. 262, (Chit.

(p) Carlos v. Fancourt, 5 T. R. 486, (Chit. . 515); ante, 188, note (e); Colehan r. Cooke, Willes, 388, 389, (Chit. j. 298); Williamson v. Bennett, 2 Campb. 417, (Chit. j. 788); ante, 135, note (k).

(q) Kvd, 53.

j. 326).

⁽n) Dawes v. Delorain, 2 Bls. Rcp. 782; 3 Wile. 207, (Chit. j. 882, 383); ante, 137,

IV. Form tinction between bills of exchange and promissory notes; but the case(r) adand Quali-duced in support of this opinion only shews that the statement in a bill or ties of Pronote, of the consideration for which it was made, will not vitiate it(s). It is missory Notes, also settled, that it is not necessary that a note, any more than a bill of ex-Bank change, should contain any words rendering it negotiable(t). In short, all Notes, &c. the rules relative to the qualities of a bill of exchange, are, for the most part, Requisites applicable to notes, and it would be an unnecessary repetition to enumerate sory Notes them. There is, however, one very important distinction between bills in general and notes, as regards the liability arising from an indorsement; with *respect [*529] to bills of exchange, we have seen(u) that every indorser is in the nature of a new drawer, but the indorser of a promissory note does not stand in the situation of maker relatively to his indorsee; nor can the indorsee of a note declare against his indorser as maker, even where the latter has indorsed a note not payable or indorsed to him, and where, consequently, his indorsee The distinction between the two cases cannot sue the original maker (x). is obvious: in allowing the indorser of a bill to be treated as a new drawer the indorser's liability is not altered, it still remains secondary or collateral only; but to suffer the indorser of a note to be charged as maker would be at once to render the indorser's liability primary and immediate, and to place him in the situation of the acceptor of a bill.

Joint and several Notes.

When a promissory note is made by several, and expressed "we promise to pay." it is a joint note only(1); but if a note be signed by several persons, and begin "I promise," &c. it is several as well as joint, and the parties may be sued jointly or severally (y)(2). And a member of a country bank signing for himself and partners notes beginning with the words "I pro.

(Chit. j. 267).

(s) Hausoullier v. Hartsink, 7 T. R. 723;

Anon. Sel. Ca. 39; et ante, 139, note (p).
(t) Smith v. Kendall, 6 T. R. 123; 1 Esp. 231, (Chit. j. 533); ante, 159, note (i).

(u) Ante, 196, 242.

(x) Gwinnell v. Herbert, 5 Ad. & El. 436; 6 Nev. & Man. 723, see antc, 196, note (0); 242, notes (g), (h), (i).

(y) See cases, ante, 58; Clarke r. Blackstock, Holt, C. N. P. 474, (Chit. j. 968); March v. Ward, Peake's R. 130, (Chit. j. 497); Butler v. Malissy, 1 Stra. 76, (Chit. j. 242); Ovington v. Neale, 2 Stra. 819; Rees v. Abbott, Cowp. 832, (Chit. j. 399); Rice r. Shute, 5 Burr. 2611; Com. Dig. tit. Obligation, F. G.; Cabell v. Vaughan, 1 Saund. 291 b, note 4; Abbott v. Smith, 2 Bla. Rep. 947; Holmer v. Viner, 1 Esp. Rep. 134, (Chit. j. 521); Selw. 9th edit. 386

Marsh v. Ward, Peake's Rep. 130, (Chit. j. 497) .- Assumpsit on a promissory note, made by the defendant and one Bowling, in the following words, viz -

"I promise to pay, three months after date,

(r) Burchell v. Slocock, Lord Raym 1545, to W. March, St. 5s. for value received in fix-

"ROBERT BOWLING. "THOMAS WARD."

It was objected that this promissory note was joint only and not several. Lord Kenyon: "I think this note beginning in the singular number is several as well as joint, and that the present action may be maintained on it. I remember a case tried before Mr. Moreton at Chester exactly similar to the present, wherein I was counsel for the defendant. I persuaded the judge that it was a joint note only, and the plaintiff was nonsuited; but on an application being afterwards made to this court, they were of a contrary opinion, and a new trial was granted; the letter '1' applies to each severally." Verdict for the plaintiff.

Roberts c. Peake, 1 Burr. 323, (Chit. j. 340). A note signed by the defendant alone, but importing in the body of it to have been made by the defendant and another person, was declared upon as the several note of the defendant, and it was agreed that it might be declared upon according to its legal operation; but judgment was given for the defendant upon v. Stone, 7 Mass. Rep. 58. And a promissory note given by one member of a commercial company to another member, for the use of the company, will maintain an action at law by the promise in his own name against the maker. Van Ness v. Forrest, 8 Cranch, 30. { Karck c. Avinger, Riley's Law Cas. 201; Smith v. Clapp, 15 Pet. 125. }

^{(1) {} Mayor of New Orleans v. Ripley et al. 5 Miller's Louis. Rep. 120. } (2) The same doctrine was held in Hunt v. Adams, 5 Mass. Rep. 358, and see Hemmenway

mise to pay, &c." may be sued alone(z). But if a promissory not appear IV. Form on the face of it to be the separate note of A. only, it cannot be declared and Qualion as the note of A. and B., though given to secure a debt for which A. and missory B. were jointly liable (a). A note signed by the makers thus, "I. S. or Notes, else J. G." is not a good promissory note within the statute of Anne(b). Bank But in an action by A. against B. upon a promissory note, it was stated in Notes, &c. the declaration, that B. and another jointly or severally promised to pay it; Several and it was holden, that the declaration was good, for or was synonymous to Notes. and, and they both promised that they, or one of them, should pay, consequently both and each were liable in solidum(c). And it has been held, that if an action be brought on a *joint note, and some of the persons making [*530] the note are not made defendants, advantage can only be taken of the omission by plea in abatement(d). And if one of several makers of a promissory note be an infant, he should not be sued, nor should the declaration state that he was a party (e); and if there be a joint and several promissory note of two persons, and one of them was a surety only for the other, and that circumstance were known to the holder, and he accept a composition from the assignees of such principal, amounting to less than the dividend payable under his commission, it has been held that this conduct releases the surety from liability (f); but the propriety of that decision appears to be questionable (g).

When it is proposed that several persons, whether as principals only, or as principal and sureties, shall give a note to secure the payment of a debt, it is advisable that they should severally, as well as jointly, promise to pay; for if it be only a joint note, and one of them die, then there will be no remedy at law against his personal representative, and in case he was only a sure-another ground. See Siffkin v. Walker, 2 promise to pay." Judgment affirmed. Campb. 308, (Chit. j. 780).

(d) Per Buller, J. in Rees v. Abbott, Cowp. Campb. 308, (Chit. j. 780).

(z) Hall v. Smith, 1 Barn. & Cress. 407; 2 Dowl & Ryl. 584, (Chit. j. 1172); ante, 58, note (c)

(a) Siffkin v. Walker, 2 Campb. 308, (Chit. j. 780); Emley v. Lye, 15 East, 7, (Chit. j. 849); ante, 58, note (d).

(b) Ferris v. Bond, 4 B. & Ald. 679, (Chit.

j. 1110); ante, 140, note (e).

243

d 10 77

4. . 1

, il ...

. !*

. . . 1

, ..., r , ...

1 17 17

, w |

n 1

(c) Butler v. Malissy, 1 Stra. 76, (Chit. j. In an action on a note the declaration stated, that the defendant and another did jointly or severally promise to pay, and upon demurrer the court held it bad, and the plaintiff obtained leave to discontinue. And in Ovington v. Neale, 2 Stra. 819; Ld. Raym. 1544, the plaintiff declared upon a note by which the defendant and another jointly or severally promised to pay, and upon error the Court of King's Bench held it bad, because the plaintiff had not shewn a title to bring a separate action against the defendant, for he only says he has this or some other cause of action, and judgment for the plaintiff was reversed.

However, in Rees r. Abbott, Cowp. 832, (Chit. j. 399), the declaration upon a note stated, that the defendant and another made their note, by which they jointly or severally promised to pay, and upon error after judgment by default, Butler v. Malissy, and Ovington r. Neale, were cited as in point. Sed per Lord Mansfield:-" If 'or' is to be considered in this case as a disjunctive, the plaintiff is to elect, and by the action he has made his election to consider the note as several, but in this case it is synonymous to 'and,' and both and each 832, (Chit. j. 399); see ante, 529, note (y);

Selw. 9th edit. 387.

(e) Burgess v. Merrill, 4 Taunt. 468, (Chit. j. 869); but see Gibbs v. Merrill, 3 Taunt. 307. (f) Garrett v. Jull, B. R. Mich. 22 Geo. 3, MS. Selw. 9th edit. 387. An action was brought against defendant only, on a joint and several note, made by defendant and one Stoddart. Plea, non-assumpsit. Defendant gave in evidence an agreement in writing, entered into by plaintiff with the assignees of Stoddart, then a bankrupt, to receive from them 6001. in lieu of 8831., actually due from the bankrupt on this note, (which was for 1001.,) and on other transactions; and that defendant was only surety for Stoddart. Defendant obtained a verdict. On motion to set it aside, it was insisted, on the part of the defendant, on the ground that the agreement put an end to the plaintiff's recovery on the note, that the principal could not be discharged without discharging the surety also. On the part of the plaintiff it was urged, that it was not the meaning of the agreement that the defendant should be discharged. But per Lord Mansfield, C. J. "The plaintiff was party to the agreement, and we cannot receive parol evidence to explain it. Whatever might be the intention of the parties, the principal cannot be released without its operating for the benefit of the surety." Rule discharged. Sed quære, see Perfect r. Musgrave, 6 Price, 111, (Chit. j. 1041); and Price r. Edmunds, 10 Bar. & Cres. 578, (Chit. j. 1483). As to this point, see ante, 416.

(g) See cases, ante, 416.

ties of Promissory Notes, Bank Notes, &c.

IV. Form ty, a court of equity would not grant relief against his estate; whereas if the and Quali- note were several as well as joint, the executors of a deceased party may be sued at law(h); and it should seem, that if it was originally intended that a note should be several as well as joint, a court of equity would relieve as well against a surety as a principal(i).

When a person signs a promissory note as a surety for others, and on a representation that another person is to join as a party, as well as the principal debtors, and the other person afterwards refuses to sign, the payees cannot recover in an action on the note against the person who so signed as a surety, unless the jury are satisfied that such person knowing the facts, and being aware of his rights, had consented to waive the objection; and per Tindal, C. J.: "The defendant was told that another person was to join, [*531] and therefore the obtaining the *signature of that person was a condition, which if not carried into execution would justify the defendant in withdrawing(k).

The general liability of partners in respect of bills and notes given by a co-partner in the name of the firm, and the mode in which partners should sign so as to bind the firm, have already been considered (l). We have also seen(m) that a transfer by one partner in the name formerly used by the partnership will bind the existing firm. But in a very recent case, where a member of a company called the "Newcastle and Sunderland Wallsend Coal Company," made a note in the name of the "Newcastle Coal Company," and payable at a bank with which they had no account, it was held, that it was not to be presumed that the note was made with the authority of the firm, and that it was properly left to the jury to say whether the note was so made or not(n).

Btamps.

The amount of the stamp duties imposed on notes until the 10th October, A. D. 1804, was regulated by the 44 Geo. 3, c. 98, schedule A. amount of the duties from that time until the 10th October, A. D. 1808, were regulated by the statute 48 Geo. 3, c. 149. The present stamp duties on notes are regulated by the 55 Geo. 3, c. 184, and these are the same as the stamps on bills, except as to notes reissuable after payment by the ma-By the 1 & 2 Vict. c. 58, stamps denoting duties payable in one part of the united kingdom may be used for instruments liable to stamp duties payable in any other part.

The regulations with respect to the stamps on notes in general, and in particular to re-issuable notes, and the licensing bankers to draw and re-issue the same, have already been fully considered(o).

Bank notes are exempted from the stamp duty by the 23 Geo. 3, c. 49, s. 9, and other subsequent statutes, in consideration of the payment of the annual sum of 12,000l. in the receipt of his Majesty's Exchequer.

(h) See cases, 1 Chit. on Plead. 6th edit. 44. (i) Rawstone v. Parr, 3 Russ. 424; id. 529; Chitty's Equity Index, 1468, and id. tit. Mistake; ante, 166, 167.

(k) Leufe v. Gibbs, 4 Car. & P. 466, (Chit.

j. 1520).

(1) Ante, 89, 57.

(m) Ante, 228, note (g).

(n) Faith v. Richmond and others, H. T., 1840, Q. B., 3 Per. & Dav. Per Littledale, J. "The question in this case was whether the note was made by the defendants, who were in partnership together. Richmond did not sign it in the name of the firm, and there was no evidence that they had ever recognised any other than the real name of the firm. In the case cited of Williamson v. Johnson, 1 Bar. & Cres. 146, (ante, 228, note(g),) the name put to the bill had been the name of the firm until a change of partnership took place, and had since been used on other occasions. I think there was no misdirection." Per Coleridge, J. "In ordinary cases where a bill is signed in the name of a firm the only question is, whether all the parties whom it is sought to charge are members of it; but where a different name from that of the firm is used, then the question arises whether what has been done was authorised by the partners.

(v) A ite, 107 to 118, &c decisions on the former and present Stamp Acts already stated are here ap- IV. Form plicable(p).

112

T. .

5 33

* 4. .

* K 1:

· ()

. . .

-2, . 1 11

31.5

A 1777 1

1.

150%

A ...

. ∦, ₹

16.2

640

11 7 . 4. I , p (

25

. ::-

3.74 ŗĨ

س) از از مر) از از g / pg : rni -2^{5, 1} u.

100 AP : 178

cable(p).

We have seen(q) that the alteration of a bill or note for the mere purmissory pose of correcting a mistake, does not render a fresh stamp necessary; and Notes. in a very late case, where a promissory note was altered several months af-Bank ter the making of it by the defendant, who introduced the words " or order," Notes, &c. saying at the same time, "It is my omission," it was held, that a new stamp But in these cases *it is the duty of the plaintiff to was not necessary (r). prove the time when or the circumstances under which the alteration took place, and unless he gives some evidence in explanation thereof, it is not competent to the jury to decide upon a bare inspection of the instrument(s).

In all points in which a distinction between bills of exchange and promissory notes has not been pointed out, the rules relative to the one equally apply to the other, and therefore it will not be necessary to make any further observations in the present Chapter.

(p) Ante, 107 to 125.

(q) Ante, 184.

(r) Byrom v. Thompson, M. T. 1839, Q. B., 3 Perry & Dav.; 3 Jurist. 1121, S. C. Per Patteson, J. "The case of Kershaw v. Cox (3 Esp. 246; ante, 184, note (e),) went upon the ground that the alteration was the correction of a mistake, and in furtherance of the original intention of the parties, and not a mere after-thought. In Knight v. Clements, (8 Nev. & P. 875; 8 Ad. & El. 215, S. C. post, 532, note (s)) the simple question was, whether the jury was at liberty to inquire when the alteration was made: and it was held that they could not be allowed to decide the inquiry by conjecture. In this case the defendant, when he made the alteration, said ' it is my omission, which brings it within the authority of Kershaw v. Cox."

(a) Knight v. Clements, 3 Nev. & P. 375; 8 Ad. & El. 215; more fully, post, Part II. Ch. V. s. i. Evidence; and see last note. Semble, this case overrules Taylor v. Moseley, 6 C. & P. 273; ante, 190, 191, note (y).

Digitized by Google

PART SECOND.

THE REMEDIES ON A BILL, NOTE, OR CHECK.

In the preceding part of this Work, we have endeavoured to point out the nature of the Right which may be acquired by the instruments which are the subject of this Treatise. The Remedy which the law affords the parties to enforce payment will now be considered. In this part of the Work, no distinct observations on bills and notes will be necessary, as the same remedies are given by law on both species of instruments, except that in some cases debt is not sustainable on a promissory note, and which distinction will be pointed out. The means of enforcing payment, are, in general, either by action of assumpsit or debt, or where the party is a bankrupt, by proof under the commission. In the consideration of the above-mentioned actions, the pleas and defences, and the evidence to be adduced by each party, will also be considered.

*CHAPTER I.

BY AND AGAINST WHOM AN ACTION OF ASSUMP-SIT ON A BILL, CHECK, OR NOTE, MAY BE SUPPORTED.

I. WHEN ASSUMPSIT THE PROPER REMEDY II. BY AND AGAINST WHOM ACTION	58
SUSTAINABLE	ib
Legal Rights and Liabilities	ib
Need not be in Name of actual Holder Several Plaintiffs	58 ib
Holder may sue all prior parties	530
Drawer's Right of Action	53

Remedy of accommodation Acceptor,
&c.	537
Non-liability of subsequent Parties	ib.
Effect of appointing Acceptor or Maker Executor	53 8
Joint and several Note	ib.
Several Actions at same Time	ib.
Satisfaction by One of several Parties	539
Consolidating Actions	540

I. WHEN Assumpsit the proper Remedy(a).

I. When Assumpsit the proper Remedy.

An action of ABSUMPSIT is by far the most usual remedy on bills, checks, and notes; and indeed it appears to be the only remedy where no privity of contract exists between the parties, as between the indorsee and the acceptor of a bill, and a remote indorsee and maker of a note, when an action of debt is not maintainable(b). And before the recent statute 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42, assumpsit was the usual form of remedy when the action was against an executor or administrator, against whom debt on simple contract was not in general sustainable(c); but by the 14th section of that act it is enacted, that an action of debt on simple contract shall be maintainable in any court of common law against any executor or administrator (d).

II. By and against whom Action sustainable.

II. By and tion spstainable.

With respect to the persons by or against whom this action may be against whom Ac- brought(e), we have seen that in some cases particular statutes direct, that where corporations or co-partnerships of bankers or persons in trade have issued bills or notes, they may sue and be sued in the name of one of their

> (a) See as to the action of Debt, post, Ch. VII., and as to the action of Delinue or Trover to recover bill or proceeds, see ante, 250, 251. Separate actions of trover may sometimes be maintained by two distinct plaintiffs against a defendant in respect of the conversion of the same thing, as where the plaintiffs and P. and Co., having each a separate lien on a bill in the hands of the plaintiffs for advances, and the defendant, the acceptor, having improperly possessed himself of it, P. and Co. sued him in trover, and recovered by the award of an arbitrator to the extent of their claim, and the plaintiffs afterwards sued the defendant also in trover; it was held, that notwithstanding the former recovery by P. and Co., the plaintiffs were entitled to recover for the amount of their lien; Knight v. Legh, 6 Law J. 128, C. P.; 4 Bing. 589; 1 M. & P. 528, S. C.

(b) Bishop v. Young, 2 B. & P. 78, (Chit. j. 621); see ante, 161, post, Ch. VII. (c) Barry v. Robinson, 1 New R. 293.

(d) See Chit. & H. Stat. 24, note (1). (e) Poth. tit. Contrat de Change, part 1, chap. 5, art. 2, per totum.

public officers (f) (1), but, in general, the common law prescribes, that when- II. By and ever a legal right is created, or liability impoed in favor of or upon one or more against ever a legal right is created, or nability imposed in layor of or upon one of more whom Ac-persons, through the medium of these "instruments, that right may be inserted tion susand that liability enforced, by this action, by and against all those persons (2). tainable. Therefore a person may sue on a note payable to him, though in trust for a Legal third party(g). And the wife may join in an action on a note made payable Rights and to her during the coverture (h)(3); but the husband may sue alone (i). this country (though it seems to be otherwise in France(k),) when there are Need not several indorsers, it is not necessary that the action should be brought in the of actual name of the actual holder (l) at the time of the dishonour, or of the last in-Holder. dorser: but the parties to the instrument may arrange the matter among [*535] themselves, and any one indorser may sue the acceptor or drawer instead of the preceding indorser, though it is said that before the trial, all the names below his own, (the tplaintiff's) must, in that case, be struck out(m)(4).

In Liabilities.

(f) Ante, 17, 18, 64 to 67.

(g) Smith v. Kendall, 1 Esp. Rep. 231; 6 T. R. 123, (Chit. j. 533); Randall v. Bell, 1 Maule & Selw. 728.

(A) Philliskirk et Ux. v. Pluckwell, 2 Maule & S. 393, (Chit. j. 903); ante, 22.

(i) Ante, 23, note (p).

~~! W , Pr

告主章

170

1 11 1

121.0 1.

33.4

mar k 41. 12

e 11 100

is " ΰĚ

(k) 1 Pardess, 439, 440.

(1) See Stones v. Butt, 2 Cromp. & M 416; 2 Dowl. 335, S. C.; infra, note (o).
(m) Per Eyre, C. J. in Walwyn v. St.

Quintin, 1 Bos. & Pul. 658; 2 Esp. 514. (Chit. j. 578). This doctrine was recognised in Parnell v. Townend, Trinity Term, 58 Geo. 3, on demurrer; see post, 571, 572. But if a hill were really the property of another, and put into the hands of a defendant purposely to set off against a claim on him, that might present a different question. Per Lord Ellenborough in Cornforth v. Revetts, 2 Maule & S.

(1) { Assumpsit will not lie upon a note of a corporation, to which the corporate seal is affixed; and if a count upon such note be joined with the money counts in assumpsit, the judgment will be arrested. Steele v. The Oswego Cotton Man. Co., 15 Wend. 265.

(2) The same practice is recognized in the United States. Livingston r. Clinton, 3 John. Cas. 264. Baker v. Arnold, 1 Caines' Rep. 269, 271. So also, assumpsit for money had and received, or for money lent, may be maintained by the indorsee of a promissory note against the maker or indorser. Eagle Bank r. Smith, 5 Con. Rep. 71. And where the plaintiff is in possession of the bill, when he commences the action, the simple act of indorsing it may be done af-terwards. Ibid. See Ritchie v. Moore, 5 Munf. 388.

Where an action against an indorser was commenced on the same day that the note became due, but after the notice was put into the post-office, and the writ was served before the notice could be received by the course of the mail, it was held that the action was not commenced too soon. Shed v. Brei, 1 Pick. 401. Bills of exchange and negotiable promissory notes should be paid on presentment, on the day when due, if presented at a reasonable hour; and if not then paid, the acceptor or maker, and also the indorser, or drawer, may be sued on that day, after notice given or duly forwarded. Greely v. Thurston, 4 Greenl. 479.

But where notice to an indorser who lived at another place, of non-payment and protest of a promissory note, was put into the post-office on the 13th, and by the course of the mail could not reach him before the 19th, it was held that a suit commenced against him on the 16th was too on. Smith v. Bank of Washington, 5 Serg. & Rawle, 318. Sherwood v. Roys, 14 Pick. 172. But a person holding a note as a mere depositary and agent, must bring an action upon it in the name of his principal. Ibid }

(5) { But she cannot maintain an action against her husband upon a note executed by him to her during coverture. Sweat v. Hall, 8 Verm. 187. Nor can it be enforced, even for the benefit and in the name of a third person, to whom the husband has afterwards promised to pay it.

(4) When a bill of exchange is indorsed in full, all the legal interest is transferred to the indorsee, and having the legal interest, he alone is qualified to maintain an action on such bill. He cannot use the name of the payee, because the payee, having transferred his interest, can have no competency to maintain an action.

{ Bowie c. Daval, 1 Gill & John. 175. }

So where it appeared that the note of the defendant, payable to B. or order, had been indersed as follows, "I assign the within for value received to L.;" signed B, but which indersement was crased just before the jury was sworn; it was held, that an action in the name of B., originally instituted for the use of [L., could not be maintained upon the note, as there was no evidence from which the jury could infer that the payee and plaintiff was the holder of the note, neither could an action be maintained on the money counts, although there was proof of an express promise to pay the sam demanded in such suit, as that must be considered as enuring to the benefit of him who had a right to the note. Ib.

If a note duly indersed in full, should in the regular course of commercial dealing come back

C

104 do ф

de

D

dr

61

9 ð,

tr

ĺe

¢

Ò

ŭ

1 b

ť

ugainst whom Action sustainable. ,

11. By and And where in an action for the price of goods, for which the plaintiff had received bills from the defendant, it appeared that the bills had been transferred to a third person, and remained in his hands dishonoured until just before the trial, and were then handed to the plaintiff, it was held he might recov-So where the plaintiff was not, at the time when the defendant was arrested, in possession of the bill of exchange on which the action was brought, it being in the possession of persons to whom the plaintiff was indebted, and to whom he had indorsed it over, but it appeared that those persons only held the bill as trustees for the plaintiff, and that they were ready to give up possession of the bill to the plaintiff for the purposes of the suit; it was held, that the defendant was not entitled to be discharged out of cus-Where a merchant, carrying on trade on his own separate account, introduced into his firm the name of a clerk, who had no participation in profit or loss, but continued to receive a fixed salary, it was held, that in an action on a bill of exchange payable to the order of this firm, the clerk must be joined as a plaintiff (p), unless it be distinctly proved that be had no interest (q). But where a bill or note is indorsed in blank, any number of persons may sue on it, though not in partnership together; and so if the bill or note be indorsed in blank to a partnership, the whole members thereof need not join in the action; nor, if one of them die, need the rest sue as surviving partners, for the indorsement in blank conveys a joint right of action to as many as agree in suing jointly on the bill(r). So if several persons, not partners, separately indorse, for the accommodation of the drawer, a bill of exchange which has been previously indorsed by another in blank, Several Plaintiffs.

that the declaration states an indorsement and delivery immediately from the [*536] defendant to *the plaintiffs(s). But where a bill had been specially indorsed, or specifically delivered to A. B. and Co. who were bankers, on the account of the estate of an insolvent, it was held, that two of the firm could not, conjointly with a trustee who was not a partner in the bank, join in an action against the acceptor, without some evidence of the actual transfer of the bill to them as trustees, by the firm, by delivery or otherwise (t)(1). party, who has commenced an action on a bill, deposit it afterwards as a security in the hands of a third person, he may still proceed in the action if the latter knew that the action was commenced; and if such third person, having had this notice, commence another action against the same defendant, the court will stay his proceedings (u)(2). And the drawer of a bill, after takand, on the bill being dishonoured, pay the then holder in equal portions, they may strike out their own indorsements and bring a joint action against such first indorsers to recover the amount of the bill; and it is no variance

(n) Burden v. Halton, 4 Bing 454; 1 Moo. & P. 223; 3 Car. & P. 174, (Chit. j. 1374).

(a) Stones v. Butt, 2 Crom. & M. 416; 2

Dowl. 335, S. C. (p) Guidon v. Robson, 2 Campb. 302, (Chit. j. 779). (q) 1 Chitty on Pleading, 6th edit. 11, 12. (r) Attwood v. Rattenbury, 6 Moore, 579. (Chit. j. 1131); Ord v. Portal, 3 Campb. 239, (Chit. j. 861); Rordosnz v. Leach, 1 Stark. R. 446, (Chit. j. 977); post, Ch. V. s. 1, Evidence-Plaintiff's Interest. (s) Low and others v. Copestake, 3 Car. &

P. 300, (Chit. j. 1376). (t) Machel and others v. Kinnear, 1 Stark.

Rep. 499, (Chit. j. 981), sed quære.
(u) Marsh v. Newell, 1 Taunt. 109, (Chit. 745); ante, 224, note (r); Jones r. Lane, 3 Jurist, 265; ante, 219, note (a); Columbier v. Slim, 2 Chit. R. 637; ante, 217, note (l) And see the observations of Abbott, J. in Randall v. Bell, 1 Maule & S. 723.

to the hands of a prior indorser, or of the payee, it would be competent for such person as the holder to strike out the indersement and sue in his own name. Ib.

ance of the suit. Hall v. Gentry, 1 Marsh. 555.

^{(1) {} Where an instrument is jointly executed to several, one of the joint payees, or his assignee, may sue in the name of all without their consent. Wright r. M'Lemore, 10 Yerg. 286. } (2) An assignment of a note made during the pendency of a suit, operates as a discontinuing it up, may sue a bankrupt acceptor, who has not obtained his certificate, II. By and although a previous holder has proved under the commission (x).

whom Action may

The bona fide holder of a bill, check, or note, claiming under a regular in- be sustain-, dorsement or transfer, may, in general, maintain an action thereon against all ed. the parties whose names are to it, and who became so previously to him- Holder self(y)(1), but not against any subsequent party(z). Thus the payee may, in may sue all default of payment, sue the acceptor, whether he accepted as drawee, or ties. merely for the honour of the drawer; and he may also in such case sue the An indorsee may, in general, not only sue the acceptor and drawer, but also all the prior indorsers; and an assignee by mere delivery may sue the acceptor, drawer, and indorsers, but he cannot maintain an action against any person whose name is not on the bill, except the person who transferred it to him(a), and then only when the consideration of the transfer was a precedent debt, or a debt arising at the time, and not when he became the holder, by discounting the bill upon a purchase thereof, as sometimes occurs(b). An intended indorsee, when a bill has by neglect been transferred to him, without a regular indorsement, may sue in the name of the payee(c). A person to whom the drawer of a bill, accepted for value, had indorsed it after dishonour, and after it had been paid by such drawer, may sue the acceptor in his own name (d). But where a bill was drawn by the plaintiffs upon J. W. and indorsed by the plaintiffs to the defendant, and re-indorsed by him to the plaintiffs to secure the payment by J. W., it was held that the plaintiffs had no remedy on the bill as such, and that the declaration must be special, showing the consideration and special contract, and there not appearing any consideration for the defendant's undertaking to indorse, &c. he could not be sued thereon(e).

*The drawer may maintain an action on the bill against the acceptor, in Drawer's case of a refusal to pay a bill already accepted, but not on a refusal to accept, right of Action. in which latter case the action by him must be special on the contract to ac- [*537] cept(f); and any party who has given value for the bill, and has been obliged to pay in consequence of the default of the acceptor, may maintain an action thereon against all the parties antecedent to himself, and in this case he is said to hold the bill in his original capacity (g); and the drawer of a bill, payable to the order of a third person, may, when the bill has been returned to him, and he has paid it, sue the acceptor(h). So an indorser, who has (x) Mead v. Braham, 3 Maule & S. 91, (Chit. j. 911).

(y) Bishop v. Hayward, 4 T. R. 471, (Chit. j. 492); ante, 26, note (0); see Knight v. Legh, 6 Law J. 128, C. P.; ante, 534, note (a), S. P.; Britten v. Webb, 2 Bar. & Cres. 483; 8 Dowl. & Ryl. 650, (Chit. j. 1198); ante, 26, note (o); Bayl. 5th ed. 330; Roscoe on Bills, 383.

(z) Id. ibid.

nr.

: ;:

ري سير. ا

1000

.

g 1

. . 3. . .

- 412

3/21.

فعادي

31. 180°

. . .

1 :22

2.5

عَقْد إ

(a) Ante, 244, 245. (b) Id. ibid.

(c) Pearse v. Hirst, 10 Barn. & Cres. 122; 5 Man. & Ryl. 88, (Chit. j. 1456).

(d) See Callow v. Lawrence, 3 Maule & S. 97, (Chit. j. 911); ante, 223, which explains Bacon v. Searles, 1 Hen. Bla. 88, (Chit. j.

(e) Britten v. Webb, 2 B. & C. 483; 3 Dow. & Ryl. 650, (Chit. j. 1198); and Bishop r. Hayward, ante, 26, note (o), 241, 242, note (f); sed vide Penny v. lunes, 1 C., M. & R. 439; 5 Tyr. 107, S. C.; ante, 242, note(g); see also, post, 537, note (s).

(f) Ante, 281. (g) Cowley v. Dunlop, 7 T. R. 571, (Chit. j. 598); Death r. Serwonters, Lutw. 885, 888, (Chit. j. 167); Bosanquet v. Dudman, 1 Stark. Rep. 2, 3, (Chit. j. 904).

(h) Symonds v. Parminter, 1 Wils. 185; 4 Bro. P. C. 604; S. C. Louviere v. Laubray, 10 Mod. 36, (Chit. j. 230).

^{(1) {} The holder of negotiable paper may bring an action upon it in the name of a person having no interest in it; and it is no defence that the suit be thus brought without the knowledge, assent, or authority of the nominal plaintiff. Gage v. Kendall, 15 Wend. 640. }

CHAP

gagen tv for iodent

perso sidera suit o

II Was

forfei

li of act forma

ed th

50 CO note, be or

11 Thab

loint

90r:

1

loit.

iles a

Childe

00.11

br a

Ċve

1 - 1

1 144

u .g V., 15÷ 31 œ

1;

llex

571.

Lon Mic)

Mr.

()

1:

4 M

Wa

000 rt;

Mr.

del

擊

W

whom Acsustainable.

II. By and been obliged to pay a part, may sue the acceptor for it, although the bill is not in his hands, but remains outstanding, and although the acceptor remains liable to an action for the balance at the suit of the holder(i).

Remedy of accommodation Acceptor. &c.

Where the holder of a bill sued the acceptor, and charged him in execution, and the latter having obtained his discharge under the Lords' Act(k), the holder then sued the drawer, who, after paying the bill sued the acceptor, and charged him in execution, this was held to be regular (1). In the case of an acceptance for the accommodation of the drawer, such acceptor, if he has been obliged to pay, may sue the drawer on his implied contract to indemnify him, but not on the bill itself(m)(1) though we have seen that he may retain money in his hands as an indemnity (n); and a person not originally party to a bill, having paid it supra protest, may maintain an action against all or any of the parties to it, except the person whom he paid, or a person subsequent to the party for whose particular honour he paid(o); but the bail of the maker of a promissory note, who have paid it, cannot sue the indorsers (p), and a banker who pays the acceptance of a customer, who has made it payable at his banking-house, but who has no funds there, cannot sue thereon, as he does not stand in the situation of a party paying supra protest(q)(2).

Non-liability of subsequent Parties.

It has been held that, except under circumstances, which must be specially stated on the record, no action can be maintained on a bill or note against a person who became party to it subsequently to the holder or plaintiff, for if it were otherwise, the defendant in such action might, as an indorsee deriving from the plaintiff, be entitled to recover back again, in another action against the plaintiff, the identical sum which he, the plaintiff, had previously recovered from him, which would introduce a circuity of action, which the law will not permit; and therefore where A. declared against B. on a promissory note made by C. to A. and indorsed by him to B., and by B. again indorsed to A., and A. obtained a verdict, the judgment was arrested (r). But according to a more recent authority it seems, that in the [*538] case of *a bill, such second indorser is chargeable in the character of a new drawer(s); though it is otherwise in the case of a promissory note(t). It is also a general rule, that each party to a bill is bound to perform his own en-

(i) Pownall v. Ferrand, 6 Barn. & Cres. 489; Ryan & Moo. 407; 9 Dowl. & Ryl. 603, (Ch. j. 1827)

(k) Now repealed by 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, s.

(1) Macdonald v. Bovington, 4 T. R. 825, (Chit. j. 497); and Mead v. Braham, 8 Maule & S. 91, (Chit. j. 911).

(m) Young v. Hockley, 3 Wils. 346.

(n) Ante, 318.

(o) Ante, 544; 1 Pardess. 441; Mertens v.

Winnington, 1 Esp. R. 112, (Chit. j. 523).
(p) Hall v. Pitfield, 1 Wils. 46; Bayl. 5th edit. 329.

(q) Holroyd v. Whitehead, 5 Taunt. 444; 1 Marsh. 128; 3 Campb. 580, (Chit. j. 905). (r) Bishop v. Hayward, 4 T. R. 470, (Chit.

j. 492); Mainwaring v. Newman, 2 B. & P. 125, (Chit. j. 623); Britten v. Webb, 2 B. & C. 483; 3 Dowl. & Ryl. 650, (Chit. j. 1198); ante, 26, note (o). See also Carr v. Stevens, ante, 26, note (o). See also Carr v. Stevens, 9 B. & C. 758; 4 Man. Ryl. 591, (Chit. j. 1444).

(s) Penny v. Innes, 1 C., M. & R. 439; 5 Tyr. 107, S. C.; ante, 242, note (g).

(t) Gwinnell v. Herbert, 5 Ad. & El. 486; 6 Nev. & Man. 723, S. C.; ante, 242, note (h).

The drawes of an accommodation bill may sustain an action on the bill against the drawer, if he pays the same, the drawer not having funds in his hands, &c. Bacchus v. Richmond, 5

Yerger's Rep. 109.

(2) The acceptor of a bill of exchange, who, at the time of acceptance, had no funds in his hands belonging to the drawer, although he has not paid the bill, may sue the drawer, if he has done something equivalent to payment; as if he is in confinement under a ca. sa. at the suit of the holder. Parker v. The United States, Peters' Rep. 262. See as to the right of the acceptor of a bill of exchange to sue, ib. 267.

gagement, and consequently a drawer or indorser cannot sue any other par- II. By and ty for the costs he has incurred, unless there has been a special contract of against indemnity (u). Nor can a party, in general, maintain an action against the tion susperson from whom he received the bill, unless he gave him a valuable con-tainable. sideration for it(x).

We have before seen what objections may be taken in an action at the suit of a person attempting to derive an interest in a bill by a transfer after it was due or paid (y); and what laches in the holder of a bill will operate as a forfeiture of his right of action(z).

If the holder of a bill make the acceptor his executor, and die, the right Effect of of action at law against all the parties is extinguished, unless the executor Acceptor And where the payee and holder of a note appoint- or Maker formally renounces (a). ed the maker his executor, it was, we have seen, holden that the debt was Executor. so completely discharged, that an action could not be maintained on the note, even by the person to whom the executor indorsed it(b). But it would be otherwise if the maker were merely appointed an administrator(c).

Where a note made by more than one party is joint and several, it is ad- Joint and visable to proceed in separate actions, if there be any doubt in proving the several joint liability of all(d), or they be not all solvent persons, or one is likely shortly to die.

Whenever the holder of a bill, &c. has a remedy against several parties Several acto it, he may commence and proceed in several actions against each of those par-tions at ties at the same time(e); and an action commenced against one will not preclude any other remedy against the others(1); but as the different persons liable on the bill are debtors to the holder in respect of the same debt, satisfaction by any one will discharge the others from liability as to the principal sum due on the bill (f), and if *the holder reject an offer by a drawer or indors- [*539]

(u) Dawson v. Morgan, 9 B. & C. 618, (Ch. j 1440). Sed quære, in an action by the drawer against the acceptor; Stovin v. Taylor, 1 Nev. & Man. 250, 251; in Dawson v. Morgan the action was by an indorser against the ac-

(x) Ante, 69, 70, 74, 75; Mitchinson v. Hewson, 7 T. R. 850; Cowley v. Dunlop, id. 571, (Chit. j. 598); Death v. Serwonters, 1 Lutw. 886, (Chit. j. 167); Simmonds v. Parminter, 1 Wils. 185, (Chit. j. 321); 4 Bro. P. C. 704, acc.; 2 Bla. Com. 446, contra; but see Mr. Christian's note, and Chitty's edition.

(y) Ante, 213 to 224

Fitt.

2.4

200

1: 20 00

221

_ 22 E.e

S 12 6

.... 自工事

July 1978 15 . 2. 25

14 . 18

1:1:5

1 b. #

-- 1: C 2 31 H 1

, j:

, TI

157 14

.

: 8 4

13 th 1

, Nº 5

T 🕸

1 850

& 3 P

. 9. 7

، تتم يها

(z) Ante, 325, 342, 389, 499.

(a) Freakley v. Fox, 9 Barn. & Cres. 180; 4 Man. & Ryl. 18, (Chit. j. 1418); infra, note (b); Poth. pl. 191; 1 Rol. Abr. 922; Woodward v. Lord Darcey, Plowd. 184; Para-mour v. Yardley, id. 542; Wankford v. Wankford, 1 Salk. 299; 2 Bla. Com. 511, 512; 3 Bla. Com. 18; Mainwaring v. Newman, 2 B. & P. 124, 125, (Chit. j. 628).

(b) Freakley v. Fox, 9 Barn. & Cres. 130; 4 Man. & Ry. 18, (Chit. j. 1418); ante, 201, 213; 2 Bla. Com. 512, note 45. A bill or note which has been once paid and re-delivered to the maker, cannot be negotiated so as to give a title even to a bond fide holder; 55 Geo. 3, c. 184, s. 19; Bartrum v. Caddy, 1 Perry & Dav.

207; ante, 108, note (e).
(c) Sir John Needham's case, 8 Co. 184, cited in last case. See ante. 313.

(d) Gray v. Palmer, 1 Esp. R. 135, 136.

(Chit. j. 525).

(c) The same law prevails in France; and there all the parties may be sued jointly, or each separately; 1 Pardess. 453.

(f) Windham v. Withers, 1 Stra. 515; Po-thier, pl. 160; Burgess v. Merrell, 4 Taunt.

And in any such action any person or persons sued, is entitled to set off his or their demands against the plaintiff, in the same manner as though such defendant or defendants had been sued in the form formerly used. 2 R. S. 2d ed. 274, 5, §§, 6, 9. }

^{(1) {} In the State of New York, it is provided by Statute, that the holder of any bill of exchange or promissory note, may, instead of bringing separate suits against the drawers, makers, indorsers and acceptors of such bill or note, include all or any of the said parties to the bill or note in one action, and proceed to judgment and execution in the same manner as though all the defendants were joint contractors.

against whom Action sustainable. Several Actions at same Time.

II. By and er of a bill to pay debt and costs of the action against him, the court will make an order to restrain the holder from taking out execution; though if the money be paid pending several actions against other parties to the bill, the plaintiff may, without reserving any part of the principal money, proceed in the actions for the recovery of the costs(g). Formerly, the acceptor of a bill or maker of a note could not, before judgment, stay proceedings on payment of the debt and of the costs of the action against himself, without also paying the costs of other actions against different parties to the same bill or note, but now, since the rule of Trinity Term, 1 Vict. 1838, he is at liberty to stay proceedings on payment of the debt and of the costs of the action against himself only (h). Where a party was sued jointly with others as drawers, and separately as acceptor of a bill, the court considering him liable in the two characters, which could not be comprised in the same declaration, and the plaintiff entitled to the remedies, refused to stay the proceedings in one as vexatious(i). A fieri facias sued out and afterwards waived does not discharge other parties (k).

Satisfaction by One of several Parties.

It is settled, that when two persons are severally as well as jointly bound in a bond, and one of them be taken in execution in a separate action, the other may nevertheless be sued, because the taking another's person in execution is but the mere security for the payment of a debt, and not a valuable satisfaction of it(l). It was made a question in the last century how far this doctrine was applicable to bills of exchange; but it is now settled that a judgment(m), or even an execution, against the person of any one of the parties to the bill, will not discharge the others, though with respect to him it is a full satisfaction of the debt(n). It is also settled, that the holder's letting a subsequent indorser in execution out of prison on a letter of license, will not discharge a prior indorser from his liability to pay the bill(0); and that if an acceptor be discharged under an Insolvent Debtors' Act, such discharge will not operate in favour of any other person(p). er of a bill accept a bond from the drawer, or any other party, in satisfaction of it, such act will discharge other subsequent parties (q); and we have 468, (Chit. j. 869); Ex parte Wildman, 2 Ves. sen. 115, (Chit. j. 330). Lord Hardwicke: "In cases of bills of exchange or promissory notes, where there is a drawer and indorser, perhaps there may be more than one judgment against all, but there can be but one satisfaction."

Windham v. Withers, 1 Stra. 515. The plaintiff having obtained judgment against the drawer and indorser of a note, the principal in one and the costs in both were offered him, which he refused, and the court granted a rule to restrain him from taking out execution, and intimated that they would have punished him, had he taken out execution upon both judg-

Claxton v. Swift, 2 Show. 441, 494; Lutw. 882, (Chit. j. 167, 168, 171). To an action against the indorser of a bill, the defendant pleaded, that the plaintiff had recovered a judgment against the drawer, and that the judgment was still in force, and upon demurrer the Court of King's Bench held the plea good, but the Court of Exchequer Chamber held otherwise, and the judgment was reversed.

(g) Toms v. Powell, 7 East, 536; 6 Esp. Rep. 40, S. C.; 3 East, 316; 3 Campb. 331; Holt, C. N. P. 6.

(h) See post, Ch. III. s. ii. As to the Motion to stay Proceedings on Payment of Debt and Costs.

(i) Wise v. Prowse, 9 Price, 393, (Chit. j. 1111).

(k) Pole v. Ford, 2 Chit. Rep. 125, (Chit. j. 958).

(1) Blemfield's case, 5 Co. 86; Clerk r. Withers, Lord Raym. 1072; 1 Salk. 322, S. C.; Claxton v. Swift, 2 Show. 494, (Chit. j. 167, 168, 171); Foster v. Jackson, Hob. 59.

(m) Ayrey v. Davenport, 2 New R. 474, (Chit. j. 736); Claxton v. Swift, 3 Mod. 87; 2 Show. 494; Lutw. 878, 882, (Chit. j. 167, 168, 171); ante, 538, note (f); Tarleton v. Alhusen, 2 Ad. & El. 32; ante, 401, note (b).

(a) Id. ibid.; Macdonald v. Bovington, 4

T. R. 823, (Chit. j. 497).

(o) Ante, 418; Hayling v. Mulhall, 2 Bla. Rep. 1235, (Chit. j. 400); English v. Darley, 2 Bos. & Pul. 61; 3 Esp. 49, (Chit. j. 620); Clark r. Clement, 6 T. R. 525.

(p) Macdonald v. Bovington, 4 T. R. 825, (Chit. j. 457); Nadin v. Battie, 5 East, 147.

(q) Anle, 409; Claxton e. Swift, 8 Mod. 87, (Chit. j. 167, 168, 171); English e. Darley, 2 Bos. & Pul. 61; 3 Esp. 49, (Chit. j. 620).

- 7187

- 7.1

....

11:12

20 . 10, 12

-;'x. i

R 😘 ¢ 14° $\ln 5$ before seen (r), that compromising with the acceptor, without the assent of II. By and the drawer or indorsers, will sometimes *release them from their engage- against Actual payment of what is due will, of course, discharge the parties; and though the holder of a bill may issue execution against the person tainable. of all the parties, he cannot, after levying the full amount of the debt on the [*540] goods of one, issue a fieri facias to affect the goods of another, except as to costs in the action against the latter(s). The right to sue in the case of a renewed bill has already been considered (t).

If a party sue on a bill, and after the action is commenced another bill Consolidataccepted, by the same defendant, of which the plaintiff is the holder, is dishonoured, and he bring a second action on that, a judge at chambers will, at least when the last action is by serviceable process, on application being made, direct the two actions to be consolidated (u).

(r) Ante, 408, 409, &c. (t) Ante, 180, 181. (u) Oldershaw v. Tregwell, 3 Car. & P. 58, (s) Windham v. Withers, 1 Stra. 515; ante, 538, note (f). See as to Part Payment ante, (Chit. j. 1367). 417, 418.

*CHAPTER II.

OF THE AFFIDAVIT TO HOLD TO BAIL-ARREST-BAIL ABOVE, AND DECLARATION ON A BILL, &c.

I. OF THE AFFIDAVIT TO HOLD TO	ı	Rule of
BAIL	541	Of the sever
Requisites of	ib.	Costs of
Statement of the Cause of Action	ib.	Particulars
Must state Character in which De-	. 1	FIRST, On fendant became Party to Bill	543	1. Statem
But Character in which Plaintiff sues		Of Va
need not be shewn	ib.	Ŏf Am
Misnomer, &c. when cured	544	15, a
Judge's Order to Hold to Bail.—ib.		2. How 1
Provisions of 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110	ib.	3. Plaint
II. OF THE ARREST	546	4. Breach
Abolition of, except in certain cases	ib.	Pres
Of Insolvent Debtors, when	ib.	Prote
Of Married Women	547	oui
III. OF BAIL ABOVE	548	SECONDLY,
Who may be	ib. (and what
In what Amount	ib.	them
Liability of, to what extent	549	In genera
IV. OF THE DECLARATION	ib.	Money les
When on Instrument or Consideration	ib.	Paid
Title of Declaration	ib.	Had .
Venue, and when it may be changed Forms of Declarations regulated by	550	Account s

Rule of Court	551
Of the several Counts	557
Costs of	558
Particulars of Demand	ib.
FIRST, On the Bill, Note, or Check	560
1. Statement of the Instrument	ió.
Of Variances	ib.
Of Amendment under 9 Geo. 4, c.
15, and 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42	567
2. How Defendant became a Party	569
3. Plaintiff's Interest	571
4. Breach of Contract, &c. viz.	573
Presentment for Payment, &c.	574
Protest and Notice of Dishon-
	576
SECONDLY, On the Common Counts, and what Evidence in support of 578
In general	ib.
	579
	580 581
	582

I. OF THE AFFIDAVIT TO HOLD TO BAIL.

I. Of the hold to Bail. Requisites of.

Action.

Before the 1 and 2 Vict. c. 110, for abolishing arrest on mesne process Affidavit to in civil actions, except in certain cases, in order to arrest a party in an action on a bill of exchange or promissory note, the statutes 12 Geo. 1, c. 29, and 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 71, required that an affidurit should be made and filed of the cause of action, and by the terms of the latter act, the sum due on the This affidavit must have been cerinstrument must have amounted to 201. Statement of tain and explicit, and so positive as to a substituting and continuing debt, that in case it were untrue, the party making it would have been liable to an indictment for perjury (a). It was well observed, that the strictness required in these affidavits was not only to guard defendants against consequences of perjury but also those who made the affidavit against any misconception of the law; and that the leaning should always be to great strictness of construction, where one party was to be deprived of his liberty by the act of another(b). There had been some contradiction in the cases in the King's Bench

> (a) Tidd, 9th edit. 182; Tucker v. Francis, 4 Bing. 142. Therefore an affidavit by a bank-rupt that defendant was indebted to deponent before his bankruptcy, and, as he believes, is still indebted to his assignees on a bill accepted by defendant, and indorsed by the drawer to the deponent, and, as he believes, is still unpaid, is insufficient, as a payment to the assign-ees may have taken place; id. ibid. But an affidavit that defendant was indebted to plaintiff in 201., for money lent on a bill of exchange drawn by S., accepted by defendant, and overdue and unpaid, was held sufficient, without saying "lent to defendant;" Bennett v. Dawson, 4 Bing. 609; and 1 Moore & P. 594, (Chit. j. 1386).

(b) Per Lord Ellenborough, in Taylor r.

Forbes, 11 East, 316; and see Bradshaw v. Saddington, 7 East, 94; 3 Smith, 117, S. C.

Common Pleas(c), but from the more recent *cases it appears that and I. Of the the practice of both the courts had become uniform (d).

In the first place, it was necessary that the affidavit on a bill should describe it as a bill, and not as "an instrument called a bill(e)." And though at Requisites one time it was considered unnecessary to state the sum for which the bill or of note was drawn(f), and it sufficed to swear "that the defendant was indebt-Statement ed to the deponent in the sum of £ upon the balance of a bill, drawn by the of cause of drawer upon and accepted by the defendant, and due at a day past(g); yet Action. it was afterwards settled, that the amount for which the bill or note was drawn must be specified in the affidavit, on the ground that otherwise part of the sum sworn to might consist of interest, for which a party could not legally be arrested(h). Nor, it seems, was it sufficient to swear that the defendant was indebted in "principal monies" due on a bill of exchange, without also stating the amount for which the bill was drawn(i); although it sufficed to state that the defendant was indebted in £— on a promissory note "drawn and made payable for the like sum(k)." In an action against the maker of a note, or the acceptor of a bill, who are primarily liable, it was necessary to state in the affidavit that it was due, or at least to shew the date, and when it was payable, for, otherwise, the party being primarily liable, the affidavis that he was indebted might be true, and yet the note or bill might not be due at the time of swearing the affidavit, inasmuch as the maker of a promissory note, or the acceptor of a bill, becomes debtor immediately, though the instrument be payable at a future day, it being debitum in paæsenti solvendum in futuro(1). And the same point was determined in the Court of Common Pless, in an action against the acceptor of a bill(m). And though in an action against the indorser of a bill or note, who can only be liable in default of the acceptor or maker, and whose liability is only collateral and conditional, it had been decided not to be necessary to shew that the bill or note was overdue, because this case was distinguishable from the former, on the ground that the party being described as an indorser, and as such only a collateral security, could not be indebted, unless the bill had become due and been dishonoured (n); yet it was afterwards settled that an affidavit to hold to bail, which stated that the defendant was indebted to the plaintiff as the drawer of a bill, was not sufficient, unless it also stated that the bill was due(o). *And [*543]

(c) Tidd, 9th edit. 148.

.

(d) See Machu v. Fraser, 7 Taunt. 171, 173, (Chit. j. 791).

(e) Dewsbury v. Willis, M'Clel. 366, (Chit. j. 1226).

(f) Hanley v. Morgan, 2 C. & J. 331; 1 Dowl. P. C. 322; 10 Law J. 79, Exch.; Lewis v. Gompertz, 2 C. & J. 352; 1 Dowl. P. C. 319, S. C.

(g) Walmesley v. Dibdin, 4 Moore & P. 10.
(h) Brook v. Coleman, 2 Dowl. P. C. 7;
Westmacott v. Cook, 2 Dowl. P. C. 519; Molineux r. Dorman, 3 Dowl. P. C. 662; and see Latreille v. Hoepner, 2 Dowl. P. C. 758; 3 Moore & S. 801, S. C. (i) Fowell v. Petre, 5 Dowl. P. C. 276. (k) Daley v. Mahon, 6 Dowl. P. C. 192.

Semble, where a claim was made for principal and interest, and a sum and date were mentioned, from which interest could be computed, it was sufficient; Rogers r. Godbold, 8 Dowl.

(1) Per Bayley, J. in Jackson v. Yate, 2 Maule & S. 149, (Chit. j. 896); Kirk v. Al-mond, 2 C. & J. 354; 1 Dowl. P. C. 318, S.

C.; and see Holcombe v. Lambkin, 2 Maule & S. 475; and Edwards v. Dick, 3 Bar. & Ald. 495, (Chit. j. 1079); 1 D. & R. 148. Stating that defendant was indebted to plaintiff as acceptor of a bill of exchange, was too general; Perks v. Severn, 7 East, 194; 8 Smith, 339, S. C.

(m) Machu r. Fraser, 7 Taunt. 174, (Chit.

(n) Per Bayley, J. in Jackson v. Yate, 2 Maule & S. 149; Davison v. March, 1 New Rep. 157, (Chit j 713); Holcombs r. Lambkin, 2 Maule & S. 475.

(o) Edwards v. Dick, 3 Bar. & Ald. 495, (Chit. j. 1079); and see Sands v. Graham, 4 Moore, 18; Machu v. Fraser, 7 Taunt. 171; Holcombe v. Lambkin, 2 Maule & S. 475. Semble, an affidavit stating that defendant was indebted to plaintiff on a bill of exchange, payable to a third person at a day then past, was sufficient, without stating at what day the bill was payable, or shewing the connection between the payee and the plaintiff; Elston v. Mortlake, 1 Chit. Rep. 648; and see Sands v Graham, 4 Moore, 18; Lamb v. Newcombe, I. Of the Atlidavit to hold to Bail.

Requisites of.

where the affidavit setting out a bill of exchange gave wrong dates, which shewed that the bill was not actually due, the court refused to assist the plaintiff, and ordered the defendant to be discharged out of custody(p). But an affidavit stating that a bill was over-due, without stating that it was still unpaid, was held to be sufficiently certain that a debt existed (q). In an affidavit against the drawer or indorser, the default of the acceptor must also have been alleged (r); although where the default of the acceptor was alleged, it was unnecessary to state a presentment or notice(s). And in order to hold to bail in trover for a bill of exchange, it was necessary to state in the affidavit that such bill remained unpaid, as well as the value (t).

Must shew to Bill.

The affidavit must also have shewn in what character the defendant becharacter in came a party to the bill or note, whether as drawer, acceptor, or indorser, which De-fendant be- for otherwise he might not be hable on the bill, but merely as a guarantee, came Party in which case the nature of his engagement must have been stated, as the statute required an affidavit of the cause of action, and the distinction was between the omission of the plaintiff's title to sue, and the character in which the defendant stood(u). And, therefore, an affidavit stating that the desendant was indebted to the plaintist in the sum of 951., as the indorsee of a certain bill of exchange, drawn by one T. Winslow, without stating how the defendant became liable, whether as acceptor or indorser, was held insufficient(v); the term indorsee being descriptive of the relation of the plaintiff to the bill, and not of the defendant (x). So an affidavit that the defendant was indebted to deponent upon a promissory note for 10,000l., in favour of Elbree, and duly indorsed, without saying by him, was insufficient(y). So it was irregular in an affidavit to hold to bail to say that a bill of exchange purported to be indorsed by a party (z).

But charac-Plaintiff sues need not be sbewn.

But it was not necessary for the affidavit to shew that the bill or note was ter in which negotiable (a), or to specify in what particular character the debt was due to the plaintiff, whether he claimed as payee or indorsee, for if he had no interest in the bill on which he could sue the defendant, he would have been guilty of perjury, and would have been liable to an action for maliciously holding the defendant to bail(b); and though it was once decided otherwise in the Court of Common Pleas(c), yet it was afterwards observed by that court, that such decision took place without the case of Bradshaw v. Sad-

> Moore, 14; Warmsley r. Macy, 5 Moore,
> 52; 2 Brod. & Bing. 338, 343, S. C.; 2 D. & R. 148. Not necessary to give date of bill when stated to be over-due; Shirley v. Jacobs, 8 Dowl. P. C. 101, 103; Irving v. Heaton, 4 Dowl. P. C. 638.

(p) Jadis v. Williams, 5 Law J. 136, K. B., (q) Morgan's case, 1 Law J. 156, K. B.; and see Phillips v. Turner, 3 Dowl. P. C. 163.

(r) Buckworth v. Levy, 7 Bing. 251; 5 M. & P. 23; 9 Law J. 69, C. P.; 5 Car. & P. 23; 1 Dowl. 211, S. C.; Cross v. Morgan, 1 Dowl. 122; Banting v. Jadis, 1 Dowl. 445; Simpson v. Dick, 3 Dowl. P. C. 731; Crosby v. Clark, 5 Dowl. 62; Jones v. Collins, 5 Dowl. P. C. 526. Tamen vide Weedon v. Medley, 2 Dowl. P. C. 689; Irving v. Heaton, 4 Dowl. P.

(s) Witham v. Gompertz, 2 C., M. & R. 736; 4 Dowl. P. C. 382; and see Crosby v. Clark, 1 M. & W. 296 to 299; 5 Dowl. 62 to 84. Tamen vide Caunce v. Rigby, 3 M. & W. 67.

(t) Clark v. Cawthorn, 7 T. R. 321, (Chit. j. 586).

(u) Humphries v. Williams, 2 Marsh. 231; 6 Taunt 531, S. C.

(v) Id. ibid.

(x) Note, in Machu v. Fraser, 7 Taunt. 172,

(Chit. j. 794).

(y) M'Taggart v. Ellice, 4 Bing. 114; 12
Moore, 326, S. C.; Lewis v. Gompertz, 2 C.
& J. 352; 1 Dowl. P. C. 319, S. C. But an affidavit that defendant was indebted on a bill drawn and accepted by him, was sufficient; Harrison v. Rigby, 3 M. & W. 66; 6 Dowl. P.

(z) Lorie v. Longster, 3 Law J. 55, K. B. (a) Hughes v. Brett, 6 Bing. 239; 3 Moore & P. 566; 8 Law J. 39, C. P., (Chit. j. 1446).
(b) Per curiam, in Bradshaw v. Saddington.

7 East, 94; 3 Smith, 117, S. C: (c) Balb v. Batley, 1 March. 424; 6 Taunt.

25, (Chit. j. 923).

1. 1

13

1. 15

.....

1.82

21: H

1.4. 3

100 et it I

24 (3

1 321 (S

Next ?

 $\mathfrak{p}_{\mathfrak{k}_{j}}$

, 10

dington having been cited; and in a subsequent case that court determined to I. Of the adopt the practice of the *Court of King's Bench(d). So an affidavit of Affidavit to debt, that the plaintiff accepted a bill for the honour of the defendant, and Bail that he was obliged to pay it himself, was sufficiently certain; and in such a Requisites case it was not at variance to declare simply on the money count(e). How- of. ever, an affidavit stating that the defendant was indebted to deponent as li- [*544] quidator, duly appointed by the law of France, of the estate of V. and T. by virtue of a promissory note drawn in France by defendant, was irregular, unless it were shewn that by the law of France such a liquidator was entitled to sue(f).

Where a party to a bill had signed his christian name only with initials, Misnomer, and application had been made to him for his name, and he had refused to &c. when disclose it, and all possible inquiries had been made to ascertain it without effect, it was held, that the affidavit and proceedings might state only his initials, and that the court would not discharge him on common bail, or set aside the proceedings (g). And although in a subsequent case that doctrine was over-ruled(h), yet it was afterwards provided by rule of court, that if after diligent inquiry the full name or proper name of an intended defendant could not be ascertained, he might be arrested and sued by his initials or wrong name(i). It was also enacted by the 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42, s. 12, that it should be sufficient, as well in the affidavit to hold to bail as in the process or declaration, to describe the defendant in the same manner as that in which he had signed the bill or note.

The courts would not in general receive a contradictory affidavit on the part of the defendant(k). But this was discretionary in the courts, and instances have occured of late where the court has interfered to relieve the defendant either from prison, or from the necessity for justifying bail in a suspicious case (l).

Since the 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, no party can be arrested except upon a Provisions judge's order, founded on an affidavit stating, in addition to the cause of action Vict. c. as above-mentioned, that such party is about to quit England. That stat- 110. ute, after enacting, sect. 1, that from and after the 1st October, 1838, no person shall be arrested upon mesne process in any civil action in any inferior court whatsoever, or (except in the cases and in the manner thereinafter provided for) in any superior court; and, sect. 2, that all personal actions in the superior courts shall be commenced by writ of summons; enacts, sect. 3, "That if a plaintiff in any action in any of her Majesty's superior courts Judge's of law at Westminster, in which the defendant is now liable to arrest, hold to whether upon the order of a judge or without such order, shall, by the affidavit of himself or some other person, shew, to the satisfaction of a judge of one of the said superior courts, that such plaintiff has a cause of action against the defendant or defendants to the amount of twenty pounds or upwards, or has sustained damage to that amount, and that there is probable cause for believing that the defendant or any one or *more of the defend- [*545]

R. 18; Tidd, 9th edit. 183,

(g) Howell r. Coleman, 2 B. & P. 466.

(h) Reynolds v. Hankin, 4 B. & Ald. 536; 2 D. & R. 73, 237.

(i) See Rule H. T. 2 W. 4, 1832, s. 32 (k) Tidd, 9th edit. 189. See Isaacs r. Silver, 11 Moore, 348, (Chit. j. 1292).

(1) Chambers v. Bernasconi and another, 6 Bing. 498; 4 Moo. & P. 218; Tidd, 9th edit. 189; Hutt r. Capelin, 5 Scott, 415.

⁽d) Machu v. Fraser, 7 Taunt. 171, (Chit. j. 794); Lamb v. Newcombe, 5 Moore, 14; 2 B. & B. 338, 345, (Chit. j. 1094); James c. Trevanion, 5 Dowl. P. C. 275; and see Humphries v. Williams, 2 Marsh. 231; 6 Taunt. 531, in which Gibbs, C. J. adverted to the distinction between the plaintiff's title and the defendant's liability.

⁽e) Brookes r. Clarke, I Law J. 29, K. B.; 2 D. & R. 148, S. C.

⁽f) Tenon v. Mars, 8 B. & C. 638; 4 D. &

Bail.

c. 110.

I. Of the ants is or about to quit England, unless he or they be forthwith apprehend-Affidavit to ed, it shall be lawful for such judge, by a special order, to direct that such defendant or defendants so about to quit England shall be held to bail for 1 & 2 Vict. such sum as such judge shall think fit, not exceeding the amount of the debt or damages: and thereupon it shall be lawful for such plaintiff, within the time which shall be expressed in such order, but not afterwards, to sue out one or more writ or writs of capias into one or more different counties, as the case may require, against any such defendant so directed to be held to bail, which writ of capias shall be in the form contained in the schedule to this act annexed (m), and shall bear date on the day on which the same shall be issued: provided always, that the said writ of capias and all writs of exe-

Arrest.

Defendant or make Deposit.

At what Time Order may be made.

Defendant with." may apply to be Discharged.

Costs of Application. Appeal.

Prisoners discharged on Commencement of Act may be again arested. [*546] cution to be issued out of the superior courts of law at Westminster, into the counties palatine of Lancaster and Durham, shall be directed to the chancellor of the county palatine of Lancaster, or his deputy there, or to the chancellor of the county palatine of Durham, or his deputy there." Sect. 4 enacts. "That the sheriff or other officer to whom any such writ of capias shall be directed, shall, within one calendar month after the date thereof, including the day of such date, but not afterwards, proceed to arrest the defendant thereupon; and such defendant when so arrested shall remain in custo find Bail tody until he shall have given a bail-bond to the sheriff, or shall have made deposit of the sum indorsed on such writ of capias, together with ten pounds for costs, according to the present practice of the said superior courts; and all subsequent proceedings as to the putting in and perfecting special bail, or of making deposit and payment of money into court, instead of putting in and perfecting special bail, shall be according to the like practice of the said superior courts, or as near thereto as the circumstances of the case will admit." Sect. 5 enacts, "That any such special order may be made and the defendant arrested in pursuance thereof at any time after the commencement of such action, and before final judgment shall have been obtained therein; and that a defendant in custody upon any such arrest, and not previously served with a copy of the writ of summons, may be lawfully served there-Sect. 6 enacts, "That it shall be lawful for any person arrested upon any such writ of capias to apply at any time after such arrest to a judge of one of the superior courts at Westminster, or to the court in which the action shall have been commenced, for an order or rule on the plaintiff in such action, to shew cause why the person arrested should not be discharged out of custody (n); and that it shall be lawful for such judge or court to make absolute or discharge such order or rule, and to direct the costs of the application to be paid by either party, or to make such other order therein as to such judge or court shall seem fit; provided that any such order made by a judge may be discharged or varied by the court, on application made thereto by either party dissatisfied with such order." Sect. 7 enacts, "That every prisoner who at the time appointed for the commencement of this act(0) shall be in custody(p) upon mesne process(q) for any debt or demand, and shall not have filed a petition to be discharged under the *laws now in force for the relief of insolvent debtors, shall be entitled to his discharge upon entering a common appearance to the action: provided nevertheless, that every ⁽m) See Chitty's Forms, 228, 5th edit.

(n) See Boddington v. Woodley, 8 Ad. & El. 925, 931.

⁽o) See Nias v. Milton, 7 Dowl. P. C. 90; 4 M. & W. 359, S. C.

⁽p) See Bateman v. Dunn, 7 Dowl. P. C. 105; 6 Scott, 739; 5 Bing. N. C. 49, S. C.; Dalton v. Gib, 6 Scott, 751; 5 Bing. N. C.

^{113; 7} Dowl. P. C. 143, S. C.; Harrison v. . Dickinson, 7 Dowl. P. C. 6; 4 M. & W. 355, S. C.; Lewis v. Ford, 7 Dowl. P. C. 85; 4 M. & W. 361, S. C.

⁽q) See Jackson v. Cooper, 7 Dowl. P. C. 5; 4 M. & W. 355, S. C.; Reynolds r. Simmonds, 7 Dowl. P. C. 85.

(d!)

, . A

'A :

(1) 100 3 3 F

J 3

1.0

مرز ہے

Jane?

16. 17.

71.35

40.736

, in 91

11: 12

11:18

-519

1,100

4 1 1

100

197

14.7(°

. K.

,anj, ak t

, in for 1302.

131:15

11:00

53.11

such prisoner shall be liable to be detained, or after such discharge to be I. Of the again arrested, by virtue of any such special order as aforesaid, at the suit Affidavit to of such plaintiff at whose suit he was previously arrested, or of any other Bail. plaintiff."

Under this statute it has been held, that the 3d section applies to every Decisions case of absence from England; which will delay the plaintiff from obtaining on Act. execution in the ordinary course; but not where the defendant is about to leave England for a mere temporary purpose, and will return in sufficient time to enable the plaintiff to proceed to judgment and execution (r). affidavit upon which to found an application for an order to arrest or detain a party must be such as to shew, to the satisfaction of the judge, that there is probable cause for believing that he is about to quit England unless he be forthwith apprehended, and must also state the grounds upon which such belief is founded(s).

II. OF THE ARREST.

II. Of the Arres.

WE have just seen, in treating of the affidavit to hold to bail, that no person can now be arrested except under the special order of a judge, and that such order can only be granted where it is sworn that the party intended to be arrested is about to quit the country.

But the 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, after providing for the relief of insolvent debt- An Insolors, enacts, sect, 85, "That in all cases where it shall have been adjudged vent adthat any such prisoner shall be so discharged, and so entitled as aforesaid(t), be disat some future period, such prisoner shall be subject and liable to be detain- charged at ed in prison, and to be arrested and charged in custody at the suit of any one a future or more of his or her creditors with respect to whom it shall have been so be detainadjudged, at any time before such period shall have arrived, in the same man-ed or arner as he would have been subject and liable thereto if this act had not passed: rested, &c. provided nevertheless, that when such period shall have arrived, such prison-riod arer shall be entitled to the benefit and protection of this act, notwithstanding rives. that he may have been out of actual custody during all or any part of the time subsequent to such adjudication, by reason of such prisoner not having been arrested or detained during such time or any part thereof." der this section it has been held, that a prisoner declared by the Insolvent Debtors' Court to be entitled to his discharge after he shall have undergone a certain term of imprisonment, may, notwithstanding the first three sections of that act, be taken or detained in custody by a writ of capias or detainer, issued according to the Uniformity of Process Act, 2 Will. 4, c. 39, without either a writ of summons having been issued, or a judge's order obtained for the arrest(u). A judge has no authority, under the 7th *section of [*547]

(r) Larchin v. Willan, 7 Dowl. 11; 4 M. & W. 351, S. C.

(a) Bateman r. Dunn, 6 Scott, 739; 5 Bing. N. C. 49; 7 Dowl. 105, S. C.; and see Harvey v. O'Meara, 7 Dowl. P. C. 725; 3 Jurist, 629, T. T. 1839, Bail Court, Coleridge, J. See Form of Assidavit under this statute, 'Tidd's Forms, 8th ed. 65; T. Chitty's Forms, 5th edit.

(1) See as. 75 to 78.

(u) Turnor v. Darnell, 7 Dowl. P. C. 346; 5 M. & W. 28; 3 Jur. 408, S. C. Per Parke, B. "The enactment in the first section, that no person shall be arrested on mesne process, except in the cases and in the manner provided for by the act, includes two cases, namely, that of a party about to leave the country which is provided for by the third section, and that of a party seeking to detain an insolvent under the 85th section. This is not a case in II. Of the that act, to make an order for the detention of a prisoner in custody, "until he shall give bail, or until further order(v)." And a doubt seems to have Arrest. 1 & 2 Viet. been entertained whether in any case a judge's order, without a capias or c. 110. other process, would be sufficient to authorise the detention of a prisoner(w); but as the keeper of a gaol is not bound to accept a capias issued under the Judge's order. third section of that act(x), and the writ of detainer given by the Uniformity of Process Act, 2 Will. 4, c. 39, is not mentioned in the recent statute, it should seem that a judge's order must of itself operate as a sufficient authority for the prisoner's detention, provided the order be properly framed. An application to the court, under the 6th section of the above statute, to set aside an arrest under a judge's order must be made promptly, and as it seems within the time for putting in bail (y). And to support a rule by a defendant to rescind a judge's order authorising an arrest, he must swear positively that "he is not about to leave England;" and the court will not allow the defendant's affidavit to be amended after cause shewn against the rule (z). a defendant has been arrested upon a capias issued under this act, and the order for the capias has been made on an insufficient affidavit, the application to the court should be to set aside the judge's order, and not the writ on which he was arrested(a).

Fema Covert.

Before the late act, when a married woman had been arrested as the acceptor of a bill, at the suit of an indorsee, the court would not order the bailbond to be cancelled, on an affidavit that the drawer, when he drew the bill, knew the defendant to be a married woman, because her so accepting a negotiable security, and enabling the drawer to impose upon a third person, was in effect representing herself as a single woman to the injury of a third person; and she was obliged to find special bail, and plead her coverture, or bring a writ But where a married woman had been arrested as acceptor of a bill of exchange, at the suit of an administratrix, to whose intestate the bill was indorsed, the court ordered the bail-bond to be delivered up to be cancelled, on affidavits that the drawer and intestate knew, at the time the bill. was drawn, accepted, and indorsed, that the defendant was married (c). where a married woman was arrested upon a bill of exchange which she had given for the education of children by a former husband, and the plaintiff had been apprised of the second marriage, *the court discharged her upon a which a judge could make on order, inasmuch as the defendant is not about to leave the kingdom. Then comes the question as to whether a writ of summons is necessary? I think the effect of the 85th section is to controul the general words of the second, and engraft this case as an exception; and if it be, it follows that no writ of summons is requisite.

As to prisoners in custody under Insolvent Act not being supersedable, see 7 Geo. 4, c. 57, s. 15; 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, s. 41; Buzzard v. Bromfield, 4 M. & W. 368; 7 Dowl. P. C. 1, S. C.; but see Chew r. Lye, 7 Dowl. P. C. 465.

- (v) Boddington v. Woodley, 1 Perry & Dav. 159; 8 Ad. & El. 925, S. C.
 - (w) Id. ibid.

(x) Edwards v. Roberson, 7 Dowl. P. C. 857.

(y) Sugars v. Concanen, 5 M. & W. 30; 7 Dowl. P. C. 391, S. C. In order to excuse the delay, on the ground of a previous application at chambers, the rule must be drawn up on reading the summons, or it must be shewn by affidavit. Id. ibid.

(z) Robinson v. Gardner, 7 Dowl. 716.

(a) Hopkins v. Salembier, 5 M. & W. 423; 7 Dowl. P. C. 493; 3 Jurist, 538, S. C. In an action by the indorsee against the drawer of a bill of exchange, on affidavit made by the plaintiff of the nature and amount of the bill, " and that it still remains due and unpaid," is insufficient for the purpose of obtaining a judge's order for the arrest of the defendant under the above statute: it should further show a default by the acceptor. Id. ibid. See the cases, anter 543, note (τ) . And see the usual forms of affidavits upon bills, notes, and checks, Tidd's Forms, 8th edit. 71, 72; T. Chitty's Forms, 5th edit. 218 to 220.

(b) Prichard v. Cowlam, 2 Marsh. 40; Welsh v. Gibbs, 4 Dowl. P. C. 683; Tidd, 9th edit. 194; Jones v. Lewis, 2 Marsh. 385; 7 Taunt. 55, (Chit. j. 965).

(c) Holloway v. Lee, 2 Moore, 211, (Chit. j. 1026); see Tidd, 9th edit. 194.

'41'

1

2. 3.

نيغ غير ا

100

2.3 17.58

1.74

1.72

نسيئ ز . .

475

142

. i k.

(7,204)

5 L -يهرون إ g : 25° 1321

4 1 /2

,e^{1,18}

es ir

, Tell

 $\mu_{i,j} \eta_{j\neq i}$

الم زيد

; TI#

į

100

summary application, although she had given out that she had property of her II. Of the own, and that the bill would be duly paid (d). Where, however, a woman Arrest. was arrested as the drawer of a bill of exchange, at the suit of an indorser, Feme Cothe court refused to discharge her, on the affidavit of a third person, that she vert. was a married woman; and in all cases it should seem that a feme covert, applying to be discharged from arrest, must have founded her application upon her own personal oath of the fact of coverture, and not upon the affidavit of another(e).

III. OF BAIL ABOVE.

III. Of Bail above.

In those cases in which an arrest is still allowed, the practice as to putting in and perfecting special bail, or bail above, remains the same as before (f).

With respect to the parties who may become special bail, it has been Who may held that an indorser of a bill of exchange may be bail for the drawer, in an beaction against him upon the same bill, though it be objected that he is inadmissible, inasmuch as the plaintiff's security will not be increased by the recognizance of the indorser, who is already liable to the plaintiff on the bill(g). So the drawer of a bill of exchange may be bail in an action against the ac-But it is said to be a general rule, that so long as there are outstanding dishonoured bills, which are not renewed, nor the right of proceeding upon them suspended, a person liable thereon cannot justify as bail(i). Nor can the acceptor of a dishonoured bill justify as bail in an action against the drawer (k).

Before the rule of court H. T. 2 Will. 4, s. 19, it was determined that if Amount. a party become bail in two separate actions against different parties on the same bill, it was sufficient for him to swear that he was worth double the amount of the sum sworn to in one action, and that it was not necessary for the bail to swear to double the amount in both actions (l), or 1000l., beyond And where senarate actions the sum sworn to, if it exceeded 1000l.(m). had been brought against two parties to a bill, and one of them had paid the amount into the hands of the prothonotary in pursuance of the 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 71, together with 201. for costs, the court allowed the defendant in the second action to pay into court a sum for costs in lieu of special bail(n). But that rule makes it necessary that the bail should swear that he is worth the amount required by the practice of the courts, over and above what will

(d) Slater v. Mills, 7 Bing. 606; 4 Moore & P. 603; 5 Car. P. 603, S. C.

(e) Jones v. Lewis, 2 Marsh. 385; 7 Taunt. 55, (Chit. j. 965); See Harvey v. Cooke, 5 B. & Ald. 747.

(f) See 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, s. 4, ante, 545; and see the practice, 1 Arch. Prac. by Thomas Chitty, 7th edit. p. 573 to 617. (g) Harris v. Manley, 2 Bos. & Pul. 526; Mitchell's Bail, 1 Chit. R. 287; Stephen's Bail, 1 Chit. R. 305; Tidd, 9th edit. 270; but see Jones v. Ripley, 3 Price, 561.

(h) Prime v. Beasley, 8 Bing. N. C. 391; 4 Scott, 87; 5 Dowl. 477; 8 Hodges, 15, S. C.

(i) Barnesdall v. Stretton, 2 Chit. R. 79. In this case the bail was rejected as the drawer of dishonoured bills other than the bill on which the defendant was sued. See Prime v. Beas-ley, 3 Bing. N. C. 391, supra, note (h).

(k) Anon. 1 Dowl. P. C. 183.

(1) Reid v. Ellis, 1 Moore, 29; 7 Taunt. 324, S. C.; and see Tidd, 9th edit. 270; but see Field r. Wainewright, 3 Bos. & Pul. 39.

(m) R. M. 51 Geo. 3, K. B.; 13 East, 62; R. M. 51 Geo. 3, C. P.; 3 Taunt. 341; 2 Chit. R. 378.

(n) Grace v. Hutchins, 6 Law J. 121, C.P. April 28, 1929.

III. Of pay his just debts, and over and above every other sum for which he is then Bail above bail(o).

2 Will. 4, s. 21.

Liability

*As regards the extent to which the bail are liable, the rule of court H. T. of to what 2 Will. 4, s. 21, declares, that bail shall only be liable to the sum sworn to by the affidavit of debt, and the costs of suit; not exceeding in the whole Rule H. T. the amount of their recognizance. Under this rule it has been held, that the bail are liable only to the extent of the single amount of one recogniz-*549] ance, although the sum recovered, with costs of suit, amounts to more(p). And before this rule, where the affidavit was for a sum certain on a bill of exchange, and the plaintiff recovered a larger sum as well on the bill as for the goods sold, the bail were holden to be liable only for so much as was recovered on the bill(q).

IV. Of the Declaration.

IV. OF THE DECLARATION.

tion.

In an action on a bill of exchange, check, or promissory note, if bewe near tween the original parties, it is at the option of the plaintiff to declare either may be on the Instru- upon the instrument itself, or upon the consideration for which it was given; ment or the but in the case of remote parties, as the indorsee against the acceptor of a bill, or the maker of a note, and where, independently of the bill, there is no privity of contract between the parties, the instrument itself must be declared on, adding such of the common counts as the evidence may proba-But it is always advisable to declare on the instrument itself, as then in case of a judgment by default, the amount of the damages are referred to the Master, to be computed by him; and if the declaration do not state the bill, the plaintiff must, in an action of assumpsit, execute a writ of inquiry (r).

How entit-8 Will. 4,

Before the rule of court M. T. 3 Will. 4, s. 15, if the bill or note fell led. Rule M. T. due after the first day of term, it was necessary to entitle the declaration specially, and if it were entitled generally, the defendant might demur specially(s); though where a declaration upon a bill of exchange, drawn on the 20th November, 1829, payable two months after date, was entitled generally of Hilary Term, 1828, it was held, that it was quite competent for the plaintiff to prove by the writ(t), or even by the parol evidence of the attorney (without producing the writ), that the action was commenced after the time when the bill became due(u); and no writ of error would lie on the ground that the declaration had been entituled generally, when the cause of action appeared upon the record to have arisen after the first day of the term, so that the court could see that the declaration was delivered after the cause of

p) Vansandau v. Nash, 2 Dowl. P. C. 767;

(r) Osborne v. Noad, 8 T. R. 648. (s) Pugh v. Robinson, 1 T. R. 116; Brazier

⁽o) This seems to have been the previous practice in the Exchange; 1 Chit. Rep. 306, note; but the practice in K. B. was otherwise, and similar to that in C. P., id. ibid.; and Stevens's Bail, 1 Chit. Rep. 805.

³ Moore & S. 834; 10 Bing. 329, S. C.
(q) Wheelwright v. Jutting, 7 Taunt. 304;
1 Moore, 51, S. C. Bail in error not liable for interest on note, Anon. 6 Price, 338.

v. Jones, 6 Bar. & Cres. 196. (t) See Granger v. George, 5 Bar. & Cres. 149.

⁽u) Lester v. Jenkins, 8 Bar. & Cres. 339; 2 Man. & Ry. 429, (Chit. j. 1395). In Howe v. Croker, 3 Stark. Rep. 138, where a note became due on the 22d June, and notice of dishonour was given on the 23d, and the declaration was filed senerally 23d, and the first time was filed senerally 23d, and the first time was filed senerally 23d, and the first time was filed senerally 23d, and the first time was filed senerally 23d. tion was filed generally on the 30th, the first day of the term being the 22d, Abbott, C. J. considered it sufficient.

1111

· n

0.7

.. . .

300

· 1 · **

 $g: \mathbb{C}^{+}$

: 03

A 15

(, 4×

35

.....

.,....

· 510

(". 12

1 100

1204

وزي

action accrued (x). Since the rule, every declaration must be entitled spe- IV. Of the cially of the day of the month and year on which it is filed or delivered(y). Declara-

The declaration, or count, in which the bill, check or note is set forth, ne- Count statcessarily varies in point of form, according to the parties by and against whom Bill, &c. the action is brought.

[550]

With respect to the venue, as bills of exchange and promissory notes are Venue. simple contracts, and follow the person of the holder, and in case of his death are bona notabilia where he dies(z), the plaintiff has a right to lay his venue in any county; and the court will not, at the instance of the defendant. change it, upon an affidavit that it was really made in a different county (a), unless upon a special ground(b). And if an action be bona fide brought on a bill or note, the plaintiff may retain the venue, though the action be also for other causes; and the court will not restrain the plaintiff from proceeding in the county he has elected for the other causes (c). So although a promissory note is not made payable to order, the court will not grant a rule to change the venue on the common affidavit(d). And if in an action on a bill of exchange drawn in London, where the witnesses and parties all reside, the plaintiff lay the venue in Surrey, he is entitled, unless a case of oppression be made out, to the costs of going to the assizes, notwithstanding the cause might have been tried at less expense in London(e). But it would not suffice to retain the venue, that the plaintiff should introduce a count upon a promissory note, which either did not exist, or in respect of which there was no subsisting cause of action(f). And as in the case of an action on a bond, if very special grounds for changing the venue be laid before the court by affidavit, as that there are several material and necessary witnesses, who reside at a great distance from the county where the venue is laid, the court will change the venue, especially if the desendant admit a particular fact, which in point of form, existed in the original county (g). application, however, to change the venue on special grounds must be made the subject of a distinct motion; and where the venue has been improperly changed on the common affidavit, in a case where part of the demand is on a bill of exchange, such special circumstances furnish no answer to an application to discharge the rule for changing the venue(h). And in these cases, the rule to change the venue being grantable on special grounds only, cannot (x) Ruston r. Owston, 2 Bing. 469; M'Clel. & Y. 202; 10 Moore, 194, S. C.; Tidd, 9th edit. 426.

(y) And see rule H. T. 4 Will. 4, 1834, r. 2, s. 1. But semble, that the neglect to entitle the declaration of the proper day, month, and year, is a mere irregularity to be taken advantage of by summons or motion, and no ground of demurrer. Neal v. Richardson, 2 Dowl. P. C. 89; 3 Chit. Gen. Prac. 463, 464.

(z) Ante, 2, note (d) (a) Tidd, 9th edit. 604.

(b) In Keys v. Smith, 10 Bing. 1; 8 Moore

& S. 338, S. C., the court changed the venue in an action on a bill of exchange, upon terms, to favour the discharge of a prisoner.

In an action on an I. O. U. the vanue may be changed upon the usual affidavit, Roberts v. Wright, I Dowl. P. C. 294. In cases where the application for a rule to change the venue is made upon the usual affidavit only, the rule is absolute in the first instance; and the venue cannot be brought back except upon the plaintiff's undertaking to give material evidence in the county in which the venue was originally laid. Rule H. T. 2 Will. 4, s. 103.

(c) Shepherd v. Green, 5 Taunt. 576, (Ch. j. 910); Hart v. Taylor, 2 Dowl. & Ry. 164; Arden v. Moraington, 4 Tyrw. 56; Tidd, 9th edit. 604; Walthew v. Syers, 1 C., M. & R. 596; 8 Dowl. P. C. 160, S. C.; overruling Greenway v. Carrington, 7 Price, 564. And see Dawson v. Bowman, 1 C., M. & R. 594; 3 Dowl. P. C. 160, S. C.

(d) Smith v. Elkins, 1 Dowl. P. C. 426. (e) Vero v. Moore, 3 Bing. N. C. 261; 3 Scott, 646; 5 Dowl. 367, S. C

(f) Per curium in Shepperd v. Green, 5 Taunt. 576.

(g) Tidd, 9th edit. 605; 2 Chit. Rep. 418,

(h) Dawson v. Bowman, 1 C., M. & R. 594; 3 Dowl. P. C. 160, S. C.

IV. Of the be moved for until after plea pleaded, because it cannot previously be known Declaration.

Venue.

[*551]

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Venue.

Rule H. T.
4 Will. 4, r. 2, s. 8.

T. 4 Will. 4, r. 2, s. 8, declares, that the name of a county shall in all cases be stated in the margin of the declaration, and shall be taken to be the venue intended by the plaintiff, and that no venue shall be stated in the body of the declaration, or in any subsequent pleading (m).

seem necessary that the defendant should swear to merits(1).

Forms of Declarations on Bills and Notes, regulated by Rule of Court. Rule T. T. 1 Will. 4. Recital.

The following rule of court, T. T. 1 Will. 4, 1831, made in pursuance of the statute 11 Geo. 4, and 1 Will. 4, c. 70, s. 11, prescribes concise forms of declarations upon promissory notes and bills of exchange, whether inland or foreign, and which must be observed:—

Whereas declarations in actions upon bills of exchange, promissory notes, and the counts, usually called the common counts, occasion unnecessary expense to parties by reason of their length, and the same may be drawn in a more concise form; now for the prevention of such expense, it is ordered, that if any declaration in assumpsit hereafter filed or delivered, and to which the plaintiff shall not be entitled to a plea as of this term, being for any of the demands mentioned in the schedule of forms and directions annexed to this order, or demands of a like nature(n), shall exceed in length such of the said forms set forth or directed in the said schedule, as may be applicable to the case; or, if any declaration in debt to be so filed or delivered for similar causes of action, and for which the action of assumpsit would lie, shall exceed such length, no costs of the excess shall be allowed to the plaintiff if he succeeds in the cause; and such costs of the excess as have been incurred by the defendant, shall be taxed and allowed to the defendant, and be deducted from the costs allowed to the plaintiff. And it is further ordered, that on the taxation of costs, as between attorney and client, no costs shall be allowed to the attorney in respect of any such excess of length; and in case any costs shall be payable by the plaintiff to the defendant on account of such excess, the amount thereof shall be deducted from the amount of the attorney's bill.

(i) Parmeter v. Otway, 3 Dowl. P. C. 66; see Cotterill v. Dixon, 3 Tyrw. 705; Weatherby v. Goring, 3 Bar. & Cres. 552.

(j) Haythorn v. Bush, 2 Dowl. P. C. 240; see Nun v. Taylor, 1 Bing. 186; 7 Moore, 598, (k) Parmeter v. Otway, 3 Dowl. P. C. 66; see Ladbury v. Richards, 7 Moore, 82.

(1) See per Littledale, J. in Parmeter v. Otway, 3 Dowl. P. C. 69.

(m) This is one of the several general rules and regulations made under the authority of the 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42, s. I.

(n) The words "or demands of a like nature," and the direction as to drawing foreign bills, seem to establish that these particular forms are merely given as a few instances, and that in all other cases of common debts it is intended that the pleadings may and ought to be framed in the like concise manner. It may be collected, that the quantum meruit and valebant counts ought no longer to be inserted. It seems that the indebitatus count was always sufficient. See 1 Chitty on Pleading, 6th edit. 27; 2 Saund. 122 a, note (2).

SCHEDULE OF FORMS AND DIRECTIONS (o).

IV. Of the Declaration.

For that whereas the defendant, on the —— day of ——, in the "year 1. Count on of our Lord —— at London(q), (or "in the county of ——") made his a Promissory Note promissory note in writing, and delivered the same to the plaintiff, and against the thereby promised to pay to the plaintiff £—,— days (or "weeks," or Maker, by "months,") after the date thereof, (or as the fact may be,) which period has indorsee. now elapsed(r), or if the note be payable to A. B.) and then and there(q) as the case delivered the same to A. B., and thereby promised to pay to the said A. B. may be(p). or order, £—, -— days (or "weeks," or "months,") after the date [*552] thereof, (or as the fact may be,) which period has now elapsed(r), and the said A. B. then and there(q) indorsed the same to the plaintiff, whereof the defendant then and there (q) had notice, and then and there (q), in considera-

(o) It will be found that the following forms considerably diminish the usual length of counts of this nature, by omitting the long-used formal modes of stating each fact; such as in stating an acceptance, "and which said bill of exchange the said defendant afterwards, to wit, on the day and year aforesaid, at London aforesaid, in the parish and ward aforesaid, upon sight thereof accepted, according to the said usage and custom of merchants from time immemorial used and approved of;" and which is now to be thus shortly stated, "and the defendant then and there accepted the said bill," and so on. The concise mode of stating an indorsement. which has long been recommended, and partially used, (see Chitty on Bills, 7th edit. 794, and post, 553,) is now enjoined.

But even in some of these prescribed forms there are unnecessary allegations; as in the 1st, 8d, 5th, 8th, and 11th forms, which state unnecessarily the delivery of the note or bill to the payee; Churchill v. Gardner, 7 T. R. 596; Smith r. M Clure, 5 East, 476; and in the 1st and 6th forms the statement of the notice to the defendant of the indorsements is unnecessary; Reynolds v. Davies, in error, 1 Bos. & Pul. 625; and in the 4th, 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th, 9th, 10th, and 11th forms, and consequently in the directions relative to declarations on foreign bills, the statements that the bill was directed to the drawee or acceptor are clearly unnecessary, Gray v. Milner, 3 Moore, 91; 2 Stark. Rep. 336. The allegation, "which period has now elapsed," though otherwise unobjectionable, seems also unnecessary where the bill or note has been shown to have been payable after date, or where there is an averment that it was presented for payment when due. In the 4th, 5th, 7th, and 8th counts against the acceptor, where a general unqualified acceptance is stated, it would suffice to state the promise to pay according to the tenor of the bill, omitting "and of his acceptance thereof.

In the common indebitatus forms also, it is submitted, that some of the words printed in italics might be omitted, viz. " price and value," and "then," and some other words not adopted even in the ancient forms. The objection as to the statement of place has since been removed by the rule H. T. 4 Will. 4, r. 2, s. 8, anle, 551.

These observations are not made in disparagement of this excellent rule, but merely to show how much the pleadings may be contracted where there is a disposition to save expense.

It is clearly intended by these rules that the use of the quantum meruit and quantum rale-bant counts should be abandoned as being certainly unnecessary; and that all debts, however numerous, shall be comprised, as they always might have been, in one count, and that separate formal commencements and conclusions in the description of each debt shall no longer be adopted. See note to Webber v. Tivill, 2 Wms. Saund. 122; Rooke r. Rooke, Cro. Jac. 245: Power r. Butcher, 10 Bar. & Cres. 329, 342.

See the comprehensive collection of the different descriptions of almost every possible demand recoverable under an indebitatus count. in 2 Chitty on Pleading, 34 to 74, 6th edit.; and in debt, 248 to 250, 6th edit.

(p) See forms of declarations on promissory notes, inland and foreign bills, and checks on bankers, 2 Chitty on Pleading, 75 to 102, 6th edit.; and in debt, 251, 252, 6th edit.; see also Chitty jun. Precedents in Pleading, 75, 100, 152, 420, 435.

(q) Since the rule H. T. 4 Will. 4, r. 2, s. 8, ante, 551, the venue in the body of the declaration is to be admitted; its improper introduction, however, is no cause of demurrer, or for setting aside the declaration, but of application to a judge at chambers to strike it out. r. Champneys, 1 C., M. & R. 369; 2 Dowl. P. C. 680, S. C.; Townsend r. Gurney, 1 C., M. & R. 590; S. C. 5 Tyrw. 214; 3 Dowl. P. C. 168; Fisher r. Snow, 3 Dowl. P. C. 27.

(r) In Abbott v. Aslett, 1 Mee. & Wels. 209; 1 Tyrw. & G. 448; 4 Dowl. P. C. 759, the court inclined to think this allegation insufficient, since the Uniformity of Process Act. 2 Will 4, c. 39, which makes the issuing of the writ the commencement of the action; but in the subsequent case of Owen r. Waters, 2 Mee. & Wels. 91; 5 Dowl. P. C. 324, such allegation was held sufficient, where upon the face of the declaration it does not necessarily appear that the action was commenced before the bill became due. In practice, however, it is usual to aver that the period elapsed before the commencement of the suit.

IV. Of the tion of the premises, promised to pay the amount of the said note to the plaintiff according to the tenor and effect thereof(s)(1). tion.

2. Count on a Promisseory Note against payee by an Indorsee(u).

Whereas(t) one C. D., on the —— day of ——, in the year of our *Lord —, at London(x), (or "in the county of ——,") made his promissory note in writing, and thereby promised to pay the defendant, or order, £-- days (or "weeks," or "months,") after the date thereof, (or as the fact may be,) which period has now elapsed(v), and the defendant then and there(x) indorsed the same to the plaintiff, (or, " and the defendant then and [*553] there(x), indersed the same to X. Y., and the said X. Y. then and there(x) indorsed the same to the plaintiff,") and the said C. D. did not pay the amount thereof, although the same was there (x) presented to him on the day when it became due, of all which the defendant then and there(x) had due notice.

3. Count on a Promissory Note against Indorser by Indorsee.

Whereas one C. D. on —, at London(x), (or "in the county of made his promissory note in writing, and thereby promised to pay to X. Y., or order, £---, --- days (or "weeks," or "months,") after the date thereof, (or as the fact may be,) which period has now elapsed(v), and then and there (x) delivered the said note to the said X. Y. and the said X. Y. and there(x) indorsed the same to the defendant, and the defendant then and there(x) indorsed the same to the plaintiff, (or, "and the defendant then and there(x) indorsed the same to Q. R., and the said Q. R. then and there(x) indorsed the same to the plaintiff,") and the said C. D. did not pay the amount thereof, although the same was there (x) presented to him on the day when it became due, of all which the defendant then and there(x) had due notice.

4. Count on an Inland Bill of Exchange Acceptor by the Drawer, being also Payec(y).

Whereas the plaintiff, on ---, at London(x) (or "in the county of -,") made his bill of exchange in writing, and directed the same to the defendant, and thereby required the defendant to pay to the plaintiff £---, - days (or "weeks," or "months,") after the date (or "sight") thereof, against the which period has now elapsed (v), and the defendant then and there (x) accepted the said bill, and promised the plaintiff to pay the same according to the tenor and effect thereof, and of his said acceptance thereof, but did not

- (s) This is sufficient without stating the promise to have been made to the plaintiff, Banks r. Camp, 2 Moore & S. 734; 9 Bing. 604, S.
- (t) If either this or the subsequent forms should constitute the first count of the declaration, then insert, "For that;" so that it will read, "For that whereas one C. D." &c. If it be a second or subsequent count, then insert, "And," "also," so that it will read, "And whereas also one C. D." &c.
- (u) In Hedger v. Stevenson, 2 Mee. & Wels 799; 5 Dowl. 771, S. C., the declaration stated that one S. T. on, &c. made his promissory note in writing, and thereby promised to pay to the order of the defendant, at Messrs. B., T., and B.'s, London, 991. 18s., two months after date, for value received, which period had, at the time of the commencement of this suit, elapsed, and then delivered the said note to the defendant, and the defendant then indorsed the said note to the plaintiff, and promised to pay the same according to the tenor and effect thereof; but the said Messrs. B., T., and B. did not, nor did the said S. T., nor the defendant, or any other person, pay the said note, although the said note was presented at Messrs. B., T., and B.'s on the day when it became due, of which the defendant then had notice: it was held on motion in arrest of judgment, on the ground that the promise stated in the declaration was an absolute promise to pay, whereas the obligation of the defendant as payee and indorser was conditional only, and that the breach only alleged a non-payment by the defendant on the day the note became due, and did not aver that it had not been paid afterwards, that the promise was properly stated, and that the breach was sufficient. Quære, whether it would have been bad on special demurrer.

(v) See ante, 552, note (r).

(x) Omit venue, see ante, 552, note (q).

(1) See post, 827, (55).

1.7

z 1

1 12 3

14

, 17 20,00 , v. لاغور

, Fi

: 10 541

100 18 · 11 /5 ·

1 3 400

. 11.5 1 X2 11. 32

- WAR

pay the same when due, (or, "at any time before or since," should be in- IV. Of the

Whereas the plaintiff, on ---, at London(x) (or "in the county of 5. Count -,") made his bill of exchange in writing, and directed the same to the de- on an Infendant, and thereby required the defendant to pay to O. P., or order, Exchange £--, -- days (or "weeks," or "months,") after the date (or "sight") against the thereof, which period has now elapsed(v), and then and *there(z) delivered Acceptor the same to the said O. P. and the said defendant then and there(z) Drawer, accepted the same, and promised the plaintiff to pay the same, according to not being the tenor and effect thereof, and of his acceptance thereof, yet he did not the Payce. pay the amount thereof, although the said bill was there(z) presented to him [*554] on the day when it became due, and thereupon the same was then and there (z) returned to the plaintiff, of all which the defendant then and there(z) had notice.

Whereas one E. F., on —, at London(z) (or "in the county of —,") 6. Count made his bill of exchange in writing, and directed the same to the defendant, on an Inand thereby required the desendant to pay to the said E. F. (or to "H. Exchange G.,") or order(b), £___, ___ days (or "weeks," or "months,") after against the sight (or "date") thereof, which period is now elapsed(c), and the defend- Acceptor by Indorsant then and there(z) accepted the said bill, and the said E. F. (or "the ee(a). said G. H.") then and there(z) indorsed the same to the plaintiff, (or "and the said E. F.," or "the said H. G. then and there(z) indorsed the same to K. J., and the said K. J. then and there(z) indorsed(d) the same to the plaintiff,") of all which the defendant then and there(z) had due notice, and then and there(z) promised the plaintiff to pay the amount thereof, according to the tenor and effect thereof, and of his acceptance thereof.

Whereas one E. F., on —, at London(z) (or "in the county of —,") 7. Count made his bill of exchange in writing, and directed the same to the defendant, and Bill of and thereby required the defendant to pay to the plaintiff £---, --- days Exchange (or "weeks," or "months,") after the sight for "date,") thereof, which against the period has now elapsed(c), and the descendant then and there(z) accepted the Acceptor by the Paysame, and promised the plaintiff to pay the same, according to the tenor and ee. effect thereof, and of his acceptance thereof.

Whereas the defendant, on —, at London(z) (or "in the county of 8. Count on an In,") made his bill of exchange in writing, and directed the same to J. K., land Bill of and thereby required the said J. K. to pay to the plaintiff £, ____, ___ Exchange days (or "weeks," or "months,") after the sight (or "date") thereof, and against the then and there(z) delivered the same to the said plaintiff, and the same was Payee on then and there(z) presented to the said J. K. for acceptance, and the said Non-ac J. K. then and there(z) refused to accept the same, of all which the defend- ceptance. ant then and there(z) had due notice.

⁽y) The forms here given apply as well to the action of debt as to assumpsit, and this count may, therefore, be properly joined with indebitatus counts in debt, provided the declaration conclude in the usual form in debt. Compton v. Taylor, 4 M. & W. 138; sec Cloves v. Williams, 5 Scott, 68; 3 Bing. N. C. 868, S. C.; post, 554, note (a), see post, W. 138; ante, 553, note (y). 822, (49).

⁽z) Omit venue, see ante, 552, note (q). (a) If this count be concluded in the usual form of a declaration in debt, it will amount to a count in debt, and as such be bad, debt not being maintainable by indorsee against acceptor. Cloves r. Williams, 5 Scott, 68; 3 Bing. N. C. 868, S. C.; see Compton r. Taylor, 4 M. &

IV. Of the Declaraon an In-[*555 l

Whereas the defendant, on —, at London'z) (or "in the county of -,") made his bill of exchange in writing, and directed the same to J. K., and thereby required the said J. K. to pay to the order of the said defendant £___, __ days (or "weeks," or "months,") after the sight (or and Bill of "date") thereof, and the said defendant then and there(z) indorsed the same to the plaintiff, (or "and the said defendant then *and there indorsed the against Drawer by same to L. M., and the said L. M. then and there(e) indorsed the same to indorsee on the plaintiff,") and the same was then and there(e) presented to the said J. Non-accept K. for acceptance, and the said J. K. then and there(e) refused to accept the same, of all which the defendant then and there(e) had due notice(f).

10. Count on an Inland Bill of Exchange against Indorser by Indorsee on Non-acceptance.

And whereas one N. O., on —, at London(e) (or "in the county of -,") made his bill of exchange in writing, and directed the same to P. Q. and thereby required the said P. Q. to pay to his order £____, ___ days (or "weeks," or "months,") after the date (or "sight") thereof, and the said N. O. then and there(e) indorsed the said bill to the defendant, (or "to R. S., and the said R. S. then and there(e) indorsed the same to the defendant,") and the defendant then and there(e) indorsed the same to the plaintiff, and the same was then and there(e) presented to the said P. Q. for acceptance, and the said P. Q. then and there(e) refused to accept the same, of all which the defendant then and there(e) had due notice.

11. Count on an Iuland Bill of Exchange against Payee by Indorsee on Non-acceptance.

Whereas one N. O., on —, at London(e) (or "in the county of -,") made his bill of exchange in writing, and directed the same to P. Q. and thereby required the said P. Q. to pay to the defendant or order, £---, - days (or "weeks," or "months,") after the sight (or "date") thereof, and then and there delivered the same to the defendant, and the defendant then and there(e) indorsed the said bill to the plaintiff, (or "to R. S., and the said R. S. then and there(e) indorsed the same to the plaintiff,") and the same was then and there(e) presented to the said P. Q. for acceptance, and the said P. Q. then and there(e) refused to accept the same, of all which the defendant then and there(e) had due notice.

12. Directions for Declarations on Bills, where Action brought after time of Payment expired. 1st, On Bills Payable after Date. 2d, On ble after

Sight.

If the declaration be against any party to the bill, except the drawee or acceptor, and the bill be payable at any time after date, and the action not brought till the time is expired, it will be necessary to insert, as in declarations on promissory notes, immediately after the words denoting the time appointed for payment, the following words, viz. which period has now elapsed(g), and instead of averring that the bill was presented to the drawee for acceptance, and that he refused to accept the same, to allege that the drawee (naming him) did not pay the said bill, although the same was there(e) presented to him on the day when it became due.

And if the declaration be against any party except the drawee or acceptor, and the bill be payable at any time after sight, it will be necessary to insert after the words denoting the time appointed for payment, the following Bills Payawords, viz. and the said drawee (naming him) then and there(e) saw and ac-

> (b) In Spyer v. Thelwell, 2 C., M. & R. 692; 4 Dowl. 509; 1 Gale, 348, S. C., where the declaration stated the bill to have been drawn by N. on the defendant, whereby N. required the defendant to pay "to his order" the sum therein mentioned, accepted by the defendant, and indorsed by N. to the plaintiff; it was held, that the court could not but see that the word "his" referred to the drawer, and therefore there was no fatal ambiguity.

(c) See ante, 552, note (r). (d) Not sufficient to aver a delivery to the plaintiff. Cunliffe v. Whitehead, 5 Scott, 31; 3 Bing. N. C. S28; 6 Dowl. P. C. 63, S. C. (e) Omit venue, see ante, 552, note (q).

(f) If there was excusable delay in giving

HIT L

II

1965

٠,

. . . . ,

1.18 X

(D)

1:14

1:14

.ساکم رود , " oc

7 > 1 , IX

.. / 31

2 3

z: 14

4. 944

100

1300

11.62

 e^{-T}

and k

28ff. #

cepted the same, and the said period has now elapsed(g), and instead of al- IV. Of the leging that the bill was presented for acceptance and refused, to allege that Declarathe drawee (naming him) did not pay the said bill, although the same was presented to him on the day when it became due.

*If a note or bill be payable at sight, the form of the declaration must be 3d, On varied so as to suit the case, which may be easily done.

Notes Pay-

Declarations on foreign bills may be drawn according to the principle of Sight. these forms, with the necessary variations.

4th, On Foreign Bills. [*556]

COMMON COUNTS.

Whereas the defendant on — at London(i) (or "in the county of 1. Goods -,") was indebted to the plaintiff in £---, for the price and value of goods then(j) and there(i) bargained (or "sold") and sold (or "delivered") by the plaintiff to the defendant at his request.

And in £--- for the price and value of work then(j) and there(i) done, 2. Work and materials for the same provided by the plaintiff for the defendant at his risks. request.

And in £— for money then (j) and there (i) lent by the plaintiff to the 3. Money defendant at his request.

And in £—for money then(j) and there(i) paid by the plaintiff for the 4. Money Paid. use of the defendant at his request.

And in £— for money then (j) and there (i) received by the defendant 5. Money the way of the plaintiff for the use of the plaintiff. (k).

And in £--- for money found to be due from the defendant to the plain- 6. Account tiff on an account then (j) and there (i) stated between them (l).

And thereupon the defendant afterwards on, &c. in consideration of the 7. General premises respectively, then and there(i) promised to pay the said several Conclusion notice, it is not necessary to shew special facts accounting for such delay in giving notice. Firth v. Thrush, 8 Bar. & Cres. 895; see post, 576, note (s).

(g) See ante, 552, note (r).
(h) The common quantum valebant and quantum meruit counts are no longer to be inserted, ante, 552, note (o). See the comprehensive form in 2 Chitty on Pleuding, 6th edit. 60, 66. As to joinder of counts in debt, see Compton v. Taylor, 4 M. & W. 138; ante, 553, note (y).

(i) Omit venue, see ante, 552, note (q). (j) The statement of time by the introduction of the word "then" has been held unnecessary in an action for goods sold and delivered. Lane v. Thelwell, 1 M. & W. 140; 1 Tyrw. & G. 352, S. C. And semble that it is equally unnecessary in an account stated. Webb v. Baker, 7 Ad. & El. S41; 8 N. & P. 87, S. C.; Bingley v. Durham, 8 Ad. & El. 775; 1 P. & D. 58, S. C.; Ferguson v. Mitchell, 2 C., M. & R. 687; 1 Tyrw. x. G. 179, S. C. At all events it is sufficient to allege the account to have been "before then" stated. Bingley v. Durham, 8 Ad. & El. 775; Leaf v. Lees, 4 M. & W. 579; 7 Dowl. P. C. 189, S. C. And in the latter case, although the count contained the words "before then," the court treated the statement of time as altogether unnecessary.

(k) As to interest, see 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42, s. 28; see form of count for, 2 Chitty on Pleading, 6th edit. 60. Where goods are sold and delivered, to be paid for by a bill at a certain date, if the bill be not given, interest on the price, from the time when the bill would have become due, may be recovered as part of the estimated value of the goods on the common count for goods sold and delivered. Farr v. Ward, 3 M. & W. 25; 6 Dowl. P. C. 168; Marshall v. Poole, 13 East, 98. And see Harrison v. Allen, 2 Bing 4; 9 Moore, 28, S. C.; Arnott v. Redfern, 3 Bing. 353; 11 Moore, 209,

(1) Sufficient, without saying "by and between them." Debenham v. Chambers, 3 M.

IV. Of the monies respectively to the plaintiff on request, YET he hath disregarded his Declarasaid promises, and hath not paid any of the said monies, or any part thereof m), to the plaintiff's damage of £---, and thereupon he brings suit, &c.(1).

S. Directions as to general Conclusion. [*557]

*If the declaration contain one or more counts against the maker of a note or acceptor of a bill of exchange, it will be proper to place them first in the declaration, and then in the general conclusion to say, " promised to pay the said last-mentioned several monies respectively(n).

Several Counts for same Demand not allowed,

By the rule of court, H. T. 4 Will. 4, 1834, made in pursuance of the 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42, s. 1, it is ordered(s 5), that several counts shall not be allowed, unless a distinct subject matter of complaint is intended to be established in respect of each. And, therefore, counts founded on one and Rule H. T. the same principal matter of complaint, but varied in statement, description, or circumstances only, are not to be allowed. But counts upon a bill of exchange or promissory note, and for the consideration of the bill or note in goods, money, or otherwise, are to be considered as founded on distinct subject matters of complaint; for the debt and security are different contracts, and such counts are to be allowed.

4 Will. 4, s. 5. Exception as to Bills and Notes.

Indebitatus

Where several debts are alleged in indebitatus assumpsit to be due in re-Assumpsit. spect of several matters, ex. gr., for wages, work and labour as a hired servant, work and labour generally, goods sold and delivered, goods bargained and sold, money lent, money paid, money had and received, and the like, the statement of each debt is to be considered as amounting to a several count within the meaning of the rule which forbids the use of several counts, though one promise to pay only is alleged in consideration of all the debts(0). But it is provided, that a count for money due on an account stated, may be joined with any other count for a money demand, though it may not be intended to establish a distinct subject matter of complaint in respect of each of such counts. And also, that the rule which forbids the use of several Account stated.

Several Breaches.

& W. 128; overruling Hooper v. Vestris, 5 Dowl. P. C. 710.

(m) Although there be several plaintiffs this statement of the breach will suffice, without going on to aver a non-payment to any or either of them. Debenham v. Chambers, 3 M. & W.

(n) This applies only where there are several common counts. Wainwright r. Johnson, 5 Dowl. P. C. 317.

In an action by an indorsee against the draw-er of a bill of exchange, the declaration contained a count on the bill, and on an account stated, with one promise to pay the last mentioned several monies on request; the defendant having demurred specially, on the ground that there was no promise to the count on the bill, the court set aside the demurrer as frivolous, because the declaration containing but one sum besides the amount of the bill, the promise in terms applied to both counts. Chevers v. Parkington, 6 Dowl. 75. And it seems exceedingly doubtful whether the averment of a promise in a count on the bill is at all material; as against an acceptor it clearly is unnecessary, the acceptance being in itself a promise to pay; and as against a drawer the want of such an averment would be cured after verdict or judgment; and although in Henry v. Burbidge, 3 Bing. N. C. 501; 4 Scott, 296; 5 Dowl. P. C. 484; 3 Hodges, 16, such an objection, in an action against a drawer, was held fatal on special demurrer, yet in the subsequent case of Griffith v. Roxbrough, 2 M. & W. 734; 6 Dowl. P. C. 133, which was an action by indorsee against indorser, the court seemed to be of opinion that as, since the new rules of pleading, a defendant is no longer at liberty to plead non assumpsit to a count on a bill or note, it cannot be necessary that the declaration should allege a promise; it became, however, unnecessary to decide the case on this ground, the question having arisen after verdict, and the court being clearly of opinion that the objection could only be taken on special demurrer.

(o) These are to be treated as separate counts for the purposes of pleading as well as for the purposes of costs. Jourdain v. Johnson, 2 C., M. & R. 564; 3 Dowl. P. C. 534, S. C. ar · counts is not to be considered as precluding the plaintiff from alleging more IV. Of the breaches that one of the same contract in the same count.

14

, 2 , 2 1 % 1 %

The sixth section of the same rule orders, that where more than one count Departure shall have been used in apparent violation of the preceding rule, the opposite Rules, how party shall be at liberty to apply to a judge, suggesting that two or more of taken Adthe counts are founded on the same subject matter of complaint, for an or- vantage of der that all the counts introduced in violation of the rule be struck out at the Rule H. T. cost of the party pleading, whereupon the judge shall order accordingly, un- 4 Will. 4, less he shall be satisfied, *upon cause shewn, that some distinct subject mat- s. 6. ter of complaint is bonû fide intended to be established in respect of each of [*558] such counts, in which case he shall indorse upon the summons, or state in his order, as the case may be, that he is satisfied; and shall also specify the counts mentioned in such application, which shall be allowed(p). seventh section orders, that upon the trial, where there is more than one count Sect. 7. upon the record, and the party pleading fails to establish a distinct subject matter of complaint in respect of each count, a verdict and judgment shall priss against him upon each count which he shall have so failed to establish, and he shall be liable to the other party for all the costs occasioned by such count, including those of the evidence as well as those of the pleading: and further, that in all cases in which an application to a judge has been made under the preceding rule, and any count allowed as aforesaid, upon the ground that some distinct subject matter of complaint was bond fide intended to be established at the trial in respect of each count so allowed, if the court or judge, before whom the trial is had, shall be of opinion that no such distinct subject matter of complaint was bona fide intended to be established in respect of each count so allowed, and shall so certify before final judgment, such party so pleading shall not recover any costs upon the issue or issues upon which he succeeds arising out of any count with respect to which the judge shall so certify (q).

The sixth section of the rule of court T. T. 1 Will. 4, relating to prac- Particulars tice, orders, that with every declaration, if delivered, or with the notice of of Dedeclaration, if filed, containing counts in indebitatus assumpsit, or debt on Rules T. simple contract, the plaintiff shall deliver full particulars of his demand un- T. 1 Will. der those counts, where the particulars can be comprised within three folios; 4, s. 6. and and where the same cannot be comprised within three folios, he shall deliv- H. T. 2 er such a statement of the nature of his claim, and the amount of the sum or s. 47. balance which he claims to be due, as may be comprised within that number And to secure the delivery of particulars in all such cases, it is further ordered, that if any declaration or notice shall be delivered without such particulars, or such statement as aforesaid, and a judge shall afterwards order a delivery of particulars, the plaintiff shall not be allowed any costs in respect of any summons for the purpose of obtaining such order, or of the particulars he may afterwards deliver. And that a copy of the particulars of demand, and also particulars (if any) of the defendant's set off, shall be annexed by the plaintiff's attorney to every record, at the time it is entered

⁽p) The xourt will not entertain a motion for striking out counts until an application has been made to a judge at chambers; Ward v. Graystock, 4 Dowl. P. C. 717; and the rule must be drawn up on reading the declaration, or on an affidavit that the counts are identical; Roy v. Bristow, 5 Dowl. P. C. 152; 2 M. & W. 242, S. C

⁽q) By the previous rule of H. T. 2 Will 4, s. 74, it is ordered, that no costs shall be allowed on taxation to a plaintiff, upon any counts or issues upon which he has not succeeded; and that the costs of all issues found for the defendant shall be deducted from the plaintiff's

1V. Of the with the judge's marshal. And the rule H. T. 2 Will. 4, s. 47, orders, that a summons for particulars and order thereon may be obtained by defendtion. ant before appearance, and may be made, if the judge think fit, without the production of any affidavit.

Particulars of Demand.

Where the particulars of the plaintiff's demand exceed three folios, the court will order the plaintiff to deliver to the defendant full particulars of his demand, the defendant paying the costs of the particulars, and, if necessary, taking short notice of trial, even though the defendant has had full particulars [*559] of the amount before action brought(r). *But in an action upon a bill of exchange or promissory note, where the declaration is confined to the count upon the bill or note, the defendant is not, except under very special circumstances, entitled to demand particulars, because in such case the declaration itself sufficiently discloses the nature of the demand.

> The forms of declaration prescribed by the above rule of T. T. 1 Will. 4, being intended as examples only, and framed merely with a view to the curtailment of the declaration by the rejection of unnecessary averments, it will still be necessary to attend to the previous decisions.

Statement of the Cuson Statute of Anne.

It was formerly usual to commence the declaration on a bill of exchange tom of mer- with a statement setting out the custom of merchants relative to the validity of bills of exchange, and that the parties to it were persons within the custom; but this mode of declaring had long been disused, and is improper(s); and though it was usual to state that the bill was drawn and accepted "according to the usage and custom of merchants, from time immemorial used and approved of," yet even this reference to the custom in any part of the declaration was unnecessary (t). In declarations on promissory notes made in England, it was usual to state that the defendant became liable to pay by force of the statute of Anne, which rendered these instruments available(u); but this was unnecessary. And if the note were made out of England, it would have been informal to state that the note was made according to the statute(v); though the allegation might have been rejected as surplusage.

Unnecessary Counts.

Before the above rule of H. T. 4 Will. 4, ss. 6, 7, if any unnecessary counts were inserted in the declaration, the courts would order them to be expunged, and make the party pay the costs of the application (x). where the declaration consisted of 286 counts, upon as many bankers' notes, for a guinea each, payable to bearer, with the common counts for money lent, and money had and received, the court refused to strike out the counts upon the notes, as it might have put the plaintiff to unnecessary difficulty of proof at the trial, or made it necessary for him to have a writ of inquiry on a judgment of default(y); though in a similar case, the court made a rule by consent, to strike out all the counts but one, the defendant undertaking to (r) James v. Child, 2 C. & J. 252. These particulars are not considered as part of the declaration. Booth v. Howard, 5 Dowl. 438.

(a) Soper r. Dible, 1 Ld. Raym. 175, (Chit.

201); Bromwich v. Loyd, 2 Lutw. 1585, (Chit. j. 193); Co. Lit. 89 a, n. 7.

Soper v. Dible, 1 Ld. Raym. 175, (Chit. j. 201). In an action upon a bill, the defendant demurred, because the declaration did not set out the custom, and the court held it unnecessary, and that the better way was to omit it.

(t) Hussey v. Jacob, 1 Ld. Raym. 88,

(Chit. j. 189, 191); Ereskin v. Murra y, 2 Ld. Raym. 1542, (Chit j. 268); Carter r. Dowrish, Carth. 83, (Chit. j. 176, 178); Williams v. Williams, Carth. 269, (Chit. j. 197); Mannin

v. Cary, 1 Lutw. 279, (Chit. j. 194).
This was determined in Ereskin r. Murray, 2 Ld. Raym. 1542, (Chit. j. 268). On error after judgment by default, see Ld. Raym. 88; Carth. 83; Lutw. 279.

(u) Brown v. Harraden, 4 T. R. 155, (Chit. j. 470).

(v) Carr v. Shaw, ante, 519, in notes.

(x) Tidd, 9th edit. 616.

(y) Lane v. Smith, Tidd, 9th edit. 617; 3 Smith Rep. 113, S. C.

fitt :

1 12

A

1 1 5

47.75

1:

y.- !

permit all the other notes to be given in evidence either before the master or IV. Of the a jury, under the count upon an account stated(z). In a declaration also on Declaraa bill, the court refused to strike out the count for interest as unnecessary, though, besides the counts on the bill, there were the common counts(a).

In stating the cause of action, there are four points principally to *be at- [*560] tended to. First, the description of the bill, promissory note, or check. Secondly, How the defendant became party to it; and his subsequent con-Thirdly, The mode by which the plaintiff derived his interest in, and right of action on, the instrument; and Lastly, The breach of the defendant's contract.

These will suffice, without any statement of a consideration which is implied(b)(1).

And first, the bill, promissory note, or check (of which a profert is not to First, On he made(c),) should, like all other contracts, be stated in the declaration as the Bill, Note, or it was really made in terms, or according to its legal operation (d). If it be Check. ambiguous in its terms, whether it he a bill or a note, it may be declared upon as either (e). And if there be a rariance in any material point, it will ment of the be fatal(f)(2), though stated under a videlicet(g)(3). But a variance aris- Instruing in consequence of any artifice in framing the bill, as by the introduction ment. of some words in small characters, or by the use of illegible marks, for the purpose of deceit, is immaterial (h).

A variance as to the names of parties is in general fatal where it operates Names of as a description of the bill, but otherwise as it seems where it relates merely (z) Carmack v. Gundry, 8 B. & Ald. 272; 1 Chit. R. 709, (Chit. j. 1074); Tidd, 9th edit. 617.

(a) Brindley r. Dennett, 2 Bing. 184; 9 Moore, 358, S. C.

(b) Ante, 9, 10, &c.; Bishop v. Young, 2 Bos. & Pul. 81, (Chit. j. 621). When necessary to support debt, post, Ch. VII.

(c) Master r. Miller, 4 T. R. 338, (Chit. j. 482, 490); Adams v. The Duke of Grafton, Bunb. 243, (Chit. j. 266); Suister r. Coel, I Sid. 386; 1 Sulk. 215; Com. Dig. tit. Pleader, O. 3; Tidd, 9th edit. 618.

(d) Per Gibbs, C. J. in Waugh v. Russel, 1 Marsh. 217; 5 Taunt. 707; Heys v. Hesseltine, 2 Campb. 604, (Chit. j. 825); Selw. 9th edit. 368; 1 Chitty on Pleading, 4th edit. 265; 5th edit. 333, 334.

(e) Ante, 181, 182.

(f) Bristow v. Wright, Dougl. 667; Gordon v. Austen, Dougl. 667; 4 T. R. 611, (Chit. j. 494). As to variances in general, see 1 Chitty on Pleading, 4th edit. 271, &c. 5th edit. 333, 334; but see Rose v. Sims, 1 B. &

Adol. 522, note (b), (Chit. j. 1510).
(g) White v. Wilson, 2 Bos. & Pul. 116; 1 Chitty on Pleading, 4th edit. 276; 5th edit.

333, 334.

(h) Allan v. Mawson, 4 Campb. 115, (Chit. 920); Shuttleworth v. Stevens, 1 Campb. 407, (Chit. j. 755); Dougl. 651; ante, 25, 181.

(i) See post, 561.

(2) A variance in the date, or in the substance of a note offered in evidence, from that set out in the statement, is a fatal objection to such evidence. Church v. Feterow, 2 Penn.

Rep 301.

Where the declaration averred that a negotiable note was indorsed, before it fell due, and it appeared upon the production of the note, that it was indorsed after maturity, this was held to be no material variance. Penn v. Flack et al., 3 Gill and Johns. Rep. 369.

(3) In a declaration on a promissory note, the omission of the place where it is payable is fatal. Secree v. Dorr, 9 Wheat. 558. But where a bill or note is made payable at a particular Bank, and the bank itself is the holder, the averment and proof of the place where payable, as against the maker or acceptor, may be dispensed with; but as against the indorser such averment and proof is, in general, necessary. Bank of the U.S. v. Smith, 11 Wheat. 171.

It is not necessary, in case of a lost note, that there should be a special count stating such loss.

Renner v. Bank of Columbia, 9 Wheat. 557.

The payee of a note declared on it as payable to himself, but it appeared to be payable to himself or his order. Held that this was not a material variance. Fay v. Goulding, 10 Pick. 122.

⁽¹⁾ A declaration upon an order, averring that it was drawn in consideration of a debt due by the drawer to the plaintiff, and accepted by the defendant, is good, without avorring any other consideration. Bradley v. M'Cellan, 3 Yerger's Rep. 300.

tion.

1. State-Instrument Names of Parties.

IV. Of the to the names of the parties to the action, who, (before the 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42, s. 11, or who, since that act, might have applied to a judge at chambers to have the declaration amended at the plaintiff's cost(i),) might have ment of the pleaded the misnomer in abatement, provided the identity be proved (k). Thus where in an action on a note made by the firm of Austin, Strobell, and Shirtliff, in those names, the declaration was against them by the names of Austin, Strobell, and Shutliffe, and stated that such defendants made the note, the variance was holden fatal (l); and if a bill drawn by the name of Couch be declared upon, in an action against a third person, as drawn by Crouch, such variance is also fatal(m). And under a count for usury, in discounting bills, one of which was described as drawn on a certain person, to wit, John K., and the bill produced appeared to be drawn on Abraham K., it was held a fatal variance (n). So where in an action by the indorsee against the acceptor, the declaration described the bill as drawn by one William Turner, and indorsed by the said William Turner to the *plaintiff, and the bill produced in evidence was drawn by Wingfield Turner, the variance was held fatal(o).

But where the promissory note was signed "for Bowes, Hodgsons, Key, and Co." and they were sued, and one of them was declared against by the name of Thomas Key, (but whose real name was John Key, commonly pronounced Kay,) the judge was of opinion, that the misnomer was no objection, it being proved that the real partner had been sued, and served with the process, though under a mistaken christian name; and that the variance between Key and Kay was immaterial, they being idem sonans(p). another case, where the plaintiff declared in the name of Edward Boughton, upon a bill of exchange drawn by him, payable to his own order, and accepted by the defendant, and also upon the common counts, and it appeared that the plaintiff's real name was Edmund, and that in that name he had drawn the bill, yet the plaintiff recovered (q). And where an action was brought by Willis, as the payee of a note, and on production the note was payable to Willison, and the declaration alleged the promise to pay Willis by the name of Willison, evidence was admitted on the part of the plaintiff to shew she was the party really meant, and to explain the mistake(r). It has been recently held, that a variance between the real name of an indorser, and that which is alleged in the declaration, and appears on the bill, is ma-But this seems questionable if it be necessary to prove the indorsement to support the action. Where a declaration stated that the bill was indorsed by certain persons trading under the firm of H. and F. by procuration of J. D., it was held, that this allegation was supported by evidence of J. D.'s hand-writing, and that he being the managing partner in a firm which carried on all business of buying and selling, under the designation of H. and Co., was in the habit of indorsing bills in the manner above stated, although there was no such person as F. in the firm of H. and Co., and no

(k) Stark. on Evidence, 241, (Chit. j. 494). (1) Gordon v. Austen, 4 T. R. 611. N. B. There is a singular difference between the folio and octave editions in the statement of this case, the last does not notice the mistake in the surname, which was the material objection.

(m) Whitwell v. Bennett, 3 Bos. & Pul. 559, (Chit. j. 685). In Fancourt v. Turner, 1 Jurist, 72, the declaration stated that the defendant made his bill of exchange and directed the same to Newton Pocklington, and thereby requested Newton Pilkington to pay, &c.:

held, that a demurrer to this was not frivolous.

(n) Hutchinson r. Piper, 4 Taunt. 810.
(o) Le Sage v. Johnson, Forrest's R. 23.

(p) Dickenson r. Bowes, 16 East, 110, (Chit j, 863).

(q) Boughton v. Frere, 3 Campb. 29; but note, it does not appear from the report whether the plaintiff only recovered upon the com-

(r) Willis v. Barrett, 2 Stark. Rep. 29, (Chit. j. 989).

(s) Forman v. Jacob, 1 Stark. Rep. 47.

bl: .

1:12

117

. 10

direct proof that J. D.'s partners were privy to those transactions(t). description of the plaintiffs, as executors and trustees of A. B. is mere sur- Declaraplussage, the bill being payable to them in name of the firm which they had tion. assumed (u).

And now by the 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42, s. 11, it is enacted, that no plea Misnomer in abatement for a misnomer shall be allowed in any personal action, but that not pleadain all cases in which a misnomer would but for this act have been by law Abatepleadable in abatement in such actions, the defendant shall be at liberty to ment cause the declaration to be amended, at the cost of the plaintiff, by inserting 3 & 4 Will. the right name, upon a judge's summons founded on an affidavit of the right. the right name, upon a judge's summons founded on an affidavit of the right 11. name; and in case such summons shall be discharged, the cost of such application shall be paid by the party applying, if the judge shall think fit. twelfth section also enacts, "That in all actions upon bills of exchange or When Inpromissory notes, or other written instruments, any of the parties to which itials may are designated by the initial letter or letters, or some contraction of the be used. christian or first name or names, it shall be sufficient in every affidavit to 4, c. 42, hold to bail, and in the process (x) or declaration, to designate such persons \bullet . 12. by the same initial letter or letters, or contraction of the christian or first [*562] name or names, instead of stating the christian or first name or names in full." It was doubted whether the former section, taken alone, did not extend as well to the case of a misnomer of a plaintiff as of a defendant, but it was held, that coupling that section with the twelfth, it was clear that the eleventh section applied only to the case of a defendant(y). Where, therefore, in an action upon a bill of exchange, the declaration described the plaintiff as Henry H. Lindsay, the court refused to set aside the declaration, or to order it to be amended at the plaintiff's cost by the insertion of the full christian name(z).

If one of several persons, acceptors of a bill, were an infant, the holder Number of may declare on it, as accepted by the adult only, in the names of both; and Parties. if the defendant pleads in abatement, that the other partner ought also to have been sued, the plaintiff may reply his infancy; and it is no departure, and it is most proper, not to state that the infant was a party to the instru-And if a bill of exchange purport to have been drawn by a firm consisting of several persons (as by "Ellis, Needham, jun. and Co.") in an action by an indorsee against the acceptor, the declaration may aver in the plural that certain persons using the firm, drew and indorsed the bill, although in point of fact the firm consisted only of a single individual, the acceptor being estopped from disputing the fact(b)(1). So where a declaration described a bill of exchange as directed to the three defendants, and accepted by them, and it was proved to have been directed to and accepted by a fourth (u) Aguttar v. Moses, 2 Stark. Rep. 499, (Chit. j. 1069).

(x) See as to the process and affidavit to hold to bail, rule H. T. 2 Will. 4. s. 32; Lyon v. Walls, 2 Moore & S. 393; ante, 544, note

(y) Lindsny r. Wells, 4 Scott, 471; S. C.

3 Bing. N. C. 777; 5 Dowl. P. C. 618.

(z) Id. ibid.; see Moody v. Aslett, 1 C., M. & R. 771; S. C. 5 Tyrw. 492; 3 Dowl. P. C.

(a) Burgess v. Merrill, 4 Taunt. 468, (Chit. j. 869); 1 Chitty on Pleading, 4th edit. 35; 5th edit. 49; but see Gibbs v. Merrill, 3 Taunt.

(b) Bass v. Clive, 4 Camp. 78; 4 Maule & S. 18, (Chit. j. 935).

⁽t) Williamson v. Johnson, 1 Bar. & Cres. 146; 2 D. & R. 281, (Chit. j. 1163); see Faith v. Richmond, ante, 531, note (n).

⁽¹⁾ In declaring on a note as the indorsee of a firm, it is not necessary to set forth the names of the members of the firm. Cochran v. Scott, 5 Wend. Rep. 229.

tion.

Instrument.

IV. Of the party also, who was dead, this was held no variance (c); and in an action against one of several makers of a joint and several promissory note, the describing it as the separate note of the defendant, without noticing the other 1. Statement of the parties, is no variance (d)(1). So the nonjoinder of one of two joint drawers of a bill, is no variance in an action by one indorsee against the other(e).

[563]

In an action by executors on a promissory note, where the defendant plead-Number of ed in abatement the non-joinder of one executor (who had not proved), the court allowed the proceedings to be amended on payment of costs, as the statute of limitations would have been a bar to a fresh action(f). In future, no amendment will be allowed except to avoid the operation of the statute of limitations(g). But a declaration alleging a note to have been made by A. and B. is not satisfied by evidence of a note given by A. alone to secure a partnership debt(h), though it would be otherwise if A. prefixed to his signature, "for A. and B. (i)." If a bill be accepted, payable to —— (blank) or order, and a bon î fide holder insert his name as the payee, the bill may be described as payable to him, without noticing the blank (k).

Time.

With respect to time, if it be alleged in the declaration, that defendant on such a day (without laying it under a videlicet), drew a bill of exchange, without alleging that it bore date on that day, a mistake of the day will not be material, but if the words "bearing date the same day and year aforesaid," be inserted, then a variance would be fatal(l); and the mis-statement of a day in the note payable by instalments, is fatal(m). In general, the date of a bill or note should be stated, and if there be no date, then the day it was made, and if that cannot be ascertained, then the first day it can be proved to have existed(n). And where in an action on a foreign bill payable at double usance from the date thereof, the declaration stated the bill to have been drawn on such a day, but did not state the date, the court held it sufficient, and that they would intend that it was dated at the time of drawing it(o). And where, when several counts were allowed, a second count 224.

(d) Per Lord Ellenborough, C. J. id. 1 B. & Ald. 226, and ante, 529.

(e) Evans v. Lewis, 1 Wms. Saund. 291, note (d); Wilson v. Reddall, Gow, 161. In these cases the defendant's course, if the other party be living, is to plead in abatement. Certain restrictions, however, have been imposed upon pleas in abatement for non-joinder, by the recent statute of 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42: thus the 8th section of that act enacts, that no plea in abatement for the non-joinder of any person as a co-defendant shall be allowed in any court of common law, unless it shall be stated in such plea that such person is resident within the jurisdiction of the court, and unless the place of residence of such person be stated with convenient certainty in an affidavit versifying such And the 9th section enables the plaintiff to reply the bankruptcy or insolvency of the party so omitted. The 10th section also ena-bles the plaintiff to enter up judgment against the original defendant, in case it shall appear

(c) Mountstephen v. Brooke, 1 B. & Ald. that the party named in the plea in abatement But it has been held that the Sth section applies only to those cases where the plaintiff can go on against the party pleading in abatement, and, therefore, that it does not extend to a plea of defendant's coverture. Jones v. Smith, 6 Dowl. P. C. 557.

f) Lakin v. Watson, 2 Dowl. P. C. 633; Tyrw. 839, S. C.; 2 Crom. & Mee. 685, S.

(g) Id. ibid.(h) Siffkin r. Walker, 2 Campb. 308; Emly v. Lye, 15 East, 7.

(i) Galway v. Mathews, 1 Campb. 403. (k) Atwood r. Griffin, Ryan & Mood. Rep. 425; 2 Car. & P. 368, (Chit. j. 1305); post, 564, note (d.)

(l) Coxon v. Lyon, 2 Campb. 307, 308, (cited Chit. j. 780); Fitzgib. 130.
(m) Wella v. Girling, 3 Moore, 79; Gow,

Rep. 21, (Chit. j. 1051).

(n) Ante, 148; Bayl. 5th edit. 379.

(o) De la Courtier v. Bellamy, 2 Show. 422, (Chit. j. 167); ante, 149, note (3); 25th. Stephens r. Graham, 1 Serg. & Rawle, 505.

⁽¹⁾ If a bill be addressed to W. S. by mistake, for I. S., and it is presented to the right person, it is sufficient, and in the declaration it may be stated that the bill was drawn on W. S. meaning the said I. S. Sterry v. Robinson, 1 Day's Rep. 11.

Proof of a note dated the 26th July, does not support a declaration stating a note dated on the

111. 3

1 818

- 1,034

' - 'Y

1.30

1.7

. 3. 95

· 6.31

11:2

· , 1 . 12:3

- 17.3

1/12

31 5 M

运货

......

. 17. 7

1021

- 37

A 160

A 76

کا ن

_ y"

ر و نونی

. . 41

p d pr 83

-x 2

stated that afterwards, to wit, on the day and year aforesaid, the defendant IV. Of the drew a certain other bill of exchange, payable two months after the date there- Declaraof, without mentioning any express date in either count, the last count was tion. held sufficient, the court intending the date to have been the day on which 1. Statethe bill was alleged to have been made(p). If a bill or note by mistake has ment of the been dated contrary to the intention of the parties, the declaration may run ment. thus, "on, &c. (the time intended), made, &c. bearing date by mistake, Time. on, &c. but meant and intended by the said A. B. and C. D. to be dated on the said, &c. and then delivered, &c. by which said note he the said C. D. then promised to pay, two months after the date thereof, (that is to say, after the said, &c. when the said note was so made and intended to be dated as aforesaid), to the said A. B." &c. It has been held, that in a declararation upon a bill or note importing to be payable within a limited time after the date, and dated on a particular day, the precise day must be stated, and that if a day upwards of six years before the commencement of the action be stated, and the defendant plead actio non accrevit, the plaintiff cannot recover(q), but this doctrine may be questionable(r).

*It was usual also, before the late rule of court H. T. 4 Will. 4, r. 2, s. Place. 8(s), to state the place at which the bill or note was drawn, as thus, "that { *564] the drawer, on, &c. at Liverpool, to wit, at London, &c. (the venue)." And it has been considered, that in a declaration on a foreign bill, the place at which it bears date must be stated, and that some place in England or Wales should be subjoined, by way of venue, under a videlicet, thus, "at Venice, in Italy, to wit, at London," &c. 't). But where a promissory note, dated and made at Paris, was declared upon in an action by the payee against the maker, as made in London, it was decided to be no variance, because the contract evidenced by a promissory note is transitory, and the place where it purports to have been made is immaterial(u); and it is laid down, that inland bills and notes, though they may bear date at a particular placer, may be alleged to have been made any where in England or Wales(x)(1). Though in a more recent case, where a bill was drawn at Doublin, in Ireland, for Irish currency, and the declaration stated that the bill was drawn "at Dublin," to wit, at Westminster, &c. without alleging that Dublin was in Ireland, nor stating the bill to be for Irish currency, it was held a variance, inasmuch as the bill must be taken to be drawn for approved of in Hague v. French, 3 Bos. & Pul. 173; and see Owen v. Waters, 2 M. & W. 91, 93, et seq.; 5 Dowl. P. C. 324. See also Hunt v. Massey, 5 B. & Ad. 902; 3 N. & M. 109, S. P.; Selw. N. P. 9th edit. 315, 316.

(p) Hague v. French, 3 Bos. & Pul. 173, (Chit. j. 652); and see Giles r. Bourne, 6 Maule & S. 73, S. P. ante, 148, note (l).

(q) Stafford v. Forcer, 10 Mod. 311; cited 1 Stra. 22. In an action on a note dated in 1704, defendant pleaded that the cause of action did not accrue within six years, the plaintiff replied a bill filed in 1714; and that the cause of action accrued within six years of that time; and after verdict for the plaintiff, the court arrested the judgment, because it was stated that the note was made and dated in 1704, and then the cause of action must have accrued above six years before 1714; but see Lesper v. Tutton, 16 East, 420, (Chit. j. 876).

(r) In Trinity Term, 1818, K. B., the court held, that on a guarantee of the debt of another, the plaintiff might give in evidence a verbal promise to revive the original undertaking in writing, so as to defeat a plea of actio non accrevit infra zex annos; (libbons v. M. Casland, 1 Bar. & Ald. 690.

(s) Ante, 551.

(1) Salk. 669; Cowp. 177, 178; 6 Mod. 228; Com. Dig. tit. Action, N. 7.

(u) Per Lord Ellenborough, in Houriet v. Morris, 3 Campb. 804, (Chit. j. 878).

(x) Bayl. 5th edit. 380.

^{(1) {} Unless damages are claimed; then the place where the draft was drawn becomes material, and must be set forth and proved. See Fairfield v. Adams, 16 Pick. 381. }

IV. Of the English currency (y). This decision, however, was before the passing of the act which assimilates the money and currency between Great Britain tion. and Ireland(z).

1. Statement of the Instrument. must be stated in Terms, or according to the legal Effect.

The instrument itself must be stated in terms, or according to the legal ef-If it be in foreign language it may nevertheless be stated as if it were Instrument in English, without noticing the foreign language(a). If the bill be payable at usances, the length of them should be averred thus, "at two usances, that is to say, at two months after the date thereof," and the omission will be fatal on demurrer(b).

A bill or note payable to the order of the plaintiff, may be stated in the declaration to be payable to him, and there is no occasion to insert any averment that he made no order(c). And where a bill has been drawn with a blank for the payee's name, and the holder afterwards insert his own name, the declaration may describe the bill as if it had been drawn payable to him(d).

Money Payable.

[* 565]

With respect to the description of the money payable by the bill or note, a variance in stating the amount would be fatal. When the money in which the bill is payable is foreign it is necessary to shew *in the declaration that it Where the declaration stated that a promissory note was is foreign money. made at Dublin, payable at Dublin, without stating it was in Ireland, or that the money payable was Irish, it was held fatal(e), and so where the bill was drawn only at Dublin(f). And, it should seem, that an averment in a declaration on a bill of exchange, drawn in Ireland, and made payable in England, treating the sum mentioned in the bill as Irish currency, and stating it to be of a certain value in lawful money of Great Britain, is material, and will prevent the plaintiff from recovering more than that sum; though without such an averment he would be entitled to treat the bill as for English And a bill drawn in Ireland for £--- sterling, payable in currency(g). England, will be taken to mean English money(h). But those decisions were before the passing of the act for assimilating the currency between Ire-The omission of the word "sterling" is immateriland and England(i). And the statement in a declaration on a foreign bill of the value of the foreign money seems unnecessary, if it otherwise appear the money was foreign(l).

Consideration.

It should seem that it was not necessary to state in the declaration that

(y) Kearney v. King, 2 Bar. & Ald. 301; 1 Chit. R. 23, (Chit. j. 1046); 1 Chit. R. 60 a; and see Sprowle v. Legge, 1 Bar. & Cres. 16; 2 Dow. & Ry. 15; 3 Stark. Rep. 156, (Chit. j. 1152, 1154).
(z) 6 Geo. 4, c. 79.
(a) Attorney-General v. Valabreque, Wight.

9. But an indictment for forging a Prussian v. Goldstein, 3 B. & B. 201; 7 Moore, 1; Russ. & Ry. C. C. 473, (Chit. j. 1139.)

(b) Buckley v. Campbell, 1 Salk. 131, (Ch.

j. 228); Smart v. Dean, 3 Keb. 645, (Chit. j.

163).

(c) Frederick v. Cotton, 2 Show. 8, (Chit. j. 165); Fisher v. Pomfret, Carth. 403, (Chit. 203); Smith r. M'Clure, 5 East, 476; 2 Smith, 43, (Chit. j. 699).
(d) Cruchley v. Clarence, 2 Maule & S. 90,

(Chit. j. 895); Cruchley r. Mann, 5 Taunt. 529; 1 Marsh. 29, (Chit. j. 908); Atwood v. Griffin, Ryan & Mood. 425; 2 Car. & P. 368, (Chit. j. 908).

(Chit. j. 1305). (e) Sprowle v. Legge, 1 Bar. & Cres. 16; 2 Dow. & Ry. 15; 3 Stark. R. 156, (Chit. j. 1152).

f) Kearney v. King, 2 Bar. & Ald. 301; 1 Chit. R. 28, (Chit. j. 1046).
(g) Taylor v. Booth, 1 Car. & P. 286.

(h) Id. ibid.

(i) 6 Geo. 4, c. 79. (k) Kearney v. King, 2 Bar. & Ald. 301; 1 Chit. R. 28, (Chit. j. 1046); Glossop v. Jacob, 1 Stark. Rep. 69; 4 Campb. 227, (Chit. j.

(1) Simmonds v. Parminter, 1 Wils. 185; 4 Bro. Parl. Cas. 604.

1417 (

. 1

7

1.0

χ έ≱ γ

part of the bill which relates to the consideration (m); but that if the plain- IV. Of the tiff professed to state the instrument accurately, and misstated it in this re- Declaraspect, such a variance would have been fatal(n). A note described to be tion. "for value received" generally was held not to be disproved by evidence of 1. Statea note payable to plaintiff's order, "for value received in Mrs. L.'s es-ment of the tate(o)." And a bill of exchange, expressed on the face of it to be "for ment. value delivered in leather," might be stated in pleading to have been for value received in leather(p). And it was considered, that a bill of exchange in this form, "pay to F. G. B. or order, 3151. value received," and subscribed by the drawer, might be alleged in pleading to be a bill of exchange for value received by the drawer from the payee (q). But if a bill were drawn in the usual form for value received (which means by the drawee), and the declaration alleged it as value received by the drawer, the variance was ma-Since the rule of court T. T. 1 Will. 4, this statement of the consideration should be altogether omitted(s).

With respect to the place of payment, we have seen, that if the legal ef- Place of fect of the instrument be that it be payable only at a particular *place, it $\frac{Payment}{must}$ be so described in the declaration(t), when, on the other hand, if according to the legal effect it be payable generally, it would be a misdescription to describe it as payable only at the particular place(u); though if the declaration merely state that the maker of a note made it payable at the particular place, omitting the word thereby, the statement will be rejected as surplusage (x).

It is advisable not to state more of the bill or note declared on than is nec- How much essary to enable the plaintiff to recover (y). The formal description of the $\frac{\text{of Instrument to be}}{\text{ment to be}}$ direction to the drawee should in general be omitted, for fear of a variance(z); stated. and where a bill is not addressed to any person by name, but accepted by the defendant, the declaration should merely state that the drawer drew the bill, and thereby required the payment of such a sum, and that the defendant accepted, without stating any address(a). If a bill is directed to Messrs. A. B. and Co. it is no variance in setting out the bill, according to its tenor, to put Mess. A. B. and Co. without the "r" instead of Mess. with it (b). So where in an action on a note made in Prussia, payable seven days after sight, it appeared that the words "accepted on myself, payable everywhere." were written in the margin; and it was insisted, that the omission of these

- (m) Grant v. Da Costa, 3 Maule & S. 357, (Chit. j. 920); White v. Ledwick, MS. ante, 160, note (a); Bayley on Bills, 5th edit. 20, note 83; Coombs v. Ingram, 4 D. & R. 211, (Chit. j. 1206), acc.
- (n) Sed quare, why not rejected as superfluous as in the case of an allegation " his own proper hand being thereunto subscribed." See post, 570.
- (o) Bond v. Stockdale, 7 D. & R. 140, (Chit. j. 1273).
- (p) Jones v. Mars, 2 Campb. 307, in notes, (Chit. j. 779); White v. Ledwick, MS. supra, note (m); and Highmore v. Primrose, 5 Maule & S. 65; 2 Chit. R. 333, (Chit. j. 956). But a bill described to have been "for value received" is not proved by producing a bill "for value in wheat," for it does not import that the wheat was delivered. Per Lord Tenterden, C. J. Hil. Vac. 1827.
 - (q) Grant v Da Costa, 3 Maule & S. 351,

- (Chit. j. 920); and see Clayton v. Gosling, 5 Bar. & Cres. 360; 8 Dow. & Ry. 110, (Chit. j. 1287); ante, 160, 161.
- (r) Highmore v. Primrose, 5 Maule & S. 65; 2 Chit. R. 333, (Chit. j. 956).
 - (s) See forms, ante, 551, &c.
 - (t) Ante, 153.
- (u) Ante, 154, note (k); but may be amended, Higgins v. Nicholls, 7 Dowl. P. C. 551; post, 569 note (a).
- (x) Antc, 154, note (l); 362, note (l).
 (y) Bristow v. Wright, Dougl 667; Dundas Lord Weymouth, Cowp. 665; Price v.
- Fletcher, Cowp. 727.
 (2) It will be observed, however, that this direction is contained in the forms given by the rale T. T. 1 Will. 4, ante, 553.
- (a) Gray v. Milner, 3 Moore, 91; 2 Stark. Rep. 336; 8 Taunt. 379, (Chit. j. 1022, 1052.)
 - (b) Oldfield's case, 2 Russ. 2d edit. 860.

IV. Of the words in the declaration was a variance; but it was considered no part of the original instrument, their effect being merely to supply an acknowledgtion. ment of the sight of the bill; and that, although the entry was in fact con-1. Statetemporaneous with the note itself, in point of law its effect was subsement of the quent(c). Instru-

Informality in Bill or Note bow to be stated.

ment.

If the bill or note were informal, it may be stated in its terms with an innuendo of its meaning, which seems the safest course (d). If the rules of law prevent the instrument declared on from operating according to the words of it, it may ut res magis valeat quam pereat be stated to have been made in such a manner as the law will give effect to it, though there may be a verbal variation between that statement and the instrument itself(e). Therefore, in the case before-mentioned of a note, by which a man promised never to pay a sum of money, it was holden that it might be declared on as a promise to pay(f); and bills payable to the order of fictitious persons, may be declared on as payable to bearer against every party aware of the fact(g). where a note has, through mistake, been made payable to a wrong person, it may be stated to have been made payable to the proper one(h).

When Plaintiff may recover on Common Count. *567]

In some cases of variance the instrument itself may be read in evidence in support of one of the common counts, or of the count upon an account These cases will be presently considered(i); and where there is a debt due to the plaintiff from the defendant, in respect of which the former becomes the holder of the bill, he is, in case of *variance, still at liberty to resort to such debt, if there be a count in the declaration adapted to it.

Of Amendments in Case of Variance. 1 Geo. 4, c. 55, s. 5.

By recent acts powers are given to the judge, who tries a cause, to amend prior to or even pending the trial. The 1 Geo. 4, c. 55, s. 5, gives a judge of any court, though different to that in which the action is pending, power to amend at any time immediately before the commencement of the rial; and, in assumpsit on the money counts, the judge, a few minutes before the trial commenced, allowed special counts on bills alleged to have been paid supra protest (and the draft only of which counts were produced to him) to be considered as then added to the record, and the cause was immediately afterwards tried(k). This power was extended by the 9 Geo. 4, c. 15, intituled, "An act to prevent a failure of justice, by reason of variances between records and writings produced in evidence in support thereof," and which enables a judge even after the jury have been sworn, and the trial has commenced, to amend in certain cases. The statute enactes, that it shall be lawful for every court of record, and any judge sitting at nisi prius, if such court or judge shall see fit so to do(1), to cause the record on which any trial may be pending before any such judge or court, when any variance shall appear between any matter in writing or in print, m) produced in evidence, and the recital or setting forth thereof upon the record, to be forthwith

9 Geo. 4. c. 15.

> (c) Splitgerber v. Kolm, 1 Stark. Rep. 125, (Chit. j. 947).

(d) Waugh v. Russel, 1 Marsh. 215; 5 Taunt. 707.

(e) Rolleston v. Mageston, 4 T. R. 166; Burr. 823, 2611; Cowp. 832; Willis r. Barrett, 2 Stark. Rep. 29, (Chit. j. 989).

(f) Ante, 131. (g) Ante, 157, 158. (h) Id. ibid.

(i) See post, 578 to 593.

(k) Reid v. Smart, Chit. Col. Stat. 735.

note(b); and see Murphy v. Marlow, 1 Camp b.

(1) It is therefore not compulsory, and where the blunder has arisen from gross want of care in the attorney, amendments have been refused, see post, 568, note (t) and (u).

(m) Only applies to written or printed contracts, and where the written instrument is professed to be set out or recited in the pleading; Ryder v. Malbron, 3 Car. & P. 594; and see Webb v. Hill, Mood. & M. 253; 3 Car. & P. 485, S. C.

/d. *

11.

1, 27

. 125

, ie. i

. 304

1 1211

,, et

amended in such particular, and thereupon the trial shall proceed as if no IV. Of the such variance had appeared(n), &c. But the principal and most important Declaraact is the 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42, s. 23(o), which, after reciting that great fion. expense is often incurred, and delay or failure of justice takes place, at tri- 3 & 4 als, by reason of variances as to some particular between the proof and the Will. 4, c. record or setting forth, on the record, &c. on which the trial is had, of contracts, &c. names, and other matters or circumstances not material to the merits of the case, and by the mis-statement of which the opposite party cannot have been prejudiced, and the same cannot in any case be amended at the trial, except where the variance is between any matter in writing or in print produced in evidence and the record, enacts, that it shall be lawful for any court of record, holding plea in civil actions, and any judge sitting at nisi prius, if such court or judge shall see fit so to do(p), to cause the record, writ(q), or document on which any trial may be pending before any such court or judge, in any civil action, &c. when any variance shall appear between the proof and the recital or setting forth, on the record, &c. on which the trial is proceeding, of any contract, &c. name, or other matter, in any particular not material to the merits of the case, and by which the opposite party cannot have been prejudiced in the conduct of his action, &c. or defence, to be forthwith amended, &c. and in case such variance shall be in some particular not material to the merits of the case, but such as that the opposite party may have been prejudiced thereby in the conduct of his action, &c. or defence, then such court or judge shall have power to *cause the same to be amended upon payment of costs, &c.: and after any such amendment the trial shall proceed in the same manner in all respects as if no such variance had appeared, &c.; provided that it shall be lawful for any party who is dissatisfied with the decision of such judge at nisi prius, sheriff, or other officer, respecting his allowance of any such amendment, to apply to the court from which such record or writ issued for a new trial upon that ground, and in case any such court shall think such amendment improper, a new trial shall be granted accordingly, on such terms as such court shall think fit, or the court shall make such other order as to them may seem meet. And the 24th 3 & 4 section enacts, that the said court or judge shall and may, if they or he think Will. 4, c. fit, in all such cases of variance instead of causing the record or document to be amended as aforesaid, direct the jury to find the fact or facts according to the evidence, and thereupon such finding shall be stated on such record or document, and notwithstanding the finding on the issue joined, the said court or the court from which the record has issued shall, if they shall think the said variance immaterial to the merits of the case, and the misstatement such as could not have prejudiced the opposite party in the conduct of the action of defence, give judgment according to the very right and justice of the case.

Under the 9 Geo. 4, where there was a mistake in the statement of the Decisions date of the bill, as 26th March instead of 29th, the judge allowed an amend- on 9 Geo. ment without costs in an undefeeded cause(r). But the judge has a discre- 4, and 8 & tionary power, which imports a power to be exercised without caprice and partiality(s); and where the variance is attributable to the gross want of care in the attorney, amendments have been refused; as where in an action against the drawer of a bill, the declaration stated a special acceptance "at ⁽n) See Wilson v. Rastall, 4 T. R. 757; 4 Burr. 2539, as to how such a discretionary power ought to be exercised.

⁽o) See the act with notes, Ch. & H. Stat. 27.

⁽p) See cases, supra, note (n).
(q) The writ of trial under sect. 17.

⁽r) Bentzing v. Scott, 4 Car. & P. 24.

⁽s) See cases, ante, 567, note (n).

0

C

Of Amendments in Case of Variance.

IV. Of the A. or at B.," but the bill produced appeared only to be accepted pavable "at A.," and the words "at B." were written on the bill merely as the address of the drawer, and which had been carelessly mistaken for part of the acceptance, an amendment was refused, because it would only encourage want of care in framing pleadings, which the judge was not bound to permit an amendment of, and that the act was only intended to aid clerical mistakes, and not such as any man who could read might avoid making(t)(1). So in another cause the same learned judge said, "It is not to be taken that a judge is bound to permit an amendment, for it is discretionary; and if a party has unnecessarily stated irrelevant matter, on which there is a variance, a judge is not bound to permit an amendment(u)." And it should seem this discretionary power of the judge at nisi prius cannot be controlled by the court in banc(x); at all events, where in a declaration on a bill of exchange it was stated that the bill was drawn by S. S. payable to his order, and the bill when produced in evidence was payable to the order of J. E., it was held, that the judge had rightly exercised his discretion in allowing the record to be amended under the 9 Geo. 4(y). Cases, how-[*569] ever, have occurred, where the court has interfered; as *where the declaration on a bill of exchange omitted the time at which the bill was payable, and the judge at nisi prius refused an amendment under the 3 & 4 Will. 4, and non-suited the plaintiff, the court set aside the nonsuit on terms (z). the case of a writ of trial, where the sheriff refused to amend the declaration on a bill of exchange, stating a special acceptance, by striking out the words, "and not elsewhere," which words were not in the acceptance, the court directed a new trial(a). It has been observed, that the act 3 & 4 Will. 4, was intended to apply to all cases where the defendant had not been misled by the misdescription of the instrument (b); and that in the present state of the rules of pleading, judges should be very liberal in allowing amendments under this statute(c). And, in an undefended cause, where the instrument declared upon was described as a bill of exchange instead of a promissory note, the judge who tried the cause ordered the declaration to be amended and also the judge's order which had been obtained for admitting the defendant's handwriting (d).

2. How became Party to ment.

Secondly, It is incumbent on the plaintiff, in every declaration founded Defendant on a breach of contract, to shew the contract for non-performance of which the action is brought, and consequently it is necessary to state in a declarathe Instru- tion on a bill how the defendant became party to it, whether by drawing, accepting, or transferring it, as that he "made," "accepted," "indorsed," or "delivered" it; which allegations will be sufficient, although the defendant did not in fact do either of these acts himself, provided he authorises the > (t) Per Lord Tenterden, in Jelf r. Oriel Guildhall, 20th Oct. 1829. But note, plaintiff obtained a verdict on the account stated. Campbell and Brodrick for plaintiff, and Denman and Richards for defendant; 4 Car. & P. 22, (Chit. j. 1440).

> (u) Reeves v. Scott, 21st February, 1829, Guildhall, per Lord Tenterden.

> (x) Parks v. Edge, 1 C. & M. 429; S. C., 3 Tyrw. 364; 1 Dowl. P. C. 643; nom. Parker v. Ade. And see Doe v. Errington, 3 N. &

M. 646; 1 Ad. & El. 750, S. C. note (a). (y) Parks v. Edge, 1 C. & M. 429.

(z) Pullen v. Sevinour, 5 Dowl. 164. (a) Higgins v. Nichols, 7 Dowl. 551; 3 Jurist, 341.

(b) Per Parke, J. in Banbury v. Ella, 3 N. & M. 438. 440; 1 Ad. & El. 61, S. C. (c) Per Bosanquet, J. in Cholmondeley v.

Payne, 4 Scott, 418; 3 Bing. N. C. 708, S. C. (d) Moilliet v. Powell, 6 Car. & P. 233.

^{(1) {} A declaration on a bill of exchange was permitted to be amended after plea, by inserting the words "at London in Great Britain, to wit," without prejudice to the rules to plead. Wilkinson v. Rogers, 1 Smythe, 263. } doing of them; though, formerly, indeed, it was not unfrequent, when the IV. Of the fact was so, to state that those acts were done by the procuration of the Declaraagent who was employed'e)(1): and though the drawing and indorsing must tion. be in writing, and since the statute 1 & 2 Geo. 4, c. 78, the acceptance of 2. How Defendant an inland bill must be in writing, yet it is not necessary to state that either became of those was in writing (f); and if it be stated that the defendant indersed or Party to accepted a bill after it was drawn, proof of a previous indorsement or acceptance will be no variance(g). It is usual and proper to allege a promise, Promise. but it has been decided that this is unnecessary, as the law implies a promise where there is a legal liability (h)(2); and, it should seem, that this allegation is still less necessary since the new rules, which prevent a defendant from denying the promise alleged in the declaration on a bill or note(i). (See post, 823 (55). In an action against the acceptor of a bill and the maker of a note, at the suit of the payee or indorsee, the defendant's promise is to be stated to have been "according to the tenor and effect of the bill or note;" but in an action against the drawer or indorser of a bill, or the indorser of a note, after stating the default of the party primarily liable, the liability and the promise of the *defendant are stated to have been [*570] to pay on request, that being the legal result. And where a declaration on a promissory note stated that the defendant thereby promised to pay to the plaintiff 101. on account of W. H. D. fourteen days after the date thereof, which period had elapsed; and then averred that the defendant, in consideration of the premises, "then and there promised (without stating the promise to be to the plaintiff) to pay the amount of the said note to the plaintiff, according to the tenor and effect thereof;" it was held, on special demurrer, that the promise was sufficiently alleged (k).

115

20 6

. . .

The words "his own proper hand being thereunto subscribed," should Signature. be omitted; although, if stated, the allegation, when untrue, may be rejected as surplusage (l); but since the rule T. T. 1 Will. 4(m), the introduction of (e) Collis z. Emmett, 1 Hen Bla. 313, (Ch. j. 461); Brucker r. Fromount, 6 T. R. 659; 3 T. R. 182, 481; Heys v. Heseltine, 2 Campb. 604, (Chit. j. 825).

(f) Chalie v. Belshaw, 6 Bing. 529; 4

Moore & P 275, (Chit. j. 1498).

(g) Molloy r. Delves, 4 Car. & P. 492; 5
Moore & P. 275; 7 Bing. 428, (Chit. j. 1544); Selw. N. P. 9th edit. 867.

(h) Starkie v. Cheesman, Carth 510; Salk. 128, (Chit. j. 209); Hardr. 486; 1 Str. 214; and semble, Griffith v. Roxbrough, 2 M. & W. 734; 6 Dowl. P. C. 133, S. C.; at ull events the omission can only be taken advantage of on special demurrer, id ibid. Sed vide Buc Ab. tit. Assumpsit, F.; and Morris v. Norfolk, 1 Taunt. 217; Henry r. Burridge, 3 Bing. N.

C. 501; S. C., 4 Scott, 296; 5 Dowl. P. C. 484; 3 Hodges, 16. The latter case was decided on the ground of the action being against the drawer, and the objection taken on special demurrer.

(i) Sec observation of Alderson, B. in Griffith r. Roxbrough, 2 M. & W. 738.

(k) Banks v. Camp, 2 Moore & S. 784; 9 Bing. 604, S. C.; see I Chit. Pl. 302, 6th edit. Note, the declaration in this case followed the form given by rule T. T. 1 Will. 4, ante, 651,

(1) Booth r. Grove, Mood. & M. 182; 3 Car. & P. 885, (Chit. j. 1395); Bavl. 5th ed.

(m) Ante, 531.

It is not necessary in a declaration on a bill of exchange, to aver, that the maker delivered it: it is sufficient to state, that he made it, for these words imply a delivery. Ibid.

(2) A declaration upon a promissory note is good, without averments of liability, assumption, c. Richmond v. Patterson et al., Ohio Rep. Cond. 603.

⁽¹⁾ The averment in a declaration, that the defendant, by his note, under his hand of that date, for value received, promised to pay, &c. implies the delivery of the note. Binney et al. v. Plumley, 5 Vermont R. 500.

Where there were three special counts on different instruments and a promise averred only in the first count, and then the common counts and the general conclusion contained the words "last mentioned," held, on special demurrer, to the second and third counts for not averring a promise, that the general promise in the conclusion extended to those counts, not withstanding the words last mentioned. Mills r. Bamfield, 1 Irish Law Rep. 323.

2 How Defendant became Party to the Instrument.

IV. Of the this or any other unnecessary averment, not sanctioned by the forms given by the judges, will subject the plaintiff to the costs occasioned thereby. In an action by the indorsee against the acceptor of a bill of exchange, the declaration stated that the payee indorsed it, his own proper hand being thereunto subscribed(1); and it appeared that the payee's name, upon the back of the bill, was written under his authority by his wife; it was held, that the defendant having, after notice of non-payment, promised to pay, was not at liberty to object that the indorsement was not in the handwriting of the payee himself(n); but had it not been for such promise, the variance would have And in an action against the drawers of a bill of exchange, been fatal(o). where the declaration stated that the defendants made the bill, "their own proper hands being thereto subscribed," and in fact their firm of A. & Co. was subscribed to the bill, Lord Ellenborough said, "Had it been their own proper hand,' I should have clearly held it sufficient: as it stands, I entertain some doubt; but I will not nonsuit(p)(2)."

Date of Acceptance, &c.

It is advisable to state the true date of the acceptance of the bill payable after sight, and in any other case where the acceptance is dated on a day different to the date of the bill, it should be described accordingly (q); but it seems that a variance is not material (r). And though it has been considered, that if the plaintiff allege in terms that the acceptance was made before the time limited by the bill for its payment, the plaintiff will be precluded from giving in evidence an acceptance afterwards(s); that doctrine has been questioned by high authority (t). The allegation of the day of the promise is immaterial as to the precise time (u). And where the plaintiff, as indorsee of a bill, against the defendant, as acceptor, stated in his declaration that the (n) Helmsley v. Loader, 2 Campb. 450, (Chit. j. 799); Payl. Prin. & Agent, App. No.

(o) Levy v. Wilson, 5 Esp. R. 180, (Chit. j. 703); Payl. Prin. & Agent, 275, 276.
(p) Jones and another v. Mars and another, 2 Camph. 305, (Chit. j. 779).

(q) Bayl. 5th edit. 398.

(r) Forman v. Jacob, 1 Stark. Rep. 46; and see Young v. Wright, 1 Campb. 139, (Chit. j. 744); Jackson v. Pigott, Ld. Raym. 364; 12 Mod. 212 ,(Chit. j. 208).

(s) Jackson v. Pigott, Ld. Raym. 364; 12 Mod. 212, (Chit. j. 208)

(t) Bayl. 5th edit. 393; and see Molloy v. Delves, 4 Car. & P. 492, (Chit. j. 1544); where it was held, that under an allegation that defendant accepted bill after it was drawn, it might be proved that he accepted in blank before bill drawn; Selw. N. P. 9th edit. 367.

(u) Hawkey v. Borwick, 1 Younge & J. 276; 4 Bing. 135; 12 Moore, 478, (Chit.)

(1) The same point was ruled, where the note was signed by procuration, and it was alleged that the promissors "made their notes under their hands." Essex November Term, 1805. Gardner v. Stocker. Per Sedgwick, J. MSS.

An averment that the partners of a firm made the note, "the proper name and firm of the partners being thereunto subscribed," is proved by showing the note signed by one partner in the partnership name. It is not necessary to state that one of the partners signed in the name of the firm; but if so stated, it is good. Manhattan Company r. Ledyard, I Caines' Rep. 192. So an averment that "certain persons using the name, style and firm of W. & W. made the note, the proper handwriting of one of them in their said copartnership name, style, and firm, being thereto subscribel," is good. Kane r. Scofield, 2 Caines' Rep. 368. If in an action against two persons, the declaration does not allege them to be partners, or to act under a firm, and it is averred that they "made the note in their own proper hands and names thereto subscribed," proof that one of the defendants subscribed the note with the joint name of the firm, is not sufficient to maintain the declaration. Pease v. Morgan, 7 John. Rep. 468.

If the plaintiff allege himself in the declaration to be the bearer of a note payable to the bearer, this is sufficient, without an express allegation that the maker promised the plaintiff to pay him.

Dole v. Weeks, 4 Mass. Rep. 451; and see Gilbert v. Nantucket Bank, 5 Mass. Rep. 97.

The words, that the defendant "by his note in writing under his hand," &c. imply that the defendant made the note. Binney v. Plumley, 5 Verm. 500.

In an action on a promissory note, brought by an assignee, the declaration should state the assignment to be made on the note under the hand of the assignor. Archer r. Spencer, 3 Blackf. 405, }
(2) See post, 822, (51).

1,7

150

. .

134

... '

,

defendant became liable to pay, and promised to pay according to the tenor IV. Of the and effect of *the bill and his acceptance, it was held that he might, under Declarathe plea that the causes of action did not accrue within six years, give in tion. evidence a promise long after the bill was duc(v).

On the before-mentioned rule, that the plaintiff should not state more of Party to the bill than is essential to his title, it is not necessary or advisable in an the Instruaction against the drawer or indorser of a bill, to state that the drawee ac-ment. cepted it(x); though if it be stated, it need not be proved(y): more especial- [*571] ly if it be shewn that the drawer indorsed the bill after it was accepted, or that after it was due he promised to pay(z).

2. How Defendant became

If the engagement of either of the parties were conditional, it must be described accordingly, with an averment of the performance of the condition, and therefore a conditional acceptance must be so stated, and if declared upon as an actual engagement, the variance will be fatal, although the condition has been performed(a). We have already considered when it is necessary to describe the acceptance as payable at a particular place, and when that statement would be improper (b).

Thirdly, A plaintiff, who sues upon a bill, check, or note, must shew in 3. How his declaration his right to sue thereon, in the same manner as every other Plaintiff plaintiff must shew a sufficient title to enable him to maintain the action which Party and he brings(c). Thus, in an action by the indorsec or bearer of a bill, it is entitled necessary to show that it authorised a transfer, and he must also state that thereto. the transfer was made. In general, whatever forms a constituent part of the plaintiff's title must be set out correctly (d). But this rule is liable to similar exceptions to that which makes it necessary to set out the instrument as made; and he may set it out, as in case of a bill payable to the order of a fictitious person, according to the effect given to it by law(e). It has been decided, that the payce of a bill or note payable to his own order, may state it to have been made payable to himself (f)(1); and a note payable to a married woman, and indorsed by her husband, may be stated to have been payable to the husband (g)(2). An indorsee may, it is said, declare against his immediate indorser, as on a bill of exchange made by the defendant, directed to the acceptor, and payable to the plaintiff, the act of indorsing be-

(v) Leaper v. Tatton, 16 East, 420, (Chit. j. 876); and see last note.

(x) Parks v. Edge, 1 C. & M. 429, post, 576, note (o).

(y) Tanner v. Bean, 4 Bar. & Cres. 312; 6 Dow. & Ry. 338, (Chit. j. 1261).

(z) Jones v. Morgau, 2 Campb. 474, (Chit. j. 807).

(a) Langeton v. Corney, 4 Campb. 176, (Chit. j. 930); Swan r. Cox, 1 Marsh. 176; Ralli v. Sarell, Dow. & Ry. N. P. C. 33; ante, (b) Ante, 154, 362, note (1).

(c) Bishop v. Hayward, 4 T. R. 471, (Chit. j. 492).

(d) Per Lord Kenyon, in Gwinnet v. Phillips, 3 T. R. 645; Gibson v. Minet, 1 Hen. Bla. 605, 606, (Chit. j. 479).

(e) Ante, 157, 158.

(f) Frederick r. Cotton, 2 Show. P. C. 8, (Chit j. 165); Smith r. M'Clure, 5 East, 476;

 2 Smith's Rep. 43, (Chit. j. 699).
 (g) Barlow c. Bishop, 1 East, 432; 8 Esp. Rep. 266, (Chit. j. 637); Ankerstein v. Clarke, 4 T. R. 616; Arnold v. Revoult, 1 Brod. & Bing 443; 4 Moore, 66, S. C.

(2) And though a check be transferred to two persons, as collateral security for two several debts due to them respectively, yet one alone may sue upon it; and possession by him is, prima facie, evidence that the interest of the other is assigned to him. Murray v. Judah, 6 Coweu, 484.

⁽¹⁾ And so, a bill payable to the order of the drawer, and not indorsed, may be assigned for valuable consideration, by delivery only; and an action, for the benefit of the assignee will lie against the acceptor, in the name of the drawer, as on a bill payable to himself. Titcomb v. Thomas, 5 Greenl. 282.

In general, however, the plaintiff's title should be stated according to the

IV. Of the ing similar in its operation to that of making a bill, but this is not the prac-Declaratice(h). tion.

Indorsement.

facts, and if he claim as a remote indorsee, every indorsement is usually set forth; but where the first indorsement is in blank, and the plaintiff is apprehensive he shall not be able to prove all the subsequent indorsements, it is proper to state the plaintiff to be the immediate indorsee of some prior in-In such case, however, it is said, that in order to render the evi-[*572] dence correspondent to the declaration, *all the subsequent names must be struck out of the bill before or at the time of the trial(i); which may be done notwithstanding there has been a second or subsequent indorsement in full(k); though by so doing the plaintiff loses the benefit of the intermediate title(l). In this case, in order to avoid unnecessary expense, the indorsements may be described concisely thus: "And the said A. then indersed the said bill of exchange to the said B., and the said B. then indorsed the said bill of exchange to the said C. &c.(m)(1)." And in an action against a remote indorser, though there be several indorsements between that of the payee and the defendant, the plaintiff may declare as on an immediate indorsement by the payee to the defendant, and by him to the plaintiff, and need not notice the intermediate indersements (n)(2). But if a declaration state that A. drew his bill on the defendant, who accepted the same; that A. then indorsed the bill to B., who delivered it to the plaintiff, the declaration will be And if a declaration on a bill of exchange, at the suit of an indorsee against acceptor, state that it was indorsed to the plaintiffs, as the surviving assignees of A. B. after his bankruptcy, the plaintiffs must prove that the bill was indorsed to them after the bankruptcy, and in their capacity

> It has been decided, that in an action against the indorser of a bill of exchange, in which the declaration stated several prior indorsements, it is not necessary to prove any indorsements on the bill prior to the defendant's, though it is otherwise in an action against the acceptor; consequently, where a remote indorser is sued, there will be no risk in stating all the prior in-

> > 551, &c.

(h) Brown r. Harraden, 4 T. R. 149, (Chit.

j. 470); see ante, 241, 242. (i) Anon. 12 Mod. 345, (Chit. j. 212); Pen-of surviving assignees (p).

cock v. Rhodes, Dougl. 633, (Chit j. 408); Anon. Holt, 296; Kyd, 206.

(k) Ante, 230, note (a), 231.
(l) And see Stein v. Yglesias, 1 C., M. & R. 565; 1 Gale, 98, S. C.

(m) And see rule T. T. 1 Will. 4, ante, P. 29, (Chit. j. 1351).

(n) Chaters v. Bell, 4 Esp. Rep. 211, (Chit. j. 636); Bayl. 5th edit. 396; and per Bayley, J. in Williamson v. Johnson, 2 D. & R. 283;

1 Bar. & Cres. 146, (Chit. j. 1163). (o) Cunliffe r. Whitehead, 3 Bing. N. C. 828; 6 Dowl. 63; 5 Scott, 31, S. C.

(p) Bernasconi v. Duke of Argyle, 3 Car. &

(1) { Where, in an action against the acceptor of a bill, indersed by the payee to the plaintiff, the allegation of the indorsement stated neither time nor place, the declaration was held bad on special demurrer. Potter v. Ryan, 1 Smythe's Rep. 22.

But the words "for value received," in setting forth a promissory note in a declaration are words of description, and not an averment, and therefore, if the words are not in the note, the variance is fatal. Baxton v. Johnson, 10 John. Rep. 418.

Digitized by Google

⁽²⁾ It is not necessary to state the indorsement to be "for value received;" and if so stated, the averment is surplusage, and need not be proved. Wilson r. Codman's Ex., 3 Cranch, 193. But see Welch v. Lindo, 7 Cranch's Rep. 159. An indersement is prima facie evidence of being made for the full value. Riddle r. Mandeville, 5 Cranch, 322. But it is otherwise if being made for the full value. Riddle v. Mandeville, 5 Cranch, 322. But it is otherwise if made "without recourse." Welch v. Lindo. And if the indorsement be restrictive as to a right against the indorser, as if it be "without recourse" to the indorser, it is not necessary, in a declaration against the maker by the indersee, to state such restriction. Wilson v. Codman's Ex.

40

X - 3

. د ن په

,1.

. . .

y Pr

133

...1.

dorsements in the declaration(q). And in another case it was held, that in IV. Of the an action by the indorsee against the acceptor, where several indorsements Declarahad taken place, and which were laid in the declaration, and are consequently necessary to be proved in general, yet if the defendant apply for time to 3. How Plaintiff the holder and offer terms, it is an admission of the holder's title, and a wai-became ver of proof of all the indorsements except the first(r). On an indorsement Party and for less than the full sum mentioned in the bill or note, the plaintiff must de-entitled to scribe the same accordingly, and shew that the residue was paid(s). In de-ment. scribing the indorsement, it is not advisable to allege that the indorser's hand-writing was thereunto subscribed; and, formerly, if that allegation was inserted, and the bill appeared to have been indorsed by an agent, the variance was considered fatal(t); though now it would probably be rejected as surplusage(u). We have already seen what will be a variance in the name of a party to the bill(x).

If a note payable to bearer be declared on as indorsed, the indorsement must be proved (y)(1); but if the declaration state that the indorsement was after the making of the bill, and it appear in evidence to have been before (z), or that it was before the bill was due, and it appear in evidence to have been made afterwards, this not a material *variance(a)(2). It is not necessary [*573] to allege, as part of the plaintiff's title, that the bill, &c. was delivered to him, as the allegation, that the bill was payable to the payee, or "that an indorsement was made" includes it(b); nor is it necessary to aver notice of an indorsement(c). A statement that the bill was delivered to the acceptor, instead of the indorsee, though untechnical, is not demurrable (d).

In an action against the acceptor on a bill by a plaintiff who became a party supra protest for the honour of the second indorser, it was held not necessary to state in the declaration, that the party to whom the payment was made by plaintiff was the party having title to the bill; the declaration stating "that the plaintiff, according to the usage and custom of merchants, paid the bill, under protest(e)(3)."

If a party sue as indorsee of or by transfer from the crown, it suffices to allege and prove a sign manual from the King(f).

Fourthly, It is also necessary to shew the defendant's breach of contract. 4. Defend-

- (q) Critchlow v. Parry, 2 Campb. 182, (Ch. j. 774).
- (r) Bosanquet v. Anderson, 6 Esp. Rep. 43,
- (Chit. j. 726).
 (s) Hawkins v. Gardner, 12 Mod. 213.
- (t) Lavy v. Wilson, 5 Esp. Rep. 180, (Chit. j. 703).
 - (u) Ante, 570, note (l). (x) Ante, 560 to 562.
- (y) Waynam v. Bend, 1 Campb. 175, (Chit. j. 746); and see Manning's Index, 75.
- (2) Snaith v. Mingay, 1 Maule & S. 92, (Chit. j. 880); Russell v. Langstaffe, Dougl.
- (a) Young v. Wright, 1 Campb. 139, (Chit. j. 774).
- (b) Churchill v. Gardner, 7 T. B. 596, Breach of (Chit. j. 605); Smith v. M'Clure, 5 East, 477; Contract.
 2 Smith, 43, (Chit. j. 699). But the forms given by rule T. T. 1 Will. 4, state a delivery to the payec. See ante, 553.
- (c) Reynolds v. Davies, 1 Bos. & Pul. 624, (Chit. j. 571). It will be seen, however, that this notice is alleged in the forms given by rule T. T. 1 Will. 4, ante, 533.
- (d) Smith v. M'Clure, 5 East, 477; 2 Smith, 43, (Chit. j. 699).
- (e) Cox v. Earle, 3 B. & Al. 430, (Chit. j.
- (f) Lambert v. Taylor, 4 Bar. & Cres. 138; 6 Dow. & Ry. 188, (Chit. j. 1248), where see form of declaration.

(2) A promissory note indersed long after it falls due, may be declared on as indersed when it was due. Parsons v. Parsons, 5 Cowen, 476.

(3) A mere agent, holding a check or note, may sue on it in his own name; and it does not lie with the defendant to object to the plaintiff's title. Mauran v. Lamb, 7 Cowen, 174.

Digitized by Google

⁽¹⁾ The indersement of a note, payable to bearer, makes the inderser liable, as upon a new bill to bearer. Eccles v. Ballard, 2 M'Cord, 388. Where a note is made by A. payable to B., and indersed by C. at the time it is made, C. becomes a promissor on the note, and may be declared against as such. Baker v. Briggs, 8 Pick. 122.

1

9

ant's Breach of Contract.

IV. Of the If a bill be accepted, payable when or if a certain event shall take place, it must be shewn that such event has occurred (g). And if the bill be payable at or after usances, their duration must be averred(h). If a note be paya-4. Defend- ble on or after demand, it is advisable, in an action against the maker, to allege a demand, though in strictness the bringing of the action is in itself a sufficient demand(i). In an action against an acceptor supra protest, it should be averred that the bill was presented at maturity to the original drawee(k). An averment of presentment of a bill on a Sunday under a videlicet is not bad; and it was in the same case considered that it would have been sufficient to have stated, that "when the bill became due and payable, according to the tenor and effect thereof," it was presented, without stating any day(l). And if the bill was not presented at its maturity, because it was impossible to present it, the cause of such impossibility need not be stated, [*574] *and the usual averment of the bill having been duly presented will suffice(m).

As Acceptor or Maker.

Presentment for Payment.

In an action against the acceptor of a bill or maker of a note, payable generally, and who are respectively primarily liable, it is not necessary to aver or prove any presentment for payment, the action itself being a sufficient demand, and the common breach at the end of the money counts sufficing (n); and we have seen, that unless the bill be accepted payable at a particular place "only, and not elsewhere," pursuant to the 1 & 2 Geo. 4, c. 78, no averment of a presentment there is necessary, whether it be drawn payable at that place or not; though such averment would always suffice (o). But in all cases where a note is in the body of it made payable at a particular place, or where a bill has been accepted specially according to the statute, a presentment there and refusal, or some discharge dispensing with the pre-

(g) Ante, 300, 301. (h) Bayl 5th edit. 397.

(i) See post, Ch. IV. as to the statute of limitations; but see Capp v. Lancaster, Cro. Eliz. 548; Rumball v. Ball, 10 Mod. 38, (Chit.

j. 231).

In Teague v. Morse, 2 M. & W. 599, which was an action on a promissory note, dated 12th March, 1836, whereby the defendant promised to pay the plaintiff 301. 13s. 64. as follows: viz. 21. on the 12th April then next, the further sum of 21. on the 12th day of each and every succeeding month afterwards until the whole should be paid, and that in case of default in payment of any one of the instalments then the defendant promised to pay to the plaintiff, or order, on demand the sum of 301. 13s. 6d., or so much thereof as should remain unpaid. And the declaration averred that default was made in payment of the first two instalments, whereby, according to the tenor and effect of the note, the defendant became liable to pay to the plaintiff the said sum of 301. 13s. 6d., to which the defendant demurred generally on the ground that, by default in payment of the instalments, the note did not become payable without a de-mand of the amount of it. The question as to the necessity of a previous demand was not decided, the demurrer being held too large, as there was clearly a debt as to the two instalments.

(k) Williams v. Germaine, ante, 350, note (a). (1) Bynner c. Russell, I Bing. Rep. 23; 7 Moore, 286, (Chit. j. 1151). And in Patience v. Townley, 2 Smith, 224, (Chit. j. 714), Lord Ellenborough, C. J. said, that the words "duly presented in" mean presented according to the custom of merchants, which necessarily implies an exception in favour of those unavoidable accidents which must prevent the parties from doing it within the regular time.

(m) Patience v. Townley, 2 Smith, 224, (Chit. j. 714).

(a) Frampton r. Coulson, 1 Wils. 33.

(v) Ante, 151 to 154, 359 to 365. Lyon v. Walls, 2 Moore & S. 736; 9 Bing. 660, S. C. Plaintiff declared on a bill of exchange averring a general acceptance. Defendant pleaded that the acceptance was a qualified acceptance, and that he did, according to the form of the statute in such case made and provided, in his said acceptance express that he accepted the same payable at a certain place only, to wit, at No. 32, Albany Street, Regent's Park, that is to say and not otherwise or elsewhere. The plaintiff replied that the said acceptance was a general acceptance, as in the fourth count set forth, "and that the defendant did not, in his said acceptance, express that he accepted the said bill payable at a certain place only, in manner and form as the defendant had in his plea alleged;" held, ou special demurrer, that the traverse sufficiently incorporated the particular mode of acceptance alleged in the plea, and was therefore good. And semble, that the defendant should have negatived in his plea a presentment of the bill at the place at which it was alleged to have been made specially payable.

,1 ,

sentment, must be averred in an action against the acceptor of the one and IV. Of the the maker of the other (p)(1); and an allegation that the makers of the note, Declarapayable in the body of it at a particular house, became insolvent, and ceased and wholly declined and refused then and thenceforth to pay at the place 4. Defendspecified any of their notes, does not shew a sufficient discharge or excuse ant's Brench of for the want of a presentment of the particular note declared on (q)(2).

Contract.

It is sufficient, however, in these cases, if the declaration allege the presentment to have been made to the persons at whose house the bill was made payable, "according to the tenor and effect of the bill, and the acceptance thereof"(r). But if a bill be stated to have been accepted payable by certain persons, at a particular place, it has been holden, in an action against the drawer, that an averment of a presentment to those persons generally, without saying at what place, is sufficient(s). And so if the bill be payable at a banker's or other persons, it need not be alleged that it was presented to the bankers or other persons (t); and where a bill has been accepted payable at the house of A. B. it suffices to aver a presentment there, without alleging a presentment to A. B. or to the acceptor(u); or it will be sufficient to aver that the bill was in due manner presented to A. B., without saying at the house(x); and *although a declaration allege a presentment by a per- [*575] son specified, it is sufficient to prove a presentment by another (y). It suffices in an action against an acceptor, to aver a presentment at a particular place, without shewing that payment was refused there, it being sufficient to allege the non-payment at the conclusion of the declaration(z). Nor is it necessary to aver, that the acceptor of the bill, or maker of the note, had notice of the non-payment at the particular place (a).

(p) Id. ibid.

(q) Bowes r. Howe, 5 Taunt. 30, (Chit. j. 892); ante, 355, note (p)

(r) Huffan v. Ellis, 3 Taunt. 415, (Chit. j.

(s) Ambrose v. Hopwood, 2 Taunt. 61, (Chit. j. 772).

(t) Giles v. Brown, 2 Chit. Rep. 300; 6 M.

& S. 75, (Chit. j. 982).

(u) Hawkey v. Borwick, 1 Younge & J. 376; 4 Bing. 135; 12 Moore, 478, (Chit. j. 478). 1833); De Bergareche v. Pillin, 3 Bing. 476, (Chit. j 1292); Giles r. Brown, 2 Chit. Rep. 300; 6 M. & S. 75, (Chit. j. 982).

(x) Bush r. Kinnear, 6 Mau. & Sel. 210.

In assumpsit by indorsee against indorser of a bill of exchange, plaintiff declared that A. B. accepted, and by that acceptance appointed the money in the bill specified to be paid at the house of G. and Co., and averred that the bill was in due manner presented to G. and Co. and to A. B. for payment, and that G. and Co. and A. B. were then and there required to pay the same to plaintiff, according to the tenor and effect of the bill, and acceptance, and indorsement: upon special deniurrer assigning for cause that it did not appear that the bill was presented at the house, it was held that the averment was sufficient.

(y) Boehm v. Campbell, 1 Gow, 55. (Chit. j. 1045).

(2) Butterworth v. Lord Despenser, 3 Maule & S. 150, (Chit. j. 913); and Benson v. White, 4 Dow, 334; 6 Maule & S. 73, (Chit. j.

(a) Id. ibid.; Peace r. Pembertley, 3 Campb. 261, (Chit. j. 870).

(2) In an action against the maker of a note, promising to pay at a particular place, it is not necessary that the declaration should allege a demand at the time and place appointed for payment. Carley v. Vance, 17 Mass. 389. Mulherrin v. Hannum, 2 Yerger's Rep. 81.

The same general principle is recognized in Caldwell v. Cassidy, 8 Cowen, 271; but where a note is payable on demand at a particular place, it seems, that a demand at such place should be made before suit. Id.

As against the maker of a note or drawer of a bill payable at a particular place, it seems, that no averment in the declaration, or proof at the trial, of a demand of payment at the place designated, is necessary; but as against the indorser, it is, in general, otherwise. Bank of the United States v. Smith, 11 Wheat. 171.

If a promissory note be payable at a particular place, the declaration in an action against the maker, must aver a demand of payment at that place, and the averment must be proved at the trial. Palmer et ux. v. Hughes, 1 Black. Rep. 328.

^{(1) \} Where a note or hill is payable at a particular place, it is not necessary to aver a presentment at such place: it is sufficient to state a general presentment to the drawee. Ledlie v. Lockhart, Irish Law Rep. 89. But where there was no averment of presentment, the declaration was held bad on general demurrer. Potter v. Ryan 1 Smythe, 22. }

CH

Œ,

'n

(2) æ

10

۲ė

96

w 3 21

सं ig.

ř

d

1

1 .

,1

Ţ

IV. Of the Declaration.

As Drawer or Indorser.

Where the declaration is against the drawer or indorser of a bill, or the indorser of a note, as their contract is only conditional to pay if the acceptor of the one or maker of the other do not, it is necessary to aver a presentment for payment to the drawee of the bill or maker of the note, on the day it became due(b)(1), and that he refused to pay(c)(2) or could not be found

Presentment for Payment.

(b) Mercer v. Southwell, 2 Show. 180, j. 416); Lundie v. Robertson, 7 East, 231, (Chit. j. 724).

(c) Rushton v. Aspinall, Dougl. 679, (Chit.

In an action on a note payable at the Commercial Bank of Louisville, the breach laid was, that the defendant, although often requested, had not paid, &c.: Held, on general demurrer, that the breach was too general. Gilly v. Springer, id 257.

In debt on promissory note, by indorsee against maker, the declaration states the note as one made negotiable at the bank of V., and avers, that the note at maturity was duly presented at the bank, and protested for non-payment; the note offered in evidence, was made negotiable at bank; and there was no proof that it was presented at bank for payment: Held, a note made negotiable at bank, is not therefore payable there also, and so the averment of presentation at ank was wholly immaterial, and need not be proved. Burrett r. Wills, 4 Leigh's Rep. 114.

Quere, Whether in the case of a note made payable at a particular bank, it is necessary in an action against the maker, to aver and prove due presentation of the note for payment at the bank? 4 Johns Rep. 183. 17 ld. 248. 11 Wheat. 171. Ibid.

(1) A declaration in assumpsit on a bill of exchange, by holder against indorser, alleges that "when the bill became due, and payable according to the tenor and effect thereof, to wit, on the 27th Dec. 1816, at the bank of Marietta, in Ohio," (where it was payable,) it was presented for payment and dishonoured; the 27th Dec. was not the third but the fourth day after the time appointed for the payment of the bill. Held, that as it was averred that the bill was presented when it became due and payable according to its tenor and effect, and the date of the presentment was stated under a scilicet, the date so stated was not material, and the plaintiff might have proved presentment on the third day of grace. Jackson's Adm'x v. Henderson, &c., 3 Leigh's Rep. 197.

It seems that when a bill is made payable at a place or bank, at which there is a special established usage, that bills there payable shall be presented on the fourth and not on the third day of grace, such special usage must be alleged in the declaration upon such bill, otherwise proof of presentation on the fourth day of grace is not admissible. Ibid.

In assumpsit on a bill of exchange, drawn in Virginia payable at the bank of Marietta, Ohio, the declaration counting on the general law-merchant, and the general issue being joined: Held, that as the general law-merchant requires presentation on the third day of grace, proof of presentation on the fourth day of grace does not support the issue on the plaintiff's part. Ibid.

(2) But where in an action by an indorsee against his immediate indorser, there was in the declaration no averment of a demand on the maker on the day when the note became due, but only an averment, "although often requested," &c. it was held, that after verdict the declaration was sufficient. Leffingwell v. White, 1 John. Cas. 99. In an action against the drawer of an order by the payee, it must be alleged and proved that the order was presented and not accepted or that it was accepted and not paid; and that the defendant had notice: merely stating that the drawee, "although often requested to pay the plaintiff, had hitherto neglected and re-fused," is not a sufficient allegation. Treadway v. Nicks, 3 M'Cord, 195.

Where notice is averred to have been actually given of the dishonour of a bill, it must be proved as laid; and therefore if in fact it has not been given, the declaration should state that due diligence had been used to give notice, and assign the roason why it was not done. Blukely r. Grant, 6 Mass. Rep. 386. But see Stewart r. Eden, 2 Caines' Rep. 121. See Price r. Young, 1 M'Cord, 339. Williams r. Bank of the United States, 2 Peters, 96, 101. Where the declaration contains an averment of due notice of the dishonour of the bill, legal notice must be prov-Evidence that the holder had used due diligence to give notice, without effect, will not sustain the declaration. Hill v. Varrell, 3 Greenl. 233. And if no demand is made of the maker, and a sufficient excuse exist, that excuse, and not an averment of due presentment should be stated in the declaration. Semb. Bond v. Farnham, 5 Mass Rep. 170.

If notice of non-acceptance be duly averred in an action against the drawer, but no protest is averred, after verdict it is sufficient, for the law will presume it to be a regular notice by protest. Lawes on Assumpsit, 364, note. And it is not necessary or proper to set forth in the declaration a presentment or protest for non-payment of a bill, where there is an averment of a previous presentinent for acceptance and refusal, and due notice thereof given; and if averred, it will be rejected as surplusage. Mason v. Franklin, 3 John. Rep. 202, note. If the indorser of a note die before it becomes due, in an action against his executor by the holder, the declaration should allege the promise to pay, to be by the executor, and not by the testator, otherwise it will be a fatal variance. Stewart v. Eden, 2 Caines' Rep. 121.

Where a declaration by indorsee against indorser, avers demand and notice in the usual form. it is sufficient if the plaintiff proves a state of facts, which dispenses with actual demand, &c. and shows due diligence, &c. Williams r. Mathews, 3 Cowen, 252.

1111

. 1255

.

-, 17

r + , 🗠

...

497

....

. 6

upon diligent search; and such averment should correspond with the fact; IV. Of the and it has been decided, that if a presentment in fact be averred, evidence Declarathat the party could not be found will be inadmissible (d). But in a later case, in an action on a bill drawn upon "P. P. No. 6, Budge Row," and 4. Defendaccepted by him, an averment that the bill when due was presented and shewn Breach of to P. P. for payment, was held to be supported by proof that the holder Contract. went to No. 6, Budge Row, to present it, but found the house shut up, and As Drawer no one there(e). And where the drawee or maker cannot be found, it is or Indorssufficient to aver generally, that he was not found, without stating that any er. inquiry was made after him, though it is now more usual to aver that diligent search was made, and which must, as we have seen, be proved(f). seems unnecessary to state the reason why the bill was not presented exactly at maturity, if by the law it need not have been so, provided the declaration contain the usual or similar averment that the bill "was duly presented. according to the custom of merchants," and under this averment, evidence of the impossibility of presenting at the time of the maturity of the bill may be given(g). When the drawee or maker has merely removed, and not absconded(h), a presentment must be alleged(i). But it need not be stated, that the bankers did not pay(k), nor, if the bill be payable at a banker's, need it be stated that it was presented to the bankers (l). In an action on a foreign bill drawn in sets, it is not necessary, though usual, to aver the nonpayment of the other parts of the bill(m).

With respect to the place of presentment, if a bill be drawn payable at a particular place, and accepted so payable, or, it seems, if merely *accepted [*576] payable at a particular place, and such acceptance appear on the face of the declaration, it will be necessary to aver as well as prove, a presentment at that particular place, in order to charge the drawer or indorser; although,

(d) Leeson v. Piggott, Sittings after Trin. Term, 1788, (Chit. j 446); Bayl. 5th ed. 401, note 145; and Smith r. Bellamy, 2 Stark. Rep. 228, (Chit. j. 1005), acc.; but see Boulager v. Talleyrand, 2 Esp. Rep. 550, (Chit. j. 585); Hine v. Allely, 4 B. & Ad. 604, next note.

(e) Hine v. Allely, 4 Bar. & Adol. 624; 1

Nev. & Man. 433, S. C. (f) Firth v. Thrush, S Bar. & Cres. 387; 2 Man. & Ry. 359; Dans. & Ll. 151, (Chit. j. 1898). But this is not absolutely necessary, id. ibid.

(g) Patience r. Townley, 2 Smith, 228, 224, (Chit. j. 714); and see Firth v. Thrush, 8 Bar. & Cres. 387.

(h) Starkie r. Cheeseman, Carth. 509, (Chit. j. 209).

(i) Parker r. Gordon, 7 East, 385; 3 Smith, 858; 6 Esp. 41, (Chit. j. 727).

(k) Giles r. Brown, 6 Maule & S. 73; 2 Chit. Rep. 800, (Chit. j. 982).

(l) Id. ibid. (m) Carth. 509; Ld. Raym. 810; Salk.

Where the indorsee of a bill, in an action against the indorser, relies on the want of funds of the drawer in the hands of the drawee, instead of due notice, it is necessary for him to aver that fact in the declaration. Frazier v. Harris, 2 Litt. 185.

130; Stra. 214.

Assumpsit by the payee against the drawer of a bank-check payable 15 days after date, the bank having refused payment; the declaration averred a presentment of the check for payment after it had become due, according to the custom of merchants; but did not state the day of presentment: held, that the averment was insufficient on general demurrer. Glen et al. r. Noble et al., 1 Blackf. 104.

Indersee against inderser of a promissory note dated 15th October, 1818, payable at the N. Bank, 12 Months after date. Averment of presentment at the bank to the cashier and demand of payment on the 18th of October, 1819, and that neither makers nor any one else on their be-balf then and there paid, is, especially after verdict, sufficient allegation that makers did not pay before action brought. Crenshaw v. M'Kiernan, 1 Miner's Alabama Rep. 295.

In an action brought by the payoe of an order or bill of exchange against the drawer, the statement of demand must substantially aver, that notice in due season was given to the drawer, of the non-acceptance or non-payment of the bill or order. Ribble et al. v. Jefferson, 5 Halsted's

Rep. 189.

Declaration by assignee against assignor of a bond payable by instulments, avers demand and 1892 and after the 11th day of February, 1822, when the day of February, 1822, and after the 11th day of February, 1822, when the last instalment was due, good after verdict. Dupuy v. Gray, 1 Minor's Alabama Rep. 357.

Ċ

17.7

Ľ.

€.

ьł

b

13

ant's Breach of Contract. As Draw-

IV. Of the as against the acceptor, such acceptance amount only to a general acceptance, since the 1 & 2 Geo. 4, c. 78 (n). But inasmuch as in declaring against a drawer or indorser it is unnecessary to aver an acceptance by the 4. Defend- drawee, if such averment be omitted, in a case where the bill has been accepted payable at a particular place, it will suffice to allege a general presentment, and to prove a presentment according to the terms of the acceptance although a statement of the acceptance would render a corresponding averment of presentment necessary (o). And, it should seem, that in either case, a general allegation of presentment would after verdict be taken to mean a presentment according to the tenor and effect of the bill(p). We have seen(q), that promissory notes are not affected by the 1 & 2 Geo. 4, c. 78, and, therefore, when made payable in the body thereof at a particular place, an averment and proof of presentment at such place will still be necessary, as well against the maker as the indorser.

Notice of

In an action against the drawer or indorser of a bill, or the indorser of a Dishonour. note, it is also a most material averment, that the defendant had notice of the dishonour of the bill, or some excuse must be alleged for the neglect to give such notice, and an error in this respect will be fatal even after verdict(r). But it is not necessary to state the facts justifying or excusing a delay in giving notice, it suffices to state that the defendant had due notice, and all the facts may be given in evidence in proof of that allegation(s); though if no notice whatever has been given to the defendant before action brought, then it seems still necessary to aver in the declaration and prove that diligent inquiry was made after the defendant, and that he had gone away or could not In the case of a foreign bill, a protest also should be stated(u); and the allegation that the plaintiff protested, or caused to be protested, *would be improper(x); and it was formerly considered, that where the plaintiff proceeds for interest, &c. against the drawer or indorser of a bill, a protest must also be stated even in the case of an inland bill (y), but that doc-

Protest.

(n) Gibb v. Mather, 8 Bing. 214, 220, 221; 1 Moore & S. 387; 2 C. & J. 254; 10 Law J. 87. On error in the Exchequer Chamber, see Parks v. Edge, 1 C. & M. 429, next note.

(o) Parks v. Edge, 1 C. & M. 429; 3 Tyrw.
364; 1 Dowl. P. C. 643; nom. Parker v. Ade.

(p) Lyon v. Holt, 5 M. & W. 250.

(q) Ante, 153, 154, 360, et seq. (r) Rushton v. Aspinall, Dougl. 679, (Chit. j. 416; Lundie r. Robertson, 7 East, 231, (Chit. j. 724.)

(s) Firth v. Thrush, 8 Bar. & Cres. 387; 2 Man. & Ry. 359; Dans. & Ll. 151, (Chit. j. 1898); but see Harris v. Richardson, 4 Car. & P. 522.

(t) Harris v. Richardson, 4 Car. & P. 522, (Chit. j. 1533). And see Bayl. 5th edit. 466, 467; and Corey v. Smith, 3 B. & Ald. 619.

Harris v. Richardson. Assumpsit on a bill of exchange. The declaration alleged notice to defendant of the non-payment. The witness stated that he went for the purpose of giving such notice, to No. 5, in the Oval, at Kenning ton, where he saw a female servant, and told her that he wanted Mr. Richardson, and was come to give him notice of the dishonour of a bill. The servant replied, that Mr. Richardson had left, and she believed he had failed in business; but if he, the witness, wanted to know any thing more, he must inquire of a Mr. Pledge, who lived in the neighbourhood. The counsel for the defendant having objected to thise vidence, as insufficient to prove the declaration, the counsel for the plaintiff cited Crosse r. Smith, 1 Maule & S. 545, and contended, that anything which amounted to an excuse, by shewing that the party had used due diligence, was sufficient to sustain the allegation.

Lord Tenterden, C. J. "I have always had considerable doubt about that; when notice in such a case is proved to have been given before action brought, I have thought it sufficient, although it was not given at the proper time; but here you do not prove that any notice has been given at all. In Crosse v. Smith, the parties went to the counting-house. The only question is, whether this evidence will sustain the allegation; I am of opinion that it will not; and therefore I must nonsuit the plaintiff; but I will give you leave to move to enter a verdict for the plaintiff."

Nonsuit, with leave to move.-But no motion was made.

(u) Gale v. Walsh, 5 T. R. 239, (Chit. j. 506).

(x) Witherley v. Sarsfield, 1 Show. 127, (Chit. j. 173).

(y) Boulager v. Talleyrand, 2 Esp. Rep. 550.

M

.: -

نبط نف

.

trine has been over-ruled (z). And the neglect to state the protest of a for- IV. Of the eign bill can only be taken advantage of on special demurrer(a).

If there are any circumstances in the case dispensing with presentment or Dispensaprotest, or notice of the dishonour, as if the drawer countermanded the pay- tion with Notice, &c. ment, or had no effects in the hands of the drawee, &c. The declaration must state those circumstances (b). In an action against a drawer or indorser of a bill, and the indorser of a note, their liabilities and promises are stated to have been to pay on request, and not according to the tenor and effect of

The other points relative to the declarations on bills, notes, and checks, will be found subjoined to the Precedents in the TREATISE on PLEAD-ING(c).

*With respect to the common counts, although it is not usual, when there Secondly, is a bill or note, to rely on them alone in pleading, yet they will in many on the cases supply the omission or defect of the count on the instrument itself; and Counts. the plaintiff will be at liberty to go into evidence of the consideration for [*578] which he received it, and may recover on the common counts, if adapted to

- (z) Windle v. Andrew, 2 B. & Al. 696, (Chit. j. 1062).
- (a) Solomons v. Staveley, 3 Dougl. 298, and cited 2 Dougl. 684, note; 1 Salk. 131; 1
- (b) See form, in Legge v. Thorpe, 12 East, 171; 2 Campb. 310, (Chit. j. 783). And see generally as to what amounts to a dispensation with notice, ante, 451, 481.

Burgh v. Legge, 5 Mee. & Wels. 418. Assumpsit on two bills of exchange by indorsee against his immediate indorser, averring notice of dishonour, to which was added a count upon an account stated. The defendant by his plea traversed the notice of dishonour of the bills as alleged. The plaintiff, in order to support that issue, proved that on the day when the first bill became due the defendant called upon him and told him that he knew neither of the bills would be paid; that it was no use sending him a twopenny post letter the next day to give him notice, as it was not worth the money, and that he would send the plaintiff money in part payment of the bills on a future day: held, that this was not evidence of notice of dishonour, but of a dispensation with it, and that it ought to have been so alleged in the declaration: held also, that it was not sufficient evidence to support the count upon the account stated.

Per Parke, B. " As to the variance between the allegation in the special counts and the evidence, it seems to me to be perfectly clear, although the point has not been hitherto expressly decided, that, under the allegation that a party has received notice of the dishonour of a bill, after the dishonour has taken place, an actual notice to that effect must be proved; and, that shewing the party's knowledge of the fact that it will not be paid at maturity is not sufficient. There must be proof of a notice given from some party entitled to call for payment of the bill and conveying in its terms intelligence of the presentment, dishonour, and parties to be held liable in consequence. That is the true meaning of the word 'notice' when used in declarations of this kind, and the mere knowledge of a party is not enough. Now, in the present case, there is no proof of any such notice, but rather the contrary; for the defendant applies to the plaintiff for more discount, and says the other bills would not be paid; and as to notice, that it would not be worth while to give it, for the drawer had since become bankrupt. The meaning of this rather is, that the plaintiff did not send notice of the dishonour, than the contrary. In the case of Cory v. Scott, 3 Bar. & Ald. 621, which has been referred to, there seems to have been a little discrepancy of opinion between the judges whose names have been mentioned,-one of them considering the allegation not sufficient, and the other inclining to a contrary opinion: although it is somewhat re-markable that Bayley, J. himself, in his Treatise on Bills of Exchange, p. 407, states that he and Holroyd, J. agreed in that case that the evidence would not be sufficient, and intimates a rather strong opinion that the allegation of notice must be proved; and that if, either from want of assets on the part of the drawer, or any other cause, it should become unnecessary, the fact should be so stated. For my part I am not at all taken by surprise by this question. I always thought, that if presentment or notice was to be excused on the ground of want of effects, &c. that fact ought to be stated in the declaration. Reason points out, that where the fact of notice is averred it must be proved; and so I have always understood it. I was of opinion at the trial, and think so still, that, although the evidence adduced did not amount to proof of notice having been actually given, it was good evidence of a dispensation with notice: and on that point the plaintiff may, if he chooses, have a rule nisi for a new trial on payment of the costs of the day, and be allowed to amend his declaration by alleging a dispensation with notice, instead of the averment of notice having been actually given."

(c) Chitty on Pleading, 6th edit. vol. ii. 75

Declara-Secondly, on the Common

Counts.

IV. Of the such consideration, in case he cannot substantiate in evidence the facts necessary to support the count on the instrument, or such count should be defective(d)(1): taking care that the particulars of his demand state the consideration of the bill, &c.(e); and perhaps to notice such demand in the Thus where the plaintiff decounsel's opening of the case on the trial (f). clared on a promissory note, and on a quantum meruit(g) for work and labour, which was the consideration for which it was given, but the note not being duly stamped, and a verdict having been taken generally for the plaintiff, the defendant moved to enter a noneuit, the court said, "that although the note, not being stamped, could not be given in evidence, yet the plaintiff ought to have an opportunity of recovering on the other count," and accordingly a new trial was granted(h); and in Wilson v. Kennedy, i), where the same point was determined, Lord Kenyon said, that a promissory note is not like a bond, which merges the demand(k). It has also been decided, that it is not necessary to declare on a promissory note, but that in an action for money lent, the same may be given in evidence(1); for the statute of 3 & 4 Anne, c. 9, which enables the plaintiff to declare upon the note, is only a concurrent remedy: and where a bill was drawn on an agent, and made payable out of a particular fund, and consequently invalid, and the agent said he would pay it when he got money of the principal, it was held, that this was binding on him, and that if he got the money at any subsequent time, he was bound to pay the amount, and that it was recoverable as money had and received(m). Where, however, the party has been discharged by > (d) See the older cases, in Selw. 9th edit. (d) See the older casea, in Selw. 9th edit. 368, 369; Manning's Ind. 75, 76; Thompson v. Morgan, 3 Campb. 101, 102, (Chit. j. 847); Tyte v. Jones, 1 East, 58, note (a); Alves v. Hodgson, 7 T. R. 241, (Chit. j. 458); Tatlock v. Harris, 3 T. R. 174, (Chit. j. 458); Claxton v. Swift, 2 Show. 501, (Chit. j. 167, 168); Kyd, 58, 197; Peake's Law of Evid. 219; Bul. N. P. 189; Payne v. Bacomb, Dougl. 651; Brown v. Watts, 1 Taunt. 353, (Chit. j. 753).

(e) Wade v. Beasley, 4 Esp. R. 7, (Chit. j. 685); Selw. 9th edit. 369.

(f) Paterson v. Zechariah, 1 Stark. R. 72. See the cases in Wells v. Girling, Gow Rep. 22, 28; 3 Moore, 79, (Chit. j. 1051).
(g) Since the rule T. T. 1 Will. 4, the quantum meruit and quantum valebant counts are not used. See ante, 552, note (o); 556, note (h).

(h) Alves v. Hodgson, 7 T. R. 241, (Chit.

(a) Aives v. Hodgson, 7 T. K. 241, (Chit. 584); Tyte v. Jones, 1 East, 58, note (a); Wade v. Beasley, 4 Esp. Rep. 7, (Chit. j. 635).
(i) Wilson v. Kennedy, 1 Esp. Rep. 245, (Chit. j. 535); Tyte v. Jones, 1 East, 58; note (a); Selw. 9th edit. 368; Carter v. Palmer 128 mer, 12 Mod. 880, (Chit. j. 218).

(k) See also ante, 125. (l) Bul. N. P. 137, 138; Storey v. Atkins, 2 Stra. 719, (Chit. j. 960); Ex parte Mills, 2 Ves. jun. 308, (Chit. j. 498). (m) Stevens v. Hill, 5 Esp. Rep. 247, (Ch.

j. 716).

In an action on a promissory note, where, besides the special count, there are the usual money counts and for goods sold, &c. the plaintiff may elect on which count to give the note in evidence. Burdick v. Green, 18 Johns. 14.

Bills of exchange by the law merchant and promissory notes by statute, may be declared on as specialties; but this privilege may be waived, and where there is a privity of contract, the holder may declare in the original consideration, and give the bill or note in evidence. Hanna r.

Pegg, 1 Blackf. 181.
Indorser v. Indorsec, with common counts and general issue to all. Though the counts on the indorsement be insufficient, the judgment shall be sustained by the verdict on the common counts. Brown & Parsons v. Tower, 1 Minor's Alabama Rep. 370.

A promissory note, void on the ground of being discounted by an incorporated company not authorized to carry on banking business, is nevertheless competent evidence, it seems, in support of the money counts. Utica Ins. Co. v. Bloodgood, 4 Wend. Rep. 657.

In New York, where the plaintiff includes the maker and indorser in one action, and declares pursuant to the statute on the money counts, he cannot give the note in evidence under such counts, unless he proves upon the trial, that a copy of the note was saved with the declaration. Steuben County Bank v. Stephens, 14 Wend. 243.

⁽¹⁾ A note made by the defendant, and payable to a third person or order, and by such their person indorsed to the plaintiff, may be given in evidence to support a count for money had and received. Tenney v. Sanborn, 5 New Hamp. Rep. 557.

- 1.

رجر ہے ہ

, o . . .

ik.

1 380

** . * .

20 021

7.

. 14

r 421

1 23.

.

* 415E 12, 300 - 2 132.1

يو و اور ق مين م

. in 10.3 m . 181

. I EE'

] pr b

34 11

ان تک موادر 700 B.

沙麻草

يتزيية ي

. . 877.8

2.3 الله . ایک^{ون} the alteration(n) of the bill, &c. or by the laches of the holder, the plaintiff IV. Of the will not be allowed to go into evidence on the common counts(o)(1); and Declarawhere a promissory note has been given for money due from the defendant to the plaintiff, who declares thereon, together with the money counts, he Secondly, must produce the note on the trial, or prove that it has been destroyed before Common he can have recourse to the money counts, if it appear that the money so Counts. claimed was that for which the note was given (p)(2).

*On the other hand, when there are counts for work or goods, as well as on [*579] a bill or note, and the latter be dated after the work was done, or goods delivered, it will be presumed, till the contrary be proved, that the bill or note was given in payment for the prior debt, and the plaintiff will not be allowed to recover for both(q); and therefore where the plaintiff has two demands, viz. one on a bill or note, and another for any other debt, in order to recover both, he must be prepared with evidence to establish that they are distinct claims (r).

The forms of declaration on bills and notes given by the rule of T. T. 1 Will. 4(s), apply to both assumpsit and debt, and, therefore, a count by the payee against the acceptor of a bill, in the form there given, may well be charged by alteration, ib.

(0) Long v. More, 8 Esp. Rep. 155, note; and see Bridges v. Berry, 8 Taunt. 180, (Chit.

j. 804); ante, 488, note (c).
(p) Dangerfield v. Wilby, 4 Esp. Rep. 159, (Chit. j. 648); ante, 267, note (c); Hadwen

(n) Ante, 191. When prior debt not disserged by alteration, ib.

(a) Long v. More, 8 Esp. Rep. 155, note;

(b) Long v. More, 8 Esp. Rep. 155, note;

(c) Long v. More, 8 Esp. Rep. 155, note;

(d) Long v. More, 176, 265 to 271.

(q) King v. Masters, 8 Car. & P. 847, (Ch. 1408).

(r) Id. ibid.

(s) Ante, 551 to 557.

(2) See Pintard v. Packington, 10 Johns. Rep. 104, and other cases collected in the note to p. 185. But a recovery cannot be had upon a note lost, and not destroyed, if it had been indorsed before it was lost. Pintard v. Packington. See Freeman v. Boynton, 7 Mass. Rep. 583. Anderson v. Robson, 2 Bay's Rep. 495. Usher's Ex. v. Guither, 2 Harr. & M'Hen. Rep. 475. Morgan v. Reintzel, 7 Cranch. 273.

A note not negotiable within the statute, expressed to be for value received, may be given in evidence between the original parties under the money counts, if there be proof of a sufficient consideration. Smith v. Smith, 2 John. Rep. 285. See Hughes v. Wheeler, 8 Cowen, 77. But if no consideration appear on the face of the note, it is otherwise. Saxton v. Johnson, 10 John. Rep. 418. And if such a note be transferred and an express promise be made to pay the assignee, he may maintain an action on the money counts. Surtees v. Hubbard, 4 Esp. Rep. 204. Mowry v. Todd, 12 Mass. Rep. 281. So between the assignor and his immediate assignee, an action on such counts may be maintained; but not by a remote assignee against the assignor, for there is no privity between them. Mandeville v. Biddle, 1 Cranch, 290, 298.

A bill of exchange may be given in evidence in an action by the payee against the maker under the money counts. Cruger v. Armstrong, 3 John. Cas. 5. Arnold v. Crane, 8 John. Rep. 79. So, in an action by the indorsee against the maker of a promissory note, the note itself may be given in evidence under the common counts. Wilde v. Fisher, 4 Pick. 421. A note payable to A. or bearer may be given in evidence in an action by the holder against the maker under the money counts. Pierce v. Crafts, 12 John. Rep. 90. So in an action by the indorsee against the maker. Ibid. And in this last case the court over-ruled the decision in Waynam v. Bend, 1 Campb. Rep. 175.

An indorsement "without recourse to the indorser" is not evidence in an action by the indorsec against the indorser under a count for money had and received. Welch v. Lindo, 7 Cranch, 159. But a general indorsement is.—State Bank v. Hurd, 12 Mass. Rep. 172.

A promissory note is legal evidence, in an action for money paid, if nothing appear on its face to render it void: though it may be void from circumstances dehors the note. Myers v. Irwin, 2 Serg. & Rawle, 368.

A promissory note against the defendant and another, is evidence, under the common counts, against the defendant alone. Williams v. Allen, 7 Cowen, 316.

Digitized by Google

⁽¹⁾ If the drawer has been discharged from liability upon the bill by the laches of the holder, the latter cannot recover on a count for money had and received. Austin v. Rodman, 1 Hawks,

When a party is once exonerated, his liability cannot be revived without his assent. Even eyment by his friend, for his bonor, subjects him to no legal liability. Higgins r. Morrison's Ex'r, 4 Dana, 102. }

IV. Of the joined with indebitatus counts in debt, the declaration concluding in the usual form in debt $(t_1(1)$. tion.

When no Privily between Plaintiff and Defendant. the Bill or Note will not be Evidence in support of common Counts.

When the will prove a common Count.

The above rule does not in general apply when there is no privity between the plaintiff and defendant, as between the indorsee and the acceptor of a bill, and the indorsee and the maker of a note (u), between whom, if the plaintiff cannot succeed on the count upon the bill, and there be no express promise to pay the amount, the common counts are in general of no avail(v); and a promissory note is not admissible in evidence under the common counts in an action by an indorsee against the maker (x)(2). And a person who is merely a surety for the payment of a bill or note, is not liable on the common counts(y).

The instrument itself will, when duly stamped, in certain cases, be evi-Bill or note dence in support of the counts for money lent, paid, had and received, and that founded on an actual or supposed account stated; and those counts, when applicable, should therefore always be inserted in the declaration(z); but Lord Ellenborough expressed an opinion, that a promissory note is only evidence under the money counts as between the original parties to it(a)(3), unless it could be proved that the defendant had received value to the use of the plaintiff; a decision which appears to accord with the rule of law as to the assignment of choses in action, and may probably affect the authority of some of the decisions presently noticed (b). It should be observed, however, that the theory of a bill of exchange is, that it is an assignment to the payee of a debt due from the acceptor to the drawer, and the acceptance imports that the acceptor is a debtor to the drawer to the amount of the bill; hence it has been said, that the effect of the transactions is to appropriate, by an agreement between the parties, so much property to the account of . the holder (c).

Money lent. [*580]

The count for money lent, it is said, is proper in an action at the suit of the payee of a bill against the drawer, and in an action at the suit *of the payce of a note against the maker; they being evidence of money lent by the

(t) Compton v. Taylor, 4 M. & W. 138; Cloves v. Williams, 3 Bing. N. C. 868; 5 Scott, 68, S. C.

(u) Johnson v. Collings, 1 East, 98, (Chit. j. 633); Barlow v. Bishop, 1 Fast, 434, 435, (Chit. j. 687); Whitwell v. Bennett, 3 Bos. & Pul. 559, (Chit. j. 685); Houle v. Baxter, 3 East, 177, (Chit. j. 664).

(v) Waynam v. Bend, 1 Campb. 175, (Chit.

j. 746). (x) Bentley and another v. Northouse, Mood. & M. 66, (Chit. j. 1335).

(y) Wells v. Girling, 3 Moore, 79.

(2) See Wells v. Girling, Gow's Rep. 22, (Chit. j 1051), and cases there cited; 3 Moore, 79, S. C.

(a) Waynam v. Bend, 1 Campb. 175, (Chit. j. 746).

(b) See Lord Kenyon's observations in Johnson v. Collings, 1 East, 103, 104, (Chit. j. 633); and in Barlow v. Bishop, 1 East, 434, 435, (Ch.

j. 637). (c) Stark. on Evid. part iv. 302.

(2) The holder of a negotiable note transferred by delivery or indorsement may recover on it under the money counts. Olcott v. Rathbone, 5 Wend. Rep. 490.

In an action by indorsee against maker, a promissory note cannot be given in evidence under a count for money lent, but it may under a count for money had and received. Rockefeller v. Robison, 17 Wend. 206.

(3) { In an action against the maker, a promissory note may be given in evidence under the money counts, although the consideration of the note be work done. Smith v. Van Loan, 16 Wend. 659. }

^{(1) {} Where the common counts did not allege any indebtedness, in respect to the money lent, paid, advanced, &c. or any time and place, they were held bad. Potter v. Ryan, I Smythe,

'il' ..

payee to the drawer of the one, and the maker of the other (d). It is also IV. Of the proper, in an action at the suit of an indorsee against his immediate indors- Declaraer(e). So a note in this form:—"3d December, 1751, then received of Mr. Harris, the sum of nineteen pounds, on behalf of my grandson, which I On the promise to be accountable for on demand; witness my hand, S. Huntbach." Common -the grandson being an infant, was holden to be evidence in support of the Counts. count for money lent (f); and that decision was recently recognised (g). an instrument engaging to pay " for value received," if void, because payable on a contingency, affords no evidence of money lent(h).

It has been said, that a bill or note is prima facie evidence of money paid Money by the holder to the use of the drawer of the one, and maker of the other(i); and that a bill, when accepted, is evidence of money paid by the holder to the use of the acceptor (k); and if an indorser has taken up a bill, he may, having failed in his first count against the acceptor, on account of a variance, recover under the count for money paid (l)(1). And an indorser who has been obliged to pay a part of a bill, may sue the acceptor for money paid, although the holder whom he paid still retains the bill(m). case, Eyre, C. J. said, "That the presumption of evidence which a bill of exchange affords, has no application to the assumpsit for money paid by the payee or holder of it, to the use of the acceptor; and that it must be a very special case which will support such an assumpsit(n)." And in the case of Cowley v. Dunlop(o), Lawrence, J. expressed an opinion that the drawer of a bill, who is obliged to take it up, after having negotiated it, is confined to his action on the bill to recover against the acceptor. If, however, the drawee, without having effects of the drawer in his hands, accept and pay the bill, without having it protested, he may recover the amount in an action for money paid to the use of the drawer(p), though it is usual to declare on the express or implied promise to provide for the bill at maturity,

- (d) Per Bayley, B. in Morgan v. Jones, 1 Tyrw. Rep. 29; i Cro. & Jer. 162, (Chit. j. 1515); per Lord Ellenborough, in Marshall v. Poole, 13 East, 100, (Chit. j. 809); Ex parte Mills, 2 Ves. jun. 295, (Chit. j. 498); Storey v. Atkins, 2 Stra. 725, (Chit. j. 960); Clerke v. Martin, Ld. Raym. 758, (Chit. j. 219); Carter v. Palmer, 12 Mod. 380, (Chit. j. 213); Grant v. Vaughan, 3 Burr. 1516, 1525, (Chit. j. 365); Smith r. Kendall, 6 T. R. 124, (Chit. j. 533); Carr v. Shaw, ante, 519, note (p). Scd ride Cary v. Gerrish, 4 Esp. Rep. 9, (Chit.
- (e) Kessebower r. Tims, K. B. 22 Geo. 3, Bayl. 5th edit. 359, note 60.
- (f) Harris r. Huntbach, 1 Burr. 873, (Chit. j. 344), cited in Morgan r. Jones, I Tyrw. Rep. 26; 1 Cro. & Jer. 162, (Chit. j. 1515).
- (g) Morgan v. Jones, 1 Tyrw. Rep. 29; 1 Cro. & Jer. 162, (Chit. j. 1515).

- (h) Id. ibid.
- (i) Bayl. 5th edit. 358.
 - (k) Id. ibid.
- (1) Le Sage v. Johnson, Forr. Rep. 23; Bayl. 5th edit. 358, S. C.
- (m) Pownall v. Ferrard, 6 Bar. & Cres. 439;
- 9 Dow. & Ry. 603, (Chit. j. 1327). (n) Gibson v. Minet, 1 H. Bla. 602, (Chit. j. 479); and see Howle r. Baxter, 3 East, 177, (Chit. j. 664).
- (o) Cowley v. Dunlop, 7 T. R. 572, (Chit. j. 598); Buckler v. Buttevant, 3 East, 72, (Ch. j. 659); Simmonds v. Parminter, 1 Wils. 186, (Chit. j. 321).
- (p) Smith v. Nissen, 1 T. R. 269, (Chit. j. 435); Cowley v. Dunlop, 7 T. R. 576, (Chit. j. 598); Simmonds v. Parminter, 1 Wils. 188, (Chit. j. 821). See Bleaden v. Charles, 5 M. & P. 14; ante, 81, note (i).

A former recovery for a previous payment is no bar to a second action for a subsequent payment, although the evidence in both actions is, in fact, the same, i. e. the proof of the liability of the defendant as indorser, the former recovery not having been upon the note, but for money

⁽¹⁾ An action for money paid, laid out and expended, will lie at the suit of an indorsee of a promissory note against an indorser, for money paid on a judgment obtained against the former by the holder of the note, although such payment is but in part satisfaction of the debt; and such suit will lie for every payment made in good faith, and with the bona fide intent of reducing or extinguishing the debt. Butler v. Wright, 2 Wend. Rep. 369.

C

hŧ

90

22

32

15

30

5

i

61 di

iO

31

i

F ţ

ţ

IV. Of the or to indemnify (q)(1). And if he has not actually paid the bill in money, but has only given security for it, or he has sustained any costs or damage, the declaration must be special (r).

Secondly, On the Common Count.

Money received. [*581]

*It has been holden, that a bill as well as a note(s), is prima facie evidence of money received by the drawer or maker to the use of the holder(t); and an acceptance is evidence of money received by the acceptor to the use of the drawer(u); but it was afterwards doubted whether the indorsee or holder can use the bill against the acceptor as evidence under this count(x); and afterwards it was decided, that in an action by the indorsee against the acceptor, the bill is not admissible in evidence of money received (y). And it seems now to be settled, that the plaintiff can in no case recover under this count, unless money has actually been received by the party sued, and for the use of the plaintiff (z)(2). If the indorsee of a bill of exchange, who has received a navy bill as a security to him till the bill of exchange is accepted, deposit such navy bill with the drawee, and the drawee receive the money upon it, he is answerable for the amount in an action for money had and received to the use of the indorsee, though he may have done nothing that amounts to an acceptance of the bill of exchange (a). In a late case, where the plaintiffs were creditors, and the defendants debtors to T. and Co., and by consent of all parties, an arrangement was made, that the defendants should pay to the plaintiffs the debt due from them to T. and Co., it was

(q) Simmonds v. Parminter, 1 Wils. 188,

(Chit. j. 321). (r) See Taylor v. Higgins, 3 East, 169, 172; Maxwell v. Jameson, 2 Bar. & Ald. 51.

(s) Vin. Ab. tit. Evidence, A. b. 36; Ford v. Hopkins, 1 Salk. 283, (Chit. j. 215).

(t) Bayl. 5th edit. 857, cites Grant v. Vaughnn, 8 Burr. 1516, (Chit. j. 365). Sed vide Waynam v. Bend, 1 Campb. 175, (Chit. j. 746). A bill drawn by the defendant, the captain of the plaintiff's ship, at Rio de Janeiro, on the plaintiff's agent for disbursements, and paid in London by the plaintiff's agent, is not evidence of money received by the defendant to the use of the plaintiff; Scott v. Miller, 8 Bing. N. C. 811; 5 Scott, 11, S. C.

(u) Thompson v. Morgan, 3 Campb. 101, (Chit. j. 947).

(x) Johnson v. Collings, 1 East, 104, (Chit. j. 688); Dimsdale v. Lanchester, 4 Esp. Rep. 201, (Chit. j. 684); Brown v. London, Freem. 14; 1 Ventr. 153, (Chit. j. 162); Israel v. Douglas, 1 H. Bla. 239; Eaglechild's case, Holt, C. N. P. 67, (Chit. j. 769). Vide Waynam v. Bend, 1 Campb. 175, (Chit. j. 746); but in Bayley on Bills, 5th edit. 358, it is laid down that the acceptance is evidence of money received by the acceptor to the use of the holder, and of money paid by the holder to the use of the acceptor, and an indorsement of money lent by the indorsee to the indorser.

(y) Eales v. Dicks. Mood. & M. 324, (Chit. j. 1428); Bayl. 5th edit. 592; and see note in Wharton v. Wulker, 4 Bar. & Cres. 163; 6 Dow. & Ry. 288, S. C.

(z) Barlow v. Bishop, 1 East, 434, 435; 3 Esp. Rep. 266, (Chit. j. 637); Waynam v. Bend, 1 Campb. 175, (Chit. j. 746).

(a) Pierson v. Dunlop, Cowp. 571, (Chit. j. 598); and see 5 Esp. Rep. 247; 14 East, 590.

(2) A bill or note is prima facie evidence under a count for money had and received against the drawer or indorser: but the presumption that the contents of the bill or note have been received by the party sued may be rebutted by circumstances, and a recovery cannot be had if it be proved that the mency was actually received by another. Page's Adm. v. Bank of Alexandria, 7 Wheat. 85.

Payment of a debt by the surety or indorser, by a conveyance of land, which is received at the time by the creditor, as payment, will support a count for money paid, laid out and expended, Ainslie v. Wilson, 7 Cowen, 662.

The indersee of the payee of a negotiable note, can maintain an action for money had and received, against the maker of the note, upon proof of the note and indersement. Penn r. Flack & Cooley, 3 Gill & Johns. Rep. 369.

⁽¹⁾ A, the payee of a note for 1500 dollars indorsed it to B., who indorsed it to a bank by whom it was protested for non-payment. Due notice was given to A. who afterwards paid the bank 300 dollars in part and promised to pay the residue. The bank sued B. as indorser and recovered judgment against him for the balance due on the note after deducting the 800 dollars. B. afterwards paid 880 dollars to the bank who continued in possession of the note which had not been fully paid. Held, that though B could not maintain an action on the note, as it had not been fully paid and was the property of the bank, yet that he might recover the 380 dollars of A., on a count for money paid, laid out and expended, &c. Butler v. Wright, 20 Johns. 367.

. .

1 200

· 15 🕱

T ::: - i o_{se} ∫fe

A 25

. 71

~ 736

1 7: 3

11.4

\, r¥ y 🛎

5 R.F

held, that as the demand of T. and Co. on defendants was for money receiv- IV. Of the ed, the plaintiffs were entitled to recover on a count for money received Declaraagainst defendant(b). In an action for money received by the holder of a bill against a person who has received a sum of money from the acceptor to sat- Secondly, isfy it, any defence may be set up which could have been available, if the Common action had been brought against the acceptor himself(c).

Counts.

As to when the assignee of a debt or a third person can support an action for money received against the original debtor, a late case (d) establishes that the general rule of law is, that a debt cannot be assigned, and that the exception to that rule is, that where there is a defined and ascertained debt due from A. to B., and a debt to the same or a larger amount due from C. to A., and the three agree that C. shall be B.'s debtor instead of A., and C. promises to pay B., the latter may maintain an action against C.; but in such action it is incumbent on the plaintiff B. to shew that at the time when C. promised to pay B. there was an ascertained debt due from A. to B. and C.

Where a party has been induced to take up a bill under a misrepresentation of facts, it is not necessary, in an action for money received, to *recover back [*582] the money so paid, to shew that the bill was tendered back to the defendant(e).

According to the case of Israel v. Douglas, an acceptance is evidence of Account an account stated by the acceptor with the holder of the bill (f); and if there stated. be a variance in describing the bill in an action by drawer against acceptor, the former may recover on this count, although there be only one bill, and one item of account(g). But in a recent case, the court appears to have been of opinion, that a bill is not evidence of an account stated between the payee and the acceptor(h). And in an action by the indorsee against the acceptor of a bill, where it appeared that the defendant, on application to him for payment, answered, that the bill had been altered as to the acceptance, by being made payable at a particular place, that he never made it payable there, nor elsewhere than at his own house, and that he should take such steps as the law would authorise on the subject, that he had been prepared for payment, and the party might have the money by calling at his house; it was held, that this letter was no acknowledgment of a subsisting debt, so as to support a count on an account stated (i). A promissory note is evidence of money due from the maker to the payee on an account stated (k), espe-

(b) Wilson r. Coupland, 5 B. & Ald. 228. (Chit. j. 751).

(d) Fairlie r Denton, S Bar. & Cres 395;

3 Car. & P. 103. (e) Pope v. Wray, 4 Mec. & W. 451. The defendant supplied the plaintiff with goods to the amount of 711., the plaintiff authorized M. to pay the defendant that sum. M. paid the defendant 501., and applied the remaining 211. to his own use. M. also owed the defendant 241. and the defendant drew on him a bill for 451., the amount of these two sums, which he accepted, but which was dishonoured when due, and M. subsequently became bankrupt. The defendant applied to the plaintiff for payment of the amount of the bill, representing that it had all been left unpaid on the plaintiff's account by M.; and the plaintiff, on such representation, paid the 451., and took possession of the bill. In an action to recover back the balance, 24/., as having been paid under a mis-(c) Redshaw v. Jackson, 1 Campb 372, representation of the facts, it was held, that the plaintiff was not bound to prove that before action brought he tendered back the bill to the defendant. See ante, 425, et seq., when money paid by mistake may be recovered back in this form of action.

(f) Israel r. Douglas, 1 Hen. Bla. 239. Sed vide Taylor v. Higgins, 3 East, 169; Whitwell v. Bennett, 3 Bos. & Pul. 559, (Chit. j 685); Johnson v. Collins, 1 East, 98, (Chit. j. 633); Fairlie v. Denton, S Bar. & Cres. 395; 3 Car. & P. 103, S. C.

(g) Highmore v. Primrose, 5 Maule & S. 65; 2 Chit. Rep. 333, (Chit. j. 956).

(h) Earle r. Bowman, 1 Bar. & Adol. 889.

(i) Calvert v. Baker, 4 Mee. & W. 417. (k) Storey v. Atkins, 2 Stra. 719, (Chit. j. 960); Bul. N. P. 136, 137; Harris v. Huntbach, 1 Burr. 373, (Chit. j. 344); Pawley v. Brown, cor. Abbott, J. Devon Lent Assizes, 1818.

Secondly, On the Common Counts.

IV. Of the cially if it be expressed to be "for value received (1)." And in an action by an indorsee against an indorser of a bill, evidence of an acknowledgment of an existing debt, and of a promise to pay, is admissible under this count(m); and proof of an I. O. U. stating a sum certain, is also evidence to the like effect(n). So an agreement between the plaintiff and the defendant for the payment of a certain sum by instalments, though without any consideration apparent on the face of the instrument, will be sufficient evidence of an accounting, where there is proof of money lent(o). If, therefore, the plaintiff declare on a bill of exchange with a count on an account stated, and in his particulars omitted to state that he intends to rely on both counts, he cannot, on failure of proof of the first count, resort to the second(p).

It is here proper to observe, that whenever the bill or note is not declared upon, it is not adduced in evidence as an instrument carrying with it the [*583 | privileges it would otherwise be entitled to, in respect of its *bearing internal evidence of a consideration; but it is merely used as a piece of paper or writing, to found an inference only, in support of the money counts, which inference may be rebutted and destroyed by contradictory evidence on the part of the defendant; in which case the jury must draw, from the whole of the evidence, the conclusion of fact, whether or not so much money was lent, paid, or had and received, or that an account was stated(q). If the jury find general damages on a declaration containing a count on the bill or note, and a count upon an account stated, and the bill or note be void, the court will not arrest the judgment altogether, but award a venire de novo(r).

> (1) Clayton v. Gosling, 5 Bar. & Cres. 360; 8 Dow. & Ry. 110, (Chit. j. 1287); High-more v. Primrose, 5 Maule & S. 65; 2 Chit. Rep. 333, (Chit. j. 956).

(m) Wagstaffe v. Beardman, 9 Dow. & Ry. 248; Ashby v. Ashby, 3 Moore & P. 186,

(Chit. j. 1438).
(n) Payne v. Jenkins, 4 Car. & P. 324, ante, 130, note (1). See post, 822, (48).

(0) Davies v. Wilkinson, 2 Perry & Dav. 256; ante, 136, note (o).

(p) Siggers v. Nicholls, Bail Court, H. T.

1839, cor. Patteson, J. 3 Jurist, 341.
(q) Storey v. Atkins, 2 Stra. 725, (Chit. j. 960); Gibson v. Minet, 1 Hen. Bla. 602, (Ch.

Where there is a promise "to pay a bill of exchange within a fixed time, if during that time no proof be brought of its being already paid," though the promise be broken (no proof being brought within the time), and the plaintiff in an action on the bill with an insimul computasset gives evidence under the insimul computasset of the special promise, yet the defendant may also prove under that count, that the debt for which the bill was originally given was paid, and thereby avoid the promise by shewing it was without consideration; Elmes v. Wills, I Hen. Bla. 64.

(r) Ayrey v. Fearnsides, 1 Mee. & W. 168, ante, 133, note (n).

Where to a declaration on a bill or note, with an account stated, the defendant pleads as in bar of the whole action, but omits to notice the account stated, the proper course is for the plaintiff to demur, and not to sign judgment; Vere v. Goldsborough, 1 Bing. N. C. 353; 1 Scott, 265, S. C.; Putney v. Swann, 2 Mes. & W. 72; 5 Dowl. 296, S. C. See post, Chap. IV. Defences and Pleas.

0.00 i instil 1 221 15 32 -3

1 C 1998

. L.F

1414

11 BU 34

7,10 32.5

COLUMN TO : 12.13 : . . . Z 2 1 117 - - C

تسدة جزاز ----

4 / 50

(X 3) 4000

.... * «3/

2...1.2 15-18

- i 2 i

, Ye i

*CHAPTER III.

OF BILLS OF INTERPLEADER, AND MOTIONS TO STAY PROCEEDINGS IN NATURE THEREOF—PAYMENT OF DEBT AND COSTS-JUDGMENT BY DE-FAULT-AND OF EXECUTION UN-DER A FIERI FACIAS.

I. OF BILLS OF INTERPLEADER, AND MOTIONS TO STAY PROCEEDINGS IN NATURE THEREOF Decisions under 1 & 2 Will. 4, c. 58	584	In case of Loss or Destruction of Bill, &c. When not allowed At what Time may be moved for	535 ib. 589
II. OF STAYING PROCEEDINGS ON PAYMENT OF DEBT AND COSTS	595	Service of Rule Effect of Irregularity before Judg-	ib.
Inspection of Bill, &c. Staying Proceedings	ib. ib.	ment Writ of Inquiry	590 591
Costs of what Actions must be paid III. OF JUDGMENT BY DEFAULT Rule to compute Principal and In-	ib. 597	IV. OF EXECUTION UNDER A FIERI FACIAS Provisions of 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, s. 12	ib. ib.
lerest After Death of Plaintiff	588 ib.	Bills, &c. may be taken under	ib.

I. OF BILLS OF INTERPLEADER, AND MOTIONS TO STAY PROCEED-INGS IN NATURE THEREOF.

AFTER the plaintiff has declared, and before the defendant has pleaded, I. Of Bills and as soon as the defendant has ascertained the nature of the plaintiff's of Interclaim, he may, if another person has also claimed the amount of the same &c. bill or note, or its proceeds, file a bill of interpleader to compel the contending parties to litigate their respective rights between each other without subjecting him to costs; or he may now, as a less expensive and more immediate remedy, apply, by a summary motion, to the common law courts in which the action is pending, to stay the proceedings under the Interpleader Act, 1 & 2 Will. 4, c. 58(a).

In order, however, to obtain relief under the 1 and 2 Will. 4, c. 58, s. 1, Decisions it is necessary that the defendant claim no interest in the subject matter of 2 Will. 4, the suit; and, therefore, where a party has given a promissory note for mon- c. 58, s. 1. ey due by him, and which is deposited with a third person for the benefit of the creditor, and an action is brought upon it by the trustee, it is no ground for obtaining relief under this act, that an action is anticipated at the instance of the creditor(b). So the cross claims must be in respect of one and the same subject-matter(c).

(a) See this act with notes, Chit. & H. Stat. 564.

(b) Newton v. Moody, 7 Dowl. 582; 8 Jurist, 42.

(c) Farr v. Ward, 2 Mee. & W. 844. The defendant having purchased cattle from the plaintiff accepted a bill in payment with a blank for the name of the drawer, and remitted it by post to the plaintiff. This bill subsequently came into the hands of B. and S. for a valuable consideration. The plaintiff denying that he had ever authorized payment by an acceptance, or that he had ever received the bill or indorsed it, brought an action against the defendant for the price of the cattle. B. and S. also threatened to commence an action against him upon the bill: Held, that the defendant was not entitled to relief under the first section of the Interpleader Act.

*II OF STAYING PROCEEDINGS ON PAYMENT OF DEBT AND COSTS.

II Of Staying Proceedings on Debt and Costs.

Ir the defendant find that he has no defence, he should either settle the action by paying the debt and costs, or should let judgment go by default, or obtain time by pleading; but neither the court or a judge at chambers has Payment of any power, without consent, to make an order before declaration, that on payment within a given time of the amount of the bill or note, with interest and costs, all proceedings shall be stayed, the plaintiff, in default of such payment, to be at liberty to sign final judgment (d).

Inspection of Bill,

Where the defendant wishes to see a copy of the bill or note, the practice is stated to be, for a judge on summons without an affidavit, or the court on motion founded on affidavit, to make an order for the delivery of a copy to the defendant or his attorney, and that all proceedings be in the mean time And a defendant charged as the indorser of a note has been allowed to inspect it, on an affidavit that he never indorsed, or had in possession, any such note (f). But the court of C. P., in an action against the defendant as acceptor of a bill of exchange, refused to compel a plaintiff to deposit the bill in the hands of the prothonotary, to enable the defendant to inspect it, in order to see whether or no the acceptance was a forgery (g)(1). And that court also refused to compel a defendant to produce bills of exchange on which an action was brought, and permit the plaintiff to take copies of them, upon an affidavit, contradicted by defendant, that the bills had come into his hands by fraud, and had not been satisfied (h).

Staying Proceeding.

If the defendant be advised to settle the action in the first instance without incurring further expence, he may move the court, in which the action is brought, for a rule, calling on the plaintiff to shew cause why, on payment of the debt and costs, all further proceedings should not be stayed; or he may apply to a judge for a summons to the same effect; and it may be added, "and why the plaintiff should not deliver up the bill or note to the defendant(i);" and which rule would be considered to have been complied with, although the bill has been rendered a nullity by the plaintiff making considerable erasures, and if any injury has thereby occurred to the defendant, he must resort to a cross action(k). Where an indorsement was made upon a note by the payee, that if the interest was paid on stipulated days during his life, the note should be given up; default having been made in payment of the interest, the Court of Common Pleas refused to stay the proceedings on payment of it, with costs(l).

(d) Reynolds v. Sherwood, H. T. 1840, Exch. 4 Jurist, 27.

(e) Tidd, 9th edit. 591; and see Odams v. Duke of Grafton, Bunb. 243, (Chit. j. 266.)

(f) Cæsar v. —, 4 Dougl. 11, (Chit. j. 428). And in M'Dowall v. Lyster, 2 M. & W. 26, an inspection was granted by a judge at chambers, on an affidavit that the instrument was a forgery

(g) Hildyard v. Smith, 1 Bing. 451; 8 Moore, 586, (Chit. j. 1202); Tidd, 9th edit. 591, 592.

In Ireland, however, the practice is otherwise;

Richey v. Ellis, 1 Alcock & Napier, 111.

(h) Threlfall v. Webster, 1 Bing. 161; 7
Moore, 559, (Chit. j. 1174); Tidd, 9th edit.

(i) Tomlins v. Lawrence, 6 Bing. 376; 4 Moore & P. 54, S. C.

(k) Id. ibid. (1) Steel v. Bradfield, 4 Taunt. 227, (Chit. j. 855); 2 Bla. Rep. 958.

The rule is otherwise in Ireland. Thus, where the defendant alleges that certain bills on which he is sued are forgeries, the court will order the plaintiff's attorney to exhibit them to the defendant for inspection. Smith v. McGoregal, 2 Irish Law Rep. 272.

14.

1.30

If the holder of a bill bring separate actions against the acceptor, the II. Of drawer, and indorsers, at the same time, the court will stay the proceedings Staying Proceedin the action against the drawer, or any one of the *indorsers, upon payment ings on of the amount of the bill and the costs of that particular action(m); for a Payment of drawer or indorser is not in any case, whether before or after verdict or Costs. judgment, liable to pay the costs of proceedings against other parties(n). Costs of But, before the late rule of court T. T. 1 Vict. 1838, in an action against what Acthe acceptor, who is primarily liable, and the original defaulter, if he, before tions must judgment against him, applied to the court or a judge for a favour, i. e. to be paid. stay the proceedings on payment of debt and costs, thereby admitting his li- Rule T. T. ability, it was considered but just that he should also pay the costs of any the costs of a therefore in general the court would not stay the proceedings in such action unless upon the terms of paying the costs of all the actions(0). Now, however, by that rule, applicable to all the courts, it is ordered, that in future in any action against an acceptor of a bill of exchange, or the maker of a promissory note, the defendant shall be at liberty to stay proceedings on payment of debt and costs in that action only. And formerly, after judgment against an acceptor, either by default or after verdict, he was liable only to pay the costs of the particular action against himself, and was not liable in any way to pay the costs of any other party, unless upon an express agreement to pay them (p). And after such judgment against the acceptor, he might obtain a stay of further proceedings, on payment of the bill, interest, and costs of the action against himself(q); and if he neglected to do so, each party who had been sued was liable only to pay the costs of the particular action against himself, and the plaintiff could not tax or obtain or issue execution against one defendant for the costs of another (r); and an indorser, who had been obliged to pay costs, could not recover the same from the acceptor. unless he had expressly, engaged on adequate consideration to pay them(s). In general, therefore, before the new rule, when several actions were depending on the same bill, and there was no defence, the most economical course for an acceptor was to suffer judgment by default; in which case it was clear that he could only be charged with the costs of the particular action against himself(t).

There were some cases, however, where the court would, before judgment, stay proceedings even against the acceptor, on payment of the debt and costs of one action. Thus, where in an action against the acceptor of a bill, an attachment had been obtained against the sheriff for not bringing in the body, the sheriff might be relieved on payment of the costs of that action only(u); and, under circumstances, the acceptor would not be liable for more than the costs of the action against him—as where after the acceptor had offered to pay the debt and costs of the action against himself, the plaintiff, who was an attorney and the indorsee of the bill, brought another action

(m) Smith v. Woodcock, 4 T. R. 691, (Ch. j. 494); Windham v. Wither, 1 Str. 515; Golding v. Grace, 2 Bla. Rep. 749; Tidd, 9th edit. 541; Supplement, 1830, 107.

(n) Id. ibid.; Dawson v. Morgan, 9 Bar. & Cres. 618, (Chit. j. 1440); Roach v. Thompson, 4 Car. & P. 194; M. & M. 487, (Chit. j. 1486).

(o) See cases in note (m), but see post, 587, note (x).

(p) Dawson v. Morgan, 9 Bar. & Cres. 618, (Chit. j. 1440); Ronch v. Thompson, 4 Car. & P. 194; M. & M. 487, (Chit. j. 1486). Sed quære, if not liable at suit of drawer for costs of action against the latter; Stovia v. Taylor, 1 N. & M. 250, 251; post, Ch. VI. Sum recoverable.

(q) 1 Str. 515.

(r) Id. ibid.; Tidd, 9th edit. 541.

(s) Dawson v Morgan, 9 Bar. & Cres. 618, (Chit. j. 1440); supra, note (p). Quare, whether drawer could recover such costs; Stovin v. Taylor, 1 N. & M. 250, 251.

(t) The King v. Sheriffs of London, 2 B. & Ald. 192, (Chit. j. 1040).

(u) Id. ibid.

Digitized by Google

II. Of Stuying Proceedings on Debt and Costs. [*587] against the drawer, who was his own client, the court stayed the proceedings upon *payment of the debt and costs of one action only(x). So where separate actions were brought against several persons for the same debt, who Payment of (if at all) were jointly liable, the defendant in one action having paid the debt and costs in that action, the court stayed the proceedings in the others with-And in an action against the acceptor of a bill of exchange, out costs(y). the sheriff was entitled to stay proceedings commenced against himself, upon payment of the debt and costs in that action only (z).

Cost of what Actions must be paid.

Where proceedings were commenced on a bill of exchange against the drawer, and also against the defendant as acceptor, and the former paid the bill and costs, and it was delivered up to him, and notice was given to the defendant that proceedings against him were abandoned, but his costs were not paid, and he, disputing his liability as acceptor, on the ground of forgery, ruled the plaintiff to declare, who then applied to a judge to stay proceedings, and obtained an order for that purpose; it was held, on motion to set aside the order, that the plaintiff was bound either to pay the defendant his costs or to proceed, the defendant having no other means of being indemnified for his costs(a).

It is said to have been decided, that if the bill or note were obtained by plaintiff from defendant without consideration, the court will, on an affidavit of that fact, which the plaintiff does not contradict, stay the proceedings; though not so if the plaintiff make a contradictory affidavit(b). But the court will not stay proceedings on the ground that the money when recovered will be held by the plaintiff in trust for the defendant(c). And it has been held no ground for staying the trial of an action on a promissory note given for the amount of a penalty levied under the revenue laws, that the party on whose evidence the conviction proceeded has been indicted for perjury, and a true bill found(d).

III. OF JUDGMENT BY DEFAULT, &c.

III. Of ₽c.

WHEN the defendant has no defence, either on the merits or on the Judgment pleadings, and is not able to pay the debt and costs in the first instance, he by Default, usually obtains time by pleading, or suffers judgment to go by default, whereupon the plaintiff must, in an action of assumpsit, before he will be entitled to final judgment and execution, ascertain the amount of the debt, which is done either by referring it to the master to compute the principal, interest, and costs (1), or by suing out a writ of inquiry(e). By suffering judgment by default, the > (x) Hodson v. Gunn, 2 Dow. & Ry. 57, (Chit. j. 1156).

(y) Carne and others v. Legh, 6 Bar. & Cres. 124; 9 Dow. & Ry. 126, S. C.

(z) Ball v. Blackwood, 6 Dowl. 589; Rex v. Sheriffs of London, in the cause of Hollier v. Clark, 2 Bar. & Ald. 192.

(a) Lewis v. Dalrymple, 3 Dowl. P. C.

(b) Turner v. Taylor, Tidd, 9th edit. 530,

(c) Barlow v. Leeds, 4 Adol. & El. 66; 5 Nev. & Man. 426; 1 Har. & W. 479, S. C. There, A. gave a promissory note to B. & C.

jointly, for money lent to him, one half by each. B. died, and A. took out administration with the will annexed to her effects. C. sued him on the note. C. was a legatee, and was charged by A. with having goods of the testatrix's in her hands. On motion to stay proceedings in the action, upon A. paying half the the principal and interest of the note into court, and giving C. a discharge for the residue: held, that the case was not one in which the court, by virtue of its equitable jurisdiction, could interfere.

(d) Aysheford v. Charlott, 4 Dougl. 210. (e) Quære, whether after the lapse of a ⁽¹⁾ This is the settled practice in the courts of the United States in all cases where the sum is certain, or may be made certain by computation. Renner v. Marshall, 1 Wheat, 215.

HE:

....

2. 22

- .745 to

اجتها

11723

170,002

112

, registe

: :::

.....

. h 2

1 2

.. : :2

4, 7.2

1 :: 3 ,-y.¥

. .

. .

. .

14

ø

الورد M ELF

defendant *is precluded from making any objection to the validity of the in- III. Of strument(f), and from availing himself of its loss as a ground of defence(g). Judgment by Default Formerly, a writ of inquiry was the only legal mode of ascertaining what Rule to was due in the case of a judgment by default in an action an a bill or note; compute. but it has long been the practice of the courts of King's Bench and Common Pleas, for the plaintiff, instead of executing a writ of inquiry, to apply to the court in term time, or to a judge in vacation, on an affidavit of the nature of the action, for a rule or summons to shew cause why it should not be referred to the master or prothonotary to see what is due for principal and interest, and why final judgment should not be signed for that sum, without executing a writ of inquiry, upon which the court or judge will make the rule absolute, or grant an order, on an affidavit of service, unless good cause be shewn to the contrary(h). And although formerly the Court of Exchequer did not adopt this practice(i), yet now it is otherwise(k). It seems also to be the practice, since the 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42, s. 28, empowering juries to allow interest, to refer it to the master to compute principal and interest on a banker's check(l).

In the King's Bench, where interlocutory judgment was signed, and the After plaintiff died on a subsequent day in the term, the court granted a rule to Death of Plaintiff. compute principal and interest on the bill on which the action was brought (m).

If the bill or note upon which the action is brought be lost or destroyed, In case of the court will, nevertheless, refer it to the master, to see what is due for Destrucprincipal and interest upon the bill or note, upon producing a copy of the in-tion of strument verified by affidavit(n); though in one case the court also required Bill, &c. the plaintiff to give an indemnity to the satisfaction of the master against any possible claim on the lost bill(o). Where the production of the bill before the master has been rendered impossible by a fraud on the part of the defendant, the court will not entertain a preliminary motion to dispense with its production, but the plaintiff should first submit to the master such evidence as he may be prepared with, and then, if dissatisfied with the muster's decision, apply to this court p).

This practice, however, is confined to cases where the declaration states When not allowed.

year from the time of signing interlocutory judgment, the debt having been paid, the plaintiff can issue a scire facias for the purpose of getting his costs; Benn v. Greatwood, 6 Scott, 891.

(f) Shepherd v. Charter, 4 T. R. 275, (Chit. j. 480).

(g) Brown v. Messiter, 3 Maule & S. 281,

(Chit. j. 915).
(A) Shepherd v Charter, 4 T. R. 275, (Chit. j. 480); Rashleigh v. Salmon, 1 Hen. Bla. 252, (Chit. j. 457); Andrews v. Blake, 1 Hen. 529; Longman v. Fenn, 1 Hen. Bla. 541, (Chit j. 476). In Chilton v. Harborn, 1 Anstr. 249, it is said, that the first case where the court granted this rule was that of Rashleigh v. Salmon, 29 Geo. 8, 1 Hen. Bla. 252; Theliasson v. Fletcher, Dougl. 815, 816.

(i) Chilton v. Harborn, I Anstr. 249; and see Eyre v. The Bank of England, I Bligh's

Rep. 582.

(k) Biggs v. Stewart, 4 Price, 184; see Tidd, 9th edit. 571.

(1) Bentham v. Lord Chesterfield, 5 Scott.

(m) Berger v. Green, 1 Maule & S. 229. (n) Brown v. Messiter, 3 Maule & S. 281, (Chit. j. 915); and see 2 Chit. Rep. 233 a; Allen v. Miller, 1 Dowl. P. C. 420; Clarke r. Quince, 3 Dowl. P. C. 26. (o) Peto v. Champion, K. B. 30th June.

1830.

(p) Landers v. Lee, 6 Scott, 732; 7 Dowl. P. C. 97, S. C.; nom. Sanderson v. Lee. In the case of a writ of inquiry the bill must be produced, though it need not be proved, the defendant's liability being admitted by suffering judgment by default; and its production is only necessary to see whether any part has been paid; Greene v. Hearne, 3 T. R. 361; and see Bevis r. Lindsell, 2 Str. 1149; post, 501, note (b).

III. Of Judgment by Default.

Rule to compute.

When not allowed. [*590]

the bill or note, and does not apply to cases where the instrument is not specially declared upon (q). And it is still necessary to *sue out a writ of inquiry when the bill is payable in foreign money, the value of which, it is said, can only be properly ascertained by a jury (r)(1). So if the court be satisfied by the defendant, upon affidavit, that there is a fair question for a jury as to the amount really due, they will leave the plaintiff to his writ of inquiry, and will not send the matter to the master by the usual rule to compute(s). Nor will the court direct the master to allow re-exchange in an action upon a bill drawn in Scotland upon and accepted by the defendant in The court also refused a reference to the master in an action England(t). of debt on a judgment recovered on a bill of exchange(u). ever, there was a demurrer to one count on a bill of exchange and judgment for the plaintiff, and a plea to other counts on which issue was joined, the Court of King's Bench referred it to the master to see what was due to the plaintiff But in such case a nolle prosequi must be entered as to on the former (x). the other counts, which may be done any time before final judgment(y). And if after the delivery of a declaration for goods sold, and on a promissory note, the defendant pay the plaintiff 1501. "on account of the cause," leaving a balance due less than the amount of the note, the plaintiff cannot have a rule to compute principal and interest on the note, without the count for goods sold being first struck out of the declaration; and having received the damages on that count, he is not at liberty to enter a nolle prosequi thereto without the defendant's consent(z).

At what time may be moved for.

The plaintiff may, in the King's Bench, obtain a rule for referring a bill of exchange to the master on a proper affidavit(a), on the day on which interlocutory judgement was signed for want of a plea(b), or for not producing the record (c). But where it is signed upon demurrer, as a day is given to the parties upon the record, it might be thought incongruous to deprive either of them of the whole of the day, after he is once possessed of it; and it has therefore been the practice not to move for such rule until the following day(d). It is also necessary, in that court, that interlocutory judgment be signed, before there can be a reference to the master; whether it be a (q) Osborn v Noad, S T. .R 64S. (r) Messing v. Lord Massarene, 4 T. R. 493; Maunsel v. Lord Massarene, 5 T. R. 87, (Chit. j. 498); Nelson v. Sheridan, 8 T. R. 395; Cro.

Eliz. 536; Cro. Jac. 617.

(s) Jardine v. Williams, 7 Law J. 31, K. B. M. T. 1828. (t) Napier v. Schneider, 12 East, 420, (Chit.

j. 790); Goldsmith v. Taite, 2 Bos. & Pul. 55, (Chit. j. 616).

(u) Nelson v. Sheridan, 8 T. R. 395. (x) Duperoy v. Johnson, 7 T. R. 473, (Chit.

j. 595). (y) Heald v. Johnson, 2 Smith's Rep. 46, 47, (Chit. j. 704); 1 Str. 532; Tidd, 9th edit.

(z) Jones v. Shiel, 3 Mee. & W. 433; 6 Dowl. 579, S. C

(a) See M'Clel. 366, as to the requisites of the affidavit.

(b) Pocock v. Carpenter, 3 Maule & S. 109, (Chit. j. 912).

(c) Russen v. Hayward, 5 B. & Al. 752; 1 D. & R. 444, (Chit. j. 1138).

(d) Pocock v. Carpenter, 3 Maule & S. 109; Gordon v. Corbett, 3 Smith's Rep. 179; Tidd, 9th edit. 572.

(1) If there be no averment of the value of the foreign money in a bill, the defect is cured by verdict. Brown v. Barry, 3 Dall. Rep. 365.

Where there were several counts, one on a promissory note, and others for money lent, money had and received, and insimul computassent, and judgment was taken generally, with a rule that the clerk assess the damages, without entering a nolle prosequi on the money counts, judgment was reversed. Burr v. Waterman, Court of Errors, 2 Cowen, 36 in note.

And where the general money counts are joined with one on a promissory note, the defendant cannot compel the plaintiff to enter a nolle prosequi on the money counts, and assess the damages through the clerk, on the promissory note. Beard v. Van Wickle, 3 Cowen, 835.

'M' 1

ا پو د

7-

٠.٠

: .1

12:

r yn

-

- P

;

11.2

20

__ · ____

·::

4.3

٠.;

9.

judgment for want of a plea, or on demurrer(e), or for not producing the re- III. Of fault, & c.

In the King's Bench the rule nisi and rule absolute must both be served Service of on the defendant before final judgment is signed(g); but in that court there Rule. need not be any notice of taxing; if the defendant wish it, he must at his peril take care to get a rule to be present(h); but in the Common Pleas notice must be given to the defendant of the prothonotary's appointment to compute principal and interest on the bill, in *order that the defendant may have [*590] an opportunity of bringing forward any facts which may have occurred to reduce the sum which the plaintiff seeks to recover(i). It has also been decided in K. B. that the rule nisi must be served on all the defendants(k); but in the Exchequer it has been held otherwise, and that after judgment by default in an action against several joint makers of a promissory note, service of the rule nisi on one or more of the defendants will be good service on all(1). Service of a copy of the rule will in any of the courts be sufficient without shewing the original(m). And where in the case of two defendants a copy of the rule was served on one of the defendants, and the rule itself on the other, and the latter afterwards returned the rule to the plaintiffs attorney, saying that he should take no steps in the matter, the court made the rule absolute(n). Service of the rule on the mother of the defendant at his residence(o), or leaving it at a house where the defendant's family is still living, though he himself is gone away (p), or leaving it at the defendant's chambers, if a person there send it to him(q), is sufficient. And where an attorney has been served with process at chambers, from which he afterwards removes to an unknown residence, a rule to compute may be served by leaving a copy at those chambers, (they being his last known place of abode), and sticking up another in the King's Bench office (r). But service of the rule on the defendant's landlady(s), or leaving it at the defendant's apartments, no person being there at the time, though the defendant then resided there (t), has been held insufficient. Nor will service on the day on which cause is to be shewn be sufficient, although ten days elapse since the service(u). And it is necessary that the affidavit of service be entitled with the christian name of the plaintiff as well as of the defendant (x). ing for the rule nisi, or after the same has been made absolute, the court will make no order that a particular service of the rule shall be deemed good service(y)(1).

(e) Burton v. Stanley, M. T. 57 Geo. 3, cited 6 Maule & S. 382.

(f) Moses v. Compton, 6 Maule & S. 381. (g) The Bank of England v. Atkins, 1 Chit.

Rep. 466, 468, (Chit. j. 1064).

(h) Sellers v. Tufton, Hil. 1913; Farmer v. Wood, Easter Term, 1816, MS. of Mr. Le Blanc; Tidd, 9th edit. 572; 1 Chit. Rep. 467,

(i) Branning v. Patterson, 4 Taunt. 487; Tidd, 9th edit. 572.

(k) Flindt v. Bignell I Chit. Rep 466, note; Tidd, 9th edit. 572.

(1) Figgins v. Ward, 2 Dowl. P. C. 364; Carter v. Southall, 3 M. & W. 128. (m) Flindt v. Bignell and another, M. T. 1815, Nov. 21, K. B. 1 Chit. Rep. 466, note; Belairs v. Poultney, E. T. 1817, May 12, id. ibid.; 6 Maule & S. 230, S. C.; and see new rule in all the courts, H. T. 2 Will. 4, s. 51; Holmes v. Senior, 4 M. & P. 828; 7 Bing, 162.

S. C.

(n) Grant v. Stoneham, 2 Dopl. 126, C. P. (o) Warren v. Smith, 2 Dowl. P. C. 216, Exch.

(p) Payett. r. Hill, 2 Dowl. P. C. 688.
(q) Carew r. Winslow, 5 Dowl. P. C. 543.
(r) Scaley r. Robertson, 2 Dowl. P. C. 568.

(s) Gardner v. Green, 8 Dowl. P. C. 343.

(t) Chaffers r. Glover, 5 Dowl 81, Exch.
(u) Farrell r. Dale, 2 Dowl. P. C. 15, Exch.

The service was at York, and the court enlarged the rule for a week to enable the plaintiff to make a fresh service.

(x) Anderson v. Baker, 3 Dowl. 107, C. P. (y) Palmer v. Jervis, M. T. 1839, Bail Court, cor. Littledate, J. 3 Jurist, 1077.

III. Of Judgment by Default, δic.

Effect of before Judgment.

Though the rule nisi calls upon the defendant to show cause why the matter should not be referred to the master, yet it has been held in the Common Pleas that no irregularity previous to the judgment can be shewn as cause against the reference(z). And the same practice prevails in the King's irregularity Bench; and where the defendant's counsel opposed a rule nisi for referring to the master, on an affidavit shewing that the judgment was irregular, it having been signed without a plea having been demanded, the court determined that this was no ground for opposing the motion, and that a cross motion to set aside the judgment must be made, which was accordingly done, and the rule for referring to the master was enlarged, till the motion of the defendant had been discussed and determined(a).

Writ of Ineniry. *591]

*When the plaintiff proceeds to ascertain the damages by executing a writ of inquiry, he need not adduce any evidence, but should produce the bill, which it will not be necessary to prove(b); for where the action is founded on the instrument itself, letting judgment go by default is an admission of the cause of action, and of the defendant's liability to the amount of the bill(c); and all the plaintiff has to prove, or the defendant is permitted to controvert, is the amount of the damages; and the only reason why the production of the bill is required, is, that it may be seen whether or not any part of it has been paid(d); for the same reason the defendant will not be suffered to give in evidence any matter in defeasance of the action(e)(1). It seems the plaintiff is entitled to nominal damages though he do not produce the bill (f).

IV. OF EXECUTION UNDER A FIERI FACIAS.

IV. Of Execution under a Fieri Facias.

Before the late important act of 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, bills of exchange, Chit. Rep. 119; Tidd, 572, 573.

(a) Marshall v. Van Omeran, K. B. Trin. T. 1818, MS.; Kelly v. Villebois, Bail Court, M. T. 1839, cor. Littledale, J. 3 Jurist, 1172.

(b) Greene v. Hearne, 3 T. R. 301, (Chit. j. 456); Bull. N. P. 278; Thellusson v. Fletcher, Doug. 316, n. 2; Golding v. Grace, 2 Bla. Rep. 749.

Bevis v. Lindsell, 2 Stra. 1149, (Chit. j. 291). On executing a writ of inquiry in an action on a note, the plaintiff did not produce the subscribing witness, but offered other evidence that it was the defendant's hand, and the court held that sufficient. For the note being set out in the declaration is admitted, and the only use of producing it is to see whether any payment is indorsed upon it.

Greene v. Hearne, 3 T. R. 301, (Chit. j 456). Upon a rule nisi to set aside an inquisition against the acceptor of a bill of exchange, it was urged that the bill, though produced before the jury, was not proved, but the court held, that by suffering judgment, the defendant admitted the acceptance of the bill, and was

(z) Pell v. Brown, 1 Bos. & Pul. 369; 2 liable to its amount; and Buller, J. said the only reason of producing the bill is to see whether any part of it is paid.

Mills v. Lyne, B. R. Hil. 26 Geo. 3, Bayl. 5th edit. 487, (Chit. j. 481). On a writ of inquiry in an action upon a note, the sheriff directed the jury to give nominal damages only, because the plaintiff could not prove the note. Lawrence insisted that the plaintiff was bound to produce the note (because a receipt of part might have been indorsed thereon), and to prove the defendant's signature; but per Buller, J. " If you had paid part, you might have pleaded it, but you have let judgment go for the whole," and the court set aside the inquisition.

(c) Anon. 3 Wils. 155; Snowden r. Thomas, 1 Bla Rep. 248: 2 Bla. Rep. 748; Shepherd r. Charter, 4 T. R. 275, (Chit. j. 480).

(d) Per Buller, J. in Greene v. Hearne, 3 T. R. 301, (Chit. j. 456); supra, note (b).
(e) East India Company v. Glover, 1 Str.
612; Shepherd v. Charter, 4 T. R. 275, (Chit. j. 450).

(f) Marshall v. Griffin, Ryan & Meody, 41, (Chit. j. 1206). Where there were four counts

⁽¹⁾ But the note should conform to the allegations of the declaration, otherwise it is not evidence on a writ of inquiry. Therefore, where the declaration did not allege when the note was payable, and the note produced was payable at 60 days, the variance was held fatal; for a note, in which no time of payment is mentioned, is payable on demand. Sheeley r. Mandeville, 7 Cranch Rep. 208.

1125

2.6.3

و جنع ا

Æ

र्भ ग्राज्य

الان ل

00

11

promissory notes, bank notes, bankers' cash notes, and checks on bankers, IV. Of Excould not be taken in execution under a writ of fieri facias(g); but by that ecution under a Fieri statute, these, among other things, are expressly made liable to seizure.

The twelfth section of the 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, enacts, "That by virtue Sheriff emof any writ of fieri facias to be sued out of any superior or inferior court seize Moafter the time appointed for the commencement of this act or any precept in ney, Bank pursuance thereof, the sheriff or other officer having the execution thereof Notes. may and shall seize and take any money or bank notes (whether of the gover-Bills of Exnor and company of the Bank of England, or of any other bank or bankers), change, and any checks, bills of exchange, promissory notes, bonds, specialties, or oth- &c. er securities for money, belonging to the person against whose effects such c. 110, a. writ of fieri facias shall be sued out, and may and shall pay or deliver to 12. the party suing out such execution any money or bank notes which shall be [ 592] so seized, or a sufficient part thereof; and may and shall hold any such and to pay Money or checks, bills of exchange, promissory notes, bonds, specialties, or other securities for money, as a security or securities for the amount by such writ of Notes to fieri facias directed to be levied, or so much thereof as shall not have been execution otherwise levied and raised; and may sue in the name of such sheriff or other officer for the recovery of the sum or sums secured thereby, if and when for amount the time of payment thereof shall have arrived; and that the payment to secured by such sheriff or other officer by the party liable on any such check, bill of ex- Exchange change, promissory note, bond, specialty, or other security, with or without and other suit, or the recovery and levying execution against the party so liable, shall Securities. discharge him to the extent of such payment, or of such recovery and levy in execution, as the case may be, from his liability on any such check, bill of exchange, promissory note, bond, specialty, or other security; and such sheriff or other officer may and shall pay over to the party suing out such writ the money so to be receivered, or such part thereof as shall be sufficient to discharge the amount by such writ directed to be levied: and if, after satisfaction of the amount so to be levied, together with sheriff's poundage and expenses, any surplus shall remain in the hands of such sheriff or other officer, the same shall be paid to the party against whom such writ shall be issued; provided that no such sheriff or other officer shall be bound to sue Proviso as any party liable upon any such check, bill of exchange, promissory note, we made bond, specialty, or other security, unless the party suing out such execution Sheriff. shall enter into a bond with two sufficient sureties, for indemnifying him from all costs and expenses to be incurred in the prosecution of such action, or to which he may become liable in consequence thereof, the expence of such bond to be deducted out of any money to be recovered in such action." has been observed, that this section applies only to money in the hands of the debtor, and not where the money is in the hands of a third party as trustee for the debtor(h). on bills of exchange, and a demurrer as to the first and second counts, and joinder and general issue as to the rest of the declaration, and a venire as well to try as to assess contingent damages, &c. awarded, and upon the trial two bills only were produced; it was held the plaintiff was entitled to a verdict for the amount of the bills proved on the counts to which the defendant had plended, and for damages on those demurred to; the defendant having admitted, by the demurrer, the existence of the bills declared on, and put himself to the judgment of the court as to his legal liability on them.

(g) See Tidd, 9th edit. 1003; Archbold's

Prac. by T. Chitty, 7th edit. 425.

(h) Per Parke, B. in Robinson r. Peace, 7 Dougl. P. C. 93, 94.

*CHAPTER IV.

OF THE DEFENCES-PLEAS-AND REPLICATIONS.

I. OF THE DIFFERENT KINDS OF		Of Sham and Frivolous Pleas	601
DEFENCES	593	Want of Consideration	602
Defences founded on apparent Defects		Failure of Consideration	605
in Declaration	ib.	Accord and Satisfaction	ib.
on extrinsic Defects and Va-		Set-off	606
riances		Composition	ib.
on Defect in Right of Action.		Statute of Limitations	608
II. OF THE PLEAS	595	Bankruptcy and Insolvency	619
New Rules affecting	ib.	III. OF THE REPLICATION	ib.
Form of Plea of Payment of Money		To plea of Want of Consideration	ib.
into Court	597	When de Injuria proper	620
Non Assumpsit	598	To Plea of Accord and Satisfaction	621
Nil Debet	599	To Plea of Release	ib.
Non Acceptance, &c.	ib.	To Plea of Set-off	ib.
Of several Pleas	600	In Trover	622
Of Duplicity	601	Similiter	ib,

I. OF THE DIFFERENT KINDS OF DEFENCES.

I. Of the different Kinds of Defences.

THE defences of which a defendant may avail simself in an action on a bill or note, &c. are founded either upon a mis-statement in the declaration of the cause of action; or on some defect in the right of action itself.

Those of the first description are also of two kinds, viz. such defects as are apparent on the face of the declaration itself, and which are to be taken advantage of by general demurrer, or motion in arrest of judgment, or writ of error, where there has been a substantial defect in the declaration; and by special demurrer when the objection is of a mere technical and formal nature; or such defects as are not apparent on the mere perusal of the declaration, but consist of a mis-description or mistake in stating the cause of action, and which are to be taken advantage of on the trial as a variance and ground of non-suit under the plea of non-acceptance, &c.

Defences arising from a defect in the right of action itself are very various, and consist of the absence of some ingredient essential to its perfection; as 1st, The incapacity of the defendant to contract, or that all the defendants are not legally liable; 2dly, The want of a proper stamp; 3dly, an alteration in the bill or note; 4thly, A defect in the bill or note, as being payable on a contingency, &c. or not founded on an adequate or legal consideration; 5thly, A defect in the plaintiff's title to the bill; 6thly, A want of due presentment or notice of non-acceptance or non-payment; 7thly, That time was given to the maker of the note, or acceptor of the bill, and the defendant thereby discharged; 8thly, That the defendant was released from liability; 9thly, A release by a composition deed; 10thly, That defendant has been discharged by his bankruptcy and certificate, or by his discharge under an insolvent act; 11thly, By the statute of Limitations, or 12thly, that he has a set-off equal of itself, or equal with money paid into court to the plaintiff's demand.

Formerly, defences arising from a defect in the right of action itself were *594] brought forward either in the shape of a special plea, or were *given in evi-

- 30 X 1 X

. . . . E

1.35 ...

100

, · · · :

1 1

. 1

, ...

" 5"

•

dence under the general issue of non-assumpsit; but, as we shall presently I. Of the see, the plea of non-assumpsit is now abolished in actions on bills and notes, different and each defence must be specially pleaded. They consist either in a de- Defences. nial that the plaintiff ever had cause of action, or, admitting that he once had, in an assertion, that it is either suspended or extinguished; and a plea to an extent in aid, stating, that the defendant had accepted a bill drawn upon him by the original debtor, and which did not become due till the day after the inquisition was taken, is good, although the defendant had refused payment, and the original debtor to the crown had been obliged to take it up(a).

Those of the first description are also divisible into two heads, namely, those defences which deny that the instrument declared on was made, indorsed, or accepted, or that the defendant was party to it; and those which admit such facts, but allege that the contract, supposed to have been raised by them, was void or voidable, on account of the incapacity of the defendant to contract, as in the case of infancy or coverture, or on account of the want of consideration, or the illegality of it, or of the plaintiff having received it under circumstances, that, in justice, ought to preclude him from recovering, or on the ground of an improper presentment for acceptance or payment, or neglect to give notice of the dishonour of the bill, or some laches of the holder or the person from whom he attempts to derive an interest in the instrument; or, admitting there once existed a valid contract, insist that it was performed by payment or otherwise: or, if unperformed, that there was some legal excuse for the non-performance of it, as a release or parol discharge before breach(b). But we have seen that a mere parol agreement to renew(c)(1), or a verbal engagement that the bill should be payable only in case a particular fund should be productive (d)(2), will be no defence.

Defences of the second description; namely, those which admit that the plaintiff once had cause of action, but insist that it no longer exists, are either such as allege that the plaintiff is under an existing disability to sue, by his being an outlaw, alien enemy, bankrupt, &c.; or that the defendant has been discharged from liability to be sued, either by his being an insolvent debtor(e), bankrupt, &c.(f.); or that the action is discharged by an accord

⁽a) The King v. Dawson, Wightw. 32, (Chit. j. 799).

⁽b) Ante, 309 to 314. (c) Hoare v. Graham, 3 Campb. 57, (Chit.

j 838); ante, 142, note (t).

⁽d) Campbell v. Hodgson, Gow's Rep. 74, (Chit. j. 1053).

⁽e) Andrew v. Pledger, Moo. & M. 508. See last Insolvent Act, 7 Geo. 4, c. 57, s. 40, 46; Chitty's Col. Stat. tit. Insolvent Debtors, 599; and see cases on Insolvent Act, post, Ch. VIII. Part II.

⁽f) Post, Ch. VIII.

⁽¹⁾ A promise to extend the time of payment of a note made subsequent to its creation, may be set up by way of defence; but not unless founded upon a good and sufficient consideration. The promise of a maker to pay part of a note when due, and payment in pursuance thereof, is not such sufficient consideration. Miller v. Holbrook, 6 Wend. Rep. 317.

⁽²⁾ Parol evidence is admissible in a suit by the indorsee against the indorser of a note indorsed in blank, to show that at the time of the indorsement, the indorsee received the note under an agreement that he would not have recourse upon it against the indorser. Hill v. Ely, 5 Serg. & Rawle, 363. It seems to be well settled, that in an action on a promissory note, parol evidence may be given to the maker, under the general issue, of a partial or total failure of consideration, to mitigate the damages or defeat the recovery; as fraud or a breach of warranty in respect to the consideration. Hills r. Bannister, 8 Cowen, 31.

And so, as between the original parties, parol evidence may always be given of the true consideration of a note or bill of exchange. And the rules of evidence are the same in the courts of common law as in equity, except in some particular cases, where parol evidence is let in merely with a view of affording a court of equity the means of exercising its peculiar jurisdiction. Hampton v. Blakely, 3 M'Cord, 469. See M'Creary v. Jaggets, Id. 473, note (a). Lawrence v. Stonington Bank, 6 Conn. Rep. 521.

I. Of the different Kinds of Defences.

and satisfaction (g), arbitrament, release (h), composition deed (i), former recovery for the same cause, after the bill sued upon became due(k), tender(l), set-off (m), or the Statute of Limitations (n)(1).

II. Of the Pleas.

II. OF THE PLEAS.

WITH respect to the mode in which these several defences must now be Several Pleas not allowed.

[*595] taken advantage of, the rule of court, H. T. 4 Will. 4, 1834, *r. 2, applicable to all the courts(o), after reciting (s. 5, General Rules and Regulations,) that by the mode of pleading thereinafter prescribed, the several disputed facts material to the merits of the case will, before the trial, be brought to the notice of the respective parties more distinctly than heretofore, and that by the act of 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42, s. 23, the powers of amendment at the trial, in cases of variance in particulars not material to the merits of the case, are greatly enlarged (p), orders, that several pleas shall not be allowed, unless a distinct ground of answer or defence is intended to be established in respect of each; and therefore pleas founded on one and the same principal matter, but varied in statement, description, or circumstances only, are not to be allowed: ex. gr. pleas of solvit ad diem, and of solvit post diem, are both pleas of payment, varied in the circumstance of time only, and are not to be allowed; but pleas of payment, and of accord and satisfaction, or of release, are distinct, and are to be allowed.

Payment.

Accord and Satisfaction-Release.

Liability of third Party.

Pleas of an agreement to accept the security of A. B., in discharge of the (g) See post, 605, what is not a satisfaction, Norris v. Aylett, 2 Campb. 329, 330, (Chit. j. 781).

(h) See ante, 416, and post, 607.

(i) Post, 606.

(k) Vere v. Carden, 5 Bing. 413, (Chit. j. 1244); Lamb v. Pratt, 1 Dowl. & Ry. 577.
(1) Ante, 522, note(t); what a sufficient tender, Bevans v. Rees, 3 Jurist, 608.

(m) When not, Rogerson v. Ladbrooke, 1 Bing. 93; 7 Moore, 412; 1 Law J. 6, S. C.; and see Buchannan v. Findlay, 9 Bar. & Cres. 738; 4 Man. & Ry. 593, (Chit. j. 1441); and Thorpe v. Thorpe, 3 B. & Ad. 580, ante, 198, 211, as to right of set-off in case of bills remitted for a particular purpose. See also post, 606.

(n) See post, 608; Chievly v. Bond, 4 Mod. 105, (Chit. j. 181).

(0) This rule was made pursuant to 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42, s. 1; see the act, Chit. & II. Stat. 21; and by that statute all such rules, after they have lain six weeks before parliament, are to be binding and obligatory on the superior and all other courts of common law, and of the like force and effect as if the provisions contained therein had been expressly enacted by parliament. The courts, therefore, have no power to allow several pleas to be pleaded where they are inconsistent with these rules; see Bastard v. Smith, 1 Nev. & P. 242; 5 Ad. & El. 826, S. C.

(p) See ante, 567 to 569; and see per Parke, J. in Hanbury v. Ella, 1 Ad. & El. 61, 64.

As to the law relating to set-off, see Sargent v. Southgate, 5 Pick. 812. Braynard v. Fisher,

And in an action by the indorsee against the maker of a negotiable note, fraudulently indorsed by the payee after it was dishonored, the defendant was allowed to avail himself under the general issue, of notes given to him by the payee before the indorsement. Stockbridge v. Damon, 5 Pick. 223.

\(\frac{1}{10}\) an action on a promissory note payable in hats at a certain time and place, it is a good defence that the defendant had, at the time and place, the hats ready to deliver, conformably to the contract, but that no person attended to receive them; and that he had been always ready, and was still ready to deliver them, at the place on demand. Johnson v. Baird, 3 Blacks.

⁽¹⁾ A plea to an action on a note for the payment of money on a certain day, at a particular place, that the defendant was, at the day and place appointed, ready with his money to pay the note, but the payee was not ready to receive it, and that the money has ever since remained there for the payee's use, must conclude with a profert in curia. Curley v. Vance, 17 Mass. Rep. 389. Caldwell r. Cassidy, S Cowen, 271.

fil' !

200

9.10

1.11

for the

(·)

plaintiff's demand, and of an agreement to accept the security of C. D. for II. Of the the like purpose, are also distinct, and to be allowed; but, pleas of an agree- Pleas. ment to accept the security of a third person, in discharge of the plaintiff's Agreement demand, and of the same agreement, describing it to be an agreement to forin considebear for a time, in consideration of the same security, are not distinct; for ration of. they are only variations in the statement of one and the same agreement, Liability of whether more or less extensive, in consideration of the same security, and third Party. not to be allowed.

These examples are given as some instances only of the application of the rules to which they relate; but the principles contained in the rules are not to be considered as restricted by the examples specified.

The sixth section of the same rule orders, that where more than one plea Departure shall have been used in apparent violation of the preceding rule, the opposite from these party shall be at liberty to apply to a judge, suggesting that two or more of taken Adthe pleas are founded on the same ground of answer or defence, for an order vantage of. that all the pleas introduced in violation of the rule, be struck out at the cost of the party pleading; whereupon the judge shall order accordingly, unless he shall be satisfied, upon cause shewn, that some distinct ground of answer or defence is bonû fide intended to be established in respect of each of such pleas, in which case he shall indorse upon the summons, or state in his order, as the case may be, that he is so satisfied; and shall also specify the pleas mentioned in such application, which shall be allowed.

And the seventh section orders, that upon the trial, where there is more Costs of than one plea upon the record, and the party pleading fails to establish a distinct ground of answer or defence in respect of each plea, a verdict and judgment shall pass against him upon each plea which he shall have so failed to establish, and he shall be liable to the other party for all the costs occasioned by such plea, including those of the evidence as well as those of the pleadings; and further, in all cases *in which an application to a judge has [*596] been made under the preceding rule, and any plea allowed as aforesaid, upon the ground that some distinct ground of answer or defence was bona fide intended to be established at the trial in respect of each plea so allowed, if the court or judge, before whom the trial is had, shall be of opinion that no such distinct ground of answer or defence was bona fide intended to be established in respect of each plea so allowed, and shall so certify before final judgment, such party so pleading shall not recover any costs upon the issue or issues upon which he succeeds, arising out of any plea with respect to which the judge shall so certify.

The same rule then proceeds to make regulations respecting the pleadings Effect of in particular actions; and FIRST, as to the action of Assumpsit, it is ordered, (s. 1,) that in all actions of assumpsit, except on bills of exchange and promissory notes, the plea of non assumpsit shall operate only as a denial in fact of the express contract or promise alleged, or of the matters of fact from which the contract or promise alleged may be applied by law: ex. gr. in an Goods action of indebitatus assumpsit, for good sold and delivered, the plea of non sold. assumpsit will operate as a denial of the sale and delivery in point of fact; in Money had the like action for money had and received, it will operate as a denial both and receivof the receipt of the money and the existence of those facts which make such ed. receipt by the defendant a receipt to the use of the plaintiff.

II. Of the Pleas. Bills and Notes no general

Îssue.

And it is further ordered, (s. 2,) that in all actions upon bills of exchange and promissory notes, the plea of non assumpsit shall be inadmissible. such actions, therefore, a plea in denial must traverse some matter of fact; ex. gr. the drawing, or making, or indorsing, or accepting, or presenting, or notice of dishonour of the bill or note.

In every Action of Assumpsit Matters in Confession and Avoidance to be Pleaded specially.

It is also ordered, (s. 3,) that in every species of assumpsit, all matters in confession and avoidance, including not only those by way of discharge, but those which shew the transaction to be either void or voidable in point of law, on the ground of fraud or otherwise, shall be specially pleaded; ex. gr., infancy, coverture, release, payment(q), performance, illegality of consideration either by statute or common law, drawing, indorsing, accepting, &c., bills or notes by way of accommodation, set-off, mutual credit, unseaworthiness, misrepresentation, concealment, deviation, and various other defences, must be pleaded.

Nil debel. General Issue in Debt.

Secondly, as to the action of Debt, it is ordered, (s. 2,) that the plea of "nil debet" shall not be allowed in any action. And it is further ordered, (s. 3,) that in actions of debt on simple contract, other than on bills of exchange and promissory notes, the defendant may plead that "he never was indebted in manner and form as in the declaration alleged," and such plea shall have the same operation as the plea of non assumpsit in indebitatus assumpsit; and all matters in confession and avoidance shall be pleaded specially as above directed in actions of assumpsit.

Matters in Confession and Avoidance to be pleaded specially.

Pleas in other Cas-

*It is also ordered, (s. 4,) that in other actions of debt, in which the plea of nil debet has been hitherto allowed, including those on bills of exchange and promissory notes, the defendant shall deny specifically some particular matter of fact alleged in the declaration, or plead specially in confession and *597 | avoidance(r).

Plea of Payment of Money into Court. Rule T. T. 1 Vict.

As regards the plea of payment of money into court, the rule of court T. T. 1 Vict. 1838, after reciting that it is expedient that certain of the rules and regulations made in Hilary Term, in the fourth year of the reign of his late Majesty King William the Fourth, pursuant to the statute of 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42, s. 1, should be amended, and some further rules and regulations made pursuant to the same statute, orders, that from and after the first day of Michaelmas term then next inclusive, unless parliament shall in the meantime otherwise enact, the following rules and regulations, made pursuant to the said statute, shall be in force:-

17 & 19 Rules of H. T. 4 Will. 4, repealed.

First—It is ordered, that the 17th and 19th of the general rules and regulations made pursuant to the statute 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42, s. 1, be repealed; and that in the place thereof, the two following amended rules be substituted, viz:-

(q) In Ireland v. Thompson, 6 Scott, 601; 4 Bing. N. C. 716, S. C., the Court of Common Pleas compelled the defendant to deliver particulars of a plea of payment. But in a subsequent case the Court of Exchequer refused an application for such particulars, on the ground that it would be substantially requiring the defendant to state his evidence. Phipps v. Lothian, M. T. 1840, Exch. 4 Jurist, 294. The rule T. T. 1 Will. 4, s. 6, ante, 558, requiring the particulars of the defendant's set-off to be annexed to the record, makes no mention of a plea of payment.

(r) In an action of delinue or trover to recover bill or proceeds, the plea of non definet will operate as a denial of the detention only. and not of the plaintiff's property therein, and no other defence than such denial will be admissible under that plea; and the plea of not guilty will operate as a denial of the conversion only, and not of the plaintiff's title thereto; see same rule, ss. 3, 4. See post, 823 (54).

11:15

For the 17th rule, when money is paid into court, such payment shall be II. Of the pleaded in all cases, and as near as may be in the following form mutatis Pleas. mutandis(1):—

The —— day of ——. The defendant by —— his attorney [or "in person," &c.] says, Plea(s). for in case it be pleaded as to part only, add "as to £---, being A. B.) part of the sum in the declaration (or 'count') mentioned," or " as to the residue of the sum of £---,"] that the plaintiff ought not further to maintain his action, because the defendant now brings into court the sum of £--- ready to be paid to the plaintiff: and the defendant further says, that the plaintiff has not sustained damages [or in actions of debt, "that he never was(t) indebted to the *plaintiff"] to a greater amount than the said sum of, [*598] &c. in respect of the cause of action in the declaration for "in the introductory part of this plea"] mentioned: and this he is ready to verify: wherefore he prays judgment if the plaintiff ought further to maintain his action thereof(u).

For the 19th rule.—The plaintiff, after the delivery of a plea of payment Proceedof money into court, shall be at liberty to reply to the same by accepting ing by Plaintiff afthe sum so paid into court, in full satisfaction and discharge of the cause of ter Payaction in respect of which it has been paid in(n), and he shall be at liberty ment of in that case to tax his costs of suit, and in case of non-payment thereof with- Money into in forty-eight hours, to sign judgment for his costs of suit so taxed; or the plaintiff may reply "that he has sustained damages [or 'that the defendant was and (x) is indebted to him' as the case may be to a greater amount than the said sum;" and, in the event of an issue thereon being found for the defendant, the defendant shall be entitled to judgment and his costs of suit.

(*) A plea of payment into court must follow the form given by the new rules; and if other pleas are pleaded to part of the plaintiff's de-mand, the plea of payment into court should be put last, and pleaded to the residue; Sharman v. Stevenson, 8 Dowl. P. C. 709; 2 C, M. & R. 75; 5 Tyrw. 564; 1 Gale, 74, S. C. A special demurrer to a plea of payment into court, that " it varies from the form given by the rule," is sufficient to raise an objection that the plea is bad for want of a proper conclusion of a prayer of judgment; id. ib.

To a declaration for 31/. on a bill of exchange, and 1001, for money paid, lent, interest, goods sold, and on an account stated, the defendant pleads as to the 31/., and as to 12/., parcel of the 100l., for goods sold, and as to the 100l. on the account stated, payment into court of 511., and alleges that the plaintiff has not sustained damage to a greater amount, in respect of so much of those causes of action as in the plea mentioned. Quære, whether such plea is good on special demurrer? Semble, the defendant ought to have shewed distinctly what portion of the money paid into court was to be ascribed to the bill of exchange; Jourdain v. Johnson, 2 C.,

M. & R. 564; 5 Tyrw. 524; 4 Dowl. P. C. 534, S. C.; 1 Gale, 312.

As to the effect of payment of money into court as an admission, see Lechmere v. Fletcher, 1 C. & M. 623; 3 Tyrw. 450, S. C.; Reid v. Dickons, 5 B. & Ad. 499; 2 N. & M. 369, S. C. A plea of payment of money into court under the general indebitatus counts, only admits a liability upon some one or more contracts to the extent of the sum paid in; Kingham v. Robins, 5 M. & W. 94; and see Booth v. Howard, 5 Dowl. P. C. 438, 440, 441.

(t) Instead of "is not" as in former rule; see Finleyson v. Mackenzie, 3 Bing. N. C. 824; 5 Scott, 20; 6 Dowl. 71; post, 599, note (f).

(u) Must conclude with a prayer of judgment: a conclusion with a verification will be bad on special demurrer; Sharman r. Stevenson, 2 C., M. & R. 75; 5 Tyrw. 564; 3 Dowl. 709; 1 Gale, 74, S. C.; ante, 597, note (s).

(r) If the plaintiff in his replication omit to notice a plea of payment into court, he may onter a nolle prosequi thereto at any time before final judgment; Fallows r. Bird. 2 C., M. & R. 457; 4 Dowl. 183; 1 Gale, 246, S. C.

(x) These words omitted in former rule.

⁽¹⁾ See post, 822, (53). 85

II. Of the need not be

The same rule further orders (z), that in any case in which the plaintiff (in order to avoid the expense of a plea of payment) shall have given credit Payments in the particulars of his demand for any sum or sums of money therein adcredited in mitted to have been paid to the plaintiff, it shall not be necessary for the deof Demand fendant to plead the payment of such sum or sums of money.

pleaded (y). But Rule

But this rule is not to apply to cases where the plaintiff, after stating the amount of his demand, states that he seeks to recover a certain balance, not to apply without giving credit for any particular sum or sums.

to Claim of Balance.

Reduction

Payment shall not in any case be allowed to be given in evidence in re-Payment in duction of damages or debt; but shall be pleaded in bar.

If, since the rule of H. T. 4 Will. 4, the plea of non assumpsit be plead-of Damages or Debt lowed (a). Non assumpsit.

not to be al-ed in an action on a bill or note, the plaintiff may sign judgment(b). But that rule is confined to actions upon the bill or note itself, that is, where the sole cause of action is the making of the instrument; and, therefore, if an executor declare on a bill or note payable to his testator, laying a promise [*599] to pay him, the executor, such promise may *still be denied by a plea of non assumpsit(c). And if the declaration proceed as upon an "agreement or instrument in writing," not being a promissory note, a plea that the defendant did not make the note, will be bad on special demurrer, although in the instrument itself it be described as a "note of hand," and there is a promise to pay(d). On the other hand, if the declaration be substantially upon a bill or note, a plea of non assumpsit will be informal, though the declaration profess to proceed on a different cause of action, as upon a Scotch judgment(e)(1).

Nil debet.

Notwithstanding the abolition of the plea of nil debet, it has been held, that if to a declaration in debt against the acceptor of a bill of exchange for 78l. 13s. 6d. the defendant plead payment into court of 5l. 3s. 6d., and that he is not indebted beyond that sum, and the plaintiff join issue and proceed to trial, it is competent to the defendant to make under this plea any defence applicable to the plea of nil debet, although the plea would have been ill on

(y) Considerable doubts had existed amongst the judges, as to whether or not payment of the whole or of a part of the plaintiff's demand, (whether before or after action brought,) might, under the rules of H. T. 4 Will. 4, be given in evidence under non assumpsit; see note, 6 Scott, 353; Lediard v. Boucher, 7 Car. & P. 1; — v. Padden, Sewell's Pr. Dig. 1835, 275, note; Cousins v. Paddon, 2 C., M. & R. 547; 4 Dowl. 488; Palfrey v. Sill, 2 Scott, 159, note; Shirley v. Jacobs, 2 Scott, 157; 2 Bing. N. C. 83; 4 Dowl. 136; 1 Hodges, 214; 7 Car. & P. 3; Richardson v. Robertson, 1 M. & W. 463; 1 Tyrw. & Gr. 279; 5 Dowl. 82; Goldsmith v. Raphael, 3 Scott, 385; 2 Bing. N. C. 310; Ernest v. Brown, 3 Bing. N. C. 674; 4 Scott, 385; 5 Scott, 491; Belbin v. Butt, 2 M. & W. 758; 6 Dowl. 167; Cooper v. Morecraft, 3 M. & W. 500; 6 Dowl. 562.

(2) The rule also provides for the general issue when given by statute, and requires it to be so stated in the margin of the plea.

(a) See Coates v. Stevens, 2 C., M. & R. 118; 5 Tyrw. 764; 3 Dowl. 784; Shirley v. Jacobs, 2 Bing. N. C. 88; 2 Scott, 157; Nicholl v. Williams, 2 M. & W. 758; 6 Dowl. 167; Kenyon v. Wakes, 2 M. & W. 764; 6 Dowl. 105; and supra, note (y).

(b) Kelly v. Villebois, Bail Court, cor. Littledale, J. Mich. T. 1839, 3 Jurist, 1172. Non assumpsit is not an issuable plea where the defendant is under terms to plead issuably; id. ib.

(c) Timmins v. Platt, 2 M. & W. 720; 5
Dowl. 748, S. C. nom. Gilbert v. Platt. The new rule is confined to cases where the action is only on the note, and on the promise to pay contained in or implied by law from it: it is to be read as if it were thus—" in all actions on bills of exchange and promissory notes simpliciter, without any other matter;" per Park, B. ib.

(d) Worley v. Harrison, 3 Ad. & El. 669; 5 N. & M. 173; 1 Har. & Woll. 426, S. C. (e) Hay v. Fisher, 2 M. & W. 722, 730, 732.

9 113

1. 15-23

11/2

11 15

j . : 3

 $\mathbf{I}_{i,\mathbf{y}_{i-1}}$

special demurrer (f). And where, before the new rules, in an action of II. Of the assumpsit on a bill of exchange, with the usual money counts, the defendant Pleas. pleaded nil debet to the count on the bill, but omitted to plead at all to the other counts, it was held, after a verdict for the plaintiff, that the defendant could not take advantage of his own mispleading in arrest of judgment(g).

We have seen that, where the defendant altogether denies the plaintiff's Non Acright of action on the bill or note, he must now traverse some matter of fact, 4c. such as the drawing, making, indorsing, accepting, presenting, or notice of Under the plea of non-acceptance, the defendant is at liberty to shew that the bill was written on paper improperly stamped with the old die, since the 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 97, s. 17(h). So in an action on a banker's check, the objection that it was post dated, and not properly stamped(i), or that it was drawn by the defendant more than fifteen miles from the place where it was made payable, and falsely dated, in contravention of the 9 Geo. 4, c. 49, s. 15(k), may be taken under the plea that the defendant did not make the check. And if the defendant, instead of pleading that he did not accept or make the bill or note, were to plead that the instrument was duly stamped, or marked with any proper stamp or mark denoting that the lawful, requisite, and proper rate or duty chargeable or charged thereon had been or was duly stamped, marked, or impressed thereon, without shewing what the stamp on the instrument was, such plea would be bad on special demurrer, as leaving it in doubt whether the bill or note was altogether unstamped, or stamped with a stamp of higher or lower value than required by law(l). It is also a good defence under the plea of non acceptance, that after the defendant had accepted the bill generally, it was altered without his knowledge by *the addition of a memorandum making it payable at a bank- [*600] er's(m); or that a material alteration was made in the date of the bill(n); though such defence may be specially pleaded; but in so pleading care must be taken to aver that the alteration was made after acceptance, and it will not be sufficient to allege that the alteration took place whilst the bill was in full force and effect(o).

In traversing the indorsement of the bill or note, there is no material dis- Indonetinction between a plea denying the indorsement mode et forma, and one which denies the indorsement to a particular indorsee, as alleged in the declaration(p). And if in an action by indorsee against indorser the defendant, instead of traversing the indorsement, traverse the making and drawing of the bill, such plea cannot be treated as a nulity; because every indorser of a bill is in law a new drawer, and, therefore, such plea is good in substance, and can only be taken advantage of on special demurrer (q). we have seen(r) that this doctrine, as to the indorsement of a bill being

(f) Finleyson v. Mackenzie, 3 Bing. N. C. 824; 6 Dowl. 71, S. C.; 5 Scott, 20, S. C. The form of a plea of payment into court, as given by the rule T. T. 1 Vict. ante, 597, does not remove the difficulty suggested in this case as to the operation of the 17th and 4th sections of the rule H. T. 4 Will. 4, ante, 597.

(g) Harvey r. Richards, 1 Hen. Bla. 644.

(h) Dawson r. Macdonald, 2 M. & W. 26. (i) Field v. Woods, 7 Ad. & El. 114; 2 N. & P. 117, S. C.

(k) M'Dowall v. Lyster, 2 M. & W. 52; Jenkins v. Creech, 5 Dowl. P. C. 293.

(1) Haward v. Smith, 6 Scott, 438; 4 Bing.

N. C. 684, S. C.

(m) Calvert v Baker, 4 M. & W. 417. (n) Cock v. Coxwell, 2 C., M. & R. 291; 4 Dowl. P. C. 187; 1 Gale, 177, S. C. Where issue is taken on the indorsement, the plaintiff is not bound to explain an alteration in the date of the bill, the making of the instrument being admitted on the record; Sibley v. Fisher, 7 Ad. & El. 444; 2 Nev. & Perry, 430, S. C. (0) Langton v. Lazarus, 5 M. & W. 629.

(p) Waters v. Earl of Thanet, 7 Dowl. 251. (q) Allen r. Walker, 2 M. & W. 317; 5 Dowl. P. C. 460; 1 Mur. & Hurl. 44, S. C.

(r) Ante, 242, note (k).

II. Of the equivalent to a new drawing, does not hold in the case of a promissory note, and if the indorser of a note be sued as maker, he will be entitled to a verdict under a plea denying the making(s).

Several Pleas.

The rule H. T. 4 Will. 4 also forbids the use of several pleas, unless a distinct ground of answer or defence is intended to be established in respect of each:—that is, the defendant shall not be at liberty to state the same facts and circumstances in distinct pleas; but where the same facts lead to different legal conclusions, the defendant may still set forth those facts in separate pleas, shewing such different conclusions(t). Where in an action upon a bill, note, or check, the defendant applies for leave to plead several matters, the court will not allow such matters to be pleaded, or if pleaded will order the pleas to be struck out, if the defence thereby sought to be established is admissible under the plea that he did not accept or make the instrument de-So pleas which are contradictory(v) or vexatious(x) will clared upon(u). And in an action by the indorsee of a bill of exchange not be allowed. against the defendant as a public officer of a company, the latter applied for leave to plead, first, his bankruptcy, secondly, that he ceased to be a public officer before action brought, and thirdly, that the company did not indorse the bill, the court ordered the first two pleas to be struck out, upon an undertaking by the plaintiff that he would not take out execution against the defendant personally (y). But it is no objection that the pleas intended to be pleaded are inconsistent; because a defendant may have several defences to an action, each good in itself, though inconsistent with each other, and the [*601] object of the new rules was to prevent *the same desence from being repeated under several different forms(z). Neither is it any objection that the validity of the plea is questionable (a); nor will the court refuse permission to plead a particular defence, if it be doubtful whether such defence could be set up under another plea(b).

> Where a declaration, consisting of two counts, one on a bill of exchange accepted by the defendant, the other on an account stated, the defendant, without a rule to plead several matters, pleaded "that he did not accept the bill, and for a further plea, that he did not account," it was held, that the informality of omitting to confine each plea to the count to which it applied, In such case the objection did not authorise plaintiff to sign judgment(c). should be taken on special demurrer; and so if the defendant plead that he did not accept the bill of exchange in the declaration mentioned, taking no

(s) Gwinnell v. Herbert, 5 Ad. & El. 436; 6 N. & M. 723, S. C.

(t) Curry v. Arnott, 7 Dowl. 249, C. P. (u) Jenkins r. Creech, 5 Dowl. P. C. 293; M'Dowal v. Lyster, 2 M. & W. 52; Field v. Woods, 7 Ad. & El. 114; 2 N. & P. 117, S. C.; Dawson v. Macdonald, 2 M. & W. 26; supra And see Gardner v. Alexander, 1 Scott, 281; 3 Dowl. 146, S. P. Sed vide Langton v. Lazarus, 9 M. & W. 629; supra, note (o) (v) See Steele r. Sterry, 1 Scott, 101; 3

Dowl. 133, S. C.

(z) See per Tindal, C. J. in Triebner v.

Duerr, 1 Scott, 102, 104; 8 Dowl. 183, 134.

(y) Wood v. Marston, 7 Dowl. 866. Semble, that in such action the court will not allow a plea denying that the defendant was a public officer without an affidavit of its truth.

(z) See Triebner v. Duerr, 1 Scott, 102; 1 Bing. N. C. 266; 3 Dowl. 133, S. C.; Wilkinson v. Small, 3 Dowl. P. C. 564; 1 Har. & Woll. 214, S. C.; Hart v. Bell, 1 Hodges, 6. See also Evans v. Davies, 3 N. & P. 464; 8 Ad. & El. 362, S. C.

(a) See Jaulerry v. Britton, 4 Scott, 380.

(b) See Thompson v. Bradbury, 3 Dowl. P. C. 147; 1 Bing. N. C. 326. (c) Vere r. Goldsborough, 1 Bing. N. C. 853; 1 Scott, 265, S. C. The rule of court H. T. 2 Will. 4, s. 84, expressly declares, that if a party plead several pleas, &c. without a rule for that purpose, the opposite party shall be at liberty to sign judgment. But the above case was not considered as falling within this rule, and to be more properly the subject of a special

12

10 to 1

1:2

11 7

. . : 3

13.56

. : 1

16. 1 mps.

[12]

6. ¥Í

13.77

, y/

الله ايم

notice of the count on the account stated (d). However, where to a decla- 11. Of the ration on a bill of exchange, with the common counts, the defendant pleaded Pleas that the bill of exchange in the first count mentioned was paid when due; and Seceral also, as to the first count, that he did not promise; and as to the other counts, Pleas. that he put himself upon the country;—it was held, that the plaintiff was justified in treating each as a separate plea, though the second was declared inadmissible by the new rules, and the last put nothing in issue, and that he was therefore justified in signing judgment, there being no signature to the pleas, or rule to plead several matters(e). So where in an action against the indorser of a bill, the defence was that the indorsement was a forgery, and the plaintiff wishing for time to make inquiries, gave an undertaking not to sign judgment until after a further demand of plea; but the defendant, without waiting for such demand, pleaded several pleas without leave of the court, it was held, that the plaintiff was justified in signing judgment for the irregularity (f).

In an action by the drawer against the acceptor of a bill of exchange, a Duplicity. plea that the acceptance was made by force and duress of imprisonment, and that the defendant never had any value for accepting or paying the bill, is bad for duplicity (g). So a plea that the defendant's bankers paid the bill, and afterwards lost it, and that it came to plaintiff's hands without consideration, was held ill for duplicity and uncertainty (h). Nor is a plea containing two distinct defences the less a double plea, because one of the defences is badly pleaded(i).

The power of the courts to set aside a plea palpably sham or frivolous is Sham and now clearly established, though, as a general rule, the court will not try the Privolous Pleas. truth of a plea on affidavit, nor decide its validity in point of law on motion, except in extreme cases. In an action against the drawer of a bill of exchange the court struck out a plea which was manifestly a sham plea, and contained a variety of matters, without requiring *any affidavit of its falsi- [*602] ty(k). So, where to an action by the indorsee against the acceptor of a bill, the defendant pleaded that before the bill became due he accepted another bill at the request of the drawer, and upon his representation that he could prevail upon the holder to get the bill in the declaration mentioned withdrawn from circulation by means of the second bill, and that the defendant had no notice that the bill declared on had been indorsed to the plaintiff, the court set aside the plea as frivolous, without an affidavit of its falsity (1). So in an action by indorsee against acceptor, a plea that the drawer did not pay its amount to the drawee as the consideration of the acceptance, was held frivolous, and the court made absolute, with costs, a rule for signing judgment as for want of a plea(m). And where the defendant, who was

(d) Putney v. Swann, 2 M. & W. 72; 5 Dowl. 296, S. C.

(e) Hochley v Sutton, 2 Dowl. P. C. 700.

235, Lord Denman, C. J. " In Horner v. Keppel (infra, n. (p)) the plea traversed matter of fact alleged in the declaration in the form prescribed by the new rules. This plea is mere trifling and waste paper. We by no means abandon our summary jurisdiction over pleas of this kind, but think it better, at the same time, that parties should exercise their own discretion as to signing judgment, rather than call upon us to interfere; overruling Cowper v. Jones, 4 Dowl. P. C. 501, as to the jurisdiction of the courts. And see per Parke, B. in Bradbury v. Emans, 7 Dowl. P. C. 849, 852.

⁽f) Gould v. Whitehead, 6 Bing. N. C. 144. (g) Stephens v. Underwood, 4 Bing N. C.

^{665; 6} Dowl. 737, S. C.; 6 Scott, 402, S. C.

⁽h) Deacon v. Stodhart, 5 Bing N. C. 594.
(i) Stevens v. Underwood, 6 Scott, 402; supra, note(g).

⁽k) Balmanno v. Thompson, 4 Jurist, 43, C. P. Mich. T. 1889.

⁽¹⁾ Bradbury v. Emans, 7 Dowl. 849, Exch.; 5 M. & W. 595, S. C.

^{· (}m) Knowles r. Burward, 2 Perry & Dav.

CH

de

Íra

×

he

D€ ub

3(

it

Frivolous Pleas.

II. Of the under terms to plead issuably, in an action by the indorsee against the defendant as acceptor of a bill, pleaded that he had received no consideration Sham and from the plaintiff, and the plea was delivered so late in Trinity Term that there was not sufficient time to get the demurrer argued that term, the court ordered the plea to be set aside, and that the plaintiff should be at liberty to sign judgment, unless the defendant consented to amend upon payment of all costs, and going to trial at the next sittings (n). And in another case, where the defendant pleaded a plea containing a number of facts, and calculated to perplex the plaintiff, the court, on an affidavit of its falsity, and no pretence being shewn for pleading it, ordered it to be set aside(o). But where to a declaration by the indorsee against the acceptor, the defendant, who was not under terms to plead issuably, pleaded that he had not notice of the indorsement to the plaintiff, and that he did not, at the time of indorsement, promise to pay the bill, and that the plaintiff did not at such time pay the full amount to his indorser, the court refused a rule to sign judgment for want of plea(p). And where in an action by the indorsee against the drawer of a bill, the defendant pleaded that J. E. made and indorsed the bills in the name of the defendant without any authority from him, to which the plaintiff replied, that the bill was not made or indorsed by the said J. E., the court refused to set aside a demurrer to the replication, and allow the plaintiff to sign judgment as for want of a plea(q)(1).

Want of Consideration(r)[*603]

In pleading the want of consideration or value to an action on a bill or note, the defendant must state affirmatively such facts as shew a *want of consideration; and a general plea of no consideration will be bad on special demurrer(s). And such plea has been held bad on special demurrer, although the defect in the statement of the consideration was not specially assigned as one of the causes of demurrer(t). But after verdict, a general averment of the want of consideration will suffice (u).

(n) Brown v. Austin, 4 Dowl. P. C. 161, Exch.

(o) Miley v. Walls, 1 Dowl. P. C. 648, Exch. But not where the truth of the plea is merely doubtful; id. ib. And see Edwards v. Greenwood, 5 Bing. N. C. 476: 7 Scott, 482, S. C. that the falsehood of a plea is no ground for setting it aside.

(p) Horner v. Keppell, 2 Per. & D. 234, Lord Denman, C. J. "We ought not to renounce our jurisdiction in these cases, nor ought we to exercise it on light grounds. A plea may be false and frivolous in fact; but, in order to interfere, we should have continually to institute a trial of facts on affidavit. In point of law a plea may be so absurd, that we should certainly interfere and punish the party in fault; but we will not interfere in this case." See Knowles v. Burward, 2 Perry & Dav. 235; supra note (m); Cowper v. Jones, 4 Dowl. P. C. 591; overruled so far as it repudiates the jurisdiction of the courts over these cases

(q) Walker v. Catley, 5 Dowl. 592, Exch. (r) See ante, 69 to 81, as to the want of consideration in general, and when or not a de-

(s) Stoughton v. Earl Kilmorey, 2 C., M. & R. 72; 3 Dowl. P. C. 705; 1 Gale, 91, S. C.;

Lacey v. Forrester, 2 C., M. & R. 59, 60; 3 Dowl. P. C. 668; 1 Gale, 139, S. C.; French v. Archer, 3 Dowl. P. C. 130; Low v. Chifney, 1 Bing N. C. 267; 1 Scott, 95, S. C.; Reynolds v. Ivemy, 3 Dowl. P. C. 453, Exch. And see cases in following notes.

(t) Graham v. Pitman, 3 Ad. & El. 521; 5 N. & M. 37, S. C.; Trinder v. Smedley, 3 Ad. & El. 522; 5 N. & M. 138; 1 Har. & Woll.

164, 309, S. C.

(u) Easton v. Pratchett, 2 C., M. & R. 542; 4 Dowl. 549; 1 Gale, 250, S. C. Lord Abinger, C. B. in delivering the judgment of the court below (1 C., M. & R. 806) said, "The new regulations do not justify the form of the plea. It was intended to make it incumbent upon a defendant to set forth the circumstances under which the bill is sought to be impeach-The plea of the general issue is forbidden by the new rules to be pleaded in an action on a bill of exchange. And the plea of the special matter, which according to the new rules is now to be pleaded, is not to be confined to the effecting the same purpose as a mere notice to prove the consideration. It was intended that the plaintiff should be apprized by the plea of the grounds upon which the defendant objects to the right of recovering upon the bill; as, for

A plea to an action by the indorsee against the drawer of a bill, that the II. Of the defendant's indorsement was in blank, that the defendant delivered the bill Pleas. to A. (not a party to the bill) only to get it discounted for him, and that A. Want of fraudulently, and in violation of that special purpose, delivered it to B. to Consideration. secure a debt due from A. to B., of all which the plaintiff had notice, was held bad on general demurrer, as not shewing distinctly that the defendant never had value for the bill(x). And where in an action by indorsee against the acceptor, the defendant pleaded, first, that the bill was accepted for the accommodation of the payee, and without any consideration, and that it was indorsed after it became due; and secondly, that the bill was indorsed after it became due, and *that the payee, at the time of the indorsement, was in- [*604] debted to the defendant in a larger sum than the amount of the bill, such pleas were held bad on demurrer (y)(1). And where a plea to a count by an indorsee against the drawer of a bill of exchange averred that the bill had been drawn and indorsed to L. for a specific purpose, who in fraud of that purpose had handed it to H., and that H. handed it to the plaintiff, not for example, that it was given for the accommodation of the plaintiff, the onus of proving which lies on the defendant; or that it was given upon a consideration which afterwards failed, which in like manner the defendant must prove; or that it was given on a gambling transaction; and various similar cases may be readily sugtested. The intention then of these new regulations being to give the plaintiff due notice of the real defence which is to be set up, would manifestly fail if such a general plea as the one in question could be sustained; because the plaintiff would be left in the same state of uncertainty in which he formerly was before these rules of pleading were introduced. We are therefore of opinion, that this would have been a bad plea on special demurrer; but the question now is, whether after verdict it is to be considered by us as a bad plea, and we cannot hold that it is." And see per Parke, B. in Mills v. Oddy, 2 C., M. & R. 105, 106.

Mills v. Oddy, 2 C., M. & R. 103; 3 Dowl. P. C. 722; 1 Gale, 92, S. C. The plaintiff, who was an auctioneer, sold to the defendant by auction certain premises, and the defendant paid to the plaintiff as a deposit a check for 1001. There being a wilful misrepresentation in the description of the premises the defendant refused to pay the check, upon which the plaintiff brought an action against him on the check. The defendant pleaded that there was no consideration for making the check: held, that after verdict for the defendant, that evidence of the wilful misrepresentation was admissible under the plea, but that such plea would have been bad on special demurrer.

In Paplief r. Codrington, 4 Dowl. P. C. 497, after a plen of "no consideration" to a declaration on a bill of exchange by which the plaintiff had been delayed the long vacation, the court, under special circumstances, allowed the defendant to withdraw his plea and plead de noro, and have an inspection of the bill without an affidavit of merits.

Easton v. Pratchett, 1 C., M. & R. 798; 3 Dowl. 472; 1 Gale, 30; 6 C. & P. 736. To a declaration on a bill of exchange, by an indorsee against an indorser, the defendant plended, that he indorsed the bill to the plaintiff, without having or receiving any value or consideration whatsoever for or in respect of his said indorsement; and that he, the defendant, had not at any time had or received any value or consideration whatsoever for or in respect of such indorsement: held, after verdict, that the plea was sufficient. Affirmed on error in the Exchequer Chamber.

(x) Noel r. Rich, 2 C., M. & R. 360; 4 Dowl. 228; 1 Gale, 225, S. C. Semble, that a replication to such plea " that the defendant broke his promise without the cause alleged by him in his plea" is good; id. ib. And see Isaac v. Farrar, 1 M. & W. 65; 1 Gale, 385, S. C.; Griffin v. Yates, 2 Scott, 845; 2 Bing. N. C. 579, S. C.; Reynolds v. Blackburn, 2 N. & P. 136; 7 Ad. & El. 161; 6 Dowl. 19, S. C.; post, 620, note (n).

(y) Stein r. Yglesias, 1 C., M. & R. 565; 3 Dowl. P. C. 252; 1 Gale, 98. See as to the second plea, Burrough v. Moss, 10 B. & C. 558; ante, 220, note (f).

 In an action by indorsee against drawers and indorsers of a bill drawn and accepted during partnership, it was held, that a plea, by one of the defendants, that the bill was indorsed by the other defendant after the dissolution of the partnership and after notice thereof to the indorsee, and without the privity and in fraud of the defendant, and for the separate purposes of the indorsing partner, raised an immaterial issue. Lewis v. Reilly, 5 Jurist, 98.

A plea, that the bill declared on, was accepted in payment of a debt to the drawer, who indorsed it in blank and delivered it to the plaintiff as agent for one to whom the drawer was indebted and in payment of such debt, and that the plaintiff in violation of his duty retained the bill, was held a good answer to the usual allegation of indorsement to the plaintiff. Adams v. Jones, 20 Leg. Obs. 286. }

, Feet

1 1 0

Digitized by Google

CE

de iei

tai to ha

in ſo.

10

it

dŧ

Œ

Want of Consideration.

II. Of the good and valuable consideration, and that the plaintiff was not a bon? fide holder, it was held, that this allegation, connected with the rest of the plea, meant only that the plaintiff had not given good consideration for the bill, and that fraud in the plaintiff could not be given in evidence under it; and even if the allegation had stood alone, it would not, it should seem, have raised the issue as to fraud(z). And in an action by the indorsee against the acceptor of a bill of exchange, it is no plea that the bill was accepted by the defendant only as a collateral security, and for the accommodation of the drawer, and that due diligence had not been used to recover the amount from A mere general allegation of fraud will not aid a plea of want of consideration, which amounts to an answer to part only of the declaration(b).

> (z) Uther v. Rich, 2 Per. & Dav. 579. Lord Denman, C. J. in delivering the judgment of the court said, "This was an action by the indorsee against the acceptor of a bill of exchange. The second plea stated that the bill had been accepted and indorsed to Levy for a special purpose, who, in fraud of that purpose, had handed it to Hunter, and that Hunter handed it to the plaintiff, not for good and valuable consideration, and that the plaintiff was not the bond file holder. The replication was de injurit. At the trial I held that these pleadings put in issue nothing but the fact of a consideration having been given, and that the defendant was not at liberty to shew that the plaintiff knew of fraud, but should have pleaded that knowledge in distinct terms. On the motion for a new trial other points were disposed of, and the only question now remaining is, what menning is to be given to the words in the plea that the plaintiff was not the bon's fide holder of the bill. With respect to the doctrine laid 'down in Gill v. Cubitt, 3 Bar. & Cres. 466, and other cases, we adhere to the more recent decisions, and to what is said in Goodman v. Harvey, 4 Ad. & Ellis, 870, (ante, 257, note (n)), that gross negligence alone would not be a sufficient answer-that it may he evidence of mali fides, but is not the same thing. It follows that, in pleading, mala fides must be be distinctly alleged; and the sole question is, whether mal's fides is alleged by the words 'that the plaintiff was not the bon't fide holder of the bill.' The case of Devas v. Venable, 3 Bing. N. C. 400, is not in point, for that was a decision upon the meaning of the words bonh fide in a particular act of parliament, which was construed with reference to the subject matter and the context. Neither is the case of Bramah v. Roberts, 1 Bing. N. C. 459, an express authority, as the decision turned on other words in the plea, and the question does not appear to have arisen in any other case. Now the words in question must he taken with reference to the other allegations in the same plea, and being so taken, their proper meaning would seem to be, that the plaintiff was merely a collusive holder, not really interested in the bill himself, but only lending his name to Hunter; and then they do not go beyond the allegation that he had not given good and valuable consideration, evidence of which was admitted. But it is contended that their meaning is, that the plaintiff took the bill under such circumstances, that he must be considered to have known of the fraud set forth in the plea. We do not see how such a meaning can fairly be attributed to them. and are of opinion, that the only proper mode of implicating the plaintiff in the alleged fraud by pleading, is to aver that he had notice of it, leaving the circumstances by which that notice is to be proved directly or indirectly to be established in evidence, and we cannot treat the allegation that the plaintiff was not a boni fide holder as equivalent to such an averment. It is not necessary to give any opinion on any supposition that the words should be taken without reference to the other allegations in the plea, but we wish it to be understood that we by no means intend to say that even if taken simply they would have any other meaning than that which we have now given them."

(a) Angell r. Ihler, Exch. M. T. 1839, 4

Jurist, 196.
(b) Connop v. Holmes, 2 C., M. & R. 719; 4 Dowl. 451, S. C. Assumpsit by the indorsea against the drawer of a bill of exchange accepted by B. Plea, that B., being in want of a loan of money, applied to the plaintiff to advance it, which he was unwilling to do, unless B. agreed to accept it in two thirds money and one third wine, and unless the plaintiff had the security of a bill drawn by the defendant and accepted by B., that B. agreed to the said terms; and thereupon the bill declared on was drawn by the defendant and accepted by B., and that the defendant never received any consideration or value, nor did any consideration move or pass from either of the said parties to the defendant for his drawing the bill, except as aforesaid; and that the said wine had not been delivered, and that the said contract for the sale and delivery thereof was a gross fraud on the defendant: held bad, on special demurrer, because, the plea averring only a non-delivery of the wine, it was to be assumed that the money was paid, and was therefore an answer only as to one third of the amount of the bills; and that the allegation of fraud, not shewing in what the fraud consisted, could not be applied to any thing stated in the declaration.

As to illegality of consideration, see ante, 81 to 97. Illegality of consideration, whether by statute or common law, must be specially pleaded, rule H. T. 4 Will. 4, Assumpsit, a. 3; see Martin v. Smith, 6 Scott, 268; 4 Bing. N.

C. 436, S. C.

7.

~174.2

. 2

. . 1

٠,, ٢

*To an action by the indorsee against the drawer of a bill of exchange, the II. Of the defendant pleaded that the bill was given in payment of the price of seven- Pleas. teen pockets of hops, sold by the plaintiff to the defendant as hops of a cer- Failure tain grower, and answering certain samples, to be delivered by the plaintiff of Consideration to the defendant within a reasonable time; that although a reasonable time had elapsed, the plaintiff had not delivered to the defendant any hops answering the samples, or any hops whatever; and that there was no consideration for the bill except as aforesaid. It appeared that the plaintiff had delivered to the defendant seventeen pockets of hops, but inferior to the sample, and it was held that the general allegation in the plea that the plaintiff had not delivered any hops whatever was immaterial, and might be rejected, and that without it, the plea shewed a total failure of consideration, and was an answer to the action (d)(1).

To an action by the indorsee against the acceptor of a bill of exchange Accord for 43l., it is a good plea that after the bill became due one G. P., the draw- and Satiser of the bill, made his promissory note for 44l., and delivered the same to the plaintiff, in full satisfaction and discharge of the bill, although the note So in an action by the indorsee against acceptor, a plea that the drawer indorsed the bill to B., who indorsed it to C., in whose hands it remained when due; that C. being unable to obtain payment of it, returned it to B., who continued the holder of it until the defendant, before the indorsement to the plaintiff, delivered to B. another bill, drawn by the same party, and accepted by the defendant, for a greater amount, which B. accepted in full discharge and satisfaction of the former bill, was held a sufficient answer to the action, although it did not appear that the second bill was pay-But where to an action by the payce against the maker able to order (f). of a promissory note, the defendant pleaded that after the making of the note and accruing of the debt in respect thereof, the plaintiff drew a bill of exchange upon the defendant, which he accepted and delivered to the plaintiff, who took it for and on account of the note, and afterwards indorsed it to a person unknown to the defendant, and who at the time of the commencement of the suit was the holder thereof, and entitled to sue the defendant thereon, it was held, on special demurrer, that the plea was bad, inasmuch as it did not aver that the bill was giren as well as taken in satisfaction of the note(g). A plea of payment of a smaller sum of money in bar of a claim for a larger sum is bad, even after verdict(h)(2).

*A defendant has the same right of set-off in an action on a bill or note, Set-off (i).

[*606]

(c) See ante, 76 to 79. (d) Wells v. Hopkins, 5 M. & W. 7. (e) Sard v. Rhodes, 1 M. & W. 153; 1 Gale, 376; 4 Dowl. 743; 1 Tyrw. & G. 298,

(f) Lewis r. Lyster, 2 C., M. & R. 704; 4 Dowl. 377, S. C. In this case the plea went on to aver that the latter bill was indorsed by B. to A., and that after it became due the defendant paid the amount of it to A. in satisfaction and discharge of that bill, and of all damages sustained by the plaintiff by reason of the non payment thereof when due: but it was held, that all this might be rejected as surplusage and did not vitiate the plea.

(g) Crisp r. Griffiths, 2 C., M. & R. 159; 8

Dowl. 752; 1 Gale, 106, S. C.

(h) Down r. Hatcher, 2 Perry & Dav. 292;

3 Jurist, 651, S. C.
(i) The rule T. T. 1 Will. 4, s. 6, ante, 558, requires the particulars of the defendant's set-off to be annexed to the record.

(1) See post, 928, (57).

⁽²⁾ See post, 820, (20) a plea that the defendant, &c. See also Bartrum v. Caddy, 9 Adol. & El. 275; Corbett v. Swinburne, 8 Id. 673. }

Before pleading a set-off, the defendant should be II. Of the as in other cases (j)(1). Pleas. satisfied that he is sufficiently prepared to establish it in evidence, for where a verdict is found against a defendant on a plea of set-off, he is estopped Set-off. from suing the plaintiff for the demand specified in such plea; and this, although the defendant offer no evidence in support of his plea of set-off (k). In case, therefore, a defendant, after having put such a plea upon the record, discovers that he is unable to prove it, his proper course is to apply to the court or a judge for leave to withdraw the plea on payment of costs; and he is at liberty to make this application even at the trial (l).

A plea of set-off is in general an indivisible plea(m), and, consequently, if under a plea of set-off to the whole declaration, the defendant prove a debt less than the amount of the plaintiff's claim, he is not entitled to have a verdict entered for him for the amount which he has so proved, but the issue must be found for the plaintiff (n). Where, however, the plaintiff's claim has been partly answered by other pleas, and the defendant proves a set-off exceeding the reduced amount, he is entitled to have a verdict entered for him on the plea of set-off, and the issue must be found wholly for the de-

(j) See generally, Chitty on pleading, 6th edit. vol. i. p. 568, vol. iii. p. 802; and Chit. j. Precedents in Pleading, p. 387.

(k) Eastmure v. Laws, 5 Bing. N. C. 444; 7 Scott, 461, S. C.

(1) Id. ibid.

(m) Moore r. Butlin, 7 Ad. & El. 595; 2

N. & P. 436, S. C.
(n) Tuck v. Tuck, 5 M. & W. 109; 3 Jurist, 680, S. C.

(1) Where a note not payable to order has been assigned to a third person for a valuable consideration, and the maker has actually promised such third person to pay the contents; he is not to be permitted in an action upon the note against him in the name of the payee to avail himself of claims he may have against the payee as a set-off. Wiggin v. Damrell, 4 New Hamp. Rep.

A note, not payable to order, made by A. and payable to D., at a future day, was transferred by C., before the note became due, gave notice to A. of the transfer. only said shortly that he would see about that, but said nothing of any set-off which he had against B. In a suit upon the note in the name of B., for the benefit of C., it was held that A. was precluded from availing himself of any set-off he might have against B. Albee v. Little, 5 ld. 277.

In a suit on promissory note, indorsee v. maker, the defendant has the same right to file his declaration on book account in off-set, on an account existing before notice of the indorsement, as if sued by payce. Martin v. Trobridge et al., 1 Verm. Rep. 447.

The decision in this case is made under statutes authorizing the defence which it sustains. The court add—"We have nothing to do with the policy of these statutes; while they are in force the indorsee must take the note subject to the rights of the maker against the payee, and rely upon his security upon the indorsement." Ibid.

The maker of a promissory note when sued by an indorsee, will not be allowed an off-set of notes which he has purchased against the original payee of the note on which he is sued, unless he has perfected his right of action agaist such payee, by giving him notice that he is the holder of said notes, previous to the assignment to the plaintiff. Parker r. Kendall, 3 Id. 540.

The demands proper to be pleaded in off-set, in such cases, must be such as the defendant could have pleaded if the action had been brought by the original payee of the note. Ibid.

When the maker of a promissory note payable to A. B. or bearer, is sued by one, as bearer, the defendant will not be allowed to plead any demand in off-set except such as he may have against the plaintiff in the action Ibid.

It seems in an action by an indorsee of a promissory note, commenced previous to the revised statutes, the defendant may avail himself of a set-off against the payee, when, by the pleadings, the very right of the plaintiff to the note is denied; as where the transfer is charged to have been fraudulent, with the view of defeating the set-off. Savage v. Davis, 7 Wend. Rep. 223.

Where one makes a promissory note negotiable at bank, and the bank becomes its purchaser, no set-off can be allowed against it in favor of the maker against the payee. Emanuel r. Atwood, 6 Port. 384. Nor is a set-off allowable in favor of the maker against an intermediate indorser, unless there has been a contract between the parties, founded on some new consideration, so as to allow it. Kennedy v. Manship, I Ala. Rep. N. S. 43.

In a suit by T. against M. & B. a note executed by T. and another and payable to M. alone, would be a good set-off. Carson v. Barnes, Id. 93.

False representations in the sale of a chattel for which the note was given, are admissible by way of reduction of damages. Harrington v. Stratton, 22 Pick. 511. }

. . . .

x 1 30

fendant(o). And the same rule applies whether the form of action be debt II. Of the or assumpsit(p).

Although, in general, a creditor who separately agrees to take less than Composihis entire demand, is not legally bound by such engagement for want of ade-tion(q). quate consideration (r), yet where several creditors, on the faith of each others stipulations, enter into an arrangement of that nature, whether by deed or unstamped memorandum, each is legally bound by it, and he cannot either privately receive(s) or sue his debtor for a larger dividend than the rest(t). And one of the makers of a joint *promissory note is at liberty to show that he [*607] was a mere surety for the other party, and so known to the plaintiff, the payee of the note, and that the plaintiff has taken a composition from the principal debtor without the defendant's consent(u). And where A. advanced 100l. to B. on the joint and several promissory note of B. and C., the latter at the time owing A. 651., on his own account, and C. failed, and at a meeting of his creditors, A. and others entered into a resolution that C. should assign certain property for the benefit of his creditors, and that his creditors should give him a release, and A. at this meeting stated his debt to be 651. and af-

(0) Id. 1bid. And see the judgment of the court in Moore v. Butlin, 7 Ad. & El. 595; 2 N. & P. 436, S. C.

(p) Consins v. Paddon, 2 C., M. & R. 547; 5 Tyrw. 555, S. C.; Tuck v. Tuck, 5 M. & W. 109.

(q) See in general, Montagu on Debtor and Creditor; 3 Chit. Commercial Law; Harrison's Index, tit. Debtor and Creditor, iv. vol. 2, p. 883, vol. 3, p. 2440; Jones v. Senior, 4 M. & W. 123; post, 621, n. (o). And as to the effect of a Scotch deed of composition, see Woodham v. Edwards, 5 Ad. & El. 771; 1 Nev. & Perry. 207, S. C.

(r) Fitch v. Sutton, 5 East, 230; see Down v. Hatcher, ante, 605, note (h).

(s) Ants, 85, note (g); Stone v. Compton, 5 Bing. N. C. 142; Cowper r. Smith, 4 M. & W. 519; ante, 86, note (n). See also ante, 421 to 423.

(t) See Good v. Cheeseman, 2 B. & Ad. 328; 4 Car. & P. 513, S. C. A debtor being unable to meet the demands of his creditors, they signed an agreement (which was assented to by the debtor) to accept payment by his covenanting to pay two thirds of his annual income to a trustee of their nomination, and give a war-The rant of attorney as a collateral security. creditors never nominated a trustee, and the agreement was not acted upon, and one of the creditors brought an action against the debtor for his demand. The debtor appeared to have been always willing to perform his part of the engagement: held, that the agreement, though not properly an accord and satisfaction, was still a good defence on the general issue, as it constituted a valid new contract between the creditors and the debtor, capable of being immediately enforced, and the consideration for which to each creditor was the forbearance of the rest, and as there appeared no failure of performance on the part of the debtor.

Cork v. Saunders, 1 Bar. & Ald. 46. A. being insolvent, by agreement, stipulated to assign his property immediately, the creditors consenting that the business should be carried on for their benefit until the next meeting, and that then the property should be divided among them. The insolvent assigned his effects. At the next meeting several of the creditors, who had signed this instrument, agreed that the business should be carried on by the trustees for a further time: it was held that a creditor who had signed the first agreement, although he had not in any way concurred in the second, could not maintain an action against the insolvent for a debt existing at the time of the first agreement.

Tatlock v. Smith, 6 Bing. 339; 3 Moo. & P. 676. By an agreement between defendants and their creditors, all defendants' stock in trade was placed in the hands of trustees for the benefit of creditors, and defendants were to execute to the trustees a conveyance of all their estate, in which deed were to be inserted all other usual clauses. The trustees carried on the defendants' business, and paid the creditors 10s. in the pound. They then tendered for execution by defendants a conveyance of all their estate. containing a clause of release, which defendants objected to as insufficient, and refused to exe-The instrument, not cute the conveyance. having been executed by all the creditors, a meeting, at which the defendants were called on to execute was adjourned, that the signature of every creditor night be lobtained. It was held, that the plaintiffs, who, as creditors, were parties to the above agreement, could not sue for their original debt, at least till the conveyance, such as it was, had been executed by all the creditors, and refused by the defendants.

Emes r. Widdowson, 4 Car. & P. 151. An assignment of property for the purpose of securing debts due and to be due, with a power of sale, upon giving six months notice, is only a collateral security, and, without a special clause to that effect, does not suspend the remedy by action against the debtor. And see Laucaster v. Harrison, 6 Bing. 726; 4 M. & P. 561, S. C.

As to tender of composition notes, see ante,313. (u) Hall r. Wilcox, 1 Moody & R. 58.

Pleas. Composi-

II. Of the terwards received a dividend on that sum, it was held that A. could not, on the subsequent failure of B., sue C. on the promissory note(v). But in order to render the deed or agreement of composition binding on the creditor, it must be shewn that all, or at least the general body of the defendant's creditors, agreed to accept the composition; and if it appears that one creditor only besides the plaintiff was induced to enter into the arrangement, the plaintiff will not be precluded from recovering his original demand (w). And where by an agreement entered into between the plaintiffs, together with other creditors, and the defendant, the defendant agreed to pay a composition of 15s. in the pound by two instalments; and a surety, in consideration of the creditors agreeing to discharge the defendant from all debts and demands on receiving such composition of 15s. in the pound, agreed to pay a sum of money in part payment of the first instalment, and to accept a bill of exchange drawn by the defendant in part payment of the second, the creditors agreeing to exonerate and discharge the defendant on payment of the said 15s. in the pound; and it was also agreed that several bills of exchange, the amount of which was equal to the residue of the sum payable on the composition, which had been before indorsed by the defendant and handed over to the plaintiffs, should be considered as part payment of the said 15s. in the pound; it was held that the bills left in the hands of the plaintiffs were not, under this agreement, to be considered as an absolute payment, unless they were paid when at maturity, and, one of them having been dishonoured, that the defendant remained liable on his indorsement (x). So, if it be part of the condition of the deed that the debtor shall make a full disclosure of his property, and he conceals a portion of it, the creditors signing the deed may [*608] still proceed against him(y); or if a creditor compound *with his debtor under a false impression, in which the debtor knowingly leaves him, as to the extent of the debtor's estate, the creditor is not estopped from suing for the balance of his debt(z). And a creditor who is refused permission to come in under a composition deed, is remitted to his former rights, notwithstanding he may have previously bound himself to enter into such deed(a)(1).

(v) Seager v. Billington, 5 Car. & P. 456. (w) Reny v. Richardson, 2 C., M. & R. 422. As to proof of an agreement to compound, see ib. It is usual in a deed or agreement of composition to insert a clause, that unless all the creditors above a certain amount shall, within a specified time, enter into the deed or agreement the same shall be void.

(x) Constable v. Andrew, 2 C. & M. 298; and see ante, 312, note (1).

(y) Wenham v. Fowle, 3 Dowl. P. C. 43.

(z) Vine v. Mitchell, 1 Mood. & Rob. 337.

(a) Garrard v. Woolner, 5 Moore & S. 327;

S Bing. 258, S. C. The plaintiff attended a meeting of the defendant's creditors and concurred in certain resolutions for the execution of a release to the defendants on their executing an assignment of all their effects to trustees, for distribution amongst their creditors. The defendants and the trustees at first disputed the amount of the plaintiffs debt, but subsequently altogether refused to allow him to come in under the deed: it was held, that his having signed the preliminary resolutions was, under the circumstances, no bar to his right to sue the defendants for his original debt.

⁽¹⁾ The payee of a note for $4,310, agreed with the maker, that if the maker would convey to him certain land, the the sum of $3,200 should be allowed to him on the note, and if any sum should be paid in cash or otherwise, double the amount paid should be indorsed upon the note; and that upon receiving a conveyance of the land and the maker's note for $500, payable in one year with interest, the first note should be given up; and in this agreement was the clause, "the above arrangement is to be carried into effect in three months." The land was conveyed within the three months, and the $3,200 indorsed as paid on the note; but no other payment and no note for $300 was made or tendered within the three months. It was held that the note was not a penalty to enforce the performance of some other obligation, but that it was evidence of a subsisting debt to the amount of it, and that the agreement was in the nature of a composition, the conditions of which must be strictly complied with, and that the maker had not complied with the conditions of the agreement, and therefore the payee was entitled to re-cover the balance of the note after deducting the $3,200. Makepeace v. Harvard College, 10 Pick. 298.

ht.

1 1 1

5. 5.02

. 1. 31

: 32

. is so

100

*.. ·

· , · . 💰

: يوم . ٣ 43 *

. . 45%

, ø

 53

, , -4

The Statutes of Limitations, as far as respects bills and notes, &c. are II. Of the the 21 Jac. 1, c. 16, ss. 3 and 7; 4 & 5 Ann. c. 16, s. 19, and the 9 Geo. Pleas. 4, c. 14, ss. 1, 3, and 8. The 21 Jac. 1, c. 16, s. 3, enacts, that all ac-Statutes of tions upon the case, other than for such accounts as concern the trade of Limitations(b). merchandise between merchant and merchant(c), their factors or servants, all actions of debt, grounded upon any lending or contract, without specialty, shall be commenced and sued within six years next after the cause of such action or suit, and not after. But sect. 7, provides, that if any person or persons, that is or shall be entitled to any such actions, shall be at the time of any such cause of action given or accrued, fallen or come within the age of twenty-one years, fême covert, non compos mentis, imprisoned, or beyond the seas, that then such person or persons shall be at liberty to bring the same actions, so as they take the same within such times as are before limited after their coming to or being of full age, discovert, of sane memory, at large or returned beyond the seas, as other persons having no such impediment should have done.

The 4 & 5 Ann. c. 16, s. 19, enacts, that if any person or persons against whom there is or shall be any such cause of suit or action for seamen's wages, or against whom there shall be any cause of action upon the case or of debt, grounded upon any lending or contract, without specialty, or any of them, shall be at the time of any such cause or suit, or action given or accrued, fallen or come, beyond the seas, that then such person or persons, who is or shall be entitled to any such suit or action, shall be at liberty to bring the said actions against such person or persons after their return from beyond the seas, so as they take the same after their return from beyond the seas within such time as are respectively limited for the bringing of the said actions before by this act and by the said other act made in 21 Jac. 1.

The 9 Geo. 4. c. 14, s. 1, after reciting the statute of James for England, 9 Geo. 4, and of Charles for Ireland, then recites as follows: And whereas various c. 14. questions have arisen in actions founded on simple contract, as to the proof and effect of acknowledgments and promises offered in evidence, for the purpose of taking cases out of the operation of the said enactments, and it is expedient to prevent such questions, and to make provision for giving effect to the said enactments, and to the intention thereof; and enacts, That in actions of debt *or upon the case, grounded upon simple contract, no acknowledgment or promise by words only shall be deemed sufficient evidence of a new or continuing contract, whereby to take any case out of the operation of the said enactments, or either of them, or to deprive any party of the benefit thereof unless such acknowledgment or promise shall be made or contained by or in some writing to be signed by the party chargeable thereby; and that where there shall be two or more joint contractors, or executors or administrators of any contractor, no such joint contractor, executor, or administrator, shall lose the benefit of the said enactments, or either of them, so as to be chargeable in respect or by reason only of any written acknowledgment or promise, made and signed by any other or others of them: provided always, that nothing herein contained shall alter or take away, or lessen the effect of any payment of any principal or interest made by any person whatsoever:

⁽b) A defence under this statute must always have been specially pleaded, independently of the new rules; see Chitty on Pleading, 6th edit. vol. i. p. 479.
(c) Since the 9 Geo. 4, c. 14, accounts not in writing are not sufficient to take a case out of the statute of limitations; but there must be a part-payment in cash, or what is equivalent to it, to have that effect; Williams v. Griffith, 2 C., M. & R. 45; Mills v. Fowkes, 5 Bing. N. C. 455; 7 Scott, 444, S. C.

II. Of the provided also, that in actions to be commenced against two or more such Pleas. Statute of Limitations.

joint contractors, or executors or administrators, if it shall appear at the trial or otherwise that the plaintiff, though barred by either of the said recited acts or this act, as to one or more of such joint contractors, or executors or administrators, shall nevertheless be entitled to recover against any other or others of the defendants by virtue of a new acknowledgment or promise, or otherwise judgment may be given, and costs allowed for the plaintiff as to such defendant or defendants, against whom he shall recover, and for the other defendant or defendants against the plaintiff.

Sect. 3 enacts, That no indorsement or memorandum of and payment, written or made after the time appointed for this act to take effect (d) upon any promissory note, bill of exchange, or other writing, by or on the behalf of the party to whom such payment shall be made, shall be deemed sufficient proof of such payment, so as to take the case out of the operation of either of the said statutes.

Sect. 8 provides, That no memorandum or other writing made necessary by this act shall be deemed to be an agreement within the meaning of any statutes relating to the duties of stamps(e).

When gins to run.

The statutes of limitation, it will be observed, require the action to be Statute be- commenced within six years next after the cause of action accrued, not within six years after the making of the contract (f). Therefore the statute begins to operate only from the time when the bill became due, and not in general from the date(g)(1); and, therefore, the plea in an action against the ac-[* 610] ceptor of a bill, or maker of a note, when payable *after date, should be actio non accrevit, and not non assumpsit infra sex annos(h).

Where the payee of a bill was dead at the time it was accepted, the court held that the statute did not begin to run till his administrator had taken out administration(i). But if a party act as executor de son tort, as he may be sued immediately as such, the statute runs in that case, and his subsequently

(d) 1st January, 1839. See Bosworth and Parr v. Cockett, in House of Lords, 6th May, 1824, and other cases before this act, Searle r. Lord Barrington, 2 Stra. S20; 2 Ves. sen. 43,

(e) This section applies only to instruments which might be stamped with an agreement stamp; and, therefore, a promissory note improperly stamped is not admissible in evidence Jones v. Ryder, 4 M. & W. 32. But the following memorandum "I acknowledge to owe M. 36l. which I agree to pay him as soon as my circumstances will permit" is exempt from stamp duty, as a writing made necessary by that statute, provided it be put in for the mere purpose of barring the statute of limitations, the debt itself being proved by other evidence; Morris v. Dixon, 4 Ad. & Ellis, 845; 6 Nev.

& Man. 438; 2 Har. & W. 57, S. C.

(f) Ante, 608.
(g) Whittersheim v. Carlisle, 1 H. Bla. 631; Renew v. Axton, Carth. 3, (Chit. j. 174). As to the point when the statute of limitations begins to run on a note payable on demand; see post, 610; and Topham r. Braddock, 1 Taunt. 575, 576; Sir W. Jones, 194; Godb-437; 12 Mod. 444; 15 Ves. 487; see Savage v. Aldren, 2 Stark. R. 232, (Chit. j. 1007), from which it seems, that where a note was not to be delivered to the payee till certain conditions had been performed, the statute does not run till the delivery of note; and see Irving v. Veitch, 3 M. & W. 90; post, 611, note (v). (h) Jocelyn v. Luserre, 10 Mod. 294, (Chit.

j. 232). (i) Murray v. E. I. Company, 5 B. & Al.

212, (Chit. j. 1121).

(1) Limitation is from the accruing of the action, not the assumpsit. Withers r. Richardson, 5 Monroe's Rep. 94. Keith v. Harrington, 2 Verm. Rep. 174.

A promise to pay certain notes signed by the promisee and another, is broken, when those notes become payable, and the statute of limitations then begins to run. Crofoot v. Moore, 4 Id. 204.

Such a contract is not a contract of indemnity, but an action will lie upon it as soon as the pay-day arrives, without payment by the promissor. Ib.

ht:

4

- 1

1.

. . .

. . : *

121 taking out letters of administration will not alter the case (k). And if after II. Of the the cause of action accrued, and after the statute had begun to run, the debt- Pleas. or within six years die, and, by reason of litigation as to the right to probate, Statute of an executor of the will is not appointed until after the expiration of the six tions. years, the statute will be a bar, though plaintiff sue such executor within a When reasonable time after probate granted (l).

Statute be-

Where an agent seeks to recover from his principal the amount of a bill of gins to run. exchange drawn by the former upon the latter, which the agent has been obliged to pay in consequence of the non-acceptance of the principal, and the action is founded upon the implied contract of the principal to indemnify the agent against loss, the statute will only begin to run from the time of damnification, viz. when the agent was called upon to pay(m). But as a surety is entitled to sue his co-surety for contribution as soon as he has paid a sum exceeding his proportion of the whole debt, if two persons become sureties on a promissory note, and one of them, who has been compelled to pay considerably more than one-half of the debt, sue his co-surety for contribution, and it appear that a large portion of the money, exceeding one-half of the original debt, has been paid more than six years previous to the commencement of the action, he will only be entitled to recover the amount paid by him within six years (n).

If goods be sold at six months' credit, payment to be then made by a bill at two or three months, at the purchaser's option, this is in effect a nine months' credit, and, consequently, an action for goods sold and delivered, commenced within six years from the end of the nine months, is in time to save the statute of limitations (o).

Where a bill or note is payable a certain time after sight, no debt accrues until it has been presented to the drawee, therefore the statute of limitations is no bar to such a note, unless it has been presented for payment more than Bills and six years before the action was commenced (p).

With respect to promissory notes payable on demand, it has been held sight. that the statute runs from the date of the note, and not from the time of the demand(q)(1). So although the note be payable with interest *on demand(r). Notes pay-

Notes payable at or a/ler able on Demand. [*611 |

(k) 10 Ves. 93.

(1) Rhodes v. Smethurst, 4 M. & W. 42; see post, 823, (58).

(m) Huntley v. Sanderson, 1 C. & M. 467; 3 Tyrw. 469, S. C.

(n) Davies v. Humfreys, 4 Jurist, 250, Hil.
T. 1840, Exch. see post, 823, (59).
(o) Helps v. Winterbottom, 2 B. & Ad.

431, Parke, J. dubitante on the ground of the option given with respect to the bill.

(p) Dixon v. Nuttall, 1 C., M. & R. 307; 6 C. & P. 320, S. C.; ante, 365, note (i); and see per Parke, B. in Norton v. Ellam, 2 M. & W. 462; Holmes v. Kerrison, 2 Taunt. 323, (Chit. j. 791); ante, 365, note (h).

(q) Christe r. Fonsick, C. P. London sittings after M. T. 52 Geo. 3, cor. Sir J. Mansfield, Selw. 9th edit. 351; Capp v. Lancaster, Cro. Eliz. 548; Rumball r. Ball, 10 Mod. 38; 3 Salk. 227, (Chit. j. 231); Anon. 15 Vin. Ab.

103; ante; Tidd, 9th edit. 17, n. (g); 1 Ves. 344, accord; but see Harris v. Ferraud, Hardr. 36; Buckler v. Moor, 1 Mod. 39; Vin. Ab. tit. Limitations, p. 14, semb. con; and quære, if payable in the body at a particular place, a demand there is not essential; and semble the statute could only run from the time of such demand; see Saunderson v. Bowes, 14 East, 500; Carter v. Ring, 3 Campb. 549; Topham Percowe, Sir W. Jones, 194; Godbolt, 437; Collins v. Benning, 12 Mod. 444; Ex parte Dewdney, 15 Ves. 487. It seems that in the case of a note payable twelve months after notice, notice must be given; Clayton v. Gosling, 5 Bar. & Cres. 360; S D. & Ry. 110, (Chit. j. 1287); see judgment of Parke, B. in Norton v. Ellam, 2 M. & W. 464.

(r) Norton v. Ellam, 2 M. & W. 461. But in Gascoyne v. Smith, M'Clel. & Younge, 338,

⁽¹⁾ The statute of limitations begins to run from the date of a promissory note payable on demand. Little v. Blunt, 9 Pick. Rep. 488. | Smith v. Bythewood, Rice's Law Rep. 245. |

II. Of the But if a note be payable "twenty-four months after demand," the statute is Pleas. no bar if the note be presented for the first time within six years before the action commenced(s).

Account stated.

It has been considered, that the statement of an account and striking a balance within six years, which the debtor promises to pay with interest, creates such a new cause of action that it suffices to sue within six years after, although all the items are of longer date, and though the account be stated since the passing of the 9 Geo. 4, c. 14, which in general requires an acknowledgment in writing(t). But a mere parol statement of an antecedent debt, without any new contract or consideration, made within six years before action brought, does not constitute a sufficient cause of action to prevent the operation of the statute of limitations (u).

Where the defendant was indebted to the plaintiffs in a balance of 22451, for which they held his over-due promissory note, and in 1827 it was agreed between them that the defendant should pay the balance as follows, viz. 2451. in cash, and the remainder by annual payments of 3001. a year out of his salary as a consul abroad, and by the proceeds of certain wines consigned by him to India, and that the plaintiffs should hold his promissory note as a security for the payment of the account; and 2451. was paid, and the 300l. was also paid in 1828 and 1829, but the defendant made default in payment of it in September 1830, it was held, that the plaintiffs were entitled at any time within six years from September 1830 to sue paid, was held not to be payable instantly, and, therefore, not to be treated as overdue in the hands of an indorsee; and it was observed, that if the parties meant to secure something demandable instantly, it would have been absurd to stipulate for the payment of interest. The same point was determined in Barough o.

White, 4 Bar. & Cres. 325.

(a) Thorpe v. Coombe, Ry. & Moo. 388; 8

Dow. & Ry. 347, (Chit. j. 1295); Sturdy v.

Henderson, 4 B. & Ald. 592, S. P.

(t) Smith v. Forty, 4 Car. & P. 127. An administratrix sued for a debt due to the intes-It appeared that the debt accrued more than six years before the commencement of the action, but that within six years the defendant and the agent of the administratrix went through the account together, and struck a balance, which the defendant promised to pay with a note payable on demand, with interest until interest as soon as he could, and it was held that the administratrix was entitled to recover on a count upon an account stated with her, and that the statute of limitations was no bar. Vaughan, B. said, "I think that the plaintiff has shewn a good cause of action on the count upon an account stated with the administratrix. The plaintiff does not go upon the original debt at all. I take the statute 9 Geo. 4, c. 14, to apply to cases where you go for the original debt, and then give some evidence of an acknowledgment to rebut the presumption raised by the statute of limitations, that the debt has been satisfied in the course of six years since it Verdict for plaintiff. And see occurred."

post. 616, note (h); but see cases, next note.
(u) Jones r. Ryder, 4 M. & W. 32; and see observations in Willis v. Newham, 3 Younge & Jer. 523, 524

But where an action will not lie without a previous demand, as on a promise to deliver goods, or perform some service on demand, the statute begins to run from the time of making the de-

In the case of a promissory note, payable on demand, the time when the statute of limitations begins to run, should be computed from the making of the note, and not from the time when the holder shall make an actual demand of payment. Larason and Hoppock v. Lambert, 7 Halsted's Rep. 247.

There is no difference between a note payable "when demanded," and one payable on demand, and in both cases the statute of limitations begins to run from the date of the note. Kingsbury v. Butler, 4 Verm. Rep. 458.

When the statute of limitations is plended to an action on promissory note payable "when demanded" the plaintiff will not be allowed to prove the note had been lest for a time, in order to rebut the presumption that a demand had been made. Ib.

Where bills of exchange are made payable at a particular place, no action can be maintained until after a demand at that place, and dishonor there. Therefore the statute of limitations begins to rnn from the time of such demand, and not from the time when the bills were pavable, according to their tenor. Picquet v. Curtis, 1 Sum. 478. }

Just 1

(' 4 . 7

2.3(14)

: :: $

e gy 28

., . .

graf

-(3

6.0

. 14

. 3

12 0

17. 88 ii ve

....

21.78

(C. 100)

. . TES

the defendant on the promissory note, or for the balance remaining due, on II. Of the a count upon an account stated(v).

Before the 9 Geo. 4, c. 14, a verbal acknowledgment of one of several What a drawers of a joint and several promissory note, was holden sufficient to take sufficient the case out of the statute as against all or any one of the other drawers in a acknow-ledgment separate action on the note against him(x)(1); and this although the latter before 9 And in an action against *A. on the joint and sever- Geo. 4, c. were only a surety (y). al promissory note of himself and B., to take the case out of the statute of 14, to take limitations, it was held enough to give in evidence a letter written by A. to Statute of B. within six years, desiring him to settle the debt(z). But where an ac-Limita-

*612]

(v) Irving v. Veitch, 3 M. & W. 90.

(x) Whiteomb v. Whiting, Doug. 652, 653, (Chit. j. 409).

Moore, 568, (Chit. j. 1226).
(z) Halliday v. Ward, 3 Campb. 32; and see Rex v. Hardwick, 11 East, 585; Nicholls

(y) Perham v. Raynal, 2 Bing. 306; 9 v. Dowding, 1 Stark. 81.

(1) The same point has been ruled in the United States, even when the acknowledgment was made after the dissolution of the partnership. Smith v. Ludlow, 6 John. Rep. 267. See Clements v. Williams, February Term, 1814. MSS. Sup. Court. { See also Austin v. Bostwick, 9 Con. 496; Patterson v. Choate, 7 Wend. 441. Contra. Searight v. Craighead, 1 Pen. Rep. 137. }

But, where an action was brought against A. and B., and C. his wife, upon a joint promiseory note made by A. and C. before her marriage, and the promise was laid by A. and C. before her marriage, and the defendant pleaded the statute of limitations, whereupon issue was joined; it was held, that an acknowledgment of the note by A. within six years, but after the intermarriage of B. and C., was not evidence to support the issue. Pittam v. Foster, 1 Barn. & Cresw. 248. And see 11 Wheat. Rep. 316. 3 Cain. 133.

The acknowledgment, by one of two partners, of a debt against the partnership, as just and still due, is admissible evidence in an action against both, to remove the bar of the statute of limitations, although such acknowledgment was made after the dissolution of the partnership, and the party making it was then insolvent. Austin et al. r. Bostwick et al., 9 Conn. Rep. 496.

If it appear that such acknowledgment was made by one partner, with a view of fixing a liability on his late co-partner, it will be entitled to little weight; but if it were made honestly, and will operate against him who made it, it will not be considered destitute of weight. Ib.

Where the evidence relied on to take a joint debt out of the statute of limitations, consists of acknowledgments made by both of the debtors, no joint act by them is necessary, to render such acknowledgments effective. Ib.

Where the attorney of the plaintiff, nieeting one of the defendants, observed to him, that the plaintiff's account against him was in his hands, to which such defendant replied, "it was one of the old co-partnership debts; the plaintiff ought to do with it as the other creditors had doneaccept fifteen cents on the dollar-he would pay that at any time;" it was held that this was an acknowledgment of a debt still due. Ib

The acknowledgment of a previous debt due from a firm, made by one partner after the diseclation, binds the other partner so far as to prevent him from availing himself of the statute of limitations; such acknowledgment is sufficient to repel the presumption of payment of a debt which is shown to have once existed against the firm, although not competent to create a debt: so held in this case, where the admission was made twelve years after the dissolution. Patterson v. Choate, 7 Wend. Rep. 441.

Where the testimony was, that the partner said that the balance was due at the time of dissolution, and had not been paid to his knowledge, and then the witness added, on examination, that the expression was, "that the balance was due at the time of the dissolution, and still is due," or "that it was then due, and had never been paid;" it was held that it amounted to an admission of a subsisting indebtedness.

The acknowledgment of a debt, by one joint debtor, is admissible evidence against all, to take the case out of the statute of limitations. Coit v. Tracy et al., 8 Conn. Rep. 268.

But such acknowledgment is not, under all circumstances, sufficient for this purpose. Ib. And see same case, 9 Conn. Rep. 1. See also Getch v. Hearld, 7 Greenleaf's Rep. 26.

A joint note made in 1815 by two promissors, being shown in 1830 to one of them, he said at first that he thought he was a witness to the note, and was not aware, till he saw the note, that he had signed it, or any other note, with the other promissor. He admitted that he signed the note, and said that he did not know that it had been paid, but presumed it was due. Held that this was not sufficient to take the case out of the statute of limitations. Cambridge v. Hobart, 10 Pick. Rep. 232. But in the case of a sole debtor, such admissions might be considered as strong evidence of the present existence of the debt. Ib.

Digitized by Google

Pleas. Statute of Limitations.

What a sufficient Acknowledgment before 9 Geo. 4, c. 14, to take Statute.

II. Of the tion was brought against A. and B. and C. his wife, upon a joint promissory note made by A. and C. before her marriage, and the promise was laid by A. and C. before her marriage, it was held, that an acknowledgment of the note by A. within six years, but after the intermarriage of B. and C., did not take the case out of the statute(a); and it was clear, before the 9 Geo. 4, that after the death of one of several joint or joint and several contractors, his executors could not be prejudiced or rendered liable after six years, by an admission or part-payment of the demand by the surviving debtors after the death (b). So the acknowledgment by one partner to bind the other must have been clear and explicit, and therefore it was held not sufficient, Case out of in order to take a case out of the statute of limitations, in an action on a promissory note, to shew a payment by a joint maker of the note to the payee within six years, so as to throw it upon the defendant to shew that the payment was not made on account of the note(c). But where the acceptor of a bill of exchange had acknowledged his acceptance, and that he had been liable, but said he was not liable then, because it was out of date, and that he would not pay it, and that it was not in his power to pay it, this was deemed sufficient to take the case out of the statute(d). where the acknowledgment made by the acceptor of his liability on the bill, was accompanied with a declaration that he was not liable to the drawers of the bill, there being no consideration for acceptance, it was held not sufficient to bar the statute in an action by the drawers(e). It was also held, that where one of two drawers of a joint and several promissory note having become a bankrupt, the payee received a dividend under the commission on account of the note, that was sufficient to prevent the other drawer from availing himself of the statute in an action brought against him for the remainder of the money due on the note, the dividend having been received within six years before the action brought (f). But in a subsequent case, where one of two joint drawers of a bill of exchange became bankrupt, and under this commission the indorsee proved a debt (beyond the amount of the bill) for goods sold, &c. and they excepted a bill as a security they then held for their debt, and afterwards received a dividend; it was held, that in an action by the indorsees of the bill against the solvent partner, the statute of limitations was a good defence, although the dividend had been paid by the assignees of the bankrupt partner within six years (g).

What Acknowledgment in Writing is now required. *613]

The conflicting decisions on the former statute of limitations occasioned the passing of the 9 Geo. 4, c. 14, since which act no verbal acknowledgment or promise is any longer available, even against the *party making it; and a written acknowledgment or promise must be signed by the party himself, and not by an agent(h), and a perfect written acknowledgment will affect

(a) Pittam v. Foster, I Bar. & Cres. 248; 2

Dow. & Ry. 363, (Chit. j. 1169).
(b) Atkins v. Tredgold, 2 Bar. & Cres. 23; $ Dow. & Ry. 200, (Chit. j. 1183); and see Slater v. Lawson, 1 B. & Ad. 396; post, 615, note (t); Ex parte Woodward, 3 Mont. & Ayr. 609, 614.

(c) Holme v. Green, 1 Stark. R. 488, (Chit. j. 980).

(d) Leaper v. Tatton, 16 East, 420, (Chit.

(e) Easterby v. Pullen, 3 Stark. R. 186.

(Chit. j. 1163); and see the decisions in the Court of King's Bench in Easter and Trinity Terms, 1827.

(f) Jackson v. Fairbank, 2 H. Bla. 340, (Chit. j. 527); but see next note.

(g) Brandram v. Wharton, 1 Bar. & Ald. 463, (Chit. j. 1024); and see Ex parte Woodward, 3 Mont. & Ayr. 609, 615.

(h) Hyde v. Johnson, 2 Bing. N. C. 776, S. C.; 3 Scott, 289; 2 Hodges, 94; Irving v. Veitch, 3 M. & W. 98; post, 616, note (d).

.

1.

. him

100

. 9:3

15.00

مخلعه والأرابا

ملاعبة إوا

غو ۾ ۾

تسته إداءه

11 147

, . . Z

11.5

ور الادر.

ji Ba W Far K IK only the party who made it, and not a partner or third person(i)(1). Nor II. Of the will an unstamped promissory note be receivable in evidence to take a case Pleas. out of the statute (j). But if there has been a sufficient signed acknowledg. Statute of ment or promise in writing, and it has been lost, it should seem that parol Limitaevidence of its contents would be admissible (k).

The statute 9 Geo. 4, c. 14, is silent with respect to the terms or lan-knowledgguage of the written acknowledgment, and therefore recourse must be had to ment in the principle and to the cases before that act(l), to ascertain what acknow- Writing ledgment would be sufficient, and what shall be deemed conditional only. is now required. The written acknowledgment must contain an unqualified admission of the debt from which a promise may be inferred (m)(2); or if qualified or conditional, the event on which the payment was to be made must be shewn to have happened, as where the promise is to pay to him when able, the ability to pay must be averred and proved (n)(3). A promise in writing to pay the and another, 3 Car. & P. 83.

(j) Jones v. Ryder, 4 M. & W. 32; ante, 609, note (e).

(k) Haydon v. Williams, 7 Bing. 163; 4 Moore & P. 811, S. C.; see Waters v. Tompkins, 2 C., M. & R. 723; post, 615, note (y).

(1) See them collected, Stark. on Evid. vol. ii. 892 to 899; 2 Saunders, by Patteson and W. 63 to 64; 3 Bing. 331; Chitty's Col. Stat.

(m) Per Lord Tenterden, in Tanner v. Smart, 6 Bar. & Cres. 603; 9 Dow. & Ry. 549, (Chit. j. 1471).

(n) Laing v. Mackenzie, 4 Car & P. 463. A. having become bankrupt in August, 1819, wrote in November, 1826, a letter to B., in which he spoke of a debt of 981. 15s. due from him to B., and said inter alia as follows:—
"By the end of next month I shall have my bankers' account here, and I shall remit the sum due to you in a draft on them:" it was held, in an action of indebitatus assumpsit by B. against A. for the sum mentioned, that the

(i) Ante, 605; and see Marten v. Bridges letter contained a sufficient promise to answer a plea of the statute of limitations, and also a plea of bankruptcy; and that to render the plea of bankruptcy applicable to the case, it must be shewn that the debt existed prior to the bankruptcy.

So a letter written by the defendant to the plaintiff within six years, stating " I can never be happy until I have not only paid you every thing but all to whom I owe money;" and ' your account is quite correct: and oh! that I were now going to enclose you the amount of it;" is evidence to go to the jury of an acknowledgment taking the case out of the statute of limitations: and it was held, that such promise, accompanied by this expression "it is impossible to state to you what will be done in my affairs at present; it is difficult to know what will be the best, but immediately it is settled you shall be informed;" is an absolute unconditional promise, and not a qualified or conditional promise; Dodson v. Mackey, 4 Nev. & Man 327. Though, it should seem, that proof of such letters together with proof of a

(1) A promise to a holder of a chose in action taking a case out of the statute of limitations is available in action by a subsequent holder. Soulden v. Van Rensselaer, 9 Wend. Rep. 233.

The principle clearly to be deduced from the decisions of this court on the statute of limitations, is, that in addition to the admission of a present subsisting debt, there must be either an express promise to pay, or circumstances from which an implied promise may fairly be presumed. Morse r. The Bank of Columbia, 6 Peters' Rep. 86.

And generally, as to what will or will not amount to a sufficient acknowledgment, see Pinkerton v. Bailey, 8 Wend. 600; Olcott v. Scales, 3 Verm. 173; Peebles v. Mason, 2 Dev. 367. Russell's Am'rs v. Gass, 1 Martin & Verger's Rep. 270. Frey v. Kirk, 4 Gill & John. 509. Rogers v. Waters, 2 Gill & Johns. Rep. 64. Gallagher v. Milligan, 3 Penn. Rep. 179. Church v. Feterow, 2 Penn. Rep. 301. Bradley v. Field, 3 Wend. 272. Jamison v. Lindsay, 4 McCord, 93. Falls v. McKnight, 3 Dev. Rep. 421. Buswell v. Roby, 3 N. Hamp. 467. Rice v. Wilder, 4 Idem, 836. Russell v. Copp, 5 Idem, 154. Dean v. Hewitt, 5 Wend. 257. Atwood v. Coburn, 4 Verm. 315. Read v. Hurd, 7 Wend. 408. Hancock v. Bliss, Idem, 267. (3) In debt on a promise grey note negotiable at bank, by holders, against independent the independent.

(3) In debt on a promissory note negotiable at bank, by holders against indorsers, the indorsor pleads the general issue, with leave to give the statute of limitations in evidence; and, at the trial, the plaintiffs prove a conditional promise made by the indorser to pay the debt, within the period of limitation. Held, such conditional promise does not suffice to take the case out of the statute, unless performance of the condition be shown. Farmers' Bank v. Clark, 4 Leigh's R. 603. { See post, 823, (60). }

⁽²⁾ The acknowledgment of a defendant, to take the case out of the operation of the statute of limitations, must be an unequivocal and positive recognition of a subsisting claim in favor of the plaintiff; it must be an admission of a previous subsisting debt which he is liable and willing to pay; and must not be accompanied by circumstances repelling the presumption of a promise to pay the debt. Purdy v. Austin, 3 Wend. Rep. 187. Stafford v. Bryan, 2 Paige's Chan. Rep. 45. S. C. 3 Wend, 532.

Limitations.

II. Of the balance due is enough *under this act to take the case out of the statute, although the writing does not express the amount of the balance; but if the whole evidence be proof of the writing, and of the original cause of action, Statute of the plaintiff can only recover nominal damages(o).

In an action on a promissory note, where the statute of limitations is pleaded, a letter expressed in ambiguous terms, not referring to the note sued upon, or to any other transaction in particular, is proper evidence to be left to the jury to determine whether it relates to the note, so as to amount to a sufficient acknowledgment to take the case out of the statute; and if the jury find that it does so relate, their verdict is conclusive (p). And where a letter acknowledging the existence of a debt, which is produced for the purpose of taking the case out of the statute of limitations, does not contain any date, the time when the letter was written may be supplied by parol evidence(q).

What a sufficient Part-payment to take Case tute.

Although the 9 Geo. 4, c. 14, has altered the law respecting verbal promises, and prevents them from taking a case out of the statute of limitations, it seems to leave the authority of the decisions relating to the payment of prinout of Sta- bill drawn more than six years ago by the plaintiff on the defendant, and accepted by the latter, will not entitle the plaintiff to recover more than nominal damages; id. ibid; and see infra, note (o).

But in another case the following acknowledgment, "I cannot pay the debt at present, but I will pay it as soon as I can," was holden not sufficient to entitle the plaintiff to a verdict, no proof having been given of the defendant's ability to pay; Tanner v. Smart, 6 Bar. & Cres. 603; 9 Dow. & Ry. 549, (Chit j. 1471); Scales v. Jacobs, 3 Bing. 638, S. P.; Burrough and Park, J. dissentiente.

So where in an action on a promissory note payable with interest, the words in the letter acknowledging the debt were, "I shall be most happy to pay you both interest and principal as soon as convenient," it was held, that this was a conditional promise, and that the plaintiff was bound to give some evidence to shew that the defendant was able to pay or that it was convenient for him to do so; Edmunds v. Downes, 2 C. & M. 459; 4 Tyrw. 173, S. C. It is sufficient, however, in the case of a conditional promise to declare as upon an absolute promise, where there is evidence of the condition having been performed; see per Parke, B. in Irving c. Veitch, 3 M. & W. 112, 113.

Fearne r. Lewis, 4 Car. & P. 173; 6 Bing. 343; 4 Moore & P. 1, (Chit. j 1471). Assumpsit on a bill, plea, statute of limitations. Two letters written by defendant were proved, to take the case out of the statute, addressed to a third person; the first stated that defend-ant should be much obliged to plaintiff to withdraw his outlawry, and added, that as soon as his situation would allow, the plaintiff 's claim, with others, should receive that attention that, as an honourable man, he considered them to deserve. The second letter expressed his readiness to do any thing to satisfy the plaintiff and all his creditors. No evidence was given of any proceeding to outlawry hav-ing been taken with respect to the debt the plaintiff sought to recover. It was held at Nisi Prius (the trial being since the 9 Geo. 4.

c. 14,) that under these circumstances the letters were not sufficiently connected with that debt to entitle the plaintiff to a verdict, and he was nonsuited, but leave was given for a mo-tion to set aside the nonsuit. On application afterwards to the Court of Common Pleas, the nonsuit was confirmed, and a rule nisi for setting it aside was refused, and the court said, that the letters did not amount to an unqualifiel acknowledgment from which the court could imply a sufficient promise to pay to take the case out of the statute; and see Haydon v. Williams, 7 Bing. 168; 4 M. & P. 811, S. C.

(o) Dickinson v. Hatfield, 1 Mood. & Rob. 141; 5 Car. & P. 46, S. C.; and see Dodson v. Mackay, 4 N. & M. 327; ante, 613, note (n), as to damages.

Dabbs v. Humphreys, 4 Moore & S. 295; 10 Bing. 446, S. C. Assumpsit for the balance of a bill of exchange. Plea the statute of limitations. In order to take the case out of the statute, a letter was given in evidence, written by the defendant to the plaintiff, in which the defendant said "I cannot send you the 201., I have no money by me now, nor shall I have till after the fair; your better way will be to give up that bill which you hold, and draw another for 301. 9s. 9d. which will be the balance of the account, which shall be honoured when due:" held, that this was a sufficient acknowledgment to take the case out of the statute: the jury having found that the balance spoken of in the letter related to the bill in question.

(p) Frost r. Bengough, 8 Moore, 180; I Bing. 266; I Law J. 96, C. P. Where a letter which is put in to take a case out of the statute, contains a clear admission of an existing cause of action, a judge is warranted in telling the jury, "that after such letter the statute is out of the question," provided he do not altogether withdraw the letter from their consideration; Colledge v. Horn, 10 Moore, 431; 3 Bing. 119, S. C.

(q) Edmunds v. Downes, 2 C. & M. 459; 4 Tyrw. 173, S. C.

Digitized by Google

hi:

-,-

14 S 174

A 11 4

. ... 21

8 (15 B

·~ 50

A . 1-1

ه يو ي اين سي ،

 $V_{k}(\underline{X},\underline{Y})^{\bullet}$

W 12 2 34

المحاول معواني.

14. 12. 15

, i, y b

Sec. 24.21

m 1

. .4 %

· : 56

. ,,

المسين

المخديد ila, ila a

e 19 09 %

ع وصورا ا . , 34

× A t_{it}

cipal or interest unaffected, and therefore recourse must still be had to those II. Of the decisions. Actual payment of a part of the principal-money or of interest Pleas. made by any person whatever, having authority to pay, and whether on a Statute of joint or several bill or note, would as well before as since the act take the tions. case out of the statute as against all persons living, and sui juris at the What a time such payment was made(r). The legislature considered that a pay-sufficient ment of any part *of the principal-money or interest is so substantial an ad- Part-paymission of liability that it might be well admitted as an exception to the necessity for requiring a written admission, and it was not considered that it is out of as easy to swear falsely that the defendant made a small payment, as that he Statute. promised to pay(s). But after the death of one maker of a joint and seve- [*615] ral promissory note signed by two, a payment upon it by the executor of the deceased party will not take the case out of the statute of limitations as against the survivor, because the joint contract was served by the death, and therefore the payment could only operate upon the separate contract(t)(1). where a joint and several note was signed by S., to whose signature there was a subscribing witness, and afterwards by the defendant as surety for S., and the defendant, being sued alone on the note, pleaded the statute of limitations, and at the trial, to take the case out of the statute, it was proved that a person named S. had made payments on the note, evidence, but not

(r) Burleigh r. Stott, 8 Bar. & Cres. 36; 2 Man. & Ry. 93; Dans. & Ll. 53, (Chit. j. 1380); Pease v. Hirst, 10 Bar. & Cres. 122, (Chit. j. 1456).

Burleigh and others v. Stott, 8 Bar. & Cres. 86. To an action upon a joint and several promissory note of A. and B. (the latter being a mere surety) brought by payee against the administrator of B., the defendant pleaded that the cause of action did not accrue within six years, upon which the plaintiff took issue. The plaintiff proved that within six years, and during the life-time of B., A. made a payment on account of the note. B. afterwards died. Held, that such payment operated as a new promise by B. to pay according to the nature of the instrument, and that his administrator was liable on the note. In this case the payment was made within six years from the contracting of the debt, and, consequently, before debt barred; see Ex parte Woodward, 3 Mont. & Ayr. 609, 615. But this makes no difference; Channell r. Ditchburn, 5 M. & W. 494; post, 616, note (f).

And see Pease r. Hirst, 10 Bar. & Cres. 122; 5 Mun. & Ry. 88, (Chit. j. 1546). Payment of part of the principal or of the interest within six years, by A., the principal, on a joint and several promissory note, is a sufficient acknowledgment by all the makers of the note (though the rest; were mere sureties) to take the case out of the statute. S. P. ruled by Parke, J. in Chippendale v. Thurston, Mood. & M. 411; 4 Car. & P. 98, (Chit. j. 1468); and see Perham v. Raynal and another, 2 Bing. 306; 9 Moore, 566, S. C.; Bealy v. Greenslade, 2 C. & J. 61, S. C.; 2 Tyr. 121; 10 Law J. 1, Exch.; Wyatt v. Hodson, 1 Moore & S. 442; 8 Bing. 309, S. C.; and cases in the following notes.

(s) Instances of such perjury have occurred since the act 9 Geo. 4, c. 14.

(t) Slater v. Lawson, 1 B. & Adol. 396, (Ch. j 1508). Lord Tenterden, C. J. now delivered the judgment of the court: "It appears to us that this case is not essentially different from Atkins v. Tredgold, 2 Bar. & Cres. 23; 3 Dow. & Ry. 200, (Chit. j. 1183); ante, 612, note (b). There the action being against the executor of a deceased contractor, the payment relied upon to take the debt out of the statute of limitations was made by the surviving contractor; here in an action against the survivor, the payment proved is by the executrix of the one deceased. But the same principal appears to us applicable in both cases, and we think that where a joint contract is severed by the death of one of the contractors, nothing can be done by the personal representative of the other to take the debt out of the statute as against the survivor. The contract here was severed by the death of Warwick, and the act of his executrix could not bind the defendant." Rule re-

An acknowledgment, by a personal representative of a deceased person, that a demand against the estate of the deceased, barred by the statute of limitations, is due, will not take the case out of the statute. Peck v. Botsford, 7 Conn. Rep. 172.

To make an acknowledgment of a person sued as administrator, available to take a note drawn by his intestate, out of the statute of limitations, it should be shown that he was administrator at the time of the alleged acknowledgment. Larason v. Lambert, 7 Halst. 247.

⁽¹⁾ In the case of a joint and several note made by two promissors, a partial payment made within six years by the administrator of one of them, will not take the note out of the statute of limitations as against the remaining promissor. Hathaway v. Haskell, 9 Pick. Rep. 42.

Pleas. Limitations.

What a sufficient Part-payment to take Case out of Stat-

II. Of the that of the subscribing witness, having been offered to shew that the name S. on the note was in the hand-writing of the party who made the payment, it Statute of was held, that this could not be proved without calling the subscribing witness, and that without such proof there was no prima facie case in answer to the plea(u). And in order to take a case out of the statute by a part payment, it must appear that the payment was made on account of the debt for which the action is brought, and that it was made as part payment of a larger debt; because the principle upon which a part-payment takes a case out of the statute is, that it admit a larger debt to be due at the time of the part-payment: unless it amounts to an admission that more is due, it cannot operate as an admission of any still existing debt(x). The appropriation, however, of such part-payment of principal, or of payment of interest, to a particular debt, may be shewn by any medium of proof, and does not require an express declaration of the debtor at the time of the payment to establish it; it may, therefore, be proved by previous or subsequent declarations of the debtor, although the fact of the payment must be proved by independent evidence(y), and a mere verbal admission on the part of the debtor that he has made a part-payment within six years will not be sufficient (z). though where a debtor owes his creditor some debts from a period longer than six years, and others from a period within six years, and pays a sum ment on account, to take out of the statute the debts due longer than six years, yet the creditor may, at any time before action, apply such payment [*616] without appropriating it to any particular debt, such payment is not *a payto the debts due longer than six years(a).

And if the parties to a bill of exchange agree that goods shall be supplied Delivery of Goods. in part payment, and they are supplied and taken accordingly, that is part payment, so as to prevent the operation of the statute(b).

Where a debtor draws a bill of exchange to be applied in part payment Delivery of of the debt, and the bill is paid when due by the drawee to the creditor, it operates as part payment to defeat the statute from the time of the delivery of the bill by the debtor, and not from the time of its payment; the delivery of the bill being the fact from which the implied promise to pay the residue of the debt is to be inferred(c). And a mere agent on whom such bill is drawn cannot, by paying it, make such an acknowledgment as will prevent the operation of the statute in favour of the principal (d).

Payment of Money

Payment of money into court on a count on a promissory note payable by into Court. instalments, is only an admission by the defendant that money to the amount paid in was due on the promissory note, it does not bar the statute of limitations as to the further sum claimed to be due on the same note(e).

> (u) Wylde v. Porter, 1 Adol. & Ellis, 742; itor at the time, is to be applied to the more 3 Nev. & Man. 585, S. C.

(x) Tippets v. Heane, 1 C., M. & R. 252; Waters v. Tompkins, 2 C, M. & R. 723; 1 Tyrw. & G. 137, S. C.
(y) Waters v. Tompkins, 2 C., M. & R. 723;

1 Tyrw. & G. 137, S. C.

(z) Willis v. Newham, 3 Younge & Jer.

(a) Mills r. Fowkes, 5 Bing. N. C. 455; 7 Scott, 444, S. C. See the judgment of Tindal, C. J. where the principle of the civil law, that a general payment not appropriated by the credburdensome of two debts, is denied to be the rule of our law. And see generally as to the application of payments, ante, 402 to 408.

(b) Hart r. Nash, 2 C., M. & R. 337; and see Hooper v. Stephens, 7 C. & P. 260.
(c) Irving v. Veitch, 3 M. & W. 90, 98.

(d) Id. ibid; and see Hyde v. Johnson, 2 Bing. N. C. 776; 8 Scott, 289; 2 Hodges, 94.

(e) Reid r. Dickons, 5 Bar & Adol. 499; 2 Nev. & Man. 869, S. C.

11

.* -

. . .

1 85.

1. ...

: 1.

1000

1,500

S. C.

. 2

C1. 33.7

, . . y y

......

100

1 40

J page 1

in 10.1

-4 ° . 3

Payment of interest by one of two makers of a joint and several promis- II. Of the sory note, though made more than six years after it became due, is sufficient Pleas. to take the case out of the statute of limitations as against the other (f); and Statute of the statute 9 Geo. 4, c. 14, has not altered the law in this respect; and if Limitations. this interest was one of the items in an account of which the party paid the What a balance, that is a sufficient payment of interest(g). And where A. and B. sufficient had given a joint promissory note for 600l. to C. it was held in an action by Payment of C. against A. and B. that an account in which B., as between himself and Interest to take C., took credit for interest upon a sum of 600l., was evidence to oust the Case out of statute of limitations (h). So if A. and B. sign a formal promissory note, Statute. by which they promise, "as churchwardens and overseers," to pay C. or order a sum, with interest, which sum is in fact the amount of a loan made by C. for the use of the parish, the payment of interest on such note from time to time by the vestry is sufficient to take the case out of the statute; and a fortiori, where B. has audited the parish accounts, in which payments of interest on the note are entered(i)(1). And in an action on a promissory note bearing interest, proof that the defendant, being sent to by the plaintiff for money, paid 11. and said, "this puts us straight for last year's interest all but 18s., some day next week I will bring that up," is a sufficient answer to a plea of the statute of *limitations, no evidence being given of any other [*617] debt due from the defendant to plaintiff (j).

Payment of interest upon a promissory note by the makers to the personal representative of the payee, within six years before the commencement of the action, is a sufficient acknowledgment to take the case out of the statute of limitations, although the letters of administration, under which the party to whom the payments were made claims, were not obtained in the diocese in which the note was bona notabilia(k). And if trustees for the payment of legacies at a distant period lend to a third person, on his promissory note, a portion of the money appropriated to the payment of the legacies, a payment by such third person of interest, or of part of the principal, to the legatees will be sufficient to take the case out of the statute in an action by the trustees on the note (l).

The interest due on a promissory note made payable with interest cannot be treated as constituting a distinct and substantive cause of action, and, therefore, where the declaration stated that the defendant, sixteen years before, delivered his promissory note payable on demand with interest, to the plaintiff, but neglected to pay, except interest, which he paid up to a day within six years, a plea that the cause of action did not accrue within six years, was held sufficient (m); the allegation as to the payment of interest being prematurely introduced into the declaration, and at most amounting to matter of evidence.

We have seen, that an indorsement or memorandum in the hand-writing Indorse. of the holder of the bill or note, of the receipt of interest, or of part of the ment, &c.

ment.

```
(f) Channell v. Ditchburn, 5 M. & W. 494; Ad. & El. 196, S. C.
3 Jurist, 1107, S. C.
(g) Chippendale v. Thurston, 4 Car. & P. 98; Mood. & M. 441, (Chit. j. 1468); Ex parte Woodward, 3 Mont. & Ayr. 609, 614.
```

(j) Evans v. Davies, 4 Ad. & Ellis, 840. (k) Clarke v. Hooper, 4 Moore & S. 353;

10 Bing. 480, S. C.
(1) Megginson v. Harper, 2 C. & M. 822; 4
Tyrw. 94, S. C.

(m) Hollis v. Palmer, 2 Bing. N. C. 713; 8 Scott, 265; 2 Hodges, 55, S. C.

⁽h) Mandertson v. Robertson, 4 M. & R. 440, (Chit. j. 1435).

⁽i) Crew r. Petit, 3 Nev. & Man. 456; 1

II. Of the Pleas.

Statute of Limitations.

Statute of Limitations.

And if a witness, who says he settled all kind of accounts for the defendant, admit that an account containing a memorandum of a payment of interest on the part of the defendant is in his own hand-writing, but says he cannot recollect the fact of payment (p).

In Equity. In courts of equity it is considered, that when real estates are devised in trust for the payment of debts, in aid of the personal estate, the statute of limitations does not run after the death of the testator(q); nor does it run after the death of the testator in case of a trust or charge for the payment of debts(r). So under a commission of bankruptcy, which constitutes a trust for the benefit of all creditors, debts otherwise barred by the statute may be proved(s). But a devise for the payment of debts does not revive a debt upon which the statute of limitations had previously taken effect, by the expiration of the time *before the testator's death(t)(1). And sometimes when proceedings at law have been delayed or suspended by proceedings in equity, the latter court will prevent the defendant from availing himself of the plea of the statute of limitations(u)(2).

Foreign law(x).

It has been held, that with respect to simple contracts not under seal, whatever may be the law of a foreign country, or of Scotland, where they were made, yet if they be sued upon in England, the English statute of limitations (six years) will in general apply(y); though a different doctrine is

(n) 9 Geo. 4, c. 14, s. 3; ante, 609.

(a) Smith v. Battens, 1 Mood. & Rob. 341; Anderson v. Weston, 6 Bing. N. C. 296, 302, 303

(p) Trentham v. Deverell, 3 Bing. N. C.

397; 4 Scott, 128, S. C.

(q) Hughes v. Wynne, 1 Turn. & R. 307; See Chitty's Eq. Dig. tit. Trust to pay Debts, and Limitations, Statute of.

(r) Hargreaves v. Mitchell, 6 Madd. 326. (s) Ex parte Ross, in re Coles, 2 Glyn & Jam. 336; but see Ex parte Dewdney, 15 Ves.

(t) Burke v. Jones, 2 Ves. & B. 275, over-ruling Bac. Ab. tit Limitations.

(u) Sirdefield v. Price, 2 Younge & J. 73. On a bill by a creditor against an executor for payment of his demand, and an account of the testator's estate, the court, in consequence of some doubt respecting the validity of the debt, retained the bill for a year, with liberty for the plaintiff to bring an action; and the statute of limitations having taken effect between the filing of the bill and the decree, the court restrained the defendant from insisting at law on the benefit of that statute; and see Bac. Ab. tit. Limitations, E. 6; 2 Ch. Ca. 217; 2 Vern. 73,

74. Sed quære, the general practice is, for a court of equity not thus to interfere, and there must be some special circumstance to justify any interference.

(x) See ante, 167 to 172, 225, 226.

(y) Ante, 170; The British Linen Company v. Drummond, 10 Bar. & Cres. 903; cited in De la Vega v. Vianna, 1 B. & Ad. 284; Huber v. Steiner, 2 Bing. N. C. 202; and see Hawkes v. Borwich, 1 Younge & J. 376, (Chit. j. 1333).

In Hay and another v. Fisher, 2 M. & W. 722, which was an action to recover the amount of a bill of exchange drawn by the plaintiffs upon and accepted by the defendants in Scotland, more than six years before the commencement of the action; the plaintiffs, to bar the statute of limitations, introduced a count stating the drawing and acceptance of the bill, and setting forth at length the making and registering of a protest of non-payment in the court of session in Scotland, and the issuing and executing of letters of horning and poinding on the defendant, charging him to make payment of the amount of the bill and interest to the plaintiffs, according to the law of Scotland, and his default thereto; and alleging, that by virtue of the ⁽¹⁾ A clause in a will directing all the just debts of the testator to be paid, will not save a debt barred by the statute of limitations from the operation of that statute. Peck v. Botsford, 7 Con. 172.

⁽²⁾ The statute of limitations is a good plea in bar in equity as well at law. Stafford v. Bryan, 1 Paige's Chan. Rep. 239. Lewis et al. v. Marshall, 5 Peters' Rep. 407.

1 : 2 1

: . 1

2 10 91

440

1 At 12

40 2

0.0

Ji 1

. 18 3 3

100 g de te graph (B)

oso Marie

. . 5

22 126

1111

.. % . . ~9* التمار 3.6

10.4

· · / / / **

". ₫ -4 ·5

entertained in France(z). In France, the time within which proceedings 11. Of the must be commenced against the drawer and indorsers on a bill, is five years, Pleas. and three years in the case of a lost bill(a). By the 189th article of the Statute of Code de Commerce it is declared that "all actions relative to letters of exchange and to bills to order, subscribed by merchants, tradesmen, or bankers, or for matters of commerce, are prescribed (se prescrivent) by five law. years, if the debt has not been acknowledged by an 'acte séparé:' nevertheless the supposed debtors shall be held, if required, to affirm upon oath that they are no longer indebted; and their widows, heirs, or representatives, that they bona fide believe that there is nothing more due:" This prescription merely operates in bar of the remedy, and not as an extinguishment of the [ 619] right or contract itself; but a special plea setting up this prescription as an absolute bar, without qualification, is bad, the article containing an exception, that the debt is not "acknowledged by an acte sipar $\ell(b)$." In an action on a promissory note drawn in a foreign country, and due about twenty years since, the defendant pleaded the statute of limitations, and the plaintiff replied that he resided abroad until within six years of the commencement of the The court afterwards (upon terms) allowed the defendant to add a plea setting up a provision of the law of the country where the note was made and the parties resided, similar in its effect to the statute of limitations(c)(1).

several premises the defendant became liable to pay the plaintiffs the amount of the bill with interest, and being so liable promised to pay the same: at the trial Mr. Mackenzie, a Scotch advocate, who was examined for the plaintiffs, as to the proceedings necessary in such a case, by the law of Scotland, to bar the statute of prescription, 12 Geo. 3, c. 72, (continued by 23 Geo. 3, c. 18,) stated that, according to the Scotch law, a bill of exchange is usually protested on the third day of grace, or, against the acceptor, within six months from that day; then the protest may immediately be recorded in the books of the court of session, or of the sheriff, and thereupon a warrant of execution may be immediately issued from the court of sessions against the debtor. If no action is raised, or execution issued, within six years from the last day of grace, the bill is affected by the statute of limitations; but if diligence is raised and executed, or action commenced, within the six years, the statute of limitations is barred, and the party may commence an action at any time within forty years. The witness then described the forms of the process of diligence by protest, registering the same in the books of court, and the issuing and execution of the letters of horning and poinding; and stated that the diligence is complete, so as to bar the prescription, when the debtor has been charged by the messenger to make payment, and of which charge the legal evidence is the return of the officer written on the letters of horning. On cross examination be said, that the original protest recorded in court was held to be a judgment, and the judgment was complete upon the registration: held, that such count did not disclose a sufficient cause of action as upon a judgment in Scotland, as it did not aver either that the registration was equivalent to a judgment or decree, or that there was a judgment or decree.

(z) 4 Pardess. 223; ante, 171, note (e).

(a) 1 Pardess. 436, 442.

(b) Huber v. Steiner, 2 Scott, 304; 2 Bing. N. C. 202; 1 Hodges, 206, S. C.

(c) Huber v. Steiner, 4 Moore & Scott, 828; 2 Dowl P. C. 781.

⁽¹⁾ The following statement of the time within which actions upon bills, &c. must be procecuted, after the right to bring them accrues, in the states below mentioned, may not be wholly unuseful. The periods of limitation in the different states are indicated by the number of years specified in connection with their respective names. Vermont, 6 years on notes not attested by one witness or more, and 14 years on notes thus attested. New-Hampshire, 6 years. Connecticut, 17 years, on specialties and promissory notes not negotiable; 6 years, on negotiable notes. Rhode Island, 6 years. New-York, 6 years. North Carolina, 8 years. Pennsylvania, 6 years. Virginia, 5 years. Ohio, 6 years. Illinois, 5 years. Georgia, 6 years. Iadiana, 5 years. Massachusetts, 6 years. Witnessed notes, when suit is between original parties, are left at common law. Alabama, 6 years; specialties, 16 years; ordinary accounts, 8 years. Missouri, 5 years. Mississippi, 6 years; specialties, 16 years. In Louisiana, all personal actions may be presented against after 80 years; those payments generally which are to be made by the year may be presented against in 5 years; bills and notes would seem to have thirty years to run. Tennessee, 8 years, on bills, &c.; 2 years, on accounts proved by plaintiff, and 5, on those proved by witnesses. South Carolina, 4 years. Maryland, 3 years. Maine, 6 years. Delaware, 8 years. Kentucky, 5 years. New Jersey, 6 years. Griffith's Register, passim.

ł

II. Of the Pleas. Bankruptey and Insolvency.

The defences under the Bankrupt and Insolvent Acts will be considered in a subsequent chapter (d). These defences, even before the new rules, must have been pleaded, and could not have been given in evidence under the general issue, though it sufficed to plead the defendant's discharge generally(e); and the principal on which this rule proceeded was, that the discharge was a statutory answer to the plaintiff's demand, and did not go to the destruction of the debt(f).

III. Of the Replication.

To Plea of

tion, &c.

III. OF THE REPLICATION.

WE have seen that a general plea of want of consideration will be bad on special demurrer (g), but if instead of demurring the plaintiff take issue upon Considera- the want of consideration, it will be sufficient to reply generally that there was a sufficient consideration; thus, where to a declaration on a bill of exchange by the indorsee against the acceptor the defendant pleaded that no value or consideration had been given for the successive indorsements, and the plaintiff replied that his immediate indorser did not indorse the bill without value or consideration for so doing, but that he took it for a good and valuable consideration, concluding to the country; it was held, on special demurrer, that the replication was sufficient, and that it was not necessary to state the nature of the consideration (h). So, to a plea by the acceptor of a bill of exchange, that it was, to the knowledge of the holder, negotiated by fraud, and that no consideration was given for the indorsement to the holder, it is sufficient for the holder to reply generally that he had no notice of the fraud, and that the bill was indorsed to him for a good consideration(i).

Where in an action on a bill of exchange the defendant pleaded a plea of want of consideration, concluding with a verification, and the plaintiff, in-

(d) Post, Chap. VIII. (ε) See Chitty on Pleading, 6th edit. vol. i.
 479; Bircham v. Creighton, 3 Moore & S.

345; 10 Bing. 11, S. C. (f) Per Tindal, C. J. in Bircham r. Creighton, 3 Moore & S. 348.

(g) Ante, 602, 603.

(h) Prescott v. Levi, 1 Scott, 726; 3 Dowl. 403, S. C.

(i) Bramah v. Roberts, 1 Bing. N. C. 469; 1 Scott, 350, S. C.

It is a well settled principle that the statute of limitations does not run against a state. Lindslev et al. v. Miller, 6 Peter's Rep. 666. Treasurer v. Weeks, 4 Vermont Rep. 315.

The disability of marriage cannot be added to the prior disability of infancy, to avoid the operation of the statute. Carlisle v. Stiller, 1 Penn. Rep. 6.

It is a well settled principle, that a statute of limitations is the law of the forum, and operates upon all who submit themselves to its jurisdiction. M'Clunny v. Silliman, 3 Peters' Rep. 276.

A plea of the statute of limitations of the State where the contract is made, is no bar to a suit brought in a foreign tribunal to enforce the contract; but a plea of the statute of limitations of the State where the suit is brought, is a good bar. Lincoln v. Battelle, 6 Wend. Rep. 475.

Whether accounts between copartners are in any case barred by the statute of limitations?

Qu. Nair v. Ragland, 1 Devereux's Eq. Rep. 533.

It seems, that a plea of the statute of limitations would be a bar to an action by the second indorser against the first indorser, for monies paid after the statute of limitations had actually run as against the defendant. Wright v. Butler, 6 Wend. Rep. 284.

Where a debt was contracted in a foreign country, between subjects thereof, who remained there until the debt became barred by the law of limitations of such country, it was held, that our statute of limitations could not be pleaded in bar to an action upon the debt, brought within six years after the parties came into this commonwealth. Bulger r. Roche, 11 Pick. Rep. 36.

Where a legacy to a daughter was payable on her marriage, or when she became of age, and she married before arriving at full age, in a suit brought by her and her husband for the legacy, after the lapse of six years, it was held, that the statute of limitations did not run against her, she coming within the exception in the statute in favor of femes covert. Wood and wife v. The executors of Riker, 1 Paige's Chan. Rep. 616.

it'!

17.50

. 2.

. **....

. 2001

A 40 1

3,6

stead of replying by taking issue on the plea, merely added the similiter, the III. Of the court, after verdict for the plaintiff, held that the record was imperfect and Replicathat there must be a repleader, but to save expense the plaintiff was allowed to amend on payment of costs(k). And if in an action on a bill of exchange, where there is a plea that there was no consideration, it appear at the trial that the plaintiff has not put any replication on the record, the judge will not allow any *replication to be added at the assizes without the consent of the [*620] defendant, but will order the case to be struck out of the list(l).

Although formerly the replication de injuria seems to have been consider- De Injued as applicable to cases of tort only, yet a different doctrine now prevails, riz. and if in an action on a bill or note the defendant plead mere matter of excuse for the non-performance of his contract, the replication de injurid will be proper(m)(1). Thus in an action by the payee of a promissory note against the maker, a plea that the note was made and delivered to the plaintiff in consideration of money and goods then agreed to be thereafter lent and supplied by the plaintiff to the defendant, but that the plaintiff had not lent or supplied the money and goods, and that the defendant had not received any other consideration for the note, a replication that the defendant broke his promise, without the cause in his plea in that behalf alleged, has been held good on special demurrer; nor is the omission in such replication of the words "of his own wrong," any ground of special demurrer(n). But if the (k) Wordsworth v. Brown, 3 Dowl. 689.

(1) Rowlinson v. Roantre, 6 Car. & P. 551. (m) Isaac v. Farrar, 1 M. & W. 65; S. C. 1 Tyrw. & G. 281; 4 Dowl. P. C. 750; 1 Gale, 385; Griffin v. Yates, 2 Bing. N. C. 579; 8. C. 2 Scott, 845; 4 Dowl. P. C. 647; 1

Hodges, 387; and cases in the following notes. (n) Watson v. Wilks, 5 Ad. & Ellis, 237; 6 Nev. & Man. 752; see Noel v. Rich, 2 C., M. & R. 360; S. C. 4 Dowl. P. C. 228; 1 Gale, 225.

Isaac v. Farrar, 1 M. & W. 65. Assumpsit by the indorsee against the maker of a promissory note for 250%, payable three months after date to the maker's order, and by him indorsed to one H. R. who indorsed it to the plaintiff. The plea began by stating that an advertisement had been inserted in a newspaper offering money to be lent upon personal security, on application to Mr. A, 12 Fludyer street, Westminster; and that in consequence of that advertisement the defendant called at that place and saw A., and in consequence of representations made to him by A., he, the defendant, was induced to and did draw and deliver to A. two promissory notes, by each of which the defendant promised to pay to his own order the sum of 2501. three months after the date thereof, (one of them being the note in the declaration mentioned,) upon the faith of and promise from A. that the said notes should be renewed when due, for the space of two years; and that he should receive from the said A., on a certain day, to wit, the Friday then next following, being, to wit, the first of May, 1835, the amount of the said notes, deducting discount and stamp. And the defendant averred that the said A. did not, either on Friday, the 1st of May, 1835, or at any other time, although often requested, pay to the defendant the amount of the said notes, deducting as aforesaid, or any sum of money whatever, but on the contrary thereof that he, the said defendant, on the 1st day of May, 1835, by appointment of the said A., went to the said place, to wit, 12, Fludyer street, but the said A. was not, nor was any such person, either then or at any time afterwards there to be found; and that the said transaction was a gross fraud and imposition upon him the defendant; and that the note was indorsed to the plaintiff without consideration, and that he held the same without value or consideration, and that there never was any consideration or value on the said note between any parties thereto. The plea then went on to aver that H. R. and the plaintiff, at the respective times when the note was so indorsed to them respectively, were privy to and had full knowledge and notice of the said transaction in the plea detailed, and of the said fraud and imposition, concluding with a verification. To this plea the plaintiff replied de injurii. It was held, on special demurrer, that the replication was good, inasmuch as the plea amounted only to matter of excuse for the non-performance of the promise, and to one ground of defence only.

Reynolds r. Blackburn, 7 Ad. & Ellis, 161; 2 Nev. & P. 136; 6 Dowl. 19, S. C. Assumpsit by indorsee against acceptor of a bill of exchange. Plea, that the bill was accepted for accommodation of the drawer, that after the bills were due the drawer give plaintiff, and plaintiff accepted from him, other bills of exchange of larger amount, and plaintiff agreed, in consideration thereof, to give the drawer time as to the bills now sucd upon for three months,

^{(1) {} See also to the same point, Humfreys v. O'Cornell, 5 Jurist, 271. }

III. Of the *defence set up be not mere matter of excuse, as if it be in discharge or denial of the plaintiff's right of action, then the replication de injurid will be It is now settled, however, that if the replication de injuria be improperly replied, the objection can only be taken advantage of on special demurrer(p).

To a plea of payment of a certain sum in satisfaction and discharge of the To Plea of Accord defendant's promise, the plaintiff may take issue as well upon the payment and Satisin satisfaction, as upon the receipt in satisfaction(q). But where to an acfaction. tion on a promissory note the defendant pleaded, that after the making the note the plaintiff drew a bill on the defendant, which the defendant accepted, and plaintiff received in satisfaction of the note, and the plaintiff replied that he did not draw, that the defendant did not accept, and that the plaintiff did not receive the bill in satisfaction, the court refused to set aside a demurrer to the replication as frivolous, upon an affidavit that the plea was totally And a general replication of de injuria to a plea of accord and

Where to a declaration against the defendant as the maker of a promisso-To Plee of Release. ry note, the defendant pleaded that the note was a joint and several note by defendant and A., and that A. had been released, and the plaintiff replied, that A. had been so released at the defendant's request, and that the defendant, in consideration of such release at his request, ratified the promise in > and until default in payment of the new bills; that the new bills were given and received in payment of the bills now declared upon, and that the agreement was unknown to defendant. Replication de injuri? Demurrer on the ground that the replication attempted to put in issue more than one matter of defence: held, that the defendant having, up on his own shewing, set up the two matters of defence in his pleu, could not take this objection: held also by Patteson, J. that the replication of de injuria here was not bad as pleaded to a plea partly in denial, for that the plea contained no denial.

>
> Quære, whether in an action of assumpsit, satisfaction is bad(s).

where the plaintiff does not reply de injurià generally to the facts stated in the plea, the circumstance of his only taking issue on one of them entitles the jury to treat the facts alleged in the plea, and not denied in the replication, as admitted; Noel v. Boyd, 4 Dowl. P. C. 415.

(o) See Solly v. Neish, 2 C., M. & R. 355; Whittaker v. Edmonds, 2 Bing. N. C. 859; S.

C. 2 Scott, 567; 1 Hodges, 318.

Jones v. Senior, 4 M. & W. 123. To a declaration on bills of exchange for 5201. drawn by M. upon and accepted by the defendant, and indorsed by M. to the plaintiffs, the defendant pleaded, that before the accepting of the bills he was indebted to M. in a larger amount, and that they were accepted on account of 5201. part of the debt; that after the acceptance, and before the bills became due, the defendant was also indebted to other persons named, and was embarrassed in his circumstances and unable to pay his debts in full; and thereupen by an instrument in writing made between M. and the said other persons of the one part, and the defendant of the other, and subscribed by M. and the several persons whose debts were set against their names, they agreed to receive from the defendant a composition of 7s. in the pound on their respective debts, payable on a day named (which was after the bills became due). The plea then averred payment of the composition by the defendant to M. and the other subscribing creditors; and also, that afterwards, and before the commencement of this suit, M. paid to the plaintiffs, and they received from him, divers sums of money, amounting to a sum sufficient to satisfy all consideration whatever for or in respect of the indorsement of the bills in the declaration mentioned, and all money due from M. to the plaintiffs, in respect of the bills or otherwise, and all claims and demands of the plaintiffs, in respect of the bills or otherwise, on M. in full satisfaction and discharge of the bills and of all claims and demands whatever in respect of them or otherwise; and that the plaintiffs then became, and thenceforth continued holders of the bills without consideration, and in fraud of the defendant and his creditors. Replication de injuria: it was held on demurrer that the replication was bad; for that the plea amounted to matter of discharge, not of excuse.

(p) Parker v. Riley, 6 Dowl. P. C. 375.
In Curtis v. Headfort, ib. 496, de injurià to a plea, in an action on a check, that it was given for a gambling debt, was held good on general demurrer; and see Noel v. Rich, 2 C., M. & R. 360.

(q) Webb v. Weatherby, 1 Bing. N. C. 502; S. C. 1 Scott, 477; 1 Hodges, 39.

(r) Edwards v. Greenwood, b Bing. N. C. 476; 7 Scott, 482, S. C.

(s) Id. ib. per Coltman, J.; and see Crisp v. Griffiths, 2 C., M. & R. 159; S. C. 8 Dowl. P. C. 752; 1 Gale, 106; Jones v. Senior, 4 M. & W. 128; supra, note (o).

'?! Y # なました

PART II

SUT ME 1 20 20 140: 12 . W 28

2 7.4 7.4 But 10.7 5 13:01 1.11 ,*1 m

. set (3.81) 7.8

, (m x . n (# 1 . . 128 . 3 3 (0) . . . 9. 5.7 V st 1

1.52 الأسبين ا ي پ ., (¥ د -- , ; 2 , /3

1152 44 3 -:3 س بير. 4 4 ্ৰ , 18 , 1

g [T ----į y į

加速

5 m

77.5 12. 14

- 71

the declaration, and promised that he would remain liable on the note, as if III. Of the there had been no such release; it was held, that the replication was bad, as Replicasetting up a parol contract to avoid the release (t).

Where a plea of set-off stated that the plaintiff made his promissory note To Plea of payable to A. C., which was duly indorsed and delivered to the *defendant that Debt after A. C.'s death by A. C.'s administrator, and was unpaid; and the plain-barred by tiff replied, that the supposed cause of set-off on the said note did not accrue Statute of to the defendant within six years, in manner and form, &c.; it was held, that Limitathe replication admitted not only the making of the note, but the indorsement [*622] of it to the defendant by A. C.'s administrator, and that the defendant might, therefore, avail himself of memorandums of the payment of interest, written on the note by A. C., (before Lord Tenterden's Act(u)), to bar the statute of limitations; and that if the plaintiff meant to deny that the set-off accrued to the defendant at all, he should have replied something equivalent to the general issue (x).

In trover for a bill of exchange, where the defendant pleaded that the In Trover. plaintiff indorsed the bill in blank, and that R. became the holder, and the defendant, believing that he had authority to dispose of it, took it as a pledge or security for a debt; and the plaintiff replied that the defendant knew that R. had no authority to pledge or deposit the bill; the court held the replication good, as traversing the material allegation in the plea(y).

To an action on a bill of exchange against an indorser the defendant plead- Similiter. ed that he had no notice of the presentment, and concluded his plea to the country; the plaintiff omitted to add the similiter; and after a verdict for the plaintiff, the defendant moved for a new trial because there was no issue joined: but as the plea concluded with an "&c.," it was held, that after verdict, the "&c." might be considered to include the similiter, and that the record was sufficient(z)(1).

(t) Brooks v. Stewart, 1 Per. & Dav. 615. (u) 9 Geo. 4, c. 14, s. 3, ante, 609. (x) Gale v. Capern, 1 Ad. & Ellis, 102; 8

Nev. & Man. 863, S. C.

(y) Hilton v. Swan, 7 Dowl. 417; 5 Bing.

N. C. 413; 8 Scott, 898; 8 Juriet, 842. (z) Swain v. Lewis, 8 Dowl. 700; 2 Crom. & M. 261, S. C.

(1) See post, 824, (62).

*CHAPTER V.

OF THE EVIDENCE IN ACTIONS ON BILLS AND NOTES, &c.

I. In general what Facts mus		Notice by Post, how proved,	658
BE PROVED AND HOW	623	Proof of verbal Notice	659
FIRST, Proof of the Bill or Note		 Excuse of Notice 	ib.
What should be proved	ib.	Want of Effects	660
How proved	625	Promise of Part-payment	ib.
Secondly, How Defendant becan		II. Evidence for Defendant in	í
Party to Bill or Note	$\boldsymbol{626}$	GENERAL	661
What should be proved	ib.	Forgery	ib.
As against Acceptor or Make		Defect in Stamp	ib.
As against Drawer or I		Insufficiency or Illegality in Consid
dorser	628	eration or Contract	ib.
Mode of Proof	629	Failure of Consideration	662
Proof of Hand-Writing	ib.	Statements of prior Holder, when Ev
When comparison of Han	d-	idence for Defendant	663
writing inadmissible	631	Evidence to prove Laches	665
In case of subscribing Witne	ess 633	Secondary Evidence	666
Costs of Proof	635	Proof of Time given to Acceptor, &c	. ib
Effect of defendant's Admissi	on 636	Other of Defences	ib.
Effect of Promise or Part-pa	y-	Right to begin	667
ment	637	Right to reply	668
THIRDLY, Proof of Plaintiff's I	n-	III. COMPETENCY OF WITNESSES	ib.
terest or Title	ib.	Party to Bill or Note in general ad	-
As Payee or Bearer	ib.	missible	669
As Indorsee	638	Provisions of 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42, s	١.
Indorsements, when and he	w	26, 27	ib.
proved.	ib.	Distinction between Competency and	d
Admissions, &c.	644	Credibility	ib.
As Drawer or Indorser	647	Liability to Costs	671
As Accommodation Acceptor	ib.	In case of Accommodation Bill, &c	. ib
Consideration, when and ho	w	Co-defendant, when a Witness for the	e proved	648	other	672
FOURTHLY, Defendant's Breach	of	Drawer, when competent	ib.
Contract	652	Indorser	674
Presentment, when necessary	o r	Acceptor	ib.
not	ib.	When Party not a Witness to prov	e
Protest	655	Title in himself	ib.
Notice of Dishonour, when nece	s-	Admissions	675
sary and how proved	656	When Witness compellable to give Ev	-
If by Letter or in Writing	ib.	idence against his interest	ib.

I. IN GENERAL WHAT FACTS MUST BE PROVED, AND HOW.

I. In gene- The evidence to be adduced in an action on a bill or note, &c. is to be ral what Facts must considered with reference, first, to the plaintiff's cause of action; and secbe proved, ondly, the defendant's answer to the action.

The evidence which the plaintiff should adduce in support of his declaration, in which the bill, &c. is set forth, may be considered with reference to the facts which must be proved, and to the manner of proving those facts.

With respect to the facts which must be proved, the evidence is in all cases governed by the pleadings, it being necessary to prove every thing put in issue, and no more; unnecessary averments need not be *proved(a). And I. In genesince the new rules of pleading, requiring the defendant to traverse specially ral what some matter of fact(b), the evidence in an action on a bill or note is much be proved, narrowed, it being only necessary to prove the particular point referred to the and how. jury, for whatever is not expressly denied is admitted by the pleading; and on the same principle, where the issue lies only on the defendant, as where it is joined on the plea of infancy, and there is no other plea, it is not incumbent on the plaintiff to adduce any evidence in support of his declaration.

Mi

We will consider each of the above heads in their natural order, and the mode of proof to be adduced in support of them.

First. The bill or note, and the allegations respecting it, must be proved First. as described in the declaration, in terms, or in substance, whoever may be Proof of the defendant, and any material variance will be fatal(c); though the power the Bill or Note. given to the judges to allow amendments in cases of variance, is now very What liberally exercised where the amendment does not affect the merits of the should be case, and the defendant is not prejudiced thereby (d). If there be any mis-proved. take in the date or circumstances of the instrument necessary to be explained, then evidence must be adduced accordingly. And in an action by the indorsee against the acceptor of a bill, the date of which appears to have been altered, it lies on the plaintiff to shew that the alteration was made previous to the indorsement by the drawer, to whose order it was made payable(e); and without some evidence to this effect, the jury cannot, on a bare inspection of the instrument, determine at what time the alteration took place (f). And if the plaintiff sue on a *promissory note, which [*625]

(a) See Tanner v. Benn, 4 Bar. & Cres. 312; 6 Dow. & Ry. 338, (Chit. j. 1261); Freeman v. Kennell, Guildhall, 25th May, 1826, per Abbott, C. J. et post, 625, note (i).

(b) See ante, 596.

(c) Ante, 560 to 569.

(d) See ante, 567, as to Amendments.

(e) Johnson v. Duke of Marlborough, 2 Stark. 313, (Chit. j. 1020); Bul. N. P. 255; Herman v. Dickenson, 5 Bing. 183; 2 M. & P. 289, (Chit. j. 1416); ante, 189.

(f) Knight v. Clements, S Ad. & Ellis, 215; 3 Nev. & P. 375, S. C. A bill was drawn upon a two months' stamp and had begun with the words "Three months after date," but the word "three" had been defaced (as if blotted while the ink was wet) and "two" written upon it, and "two" written again underneath, and the plaintiff, who put in the bill at nisi prius, offered no evidence to account for the alterations: it was held, that the document, by itself, was no evidence to go to the jury, of the alterations having been made at the original writing of the bill; and (issue having been joined on a plea of non accepit) that the plaintiff must be nonsuited. Lord Denman, C. J. in delivering the judgment of the court, said, "This was an action on a bill of exchange at two months: plea non accepit. The plaintiff produced the bill, which had the word two (before months); but the letters of that word were written over the word three, and the strokes composing the letters of the latter word appeared to have been blotted. The stamp was good for a two months' bill, bad for one at three months. The defendant's counsel objected that P. 55; and in banc, 1 Dans. & Ll. 83; see the party producing a document is bound to explain such an ambiguity appearing on the face of it, and to shew distinctly that the alteration was made before the bill was negotiated. The plaintiff's counsel, not disputing this rule, argued that the inspection of the bill was alone sufficient to prove the alteration so made, inasmuch as the word three plainly appeared to have been blotted out while wet and in the course of the writing; and my learned brother who tried the cause placed the bills in the hands of the jury, and asked their opinion whether they thought so, directing a verdict for the plaintiff if they did. They found that the alteration was completed in time; and their verdict was entered for the plaintiff, subject to a motion for a nonsuit if the question was improperly submitted to them. This point was argued, and has been considered by us. We think the rule for a nonsuit must be made absolute. The plaintiff was bound to prove a bill accepted payable at two months: that which he produced was accepted payable either at two or three months, with no evidence whether it was the one or the other. The mode of obliteration might have furnished arguments in favour of one or the other supposition, and material confirmation to any proof adduced as to that fact. But standing by itself, it was obviously no better than a conjecture; for the alteration might have been too late, and accompanied with a fresh marking by wet ink rubbed over on the instant. The case of Bishop r. Chambre, (M. & M. 116; Lord Denman, C. J. in the course of the argument referred to the same case at nisi prius as reported in 3 Car. & ante, 189, 190, note (p), in which the point or Note. What should be proved.

I. In gone- purports to be payable to a person of a different name, he should be preparral what ed with evidence that he was the person intended (g). In an action against Pacts must be proved, the drawer or indorser of a bill, for default of payment, if it be unnecessarily alleged that the bill was accepted, yet the acceptance need not be prov-First, proof $\operatorname{ed}(\tilde{h})$. Nor is it necessary in an action against the acceptor, if his acceptof the Bill ance be unnecessarily stated to have been made payable at a particular place, and there is an averment of presentment there, to prove such presentment(i). If the bill were in foreign money, it should be proved what was the rate of exchange and value of such money at the time when the bill became due(k); and if the bill were payable at usances, the duration of such usances should be proved. It seems doubtful whether in an action of assumpsit where the plaintiff does not reply de injuria generally to the facts stated in the plea, the circumstance of his only taking issue upon one of them entitles the jury to treat the facts alleged in the plea, and not denied in the replication, as admitted(l).

How proved.

With respect to the MODE of proving the bill, and the allegations respecting it, according to the rule that the plaintiff must adduce in support of his action the best evidence in his power, he must in general produce the instrument declared on, in proof of the allegations that it was made, and in the case of a foreign bill drawn in sets, both sets should be produced(m)(1). And we have already seen, that proof of the mere loss of the bill will not in general excuse the non-production of it(n); for the defendant may be called on again to pay the amount to a bona fide holder. Where, however, it can be proved that the original bill has been destroyed(o), or that it is withheld by the defendant p), or, in case of loss, that it was not negotiable, or not indorsed, or only specially indersed(q), it will suffice to produce a copy, or to give parol evidence of its contents; and where the defendant tore his own note of hand, a copy was admitted as good evidence(r)(2). But in these taken in the principal case, as to the question to be considered by the jury, does not appear to have come under discussion,) was cited on the trial for the plaintiff, and the marginal note appears favourable to him. But Lord Tenterden's proceeding on that occasion, was, in truth, the other way: he permitted the jury to inspect the bill, to see if there had been any alteration, which there manifestly had, and then decided against the party producing it for want of proof that it was made before the instrument was complete." Rule absolute. Semble, over-ruling Taylor r. Moseley, 6 C. & P. 273; ante. 190, 191, note (y).

(g) Willis v. Barrett, 2 Stark. Rep. 29, (Chit.

j. 989); ante, 156.

(h) Tanner v. Bean, 4 Bar. & Cres. 312; 6 Dow. & Ry. 338, (Chit. j. 1261); over-ruling Jones v. Morgan, 2 Campb. 474, (Chit. j. 807).

(i) Freeman v. Kennell, Guildhall, 25th May, 1826, cor. Abbott, C. J. Dickenson, attorney

(k) See Delegal v. Naylor, 5 M. & P. 443; 7 Bing. 460, S. C.; post, Ch. VI. Sum Recorerable.

(1) Noel v. Broyd, 4 Dowl. P. C. 415.

(m) See 2 Stark. on evidence, 227, 228. The bill must be produced to entitle the plaintiff to interest; Fryer r. Brown, Ry. & Moo. 145, (Chit. j. 1227). When necessary in action for money had and received, to recover amount of bill improperly paid by defendant into his own bankers, who have given him credit thereon; Atkins r. Owen, 2 Ad. & El. 35; 4 N. & M. 123, S. C. But see as to right of action, ante, 251, note (z).

On an application by the defendant for a commission to examine witnesses abroad, the court refused to make it a part of the rule to call upon the plaintiff to produce a bill of exchange in his possession at the time of executing the commission; Cunliffe r. Whitehead, 3 Dowl.

(n) Ante, 253 to 271, as to the loss of bills.

(o) Ante, 268.

(p) Ante, 265.

(q) Ante, 268. (r) Per Holt, C. J. Anon. Ld. Raym. 731.

⁽¹⁾ Wells v. Whitehead, 15 Wend. 527, S. P }
(2) Secondary evidence of the contents of a note, is admissible where it appears the original is destroyed or lost. Benner v. Bank of Columbia, 8 Wheat. 596. See Hindadale c. Miles. 5 Conn. Rep. 331.

2417.5

7 TOP

...13

12 1.75

. 3

- 44

1.723

A . See

. . . .

1.5

: 34

M 10,00

: 3

, .u.T

.... £ 🕽

334

.

To Carl

etal 🖫

طالمساط الم

11:12

1.77

, . . T

1 313

415 25 #

طيوس

i 1 🎉

· 1 IF . .

100 ند ما د

1 95 1

12.41

لا نړ..

4.12

1 12

. 43

100.

فن ..

12 J.

N CS

1 4 1

cases, the plaintiff must shew sufficient probability to satisfy the court that I. In genethe original note was genuine(s). Where A. deposited with B., a banker, ral what Facts must a promissory note as a security for advances, it was held that B. might re- be proved, cover on the note, although before it became due he parted with the posses- and how. sion to enable A. to procure payment from the maker, and "although the First, note remained in A.'s hands till his bankruptcy, and then came into the pos- Proof of session of his assignees (1). And in an action by the indorsee of a bill, ac-the Bill or cepted in a foreign country, against a party in London, who undertook to How negotiate it, for not paying over the proceeds which he held after the bill be-proved. came due, parol evidence may be given of the particulars of the bill(u). It [*626] has been decided, however, that when the original note is in the hands of the defendant, the plaintiff must give him notice to produce it, and prove the service of such notice, or he will not be allowed to go into evidence of its loss or contents(x); and this rule has even been considered as applying to an action of trover for a bill of exchange in the possession of the defendant(y); but it is now established, that in such action of trover, or in any other proceeding, as on an indictment for stealing a bill, or for forging a note, which the defendant swallowed, which necessarily imports that the plaintiff means to charge the defendant with the possession of the instrument, no notice to produce need be served upon him(z). Where a notice has been given in order to let in the secondary evidence, the service of such notice, and the destruction or detention by the defendant, of the instrument, must be proved(a). If a check drawn by one of the parties in a cause be proved to be in the hands of the banker of such party (having been paid), the opposite party need not, if he wish to have it put in evidence, call the banker's clerk to produce it, but may call for it under a notice to produce, because bankers are the agents of the parties who draw on them (b).

The payment of money into court, generally, precludes the defendant from disputing the validity of the bill, or the defendant's liability to that extent, or the plaintiff's right, and from shewing that it is improperly stamp-In such case the plaintiff should on the trial produce the rule, and it will not suffice to call the attorney to prove that he took the money out of court(d).

In the absence of evidence to the contrary, a bill of exchange must be taken to have been drawn at the time it bears date(e)(1).

Secondly. It must be proved that the defendant was a party to the bill or How de-In an action against the acceptor of a bill, it must be proved that the fendant bedefendant accepted the bill; and we have already seen what is an accept- came Parance(f).

ty to Bill or Note. What should be

```
(s) Goodier v. Lake, 1 Atk. 446, (Chit. j.
284).
```

(t) Bruce v. Hurley, 1 Stark. 23.

(u) Hunt r. Alewyn, 3 Car. & P. 284; 1 Moore & P. 433, (Chit. j. 1389).

(x) Phil. on Evidence, 3 edit. 389; and as to the usual proof to warrant the introduction of secondary evidence, see 1 Stark. on Evidence,

(y) Cowen r. Abrahams, 1 Esp. Rep. 50, (Chit. j. 513).

(z) How r. Hall, 14 East, 274; Phil. on proved. Evid. 3d edit. 391.

(a) Phil. on Evid. 3d edit. 390.

(b) Burton v. Payne, 2 Car. & P. 520, (Chit. j. 1316).

(c) Israel v. Benjamin, 3 Campb. 40, (Chit. j. 837); post, 637, note (c). (d) II. ibi I.

(e) Anderson v. Weston, 6 Bing. N. C. 296. { S Scott, 583, S. C. }

(f) Ante, 287 to 303.

89

^{(1) {} A written memorandom given by the drawer to the acceptor of a bill, stating that it is drawn altogether for his accommodation, is evidence to show that it is an accommodation hill, even as between the acceptor and a bona fide indorsee. Reeves v. Toome, 5 Jurist, 870.

I. In geneand how. Secondly, How Defendant became Party to Bill or note. What should be proved. As against Acceptor

If the acceptance was made by an agent, it must be shewn that he was leral what gally authorised by the principal(g); if the authority was in writing, the inbe proved, strument must be produced and proved(h); and in general *the agent himself should be subpænaed; but it is not in all cases necessary to subpæna the agent himself: thus in an action on a policy of insurance, the affidavit of a person, stating that he subscribed the policy on the behalf of the defendant, which affidavit the defendant himself had previously used on a motion to put off the trial, was, under the particular circumstances, admitted as proof of the agency; for the defendant having used the affidavit for such a purpose, must be considered as having known and adopted its contents, though the single circumstance that the affidavit purported to have been made by a person as agent, would not have been a sufficient proof of his being invested with that authority (i); and when it has been proved that A. is agent of B., or Maker. whatever A. does or says, or writes, in the making of a contract as agent of [*627] B. is admissible in evidence, because it is part of the contract which he makes for B. and which therefore binds him, but it is not admissible as the agent's account of what passes (k). And the declaration of an agent can only be evidence against the principal where it accompanies the transaction about which he is employed, and if made at another time it is not admissi-If it be averred in the declaration that the defendant became a party by accepting, drawing, or indorsing a bill, "his own proper hand-writing being thereunto subscribed," it will nevertheless suffice to prove a signature by an authorised agent(m).

> In an action against several acceptors of a bill or makers of a note, the hand-writing of each must be proved (n); (one of whom is competent to prove the hand-writing of the other's (o)); or it must be shown that a partnership existed at the date of the instrument, or time of acceptance, and that the partnership name was written by one of the partners or their agent(p)(1). If the partnership be established, then it will suffice to prove an admission by one of the defendants of the hand-writing of one of the partners to the acceptance in the name of the firm(q); and it will not be necessary to prove

(g) Johnson v. Mason, 1 Esp. Rep. 90; Coore v. Callaway, 1 Esp. Rep. 115. As to such evidence, see Stark. on Evid. tit. Agent. As to how far an agent is authorized, see ante,

In an action against a defendant as acceptor of a bill of exchange, no evidence being given in whose hand the acceptance was written, it was held that the circumstance of the bill having been paid by the drawer, and the amount of it obtained on discount by defendant's wife, having been applied by her in discharge of his debts, was not sufficient to prove that he had sanctioned the acceptance; Goldstone v. Tovey, 894, S. C.

(h) Id. ibid.

(i) Johnson v. Ward, 6 Esp. Rep. 48; Phil. on Evid. 8d edit. 79.

(k) Per Gibbs, J. in Langhorn v. Allnutt, 4 Tnunt. 519; Phil Evid. 8d edit. 78.

(1) Retham v. Benson, Gow Rep. 48, 49.

(m) Booth v. Grove, Mood. & Mal. 182; 3 Car. & P. 335, (Chit. j. 1395); Helmsley r. Looder, 2 Campb 450, (Chit. j. 799); ante, (n) Gray v. Palmer, 1 Esp. Rep. 135, (Chit. j. 525); per Lawrence, J. in Sheriff v. Wilks, 1 East, 52.

(o) York v. Blott, 5 M. & Sel. 71, (Chit. j. 957).

(p) Thwaites v. Richardson, Peake Rep. 16. (q) Gray v. Palmer, 1 Esp. 135, (Chit. j. 525); Wood v. Braddick, 1 Taunt. 104; Phil.

Evid. 3d edit. 75; Hodenpyl v. Vingerhoed. Hodenpyl v. Vingerhoed and another, cor. Abbott, C. J. 3d July, 1818, Guildhall. Assumpoit on a promissory note, dated at Rotter-dam, and drawn in Dutch for the payment of 900 guilders to the plaintiff, and subscribed by the firm of "Vingerhoed and Christian." The declaration stated several christian names of each defendant. A witness swore that he knew the firm of Vingerhoed and Christian, and that ⁽¹⁾ Evidence that it was not generally known in the place where a certain partnership was carried on, that T. was a partner, is admissible to the jury, where the inquiry is, whether the plaintiff knew that defendant was a partner in order to make him liable. General evidence that he was known as a partner, is also admissible under such circumstances. Bernard v. Torrence, 5 Gill & John. 388.

17.7

11.15

112

-- (

. . :: 3

1

1.72

-17-17

2 3 1 1 2

. - • • • • • • •

1300

જ. જો 🕯

137.4

CALLANI.

10 14 W

أمجاري

4

... n.#

that the defendants were of the christian names stated in the declaration (r). I. In gene-And this doctrine has been carried so far, that in an action against three ral what persons as drawers of a bill of exchange, purporting to have been drawn by be proved, an agent of the firm upon one of the partners, it was held, that the accept- and how. ance by the drawee was evidence against three partners of the bill having Secondly, been regularly drawn, and rendered it unnecessary to prove the authority of How Dethe agent(s). So the admission by one partner *of his partnership with the fendant became co-defendants, who were sued with him as acceptors of a bill of exchange, Party to and who had been outlawed, has been received as proof against him of a joint Bill or promise by all(t). The rule has even been extended in actions so far as to Note. admit the declarations of one partner to be evidence against another, con-What cerning joint contracts and their joint interest, although the person who has should be proved. made such declarations is not a party to the suit; as where in an action by As against a creditor against some of the partnership firm, the answer of another party Acceptor to a bill filed by the other creditors was received in evidence against the defendants, not indeed to prove the partnership, but that being established, as [*628] an admission against those who are as one person with him in interest (u). And the admission of a partner, though not a party to the suit, is evidence as to joint contracts against any other partner, as well after the determination of the partnership as during its continuance (x). But in a joint action against three persons as acceptors of a bill of exchange, as a joint liability must be proved, the circumstance of two of the defendants having been outlawed will not dispense with proof of their joint liability, although the defendant, who alone pleaded to the action, was in justice liable to pay the $debt(\eta)$. So in an action against two persons, as makers of a note, if one of them suffer judgment by default, his signature must nevertheless be proved on the trial against the other (z). We have already seen what evidence of facts are necessary to be proved to constitute a parol acceptance in the case of a foreign bill(a). In an action against the acceptor of a bill, payable after sight, it is in general necessary to prove the date or time of the acceptance; but if his signature as acceptor is proved, the date of the acceptance appearing over it, although in a different hand-writing, will be presumed to have been written by his authority (b). Evidence, it seems, is admissible to shew that a bill with a cancelled acceptance upon it has been accepted by mistake; so there were two persons of those surnames in the firm, but that he did not know their christian names: and that in a conversation with Vingerhoed, he admitted that the note was subscribed by him in the name of the firm. This was held sufficient to establish the action against both defendants. Blunt and Bowman, for plaintiffs. But see post.

(r) Id. ibid.

(s) Porthouse r. Parker and others, 1 Campb. 82, (Chit. j. 741). This was an action by payee against the drawers of bill, which purported to be drawn by one Wood, as the agent of George, James, and John Parker, upon John Parker. There was no proof that Wood had authority from the defendants to draw the bill; but a witness swore that he, as the agent of John Parker, the drawer, and one of the defendants, had accepted it on his account. Lord Ellenborough held, that the bill having been accepted by order of one of the defendants, this was sufficient evidence of its having been regularly drawn; and further, that the acceptor being likewise a drawer, there would be no occasion for the plaintiff to prove that the defendants had received express notice of the dishonour of a bill, as this must have necessarily been known to one of them, and the knowledge of one was the knowledge of all; Bayl. 5th edit. 462

(t) Per Lord Ellenborough, in Sangster v. Mazarredo, 1 Stark. 161; Phil. Evid. 3d ed.

(u) Grant r. Jackson, Peake, 203; Wood v. Braddick, 1 Taunt. 104; Nichol v. Dowding, 1 Stark. Rep. 81.

(x) Wood v. Braddick, 1 Taunt. 104. In equity the answer of one partner is not admissible in evidence against the other; see Booth v. Quin, 7 Price, 198, (Chit. j. 1059); ante, 54, note (q).

(y) Sheriff v. Wilkes, 1 East, 48, (Chit. j.

(z) Gray v. Palmer, 1 Esp. Rep. 135; ante. 627, note (q).

(a) Ante, 295 to 299. (b) Glossop v. Jacob, 4 Campb. 227; 1 Stark. Rep. 69, (Chit. j. 944); ante, 292, note ral what Facts must be proved, and how. Secondly. How Da. fendant became Party to Bill or Note.

As against Drawer or Indorser. [*629] Mode of Proof.

I. In gene- proof may be given that a check has been cancelled by mistake, and it may be returned unpaid(c).

> In an action against the drawer or indorser of a bill or note, the hand-writing of the defendant, or a signature by his agent, having power to bind him, must be established in evidence in like manner as in an action against the acceptor of a bill(d); and if an indersement on a promissory note purports to have been attested by a subscribing witness, such witness must be called(e); but if the defendant pay money *into court generally, or upon the count on the instrument, the signature and its validity is admitted, and need not be proved, and the only question to be tried will then be the quantum (f).

The MODE of proving that the defendant was a party to the bill or note has already beed partially considered (g). If there be one invariable mode in which bills of exchange are drawn between particular parties, this may be proved by parol evidence, without any of the bills being produced (h). In an action against the acceptor of a foreign bill, his acceptance, if by parol, must be proved by the witness who heard him accept; and if the answer, which it is insisted amounted to an acceptance, was given by a clerk or third person, that person must be subprenaed; or it must be proved that the defendant has previously recognised his general authority to accept for him; and it has been held, that proof of an answer given at the house of the drawee, that the bill would be taken up when due, is not sufficient proof of an acceptance, but it must be shewn that the answer was given by the drawee, or by his authority (i). If the acceptance was in writing, it must be produced, and the signature proved. An acceptance in writing of an inland bill may be valid although given since the 1 & 2 Geo. 4, c. 78, and not signed; but the plaintiff may, it has been supposed, in that case be required to prove that it was intended to operate as a complete acceptance (k). The latter supposition seems, however, scarcely tenable (l). Proof that the acceptance was written whilst the bill was in blank affords no objection(m). tion against the drawer or indorser of a bill or note, his signature must also The signature may be established by a witness who can swear be proved. to the hand-writing, or to an admission of it by the party sued.

(c) Ante, 308, 309.

(d) Gutteridge v. Smith, 2 Hen. Bla. 374, As to authority of wife to in-(Chit. j. 534). dorse in name of husband, see ante, 22, 23; and see Goldstone v. Tovey, 6 Bing. N. C. 98; ante, 626, note (g).

(e) Stone v. Metcalf, 1 Stark. Rep. 53, (Ch.

j. 943). (f) Gutteridge v. Smith, 2 Hen. Bla. 374, (Chit. j. 534); ante, 626.
(3) Ante, 625 to 628.

(h) Spencer v. Billing, 3 Campb. 310; 1

Rose, 362, S. C.
(i) Sayer v. Kitchen, 1 Esp. Rep. 209, (Chit. j. 535). Assumpsit against acceptor of a bill, drawn upon him by one Holland, and also a further sum for goods sold and delivered. The plaintiff was unable to prove the handwriting of the defendant subscribed to the bill by any witness who was acquainted with it, but offered the following as an admission by him, tantamount to proof of his acceptance. This evidence was that of a clerk of the banking house into which the bill in question had been paid, and who had brought the bill to the defendant's house for acceptance. The defendant was not then at home; but the clerk received for answer at the house, that the bill would be taken up when due. Mingay, for the plaintiff, contended, that this answer so received at the house of the defendant to a bill, upon which his name appeared as drawee, was a sufficient acknowledgment of the acceptance, upon which to charge him. Lord Kenyon ruled, that it alone, without some proof of the defendant's hand writing, or something to shew that the acknowledgment came from him, was insufficient; the plaintiff having no further evidence to that point, the count on the note was abandoned.

(k) Dufaur v. Oxenden, 1 Moo. & Rob. 90, (Chit. j. 1566); but quære as to the propriety of leaving the question to the jury. Note, I Moo. & Rob. 92; and id. 119.

(l) Id. ibid.

(m) Leslie v. Hastings, 1 Moo. & Rob. 119, (Chit. j. 1567); Schultz v. Astley, 2 Bing. N. C. 544; 2 Scott, 815, S. C.; ante, 214, note (0).

HET I

· 🗁

.1.7

.37

. .:/

۲. ۳

--- 50

أن ،

** (

, - C

. .

3 (3 84)

100

2':

The simplest and most obvious proof of hand-writing, is the testimony of I. In genea witness who saw the defendant subscribe the bill or note; but (unless there ral what was a subscribing witness, who, as we shall hereafter see, must be subpœnaed(n)), this evidence is not essential, and it will suffice to call a witness and how. who is acquainted with the defendant, and who, from seeing him write even Secondly, his surname or other writing(o), or from correspondence with him, has ac- How Dequired a knowledge of his hand-writing, and can swear to his belief that the fendant became Parsubscription is the *defendant's(p); and this knowledge may be acquired, ty to Bill though it seems the witness has only seen the party write once; and in an ac- or Note. tion on a foreign bill, to prove the hand-writing of the defendant, it is evi- Proof of dence to go to a jury, that a person who saw him write once thinks the hand- Handwriting alike, though he has no belief on the subject (q). This suffices, be-writing cause in every person's manner of writing there is a certain distinct prevail- [*630] ing character, which may be easily discovered by observation, and when once known, may be afterwards applied as a standard to try any other species of writing whose genuineness is disputed. A witness may therefore be called and asked whether he has seen the defendant write, and afterwards whether he believes the signature to the bill or note to be the defendant's hand-writing (r); but it is reported to have been decided at hisi prius, that a person who has only seen a party write his surname, is not competent to prove his hand-writing to the christian as well as surname to an acceptance(s); but in a subsequent case, the contrary was ruled(t); and an instrument executed by mark may be proved by a person who has seen the party so execute instruments (u). The usual course is to subpose a witness who

(n) Post, 633.

(o) Lewis r. Sapio, Mood. & M. 39, (Chit. j. 1326).

(p) Bul. Ni. Pri. 236; Lord Ferrers v. Shirley, Fitz. 195; Willes v. Sagar, Esp. N. P. C. 144; 2 Stark. on Evid. 651.

(q) Garrells v. Alexander, 4 Esp. Rep. 37, (Chit. j. 639). Assumpsit on a foreign bill of exchange. To prove the hand-writing of the defendant, the plaintiff called the clerk of the defendant's attorney. His evidence was, that he had seen the defendant sign the bail bond in the cause, but had never seen him write on any other occasion. Being asked whether he believed the acceptance to be the hand-writing of the defendant, he said he could form no belief on the subject; it was like the hand-writing in which the bail-bond was subscribed, and was about to compare them together. Lord Kenyon told him he must form a judgment without such comparison of hands. He then looked on the bill again, and said it was like the handwriting in which the defendant had subscribed the bail-bond, but that he could not speak to any belief further than he had already done. Garrow, for the defendant, objected that there was not sufficient evidence, and that it would be of dangerous consequences to allow such loose evidence of a hand-writing to charge a party with a debt.

Lord Kenyon, "This is the case of a foreign bill of exchange, and I think there is evidence to go to the jury, and that I am bound to leave it to them. To be sure, mere comparison of hands is not admissible evidence of itself: that was Algernon Sidney's case; but there the witness had never seen him write; and the only evidence in the case was mere comparison of hands; but in the present case, the witness has seen the defendant write, and he speaks to the likeness of the hand-writing, in which the bill is accepted, bears to that which he has seen the defendant actually write; I therefore think that it is evidence to go to the jury."

But it has been holden, that a witness who has only seen the drawee write his name, pending the action, for the purpose of shewing the witness his usual mode of writing his acceptance, is not an admissible witness for such drawee to disprove his hand-writing to the bill, on which he is sued, because the defendant might write differently before the witness purposely to establish a defence; Stranger r. Searle, 1 Esp. Rep. 14, 15, (Chit. j. 509).

(r) Peake's Evid. 4th edit. 109, 110; Phil. Evid. 3d edit. 422; 2 Stark. on Evid. 652.

(s) Powell v. Ford, 2 Stark. 164, (Chit. j. 998).

(1) Lewis v. Sapio, 1 Mood. & M. 39, (Chit. j. 1326). (u) George v. Surrey, Mood. & M. 516, (Chit. j. 1499). Assumpsit by the indorsee against the acceptor of a bill of exchange drawn by Ann Moore to her order, and indorsed by her to the plaintiff. Ann Moore drew the bill by her mark, and it was indorsed by mark; the writing, " Ann Moore, her mark, on the indorsement, being in the plaintiff's hand. A witness was called to prove the indorsement, who stated he had frequently seen Ann Moore make her mark, and so sign instruments, and he pointed out some peculiarity. Tindal, C. J. after some hesitation, admitted the evidence as sufficient, and the plaintiff had a verdict.

Secondly, How Decame Party to Bill or Not e. Proof of Handwriting. [*631]

I. In gene- can swear he knows the defendant, and that he has seen him write frequentral what ly, or has frequently addressed letters to him and received answers in return; be proved, and from the knowledge he has thus acquired of his hand-writing, he believes the particular signature to be the defendant's hand-writing. A knowledge of the hand-writing acquired by a witness in the course of correspondence with the defendant, is sufficient to enable him to swear to his belief of the tendant be-hand-writing, though he has never seen him write; as if the witness has paid bills *according to the written directions of the defendant, and for which he afterwards accounted; or where letters are sent directed to a particular person on particular business, and an answer is received in due course, a fair inference arises that the answer was sent by the person whose hand-writing it purports to be(x); but barely having seen letters, purporting to have been franked by him, or other papers, which he has no authentic information are of the defendant's hand-writing, is not sufficient(y); and to support evidence of this nature evidence of the identity of the defendant is essential.

When comparison of hand-writing inadmissible.

In forming this belief it has been observed, that a witness, when called to speak to the indentity of the defendant's hand-writing, ought to judge solely from the impression which the hand-writing itself makes upon his mind, without taking any extrinsic circumstances into his consideration(z). erally speaking, evidence by comparison of hands is not admissible; and though in an action on a bill, which the defendant contended to be a forgery, other bills were handed to the jury for their inspection, being illiteral, to compare the hand-writing(a), a contrary practice now prevails(b). Therefore where a witness said, "that looking at the hand-writing, he should have thought it to have been that of the party whose name it bore, but from his knowledge of him he thought he could not have signed such a paper," it was held, that this was prima facie evidence of the hand-writing(c); and on the same principle, where it was contended that the paper produced was the forgery of a third person, evidence that such third person had forged the defendant's name to other instruments of a similar nature was held to be inadmissible(d); and even in one case which came before the court, a party who contended that the hand-writing was a forgery was only permitted, after a great deal of other evidence, to examine a clerk at the post-office, whose business it is to inspect franks and detect forgeries, to prove, that from the appearance of the hand-writing, it was, in his opinion, a forgery, and not a genuine hand-writing (e); and in a subsequent case (f), Lord Kenyon said that such evidence was wholly inadmissible, and observed, that though in Revett v. Braham it was admitted, yet that in his direction to the jury he had laid no stress at all upon it. And in a later case it was holden, that the opinion of the inspectors of franks at the post-office, whether a writing is written in a natural or a feigned character, is of little weight, and the Court of King's Bench refused to grant a new trial, which was moved for on the ground that such evidence had been rejected (g). And in another case Lord

(x) See Phil. Evid 8d edit. 422 to 424, 427, 428; Peake's Evid. 4th edit. 110.

(y) Cary v. Pitt, Peake's Evid. 4th edit. 110; Peake's Rep. Add. 130, S. C. (z) Peake's Evid. 4th edit. 110; 2 Stark. on Evid. 653, 654.

(a) Allesbrook v. Roach, MS. Peake's Add. 27; 1 Esp. Rep. 351, (Chit. j. 546).

(b) Allesbrook v. Roach, MS. Peake's Add.
28, note (a); Clermont v. Tullidge, 4 Car. &
P. 1; and id. notes 2 and 3, S. P.; and Cary v. Pitt, Peake Rep. Add. 130.

(c) Da Costa v. Pym, Sittings at Guildhall, after Trin. Term, 37 Geo. 3; Peake's Evid. 4th edit. App. 85; 2 Stark. on Evid. 654.

(d) Balcetti v. Serani, Peake's Rep. 142, (Chit. j. 497); Crast v. Lord Brownlow Bertie, Sittings at Westminster, after T. T. 1777, MS.; Peake's Evid. 4th edit. 110.

(e) Revett v. Braham, 4 T. R. 497. (f) Cary v. Pitt, Peake's Evid. 4th edit. 110; Peake's Repp. Add. 130, S. C.

(g) Gurney v. Langlands, 5 B. & Ald. 380.

. _,

Ì

. .

.

. ::: . 18

2:

. - -:

: 60

100

; a

غازات إ

. : 2

1. 1 ×

1 1

. .

. : 11

172 og LSE

, jet

ş... j.: .. Ki

Tenterden said, "It was formerly held that persons conversant with hand- 1. In genewriting could be asked whether certain letters were genuine or not, but it has ral what been long since held that this is not evidence (h)."

It has been observed, that the analogies of law appear strongly to support and how. the admissibility of this evidence, for opinion founded on *observation and Secondly. experience, is received in most questions of a similar nature. There is a How Decertain freedom of character in that which is original, which imitation seldom fendant became attains, and the want of that freedom is more likely to be detected by one Party to whose attention has been directed to the subject, than by another who has Bill or never given his mind to such pursuits. It should seem therefore that such Note. evidence is not wholly inadmissible, though it certainly ought to be received When with great caution, and meet with little attention, unless as corroborating other and stronger evidence.

The true distinction as to the admissibility of such evidence seems to have writing inbeen taken by Mr. Baron Hotham on the trial of The King v. Cator(i), where the defendant being indicted for publishing a written libel, and a person from the post-office, who had never seen him write, being called as a witness, that judge permitted the witness to give general evidence that the writing appeared to be in a feigned hand; but when the witness was asked whether, on comparing such handwriting with papers proved by others to be the genuine hand-writing of the defendant, he could say it was the disguised hand of the same person, his lordship rejected the evidence attempted to be introduced by such examination, because it arose only from comparison of The case of Revett v. Braham(k) may therefore still be considered as an existing authority to shew, that for the purpose of proving generally and in the abstract that a hand-writing is not genuine, for the want of freedom in the hand-writing, such evidence is admissible, though deserving of little attention (l). And the painting of the letters, as it was called by the witness in that case, may arise from the infirmity of the writer, or his not having formed a fixed character, or many other causes which a person unacquainted with the genuine hand-writing cannot take into consideration. tradesman who is daily making entries in his books will acquire a more free and steady character than an illiterate person who can but just write his name; and a man whose habits of life lead him to write much oftener and with less care, will still get more of a peculiar character in his hand-writing; all which circumstances should certainly be taken into the consideration of a jury before they give weight to such evidence.

It has been well observed, that inasmuch as the mind arrives at the belief of hand-writing merely by recollection of the general character from an acquaintance by frequently seeing it, and and not from the formation of particular letters or a single inspection, courts of justice have wisely rejected all evidence from bare comparison of hands, unsupported by other circumstances; they will not therefore permit two papers, one of which was proved to be the hand-writing of a party, to be delivered to a jury for the purpose of comparing them together, and thence inferring that the other is also of his hand-writing(m); but where witnesses have been called to prove the similitude of hand-writing, and other witnesses have from the same premises drawn a different conclusion, this rule has been relaxed in favour of a jury

Peake's Rep. 20, note (a).

be proved.

⁽h) Clermont v. Tullidge, 4 Car. & P. 1, 2. 2 N. & P. 16, S. C.

⁽i) 4 Esp. Rep. 117.

⁽k) 4 T. R. 497; ante, 631, note (e).

⁽¹⁾ Gurney v. Langlands, 5 B. & Ald. 380; and see Doe v. Suckermore, 5 Ad. & El. 708;

⁽m) Macferson v. Thoytes, Peake's Rep. 20, (Chit. j. 469); Brookhard v. Woodley, and how. Secondly, How Defendant bety to Bill or Note.

I. In gene- whose habits of life have accustomed them to the sight of hand-writing(n); and in a late case a jury were allowed by Lord Tenterden to judge of a disbe proved, puted hand-writing by comparing it with other documents already *in evidence in the cause for other purposes(o), and admitted to be the hand-writing of the defendant(p); but this mode of proceeding seems rather a departure from the strict rules of evidence, and before an illiterate jury would proba-See post, 824 (63). bly not be adopted (q).

In some cases, where the antiquity of the hand-writing makes it impossible for any living witness to swear that he ever saw the party write, compar-[*633] ison of hand-writing with documents known to be in his hand-writing has been admitted (r)(1).

(n) Allesbrook v. Roach, Sittings at West-minster after T. T. 1795, MS.; 1 Esp. Rep. 351, (Chit. j. 546); Da Costa v. Pym, ante, 631, note (c).

(o) See Doe v. Newton, 5 Ad. & El. 514; 1 N. & P. 1, S. C. See also Doe v. Suckermore, 2 N. & P 16; 5 Ad. & El. 703, S. C.

(p) Solita v. Yarrow, 1 Moo. & Rob. 133; and see Smith r. Sainsbury, 5 C. & P. 126.

(q) Peake's Evid. 4th edit. 110 to 115. (r) Per Le Blanc, J. Roe v. Rawlings, 7 Enst. 202; Bul. N. P. 236; and see Taylor v. Cooke, 8 Price, 653, as to comparison of handwritings of former rectors with entries in regis-

(1) It is a general rule, that evidence by comparison of hands is not admissible, when the witness has had no previous knowledge of the hand-writing, but is called upon to testify merely from a comparison of hands. Kelly r. Jackson et al., 6 Peters' Rep. 662.

The jury may find that a party signed an instrument not witnessed, by comparing the handwriting to such instrument with the hand-writing to another instrument, which the party admits he signed. Gifford v. Ford, 5 Verm. Rep. 532.

A bill may be proved to be counterfeit, by persons who know the signatures of the president and cashier of the bank, by having seen bills in circulation. The State v. Carr, 5 New Hamp.

The evidence of a witness as to hand-writing, who has formed an acquaintance with it, from seeing the party write or from a course of correspondence, is not rendered incompetent nor its weight impaired, by his having referred to papers in his own possession, known to be written by the party, to refresh his (the witness') memory. Redford's Adm'r v. Peggy, 6 Randolph's

Upon the trial of issue on plea of non est factum whether the party's signature to the instrument in question be genuine or no: Held inadmissible to lay other proved specimens of the party's hand-writing before the jury, that it may judge by comparison thereof with the writing in question whether this be genuine. Such comparison of hand-writing is not proper evidence. Rowt's Adm'x. v. Kiles' Adm'r., 1 Leigh's Rep. 216.

B. is appointed adm'r of S. at a time when S. was supposed to have died without a will; a will is afterwards found; B. had never seen S. write; but acquired a knowledge of his bandwriting from an examination of his papers after his death, and testifies from his knowledge of the hand-writing thus acquired, that the will is wholly in S.'s hand: Held, this is competent evidence of the hand-writing in the court of probate. Sharp v. Sharp, 2 Id. 249.

Proof of hand-writing of the indorser of a note, going no farther than that the witness believed it to be the hand-writing of indorser, founded upon the facts of having seen him write his name two months before the trial, and also having seen him write five years before the trial, stating at the same time that he would not have been able to have testified to the hand-writing from the fact alone of having seen him write five years ago, and expressing doubts as to a part of the signature, would scarcely be sufficient to uphold a verdict, if the question as to its sufficiency had been properly submitted to a jury. Utica Ins. Co. v. Badger, 3 Wend. Rep. 102.

Where a judge upon such evidence in an action by the indorsees of a promissory note, charged the jury that the plaintiffs were entitled to a verdict, instead of leaving it to them, under proper instruction, to say whether the indorsement was or was not the hand-writing of the party, a new trial was granted.

Where the plaintiff in an action for a libel, to prove that the paper alleged to be libellous, was in the hand-writing of the defendant, introduced witnesses who had seen him write, who testified, that they believed the paper to be in the hand-writing of the defendant, but who, upon their cross-examination, said, that they did not know that they were sufficiently acquainted with his hand to determine, except by comparing it with other writings of his proved to be genuine; it was held, that such testimony was admissible. Lyon v. Lyman, 8 Conn. Rep. 55.

Where the plaintiff in such action offered the testimony of cashiers of banks, who had never seen the defendant write, and who had no knowledge of his hand-writing, but who compared the paper in question with other writings proved to be his, and who testified that they were written by the same hand, and that such paper was in a disguised hand; it was held, that such cashiers, as persons of skill in their art, were competent witnesses to establish these points. Ib.

215.0

... 11

1.112

. . 1/2

٠4,

Although the declaration expressly allege that the defendant's own proper I. In genhand-writing was subscribed, it will nevertheless suffice to prove a subscriperation by agent(s)(1). And where in an action against John K., on "a bill be proved, accepted by Joseph K. in the name of John K. and Co.," it was proved and how. that the acceptance was in the hand-writing of Joseph, and that he had done Secondly. business in the name he signed, it was held that the plaintiff was entitled to How Defendant berecover(t).

came Party to Bill

If there was a subscribing witness to the bill or note, or to an indorsement or Note. thereof then in an action against the drawer of the bill, or the maker of the In case of note, it will be necessary to subpæna such witness, and if there be any doubt Witness. as to his proving that he saw the defendant write his name, the subscription must be proved by some other evidence, which will in that case be admissible(u)(2); and if a person who sees a defendant sign a promissory note,

(s) Both r. Grove, Mood. & Mal. 182; 3 Car. & P. 335, (Chit. j. 1395); ante, 627, note (m).

See as to the introduction of the words " his own proper hand being thereunto aubscribed, ante, 570, Declaration.

Semble, that a count on a guarantee for the repayment of bills, &c. drawn and subscribed by M. and E., must allege that the bills were subscribed by M. and E., although it be averred that they accepted the bills, and by a memorandum added to such acceptance expressed the same to be payable at a particular place; Corlett v. Conway, 5 M. & W. 653.

(t) Wilde v. Keep, 6 Car. & P. 235. (u) Lemon r. Dean, Lancaster Lent Assizes, 1810, cor. Le Blanc, J. 2 Campb. 636. Action on a promissory note, which appeared to be witnessed by one Bentley. Bentley was called and swore that he did not see the defendant subscribe the note, but the defendant merely desired him to try to write his name upon the paper, and that he did not observe whether any thing was at that time written on it. Plaintiff's Where the plaintiff in such action, to prove the genuineness of the alleged libel, offered other writings proved to be in the hand-writing of the defendant, to go to the jury, to be compared by them with the paper in dispute; it was held, that such writings were admissible for that purpose. Ib. Respecting this point, Daggett, J., remarks: "It is not denied, that the general rule found in our elementary writers, is opposed to this decision. Swift, in our own state, and Starkie and Phillips, and many others, concur in declaring such testimony inadmissible. Mr. Day, in a learned note to his edition of Esp. Rep. vol. 4, p. 273, examined all the cases on this subject, and came to the same result. The treatises of Starkie and Phillips have appeared since the note of Mr. Day; and several cases are cited by those writers in favor of the admissibility of this species of evidence. In Abbe v. Daniels, Worcester county, Mass. Sept. term, 1811, Parsons, Ch. J. admitted skillful witnesses, who had never seen the defendant write, to swear that the signature in dispute was not, in their opinion, a natural one, nor written by the same person who made other signatures, which were produced and acknowledged to be the defendant's. 2 Stark. Ev. 658, n. 1, by Metcalf. In Massachusetts and Maine, comparison of hands is always admitted.

Homer v. Wallis, 11 Mass. Rep. 309. Hammond's case, 2 Greenl. 33. In New-York, it is doubtful whether genuine papers can be delivered to the jury to determine, by comparison, the genuineness of the paper in question. Titford v. Knott, 2 Johns. Ca. 211. In Pennsylvania, such evidence is received in corroboration. M'Corkle v. Binns, 5 Binn. Rep. 340, 349. Pennsylvania v. M'Kee, Addis. Rep. 33. The same evidence has been recognized in South Carolina, where it is offered in aid of other proof. Boman's adm'r v. Plunkett, 2 M'Cord, 518. The only reported case on that subject, in Connecticut, is that of the State v. Brunson, 1 Root, 307, where this species of evidence was admitted in a criminal case. I am aware, that there have been contradictory decisions on this point, at the circuits; but it has never come before this court until now. Under these circumstances, the court may, without embarrassment, resort to the reason of the rule." He then states and answers the arguments in favor of the rule. "An unfair selection of specimens may be made for the purpose of comparison. 2 Stark. Ev. 656. But " the party whose hand-writing is questioned, may be presumed to know more sources of the proof of his own writing, than the party who is bound to establish it." A contrary rule might open the door to a great deal of collateral evidence. 2 Stark. Ev. 656." But "this objection lies with equal force against many other kinds of proof, which is daily admitted." But "the great objection, and the only one suggested by the courts in the adjudged cases, is the ignorance of the jury on the subject of writings." This objection Justice Daggett conceives to have no force in Connecticut, and he says it has always appeared to him to be very feeble. Ib.

(1) Where a promissory note is stated in a declaration to have been made by the defendants, proof that it was made by one of the firm in the partnership name, supports the declaration. Vallett r. Parker, 6 Wend, 615. Mack r. Spencer, 4 Wend, 411.

(2) A note, although referred to in an instrument produced by the opposite party, cannot be ral what Facts must be proved, and how.

Secondly, How Defendant became Party to Bill ot Note.

Witness.

[*634]

I. In gene- but is not desired by the parties to attest it, he cannot, by afterwards putting his name to it, prove it as an attesting witness (x)(1).

> Where there are several subscribing witnesses, it suffices to call one of them; but if there be any doubt as to proof of signature, it is best to call all(y).

If the subscribing witness be dead, proof of his death and hand-writing, and that the defendant was present when the note was prepared, is sufficient, without proving the hand-writing of the defendant(z): and this even where the defendant signed by mark(a). And in an *action on a promissory note, to which there was a subscribing witness, who had since become insane, it subscribing was held, that proof of his hand-writing was sufficient to establish the making of the note (b); so in case of blindness (c): and proof of the hand-writing of the witness when dead has been considered sufficient without any other further proof whatever of the identity of the parties(d). But it was always deemed most prudent in such cases to be prepared with proof of the hand-writing of the acceptor or maker, and of the subscribing witness, in order to establish the identity of the former; and in the first-mentioned case, where the witness was dead, it was doubted whether the mere proof of his hand-writing, without the evidence of the defendant's having been present when the note was prepared, would have sufficed(e). And it is now settled, that in an action on a bill or note, the subscribing witness to which is dead or resident abroad, although it is not necessary, in addition to proof of the hand-writing of the subscribing witness, to prove the hand-writing of the acceptor or maker; yet some evidence of the identity of the party sued with > counsel then proposed to call witness to prove the defendant's hand-writing. Williams objected, that there being a subscribing witness to the note, who was not incompetent, no other evidence of it could be given. He cited Phipps v. Parker, 1 Campb. 412. Le Blanc, J. "I will make no observation upon that case. It may be distinguishable, as there the instrument was a deed. But I am quite clear, that if the subscribing witness to a note, when called, cannot prove it, by reason of his not having seen it drawn, the plaintiff may proceed to prove by other means." Vide Fasset v. Brown, Peake's Rep. 23; Grellier v. Neale, id. 146; Burr. 2224, 2225. And see Wylde v. Porter, 1 Ad. & El. 742; ante, 615, note (u), as to necessity of calling subscribing witness.

(x) M'Craw v. Gentry, 3 Camph. 232. (y) Stra. 1254; Bur. 2224.

(z) Nelson v. Whittall, 1 Bar. & Ald. 19, (Chit. j. 998); Barnes v. Tromposki, 7 T. R.

(a) Mitchell v. Johnson, Mood. & M. 176. (b) Per Lord Ellenborough, Currie v. Child, 3 Campb. 283; cited in Nelson v. Whittall, 1 Bar. & Ald. 22, note (a), (Chit. j. 998); and see Gough v. Cecil, Selw. 9th edit. 547, n. (c) Wood v. Drury, Ld. Raym. 734. See post, 824 (65).

(d) Page v. Mann, Mood. & M. 74; Kay v. Brookman, id. 286; 3 Car. & P. 555, S. C.

To dispense with the necessity of calling the subscribing witness to a deed, it is sufficient to shew that he expressed an intention of leaving the country; that he had reason for doing so to avoid a criminal charge, and that his relations had not seen him since he expressed, his intentention of going. It is not necessary in the absence of the subscribing witness to prove the hand-writing of the party executing the deed; it is enough to prove the hand-writing of the witness

(e) Per Bayley, J. in Nelson v. Whittall, 1 Bar. & Ald. 21, (Chit. j. 998). It is laid down in Mr. Phillips's Treatise on the Law of Evidence, that the proof of the hand-writing of the attesting witness is in all cases sufficient. I always felt this difficulty, that that proof alone does not connect the defendant with the note. If the attesting witness himself gave evidence, he would prove, not merely that the instrument was executed, but the identity of the person so executing it; but the proof of the hand-writing of the attesting witness establishes merely that some person, assuming the name which the instrument purports to bear, executed it, and it does not go to establish the identity of that person; and in that respect the proof seems to me defective. In this case, however, there is evidence sufficient to connect the defendant with the note, for he was present in the room when it was prepared.

read in evidence, without production of the subscribing witnesses, or accounting for their absence, especially where the note offered in evidence purports to be a sealed note, and the fact whether sealed or not has an important bearing upon the issue of the cause. Jackson v. Sackett, 7 Wend. Rep. 94.

(1) See post, S24, (64).

102

.. ". #

· 👾 🎬

10 11-1

- pa.,

~! "X.

11 12

- MA

. . . u:A

-4 (e) 12

4247 الاشها

.....

. . 4 41

-w) 30 000

, n +y#

و سر س

~; y ;€

118 1 K 1 J

د ااا ، ،

11.00 a lar éli

1. 1. 18 Pr. 1. 18 Pr.

A STATE OF THE SERVIC

مجن ، دا ج

.

المجيرة

, March

45 - 72

10 C 18

. .. d ¥≠

وبوس

- 10° 11°

U THE IST

 $\mathcal{L}^{(2)}_{\mathcal{L}}$

the party who appears to have executed the instrument must be given (f). I. In gene-And the same rule appears to have prevailed in the case of a bond, where, ral what on issue on a plea of non est factum, some evidence must have been given be proved, of the identity of the party executing the deed, which was not to be assum- and how. ed from its having been executed by a person in his name, in the presence Secondly, of the attesting witness, who was unacquainted with him(g).

If the witness is abroad out of the process of the court, whether he be resident there(h) or not, as if he be in Ireland(i), or he cannot be found on ty to Bill diligent inquiry (k), proof of these facts lets in other evidence of hand-writ- or Note. ing. And if the subscribing witness to the acceptance of a bill of exchange, being one of the acceptor's family, cannot be served with a subpœna in consequence of the conduct of that family, the bill may be read without his evi-And it should seem that where a copy of the bill or note is admissible (m), the plaintiff will be entitled to recover without calling the subscribing witness(n).

*By the General Rules of Hilary Term, 2 Will. 4, (1832) reg. vii. it is No Costs ordered, that the expense of a witness called only to prove the hand-writing of proving hand-writto, or the execution of, any written instrument stated upon the pleadings, ing without shall not be allowed, unless the adverse party shall, upon summons before a previous judge, a reasonable time before the trial, (such summons stating therein the to admit it. name, description, and place of abode of the intended witness), have neg-Rule H. T. lected or refused to admit such hand-writing or execution, or unless the 2 Will. 4. judge, upon attendance before him, shall indorse upon such summons that $\mathsf{L}^{ullet6.35}$ L he does not think it reasonable to require such admission(o).

came Par-

(f) Whitelock v. Musgrove, 1 Crom. & M. 511. The same point is stated to have been ruled in another case which stood over for the decision of this; ib. note (a).

(g) See per Dampier, J. in Middleton v.

Sanford, 4 Campb. 84.

(h) Prince v. Blackburn, 2 East, 250; Coghlan v. Williamson, Dougl. 93.

- (i) Hodnett v. Forman, 1 Stark. Rep. 90. (k) Cunliffe v. Seston, 2 East, 183; Burt v. Walker, 4 B. & Ald. 697; Stark. on Evid. Part II. 338.
 - (1) Hill v. Phillips, 5 Car. & P. 356.

(m) See ante, 625.

(n) See Cooke v. Tanswell, 8 Taunt. 450; Poole v. Warren, 8 Ad. & El. 582; 3 N. & P. 693, S. C.

(0) And by the rule of H. T. 4 Will. 4, (1834,) s. 20, it is ordered, that either party, after plea pleaded, and a reasonable time before trial, may give notice to the other, either in town or country, in the form hereunto annexed, marked A., or the like effect, of his intention to adduce in evidence certain written or printed documents; and unless the adverse party shall consent by indorsement on such notice, within forty-eight hours, to make the admission specified, the party requiring such admission may call on the party required by summons to shew cause before a judge why he should not consent to such admission; or, in case of refusal, be subject to the costs of proof. And unless the party required shall expressly consent to make such admission, the judge shall, if he think the application reasonable, make an order that the costs of proving any document, specified in the notice, which shall be proved at the trial to the satisfaction of the judge or other presiding officer, certified by his indorsement thereon, shall be paid by the party so required, whatever may be the result of the cause.

Provided, that if the judge shall think the application unreasonable he shall indorse the summons accordingly.

Provided also, that the judge may give such time for inquiry or examination of the documents intended to be offered in evidence, and give such directions for inspection and examination, and impose such terms upon the party requiring the admission, as he shall think fit.

If the party required shall consent to the admission, the judge shall order the same to be

No costs of proving any written or printed document shall be allowed to any party who shall have adduced the same in evidence on any trial, unless he shall have given such notice as aforesaid, and the adverse party shall have refused or neglected to make such admiss in, or the judge shall have indorsed upon the statemons that he does not think it reasonable to require it.

A judge may make such order as he may think fit respecting the costs of the application and the costs of the production and inspection; and in the absence of a special order, the same shall be costs in the cause.

Form of Notice referred to.

A. B. v. C. D.

In the K. B., C. P., or Exchequer.

Take notice that the { plaintiff defendant } in this cause proposes to adduce in evidence the seveI. In genebe proved, and how. Secondly, How Defendant became Party to Bill or Note. Effect of Defendant's admission.

*In general the signature of a party to a bill or note may be proved as ral what against him by his admission; and if he made such admission before the bill was due, and the holder received the bill on the faith of such representation, the party will be precluded afterwards from disputing the fact, or shewing that the hand-writing was a forgery (p)(1): and in an action against a person as acceptor, though the plaintiff fail in proving the defendant's hand-writing, and it appear to be a forgery, yet proof that the defendant has paid several other bills, accepted in like manner, will establish his liability (q). And an admission of a hand-writing, made by the defendant, pending a treaty for compromising the suit, is evidence against him(r). But not so if expressly made without prejudice, whether verbal or in writing(s). In an action against an indorser, proof that the defendant had written a letter, stating that he had received a bill corresponding with that upon which the action was > ral documents hereunder specified, and that the same may be inspected by the { defendant } his attorney or agent, at —, on —, between the hours of —, and that the { defendant } will be required to admit that such of the said documents as are specified to be originals were respectively written, signed, or executed, as they purport respectively to have been; that such as are specified as copies are true copies; and such documents as are stated to have been served, sent, or delivered were so served, sent, or delivered respectively; saving all just exceptions to the admissibility of all such documents as evidence in this cause. Dated, &c.

G. H. attorney for { plaintiff defendant } To E. F. attorney & defendant. } or agent for { plaintiff. } [Here describe the documents, the manner of doing which may be as follows:]-

Originals.

Description of Documents.	Date.
(inter alia) Letter defendant to plaintiff. Bill of exchange for 100l. at three months, drawn by A. B. on and accepted by C. D., indorsed by E. F. and G. H.	lst March, 1828. 1st May, 1829.

Conies

Copics.
Description of Documents.	Date.	Original or Duplicate served, sent, or de- livered, when, how, and by whom.
(inter alia) Letter plaintiff to defendant. Notice to produce papers	1st February, 1828. 1st March, 1828	Sent by general post, February, 1828. Served 2nd March, 1828, on defendant's attorney, by E. F. of ——.

In Field v. Fleming, 5 Dowl. P. C. 450; 7 C. & P. 619, S. C. nom. Field v. Hemming, the plaintiff declared on a note dated the 10th of November, but in the notice to admit the hand-writing described the note as bearing date the 10th day of October. A verdict having been found for the plaintiff, the court refused to set it aside, as it did not appear the defendant had been misled.

- (p) Leach r. Buchanan, 4 Esp. Rep. 226, (Chit. j. 657); Cooper v. Le Blanc, 2 Stra. 1051, (Chit. j. 281); ante, 407, note (i); Hart v. King, 12 Mod. 809, (Chit. j. 212.)
- (q) Barber v. Gingell, 3 Esp. Rep. 60, (Ch. j. 618); ante, 31, note (g).
 - (r) Walridge v. Kennison, 1 Esp. Rep. 143. (s) Cory v. Bretton, 4 Car. & P. 462.
- (1) But notwithstanding an acknowledgment of the signature to the note, the maker may produce evidence of persons acquainted with his hand-writing, to state their opinion that the signature is not genuine, and also to prove the same by signatures known to be his. Such an acknowledgment is not conclusive, and may be shown to have been made by mistake. Hall v. Huse, 10 Mass. Rep. 39. The acknowledgment of the maker of his hand-writing on the note does away the necessity of proving it by the subscribing witness. Hall v. Phelps, 2 John. Rep. 451. If the subscribing witness deny the execution of the note, it may be proved aliunde. Ibid. Where the subscribing witness is out of the state, other evidence is admissible to prove the hand-writing of the maker, and this before proving the hand-writing of the subscribing witness. Horner p. Wallis, 11 Mass, Rep. 309.

nit .

, R4 9

. ::

1-2

,, r

;12# ·

31 12

15. 9

brought, and that after issue joined he had declared that he came to town to I. In genehasten the trial of a cause brought against him on an indorsement he had ral what made upon a bill, and that he had carried the cause down by proviso, was be proved, held sufficient(t). And in an action against defendant as acceptor, his giv- and how. ing a notice to produce papers relating to the bill described therein as "accepted by the said defendant," is prima facie evidence of defendant's acceptance(u). And an admission under a judge's order, that a bill was accepted by the defendant's partner for self and partner, coupled with production of the bill, is sufficient evidence in an action brought upon the bill against the defendant, the only plea being a traverse of the acceptance (x).

But an admission in general only operates against the party making it; and Admissions therefore proof that one of the indorsers had confessed his signature is not not Evidence admissible evidence in an action by an indorsee against the drawer of a against bill(y)(1); and we have seen that in an action against several drawers, in-third Par(t) Dale v. Lubbock, 1 Barn. K. B. 199.

(u) Holt v. Squire, Ryan & Moody, 282, (Chit. j. 1272).

(x) Bartlett v. Martin, 1 Jurist, 499.

(y) Hemmings v. Robinson, Barnes, 3d edit. 436, (Chit. j. 274); cited in Whitcomb v. Whiting, 2 Dougl. 652, (Chit. j. 409). In an action by the indorsee of a note against the maker, it was reserved as a point whether the acknowledgment of an indorser was sufficient evidence to prove his indorsement, and the court held not; Roscoe on Bills, 287.

In Western v. Wilmott, tried at Westminster Hall, 5th July, 1820, before Abbott, C. J. plaintiff declared against defendant as acceptor of a bill drawn by Berne, payable to his own order, indorsed by him to Smith, by him to Cross, and by him to the plaintiff. Plaintiff proved the indorsement by Berne and by Cross, and that Smith, on being applied to after the defendant was shewn the bill and indorsements, admitted the indorsement of Smith as his hand-writing. It was also proved that the defendant, after the bill became due, was shewn the bill, and informed that plaintiff was the holder; whereupon he admitted it was a just debt, and that he would pay shortly. Chitty, for plaintiff, submitted, that such acknowledgment by Smith was sufficient in this action, and that defendant's admission was also equivalent to an account stated. But Abbott, C. J. said, that such admission by a third person could not affect the defendant; and that as there was no original debt, or privity between the parties, this was not an account stated; therefore plaintiff was nonsuited. But see Maddocks v. Hankey, 2 Esp. Rep. 647, (Chit. j. 598); post, 645, note (c).

(1) \(\text{An acknowledgment, however, made by the maker of a note, to one who had once held the note as endorsee, will enure to the benefit of the holder. McRoe v. Kennon, 1 Ala. Rep. (New Series), 295. So the declarations of the payce of a negotiable note, made while he retains it in his possession, are admissible in evidence, although he may have previously written thereon his endorsement to a third person, in whose name the action is brought. Whittier r. Voze, 16 Maine Rep. 403. But the declarations of the payee of a note, who is not at the time, the holder, and while it is actually held by another for value, are not admissible in evidence in a suit upon it against the maker, by an indorsee. Russell v. Doyle, 15 id. 112 }

The confessions of one partner made after the dissolution of the partnership, in relation to a demand against the partnership not barred by the statute of limitations, are competent, though not conclusive evidence against a copartner, the joint contract being first proved aliunde. Cady

v. Shepherd, 11 Pick. Rep. 406.

In an action on a note payable to A. B. or bearer, transferred and suit brought by the assignee. evidence of the declarations or admissions made by the payee, while the holder and owner of the note, in discharge of the drawer, is inadmissible. Whitaker v. Brown, 8 Wend. Rep. 490. The payee is a competent witness, and should be produced to prove the defence set up. Pinkerton v. Bailey, 8 Wend. 600. Baker v. Briggs, S Pick. Rep. 122.

A note was made by a failing debtor, on which the payee immediately made an attachment of the debtor's property. Part of the alleged consideration of the note was an acceptance made by the payee, of an order drawn on him by the debtor, in favor of another creditor. A subsequent attaching creditor being admitted, under the statute, to defend, it was held, that the plaintiff could not introduce evidence of his own declarations made on the day when the note was given, to show that the acceptance was made before the attachment. Carter v. Gregory, 8 Pick. Rep. 165.

In an action by the assignee of a note against the payee, who had assigned it warranting it to be due, the admissions of a person whose name appeared to the note, as maker, were held to be inadmissible in evidence to prove the execution of the note by him, and thereby defeat a recovery by the plaintiff, on the ground that the supposed maker himself might be called on as a witness. Warner et al. v. M'Gary, 4 Vermont Rep. 507.

Digitized by Google

I. In gene-dorsers, or acceptors, a mere admission upon the pleadings by one, of his ral what signature will not exempt the plaintiff *from proving it against the other ral what signature, will not exempt the plaintiff *from proving it against the others. be proved, though an admission in fact would be otherwise (z). and how.

[*637] Effect of Part-payment.

A promise to pay the amount of the bill, or a part payment of it after it is due, is an admission of the acceptance(a) and of the other party's hand-The payment of money into court, generally, on the whole de-Promise or writing (b). claration, precludes the defendant from disputing his signature(c). But an offer to pay a part as a compromise is no evidence, because, as observed by Lord Mansfield, "men must be permitted to endeavour to buy their peace, without prejudice to them, if the offer do not succeed(d)." Though an offer of a specific sum by way of compromise is admissible in evidence, unless accompanied with a caution that the offer is confidential or without prejudice(e).

Thirdly, Proof of Title.

Thirdly. It will be incumbent on the plaintiff to prove his interest in the Plaintiff's bill or note, or in other words, how he became a party to it. Interest or the bearer of a bill or note, originally payable to bearer, has in general only to produce the instrument (f); though, under suspicious circumstances, the As Payee bearer of a note transferrable by delivery may be required to prove that he, or some person under whom he makes his title, took it bona fide, and gave a valuable consideration for it(g). But if in an action by the indorsee of a note, payable to A. or bearer, the indorsement by A. be unnecessarily stated, it must be proved(h). Where a bill is drawn with the payee's name in blank, and the plaintiff inserts his own name as payee, he must adduce evidence to shew he was intended as payee(i). Proof of a promissory note payable to A. B., generally, is prima facie evidence of a promise to A. B. the father, and not to A. B. the son, the names being the same; but A. B. the son, bringing the action, and being described as the younger in the declaration, and being in possession of the note, is entitled to recover upon it(k).

(z) Ante, 628, notes (z) and (a).

(a) Jones v. Morgan, 2 Campb. 474, (Chit. j. 807).

(b) Helmsley v. Loader, 2 Campb. 450, (Chit. j. 799); Bosanquet v. Anderson, 6 Esp. Rep. 43, (Chit. j. 726).

(c) Gutteridge v. Smith, 3 Hen. Bla. 374, (Chit. j. 534); Watkins v. Towers, 2 T. R. 275; Guillod v. Nock, 1 Esp. Rep. 347; Israel v. Benjamin, 3 Campb. 40, (Chit. j. 837); ante, 626, note (c).

(d) Bull. N. P. 236; Gunn r. Gulloch, Westminster Sittings after Trinity Term, 1755, 1 Esp. Dig. 175.

(e) Wallace v. Small, Mood. & M. 446. (f) Per Lord Mansfield, Dougl. 632; King

v. Milsom, 2 Campb. 5, (Chit. j. 764). (g) Per Lord Mansfield, in Grant v. Vaughan, 3 Burr. 1627, (Chit j. 635); ante, 253 to (h) Wynam v. Bend, 1 Campb. 175, (Chit. j. 746); Rex r. Stevens, 5 East, 244; 1 Smith's Rep. 437, S. C.

Wynam v. Bend, 1 Campb. 175, (Chit. j. 746). Action against the defendant as maker of a promiseory note for 2001., Payable to L. Toader or bearer. The declaration stated that L. Toader, to whom the sum of money mentioned in the note was payable, indorsed it to the plaintiff. No evidence of this indorsement being given, it was contended, that the plaintiff's case was imperfect, and that he must be called. The counsel on the opposite side answered, that the averment being unnecessary might be rejected, and that at any rate the plaintiff might recover under the count for money had and received, the note being for value received. Lord Ellenborough held, that as an indorsement was stated, though unnecessarily in the count on the note, it must be proved; and that the plaintiff could not recover under any of the money counts, as he was not an original party to the bill, and there was no evidence of any value being received by the defendant from him. A witness, however, was afterwards found, who proved the hand-writing of L. Tonder, and the plaintiff had a verdict.

(i) Crutchley v. Mann, 1 Marsh. 29; 5 Taunt. 529, (Chit. j. 908).

(k) Sweeting v. Fowler, 1 Stark. Rep. 106, (Chit. j. 946).

The declarations of one of several partners cannot be given in evidence to prove a partnership; they are testimony only against the party making them. M'Pherson v. Rathbone, 7 Wend. Rep.

وفودا

. 177

7 1.7°

--- 11

.. 5

. . 1

. ne

وتمهي

1.450

****** *****

, no 823 M

,,d ~, #7

y 🕳 🚉 :

- 21

If a note be payable to a firm of A. B. and Co., and A. B. and C. D. sue I. In genethereon, they must prove that they were, at the time the note was given, the ral what Facts must competent members of such firm (l)(1).

*In an action against the acceptor or indorser of a bill(m), or the indorser and how. of a note(n), the hand-writing of the drawer of the bill as such, and the maker of the note, are considered as admitted, and need not be proved, nor can Proof of it be contradicted by the defendant(o); and the circumstance of its having Plaintiff's been forged constitutes no defence, unless it appear that the bill was accepted Interest or Title. before the drawer had sight of the bill, in which case it is said that the draw- As Indorer's hand-writing must be proved(p). In an action against the drawer or indorser of a bill, accepted generally, if it be unnecessarily alleged that it was [*638] accepted, such acceptance need not be proved (q). But if the bill has been accepted payable at a place different to the address at the foot of the bill, and it be necessary to prove a presentment at the place so specified in the acceptance, then such acceptance must be proved in an action against the drawer or indorser(r), though it need not be alleged in the declaration(s).

be proved,

An indorsee of a bill or note, transferrable in the first instance only by indorsement, must, in an action against the acceptor or drawer, prove that the when and how prov-

(1) Post, 644, note (c); Waters and others v. Paynter, Sittings at Westminster, 14th December, 1826, before Abbott, C. J. This was an action by the payees against maker, on a note payable to Messrs. Waters, Jones, and Co. bankers, Carmarthen. The promise in the declaration being stated to the plaintiffs under the name and description of Messrs. Waters, Jones, and Co, the only proof for the plaintiffs was the hand-writing of the defendant. Abbott, C. J. "In this case you must go further, and shew that Messrs. Waters, Jones, and Co. bankers, Carmarthen, are Robert Waters, John Waters, and David Jones, the plaintiffs in this action. The distinction ought to be understood ---where a bill or note is indorsed generally, the holders, whoever they may be, are as such entitled to recover: but where the promise is to pay a certain firm, it must be shewn that the plaintiffs are the persons who compose that firm." Chilton for plaintiff. The learned judge permitted the cause to stand over for a few hours until the necessary witness was ob-

(m) Wilkinson r. Lutwidge, 1 Stra. 648, (Chit. j. 263); Jenys v. Fowler, 2 Stra. 946, (Chit. j. 272); Price r. Neale, Burr. 1351; 1 Bla. Rep. 390, (Chit. j. 864, 365); per Dampier, J. in Bass. Clive, 4 Maule & S. 15, (Ch. j. 930).

(n) Free v. Hawkins, Holt, C. N. P. 550, (Chit. j. 1000). In an action against the payee of a promissory note, who was likewise the indorser, held, that his indorsement was an admission of the hand-writing of the maker. Action by indersee against the payee of a promissory note, of which Sir Robert Salisbury was ed. the maker, and the defendant became the payee and indorser, as surety for Sir Robert Salisbury, to the plaintiffs. The only evidence of the making of the note by Sir Robert Salisbury was by proving the indorsement of the note by the defendant, which was objected to by Mr. Serjeant Lens. But Gibbs, C. J. ruled, from the analogy of a bill of exchange, where the acceptance is an admission of the hand-writing of the drawer, that the indorsement by the payer is an admission of the hand-writing of the maker.

(o) Sed vide Bul. N. P. 270, where it is said, that although an acceptance is prima facie an admission of the hand-writing of the drawer, in an action against the acceptor it is not conclusive so as to prevent him from proving the contrary.

(p) Free v. Hawkins, Holt, C. N. P. 550, (Chit. j. 1000); Penke's Evid. 4th edit. 248, sed quære; see per Parke, B. in Farr v. Ward, 2 M. & W. 844, 846. And in Schultz v. Astley, 7 Car. & P. 99, it was held, that where a party draws a bill in a name different from that which he generally used at the time, it is not necessary in an action against the acceptor to shew that such name was on the bill at the time it was accepted.

(q) Tanner v. Bean, 4 Bar. & Cres. 312: 6 Dow. & Ry. 338, (Chit. j. 1261); overruling Jones v. Morgan, 2 Campb. 474, (Chit. j. 807).

(r) Sedgwick v. Jager, 5 Car. & P. 199,

(Chit. j. 1582).

(s) Parks v. Edge, 1 C. & M. 429; S. C. 8 Tyrw. 364; 1 Dowl. P. C. 643.

It is sufficient to prove by a person who knows the fact, that the plaintiffs at the date of the note carried on business in partnership under the name or firm contained in the note as payees. łЬ.

⁽¹⁾ Where a note or bill is payable to a firm, strict proof is required that the firm consists of the plaintiffs on the record; a letter stating who composes the firm from one of the plaintiffs to the attorney, and the information of one other individual to the same effect, is not sufficient. M'-Gregor v. Cleaveland, 5 Wend. Rep. 475.

and how.

Thirdly, Proof of Plaintiff's Title. As Indorsee.

I. In gene- bill was indorsed by the person to whose order it was intended to be made rai what Payable (t) (1); and if there was a subscribing witness *to the indorsement he be proved, must be subpoenzed(u). And even in an action against the acceptor, the first indorsement of a bill must be proved, although it was payable to the drawer's own order, and indorsed by him, because the acceptance only admits the hand-writing of the party as drawer, and not as inderser(x). And it has even been holden, that the circumstance of the defendant having accepted the bill after it was indorsed, does not dispense with proof of such indorsement(y); and in an action by an indorsee against the drawer, the indorsement of the payee must be proved, although the bill, with the indorsement upon it, was shewn to the defendant after it was due, and he did not then object to the title of the holder(z)(2).

> (t) Smith v. Chester, 1 T. R. 654, (Chit. j. 439); Macferson v. Thoytes, Peake's Rep. 20, (Chit. j. 469)

> Smith v. Chester, 1 T. R. 654, (Chit. j. 439). Indorsee of a bill of exchange against the acceptor. It appeared at the trial before Buller, J. at the last Sittings at Westminster, and when the bill was accepted there were several indorsements upon it; but the plaintiffs not being able to prove the hand-writing of the first indorser, was nonsuited. Bower now moved to set aside this nonsuit, on the ground that as these indorsements were on the bill at the time of the acceptance, they must be taken to have been admitted by the acceptor, and he could not afterwards dispute them: and he cited in support of this a determination of Lord Mansfield's in the case of Pratt v. Howison, Sittings after T. T. 23 Geo. 3, at Guildhall; and another case, in Sayer, 223, observing, that there would be great hardship in the case of foreign bills of exchange, in many instances, on account of the difficulty and inconvenience of proving the hand-writing of the first indorser, who may be unknown to the holder. Per Ashhurst, J. "The law has been otherwise settled: and if it were not so, there would be no difference in this respect between bills payable to order and those payable to bearer, and it would open a door to great fraud." Per Buller, J. "This point was much considered in a late case before this court, when they were perfectly clear that an indorsee of a bill of exchange in an action against the acceptor, was obliged to prove the hand-writing of the first indorser. For when a bill is presented for acceptance, the acceptor only looks to the hand-writing of the drawer, which he is afterwards precluded from disputing; and it is on that account that an acceptor is liable, even although the bill be forged."

Per Grose, J. "This matter appears extremely clear; for the payment of a bill of exchange to the holder is no payment to the person in whose favour it is drawn, unless it is indorsed by him." Rule refused.

Macferson v. Thoytes, Peake's Rep. 20, (Chit. j. 469). Assumpsit on a bill of exchange, indorsee against acceptor. The bill was drawn by one Parry, payable to his own order, and the name of Parry was indorsed on it. The plaintiff proved the hand-writing of all the indorsers except the first. The defendant's counsel insisted that this should be proved. It was answered, that the acceptance was an admission of the hand-writing of the drawer, and that by comparing that hand-writing with the indorsement, they would be found to correspond. Per Lord Kenyon, "Comparison of hands is no evidence. If it were so, the situation of a jury, who could neither write nor read, would be a strange one; for it is impossible for such a jury to compare the hand-writing."
The plaintiff was therefore called. And see Skinn. 411; 1 Atk. 282

(u) Stone v. Metcalf, 1 Stark. Rep. 53, (Chit. j. 943); ante, 633, 634.

(x) See note (t), supra; and Bosanquet v. Anderson, 6 Esp. Rep. 43, (Chit. j. 726), post, 645, note (l). But after the indorsement is proved to have been made by the drawer, the acceptor is estopped from objecting to an irregularity in the indorsement; Schultz v. Astley, 2 Bing. N. C. 544; 2 Scott, 815, S. C.; ante, 214, note (o).

(y) See note (i), ante, 637; and Bosanquet v. Anderson, 6 Esp. Rep. 43, (Chit. j. 726); post, 645, note (1).

(z) Duncan v. Scott, 1 Campb. 101; 2 Campb. 183, in notes, (Chit. j. 742). When otherwise, Ryan & Mood. 403.

It is for a jury to determine, in such a case, whether the drawer had authority or not, taking into view the connection and relationship of the parties, and the probable motives of the indorser. The maker in this case was the brother-in-law of the defendant. Ib.

(2) Where a sealed bill is signed, and suit brought in the name of the assignor, he must prove the assignment under the plea of non est factum. McMurtry v. Campbell, Ohio Rep. Cond. 125.

⁽¹⁾ In an action against a party sought to be charged as the indorser of a promissory note, where it is proved that the signature of the indorser is not in the hand-writing of the party, but in that of the maker, it is competent to the plaintiff, for the purpose of showing authority in the maker, and acquiescence in the indorser, to prove that the defendant remained silent, although he received notice of protest, was sued, suffered a default in pleading, and took no measures to defend the suit, until after the maker absconded, and that the indorser had assumed the payment of other notes similarly situated Weed v. Carpenter, 10 Wend. Rep. 403.

17 15

100

1- 415 1 () 2 () 3 () 4 ()

e process Builde Builde Builde

. . . .

4 1279

, year

jar X

, list

. ::5

Towers The second

. w:

The second secon

And though the drawee by the terms of his acceptance make it payable at I. In genea banker's, the latter must in an action for the money, as paid for his use, ral what Facts must prove the first indorser's hand-writing(a) So although the acceptance of a be proved, bill, drawn by procuration, admits the agent's hand-writing and his authority and how. to draw, yet it does not admit the indorsement by the same procuration; and Thirdly, in an action against the acceptor, the indorsement, as well as the authority to Proof of make it, must be proved(b). *And it should seem, that where the indorse-

> "17, Broad-street Buildings, London." And indorsed on the back,-" Per pro. Chas. Stachen and Co."

"A. Henry and Co." The first count of the declaration stated, that A. Henry, using the name, style, and firm of C. Stachen and Co drew the bill on the defendant, and that after his acceptance, he indorsed it to the plaintiffs. The second count stated, that Henry drew and indorsed the bill in his own name; and the third, that the bill was drawn and indorsed by certain persons using the name, style, and firm of Stachen and Co. who indorsed it, but neither of these counts noticed the procuration. The cause was tried before Mr. Justice Burrough at the Sittings at Guildhall after the last Hilary Term, when the plaintin's adduced evidence to prove that the body of the bill of exchange, as well as the indorsement, was of the hand-writing of Henry, who was previously a partner with Stachen and Co. but that at the time of drawing the bill there was no such firm as Stachen and Co.; that such a firm had existed, which was dissolved on the 1st of January, 1816; and after that time Henry carried on business on his own account. The hand-writing of the defendant as acceptor, and the due presentment of the bill were also proved, but no evidence was given of the hand-writing of the indorsement by Henry. On the production of the bill it appeared to have been drawn and indorsed by Henry, per procuration of Stachen and Co. The learned judge thought the plaintiffs ought to prove the procuration, and as they were not prepared with such proof, he accordingly directed a nonsuit. A rule nisi had been obtained, and on shewing cause, Lord Chief Justice Gibbs said, "I cannot say whether there has been any private communication between these parties; but can only look to the instrument itself. Stachen and Co. appear to have authorized Henry to draw the bill, pavable to their order. The defendant, by his acceptance, admits that such a firm as Stacher and Co. was in existence, and also the bill was drawn by Henry by their procuration. By accepting this bill purporting to be drawn by Henry, as the agent for Stachen and Co. the defendant renders himself answerable to them for its The defendant has by his acceptance admitted that Henry was authorized to draw the bill by procuration, but he has not admitted thereby that it might be indorsed in this manner; it was not proved that Henry was so empowered. The defendant might say that he had by his acceptance admitted the existence of the firm of Stachen and Co., and that the bill was drawn by Henry as their agent, but be does not thereby admit that the indorsement

(a) Forster v. Clements, 2 Campb. 217, (Chit. j. 765). Assumpsit for money paid. Plea, the general issue. This was brought by Messrs. Forster, Lubbocks, and Co. bankers in London to recover the sum of 100l., paid by them to the holder of a bill of exchange, accepted by the defendant, payable at their bankinghouse. The bill was drawn by one Hanley, payable to his own order, and when paid by the plaintiffs, had his indorsement upon it. Paley, of counsel for the plaintiffs, at first satisfied himself with proving the defendant's handwriting to the bill; that it was paid by the plaintiffs, and that the defendant had then no effects in their hands. Lord Ellenborough said he must go farther, and give evidence of the indorsement by Hanley, to whose order the bill was payable. Paley contended, that prima facie the hand-writing must be taken to be Hanley's, and that as it was the custom of bankers to pay a bill with the name of the payee written on the back of it, a request from the acceptor must be understood for them to do so. When this bill was presented to the plaintitis for payment, it appeared in a negotiable shape, and they were authorised to pay it without inquiring into the title of the holder. Per Lord Ellenborough, "If the acceptor of a bill of exchange makes it payable at a banker's, he requests the latter to pay it only to the payee or his own order, and not to any person who presents it. If the banker pays it without ascertaining the indersement to be genuine, it is at his own risk. The name of Hanney upon this bill may be forged, in which case the plaintiffs have paid it in their own wrong." Evidence was afterwards given of acknowledgment by the defendant that Hanley had indorsed the bill, and the plaintiffs had a verdict for the 1007, but without interest, to which Lord Ellenborough said they had shewn no right.

(b) Robinson v. Yarrow, 7 Taunt. 455; 1 Moore, 150, (Chit. j. 993). Held, that the acceptance of a bill of exchange admits mercly the drawing, but not the indorsement of the drawer Therefore, if a bill be drawn and indorsed by procuration, it was held in an action by the indorsees against the acceptor, that as the indersement by procuration was not proved, they were not entitled to recover. This was an action brought by the plaintiffs as indorsees against the defendant as acceptor of the following bill of exchange:-

"London, Jaly 6, 1916. "Two months after date, pay to our or-"der Thirty Pounds, for value received. " Per pro. CHAS. STACHEN and Co. "A. HENRY."

"To Mr. John S. Yarrow,

91

Digitized by Google

Interest or Title.

As Indorsee. #640] and how. Thirdly, Proof of Plaintiff's Interest or Title.

Indorsements when and how proved.

I. In gene- ment only states the initial of the name of the principal, thus, " Per pro. H. Pickersgill, John Pickersgill," and the declaration avers that Hannah Facts must Pickersgill indorsed, not only her authority but her christian name must be proved(c); although it is supposed that in that case Lord Tenterden thought at nisi prius, "that as the defendant's acceptance admitted the authority to draw by procuration in that particular form, and that the indorsement being in the same form and hand-writing, it might be taken to have been made with the same authority;" yet it further appeared that other bills had been pre-As Indor- viously drawn, accepted, and indorsed in like manner, and the decision turned upon other particular circumstances, and must not be considered as a precedent for other cases. And in a subsequent case, where in an action by indorsee against *acceptor, the witness proved that neither the drawing nor indorsement was in the hand-writing of the person whose they purported to be, but that the defendant had acknowledged the acceptance to be his, [*641] and it was contended, that as the acceptance admitted the drawing to be correct, the jury might find for the plaintiff, if they thought upon inspection of the bill that the drawing and indorsement were of the same hand-writing, yet it was held by Tindal, C. J. that it was necessary that some proof should be given as to whose the hand-writing was, and for want of it the plaintiff was nonsuited (d). So it has been held, that in an action on a promissory note, in which the question is whether the defendant has indorsed it or not, the plaintiff cannot give in evidence a number of other notes, bearing the defendant's undoubted signature, with a view of having the jury compare the hand-writing of those signatures with the indorsement on the note in question; nor can the jury compare anything with the indorsement, except documents otherwise in evidence in the cause(e). It seems, however, that if the drawer and payee of a bill deliver it with his name indorsed on it to another, proof of such delivery, with the name indorsed, is sufficient, without proof of hand-writing (f); and the court will not, in an action by the indorsee, al-> was on the same terms, and it was therefore necessary that such procuration should be prov-Rule discharged. As to authority of agent in general, see ante, 28 to 32, and 197

> (c) See per Bayley, J. in Jones v. Turnour, 4 Car. & P. 206, (Chit. j. 1488). The declaration in an action on a bill stated it to have been drawn by one Hannah P., accepted by the defendant, and indorsed by the said Hannah P. to the plaintiffs. The drawing and indorsement appeared to be in this form: -Per pro. H. P. -John P. A clerk of the plaintiff proved that the drawing and indorsement were of the handwriting of a Mr. John P., whom he understood to be the son of a Mrs. P., whom he had never seen, but with whose house the house of his employers had dealings, and that he had seen bills drawn and accepted in the same form as the bill in question, some of which bills had been paid. The plaintiffs, on this evidence, had a verdict, and a rule nisi for a new trial having been obtained, an affidavit, in consequence of an observation made by the Lord Chief Justice, was produced, stating the name of the party to be Hannah P., and that the bill was drawn by her authority. And the court on the whole evidence refused to make the rule

(d) Allport v. Meek, 4 Car. & P. 267, (Ch. 1489); and see Cooper v. Meyer, 1 Lloyd & Welsby's Comm. Cases, (Chit. j. 1480).

The case of Allport and another v. Meek was thus:---Assumpsit on a bill of exchange, drawn by one Williams on and accepted by the defendant, and indorsed by Williams to the plaintiffs. The witness, who was called to prove the hand-writing of Williams, said, that neither the drawing nor the indorsement were written by him, and that he did not know by whom they were written.

Wilde, Serjeant, for the plaintiffs, then proved that the defendant had acknowledged that the acceptance was his, and submitted to his lordship, that as the acceptance admitted the drawing to be correct, the jury might look at the indorsement to see whether it was of the same hand-writing, as theidrawing. The reason why a witness is not allowed to speak to hand-writing by comparison is, that it is the province of the jury, and it has been decided that the jury may judge by comparison.

Tindal, C. J.—"I think you must call some witness to lay some evidence before the jury, on which they may decide."

Wilde, Serjeant, admitted that he could not carry the case any further, and the plaintiffs were nonsuited.

(e) Bromage v. Rice, 7 Car. & P. 548; see Doe v. Suckermore, 5 Ad. & El. 703; 2 N. & P. 16, S. C; ante, 633, note (o).

(f) Glover v. Thomson, Ryan & Moo. 403, (Chit. j. 1306).

hr:

2.0

n Aru

· 7.

- 21.72

200

. .

1998

2:3

5.1.2

: 53

er i de

1- 32

. . · بن

, , , ; 🤰

11.25

4 19.00

, . Yes, 18

ه و ايد

200

. g,n =13

,a tire¥

1-15 $

, • ~~ ^

1943 3

T/#

3139

78.2 10

p. 941.# 3, 333

20° 78 و س ۱۰۰ ر ۱ low the acceptor of a bill who negotiates it with the drawer's name indorsed, I. In geneto plead that it was not indorsed by the drawer to the plaintiff (g).

Proof that the bill was indorsed by a person of the same name as the perbe proved, son intended, will prima facie suffice; but if there be any doubt whether and how. the transfer were made by the proper party, the witness who is to prove the Thirdly, indorsement should be prepared to prove the identity of the party, though Proof of in general such latter proof is not required, and it lies on the defendant to Plaintiff's Interest or disprove the identity (h). Where in an action by the indorsee against the Title. acceptor of a bill, of which E. S. was the payee, the plaintiff proved that a As Indors person calling himself E. S. came to C. having in his possession the bill in ee. question, and also a letter of introduction (proved to be genuine), which was Indorseexpressed to be given to a person introduced to the writer as E. S., and ments also another bill drawn by the writer of that letter, and that the bearer of when and these decumpants after requising ten days at C. (during which time he deity how provthese documents, after remaining ten days at C. (during which time he daily ed. visited the plaintiff), indorsed to him the bill in question, and received value for it, and also a letter of credit, it was held, that this was evidence of the identity of this person with E. S., the payee of the bill, &c. in the absence of any evidence in answer sufficient to justify a verdict for the plaintiff(i).

*So where the first indorsement was in full, directing the acceptor to pay [*642] the bill to a certain person, who indorsed the same to the plaintiff, the latter must, in an action against the drawer or acceptor, prove the indorsement of that person(k); and all the indorsements stated, though unnecessarily, in the declaration, must be proved (l). But if the first indorsement was in blank, it will be unnecessary, even in an action against the drawer or acceptor, to prove any of the subsequent indorsements, although they were in full(m); and they may be struck out at the time of the trial, unless unnecessarily stated in the declaration (n). it has been held that the indorsement on a bill, not stated in the declaration, may be struck out even after the bill has been read in evinence, and after an objection has been made on account of the variance(o). And a small mistake in the declaration in the name of the indorser, as describing him as Phillip, when the bill and evidence prove him to be Phillips, will not be material(p).

(g) Gilmore v. Hague, 4 Dowl. P. C. 303, K. B.

(h) Mead v. Young, 4 T. R. 28, (Chit. j. 467); ante, 198, note (e).

(i) Bulkeley v. Butler, in error, 2 Bar. & Cres. 434; 3 Dowl. & Ry. 625, (Chit. j. 1193).

It is a question for the judge, and not for the jury, whether the evidence of identity is sufficient so as to let in the declarations of the party; Corfield v. Parsons, 1 C. & M. 730.

(k) Ante, 231, 232.

(1) Cooper v. Lindo, B R. Sittings, London, after M. T. 52 Geo. 3, Selw. 9th edit. 372, note (t); Bosanquet v. Anderson, 6 Esp. Rep. 43, (Chit. j. 726); post, 645, 646, in notes; Sidford v. Chambers, 1 Stark. Rep. 326, (Chit. j. 960); post, 645, in notes. And see ante, 571, Cocks and others v. Borradaile and Co. MS. Action on a bill drawn by R. Borradaile on Messrs. W. C. and C. Borradaile and Co. (defendants), payable to G. Borradaile, or order. Bill indorsed by G. Borradaile; Sikes, Snaith, and Co.; Hodges and Co. First count stated all the indorsements. Second count, that plaintitls were immediate indorsees of the first indorser. Abbott, C. J. said, "all the indorsements must be proved, or struck out, although not stated in the declaration. I remember Mr. Justice Bayley so ruling, and striking them out himself on the trial, and this need not be done before the trial. In the course of the cause it appeared that plaintiffs were indemnified by Hodges and Co., the last indorsers; and Scarlett then offered evidence of what Hodges and Co. had said respecting the bill after action brought." Gurney and Pollock objected. Abbott, C. J. said, "that where the sheriff was indemnified, what the indemnifying party said was always received as evidence, and he thought the evidence was admissible in this case.'

(m) Walwyn v. St. Quintin, 1 B. & P. 658; 2 Esp. 514, (Chit. j. 578); Chaters v. Bell and others, 4 Esp. Rep. 210, (Chit. j. 636); Smith v. Chester, 1 T. R. 654, (Chit. j. 439); Bosanquet r. Anderson, 6 Esp. Rep. 43, (Chit. j. 726); post, 645, note (1).

(n) Supra, note (l), and 571, 572; 1 T.R. 654; 6 Esp. Rep. 43.

(o) Mayer v. Jadis, 1 Mood. & R. 247. (p) Forman v. Jacob, 1 Stark. Rep. 47. It

I. In general what Facts must be proved, and how.

Thirdly, Proof of Plaintiff's Interest or Title.

see.

Indorsements when and how proved. [*643]

If the bill or note be payable to the order of several persons not in partnership, the hand-writing of each must be proved (q); and though it is reported to have been held in one case, that an acceptance after an indorsement by one of the payees admits the regularity of the indorsement (r), that decision appears to be contrary to the former authorities; though, if a bill have several indorsements upon it at the time it is presented for acceptance, and the drawee, when he accepts, *expressly promises to pay the bill, it has been decided that the indorsements are admitted(s).

In an action against the drawer or acceptor of a bill payable to the order As Indor- of several persons in partnership, it is in general necessary to prove the partnership, and the hand-writing of one of them or of an agent in the name of the firm(t). But where a bill has been drawn and indorsed by one partner in the name of the firm, and the partnership is afterwards dissolved, the holder is not bound to prove that the bill was drawn and indorsed before the dissolution took place, because, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, the bill is presumed to have been drawn on the day on which it bears date; and although the indorsement bear no date, it may properly be left to the jury to determine the time at which the indorsement was made, and to infer, from the circumstance of the drawers being also the payees and indorsers of the bill, that the indorsement took place at or shortly after the date of the bill(u). And where to an action by the indorsee against the drawers of a bill, it was pleaded that the bill was drawn by a partner, but not for partnership purposes, and was indorsed to the plaintiff after it became due, to which the plaintiff replied, that it was not indorsed after it became due, but was indorsed to and taken and received by the plaintiff before it became due, it was held, that it was sufficient for the plaintiff to put in the bill, > appeared that the name of the indorser was Phillip Phillips; and it was objected that this varied from an allegation of an indorsement by Phillip Phillip, the person being different. The bill itself was payable to Phillip Phillips, and the name was so indorsed on the bill. Per Lord Ellenborough, " whether the name on the bill be the party's false or true name is immaterial, if it be his name of trade, the only question is as to the identity of the person.'

(q) Carvick v. Vickery, Dougl. 653, (Chit.

j. 410).

(r) Jones and another v. Radford, K. B. Sittings after H. T. 46 Geo. 3, 1 Campb. 83, (but see Carvick v. Vickery, Dougl. 630, 653, Ch. j. 410); Hankey v. Wilson, Say. 223, (Chit. j. 337), contrà, held, that in an action upon a bill, drawn payable to the order of two persons not partners, indorsed by one in the name of both, and afterwards accepted by the defendant, that the regularity of the indorsement could not be disputed. Action by the indorsee against the acceptor of a bill of exchange, payable to two persons of the names of Hopkins and M'-Michell. The bill had been indorsed by Hopkins in the name of himself and M'Michell, and defendant had accepted it with the indorsement upon it. The defence was, that the payees were not partners, and that the bill ought therefore to have been indorsed by both. But Lord Ellenborough held, that the defendant having accepted the bill indorsed by one for himself and the other, could not now dispute the regularity of this indorsement; but see Carvick v. Vickery, Dougl. 85, (Chit. j. 410); Smith v.

Chester, 1 T. R. 654, (Chit. j. 439); ante, 638, note (t).

(s) Hankey v. Wilson, Say. Rep. 223, (Ch. j. 337). Upon a rule to show cause why a new trial should not be had in an action of assumpsit, it appeared that the action was brought by the plaintiffs, as indorsees of a bill of exchange; that the defendant had accepted the bill; that there was no actual proof, that the name of one of the indorsers of the bill was of his hand-writing; that the name of that indorser, and the names of all the other indorsers, were upon the bill at the time of its being accepted; that at the time of his accepting it, the defendant promised to pay the bill, and that upon this evidence, which was left by Ryder, C. J. to the jury, a verdict was found for the plaintiffs. The question was, whether upon this evidence the matter ought to have been left to the jury? It was holden that it ought. And by the court.—It is in general necessary to give actual proof that the name of every indorser is of his hand-writing; but it is not necessary to do this in every case. In the present case, it was a matter proper for the determination of a jury, whether the acceptance of the bill when all the indorsers' names were upon it, together with the promise to pay, did not amount to an admission that the name of every indorser is of his hand-writing, inasmuch as such an admission would supersede the necessity of actual proof, that the name of any indorser is of his hand-writing.

(t) Ante, 37 to 61

(u) Anderson v. Weston, 6 Bing. N. C. 296-

hr

35.1

,-

. ' ?

100

J. 17. 12

4 - 2 3

g 18

a vi p

. . .. • 3 and not necessary that he should give any evidence to shew that the bill was I. In geneindorsed to him before it became due(x).

Where a bill has been made payable to the order of a fictitious person, it be proved, has been decided, that proof that the party sued knew of that circumstance and how. at the time he became a party to the bill, or before he transferred the same, Thirdly, will dispense with proof of the hand-writing of the supposed inderser(y).

Where several persons sue as indorsers of a bill of exchange, if the bill Plaintiff's Interest or appear indorsed in blank, there is no necessity for their proving that they Title. were in partnership together, or that the bill was indorsed or delivered to As Indorsthem jointly(z). But when a bill of exchange is payable *or indorsed spe- ee. cially to a firm, it has often been ruled, that in an action by the payees or Indorseindorsees, strict evidence must be given that the firm consists of the persons ments who sue as plaintiffs on the record (a). And it has been held, that if a note when and he navable to a firm of A B and C Abe payable to a firm of A. B. and Co., and A. B. and C. D. sue thereon, proved. they must prove that they were, at the time the note was given, the component [*644] members of such firm (b). And where a bill of exchange was, by the direction of the payee, indersed in blank and delivered to A. B. and Co., who were bankers, on the account of the estate of an insolvent, which was vested in trustees for the benefit of his creditors, it was held that A. and B., two of the members of the firm, and also trustees, could not, conjointly with a third trustee who was not a member of the firm, maintain an action against the indorser, without some evidence of the transfer of the bill to them as trustees by the firm, by delivery or otherwise (c)(1). When it is incumbent

(x) Parkin v. Moon, 7 Car. & P. 468

(y) Ante, 157, 158.

(z) Ord v. Portal, 3 Campb. 239; Rordasnz v. Leach, 1 Stark. Rep. 446, (Chit. j. 977); Atwood v. Rattenbury, 6 Moore, 579, (Chit. j. 1131). Actions by the plaintilis as indorsees. against the defendant as acceptor of a bill of exchange, drawn by one Sted, payable to his own order, and indorsed by him in blank. The plaintiffs' case being closed without shewing that the plaintiffs were in partnership, or that the bill had been indorsed to them jointly, Garrow, for the defendant, insisted that they ought to be nonsuited. The declaration alleged, that the drawer of the bill indorsed and delivered the bill to the three plaintiffs, and there was no evidence whatsoever in support of this allegation. Per Lord Ellenborough, "There is no occasion for any such evidence. The indorsement in blank conveys a joint right of action to as many as agree in suing on the bill." The plaintiffs had a verdict.

Rordasnz v. Leach, 1 Stark. Rep. 446, (Ch. j. 977). The two plaintiffs sued as the indorsees of two bills of exchange. The bills had been indorsed in blank, and the only question was, whether it was incumbent on the plaintiffs to prove their joint title to sue on the bill by shewing that they were partners, or by proving a transfer to them jointly. Lord Ellenborough held that it was not. Verdict for the plain-

(Chit. j. 864).
(b) Waters v. Paynter, MS.; anle, 637, note (1).

(c) Machell v. Kinnear, 1 Stark. Rep. 499, (Chit. j. 981). This was an action by Machell. Boucher, and Birkbeck, as the indorsees of a bill of exchange, against the defendant as the indorser. The bill in question was dated on the 21st of August, 1815, and was drawn by Corbett on Goldie, for the payment of 400l. six months after date to his own order, indorsed by Corbett to Kinnear, the defendant, and indorsed by the latter in blank. The principal question was, whether under the circumstances such a right had been transferred to the plaintiffs as entitled them to sue upon the bill. It appeared that Machell and Boucher were two of the partners of which the firm of Langton and Co. consisted. Machell, Boucher, and Birkbeck, the three plaintitis, were the trustees of the estate of Holder, an insolvent for the benefit of the creditors; Birkbeck not being a member of the firm of Langton and Co. The defendant being indebted to the estate of Holder, transmitted the bill in question to his clerk in Liverpool, with directions to deliver it to Langton and Co. on the account of Holder's estate, and either to indorse it or give them a letter of guarantee to secure the payment. The clerk accordingly indorsed it in blank and delivered it to Langton and Co. Garrow, A. G. for the

⁽a) Note, in Ord v. Portal, 3 Campb. 240,

^{(1) {} Where the payee of a note sued as "manager of the National Provincial Bank" &c. but did not sue as a public officer, and the defendant not having pleaded that the bank was established under 7 Geo. 4, c. 46, and that the plaintiff was not the public officer, held that the plaintiff was not obliged to show that he was, and that the defendant could not show that he was not such public officer. Robertson r. Sheward, I Scott New Rep. 419. \rangle

I. In gene- on the plaintiff to prove the names of the partners of a firm, the counsel for ral what such plaintiff may suggest to the witness called to prove the partnership the be proved, names of the component members of the firm (d). and how.

Admis-

*It has been decided, that the admission by an indorser of a promissory sions, &c. note of his hand-writing is sufficient evidence of the indorsement in an action [*645] against the maker, because such admission is in derogation of the party's own title to the note, and therefore admissible(c); but that doctrine seems over-ruled (f). The indorser himself may be called as a witness to prove his own hand-writing (g), and the consideration given by the plaintiff; and he may be called to prove his indorsement after another witness for the plaintiff has negatived it(h); though it has been doubted whether, after the plaintiff has failed in proving the indorsement by one witness, he can call any other person(i). And a promise to pay(k), or request to renew(l), > defendant, objected that it was not competent to two of the firm of Langton and Co. to associate with themselves a third person who was a stranger, for the purpose of bringing an action on the bill, without shewing that the bill had been transferred by Langton and Co. to the plaintiffs, thus associated. Marryatt, for the plaintiffs, contended, that since the bill had been indorsed in blank, it was competent to any number of persons to associate together for the purpose of bringing an action. And he cited the case of Ord and others v. Portal, 3 Campb. 289, where it was held, that an indorsement in blank conveyed a joint right of action to as many as agreed to sue upon the bill; per Lord Ellenborough, "the bill having been indorsed, and delivered to Langton and Co. according to Kinnear's direction, Langton and Co. had authority to appropriate it. Since it was paid to them on account of Holder's estate, if they had received the amount it would have been money had and received by them on account of the estate, but the evidence, as it stands, proves the interest in the bill to be in Langton and Co. It would be sufficient to prove that Langton and Co. consented to appropriate the bill to the three plaintiffs as trustees. If Langton and Co. had indorsed it to the plaintiffs the right to sue would have been clear, or they might have transferred the right by a delivery of the bill, but without some evidence of this kind, the right to stue still remains in Langton and Co. Had it not been for the evidence of the particular transfer to Langton and Co. an indorsement in blank might have entitled the parties who bring the action to recover." Plaintiffs nonsuited.

> (d) Acerro v. Petroni, I Stark. Rep. 100. Assumpsit by the plaintiffs, bankers at Paris, upon an account stated by the defendant. witness called to prove the partnership of the plaintiffs could not recollect the names of the component members of the firm so as to repeat them without suggestion, but said he might possibly recognize them, if suggested to him. Lord Ellenborough, alluding to a case tried before Lord Mansfield, in which the witness had been allowed to read a written list of names, ruled, that there was no objection to asking the witness whether certain specified persons were members of the firm. The witness recollected the surnames but not the christian names, of those mentioned as members of the firm, and their christian names being specified in the declaration in the count upon an account stated, and the terms of the acknowledgment being generally to Acerro and Co. the plaintiffs were nonsuited Sed quære as to the christian names, which are not in general material. See Hodenpyl r. De Vingerhoed and another, ante, 627, note (q); Boughton r. Frere, 3 Campb. 29; Walker r. Willoughby, 2 Marsh, 139.

(e) Maddocks v. Hankey, 2 Esp. Rep. 647, (Chit. j. 598). Assumpsit by the indorsee of a promissory note against the maker; the promissory note was drawn by the defendant payable to one Sellier, who indorsed to Rymer, by whom it was indorsed to the plaintiff. plaintiff proved the hand-writing of the defendant and Rymer, by persons acquainted with them, and the only doubt in the case was as to the hand-writing of Sellier. The evidence to establish that fact was a person who had gone to Sellier, he then being in prison, and asked him if that was his hand-writing -To whom he acknowledged that it was. Gibbs, for the defendant, objected to this evidence, insisting, that such an admission of a fact was not evidence against the defendant, as it might be material to ascertain the time when the indorsement had been made. Lord Kenyon said, that he thought it was admissible and sufficient evidence, as it went in derogation of the parties' own title to the note, but he offered to reserve the case. The plaintiff had a verdict. Roscoe, 287, but see ante, 636, note (y).

(f) Western r. Wilmott, and Hemmings v.

Robertson, ante, 636, note (y).
(g) Richardson v. Allan, 2 Stark. Rep. 334; 2 Chit. Rep. 657, (Chit. j. 1022); Hobson v. Rich, Bart. on motion for new trial, K.B. A. D. 1826.

(h) Id. ibid.

(i) Id. ibid.

(k) Hankey. v. Wilson, Say. 223, (Chit. j.

337); ante, 643, note (s).

(1) Bosanquet v. Anderson, 6 Esp. Rep. 43, (Chit. j. 726); Sidford v. Chambers, 1 Stark. Rep. 326, (Chit. j. 960).

Bosanquet r. Anderson, 6 Esp. Rep. 43, (Chit. j. 726). In an action by the indorsee of a bill of exchange, where several indorsements have taken place, which are laid in the declaration, though necessary to be proved in general, yet if defendant applies for time to the ur ٠,٠٠,

., • •

... 13

10.

, · v*

. . . 62

b. . 9

100608

, , T

. 0

1,100 1,000

. UN

... ... *

. • '

... w #

(2 × 2⁴ $

ii. = T

87.2

20.00

34. IF شبخة نعل

.. - ".

made to an *indorsee after the bill was due, dispenses with the necessity I. In genefor proof of the indorsement, because it admits the title of the holder. after a partnership has been established in evidence, the admission of a part-be proved, ner, though not a party to the suit, is evidence as to joint contracts against and how. any other partner, as well after the determination of the partnership as during Thirdly, But although a bill of exchange has been shewn to the Proof of its continuance(m). drawer, with the name of the payee indorsed upon it, and he merely objects Plaintiff 'a to paying, that he had drawn it without consideration; in an action against Interest or Title. him by the indorsee, this does not dispense with regular proof of the indorse-The payment of money into court generally, on the whole decla- As Indorsration, amounts to an admission of the indorsement, and dispenses with the necessity of proving it(o), after proving the payment into court(p).

In an action against an inderser of a bill or note, the hand-writing of the when and drawer(q), and all prior indorsers(r) being admitted by the defendant's in- how prov-

And ral what

Indorse-

holder, and offers terms, it is an admission of the holder's title, and a waiver of proof of all the indorsements except the first. Assumpsit by the plaintiff as indorsee of a bill of exchange, drawn by Wilson in his own favour on the defendant who accepted it, and indorsed over by Wilson. The declaration stated several indorsements on the bill. The evidence for the plaintiff was only proof of the hand-writing of the first indorser, and that the defendant, when the bill became due, came to the plaintiffs, who were bankers, and then holders of the bill, and offered another bill in the place of it, he being then unable to take it up. It was contended for the defendant that it was necessary for the plaintiff to prove all the indorsements on the bill stated in the declaration, for that by the averments so made he had bound himself to prove them, though if he had not done so and declared only on the first indorsement, he might have recovered on that only. It was answered by the plaintiff's counsel that it was sufficient for the plaintiff to prove the hand-writing of the first indorser under the circumstances above stated; that of his offering terms to the plaintiff and thereby admitting the bill to be his; and that there was no necessity for proving the handwriting of all the indorsers though so laid in the declaration, as by such admission and offer he admitted the plaintiff's title to the bill, and thereby waived the necessity of such proof as would be otherwise necessary. Lord Ellenborough said, "that the acceptor by his acceptance admitted the hand-writing of his correspondent, the drawer, but if payable to the drawer's own order, his hand-writing as such indorser must in every case be proved, as that put the bill into circulation, and though he accepted the bill with many names on it, if they were laid in the declaration they should be proved; but he was of opinion that the offer here made to the acceptor to pay the bill to the plaintiffs, who then held the bill, with all the names on it, was a sufficient admission of the plaintiff's title, which was derived through the several indorsements, and of the defendant's liability, so as to supersede the necessity of proof of each person's hand-writing." dict for the plaintiff.

Sidford v. Chambers, 1 Stark. Rep. 326, (Chit j 500). This was an action by the in-dorsees of a bill of exchange against the indorser. The bill was drawn by Fish on Hill and Co., payable four months after date to the order of Fish, and indorsed by Fish to the defendant, by the defendant to Sheckles, by Sheckles to Niblock and Co., and by the latter to the plaintills. All the indorsements were stated in the declaration. The plaintiffs proved all the indorsements except that of Sheckles, and in order to supersede the proof of this indorsement they gave in evidence a letter written by the defendant to the plaintiffs, offering to give them a substituted bill, to be approved of by any moderate person, but stating that he had not money to take it up with; adding that he hoped it was not in the hands of Niblock and Co. At the time this letter was written the bill was in the hands of the solicitor for the plaintiffs, and the indorsements were complete. The Attorney-General for the plaintiffs submitted that this evidence was sufficient without further proof, and cited the case of Bosanquet v. Anderson, 6 Esp. Rep. 43, to shew that an application by a defendant for time was an admission of liability. Lord Ellenborough, remarking, that the hope expressed by the defendant that the bill was not in the hands of Niblock and Co., who were indorsers subsequent to the Sheckles, shewed that he knew the channel through which the plaintiff's title had been derived, was of opinion that the evidence amounted to proof of their title through that channel Verdict for the plaintiffs.

(m) Wood v. Braddick, 1 Taunt. 104; Phil. Evid. 3d edit. 75, 76; see fully as to this, ante, 53, 54.

(n) Duncan v. Scott, 1 Campb. 101, (Chit. j. 742).

(o) Gutteridge v. Smith, 2 Hen. Bla. 374. (Chit. j. 534).

(p) Israel v. Benjamin, 3 Campb. 40, (Chit.

(q) Lambert v. Pack, 1 Salk. 127; 1 Lord Raym. 443; 12 Mod. 244; Holt, 117, (Chit. j. 211); Free v. Hawkins, Holt, C. N. P. 550, (Chit. j. 1000).

(r) Id. ibid.; Critchlow v. Parry, 2 Campb. 192, (Chit. j. 774); Chaters v. Bell, 4 Esp. R. 210, (Chit. j. 636).

Critchlow v. Parry, 2 Campb. 182, (Chit. j. 774). Action by an indorsee against the inand how. Thirdly, Proof of Plaintiff's Interest or Title.

see.

I. In gene- dorsement, they need not be proved, although the bill be forged and although ral what stated(s). But if a subsequent indorsement be stated in the declaration it be proved, must be proved (t).

Where A. made a promissory note payable to B. or order, and B. indorsed it and gave it to C. to get it discounted, and C. went away and shortly afterwards came back to B. with the money, and the executors of C.'s father, of whom C. was one, brought an action on the note as executors, it was held, that as the executors produced the note on the trial as executors, they might recover on it, although there was no evidence that C.'s father ever had possession of the note in his lifetime (u). In an action, however, at the suit of an executor against the acceptor of a bill, on a promise laid to the testator, the plaintiff must prove that the bill was accepted in the testa-[*647] tor's lifetime(v)(1); and *as we shall hereafter see, when a bill or note is attempted to be set off against the claim of the assignees of a bankrupt, the party must prove that the instrument came to his hands before the bankruptcy, though returned to him afterwards (w). But if the act of bankruptcy were secret, and the bill or note proposed to be set off were afterwards received by the party before the commission was issued, and without notice of the bankruptcy, he may set it of f(x).

> When the drawer of a bill payable to the order of a third person, and returned to and taken up by him, sues the acceptor, and states that he transferred it and that the same was returned to him, in order to shew that the right of action has become vested in him, he should be prepared to prove such return to him(y); though it is not necessary to prove that the acceptor had effects in hand, that fact being prima facie admitted by the accept-And it has been considered, that when a prior indorser, who has ance(z).

dorser of a bill of exchange. The declaration stated several indorsements prior to that of the defendant, which was immediately to the plaintiff. A question arose whether, upon proof of the defendant's hand-writing, it was necessary to prove the hand-writing of any of the prior indorsers. Lord Ellenborough at first doubted whether it was not necessary in this case, as well as in an action against the acceptor, to prove all the indorsements that were mentioned in the declaration, and particularly that of the original payee. Clark, for the plaintiff, contended, that the defendant's indorsement admitted all antecedent indorsements; that even if they were forged, he would be liable; that he was to be considered as the drawer of a new bill of exchange; and that his contract was very different from that of the acceptor, who only undertook to pay to the payee, or his order, and against whom, therefore, a title through the payee must be established. Lord Ellenbo-rough was of this opinion, and the plaintiff had a verdict.

(s) Id. ibid.

(t) See ante, 641, 642.

(u) Godson v. Richards, 6 Car. & P. 198. (v) Anon. 12 Mod. 447; Sarell v. Wine, 3 East, 409.

(w) Dickson v. Evans, 6 T. R. 57, (Chit. j. 531); Moore v. Wright, 2 Marsh. 209; 6 Taunt. 517, (Chit. j. 959); Oughterlony c. Easterby, 4 Taunt. SSS, (Chit. j. S90); see post, tit. Bankruptcy. But see Bolland c. Nash, S Bar. & Cres. 105; 2 Man & Ry. 189, (Chit. j. 1381); and Collins r. Jones, 10 Bar. & Cres. 777, (Chit. j. 1493).

(x) 6 Geo 4, c. 16, s. 50.

(y) As to such action, see ante, 537, note (h); and Simmonds v. Parminter, 1 Wils. 195;

4 Bro. P. C. 604, (Chit. j. 321).
(2) Vere r. Lewis, 3 T. R. 182, 183; 2 Stark. Ev. 276.

maintain the replication. Buswell, adm'r. v. Rohy, 3 New Hamp. Rep. 467.

Per Richardson, C. J. "We are aware that, it has been long settled in England, that when an administrator declares upon a promise made to intestate, the declaration cannot be supported this state, and in Massachusetts, the practice has always been otherwise. S Mass. Rep. 134; Baxter v. Penniman." Ibid.

⁽¹⁾ In an action of assumpsit brought by an administrator, the defendant pleaded the statute of limitations, to which the plaintiff replied, that the defendant promised to the intestate to pay within six years; it was held, that evidence of a promise to the administrator was admissible to 11.

;...-

1.5

.

. ...

. : :

. . . .

1.14

. .: : *

y T.

... 1 27

1 5- 15

.

ع ا -رد درد

Bro 21.

مو میں دوری

...

J 37 55

in Grand been obliged to pay a subsequent indorser, sues the acceptor, he should I. In geneprove such payment(a).

Facts must

In an action by an accommodation acceptor against the drawer for money and how. paid, or specially for not indemnifying the plaintiff, in addition to the proof As Accomof the drawing the bill and the absence of consideration, he should prove modation payment of the bill by himself, or execution or some damage against his per- Acceptor. son or property (b); and the production of the bill from the custody of the acceptor is not prima facie evidence of his having paid it, without proof that it was once in circulation after it had been accepted; nor is payment to be presumed from a receipt indorsed on the bill, unless such receipt is shewn to be in the hand-writing of a person entitled to demand payment(c)(1).

(a) Mendez v. Carreroon, 1 Ld. Raym. 742, (Chit. j. 215), sed quære. Action upon a bill of exchange. Upon the evidence at the trial before Holt, C. J. at Guildhall, November 28d, M. T. 12 Will. 3, the case was this:—A. drew a bill of exchange upon B. payable to C. at Paris; B. accepted the bill, C. indorsed it, payable to D., D. to E., E. to F., F. to G. G. demanded the bill to be paid by B. and upon nonpayment G. protested it within the time, &c. and then G. brought an action against D. and it was well brought, and he recovered; afterwards D brought an action against B., and though D. produced the bill and the protest, yet because he could not produce a receipt for the money paid by him to G. upon the protest as the custom is among merchants, as several merchants on their oaths affirmed, he was nonsuited. But Holt, C. J. seemed to be of opinion. that if he had proved payment by him to G. it had been well enough.

In an action on a bill of exchange (by drawer against acceptor), in order to rebut the presumption arising from the plaintiff's possession of the bill, that he was the helder; the defendant offered in evidence a draft of a declaration delivered in the year 1829, in an action on a bill of exchange of the same date and amount, and drawn and accepted by the same parties, in which action the plaintiff and another sued as assignees of a bankrupt: this was held insufficient to call upon the plaintiff to shew how he became repossessed of the bill in his individual capacity; Dabbs v. Humphreys, 4 Moore & S. 285; 10 Bing. 446, S. C.

(b) Taylor v. Higgins, 3 East, 169; Chitten v. Whiffin, 3 Wils. 13. Defendant is liable if the acceptor has incurred, though not actually paid costs; Bullock v. Lloyd, 2 Car. & P. 119.

(c) Pfiel r. Van Battenburg, 2 Campb. 489, (Chit. j. 797). Action for money lent. The plaintiff's case was, that he had accepted and paid several bills of exchange for the defendant's secommodation. The bills were produced by the plaintiff, and proved to have been drawn by the defendant. They were likewise receipted in the usual form of bills paid, but it did not appear by whom the receipts were written. Richardson contended that the simple production of the bills by the acceptor was prime facie evidence of payment. They could not have got into his hands unless he had paid them, and the presumption that an instrument in the possession of the person liable upon it is satisfied, has been invariably acted upon. But the receipts indorsed on these bills put the matter beyond all doubt, as the defendant was guilty of forgery if the bills had not been paid, and the law would not presume that a man had committed a capital offence. Lord Ellenborough, "Shew that the bills were once in circulation after being accepted, and I will presume that they got back to the acceptor's hands by his having paid them. But when he merely produces them, how do I know that they were ever in the hands of the payee, or any indorsee, with his name upon them as acceptor? It is very possible, that when they were left for acceptance, he refused to deliver them back, and having detained them ever since, now produces them as evidence of a loan of money. Nor do I think the receipts carry the natter a bit faither, unless you shew them to be in the hand-writing of the defendant, or some other person authorised to receive payment of the bills. A man cannot be allowed to manufacture evidence for himself at the risk of being convicted of forgery; and it is possible, that though the bills are unsatisfied, these receipts may have been fraudulently indorsed without the plaintiff's privity. The fact of payment still bares in doubt, and you must do something more to turn the balance .. Prove the bills out of the plaintiff's possession accepted, and I will presume that they got back again by payment. If you do not, the plaintiff must be called." I owever, a witness afterwards swore that the defendant had acknowledged the debt, and the plaintiff had a verdict.

In an action on an account current, founded on a long course of commercial transactions between the parties, in which payments are charged for sums paid to take up drafts or bills accepted by the plaintiff, the possession of the draft by the acceptor is prima facie evidence of the pay-

⁽¹⁾ The rule that an acceptor of a bill is bound to show, not only the drawing and acceptance of the bill and its payment, but that it was put in circulation after acceptance, and that the drawer had no funds in his hands, applies only to cases where the acceptor declares upon a bill of exchange against the drawer. Bell r. Norwood, adm'r., 7 Louis. Rep. 95.

I. In gene- though it has *been held, that a general receipt on the back of a bill is prima ral what facie evidence of its having been paid by the acceptor, and will not of itself be evidence of a payment by the drawer, although produced by him(d); yet we have seen that such receipt is not conclusive evidence, and may, thereand how. fore, be contradicted or explained(e).

Consideration when and how proved. Onus Probandi.

We have seen, that in general it is presumed that a bill or note was given for adequate consideration, but that in some cases the plaintiff will be called upon to prove the consideration which he gave for the bill or note(f)(1). In an action by the indorsee of a bill of exchange, if it appear, on the part of the defendant, that the defendant or a prior party made it under dures, or was defrauded of it, or had only a part of its value, the plaintiff must be prepared to prove under what circumstances, and for what value, he became the holder(g). But in an action on a bill of exchange by a third indorsee against the acceptor, the defendant cannot put the plaintiff to prove consideration, by giving prima facie evidence to shew the want of it, merely as between the drawer and his indorsee, and each subsequent indorser and indorsee, but he must also shew the want of consideration as between himself and the drawer(h). And for this purpose it is not enough to prove that the [*649] drawer, on the day before the maturity of the bill, procured all the *indorsements to be made without consideration in order that the action might be brought by an indorsee, on the understanding that the money, when recovered, should be divided between one of the indorsees and the drawer(i). where in an action by the drawer against the acceptor of a bill, the defendant pleads that it was accepted without any consideration, and the plaintiff replies that it was accepted for a good consideration, the onus of proof lies

(d) Scholey v. Walsby, Peake's Rep. 24,

25, (Chit. j. 469); anie, 424, note (r).
(e) Anie, 423, 424; Scholey v. Walsby, Peake's Rep. 24, 25; Graves v. Key, 3 B. & Ad. 313; Farrar v. Hutchinson, 1 Perry & Dav. 437.

(f) Ante, 68 to 70, &c.

(g) Duncan v. Scott, 1 Campb. 100, (Chit. j. 742); ante, 70, &c.; Paterson v. Hardacre, 4 Taunt. 114, (Chit. j. 836); ante, 72, &c. in notes; Rees v. Marquis of Headfort, 2 Campb. 574, (Chit. j. 823). This was an action against the defendant as acceptor of a bill of exchange, drawn by one Whitton, payable to his own or-der, indorsed by him to Chamberlain and Co. and by them to the plaintiff. The plaintiff made out a primi facie case; but Whitton, the drawer, having been called to prove the handwriting of the parties, it appeared from his cross-examination that he himself had never received any consideration for the bill, and had been tricked out of it by means of a gross fraud. Lord Ellenborough held, that on this ground the plaintiff was bound to prove what consideration he gave for it; and as he was not prepared to do so, his lordship directed a nonsuit. And see Thomas v. Newton, 2 Car. & P. 606, (Chit. j.

(A) Whitaker v. Edmunds, 1 Ad. & El. 638;

1 Mood & Rob. 366, S. C.; et per Patteson, J. in Heydon v. Thompson, 1 Ad. & El. 210; 3 Nev. & Man. 319, 324, S. C.

Whitaker v. Edmunds, 1 Mood. & Rob. 366. Per Patteson, J. "Since the decision of Heath v. Sansom, 2 Bar & Adol. 291, the consideration of the judges has been a good deal called to the subject; and the prevalent opinion amongst them is, that the courts have of late gone too far in restricting the negotiability of bills and notes. If, indeed, the defendant can shew that there has been something of fraud in the previous steps of the transfer of the instrument, that throws upon the plaintiff the necessity of shewing under what circumstances he became possessed of it. So far I accede to the case of Heath v. Sansom; for there were in that case circumstances raising a suspicion of fraud: but if I added, on that occasion, that even independently of these circumstances of suspicion, the holder would have been bound to shew the consideration which he gave for the bill, merely because there was an absence of consideration as between the previous parties to the bill, I am now decidedly of opinion that such doctrine was incorrect." And see per Tindal, C. J. in Lowe v. Chifney, 1 Scott, 95, 97; 1 Bing. N. C. 267, S. C.

(i) Whitaker v. Edmunds, 1 Ad. & El. 638.

ments charged in the account, and may be given in evidence in support of items in the general

^{(1) {} It is only upon evidence showing suspicious circumstances that the holder of a note payable to bearer will be held to show how he came by it. Jones v. Westcott, 2 Brev. Rep. 166; 2 Johns. Rep. 51. }

5R: .

. L. 3 7%

4... X.18

1:00 1. 32 DE E 7 K 1978

3

..... Y Y : " #: **:#

心理学 1.00018

* #

1/18 1:98

· . . 22.2

. C S TATE X

es 18105

... i 🛣 20 18/20

7.65

or Prom

AL & E SF

. kles

...

e 20 🗯

, her : "1

, 192 P. B

. . . 1 🛎 J. 121

و مار .

....

· | server

THE PART $\mu_{\mathcal{T}^{s,d}}$

المعاورات

, arai W1 XX1

ma lie 3

. jugge

, et 700 ·11. 125

Town &

k E 🗷

on the defendant, to show the want of consideration (j). So, where to an I. In genaction by the drawer of a bill of exchange against acceptor, the defendant eral what pleaded that there was no consideration for the acceptance, concluding with be proved, a verification; and plaintiff replied that there was a consideration, to wit, the and how. sale and delivery of goods concluding to the country; it was held, that the Thirdly, plaintiff was not bound to prove the consideration alleged, and that it lay on Proof of the defendant to shew want of consideration; though, if the replication had Plaintiff's Interest or concluded with a verification, the consideration alleged would have been Title. part of the issue, and the plaintiff must have proved it(k). And in an accommideration by the indorsees against the indorser of a promissory note for 500l., ation when where the defendant pleaded as to 300l. that the note was indorsed by the and how defendant for the accommodation of the maker, and as a security to the proved. plaintiffs, who were the makers' bankers, for subsequent advances, and that Onus Proonly 2001. was subsequently advanced, and therefore as to 3001. there was no consideration; and the plaintiffs replied that they were holders of the note for value given to the maker to the full amount; it was held, that upon this issue it was not incumbent on the plaintiffs, in the first instance, to give any evidence of consideration, but that the defendant was bound to begin and to impeach the plaintiff's title, because the simple fact of the note having been indorsed for the accommodation of the maker raises no inference that the holder has not given value for it, but rather that he has given value, that being the object for which the note is given(1). It was also held, it having been proved that more than 500l. being due from the maker to the plaintiffs at the time the note was paid in to them, they entered the note as a bill discounted to his credit, but that 1981. only was actually paid to him, that that was equivalent to their having advanced the amount mentioned in the note, and was a giving of a valuable consideration within the meaning of the issue. And further, that if the note were given to them as a security for a previous debt, the plaintiffs might be properly stated to be the holders for a valuable consideration (m).

In order, therefore, in the case of an accommodation bill or note, to cast upon the holder the onus of proving consideration, the defendant must first make out a case of fraud or suspicion(n). Nor is the fact of a bill having been accepted in order to raise money for the acceptor, and of the payee having appropriated the money so paid to his own use, sufficient to call upon a subsequent indorsee to shew that he gave value for the bill(o). declaration by the indorsee against the acceptor of a bill of exchange, the defendant plead that the bill was drawn for the accommodation of the de- [ 650] fendant and indorsed to the plaintiff's indorsee for the purpose of its being discounted for the defendant's use, that it was indorsed to the plaintiff in fraud of the defendant, and that plaintiff took the bill, by such indorsement, after it was due; and the plaintiff reply that the bill was indorsed to him before it became due, he not knowing the premises, without this that the plaintiff took it after it was due; it lies upon the defendant to begin, by proving that the bill was indorsed after it became due(p). And in an action by the

⁽i) Batley v Catterall, 1 Mood. & Rob. 379; Lacey v. Forrester, 2 C., M. & R. 59; S. C. 3 Dowl. P. C. 668; 1 Gale, 139.

⁽k) Lowe v. Burrows, 2 Ad. & El. 483; 4 Nev. & Man. 366, S. C.; Batley r. Catterall, 1 Mood. & Rob. 379, per Alderson, B.

That a general plea of no consideration is a bad plea, see cases ante, 603, note (s); but that a replication traversing generally the want of consideration is good, see ante, 619.

⁽¹⁾ Percival v. Frampton, 2 C., M. & R.

^{180; 3} Dowl. 748. S. C.; and see Mills v. Barber, 1 M. & W. 425, 431, 432; infra, note(n).

⁽m) Id. ibid.

⁽n) Mills v. Barber, 1 M. & W. 425; 5 Dowl. 77; 2 Gale, 5, S. C.; and see Percival r. Frampton, 2 C., M & R. 180, 183; supra, note (l).

⁽o) Jacob v. Hungate, 1 Mood. & Rob. 445. (p) Lewis r. Parker, 4 Ad. & El. 838; 6 Nev. & Man. 294; 2 Har. & W. 46, S. C.

Facts must be proved, and how. Thirdly, Proof of Plaintiff's Interest or Title.

Consideration when and bow proved.

Onus Pro-

bandi.

I. In gene- indorsee against the maker of the note, where the defendant pleaded that the note was given for a gambling debt, and indorsed to the plaintiff with notice thereof and without consideration, and the plaintiff replied that the note was indorsed to the plaintiff without notice of the illegality, and for a good and sufficient consideration, on which issue was joined; it was held, that on these pleadings the illegal making of the note was not so admitted as to render it necessary for the plaintiff to give any evidence of consideration, but that in order to compel him to do so, the defendant ought to have proved the illegality by evidence (q).

Formerly, in the Common Pleas, the defendant was not allowed to call on the plaintiff to prove the consideration which he had given for the bill, even where the bill had been lost or fraudulently obtained, unless he had given him reasonable notice, before the trial, that he would be required to bring forward such proof, so that the plaintiff might come to the trial prepared to establish the consideration (r)(1). But in the King's Bench the practice was otherwise(s). And since by the new rules of pleading, a defendant is now bound to plead the want of consideration specially, this notice is altogether unnecessary. The merely giving a notice, however, that the plaintiff would be required to prove what consideration he gave, was not sufficient to throw the burthen upon him; but some suspicion must first have been cast upon his title, by shewing that the bill was lost or obtained from the defendant or some previous holder by undue means, after which, and not till then, $\lceil *651 \rceil$ the plaintiff was required to prove how he became the holder(t). *And though at one time it was considered, that when the plaintiff had in due time received a notice from the defendant to prove the consideration, he ought to do so in opening his case to the jury; and that after his counsel had closed his case, he should not be permitted to go into evidence of consideration, in > (q) Edmunds v. Groves, 2 M. & W. 642; 5 Dowl. 775, S. C. An admission of a fact on the record amounts merely to a waiver of requiring proof of that fact; but if the other party seeks to have any inference drawn by the jury from the fact so admitted, he must prove it like any other fact; id. ibid. per Alderson, B.

In an action against the drawer of a check on a banker, where the defendant pleads that the amount for which the check was drawn was illegally won at play, upon which issue is joined, the plaintiff is not bound to produce the check, nor can the defendant insist on its production as part of his case; Reed v. Gamble, 5

Nev. & Man. 433. (r) Paterson v. Hardacre, 4 Taunt. 114, (Chit. j. 826). Mansfield, C. J. Declared the decision of the court to be, "that wherever a defendant meant to avail himself, as a defence against an action brought upon a bill of exchange of the circumstance that the bill had been lost, or fraudulently obtained, and that the plaintiff had no right to the possession thereof, it was necessary that the defendant should distinctly give notice to the plaintiff, that he meant to insist at the trial that the plaintiff should prove the consideration upon which he received the bill; and no such notice having been given in this case, the rule must be discharged."

(s) Heath v. Sansom, 2 B. & Ad. 291. So where a suspicion was cast upon the plaintiff's case by his own evidence he was bound to prove consideration though no notice had been given; Foulger v. Jadis, Sittings at Westminster after H. T. 1830, February 13th, M. S.; and see Green v. Dakin, 2 Stark. Rep. 347; and Mann r. Lent, I Mood. & Mal. 240, that defendant might go into evidence of want of consideration without having given notice.

(t) Reynolds v. Chettle, 2 Campb. 596, (Chit j. 828). The defendant had given the plaintiff notice to prove what consideration he gave for the bill, which it was submitted he was bound to prove accordingly. Lord Ellenborough, "The notice is insufficient to throw this burthen on the plaintiff; you must first cast some suspicion upon his title, by shewing that the bill was obtained from the defendant, or some previous holder, by force or by fraud." The plaintiff had a verdict. And see per Burrough, J. in Rawlings v. Hall, 1 Car & P.11; De la Chaumette v. Bank of England, 9 Bar. & Cres. 208; Coster v. Merest, 7 Moore, 87. See also per Parke, B. in Mills v. Barber, 1 M. & W. 425, 428, 429; ante, 649, note (*).

⁽¹⁾ It seems, that fraud in the consideration of a promissory note, as between the original parties, may be given in evidence under the general issue, without notice. Hills v. Bannister, 8 Cowen, 31.

hll .

• : .

- 10

, 15

1 2

, ,

4---

: C: 3 11 21 ()

12.17 year.

7130

reply to the defendant's case(u); yet a different practice afterwards prevail- I. In geneed, and the course was for the plaintiff to begin by merely proving a prima ral what facie case, and then if the defendant succeeded in proving that he lost the be proved, bill, or received no value, the plaintiff was allowed, in answer to the defend- and how. ant's evidence, to go into full proof of the circumstances under which he held Thirdly, the bill(x). And the practice at the present day is, as we have just seen, Proof of not to require the plaintiff to prove consideration in any case until his title Plaintiff's Interest or has first been impeached. It should seem, however, that if the plaintiff in Title. the first instance attempts to prove the consideration, he must do so as far Consideras he can, and cannot afterwards adduce evidence of it in reply (y).

A notice served on defendant, requiring him to produce a check, though and how in his banker's hands, is sufficient, because the banker is considered to be proved.

merely the defendant's agent(z).

We have already stated when the want of consideration, or the illegality of it, will affect the plaintiff's right of action(a). In the case of a bank-note, unless there be a strong presumption of fraud or want of consideration, the plaintiff's interest in the security cannot be disturbed (b). And we have

(u) Per Lord Ellenborough, in Dellanney v. Mitchell, 1 Stark. Rep. 439, (Chit. j. 976). This was an action by the plaintiff, as the indorsee of a bill of exchange, against the defendant as acceptor. Scarlett, for the plaintiff, having adduced the usual documentary proofs, was inclined to rest his case there, intimating, that if in the course of the cause it should become necessary, he was prepared to prove the consideration given for the bill. The Attornev-General insisted, that since notice had been given, that one ground of defence was the want of consideration, it would not be competent to the plaintiff, after having closed his case, to go subsequently into such evidence. Lord Ellenborough held that after such notice he could not.

Humbert v. Ruding, K. B. Westminster, 18th July, 1817, MS. Action on a bill of exchange. The defendant had given notice to the plaintiff to prove the consideration of the bill, and Lord Ellenborough said, " I think as this is the case you must go into proof of the consideration in the first instance." Mr. Jervis, for the plaintiff. And see Spooner v. Gardiner, Ryan & Moody, 86, (Chit. j. 1211); see also per Abinger, C. B. in Simpson r. Clarke, 2 C., M. & R. 342, 346 to 348.

(x) Lord Tenterden, at Nisi Prius, declared this to be the correct course. And according to the note in Browne v. Murray, Ry. & Moo. 258, this practice of the K. B. prevailed also in the C. P., though it was otherwise ruled in Spooner v. Gardiner, Ry. & Moo. 86, (Chit. j. 1211); and see Stark. on Evid. part iii. p. 883, note (a); Phil. on Evid. 6th edit. vol. ii. p. 17. See also per Abinger, C. B. in Mills v. Barber, 1 M. & W. 431.

In Mason and another v. Robertson, Guildhall, March, 1830, K. B. which was an action by a third indorsee against acceptor, on a bill for 871. On the part of defendant it was proved that the bill was accepted for the accommodation of the drawer, and the first indorsee proved that he advanced to the drawer only 161., and handed it over to the second indorser, Norton, an attorney, for 151. only, and who indorsed it to the plaintiffs. It was contended for the defendant that upon this evidence the plaintiff could only recover 15l. On behalf of plaintiffs, it was contended that it was incumbent on the defendant to go further, and to shew that plaintiffs gave no more than the 15t. But Lord Tenterden said, "That as the defendant had proved that the bill was accepted for the accommodation of the drawer, that evidence was sufficient to call on the plaintiffs to prove affirmatively how and for what value they became possessed of the bill." Plaintiffs then called Norton, who swore that he owed the plaintiffs much more than the amount of the bill; whereupon plaintiffs had a verdict for the whole sum. Chitty for defendant. MS.

(y) Browne v. Murray, Ry. & Mood. 254. (z) Partridge v. Coates, Ry. & Mood. 156, (Chit. j. 1013). As to production by plaintiff of check declared upon, see Reed v. Gamble, 5 Nev. & Man. 433; ante, 650, note (q).

(a) Ante, 68 to 101.

(b) Solomon v. The Bank of England, 18 East, 135, (Chit. j. 811); ante, 256, note (d); King v. Milsom, 2 Campb. 5, (Chit. j. 764). Possession is prima facte evidence of property in negotiable instruments. Therefore, in trover for a bank-note, it is not a primû fucie case for the plaintiff to prove that the note belonged to him, and that the defendant afterwards converted it; and the defendant will not be called upon to shew his title to the note, without evidence from the other side that he got possession of it mala fide, or without consideration. ver for a 50l. bank of England note. plaintiff's case was, that he had lost the note from his pocket in the street, and that the defendant, into whose possession it soon afterwards came, was not the bona fide holder of it for a valuable consideration. Lord Ellenborough, "There is a distinction between negotiable instruments and common chattels; with respect to the former, possession is prima facie evidence of property. must presume that the defendant, when possessed of this note, was a bond fide holder for a valuable consideration. It lies upon you to impeach his title. You might have thrown so much suspicion upon his conduct in the transac-

Onus Probandi.

I. In gene-seen that the claim of the holder of a *negotiable instrument, who has given rai what value, cannot now be defeated without proof of mala fides(c)(1). Facts must be proved. and how. Fourthly, Defendant's Breach of Contract.

ker.

Presentnecessary or not.

Fourthly. In an action against the acceptor, upon a general acceptance to pay the bill according to its tenor, and in an action against the maker of a promissory note, it is not necessary to prove a presentment for payment, because such presentment, we have seen, is not essential to the action(d). So in the Court of King's Bench, where a bill is drawn payable generally as to As Accep- place, but has been accepted payable at a banker's or other particular place, tor or Ma- but not within the meaning of the 1 & 2 Geo. 4, c. 78, it is not necessary, in an action against the acceptor, to go into proof of a presentment at such place(e), nor is it necessary, though such presentment has been unnecessariment when ly averred (f). And though in the Court of Common Pleas, before the above act, a different doctrine was entertained by some of the judges, it is now no longer necessary in that court to be prepared to prove that fact(g). When a bill has been accepted payable specially in the express terms of this act, a note has in the body of it been made payable at a particular place, the contract is considered as qualified, and a presentment there must be averred and proved in an action against such acceptor or the maker of the note(h). In short, whenever a particular presentment is essential to the support of the action, it must be proved(i). We have already fully considered what is a sufficient presentment. In case of a conditional acceptance, it is necessary to allege and prove that the terms of the condition have been performed (k), or else an excuse for non-performance must be shewn(l).

As Drawer or Indorser.

In an action against the drawer or indorser of a bill, or the indorser of a note, as his contract is only to pay in case of the party primarily liable does not, the default of such party must be proved, or some evidence must be Thus in an action adduced to dispense with the necessity for such proof.

tion, as to have rendered it necessary for him to prove from whom he received the note, and what consideration he gave for it: but I think you have not done so. The suspicious circumstances, detailed by the witnesses, may be accounted for from the defendant's ignorance. It would greatly impair the credit, and impede the circulation of negotiable instruments, if persons holding them could, without strong evidence of fraud, be compelled by any prior holder to disclose the manner in which they received them." Plaintiff non-suited.

(c) Ante, 257; and see Uther v. Rich, 2 Perry & Dav. 579; ante, 604, note (z).
(d) Ante, 359 to 365.

(e) Ante, 364, note (t); Fayle v. Bird, 6 Bar. & Cres 531; 9 Dow. & Ry. 639; 2 Car. & P. 303, (Chit. j. 1329); De Bergareche v. Pillin, 3 Bing. 477; 11 Moore, 350, (Chit. j.

1292); ante, 364, note (b).
(f) Freeman v. Kennell, Guildhall, 25th May, 1826, cor. Abbott, C. J. Dickenson, attorney; ante, 364, note (a).

(g) Ante, 364, note (a).

(h) Ante, 152, 153, 364, 865. In Phillips v. Franklin, Gow's Rep. 196, which was before the 1 & 2 Geo. 4, c. 78, Holroyd, J. held, that although in an action against the acceptor of a bill of exchange accepted payable at a particular place, a presentment at such place was not necessary in order to entitle the plaintiff to recover the principal sum, yet that a presentment there must be proved to entitle him to in-

(i) As to the cases when a presentment is necessary, see ante, 364, 365.

(k) Swann v. Cox, 1 Marsh. 176; Langeton v. Corney, 4 Campb. 176, (Chit. j. 930); Anderson v. Hick, 3 Campb. 179, (Chit. j. 855); and see Wynne v. Raikes, 5 East, 514; 2 Smith, 98, (Chit. j. 700.)

(1) Leeson v. Pigott, Bayl. 5th edit. 401, (Chit. j. 446); Bowes v. Howe, 5 Taunt. 30, (Chit. j. 895.)

^{(1) {} Proof that the plaint iffs were trustees of a bank, and the check sued upon was one of a number obtained by a person against whom the bank had a large account, and paid over by him to one of the bank agents, on a corrupt understanding, that it was to be entered in the bank books for the purpose of creating a colorable balance of the account, and that after the books were inspected by the trustees, the check should be returned, and none of the parties saed upon it and that the check had been obtained from defendant in consideration of a counter check for a like amount given by the payee, and on an understanding that neither was to be presented for payment, was held not to sustain a plea that the check had been given and endorsed without consideration Rosanquet v. Corser, 5 Jurist, 369. }

141

14.14

4

- 44011

1.30

. (8 . TE:

. .: " ... K#M

11 1 TC

jh. 13

1. 12 - 7

a. '' ;

1000

J 14 11 17 18

S 200

. . . ž

arj #(2) 54

1 1000

· Title

-4; û i

. . . ice m

~ 53° Y

5 12 PXP

LICE WHY

. 15] 🎉

K DE ATT

مجاند بين

, to Nation

وتحتصلم بيوا

11 1 POST

e the co

; -resting !

🛩 ا . ان

40 4

314.23

عليه طه

; ins

M EN 181

paret M #

, ,

11:14

against the drawer or indorser of a bill, or *the indorser of a note, it is nec- 1. In geneessary to prove a presentment to the drawee for payment(m); or if the ac-ral what ceptance was to pay at a particular place, then as well the acceptance and be proved, a presentment there, or to the acceptor in person, or at his house, must be and how. So if the bill be drawn payable at a particular place, as in Fourthly, proved(n). London, and be accepted so payable, though not in the terms of the act(o); Defendor if the bill be accepted payable at a particular place, though not so as to $\frac{ant's}{Breach}$ of constitute a special acceptance (p), a presentment at the place specified must $\frac{ant's}{Contract}$ be proved in order to charge the drawer or indorser. But it is not necessary to prove that the presentment was made by the person named in the deer or Inclaration (q). Nor is it necessary in an action against the indorser of a bill dorser. to prove any presentment to, or demand upon, the drawer, because the indorser, by the act of indorsement, engages that the bill shall be paid, which contract being broken by the dishonour of the bill, the holder is entitled to sue without reference to the drawer's breach of contract(r).

(m) Pardo v. Fuller, 2 Com. Rep. 579, (Chit. j. 296); Heylin v. Adamson, 2 Burr. 676, (Chit. j. 849).

Pardo v. Fuller. This was an action on a promissory note against the indorser. At the trial before Chief Justice Willes, at Guildhall, it was doubted whether the plaintiff ought not to prove a demand upon the drawer before the action was brought. The matter of proof was left to the jury, whether a demand was made or not. On a motion, for a new trial, Judge Fortescue mentioned the case of Davis v. Muson, 1 Geo. 2, in the Court of Common Pless, wherein it was agreed by the court, that there ought to be a demand upon the drawer, for the indorser undertook conditionally only if the drawer did not pay. Indeed, if a note be forged, Chief Justice Holt held the indorser liable, though no demand, and indeed no demand can be, for when a note is forged there is no drawer. So on a note payable to a man or bearer, no demand need be from him to whom it is made payable. But a new trial was denied, for the evidence of the demand was left to the jury, who were proper judges of that fact, and knew best the course of dealing.

(n) Sedgwick v. Jager, 5 Čar. : P. 199, (Chit. j. 1582).

(o) Gibb v. Mather, 8 Bing. 214; ante, 152, 864, 575, 576.

(p) Parks v. Edge, 1 C. & M. 429, ante, 576, note (o).

(q) Boehin r Campbell, Gow's Rep. 55; 8 Moore, 15; 1 Bing. 216, (Chit. j. 1045).

(r) Heylin v. Adamson, 2 Burr. 669, 675, (Chit. j. 349); Bromley v. Frasier, 1 Stra. 441. It was determined in the case of Heylin v. Adamson, 2 Burr. 669, (Chit. j 349), which examines and reconciles the authorities upon the subject, that to entitle the indorsee of an inland bill of exchange to bring an action against the indorser upon failure of payment by the drawee, it is not necessary to make any demand of, or inquiry after, the first drawer. This point had been laid down differently in different books, owing to the drawer of a bill of exchange being confounded with the maker of a promissory note; vide 1 Ld. Raym. 448; Rep. temp. Hardw. p. 822; 2 Burr. 677. The distinction subsisting between them is thus clearly and satisfactorily laid down by Lord Mansfield, 2 Burr. 675, by whom the law upon the subject appears to have been settled: " As to foreign bills of exchange, the question was soleninly determined by this court, upon very satisfactory grounds, in the case of Bromley v. Frasier, I Stra. 441. That was an action upon the case upon a foreign bill of exchange, by the indorsee against the indorser, and on general demurrer, it was objected that they had not shewn a demand upon the drawer in whose default only it is that the indorser warrants." And because this was a point unsettled, and on which there are contradictory opinions in Salk. 131 and 133, the court took time to consider of it. And on the second argument they delivered their opinions, that the declaration was well enough; for the design of the law of merchants, in distinguishing these from all other contracts, by making them assignable, was for the convenience of commerce that they might pass from hand to hand in the way of trade, in the same manner as if they were specie. Now to require a demand upon the drawer, will be laying such a clog upon these bills as will deter every body from taking The drawer lives abroad, perhaps in the Indies, where the indorsee has no correspondent to whom he can send the bill for a demand, or if he could, yet the delay would be so great, that nobody would meddle with them. Suppose it was the case of several indorsements, must the last indorsee travel round the world before he can fix his action upon the man from whom he received the bill? In common experience, every body knows that the more indorsements a bill has, the greater credit it bears; whereas, if those demands are all necessary to be made, it must naturally diminish the value by how much the more difficult it renders the calling in the money. And as to the notion that has prevailed, that the indorser warrants only in default of the drawer, there is no colour for it, for every indorser is in the nature of a new drawer, and at Nisi Prius the indorsee is never put to prove the hand of the first drawer, where the action is against an indorser. The requiring a protest for non-acceptance is not because a protest amounts to a demand, for it is no more than giving a notice to the drawer to get his

I. In general what Facts must be proved, and how.

Fourthly, Defendant's Breach of Contract.

As Drawer or Indorser.

*When the action is for default of the drawee to accept, a due presentment and a refusal must also be proved(s); and when it is essential from the circumstance of the bill being payable at a banker's, that a presentment should be made there, such presentment must, in an action against the drawer or indorser of a bill, be proved to have been made in due time, and proof of a presentment by a notary in the evening, when no person was at the bankinghouse to give a proper answer, will not suffice t; though if it appear that upon such presentment in the evening, there was some person at the banker's, who, in pursuance of authority, gave an answer to the holder, such evidence would suffice(u).

Where a bill is payable so many days after sight, the plaintiff must prove a presentment for acceptance(x). But in other cases it is sufficient to prove a presentment for payment when the bill becomes due, and a refusal to It suffices to prove a presentment for acceptance and a refusal to accept at any time before the bill becomes due, for upon the dishonour the drawer becomes liable immediately (z); it also suffices to prove that the drawee refused to accept according to the form of the bill, and evidence is [*655] inadmissible, for the purpose of proving that the *mode of payment proposed would have been equivalent to a payment according to the terms of the bill(a); the plaintiff must prove that the refusal came from the drawee; it is > effects out of the hands of the-drawee, who, by the others drawing, is supposed to have sufficient wherewith to satisfy the bill. Upon the whole, they declared themselves to be of opinion, that in the case of a foreign bill of exchange, a demand upon the drawer is not necessary to make a charge upon the indorser, but the indorsee has the liberty to resort to either for the money, consequently the plaintiff (they said) must have judgment. Every inconvenience here suggested holds to a great degree, and every other argument holds equally in the case of inland bills of exchange. We are therefore all of opinion, that to entitle the indorsee of an inland bill of exchange to bring an action against the indorser upon failure of payment of the drawee, it is not necessary to make any demand of, or inquiry ofter, the first drauer. The law is exactly the same, and fully settled upon the analogy of promissory notes to bills of exchange, which is very clear, when the point of resemb-lance is ence fixed. While a promissory note continues in its original shape of a promise from one man to pay to another, it bears no similitude to a bill of exchange. When it is indorsed, the resemblance begins, for then it is an order by the indorser upon the maker of the note (his debtor by the note) to pay to the indorsee. This is the very definition of a bill of exchange. The indorser is the drawer, the maker of the note is the acceptor, and the indorsee is the person to whom it is made payable. The indorser only undertakes, in case the naker of the note does not pay. The indorsee is bound to apply to the maker of the note, he takes it upon that condition, and therefore must in all cases know who he is, and where he lives, and if after the note becomes payable, he is guilty of a neglect, and the maker becomes insolvent, he loses the money, and he cannot come upon the indorser at all. Therefore, before the indorser of a promissory note brings an action against the indorser, he must shew a demand or due diligence to get the money from the maker of the note, just as the person to whom the bill of exchange is made payable must shew a demand or due diligence to get the money from the acceptor, before be brings an action against the drawer. determined by the whole Court of Common Pleas, upon great consideration, in Pasch. 4 Geo. 2, as cited by my Lord Chief Justice Lee, in the case of Collins v. Butler, 2 Stra. 1087, (Chit. j. 285). So that the rule is exactly the some upon promissory notes as it is upon bills of exchange, and the confusion has in part arisen from the maker of a promissory note being called the drawer, whereas by comparison to bills of exchange the indorser is the drawer. All the authorities, and particularly Lord Hardwicke, in the case of Hamerton v. Mackerell, Mich. 10 Geo. 2, according to my brother Denison's statement of what his lordship said, put promissory notes and inland bills of exchange just upon the same footing, and the statute expressly refers to inland bills of exchange: but the same law must be applied to the same reason to the substantial resemblance between promissory notes and bills of exchange, and not to the same sound which is equally used to describe the makers of both.

(8) Anie, 272, & c. (t) Ante, 287; Parker v. Gordon, 7 East, 385; 2 Smith, 258; 6 Esp. 41, (Chit. j. 727). Aliter, if drawee be not a banker, ante, 387; and Wilkins v. Jadis, 2 Bar. & Adol. 155; 2 Mood. & Mal. 41, (Chit. j 1537).

(u) Garnett v. Woodcock, 1 Stark. 475; 6 Mau. & S. 44, (Chit. j. 979, 981); ante, 387, note (m).

(x) Ante, 272.
(y) Bul. N. P. 269; Bright v. Purrier, 3 East, 483, (Chit. j. 371); Ballinghalls v. Gloucester, 3 East, 481; 4 Esp. 268, (Chit. j. 678).

(z) Id. ibid. (a) Boehm v. Garcias, 1 Campb. 425, (Chit. j. 756).

Patt E

14.00

C 17

.75# 2

· : 4

. 12 . 18.

10 S 100

1211

1176 %

೭ ್ಲಾಗ್≇

150 2 2

1. 15 1.25

.. *3*4

. . . . 2

y see #1

· 10 00

- YE

1 73

- 1151

1. 1.50

100

ه بېږي.

21.13

.... y . .

728

. - 120 1 100 5 T + F

41. 2 M المنافقة المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المال ... J. 1988

. :: ***

J:

....

4*,31

تعالم م ... · [# 100

, art

STA STA

.

: Now !

1.TP 0

.. : NA F

not sufficient therefore to produce a witness who went to the drawee's resi- I. In genedence, and was there told by some one that the bill would not be honour-ral what ed(b).

To prove a presentment for payment, it has been held that the entry of a and how. clerk, deceased, in the book of a notary public, containing a minute of time Fourthly, and place of presenting the bill, is, upon proof of his hand-writing, admissi- Defendble in evidence(c).

Facts must be proved.

Breach of Contract

In an action against the drawer or indorser of a foreign bill (and even in an action on an inland bill, when a protest is averred (d), it is necessary to prove, besides the presentment and notice of dishonour, a protest for nonacceptance(e)(1), or non-payment(f), the requisites and points relating to which have already been considered. Under circumstances, however, there may be an excuse for not protesting (g), and which in such case should be proved. In the case of an inland bill, interest or damages may be recovered from a drawer or indorser without proof of a protest(h). A protest, apparently under the seal of a notary public, and made abroad, need only be produced, and proves itself without shewing by whom it was made(i). But a protest made in England must be proved by the notary who made it, and by the subscribing witness, if any (k)(2). The necessity of proving a pro-

(b) Check v. Roper, 5 Esp. 175, (Chit. j. 702); Stark. on Evid. p. iv. 257.

(c) Sutton v. Gregory, Peake's Rep. Add. 150, (Chit. j. 598); Peake's Evid. 18; Price v. Torrington, 1 Salk. 285; 2 Ld. Raym. 875; Hagedorn v. Reed, 3 Campb. 379; 1 M. & Sel. 567, S. C.; post, 658, note (m).

An entry of the dishonour of a bill of exchange made in the usual course of business, at the time of the dishonour, in the book of a notary, by his clerk, who presented the bill, may be given in evidence in an action on the bill upon proof of the death of the clerk who made the entry; Poole v. Dicas, 1 Bing. N. C. 649; 1 Scott, 600; 1 Hodges, 162, S. C.; 7 Car. & P. 79, S. C. The same principle was established in Doe d. Patteshall v. Turford, 8 Bar. & Adol. 89.

(d) Boulager v. Talleyrand, 2 Esp. Rep. 550, (Chit. j. 585); Selw. 9th edit. 875; sed quære, the averment might be rejected as surplusage.

(c) Ante, 331.

(f) Ante, 455. (g) Ante, 485, 486.

(h) Ante, 465, note (z); Windle v. Andrews, 2 Bar. & Ald. 696; 2 Stark. 425, (Chit. j. 1062).

(i) Anon. 12 Mod. 345, (Chit. j. 212); 2 Rol. Rep. 346; 10 Mod. 66; Peake's Law of Evid. 4th edit. 80, in notes.

(k) Chesmer v. Noyes, 4 Campb. 129, (Chit.

(1) A protest of an inland bill of exchange or promissory note is not necessary, nor is it evidence. Young v. Bryan, 7 Wheat. 146. The Union Bank v. Hyde, 6 Wheat. 572. Nicholas v. Webb, 8 Wheat. 326. In relation to protests of bills drawn in one State of the Union upon another State, see Townsley v. Sumrall, 2 Peters, 170, 180. Bills of this description partake of the character of foreign bills, and ought to be treated as such in the courts of the United States. Buckner v. Finley, Id. 586.

By an act of the legislature of Pennsylvania, 2d January, 1815, the official acts, protests, and attestations of notaries public certified according to law under their respective hands and seals of office may be received in evidence provided any party may contradict them by other evidence, any such certificate. Under this act, notice to the indorser of the non-payment of a promissory note, is held to be an official act, and the protest is prima facte evidence thereof. Brown v. Philadelphia Bank, 6 Serg. & Rawle, 484. Stewart v. Allison, Ibid. 324. The certificate of the notary under seal is prima facie evidence that such person is a notary public. Ibid. But the notary may be admitted to give evidence to explain or rebut the facts stated by him in the protest. Craig v. Shallcross. And may even be compelled to appear and give such evidence. Wright v. Almond, Sup. Court, Pennsylvania, March Term, 1925.

The protest of a notary, with a copy of the note declared on attached thereto, and his certiscute that he had given due notice, is sufficient evidence upon which to charge the indorser, under the plea of non assumpsit. Smith v. M'Manus, 7 Yerg. 477.

A protest made in another State which wants the seal prescribed by law in that State, will not be received in evidence as such in Louisiana. Tickner r. Roberts, 11 Curry's Louis. R.

(2) In South Carolina, the act of 1822 makes protests of notaries who are dead, or reside out of the district where the suit is brought, evidence as well of notice to the indorser as of a demand on the drawer. The protest should state both the demand and notice of non-payment, and is evidence of both. Dobson v. Laval, 4 M'Cord's Rep. 57, be proved, and how.

I. In gen- test is superseded by proof of an admission by the defendant of his liability, eral what as by a part-payment or promise of payment (l).

*In an action against the drawer or indorser of a bill, or indorser of a note, Notice of it is in general necessary to prove that due notice of the dishonour was given Dishonour, to the defendant. The sufficiency as to time is a question of law, dependent essary and on facts(m). The requisites and time within which notice of non-accepthow prove ance (n) or non-payment (o) must be given, have already been considered. This, we have seen, cannot be left to inference and without positive proof, [*656] and therefore a witness swearing that he gave notice in two or three days after the dishonour, when three days would be too late, will not be sufficient proof(p).

We have already considered what notice of non-acceptance (q) and nonpayment(r) is sufficient; and we have seen, that a statement in a letter, giving notice that the holder did not, till within a few days, know where the party was to be found, is not to be taken as an admission that the notice was not given on the next day after the residence of the party had been ascertained(s).

If by Let-ter or in Writing.

If the notice was given by letter, or in writing, it was formerly decided that evidence of the contents of such notice could not be given without first proving the service of a notice to the defendant to produce such letter or writing, and it is still always advisable to serve such notice to produce(t).

j. 929). This was an action on a foreign bill of exchange drawn at St. Croix upon a person at Bristol. In the course of the trial it became material to shew that the bill had been presented to him for payment. For this purpose the plaintiff's counsel offered as evidence a notarial protest under seal, stating the fact of the presentment in the usual form, and contended, that by the usage of merchants a protest under a notary's seal is evidence of the dishonour of foreign bills of exchange. Lord Ellenborough, "The protest may be sufficient to prove a presentment which took place in a foreign country; but I am quite clear that the presentment of a foreign bill in England must be proved in the same manner as if it were an inland bill or a promissory note." The plaintiff had a verdict upon other evidence.

Marin v. Palmer, 6 Car. & P. 466. Indorsee against acceptor of an English bill of exchange. To shew that the plaintiff had received the bill when it was overdue, a protest, which had been made of it by the plaintiff's immediate indorser, being in the hands of the plaintiff, was called for by the defendant at the trial on notice to produce. On its production it appeared to be attested by a subscribing witness: held, that the mere circumstance of the protest coming out of the hands of the plaintiff, as he did not claim title under it, was not sufficient to dispense with the necessity of calling the subscribing witness; but it being proved that on two occasions the paper had been produced by the plaintiff's attorney, to the defendant's attorney, as the protest applying to the bill in question, it was admitted in evidence without proof of the attestation.

(1) Bayl. 5th edit. 475; Gibbon v. Coggon, 2 Campb. 188, (Chit. j. 774); Taylor v. Jones. 2 Campb. 105, (Chit. j. 791); Stark. on Evid.

part iv. p. 266; post, 660, note (w).

(m) Per Lawrence, J. in Darbishire v. Parker, 6 East, 3; 2 Smith, 195, (Chit. j. 707); see Fry v. Hill, 7 Taunt. 897, (Chit. j. 992). Sed vide Lord Kenyon's opinion in Hilton v. Shepherd, 6 East, 14, note, (Chit. j. 710).

(n) Ante, 336

(o) Ante, 475 to 493.

- (p) Lawson v. Sherwood, 1 Stark. Rep. 314, (Chit. j. 959); ante, 480, note (p); Elford v. Teed, 1 Maule & S. 28, (Chit. j. 879).
 - (q) Ante, 381 to 335. (r) Ante, 466 to 475.

(s) Kerby v. England, 2 Car. & P. 300, (Chit. j. 1303); Firth v. Thrush, 8 Bar. & Cres. 397; 2 Man. & Ry. 359; Dans. & Ll.

151, (Chit. j. 1898); ante, 498

(t) Shaw v. Markham, Peake's Rep. 165, (Chit. j. 498); Langdon v. Hulls, 5 Esp. Rep. 156, (Chit. j. 697); Peake's Law of Evid. 4th edit. 115; Phil. Evid. 3d edit. 895.

Shaw v. Markham, Peake's Rep. 165, (Chit. 498). Assumpsit against the defendant as indorser of two promissory notes drawn by Thomas Thomas. A witness of the name of Osborne swore that when Thomas dishonoured the note he wrote three letters to the defendant to inform him of it, and sent one to his living at Chester, another to his living at Yorkshire, and a third to the book-seller's where he usually lodged when in London. No notice had been given to the defendant to produce these letters, nor any copy kept. Erskine, for the defendant, objected to the evidence, contending that no notice having been given to produce these letters, the plaintiff could not give parol evidence of their contents. Bower, for the plaintiff, answered, that the letters themselves were nothing more than a notice, and that it was an established rule that no notice need be given to produce a no٠.....

and we

红毛头 红色 机多点燃

~~~

-

In Section

: 20.5 DP

2 - TO 19

F FINE B

· 1 (4.18

. N. 15

· - 1

(1.3.8)

100

... ×

131 💆

, - h:=:

igr je

5 9 #

, & i

بأك بثيان

. Res 🎏

1.7 15

16 (X

....

, ,#° I

, , **, , , , ,

....

. ., 4

1 ....

المشتة به ,

nc M

No orth

. يندن

۽ بين پ

M. 8

بيوب<sub>ا)</sub> .

. . . . . .

عين نال

1 1

But it is now settled, that secondary evidence "may be given of a written I. In genenotice of the dishonour of a bill, upon which the action is brought, without Facts must notice to produce such writing (u)(1). So a copy of a letter, containing nobe proved, tice of the dishonour of a bill, is admissible, without notice to produce the and how. original(2), and proof that duplicate notices of the dishonour of a bill were Notice of tice. Lord Kenyon said this objection could not be got over, and no evidence of the contents of the letter could be received without a notice to produce. Call it a notice or by any other name, it was still a letter, and must be proved as any other written paper.

Langdon v. Hulls, 5 Esp. Rep. 156, (Chit. j. Assumpsit on a bill of exchange drawn by the defendant in his own favour on one Pugh for 50'., two months after date, accepted by Pugh, and indorsed by the defendant to the plaintiff. The plaintiff having proved the ac-ceptance and hand-writing of the defendant to the indorsement, then proved that the bill, when due, was presented for payment at Pugh's house, and that it was not then paid. To prove the notice to the defendant as the drawer, of the non-payment by the acceptor, the plaintiff proved, by the notary's clerk who presented the bill, that he had left word at the defendant's house that the bill had not been paid, the plaintiff also proved that his attorney, by his directions, had written a letter to the defendant, informing him of the non-payment of the bill by It becoming necessary to prove this notice so given by the plaintiff's attorney by letter to the defendant, the attorney was called. No notice had been given to produce this letter, but he having stated that he had written such a letter, was proceeding to state the notice of the non-payment as mentioned in the letter, of which letter he had a copy, when it was objected that evidence of the contents of the letter when neccould not be given, as no notice had been given essary and to produce it. It was answered, that the letter how provitself was a notice, and that it had been so de-ed. cided that notice to produce a notice was not necessary, and the case of Jory v. Orchard, 2 Bos. & P. 39, was cited as in point. It was contended by the defendant, that notice of the non-payment of the bill had not been given in due time, and that the letter had not been written until several days after the time for regular notice had expired, and it therefore became important to ascertain the exact time when it was written. Lord Ellenborough said that notice of the dishonour of a bill of exchange, by letter, was certainly good evidence, and had been so decided, but that there were other circumstances besides the mere fact of notice, which were necessary to give effect to it, so as to entitle the plaintiff to recover. These were the date and the time when it was sent, which was material, for notice of the dishonour was not sufficient unless given in the time required in the case of bills To ascertain the date of the of exchange. post-mark might be material, he was therefore of opinion that the plaintiff could not give evidence of the contents of the letter, not having given notice to produce it, and that upon that evidence the plaintiff could not recover. The plaintiff then proved a subsequent admission by the defendant that he had notice, and had a verdict, (u) Kine v. Beaumont, 3 Brod. & B. 288;

(1) Ludenberger v. Beall, 6 Wheat. 104. Faubalt v. Ely, 2 Devereux's Rep. 67. Leavitt v. Simes, 8 New-Hampshire Rep. 14.

The memorandum of a deceased cashier of a bank, who frequently notified indorsers of nonpayment of notes in the name of the acting notary of the bank, that on a certain day he sent notice by mail to an indorser, was held to be competent, and prima facie sufficient to charge the indorser. Nichola v. Goldsmith, 7 Wend. Rep. 160.

A protest of a bill of exchange by a curissier (an officer of a tribunal of commerce in France, authorized by the commercial code of that country to make protests,) will not be received in evidence without proof of the code. Chamoine v. Fowler, 3 Wena. Rep. 173.

The commercial code of France being written law, must be proved by the production of a printed book, admitted to be conformable to the official edition of the code published by the government. Id.

R seems that the same faith and credit would not be given to the protest of an officer unknown to the law merchant, that is given to the acts of a notary public, although the acts of such officer are in strict conformity to the laws of the country in which he resides, and such laws are duly proved; evidence beyond the production of the bill and protest would be required to show the authenticity of the act. Id.

After a lapse of ten years, a written memorandum, made at the time of the transaction, respecting notice of protest of a note, may be read in evidence, as a link in the chain of testimony. Hart v. Wilson, 2 Wend. Rep. 513. And see Holiday v. Martinett, 20 John. Rep. 168. Welch v. Bennett, 15 Mass. R. 380.

The memoranda of a deceased notary, of the demand and notice of non-payment of a promissory note, are prima facie evidence of the fact. Butler v. Wright, 2 Wend. Rep. 369. Farmer's Bank of Maryland v. Duvall, 7 Gill & John. 78, S. P.

In Louisiana, the act of 1821 (1 Moreau's Digest, 93) provides that the notary keep a record of his protests, signed by himself and two witnesses; and the act of 1827 authorizes the notary's certificate from this record to be given as evidence of notice to the indorsers. M'Donough v, Thompson, 11 Curry, 566. }

(2) { The letter of the cashier of a bank (the holder of the note sued on), addressed to and

and how. Notice of

I. In gene- written, and that a letter was delivered to the defendant upon the dishonour ral what of a bill, together with proof of notice to produce the letter so delivered, as Facts must posterious so dishonour is evidence, an default of production that the be proved, containing notice of dishonour, is evidence, on default of production, that the defendant had notice (x); and proof of a letter from the defendant, in which he acknowledged the receipt of a letter from the holder, of a named date Dishonour, (being the proper time for giving notice), but without referring to its contents, when nec-would afford presumptive evidence of the receipt by the party of a regular essary and how prove notice(y). If a notice to produce be given, it should specify *particularly the intended instrument(z). Where the witness who forwarded the letter [ *659 ] cannot recollect the date or time when he did so, then a notice to produce such letter, bearing the proper date, appears to be particularly requisite(a).

If it should become necessary to prove notice to a party of the dishonour

7 Moore, 112, (Chit. j. 1143); Roberts v. Bradshaw, 1 Stark. Rep. 29, (Chit. j. 933). Both the courts having consulted together on the point. Ackland v. Pearce, 2 Campb. 601, (Chit. j. 824); Phil. Evid. 3d edit. 395. Ackland v. Pearce, 2 Campb. 601, (Chit. j. 824). Action against drawer of a bill. The witness called to prove notice of the dishonour of the bill, said, that on the day it became due, he lest a written notice of its having been disbonoured at the defendant's house. Le Blanc, J. after argument, ruled, that the secondary evidence of the contents of this notice might be given without a notice to produce it, and compared it to a notice to quit. If the document be in the possession of the banker of the plaintiff, he is to be considered as the agent of the plaintiff, and notice to produce, served on plaintiff, is sufficient, without subprenaing the bank-Burton v. Payne, 2 Car. & P. 520, (Chit. j. 1316).

(x) Roberts v. Bradsbaw, 1 Stark. Rep. 28, (Chit. j. 983); Hetherington v. Kemp, 4 Campb.

194, (Chit. j. 932).

Roberts v. Bradshaw, 1 Stark. Rep. 28, (Ch. . 933). Action on a bill of exchange by the indorsee against the drawer. In order to prove notice of the dishonour, the counsel for the plaintiff called a clerk of the plaintiff's, who stated, that on the 2d of February, the day on which the bill had been dishonoured, his master gave him two papers to compare with each other, one of which the witness now produced, and purported to be a notice of the dishonour of the bill in question. Topping, for the defendant, objected, that this could not be read without proof of notice to produce that which had been so delivered; but Lord Ellenborough, C. J. was of opinion, that a letter acquainting a party with the dishonour of a bill was in the nature of a notice, and that it was unnecessary to prove a notice to produce such a letter. Upon further examination the witness stated, that upon the day after he had compared the two papers, he carried a letter from the plaintiff to the defendant, but did not know the contents. Lord Ellenborough was of opinion that this was not sufficient evidence. The plaintiff then proved the service of a notice on the defendant, calling upon him to produce a letter from the plaintiff, giving him notice of the dishonour of the bill mentioned in the declaration. The Attorney-General contended that this was sufficient evidence to go to a jury, that the original had been sent, and that it lay upon the defendant to shew, by producing it, that the letter proved to have been delivered on the 3d of February was nothing more than an invitation to dinner, or something else equally unconnected with the dishonour of the bill in question. Topping, "No answer has been given to the objection; a notice is of no avail to warrant the reading of a copy, unless the party be proved to have been in possession of the original; on the contrary, the notice itself assumes the fact of possession." Lord Ellenborough, C. J. "I think, certainly, that there is a looseness in this evidence, and you may afterwards move the court upon it. Supposing, however, that the paper delivered had been a perfect blank, or contained matter wholly unconnected with the dishonour of the bill, you might have produced it, and shewn the fact to be so, since it is evident what letter was the object of the plaintiff's notice. This is the first time the identity of such a letter has been so minutely scrutinized, and the proof might, in many instances, be attended with great difficulty, as where letters, after being written, are placed upon the table, it might afterwards be exceedingly difficult to identify them with those afterwards put into the post-office " Verdict for the plaintiff. In the ensuing Term the court refused a rule nisi for a new trial.

(y) Hetherington v. Kemp, 4 Campb. 194, (Chit. j. 932).

(z) France v. Lucy, Ry. & Mood. 341; post, 606, note (n).

(a) See Langdon r. Hulls, 5 Esp. Rep. 156, (Chit. j. 697); ante, 656, in notes.

notifying the indorser of the note that it was held unpaid and that he was held liable for its payment, was found in the letter book of the bank, with this entry opposite; "Put into the post office at A." on the day of its maturity. The cashier was dead, and the defendant admitted that the entry was in his hand-writing. Held this evidence was not sufficient to authorize the jury to find that payment had been demanded of the maker. Farmer's Bank of Maryland v. Duvall, 7 Gill & John. 78. full i

.....

27 07.0

1770 2

1

A STA

11, 10, 2

-1 · 2

2. 13

5 July 1941

, ≥j tu €

2 W 7/8

200

فأتفري

, ,768

ور درا دس

21.723

-1 / Title : 2 13

, 49 KI

_(ijni≇ MARK

. 10. XX

, <sub>12</sub> 🕶 🗯 .

ga. + #

1 2º #  $x \in e^{2\pi i \frac{1}{4}}$

... 3º05

-194. 18 ISB

يخليه المعارب المريد

.. 'y 'y F- (17 P*

. .: P?

-: #3 1000

1 (122 B

k Kee H is in

. ig 4€

أنجابون

100 15 ×

v51 34 8

or in , .... The 18

: 14 + 2.41 1 2 12 of other bills than that on which the action is founded, then notice to produce I. In gene-of not requiring notice to produce a notice of dishonour, only applies to the be proved, bills sued on(b); and therefore it was held, that an examined copy of a let- and bow. ter containing notice of the dishonour of a bill of exchange which is not pro- Notice of duced, nor the subject-matter of the action, is not admissible without proof Dishonour. of notice to produce the letter sent(c). And in another case the same rule when necwas adopted (d). The plaintiff's counsel, however, may call the defendant's how provattorney, and ask him whether he has the letter giving notice, in order to let ed. in secondary evidence of it, if not produced(e).

In general, on proof of notice of the dishonour of a bill or note having Notice by been given, it will suffice to shew, that a letter containing information of the Post bow fact, and properly directed, was in due time put in the proper post-office (f), or left at the defendant's house (g). In civil cases, the post-mark upon the letter seems to be evidence of the time and place when it was put into the post-office(h); and sometimes a reference to the post-mark on a letter misdated will establish the real time of sending notice of the dishonour. case, although the post-mark is not necessarily to be assumed to be genuine, and the best evidence of its authenticity would be the testimony of the very person who impressed the mark, yet it should seem that it may be proved by any post-master, or any person in the habit of receiving letters by that post(i). Proof of having forwarded a notice or other paper, properly directed, by the post, has generally been considered in mercantile transactions to be sufficient proof of notice to the party to whom it was directed, and this on a principle of general convenience; a question has, however, frequently arisen as to the requisite proof of the fact of sending by the post. It must be proved precisely, and not lest to inference, at what time and in what manner the letter was sent. Therefore, where the witness swore that it was given in two or three days, the plaintiff was nonsuited(j); and where the holder's clerk, who copied the letter containing the notice, said that the letter was put into the post on Tuesday morning, but he had no recollection whether it was done by himself or another clerk, this was held insufficient proof of notice (k). In one case (l), where it became necessary to prove that a licence to trade had been sent by the plaintiff to A. B., it was proved to be the *invariable | *659 ] course of the plaintiff's office, that a clerk who copies the licence sends it off by the post, and writes on the copy a memorandum of his having done so; a copy of the licence in question was produced from the plaintiff's letterbook(m), in the hand-writing of a deceased clerk, who had written a memorandum, stating that the original had been sent to A. B.; and a witness, acquainted with the plaintiff's mode of transacting business, swore that he had no doubt that the original had been sent according to the statement in the (d) Afflalo v. Fourdrinier, Mood. & M. 835; 6 Bing. 306, (Chit. j. 1468).

(e) Bevans v. Waters, Mood. & M. 235.

(g) Stedman v. Gooch, 1 Esp. Rep. 5, (Ch. 508); Jones v. Marsh, 4 T. R. 465, (Chit.

(i) Abbey v. Lill, 5 Bing. 299.

(k) Hawkes v. Salter, 4 Bing. 715; 1 Moore & P. 750, (Chit. j. 1387).

(1) Hagedorn v. Reed, 3 Campb. 379; 1 Mau. & S. 567, S. C. And see Poole v. Dicas, 1 Bing. N. C. 649; and Doe d. Patteshall v. Turford, 3 B. & Ad. 890; ante, 655, note (c),

(m) See Sturge v. Buchanan, 2 Perry & Dav. 573.

(b) Kine v. Beaumont, 3 Brod. & Bing, 288; 7 Moore, 112, (Chit. j. 1148); Nauze v. Palmer, Mood. & M. 81.

(c) Id. ibid.; Afflalo v. Fourdrinier, Mood. & M. 835; S. P. 6 Bing. 306, (Chit. j. 1468).

(f) Saunderson v. Judge, 2 Hen. Bla. 509; Scott v. Lifford, 9 East, 847; 1 Campb. 246, (Chit. j. 747, 749); ante, 656, note (p).

(h) Archangel v. Thompson, 2 Campb. 623.

(j) Per Lord Ellenborough, in Lawson v. Sherwood, 1 Stark. Rep. 814, (Chit. j. 959); ante, 480, note (p).

and how. Notice of ed.

I. In gone- memorandum; this evidence was held to be sufficient. In another case reral what lating to a bill(n), where the question was whether the defendant had received be proved, due notice of the dishonour of a bill of exchange, it was proved, that on the day after the bill became due, the plaintiff wrote a letter addressed to the defendant, stating that it had been dishonoured; and which letter was put Dishonour, down on a table, where, according to the usage of the counting-house, letters, when nec-essary and for post were always deposited, and that a porter carried them from thence how prove to the post-office; but the porter was not called, and there was no evidence as to what had become of the letter after it was put down upon the table; and a notice to produce the letter had been served upon the defendant; and it was contended for the plaintiff, that this was good prima facie evidence that the letter had been sent by the post; but Lord Ellenborough held, that some evidence ought to be given that the letter had been taken from the table in the counting-house and put into the post-office; if the porter had been called, and if he had said, that although he had no recollection of this particular letter, he invariably carried to the post-office all letters found upon the table, this might have been sufficient; but it was not sufficient to give such general evidence of the course of business in the plaintiff's counting-house(1). In general all the persons through whose hands the letter containing the notice, and the last of whom put the same in the post-office, must be called as witnesses; and the evidence of the practice of a particular private countinghouse, leaving the fact of putting the letter into the post-office to conjecture, will not suffice (o)(2).

> (n) Hetherington v. Kemp, 4 Campb. 193, (Chit. j. 939); see ante, 657, note (y); Phil. on Evid. 3d edit. 390.

> (o) Toosey v. Williams, Mood. & M. 123. Where the practice of the defendant's counting-house was, that the clerk, after copying a letter into the letter-book, returned it to the defendant to seal, and that he or another clerk carried all letters to the post office, but there was no particular place of deposit in the office for such letters, and neither of the clerks had any recollection of the particular letter offered in evidence, though they swore that they uniformly carried all letters given them to carry; held, that the entry in the clerk's writing in the letter-book of a letter to the plaintiff could not be read as proof of such letter having been sent to the plaintiff. Lord Tenterden, C. J. "I

(1) Although the protest of a notary public is not evidence in the case of promissory notes and inland bills of exchange, yet the books of a notary public proved to have been regularly kept, are admissible in evidence after his death, to prove a demand of payment, and notice of non-payment, of a promissory note. Nicholas v. Webb, 8 Wheat, 326. The register of a deceased notary is not evidence of demand and notice on a promissory note, where the entries were made by his clerk, who is still alive; though he be gone out of the jurisdiction of the court, and on diligent inquiry, cannot be found. Wilbur v. Selden, 6 Cowen, 162.

The protest of a deceased notary and a register of protests kept by him in which the notes and memoranda in his hand-writing, proved by a witness, stated that the notary had made diligent search and inquiries after the maker of a note in the city of New York, (where the note was dated), in order to demand payment of him, and that he could not be found, &c. and that notice of non-payment was put in the post-office: Held, that this was sufficient evidence of due diligence as to the demand of payment of the maker of the note, but not of notice to the indorser, as the note or memorandum of the notary did not state where the indorser resided nor to what place the notice to him was directed: But it seems that if the notary had stated that the indorser after diligent search and inquiry could not be found, that would have been sufficient to entitle the plaintiff to recover against the indorser. Holliday v. Martinet, 20 Johns. 168.

The learned reader will find the subject of notice of the dishonor of bills of exchange and promissory notes, ably and fully discussed in the following cases. Brent's Ex'rs. v. Bank of the Metropolis, 1 Peters, 89. Bank of Columbia v. Lawrence, Id. 578. Fullerton v. Bank of the United States, Id. 604, 616. Bank of Washington v. Triplett, Id. 25. Williams v. Bank of the United States, 2 Peters, 96. Bank of the United States v. Corcoran, Id. 221. Bank of the United States v. Carneal, Id. 543. Bank of the United States v. Smith, 11 Wheat 171. Mills v. Bank of the United States, Id. 431. United States v. Barker, 12 Wheat. 559. Mead v. Engs, 5 Cowen, 308.

(2) { As to what admissions and acts of the defendant are proper to go to the jury as evidence that he has received due notice of dishonour. See Brush r. Hayes, 1 Irish Law Rep. 327, Ledlie v. Lockhart, Id S9; Bronnell r. Bonney, 21 Leg. Obs. 239; 6 Jurist, 6. S. C.; Tebbetts r. Dowd, 28 Wend. 829. } fill .

During

. अज्ञहर

4.444 1 -we 7

. : - 18 .

S 78 8 8

1. 1. 2.

- ...... X -19:35:34

... x.76

1 . 155

 $\cdot \cdot \cdot \cdot I$

Sec. 25

. . . .

13 . . . .

3000

3×1 + 35

.. 12" WP . y . 5"

, · : ·

,r. 1 7" 200

- 100 346

g regional فيعروه برا

. 4 FP. 3'

. . ... 1¥ **

14. 41%

كالموس

~ $16 843

5. 18 5 T

: 30

.....

j. 11 85 37

الغامد

19.85

المجالين ال

.....

, Po***

v. . ¥

. 16 00

125

1.1.1

It suffices, we have seen, to prove that a verbal notice of the dishonour I. In genewas left on the proper day, and within reasonable hours, or even to shew ral what that an attempt to leave such notice was made, but that there was no person be proved, at the proper place to receive the the same notice (p).

and how.

The plaintiff, however, may prove facts to excuse his neglect to make a verbal Nodue presentment or a protest in the case of a foreign bill, or to give notice tice. of the non-acceptance or non-payment, as that the defendant *when drawer, Excuse of had no effects in the hands of the drawee, from the time it was drawn until it Notice. became due(q); and proof that the drawer made the bill payable at his own [ *660] house, affords presumptive evidence that it was drawn for his accommoda-A bank- Notice of tion, and prima facie dispenses with proof of a regular notice (r). er's ledger, produced by one of the clerks to prove how it was kept with when exthe customer, is receivable in evidence, to shew that a customer had no funds in the banker's hands; for, per Best, C. J., the inconvenience of call- cused. ing all the clerks of the house who made the different entries would be seriously felt, and without the book it would be impossible to prove that the party had no money in the house; to prove the negative, therefore, the book to which all the clerks usually referred was sufficient, although it might not be admissible to prove the affirmative(s).

Proof of

So proof of a payment of part, or a promise to pay after full notice of the Promise or laches of the holder, we have seen, dispenses with the necessity for proof in Part payan action against the drawer of a due presentment, protest, and notice, and has been considered as admitting all these facts, as well the right of the holder to sue(t); and the like evidence suffices in an action against an indors-But it has been considered, that admitting a drawer of a bill may, by circumstances, impliedly waive his right of defence founded on the laches of the holder, yet it must be proved that an indorser has expressly waived it(x). In these cases it is to be left to the jury to say whether, under the have great reluctance in refusing this evidence, but am bound to do it. The practice here differs from that in most counting-houses. If the duty of the clerk had been to see the letters he bad copied carried to the post-office, it might have done; but here there is something else to be done afterwards, and that by the defendant. There is not enough shown to to render the letter admissible." Verdict for the plaintiff. See Hagedorn v. Reed, 3 Campb. 379; 1 M. & Sel. 567, S. C.; Hetherington v. Kemp, 4 Campb. 193, (Chit. j.

(p) Ante, 471, 472.

(q) Ante, 436, 437; and generally, 433 to 455.

(r) Sharp v. Builey, 9 Bar. & Cress. 44; 4 Man. & Ry. 4, (Chit. j. 1416); anle, 437.

(s) Furness v. Cope, 5 Bing. 114.

(t) Anie, 499 to 507, where the cases establishing and qualifying this rule are collected; and see Greenway v. Hindley, 4 Campb. 52, (Chit j. 914); Lundie v. Robertson, 7 East, 281, (Chit. j. 724); Potter v. Rayworth, 13 East, 417, (Chit. j. 826); Stark. on Evid. part v. 272. An agreement between the drawer and first indorser, stating the bill to be then overdue and dishonoured, and stipulating for payment by weekly instalments, admits notice of the dishonour; Gunson v. Metz, 1 Bar. &

Cres. 193; 2 Dow. & Ry. 334, (Chit. j. 1168).

(u) Taylor v. Jones, 2 Campb. 105.

(x) Taylor v. Jones, 2 Campb. 105, (Chit. j. 771). Action against the defendant as indorser of a promissory note, due May 5th, 1805. The plaintiff proved the defendant's indorsement, and also that in the year 1807, the defendant being requested to pay the note, he promised that he would, but prayed for further time. There was no evidence of the presentment of the note to the maker, or of any notice of its non-payment being given to the defendant; nor did it appear that when the defendant so promised to pay, he knew whether any application for payment had been made to the maker. Gazelee, for the defendant, contended, that the subsequent promise did not dispense with proof of the presentment and no-tice, unless made with full knowledge of the laches of the holder. In the cases nitherto decided upon this subject something appeared that might be considered a waiver of any irregularity with regard to the bill or note, which could not be inferred from a mere promise to pay, made at a time when the party, without being aware of it, was discharged from his liability. But Bayley, J. held, that where a party to a bill or note, knowing it to be due, and knowing that he was entitled to have it presented when

be proved,

I. In gene- circumstances, the defendant had notice at the time of his promise or apral what plication, that there had been no due presentment, or that the holder had otherwise been guilty of negligence (y). So proof that the drawer of a bill knew two days after it was due that it was unpaid and in the hands of a particular indorsee, and objected to pay it on the ground of fraud in obtaining it, and did not then set up any defence on the ground of laches of the holder, was considered as sufficient evidence to go to the jury that he had received regular notice of the dishonour(z).

*661] II. Evidence for Defendant

*II. Evidence for Defendant in general.

WITH respect to the evidence on the part of the defendant, it must necin general. essarily depend on the circumstances of each case.

Forgery(a).

Where a party defends an action on a bill of exchange on the ground that his acceptance has been forged, it is not admissible evidence that the party who negotiated such bill had been guilty of other forgeries (b). But in an action by the indorsee of a bill against the acceptor, where the defence was that the bill was a forgery, and the defendant had represented it to be so to certain bankers who were applied to to discount it for a prior holder, a letter written by the bankers stating what the defendant had said, and minutely entering into the circumstances, was held to be properly received in evidence, preliminary to the observation which was made upon it by the holder(c). We have seen, that in an action against the defendant as acceptor of a bill, the indorsement on which has been forged, and under which the plaintiff claims, the defendant is at liberty to prove that the indorsement was not made by the person entitled to make it(d).

Defect in Stamp(e).

If the defendant would wish to establish that the stamp is insufficient, he should be prepared to produce and point to the particular provision of a printed copy of the Stamp Act on which he relies; and if the objection be, that a bill, purporting to have been made abroad, was made in England, and therefore required a stamp, it will not suffice merely to prove that the drawer was in England at the time the bill bears date, but the fact must be established by more positive evidence(f). And where a bill or note improperly stamped is produced in evidence, the practice in general is, that if such bill or note has been put in and read, an objection as to the want of a pro-due to the acceptor or maker, and to receive notice of its dishonour, promises to pay it, this is presumptive evidence of the presentment and notice, and he is bound by the promise so made. Verdict for plaintiff.

(x) Borradaile v. Lowe, 4 Taunt. 93, (Ch. j. 835); ante, 547, note (g).

(y) Hopley v. Dufresne, 15 East, 275, (Ch. j. 856); Holford v. Wilson, 1 Taunt. 15, (Chit.

(2) Wilkins v. Jadis, 1 Mood. & Rob. 41; 2 Bar. & Adol. 188, (Chit. j. 1537).
(a) See ante, 260 to 262, 426 to 432.

have there seen that although in general a banker who pays a forged check or acceptance of his customer must bear the loss, yet that it is other-wise where the customer has been guilty of neglect. The same principle was recognized in a very late case, where it was held that a holder of bank stock might, by negligence, disable himself from recovering against the Bank of England stock which had been transferred from his account under a forged power of attorney; Coles v. Bank of England, T. T. 1840, Q. B. 4 Jurist,

(b) Viney v. Barss, 1 Esp. 298; Balcetti v. Serani, Peake's Rep. 142; ante, 631, note(d); Griffits v. Payne, M. T. 1839, Q. B. 3 Per. & Dav. 107.

(c) Miers v. Bowler, 2 Jurist, 95, Q. B.

(d) See cases, ante, 261, note(p).

(e) See generally as to stamps on bills and notes, ante, 102 to 125.

(f) Abraham r. Dubois, 4 Campb. 269, (Chit. j. 946).

M.

is the tree

27722

* .71536. - 225 -12

114 2 3.27 าหม่าหมะ

4.75

181. ( 525 X

・ツングア

B. 23

1. 1. P. 1. R

1 to 350

· · · /9/.16

1. 1017-2

415

111172

7 1 25 2° m

pr 100

....

F. 5. 3

. 1. 5

1000

1 : : : :

1 19 0

.... ko

41 12

14 mil 35" -4.02:15

. <sub>ben</sub> (k ing med fire!

(je ) بهواي رو ر

.4 £ 128

N. Bure

(a. 631. 9801

Q.B.iPri

1 35,Q1

per stamp cannot afterwards be taken. But where an instrument which is II. Evidefective for want of a stainp requires extrinsic evidence to shew the defect, dence for Defendant as in the case of a post-dated check, the instrument may be read, and the in general. ground of objection afterwards proved as part of the defendant's case(g).

If the defendant relies on the insufficiency or illegality of the considera-Insuffition, he must be prepared with evidence to prove the circumstances under ciency or Illegality which the bill was drawn or negotiated(1).

As between the original parties to the hill or note, the want of conside- ration or ration alone will be a sufficient defence(i); but as against a third party the  $\binom{Contract}{(h)}$ . defendant must, as we have already seen, go further, and \*impeach the plain- [\*662] tiff's title, before the latter can even be called upon to prove the circumstances under which he became the holder of the instrument (j)(2).

in Consid-

When, however, the defendant has proved an illegality in the concoction Illegality of the bill or note, or in the previous transfer of it, then the plaintiff must, eration(k). in reply, prove himself a bona fide holder for value; for though a party who takes a bill or note bona fide, and without notice of the original illegality in the consideration, is entitled to recover thereon, yet the onus of proving that he so took it lies upon him(l). But we have seen that the plaintiff by replying, to a plea of gaming, that he took the bill or note without notice of the illegality, and for a valuable consideration, does not admit the illegal making of the instrument so as to call upon him in the first instance to prove that he took it for value, and without notice(m). And where the defendant pleaded that a promissory note on which the plaintiff declared was made by the defendant in December, 1833, in pursuance of an agreement thereby to secure to J. A. money lost to him at play in July 1833, it was held, that this plea was not supported by evidence that in July, 1833, the defendant gave J. A. a bill of exchange, payable six months after date, for 871., lost at play, which bill J. A. indorsed to V. K., and that in December, 1833, the defendant substituted for this bill of exchange a promissory note for 100l., bearing date September, 1833, and payable to the order of V. K. six months after date, being the note on which the plaintiff sued(n). And if in an action by the indorsee of a bill of exchange against the acceptor the defendant plead, first, that the bill was accepted for a debt from which he was discharged under the Insolvent Debtors' Act, of which the plaintiff at the time of the indorsement had notice(o), and secondly, that the bill was accepted to induce the drawer not to oppose the discharge of the defendant under that act(p), of which at the time of the indersement the plaintiff also had notice, (h) As to the consideration, see ante, 69 to 101, and 648 to 652.

(i) In an action by the payee against the maker of a promissory note, on an issue whether consideration was given by the plaintiff, the letters of the plaintiff to a third person, shewing that he was pressed for money, are evidence for the defendant to prove that the note was made for the plaintiff's accommodation; Homan v. Thompson, 6 Car. & P. 717, per Parke, B.;

(j) See antc, 648.

(k) See ante, 81 to 97; 5 & 6 Will. 4, c 41. (1) See Wyatt r. Campbell, 1 Mood. & M.

80, (Chit. j. 1352); 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 41.

(m) Edmunds v. Groves, 2 M. & W. 642; ante, 650, note (q).

(n) Boulter v. Coghlan, 1 Bing. N. C. 640; 1 Scott, 588; 1 Hodges, 145, S. C.

(o) See post, Part II. Ch. VIII.

(p) See anle, 85, note (g); and post, Part H. Ch. VIII.

(2) See post, 824, (66).

(g) Field v. Woods, 7 Ad. Ellis, 114; 2 see the other points in this case, unte, 70, Nev. & P. 117, S. C. When check must be note (m). stamped, ante, 106, 118.

<sup>(1)</sup> In debt on promissory note, defendant pleads generally that it was without consideration; on which plaintiff takes issue; the note is in itself evidence of consideration. McMahon r. Crockett, i Minor's Alabania Rep. 362.

II. Evidence for Defendant in general.

and the plaintiff in his replication deny the notice stated in each of the pleas, the onus of proving that the plaintiff had notice is on the defendant (q).

tion.

As between the original parties to the bill, we have seen(r), that a failure Failure of consideration may be shewn as a defence. In an action against the acceptor of a bill given for the price of a horse warranted sound, the breach of warranty, if the horse were returned forthwith, will afford a complete de-But it has been held, that if the consideration has only partially failed, and the exact amount to be deducted is unliquidated, the defendant cannot go into evidence in reduction of damages, but is driven to his cross action(t); and a party who has given his promissory note as the stipulated price of a picture, cannot give the inadequacy of the consideration in evidence with a view to reduce the damages, though he may give it in evidence as a circumstance indicatory of fraud, in order to defeat the contract altogether (u). And we have seen, that if a note be payable on demand, parol [ *663 ] evidence *cannot be given of an agreement to wait for payment till after the death of the testator (v).

Statements of prior Holder, when Evidence for Defendant.

In an action at the suit of an indorsee against the maker of a promissory note, where the defence was usury in its creation, it was held, that letters from the payee to the maker, stating the consideration as between them, if shewn to have been cotemporaneous with the making of the note, and whilst in the hands of the payee, were admissible evidence to prove the usury, without calling the payee himself (w); and statements, when part of the illegal transaction itself, and made at the same time by the very parties to it, may perhaps be admissible in evidence against a subsequent holder as part of the res gesta(x). But in a subsequent case, evidence of what a prior

(q) Warner v. Haines, 6 Car. & P. 666.

(r) Ante, 69, 70, 79.

(s) Lewis r. Cosgrave, 2 Taunt 2, (Chit. j. 771). The horse must be returned; Archer v. Bamfield, 3 Stark. Rep. 175, (Chit. j. 1162).

(t) See the cases, ante, 76 to 79.

(u) Soloman r. Turner, 1 Stark. Rep. 51; ante, 79.

(v) Woodbridge v Spooner, 3 B. & Ald. 233;

1 Chit. Rep. 661, (Chit. j 1073).

(w) Kent r. Lowen, 1 Campb. 177, 180 (d), (Chit. j. 746); S. P. in Walsh v. Stockdale, coram Abbott, J. sittings at Guildhall, after T. T. 1818; Pocock v. Billings, 2 Bing. 269; Ry.
& Mood 127, (Chit. j. 1225); see Coster v. Merest, 7 Moore, 87.

Kent r. Lowen, 1 Campb. 177, 180 (d). Assumpsit against the defendant as maker of a promissory note for 1531. 15s. dated 9th August, 1806, at ninety days after date, payable to Messrs. Coates and Co., indorsed by them to J. Watson, and indorsed by him to the plaintiff. The making of the note, and the several indorsements being proved, the Attorney-General opened, as a defence to the action, that the note had been given under an usurious agreement between the defendant and Coates and Co. To prove this, he offered in evidence certain letters from Coates and Co. to the defendant, wherein they proposed to accommodate him with their acceptance at three months, upon receiving his note for the same sum at ninety days, together with two-and-a-half per cent. commission. Parke objected to the admissibility of this evidence.

He allowed, that in an action against the acceptor of a bill, the drawer or indorser may be called to prove that there was usury in its original concoction, but there the evidence was giren upon oath, and an opportunity was afforded to cross-examine the witnesses. Here these letters of Coates and Co. were not upon oath, and might be collusively written, with a view to defeat the fair claim of the plaintiff. Lord Ellenborough ruled, that it was first necessary to prove by the post-mark, or otherwise, that the letters were contemporaneous with the making of the note, and that after that they would be evidence of an act done by Coates and Co. who were the payees of the note, and through whom the plaintiff made title. Whether the act was proved by an oral declaration, or by other evidence, his lordship said made no difference. The postmark being examined, did show the letters to have been written just before the date of the note, and they were read in evidence accordingly; and Lord Ellenborough told the jury, that if they believed that the note was made on the terms held out in the letters, they must find for the defendant, who had a verdict accordingly; and on a motion for a new trial, it was contended that the letters of the payee had been improperly admitted, but the court being of opinion that they were legal evidence to prove the usury as against the indorser; the verdict for the defendant was confirmed. But see post, 664, note (c).

(x) See observations of Lord Tenterden and Parke, J. in Beauchamp v. Parry, 1 Bar. & 11

. . . . . ,

1376

250

1.27

18: 35

4: " 1

. .

10 215

. . . 42

. ....

. . . . . .

. . . . .

1112 n lima 2007

. . . . .

. . . . .

, . . . .

1-1:01 V''

dence.

. .....

holder had said against the validity of a bill whilst he was the holder, was re- II. Evijected, because such holder was living, and ought to have been called as a dence for witness(y); and it is now settled, that in general the letters of an indorser in general. (and at all events those written after he has parted with the bill) are not ad-Statements missible in evidence to impeach the indorsee's title(z), he being an indorsee of prior *before the bill became due; because such subsequent indorsee or holder Holder. does not sue as the trustee of the preceding one, nor stand on his title, but when Evidence for on that acquired by the bon i fide taking of the bill(a). And where in an Defendant. action by the indorsee against the maker of a note payable with interest on [*664] demand, the plaintiff proved that he gave value for it, and the defendant tendered evidence of declarations made by the payee when the note was in his possession, that he the payee gave no value for it; it was held, that this evi-

Adol. 91, (Chit. j. 1501); see post, 664, note missible on two grounds, first, as declarations

(y) Per Gazelec, J. in Hedger v. Horton, 3 Car. & P. 179, (Chit. j. 1363); and sec Costar v. Symons, 1 Car. & P. 148, (Chit. j. 1204); Barough v. White, 4 Bar. & Cres. 325; 6 Dow. & Ry. 379, (Chit. j. 1261); and Spargo v. Brown, 9 Bar. & Cres. 935; Healey r. Jacobs, 2 Car. & P 616, (Chit. j. 1334); Beauchamp r. Parry, 1 Bar. & Adol 8), (Chit. j. 1591); Phillips v. Cole, 2 Perry & Dav. 288, next Whitehouse v. Hickman, 2 Law J. 59, Ch. Ca. Nov. 24, 1823. On a motion after the coming in of the answer for an injunction to restrain the defendant (the holder of a promissory note) from proceeding at law against the plaintiff (the maker of the note), the plaintiff will not be allowed to read affidavits in order to prove circumstances of conduct, and acts of a third party (the original payee of the note) which are necessary to found the equity of the plaintiff, and as to which the defendant in his answer neither admitting nor denving them, says that he can give no information.

(z) Clipsam v. O'Brien, 1 Esp. Rep. 10, (Chit. j. 508).

Phillips v. Cole, 2 Perry & Day 288. sumpsit on a promissory note, indersee against maker. Plea, that there was no consideration for the defendant's making and indorsing the note, that it was indorsed in blank and delivered to one Williams to get discounted for the defendant, that Williams did not get the same discounted, and thereupon defendant requested him to return the note; but contrary to good faith Williams fraudulently, and without the knowledge or consent of the defendant, procured one Alves to indorse and deliver the note to the plaintiff, and who received the same without giving consideration, well knowing the fraudulent and colorable transfer and indersement. The defendant proposed proving the above facts by production of two letters written by Alves whilst he was holder of the note, Alves not appearing when called on his subprena. The admission of the letters was objected to by plaintiff and refused by the learned judge (Littledale, J.), and a verdict passed for the plaintiff. The court refused a rule for a new trial on the ground of improper rejection of evi-Lord Denman delivered the judgment of the court, " It was argued that the letters were ad-made not only against the interest but in acknowledgment of the fraud of the party making them; and secondly, as made by one under whom the plaintiff being a subsequent holder claimed. With regard to the first of these it is clear that declarations of third persons alive in the absence of any community of interest are not to be received to affect the title or interest of other persons merely because they are against the interests of those who made them. The general rule of law, that the living witness is to be examined on oath is not subject to any exception so wide; and we are of opinion that the circumstance of fraud being acknowledged introduces no difference in principle. That acknowledgment would certainly make the evidence, if receivable, more weighty, but only upon the ground that it is more strongly against the interest of the party than any merely pecuniary consideration could make it-the ground of its admission would be the same in either case; and the same objection applies in boththe want of community of interest. The second ground, if it could have been established in fact, would have made the letters admissible; but when they were tendered no evidence had been offered which either directly or indirectly connected the plaintiff with Alves; he had a title of his own as indorsee and might have an indefeasibly good title, though Alres had none at all; nothing like want of consideration, or the having taken the note overdue, was shewn: under these circumstances we hardly want an authority for holding that the plaintiff's title is not to be affected by the declarations of Alves, who might have been called; but Barough v White, 4 Bar. & Cres. 325, and Beauchamp e. Parry, 1 B. & Ad. 89, infra, are among others in point. It was stated, that the letters themselves would have disclosed fraud and brought the plaintiff into privity with the writer; but whatever is a preliminary necessary to the admissibility of evidence must be proved aliunde, before such evidence is admitted. The letters were therefore rightly rejected, and the rule for a new trial must be discharged."

(a) Shaw r. Broom, 4 Dowl. & Ry. 731, (Chit. j. 1220); Smith v. De Witts, Ry. & Moo. C. N. P. 212; 6 Dowl. & Ry. 120, 8. C., but not S. P., (Chit. j. 1244, 1253); Phillips r. Cole, 2 Porry & Day. 288; ante, 663, note (z).

II. Evidence for Defendant in general. of prior Holder, when Evidence for dence was inadmissible, as the plaintiff could not be identified with the payee, and the note could not be treated as overdue at the time of the indorsement(b)(1). And in a recent case it was decided, that in an action by the Statements indorsee against the maker of a promissory note, the declarations of the payee (not uttered at the time of making the note) are not evidence to prove that the consideration for the note was money lost at play, unless it be previously shewn that the indorsee is identified in interest with the payee, as by Defendant. having taken the note after it was due, or without any consideration (c)(2). [* 665] A fortiori statement of third persons are *inadmissible(d). And where in an action by the holder against the indorsees of a bill of exchange, who indorsed it for the accommodation of the drawer, the latter proved that he had applied to the plaintiff's stepfather to get the bill discounted, and that he did so, and gave him, the drawer, 321. minus the amount of the bill, although the discount at 5l. per cent. was 1l. 19s. only, it was held, that a conversation between the drawer and the party who discounted the bill was not admissible in evidence on the part of the defendants, it not being shewn that such party was the plaintiff 's agent(e). But if it be shewn that the plaintiff is suing for the benefit of a third person, what that person has said will be admissible in evidence (f). And in an action by the indorsee of a bill against the acceptor, the declaration of the drawer is admissible in evidence to shew that the bill was obtained by fraud, if it be shewn that plaintiff was in any way privy to the fraud(g). However, a declaration by a holder under > (b) Barough v. White, 4 Bar. & Cres. 325; 6 Dowl. & Ry. 379, (Chit. j. 1261).

(c) Beauchamp v. Parry, 1 Bar. & Adol. 89, (Chit. j. 1501). Per Lord Tenterden, C. J. "The rule for a new trial must be made absolute. It occurred to me at the trial, that the declarations made by Wade were admissible in evidence as part of the res gesta. On further consideration, I think they were not evidence to affect Beauchamp. He does not stand on the title of the person who made the declarations. Wade is not identified with the plaintiff in point of interest. His declarations are no more than assertions, not upon oath, of a particular fact, which was capable of proof by testimony upon oath. Wade might have been called. If the indorsement had been made to the plaintiff after the note had become due, the case would have been different." Bayley, J. "The indorsee of a bill or note cannot be affected by the declaration of the payee, unless it be shewn that he is identified in interest with him, as if he took it without consideration, or after it was due. There was no such proof in this case." Per Parke, J. "The plaintiff does not claim by the title of the indorser of the note. He has a title of his own as indorsee. He ought not therefore to be affected by the declaration of J. 30, Ch. Ca. Nov. 21, 1826. Even if evi-the indorser. If the declarations were part of the illegal transaction itself, as in Kent v. Lowen, 1 Campb. 177, where the evidence given was the declaration of one of the parties, made at the time of the contract, the case might be different. There the evidence admitted was proof of the contract. The rule for a new trial must be made absolute. Rule absolute. See Phillips v. Cole, 2 Perry & Dav. 288; ante, 663, note (z).

(d) Healy v. Jacobs, 2 Car. & P. 616, (Chit. j. 1334). The payee was absent when the statements were made.

(e) Basset v. Dodgin, 3 Moore & S. 417;

10 Bing. 40, S. C.
(f) Welstead v. Levy, 1 Mood. & Rob. 138, (Chit. j. 1567); post, 675, note (e). See post, 824, (67).

(g) Peckham v. Potter, 1 Car. & P. 232. In a suit instituted against A. and B. to have bills of exchange, which have been negotiated from A. to B., delivered up, on the ground that it was a fraud in A. to negotiate them, and that B was a party to the fraud; the admissions of A., while the bills were in his possession, that he was not entitled to negotiate them, was admissible in evidence; Lee v. Harrison, 5 Law

{ But where the note was over-duc at the time it was indorsed, in an action by the indorsee against the maker, the latter, to show payment, was permitted to prove the declarations of the payee, made before the indorsement. Hatch v. Dennis, 1 Fairf. 244. \( (2) The admissions of the payee of a note while owner thereof, cannot be given in evidence in an action against the maker of a subsequent indorser. Bristol v. Dann, 12 Wend. Rep. 142.

<sup>(1)</sup> In action by the indersee against the maker of a promissory note, which was sold by the payee at a rate of interest exceeding seven per cent. per annum, evidence of the declarations of the payee, who is dead, that the note was an accommodation note lent to him by the maker, thus rendering the negotiation which gave vitality to the note usurious, is not admissible. Kent v. Walton, 7 Wend. Rep. 256.

hi'

1

123-

....

2000

. . .

.... • • •

. . .

.guli . y > "

1 . 4 2 * 6

11. 72

100

2112 1 2 6 3

. . . . . .

. . . . 30.427 S Co.

1-60

. .

whose indorsement the plaintiff claims, that after the bill was due the amount II. Eviwas settled between himself and the acceptor, is not evidence for the latter, dence for for the helder may be called by And where Animals and bill to P. and Defendant for the holder may be called h). And where A. indorsed a bill to B. as a in general. security for a running account, and after the bill became due, B. indorsed it Statements to C., an entry or declaration by B., as to the state of the accounts, is not of prior evidence for A., unless at least it was cotemporary with the indorsement to Holder, But where a bill of exchange has been given by the acceptor for the when Evidence for accommodation of the drawer, and whilst it was in the hands of the latter, Defendant. he made a declaration that it was an accommodation bill, and that the acceptor had received no value; and long after the bill was due, the drawer indorsed the bill to the plaintiff, all accounts between the drawer and acceptor being then closed, it was held, the declaration of the drawer was admissible to affect the plaintiff's title, on the ground that what would be a good defence against the drawer, would be equally a good defence against the indorser in this case (j).

Though we have seen that it is incumbent on the plaintiff in general to Evidence prove a due presentment and notice of the dishonour in support of his action to prove against the drawer or indorser of a bill, yet in doubtful cases it may be necessary for the defendant to be prepared with evidence to negative the plaintiff's prim? facie proof; and we have seen, that where the holder of a bill upon its being dishonoured received part payment, and for the residue ano ther bill, drawn and accepted by persons not parties to the original bill, and such holder afterwards *sued the indorser upon such original bill, it suffices [ *666 ] for him to prove the presentment and dishonour of the substituted bill, and it is incumbent on the defendant to prove that a loss has been sustained in consequence of the want of notice of non-payment of such substituted bill (k).

In order to let in secondary evidence of any particular instrument the usual Secondary notice must be given to the other party to produce it, and it should specify Evidence And a notice to produce all letters, papers, and  $^{(l)}$ . the instrument intended. documents, touching or concerning the bill of exchange mentioned in the declaration, and debt sought to be recovered, is too general(m). Where in an action on a promissory note the defendant wished to give in evidence a composition deed executed by his mother and the plaintiff, and also by various of the defendant's creditors, but not by the defendant himself, and the deed was in the hands of a trustee, who was willing to produce it, but the plaintiff's counsel objected, it was held, that the trustee ought not to produce it, but that the defendant might give in evidence an extract which had been furnished by the trustee, and which he, the trustee, proved to be a correct extract(n). If the defendant rely upon the illegality of consideration(o), or dence is read without any objection being taken at the time, its admissibility may be objected to in the course of the argument; id. ibid. Under what circumstances B. shall be held to have been privy to the fraud committed by A.; id. ibid.

(h) Duckham v. Wallis, 5 Esp. Rep. 251, (Chit. j. 716).

(i) Collenridge v. Farquharson, 1 Stark. Rep. 359.

(j) Benson r. Marshal, cited in 4 Dowl. & Ry. 732.

(k) Ante, 441, 442; Bishop v. Rowe, 3 M. & Sel. 862, (Chit. j. 921). See Hickling r.

Hardy, 7 Taunt. 312; 1 Moore, 61, (Chit. j. 983); 7 Taunt. 312; Bridges v. Berry, 3 Taunt. 130, (Chit. j. 804).

(1) See ante, 656, to 658.

(m) France v. Lucy, Ry. & Moo. C. N. P. 341; ante, 658, note (z). See form of notice, post, appendix.

As to the sufficiency of a notice to produce, in point of time, see Phil. Ev. 666, ed. 1838; Sturge v. Buchanan, 2 Perry & Dav. 573. See post, 824, (68).

(n) Cocks v. Nash, 9 Car. & P. 154.

(o) See per curiam in Reed v. Gamble, 5 Nev. & Man. 433; ante, 650, note (q).

II. Evidence for Defendant in general. on payment(p) of the instrument declared upon, no notice to produce is necessary in order to let in such defence.

Proof of Time given to Ăc-

If the defence be, that the plaintiff gave time to the acceptor, it may be answered by evidence in reply that the defendant assented to the indulgence, or afterwards with full notice promised to pay, and a written paper authorisceptor,&c. ing the holder to use any means to obtain payment will be admissible for this purpose, though unstamped (q).

Payment by another Party to Bill.

Where A. drew a bill on B., and indorsed it to a bank at which he, A., had an account, and B. accepted the bill, but not paying it it was returned noted to the bank, who entered it on the debit side of A.'s account, "B.'s return, 1001. 6s.," and the state of A.'s account at the time of the entry, and up to the commencement of the action against B., was against A. to the amount of about 400l.; and it was proved that the bank had on former occasions allowed A. to overdraw his account to the amount of 500l. or 600l. but there was not any agreement that they should do so; it was held, in an action by the bank, that these facts did not prove a plea that the bank had received from A. 100l. 6d. in satisfaction of the bill(r).

To an action on a promissory note, payable to the plaintiff or order on demand, with interest at 5l. per cent., the defendant pleaded specially to the effect that the plaintiff having agreed with him for the purchase of one of several shares in a business in which he was engaged with others, an agreement in writing was entered into between *them that the amount should be 3,8671. 3s. 9d., in part payment of which the plaintiff would take yearly the defendant's share of the profits of the concern. The agreement, as set out in a plea, contained a memorandum that a note of hand had been given for the amount, bearing interest at 5l. per cent.; and there was a clause, that so long as the defendant should perform the conditions of the agreement, the plaintiff would not call upon him, at any future period, suddenly for the bal-The note referred to in the agreement contained in the ance of the note. body a stipulation which vitiated it, (viz. that the plaintiff's amount of profit The plea averred (inter should be applied yearly to the liquidation of it). alia) that the note sued on was substituted, with the plaintiff's consent, for that mentioned in the agreement, and was subject to its conditions: and further, that the defendant performed his part of the agreement, yet the plaintiff, notwithstanding, required him to pay the balance of the note suddenly, and before a reasonable time had elapsed. The plaintiff replied that the defendant, of his own wrong neglected and refused to pay the note, and that he did not call on him for payment suddenly and before a reasonable time had elapsed: it was held at his prius, that notwithstanding the limited nature of the replication, the question of reasonable time required proof of the whole circumstances of the case, and that the defendant might prove by parol evidence that the plaintiff assented to the substitution of the note sued on for that mentioned in the agreement s). If the defendant in pleading pay-

Substituted Bill or Note.

(p) Shearm v. Burnard, 2 Perry & Dav. 565.

(q) Ante, 415, 416; Hill v. Johnson, 3 Car. & P. 456, (Chit. j. 1417); but see 3 Taunt. 307, and 580.

(r) Ryder r. Willett, 7 Car. & P. 608. When debiting in account operates as payment; Belcher and others assignees of Maberly v.

Lloyd, 10 Bing. 310; 3 Moore & S. 822, S. C. (s) Baylis v. Ringer, 7 Car. & P. 691, cor. Tindal, C. J. It was also held, that the plaintiff was entitled to a verdict for the interest due upon the note, though the jury should think that he was not entitled to the principal suni, on the ground of his having called for payment before a reasonable time had elapsed.

11

t 1 7 1 4 5

; · . . . . . . .

25

. . .

. . 2

. . . .

. ... <sup>ن</sup>

ment of a substituted note unnecessarily aver the giving of the original note, II. Evino evidence as to such original note need be adduced, and the averment dence for may be altogether rejected as surplusage 1).

in general.

If the defendant be sued for goods sold, or work and labour, on account Bill given of which he has accepted or delivered a bill or note to the plaintiff, and for same which the plaintiff does not proceed upon at the trial, the defendant should give the plaintiff notice to produce the same, and prove the service of such notice, and the delivery of the bill to the plaintiff, which evidence will then compel the plaintiff to produce the same, or let the defendant into parol evidence; and if it was drawn or indorsed by the defendant, will further compel the plaintiff to prove that the same was duly presented to the acceptor or maker, and that due notice was given to the defendant of the dishonour, so as to enable the plaintiff to sue for the consideration (n).

Where the declaration in an action on a bill or note contains also the com- Right to mon money counts, and the affirmative of the issue as to the bill or note lies begin. upon the defendant, he will be entitled at the trial to begin, notwithstanding the plea of non-assumpsit to the money counts, unless the plaintiff intend to give distinct evidence upon the latter counts(1). Thus if in an action on a bill of exchange with a count upon an account stated, the defendant plead payment to the count on the bill, and non-assumpsit to the account stated, he is entitled to begin, unless the plaintiff's counsel have some evidence to give upon the account stated (v). And where in an action by the indersee against the acceptor the defendant pleaded that the bill was an accommodation *bill, and that a blank acceptance had been filled up and applied in discharge of this and other bills, and the plaintiff replied that the defendant "broke his promise without such cause as in that plea alleged," it was held, that on these pleadings the defendant was entitled to begin (w). To where the only plea to an action by indersee against acceptor was, that the bill had been altered after acceptance, it was held, that the defendant's counsel had the right to begin, and that upon his calling for the bill the plaintiff's counsel ought to produce it without notice (x).

It has been held, that if the defendant's counsel open mere facts, but call Right to no witnesses, the plaintiff's counsel will still be entitled to the general re-But in a subsequent case(z), Lord Tenterden, C. J. stated the practice to be against such right, and held, that where the counsel for the defendant opens facts to the jury, and calls no witnesses to prove them, it is in the discretion of the judge to allow the plaintiff's counsel to reply. in a recent case, where the defendant, who had begun and had closed his case, and the plaintiff's counsel had after that, in his address to the jury, read a letter which he caused one of the defendant's witnesses to prove, but neither gave it in evidence or adduced any evidence at all, the judge would not allow the defendant's counsel to reply, but suggested that the plaintiff's counsel having proved the letter, and read it to the jury, ought in good faith to put it in, so as to give the defendant's counsel the reply(a). Where in

- (t) Shearm r. Burnard, 2 Perry & Dav. 565.
- (w) Ante, 175 to 177, 433, note (r). (v) Smart v. Rayner, 6 Car. & P. 721, cor.
- Parke, B.; and see Homan v. Thompson, id. 717; and Mills v. Oddy, id. 728.
  - (w) Faith v. M'Intyre, 7 Car. & P. 44. (x) Barker v. Malcom, 7 Car. & P. 101.
- (y) Rex v. Bignold, 4 Dowl. & Ry. 70. See Fairlie v. Denton, 8 Car. & P. 103, as to the right to reply on case cited in support of objection.
  - (z) Crerar v. Sodo, 1 Mood. & Mal. 85. (a) Faith v. M'Intyre, 7 Car. & P. 44, cor.
- Parke, B.

II. Evi-Defendant

an action on a bill or note the plaintiff's counsel makes out a prima facie case, and the defendant's counsel proves the bill or note to have been foundin general. ed on an illegal consideration, and after the plaintiff has called a witness in reply to disprove the illegality, a witness be called to contradict the plaintiff's witness in reply, the defendant's counsel is entitled to observe on the plaintiff's evidence in reply, and on the contradiction; and the plaintiff's counsel then has a general reply(b).

III. COMPETENCY OF WITNESSES.

III. Com-

WE have already considered when it is necessary to subpana a subscribpetency of Witnesses. ing witness(c). It may here be proper to examine the cases respecting the admissibility of witnesses in an action on a bill or note, not the whole law respecting the competency of witnesses in general, but only that which more particularly relates to bills and notes. A reputed wife is a competent witness for or against the supposed husband, in matters relating to bills and notes, if in fact they be not married (d). But it has been doubted whether the wife of the drawer of a bill is compellable to prove for the defendant that the drawer altered it after it had been accepted, and thereby rendered it void, as such evidence tended to criminate her husband(e). The proper time to object to the incompetency of a witness on the ground of interest is [ *669 ] on his being *called on the voir dire, and evidence cannot afterwards be adduced to shew his incompetency. Where, therefore, in an action by the indorsee against the indorser of a bill of exchange, a witness called and sworn on behalf of the plaintiff as James Dewdney was afterwards recognized as George Dewdney, the plaintiff, upon which the counsel for the defendant proposed to call evidence to shew that he was the real plaintiff, it was held

Party to

The general rule is, that it is no objection to the competency of a witness Bill or Note that he is also a party to the same bill or note, unless he be directly interestadmissible. ed in the event of the suit, and be called in support of such interest, or unless the verdict to obtain which his testimony is offered, would be admissible evidence in his favour in another suit(g)(1).

(Chit. j. 1367). (c) Ante, 633, 634. (d) Hill v. Johnson, 3 Car. & P. 456, (Chit.

that such evidence was properly rejected (f).

j. 1417); Batthews v. Galindo, 6 Law J. 738, C. P. 6th May, 1828; 3 Car. & P. 238, S. C. (e) Henman v. Dickinson, 5 Bing, 183; 2

M. & P. 289, (Chit. j. 1416). Semble, that she was not a witness, Rex v. Cliviger, 2 T. R. 263; Rex v. Barbee, Chelmsford Assizes, overruling Rex v. All-Saints, Worcester, 1 Phil. Evid. 82.

(f) George Dewdney v. Palmer, 4 M. & W. 664; 7 Dowl. 177, S. C. Per curium,

(b) Meagoe v. Simmons, 3 Car. & P. 75, "The regular way, although in some instances may have been improperly departed from, was to make the objection on the voir dire, when other evidence might have been called, if necessary, to prove the incompetency, and then, if the incompetency were established, an opportunity would be afforded to the plaintiff of proving his case by other evidence.

(g) Bent v. Baker, 3 T. R. 27; Jordaine v. Lashbrook, 7 T. R. 601, (Chit. j. 606); Smith v. Prager, 7 T. R. 62; Jones v. Brooks, 4 Taunt. 164, (Chit. j. 868); Bayl. 5th edit. 535; see Stark. on Evid. part iv. 298.

(1) In an action upon a promissory note against one of several makers, another of the makers is a competent witness for the defendant, being released by the latter from all claim to contribution. Ames v. Washington, 3 New Hamp. Rep. 115.

In an action on the guaranty of a promissory note, not negotiable, to which the defence was, that the maker of such note had been taken on execution for the same debt and discharged out of custody; it was held, that the maker was an incompetent witness for defendant. Terrell v. Smith, 3 Conn. Rep. 426.

٠.١٠

172.5

And now by the 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42, s. 26, in order to render the re- III. Comjection of witnesses on the ground of interest less frequent, it is enacted, petency of "That if any witness shall be objected to as incompetent on the ground that the verdict or judgment in the action on which it shall be proposed to examine him would be admissible in evidence for or against him, such witness solely on shall nevertheless be examined, but in that case a verdict or judgment in that account of action in favour of the party on whose behalf he shall have been examined to be adshall not be admissible in evidence for him or any one claiming under him, missible. nor shall a verdict or judgment against the party on whose behalf he shall have been examined be admissible in evidence against him or any one claiming under him." And by the 27th section of the same act it is enacted, Directions "That the name of every witness objected to as incompetent on the ground the pame that such verdict or judgment would be admissible in evidence for or against of the Withim, shall at the trial be indersed on the record or document on which the ness on the trial shall be had, together with the name of the party on whose behalf he Record. had been examined, by some officer of the court, at the request of either party, and shall be afterwards entered on the record of the judgment; and such indorsement or entry shall be sufficient evidence that such witness was examined in any subsequent proceeding in which the verdict or judgment shall be offered in evidence.'

Independently of this statute, if the verdict will not necessarily affect his own interest, he is a competent witness, and though his testimony, by deCompetenfeating the present action on the bill or note, may probably deter the holder cy and from proceeding in another action against the witness, yet that only affords Credibilimatter of observation to the jury as to the credit to be given to his testimony(h). Therefore, though it was formerly held, that no party should be permitted to give testimony to invalidate an instrument he had signed(i), a contrary rule now prevails k(2). Consequently, in an action at the suit of

- (h) Id. ibit. As to interest in the result of the action in general rendering a witness incompetent, see the observations on the propriety

  (i) Walton v. Shelley, 1 T. R. 300.

  (k) Bent v. Baker, 3 T. R. 36; Jordaine v. Lashbrocke, 7 T. R. 601, (Chit j. 606); Bayof the rule by Best, C. J. in Hovill v. Stephen-ley on Bills, 5th edit. 532. son, 5 Bing. 496.

In Connecticut, it is now well settled, that a party to a negotiable instrument, who is divested of his interest, is a competent witness to prove it usurious and with in its creation. Townsend v. Bush, I Conn. Rep. 260. But he is a good witness to prove any facts subsequent to the due execution of the note, which destroys the title of the holder. Baker r. Arnold, 1 Cnines' Rep. 258; Woodhull r. Holmes, 10 John Rep. 231. Warren r. Merry, 3 Mass. Rep. 37. Barker r. Prentiss, 6 Mass. Rep. 430. Parker r. Hanson, 7 Mass. Rep. 470. Webb r. Danforth, 1 Day's Rep. 301. Man r. Swann, 14 John. Rep. 270. Hulby r. Brown, 16 Johns. Rep. 70. Myers r. Palmer, 18 John. Rep. 167. The indorser of a negotiable note is not a competent with ness, in an action between the indorace and maker, to prove usury in the transfer of the note by kim. Manning r. Wheatland, 10 Mass. Rep. 502. And in Pennsylvania, it has been decided. that an indorser cannot in a like action be a witness, that there was no original consideration for <sup>(1)</sup> Some difference exists in the different States as to a person who has been a party to a negotiable instrument, being permitted to testify that it was originally void. In South Carolina the Court recently expressed a doubt as to the law. See Haig r. Newton, 1 Const. Ct. Rep. 423. In New Hampshire he is held not to be a competent witness. Houghton r. Page, 1 N. H. Rep. 60. So in United States Courts. U. S. Bank r. Dunn, 6 Pet. R. 57, and in Massachusetts and New York it has been decided that a party to a negotiable instrument cannot be admitted as a witness to prove the note originally void. Churchill v. Suter, 4 Mass. Rep. 156. Warren r. Merry, 3 Mass. Rep. 27. Parker v. Lovejoy, 3 Mass. Rep. 565. Widgery r. Monroe, 1 Mass. Rep. 349. Jones r. Coolridge, 7 Mass. R. 199. Winter v. Saidler, 3 John. Cas. 185. Wilkie v. Roosevelt, 3 John. Cas. 206. Coleman r. Wire, 2 John. Rep. 165. Skilding r. Warren, 15 John Rep. 270. See Powell v. Waters, 3 Cowen, 669. Murray v. Judah, 6 Cowen, 484. But the assignor of a check or note, if he be discharged from his debts under the insolvent act subsequent to the transfer is a competent witness for the holder. Id under the insolvent act, subsequent to the transfer, is a competent witness for the holder. Id.

[ *670 ]

III. Com- an indorsee against the acceptor, the drawer, or indorser, is a competent petency of witness for the defendant to prove *that the bill was originally void, as that it Witnesses. was made in London, though dated at Hamburgh, and consequently invalid for want of an English stamp(l)(1). And Lord Mansfield admitted the maker of a note to prove, in an action against an indorser, that the date had been altered(m); and though in an old reporter it is stated to have been decided, that a person supposed to be the drawer of a bill cannot, without a release, be called to prove that he did not draw(n), that decision could not now be supported(2).

So if the witness has an interest inclining him as much to one of the par-Equality of Interest. ties as the other, so as upon the whole to make him indifferent in point of substantial interest in whose favour the verdict may be given, he will be com-Thus in an action on a note by petent to give evidence for either party(o). the indorsec against the indorser, the maker is a competent witness for the plaintiff, on the ground of equal interest both ways (p). And on the same principle, a party employed by the plaintiff to get a bill discounted, who, in-

> (1) Jordaine v. Lashbrook, 7 T. R. 601, (Chit. j. 606); and Smith v. Prager, 7 T. R. 62; Cooper v. Davis, I Esp. Ca. 463, (Chit. j. 549).

> (m) Levy v. Essex, M. T. 1775, 2 Esp. Rep. 708. The plaintiff declared as an indoree of a promissory note, drawn by Foster Charlton, payable to the defendant, dated the 13th of June, 1775; the defendant insisted that the date of the note had been altered from the 3d to the 13th; and to prove it, called Foster

Charlton. Lord Mansfield admitted him, as at all events he was liable to pay the note. (n) Anon. 12 Mod. 345, (Chit. j. 212); Dupays v. Shepherd, Holt, 297; Trials per Pais, 502. In 2 Stark. on Evid. part iv. 398, it seems to have been considered, that this rule is confined only to criminal cases, but the law is not so(o) Phil. Evid. 3d edit. 54 to 57. (p) Venning v. Shuttleworth, Bayley on Bills, 422.

Still v. Lynch, 2 Dall. Rep. 194. See also Allen v. Holkins, 1 Day's Rep. 17. Bearing v. Reeder, 1 H. & Munf. Rep. 175. 2 Binney, 154. 2 Desaus. Cha. Rep. 224.

But this rule is confined to negotiable instruments. Pleasants v. Pemberton, 2 Dall. 196. 1 Yeates, 202. Baring v. Shippen, 2 Bing. 165, 168. M'Ferran v. Powers, 1 Serg. & Rawle, 102. And they must be such as are actually negotiated in the usual course of business. Blagg v. Phoenix Ins. Co., Cir. Co. U. S. Whart. Dig. 270. Baird v. Cochran, 4 Serg. & Rawle, 399; Hepburn v. Cassel, 6 Serg. & Rawle, 113. Bank of Montgomery v. Walker, 9 Serg. & Rawle,

The indorser is not a competent witness in Pennsylvania in a suit against the maker of a promissory note, to prove that the note was originally drawn for the indorser's accommodation, and thereby enable the maker to set up a discharge by the holder's giving time to the indorser.

For, though a party to negotiable paper may be received to prove subsequent facts to discharge it, yet he is not competent to show that the instrument was not in truth what it purported on its face to be. Bank of Montgomery v. Walker, 9 Serg. & Rawle, 236.

A party to a negotiable instrument may teatify to facts which do not prove it to have been originally void; as payment, &c. Wendell v. George, 1 R. M. Charl. 51.

For further cases as to the competency of parties to a bill or note see, as to drawers and makers, Jackson v. Packer, 13 Conn. 342; Griffing v. Harris, 9 Port. 225; Adams v. Moore, Id. 406; Rice r. Gove, 22 Pick. 158; as to Indorsers; Harrisburg Bank r. Ferster, 8 Watts, 804; Everson v. Heath, 2 Harr. 245; Todd v. Hardy, 9 Port. 346; as to payers; Clapp v. Hanson, 15 Maine Rep. 345; Davidson v. Dove, 1 Alab. Rep. N. S. 133. }

(1) The first indorser of a negotiable promissory note is a competent witness without a re-lease, in a suit by the holder against a subsequent indorser, to prove that the defendant indorsed the note merely for the accommodation of the maker, and that the maker negotiated it fraudalently. Hall v. Hale. 8 Conn. Rep. 336.

A party to a negotiable instrument shall not be permitted by his own testimony to invalidate it.

Bank of United States v. Dunn, 6 Peters' Rep. 51.

The maker of a promissory note, against whom a judgment has been recovered, is a competent witness at common law in a suit by the same plaintiff, the lender, against the indorser, to prove usury. Kechley v. Cheer, 4 M'Cord's Rep 397.

In an action against one of several makers of a promissory note, another of the makers is a competent witness for the defendant, being released by the latter from all claim to contribution. to prove the consideration of the note to have been an illegal contract for the sale of the office of deputy sheriff. Carleton v. Whitcher, 5 New Hamp. Rep. 196.

(2) See post, 825, (70).

hi.

1.51776

1412

e. 1

.. 12 - 1

. 12 22 2

.. 2022

1:152

€ -- € Cali

THE NAME OF

Francis Na

· . 71.71

J. 4133

12342

1:123

July 13.

1422 - ya 🕶 🕮

14 11 3

pri, Incati ; wit i 🥍 🍍

·~ = 311#

NI TO ST 150

تذهيز 1 12 B. 1988

:-, || 🛏

c the 9

ा आध ( N2" )

. : 1 free .

تنابم بيهورر

5- 24.7 f. 10 1,503

THE RESE

A . 20 1 IL 775

164 . 44.

ممكا دور دا

768. 3 Mid 1 معند: الإسا

يختا عبد

ويخ الملينة أبار

1 Jan 12

14.50

عواد بدر

221

stead of doing so, deposits it with the defendant as a security for a debt due III. Comfrom himself to the defendant, is a competent witness for the plaintiff in an potency of Witnesses. action of trover for the recovery of the bill(q). So one joint maker of a promissory note is a witness to prove the signature of the other who has been separately sued(r). But if the interest of the witness on the one side be direct, and on the other contingent only, the former will prevail. in an action against one of two makers of a joint and several promissory note, the other is not a competent witness to prove the illegality of the consideration; nor will it make any difference that the witness before action brought paid his share of the principal, if interest be also due upon the note at the time of such payment; inasmuch as the witness, in case of a verdict against the defendant, will be liable to contribution in respect of that interest(s).

Where one partner drew a bill in the partnership firm, and gave it in payment to a separate creditor, in discharge of his own debt, the Court of King's Bench held, that in an action by such creditor against the acceptor, either of the partners might be called on the part of the defendant to prove that the partner who drew the bill had no authority to draw it in the name of the firm, and that the bankruptcy of the partners would not vary the question as to the competency of the witness; in this case the partner who drew the bill would have been liable to the plaintiff for the amount of his debt, if the plaintiff had failed in the action; and if the plaintiff had succeeded, he would have been liable to the defendant, the acceptor; and with respect to the other partner, though he would have been liable to the defendant, if the plaintiff recovered, he wou'd have had his remedy over against the joint partner(t). And though in another case the court held that a *witness who might have a [ *671] remedy by action, whether the plaintiff or defendant had a verdict, was nevertheless interested, because under the particular circumstances he would have a greater difficulty in the one case than in the other to enforce that remedy(u), it has been observed that this appears to be the only case which has been decided on such a ground, and that from the leading cases on this subject which rest on the broad ground of interest, such a circumstance may now more properly be considered as having a strong influence on the witness, but not as forming any solid objection to his competency (x)(1).

But, before the late act, if the verdict would necessarily benefit or affect Liability to the witness, as if he were liable to the costs of the action, then without a release, which would annul his interest in the event, he was not a competent Therefore, a person who had received a bill to get it discountwitness (y). ed for the drawer, and delivered it to the plaintiff in payment of a debt of his own, was not competent to prove the fact in an action against the drawer, for he would have been liable to the costs if the plaintiff had succeeded(z);

(u) Buckland v. Tankard, 5 T. R. 579, (Ch. (q) Fancourt v. Bull, 1 Bing. N. C. 681; 1 Scott, 645, S. C.

(r) York v. Blott, 5 Maule & S. 71, (Chit. j. 957); Stra. 35.

(s) Slegg v. Phillips, 4 Ad. & Ellis, 852; 6 Nev. & Man. 860; 2 Har & W. 51, S. C.

(1) Ridley v. Taylor, 13 East, 175, (Chit, j. 812); ante, 48, note (s); and see York r. Blott, 5 Maule & S. 71, (Chit. j. 957); Phil. Evid. 8d edit. 55.

j. 523).

(x) Phil. Evid. 3d edit. 56, 57.

(y) Jones v. Brooke, 4 Taunt. 464, (Chit. j. 868); Hardwick v. Blanchard, Gow's Rep. 118, (Chit. j. 1061); Phil. Evid. 3d edit. 49, 56; Hall v. Cecil, 6 Bing. 181.

(z) Harman v Lasbrey, Holt, C. N. P. 390, (Chit. j 976); Lurbalestier v. Clark, 1 B. & Adol. 899.

<sup>(1) {</sup> If the witness can neither gain nor lose by the event of the suit, and the verdict in the case cannot be given in evidence either for or against him, he is competent to testify. All other objections go to his credibility. Wendell v. George, 1 R. M. Charl. 51. }

C0313.

In case of

III. Com- and in an action against the acceptor of a bill, accepted by him for the acpetency of commodation of the drawer, the latter was not, without a release, a compe-Witnesses, tent witness to prove that the holder obtained the bill on usurious considera-Liability to tion, because he did not stand indifferently liable to the holder and the acceptor; for the holder could recover against him only the contents of the bill, but the acceptor would have been entitled in a special action for not indem-Accommodation Bill. nifying him to recover, as well the amount of the bill as the interest and costs of the action against himself, and therefore the drawer had a direct interest in defeating such action (a). So where in an action by the indorsee against the drawer of a bill it appeared by the plaintiff's case that he had received it from the acceptor in discharge of a debt due from him, and it was stated for the defendant, that the bill was accepted in discharge of part of a debt due from the acceptor to the drawer, and that it was indorsed and delivered to the acceptor in order that he might get it discounted, and that he delivered it to the plaintiff upon condition that if he procured cash for it he might retain out of it the amount of the debt due to him from the acceptor, but that he never *did get cash for the bill; it was held that the acceptor could not be examined to prove these facts, for although he was disinterested as to the amount sought to be recovered on the bill, he was interested as to the costs, against which he would have to indemnify the defendant if the plaintiff obtained a verdict(b). This rule, however, did not apply unless the drawer was under an express or implied engagement to indemnify the acceptor against the costs of the action as well as the principal debt(c). Neither did it extend to the case of a bon't fide drawing where the drawer has overdrawn and the drawee has accepted under ignorance that he had previously been over-drawn(c). And an indorser, who, as agent, had received money from the acceptor to pay the bill, was a competent witness for the acceptor in an action against him by a subsequent indorsee, to prove payment of the > 868); Hardwick v. Blanchard, Gow's Rep. 113, (Chit. j. 1061); Maundrell v. Kennett, I Campb. 408, (Chit. j. 755); Bottomley v. Wilson, 3 Stark. Rep. 148, (Chit. j. 1151); Edmonds v. Lowe, 8 Bar. & Cres. 407; 2 Man. & Ry. 427; Dans. & Ll. 88, (Chit. j 1400); Larbalestier v. Clark, 1 Bar. & Adol. 899; and see Phil. Evid. 3d edit. 56; Stark. on Evid. part iv. 299.

> Jones v. Brooke, 4 Taunt. 464, (Ch. j. 868). Per Mansfield, C. J. "This action is brought against Brooke as acceptor of a bill of exchange; at the trial, the defence made was, that this bill was given by the drawer to the indorser on usurious consideration, the latter having taken usurious interest on discounting the bill; and that the bill was accepted for the accommodation of the drawer. An objection was taken to the witness, who was the wife of the drawer; and the objection was overruled, on the ground that it is now the practice to receive persons whose names are on bills of exchange, as witnesses to impeach such bills. And so it is; but here the question is, inasmuch as this was an action against the acceptor, whether she should be received as against the acceptor, the drawer, as it was contended, being interested to defeat the action; the doubt was this: the drawer has an interest to protect the acceptor; for if the holder succeeds against the acceptor, the acceptor will have a right against the drawer, to make the drawer pay, not only the money, but also all damages he, the acceptor, might have sus-

(a) Jones v. Brooke, 4 Taunt. 464, (Chit. j. tained by being sued for it; for the drawer of an accommodation-bill is bound to indemnify the acceptor against the consequences of an acceptance made for the accommodation of the drawer; we are therefore of opinion that the drawer cannot be a witness, and consequently the rule must be made absolute for entering a verdict for the plaintiff." And see Hardwick v. Blanchard, Gow's Rep. 113.

(b) Edmonds v. Lowe, S Bar. & Cres 407; 2 Man. & Ry. 427; Dane. & Ll. 88, (Chit. j. 1400).

(ε) Bagnall v. Andrews, 7 Bing. 217; 4 M. & P. 839, (Chit. j. 1514). W. drew a bill on the defendant, to whom he had been sending goods for sale, and defendant accepted the bill, neither party knowing the state of the account between them; it turned out that W. was at the time indebted to the defendant. W. lurking from his creditors at large after an act of bankruptcy, indorsed the bill upon importanity to plaintiff, one of his creditors, with whom he was on friendly terms, and then became a bankrupt. Plaintiff having sued defendant on the bill, it was held, that W. was an admissible witness in the cause, and the jury having found for the de-

2 East, 458, (Chit. j. 652); and Shuttleworth r. Stephens, 1 Campb. 407, (Chit. j. 755), are overruled. Birt v. Kershaw, however, is cited by Patteson, J. in Reay v. Packwood, 7 Ad. &

fendant, the court refused to disturb the verdict

Semble, that the prior cases of Birt v. Kershaw.

14".

. . . .

. 12 -

١,,,, 11 11

1 4 15

Sugar

. 11: 7"

. . v.*

13 %

n - r (+)

r 12 H 2nd

. , ... "

. 4 F

, 11 -

100

...

197

bill; for, otherwise, the rule would have excluded every witness who had III. Compaid money as agent(d). And if an accommodation acceptor released the witnesses. drawer, the latter was rendered competent(e); and the drawer of a bill who In case of had become bankrupt was a good witness in an action against an acceptor, Accommowho accepted the bill for the accommodation of such drawer, on being re-dation Bill. leased by such acceptor, although the latter had formally released the assignees of the cstate (f). And where the drawer or indorser of an accommodation bill, or a person who had guaranteed the payment of a bill had been discharged by his bankruptcy and certificate from any further liability to pay the amount of the bill, he was a competent witness, because he was also thereby relieved from liability to costs(g).

Since the 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42, the drawer of an accommodation bill is rendered a competent witness for the defendant, in an action by the indorsee against the acceptor, by an indorsement of the witness's name on the postea under the twenty-seventh section of that statute; because he could only be made liable to the costs of the action by means of the verdict and judgment, which, in consequence of the witness's name being indorsed, are prevented from being used against him(h). But the joint maker of a promissory note, signed by the defendant as surety only, is not a competent witness for the defendant in an action by the payee, nor can he be rendered so by an indorsement on the postea; for he is liable to indemnify the defendant, not only against the damages and costs to be recovered by the-plaintiff, but also against the defendant's own costs(i).

*Where A. and B. dissolved partnership, and an action was brought by Co-dethe accommodation acceptor of a bill, drawn after the dissolution, in the fendant name of the firm, and A. pleaded his subsequent bankruptcy and certificate, when a and a nolle prosequi was entered as to him, it was held, that A. was a comforthe petent witness for B. to prove that the bill was drawn for A.'s accommoda-other. tion alone; and that consequently B. was merely surety for A., and there- [ *673] fore discharged from liability (k). And where two persons were sued as acceptors of a bill, and one of them pleaded his bankruptcy and certificate, and thereupon the plaintiff entered a nolle prosequi as to him, and he released his interest in the surplus effects, it was held, that he was a competent witness for the other defendant(1). So if instead of entering a nolle prosequi, the plaintiff take issue on the plea of bankruptcy and a verdict be found on such plea for the defendant, the latter may immediately after be examined as a witness for the other defendant (m)(1). On the other hand, in an action brought to charge A. with others as a partner in a trading company, a person, who by other evidence than his own, appeared to be one of the partners, post, 674, note (z).

(e) Hardwick v. Blanchard, Gow's Rep. 113, (Chit. j. 1061). Where a witness is rendered competent by a release it is not necessary to produce the release, though the interest of the witness appear upon the record; Lunnis v. Row, sitting in Banc after T. T. 1839, Q. B 3 Jurist, 604, overruling Goodhay v. Hendry, 1 Mood. & M. 319.

(f) Cartwright v. Williams, 2 Stark. Rep. 840, (Chit. j 1028).

(g) Brend v. Bacon, 5 Taunt. 183; Ashton

(d) Reay r. Packwood, 7 Ad. & El. 917; v. Longes, Mood. & M. 127, (Chit. j. 1871); per Lord Tenterden, 6 Geo. 4, c. 16, s. 52.

(h) Faith v. M'Intyre, 7 Car. & P. 44, cor. Parke, B overruling Burgess v. Cuttill, 6 Car. & P. 282; 1 Mood. & Rob. 315, S. C.

(i) Stanley r. Johson, 2 Mood. & Rob. 103; and see Green r. Warburton, ib. 105, S. P.

(k) Moody v. King, 2 Bar. & Cres. 559; 4 Dowl. & Ry. 30, (Chit. j. 1200).

____

(1) Afflalo v. Fourdrinier, 6 Bing. 306; 8 Moore & P. 743, (Chit. j. 1460).

(m) Bate r. Russell, Mood. & M. 332

<sup>(1)</sup> In a suit against three joint and several obligors of a promissory note, but who sever in their trial, after one of them has a verdict in his favour he is a competent witness to testify on behalf of his co-defendants Row v. Richardson, 4 Miller's Louis. Rep. 551.

III. Com- was holden to be competent to prove the liability of A. as a partner(n). If petency of a witness has given a note jointly with others for a sum to indemnify the de-Witnesses. Sendant in the action, and his name has been erased from the note by the fendant in the action, and his name has been erased from the note by the consent of all parties, his competency is restored, and he may be examined for the defendant(o).

In an action against the acceptor of a bill, the drawer is a competent wit-Drawer, when com-ness for the plaintiff to prove not only his own indorsement(p), but also the petent. hand-writing of the acceptor(q)(1), or for the defendant to prove that the plaintiff discounted the bill upon an usurious consideration (r)(2), or that it [ *674 ] has been paid(s)(3). And the circumstance of the witness *being then in > (n) Hall r. Curzon and others, 9 Bar. & man, 5 Esp. Rep. 119. Cres. 646.

(o) Sewell v. Stubbs, 1 Car. & P. 73.

(p) Willsheir r. Cox, Guildhall, 25th Muy, 1826. Coram Abbott, C. J. thought it was nrged by Chitty that the drawer's evidence was proving a title beneficial in the result to himself; Hobson v. Rich, ante, 645, note (g).

(q) Dickenson v. Prentice, 4 Esp. Rep. 32, (Chit. j. 693); Barber v. Gingel, 3 Esp. Rep.

62, (Chit. j. 618).

Dickenson v. Prentice, 4 Esp. Rep. 32, (Chit. 693). This was an action against the defundant as acceptor of a bill, the defence intended to be set up was, that the acceptance was a forgery; to prove defendants hand-writing, the plaintiff called the drawer, it was objected that having drawn the bill, the forgery of the acceptance could only be imputable to him, and that as he might be committed for a capital offence if the forgery was established, he had such an interest as ought to disqualify him But Lord Kenyon said, this was matter of observation as to his credit; but no objection to his admissibility. He was admitted, and the plaintiff had a verdict.

So where in an action by the indorsee against the acceptor of a bill, it appeared that the defendant had taken the benefit of the insolvent debtors' act, and had set down the drawer as a creditor in his schedule, it was held, that the drawer was, notwithstanding this, a competent witness for the plaintiff in this action; Cropley v. Corner, 4 Car. & P. 21, (Chit. j. 1449).

(r) Rich v. Topping, Peake's Rep. 224; 1 Esp. Rep. 176, (Chit. j. 528); Brown v. Acker-

Rich v. Topping, Peake's Rep. 224, (Chit. 528). The drawer himself had indorsed the bill to the plaintiff for an usurious consideration, he had a release from the acceptor, which Lord Kenyon thought was necessary. The learned reporter, however, in a note on the case, considered that the witness stood indifferent, and ought to have been received even without a release; and in Brown v. Ackerman, 5 Esp. Rep. 119, the drawer (under precisely similar circumstances) was admitted without a release, at least it is not stated that he had any.

(a) Humphrey r. Moxon, Peake's Rep. 52, (Chit. j. 481); Charrington v. Milner, Peake's Rep. 6, (Chit. j. 463); Adams v. Lingard, Peake, 117, (Chit. j. 495). Sed vide Phetheon v. Whitmore, Peake, 40, (Chit. j. 469).

Humphrey v. Moxon, Peake's Rep. 52, (Ch. 481). Assumpsit on a bill of exchange, indorsee against acceptor. The defendant's counsel offered to call the drawer to prove that the bill was paid by him, and relied on the case of Gardner and Carter, determined some time Erskine objected to this witness. This case differs from that of Gardner and Carter, there the payee was the plaintiff; this action is brought by the indorsee: Lord Kenyon, "It makes no difference. The courts have laid down a rule that a man shall not destroy his own security: this man does not come to destroy his own security, but to shew that it has been satisfied." He was therefore received, but it appearing that notice had been given to him the day after the bill became due, of its having been dishonoured by the acceptor, he was again ob-

(1) It has been held in Massachusetts, that in an action by an indorsee against the drawer, the indorser is not a competent witness to prove the hand-writing of the drawer without a release, or its equivalent, a discharge from liability on the indorsement. Barnes v. Ball, 1 Mass. Rep. 78. Rice v. Stearns, 3 Mass. Rep. 225. { Reid v. Geoghegan, 1 Miles, 204. }

(2) In the case of the Bank of the United States v. Dunn, 6 Peters, 51, this court decided that a subsequent indorser, was not competent to prove facts which would tend to discharge the prior indorser from the responsibility of his indorsement. By the same rule, the drawer of the note is equally incompetent to prove facts which tend to discharge the indorser. Bank of the Metropohis v. Jones, 8 Peters' Rep. 12.

(3) { In an action by the indorsee of a promissory note, against the indorser, the drawer is not a competent witness for the defendant, to prove that when the note was made the indorsec had stipulated not to hold the indorser responsible, and that the note was for the accommodation of the indorsee, unless there be proof aliunde that the indorsee was an original party to the note. Harley v. Emerick, 1 Miles, 36.

In an action on a note by the payee against the surety, the principal is a competent witness; and his testimony is admissible to prove facts happening after its execution, to discharge the surety. Freeman's Bank v. Rollins, I Shepley, 202. } Hr.

1117 -1

1 12

11:15

1 12 15 1

. . . . .

" 1 to 2 to or to B. i and restal men De

.u 4777

فيسؤنون (10) 1

(د ر بدد س 1221ء من ساب 1 2 ... 25

. . . . . . .

14,016

. 12 3

1....

150 🚜

1.18-2

الأنكياويان بوا e ~ =

. . .

20 2 74

يج نكلة صورين

1.00

Let bett

יוני נינונר ה

3 SM 15

11 111:15

a Mi Pak or secretal t r:[14];3

. Caret . W 824 K

. 34 9 5T

4 - 28<sup>(1)</sup> *** أحنا ز

the matters

وجنيه tates, ر التنظيم التنظيم التنظيم التنظيم التنظيم التنظيم التنظيم التنظيم التنظيم التنظيم التنظيم التنظيم التنظيم التنظ

r, 🗷 mes 19 mg

1.22

<sup>الا</sup> م

***1:

prison under a charge of having forged the bill will not affect his competency III. Comto give such evidence(t).

petency of Witnesses.

In an action by the indorsee against the drawer of a bill, a prior indorser is Indorser. a competent witness for the plaintiff, to prove that he the witness indorsed the bill(u)(1), or that the defendant promised to pay the bill after it became due(x), and a prior indorser of a note is a competent witness for the maker to prove it paid(y). So, in an action by indorsee against acceptor, issue being joined on a plea of payment, a prior indorsee is a competent witness for the defendant, though he acknowledges on the voir dire that he received the money from the defendant to pay the plaintiff the bill(z). action by the second indorsee against the first indorser, the second indorser was held a competent witness to prove that he, on receiving notice of dishonour from the plaintiff, gave notice thereof to the defendant(a).

In an action against the drawer of a bill, in order to excuse the neglect to Acceptor. give him due notice of the dishonour, the acceptor is a competent witness to prove that he had not received any value for his acceptance, for though by supporting the action against the drawer he may perhaps relieve himself from an action at the suit of the holder, yet he at the same time gives an action jected to on account of interest. Lord Kenyon inclined to think this last objection a good one, because being liable to puy the bill himself on account of due notice having been given, by proving it paid, now he destroyed the bill, and would eventually discharge himself. His lordship, however, doubting whether the notice was given early enough, did not reject, but admitted his testimony subject to the opinion of the court, if the plaintiff chose to move for a new trial.

The bill was for 73l, and the witness proving payment of 301. only, the plaintiff had a verdict for the balance.

(1) Burber v. Gingell, 3 Esp. Rep. 62, (Chit. j. 618).

Barber v. Gingell, 3 Esp. Rep. 62. The drawer was called to prove that he had paid the bill. Being at that time a prisoner on a charge of having forged the bill, and brought up by habeas corpus, he was objected to as incompetent, but Lord Kenyon overruled the objection. See Dickenson v. Prentice, ante, 673,note (q).

(u) Richardson v. Allan, 2 Stark. Rep. 334, (Chit. j. 1022); Hobson v. Rich, Bart, ante, 615, note (g).

(x) Stevens r. Lynch, 2 Campb. 332; 12

East, 38, (Chit. j. 782).

(y) Charrington v. Milner, Peake's Rep. 6, (Chit j. 463); Humphrey r. Moxon, Peake's Rep. 42, (Chit. j. 481); supra, note (s). Charrington v. Milner, Peake's Rep. 6; the note had been indersed by Monk to the plaintiff, and the defendant was allowed by Lord Kenyon to call Monk to prove that he had paid the note to the plaintiffs.

(z) Reay v. Packwood, 7 Adol. & El. 917, ante, 672, note (d).

(a) At Guildhall, 3d March, 1822, cor. Abbott, C. J. Vincent, attorney.

The payee of a note, in a suit between the assignee and the maker, is a competent witness to prove upon what terms the assignment was made, if called by the maker; their interests being adverse. Stone v. Vance, 6 Ham. 248.

(2) In an action by the holder of a bill of exchange against an indorser, a subsequent indorser is not a competent witness to charge the defendant, without a release from the plaintiff. Talbot v. Clark, 8 Pick. 51.

In an action by an indorsee against the maker of a promissory note, the payse is a competent witness to prove the time of the indorsement. Spring v. Lovett, 11 Pick. Rep. 417.

An indorser not shown to have been made liable by notice of the dishonour of a note, and not called to prove the genuineness of the note, is a competent witness, in an action by the indorsee against the maker, to show that the note is not usurious. Barretto v. Snowden, 5 Wend. Rep. 181. And per Savage, C. H. J. "Perhaps it might be doubted whether the witness ought to be excluded, oven if his liability as inderser had been shown; for, by fixing the debt upon the defendant, he does not discharge himself; if he is liable, the plaintiff may prosecute him as well as the defendant, and prefer to take execution against him; or the maker may be insolvent; so that his interest would be contingent. Ib.

<sup>(1) {</sup> Or the hand writing of the drawer, in a suit by the holder or indorsee against the drawer. Reid v. Geoghegan, 1 Miles, 204. But in such a suit the indorser is not a competent with ness for the defendant, to prove that the plaintiff constituted him (the indorser) his agent to receive payment of the note from the defendant and that he did receive such payment. Elias v. Teill, Idem, 272.

III. Com- against himself at the suit of the drawer, in which the evidence he has given petency of of the want of consideration would not avail him, but must be proved by an-Witnesses. other person(b).

When Par-

The drawer will not, however, be allowed, in support of a defence to an ty not a Witness to action at the suit of an indorsee against the acceptor, to set up a title to the prove Title bill in himself, by proving that he had delivered the bill to the plaintiff without consideration, and as his agent only, to enable him to obtain payment, for his situation would be better or worse according to the event of a verdict; nor will a release from the defendant render him a competent witness for such purpose (c)(1).

Admissions. 1 *6751

*We have already seen how far the admissions or declarations of other parties to the bill or note are admissible in evidence (d). In general, evidence of what a third person said when he was holder of a bill, is not admissible against the plaintiff; but it is otherwise if it appear that the plaintiff is merely an agent for, or a tool of, the third party (e). As regards the identity of the party making the admission or declaration, it has been held, that where a person, on being sent by the defendant, an indorser of a bill of exchange, to the plaintiff, the indorsee, to inquire as to the solvency of B., a prior indorser, went to the plaintiff's residence, and on the street door being opened, a person in a dressing gown, whom he had never seen before or since, asked him what his business was, the evidence of identity was not sufficient to let in proof of the conversation; and that whether the evidence of identity was sufficient or not, was a question for the judge, and not for the jury (f).

When witness comgive evi-dence against his Interest.

It is declared by the 46 Geo. 3, c. 37, "that a witness cannot by law pellable to refuse to answer a question relevant to the matter in issue, the answering of which has no tendency to accuse himself, or to expose him to penalty or

> (b) Staples r. Okines, 1 Esp. Rep. 332, (Chit. j. 544); Legge v. Thorp, 2 Campb. 310, (Chit. j. 783); Peake's Evid. 4th edit. 170. (c) Buckland r. Tunkard, 5 T. R. 578; 1

> Esp. Rep. 85, (Chit. j. 523); Bul. N. P. 288. Set quere, for if the plaintiff recovered, he would still be but a trustee for the witness; Stark. on Evid. part iv. 301, note (s).

> Buckland c. Tankard, 5 T. R. 578, (Chit. j. 523). This was an action by an indorsee against the acceptor of a bill. The bill was drawn by Gregson, payable to his own order, and indersed by him in blank, and the defendant called Gregson to prove that he had indorsed and delivered it to the plaintiff, that he might get it paid, and not give him any interest in it, and that he had no consideration for it, and was still entitled to it. The witness had a release from the acceptor. Lord Kenyon thought him interested, and rejected him. And on a rule nisi for a new trial, the court held, that his situation would be better or worse according to the event of the verdict, and that therefore he was properly rejected. Rule discharged.

(d) Ante, 664, 665.

(e) Welstead v. Levy, 2 Mond. & M. 188, (Chit. j. 1567); ante, 665, note (f).

(f) Corfield r. Parsons, 1 Crom. & Mee.

The payee of a note who has indersed it with a saving of his own liability, is a competent witness to prove an alteration in the note since its execution. Parker r. Hanson, 7 Mass. Rep. 470. So a drawer is a competent witness to prove that at the time of drawing the bill he communicated certain conditions and restrictions as to his right to draw the bill. Storer v. Logan, 9 Mass. Rep. 55. An indorser is a competent witness in an action by an indorsee against the maker to Prove that the note was, after the indorsement, fraudulently put into circulation. Woodball v. Holmes, 10 John. Rep. 231. See also Owen v. Mann, 1 Day's Rep. 833, n. (1).

<sup>(1)</sup> In an action by an indorsee against an indorser, the maker, a certificated bankrapt, under a commission issued since the making of the note, and released by the indorser, is a competent witness to prove that he has paid the note to the plaintiff. Warren v. Marry, 3 Mass. Rep. 27. And in an action by the indorsee against the drawer, the indorser, (who was the payee) is a competent witness to prove that the indorsement was made in trust for himself without any recourse to himself. Barker v. Prentiss, 6 Mass. Rep. 430.

**'..'

, 1,4 '

. . . . . . . .

1'42 "

, do

forfeiture of any nature whatsoever, by reason only or on the sole ground III. Comthat the answering of such question may establish, or tend to establish that petency of he owes a debt, or is otherwise subject to a civil suit, either at the instance WhenWitof his Majesty or any other person. But it has been held, that a witness commay object to answer a question which he thinks will tend to his crimina-pellable to tion, though the answer would not lead to an immediate conclusion of give Eviguilt(g).

In an action on a bill of exchange, if a person called to prove the conagainst his leration say that the bill was accounted for my sideration say that the bill was accepted for value received, but refuse to say of what that value consisted, on the ground that it might render him liable to a qui tam action, he cannot be compelled to answer; but if he persist in refusing, it will stand upon the evidence *that there was no consideration, [ *676] and unless the plaintiff prove that he gave value, he will fail(h). A witness is not excused from answering a question on the ground that the conduct inquired into would subject him to a penalty (as under the Stock-jobbing Act) if the time limited for proceeding for such penalty is past(i). And a witness may be asked questions tending to disgrace him, but not to subject him to punishment(k); and if he answers in part he must state the whole of the facts connected with the part so answered (l), and the objection to answering a question must proceed from the witness himself, or from the judge, and

Where in an action against the acceptor of a bill of exchange, the plaintiff was nonsuited in consequence of the absence of a witness subpænaed by him to prove the defendant's hand-writing, the court granted a new trial on payment of costs(n).

(g) Cates v. Hardacre, 3 Taunt. 424, (Ch. 931); Phil. on Evid. 3d edit. 222; 1 Chit. j. 931); Phil. on Evid. od edid. 222, Crim. Law, 2d edit. 620; Stark. on Evid. part ii. 135; Lloyd v. Passingham, 16 Ves. 59.

not from the counsel(m).

Cates v Hardacre, 3 Taunt. 424, (Chit. j. 831). This was an action by an indersee against the drawer of a bill drawn payable to the drawer's order, upon Strutton, and by him accepted, and afterwards dishonoured; it was stated in the declaration to have been indersed by the defendant to the plaintiff. The case was tried before Heath, J. at Westminster, at the sittings after H. T. 1811; the plaintiff proved his case. The defence intended to be set up was usury. The first witness called on the part of the defendant was one Taylor, and the bill having been put into his hands, he was asked by Shepherd, Serjeant, for the defendant, " whether that bill had ever been in his possession before;" upon which, Best, Serjeaut, interfered, hy asking the witness whether he had not been indicted for usury in this transaction, and upon his answering in the attirmative, Best cautioned him against answering questions which might tend to criminate him; the witness said, that he thought his answer to the question proposed would have a tendency to convict him of the offence of usury; the learned judge told him that if he thought so, he was not bound to answer the question; the witness availed himself of this direction, and the counsel for the defendant being thus prevented from pursuing his inquiry, a verdict passed for the plaintiff. Shepherd, Serjeant, moved for a new trial, contending that the judge's direction was wrong; that it was not sufficient that a witness thought that his answers would tend to criminate him; but that it ought clearly to appear that they would have that effect. Mansfield, C. J. " Your questions go to connect the witness with the bill, and they may be links in a chain." Rule refused.

(h) Dandridge v. Corden, 3 Car. & P. 11, (Chit. j. 1351). Assumpsit on a bill of exchange. On the part of the plaintiff a stock-broker was called to prove the discounting of the bill. He was asked by Gurney, for the defendant, whether the bill was accepted for a valuable consideration? He answered that it was accepted for value received, but declined saying what the consideration was, as he might make himself liable to a qui tam action.

Gurney Submitted that the witness having answered in part was bound to continue his evidence, (i) fra, note (l),) and having said that the bill was accepted for value received, he was bound to explain of what that value consisted.

Lord Tenterden, C. J. "I cannot make him answer if he does not think proper. The effect of it will be, that if he does not state what the consideration was, it will stand as if there was no consideration at all."

(i) Roberts v. Allatt, Mood. & M. 192.

(k) Cundell v. Pratt, Mood. & M. 108. (1) East v. Chapman, Mood. & M. 47; 2 Car. & P. 570, S C.

(m) Thomas v. Newton, Mood. & M. 48, in notes; and 2 Car. & P. 606, (Chit. j. 1334).
(n) Shillito v. Theed, 4 M. & P. 575; S. C. 6 Bing. 753; S. Law J. 298, C. P., T. T. 1980.

*CHAPTER VI.

OF THE SUM RECOVERABLE IN AN ACTION ON A BILL, &c.

| I. THE PRINCIPAL MONEY Holder's Right to recover full Am In case of Bill or Note payable by | 677  ount ib.  In- | Costs of Action IV. Re-exchange Nature of | 684ib.ib. |
|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------|-------------------------------------------|-------------------|
| stalments                                                                                   | 678                        | Who ljable to pay it                      | 635               |
| II. Interest                                                                                | 679                        | To what Amount                            | 656               |
| When recoverable                                                                            | ib.                        | V. Damages                                | 687               |
| When not recoverable                                                                        | 680                        | Upon Dishonour and Protest of             | f Fereign         |
| When it begins to run                                                                       | 681                        | Bill                                      | ib.               |
| When it stops                                                                               | 682                        | VI. PROVISION, &c.                        | ib.               |
| At what Rate                                                                                | 683                        | Meaning of                                | ü.                |
| III. Expences, &c.                                                                          | ib.                        | Amount of                                 | 688               |
| Noting and Protesting .                                                                     | ib.                        | •                                         |                   |

THE amount of the DAMAGES which the plaintiff is entitled to recover necessarily depends on the liability of the parties to the instrument, the nature of which liability has already been considered in that part of the work which treats of the drawing, acceptance, transfer, and dishonour of bills(a), and from whence it may be collected that, in general, the sum for which the bill is payable may be recovered, and in certain cases interest, and such expences as may have been occasioned by the dishonour of it.

1. THE PRINCIPAL MONEY.

I. The Principal Money.

Holder's Right to Amount.

WITH respect to the principal money, or that sum which is payable on the face of the bill or note, many instances occur in which, although the plainrecover full tiff may not have given full value for the bill, &c. he may, nevertheless, recover the whole sum, holding the overplus beyond his own demand as trustee for some other party to the bill, &c. entitled to receive such overplus. Thus if a bill be drawn in the regular course of business, as for money really due from the drawee to the drawer, in such case, in order to avoid several actions, an indorsee, though he hath not given the full value of the bill, may recover the whole sum payable, and be the holder of the overplus as a trustee for the indorser(b); and if the holder receive part-payment of the first indorser, he may, nevertheless, recover the whole against the drawer and acceptor, though if the acceptor pay a part, then only the residue can be recovered against the drawer(c). This rule, permitting the holder of a bill, &c. to recover more than is due to himself, only applies where there is some

(c) Walwyn v. St. Quintin, 1 Bos. & Pul.

658, (Chit. j. 578); Johnson v. Kennion, 2 Wils. 262, (Chit. j. 871); and see the same rule in proof in bankruptcy, Ex parte De Tastet, 1 Rose, 10.

(a) See ante, Part I. Ch. V. to X. (b) Wiffen v. Roberts, 1 Esp. Rep. 261, (Chit. j. 536); Jones v. Hibbert, 2 Stark. Rep. 304, (Chit. j. 1009).

ACTION (N)

्रत्ये १० तस्याहः Jr. 788.35

ក្រាយលោក

116 301 120 3222 22

: 15th #E

· Allix. 3 C 7 1

يعتشيهاين

Jenian K

TE COCH TO

s for accepts

110 Miles

p di 198 "

: (18 B)

.4 100° e Harde

J. W. T

1.000

, in the test

ess i fee

other person entitled to receive from the defendant the \*overplus of what is I. The due to the plaintiff, and if there be no such person, the plaintiff will be per- Principal mitted only to recover what is due to himself(d). But in case of bankrupt- $\frac{Money}{}$ . cy, though the holder may prove the whole amount under a commission Right to against a remote party, and receive a dividend until his debt is satisfied, he recover fall cannot prove for more than the sum actually due on the balance of account Amount. against his immediate indorser(e).

If there is a variance between the sum stated in words in the body of a bill or note, and the sum specified in figures in the margin, the former is to be taken as the sum for which the bill or note was drawn; and being an ambiguity apparent on the face of the instrument is incapable of explanation by parol; therefore, where a bill of exchange was expressed in figures to be drawn for 2451., in words for 2001., value received, with a stamp applicable to the higher amount, it was held, that evidence to shew that the words "and forty-five" had been omitted by mistake, was not admissible, and that the sum of 2001. only could be recovered (f).

We have, in the preceding chapter, seen that a partial failure of consideration, where the amount to be deducted is unliquidated, cannot be given in evidence to reduce the damages, though the total failure is an answer to A party to whom a bill or note is delivered to get discounted, but who pays it away in discharge of a debt of his own, is liable to the party by whom the bill or note was delivered to the same amount as if he had discounted it (h).

When a bill or note is payable by instalments, and it contains a clause, In case of that on failure of payment of any one instalment the whole shall become due, Bill or the holder is entitled to recover the whole amount of the sum for which it note payawas given; but where the instrument does not contain such a clause, it is stalments. doubtful on the authorities whether the holder can legally take a verdict for more than the instalment due. According to the case of Beckwith v. Nott(i), and several other cases cited by Lord Loughborough, in giving the opinion of the court in the case of Rudder v. Price(k), the plaintiff is entitled to the whole sum for which the note was given; but according to other cases, and particularly that of Ashford v. Hand (l), the plaintiff is only entitled to the instalment due at the time of commencing the action(1). When at the time of the trial nearly all the instalments are due, the jury will fre(d) Pierson v. Dunlop, Cowp. 571, (Chit. j. 892); Steel v. Bradfield, 4 Taunt. 227, (Chit. j. 855); Jones v. Hibbert, 2 Stark. Rep. 304, (Chit. j. 1009). (e) Ex parte Bloxham, 6 Ves. 449, 600, (Ch. j. 626, 643, 685); acc. 5 Ves. 448; Cullen, 97, n. 85; Ex parte Leers, 6 Ves. 644, (Chit. j. 646); contrà, post.

(f) Saunderson v. Piper, 5 Bing. N. C. 425; see ante, 149, 150, 159, 160.

(g) Ante, 662; and see ante, 76 to 79. (h) Ougton v. West, 2 Stark. 321; see ante, 72.

(i) Beckwith v. Nott, Cro. Jac. 505; Jenk. 833, S. C.

(k) Rudder v. Price, 1 Hen. Bla. 551, (Ch. j. 476.)

(1) Ashford v. Hand, Andr. 370, (Chit. j. 288); Robinson v. Bland, 2 Burr. 1085, (Ch. j. 355).

And interest is payable only according to the law of the place where the note is drawn and is to be paid, though sucd elsewhere. Foden v. Sharp, 4 John. Rep. 193. Slacum v. Pomery, 6 Cranch, 221.

<sup>(1)</sup> It has been held in Massachusetts, that the instalments only which are due at the commencement of the action can be recovered. Tucker v. Randall, 2 Mass. Rep. 283. And upon a note payable in a certain number of years with interest, in the mean time, annually, judgment can be recovered upon default of payment of the interest, for the interest only. Hastings v. Wiswall, 8 Mass. Rep. 455. Greenleaf v. Kellogg, 3 Mass. Rep. 568. Cooley v. Rose, 8 Mass. Rep. 221. And the interest so recoverable is simple interest only upon the principal sum, although several years interest be in arrear. Hastings v. Wiswell, S Mass. Rep. 455.

l. The Principal Money.

quently, for the sake of avoiding another action, give the whole sum in damages. If the plaintiff take a verdict for more than he is entitled to recover, the court will either make him correct the verdict, and pay the costs occasioned by his misconduct, or grant a new trial(m).

Where a promissory note purports to be payable on demand, but is in truth given to secure the repayment of money by instalments, the payee having [ *679 ] already brought an action on the note, and taken a cognovit *for the instalments then due, cannot maintain a second action on the note for default in payment of the subsequent instalments (n).

II. Interest(o).

II. INTEREST.

When recoverable.

WITH respect to the recovery of interest, the general rule is, that the law does not imply a contract on the part of the debtor to pay interest on the sum he owed, nor, before the 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42, was the same recoverable, although the payment of the principal debt might have frequently been demanded(p). But by the 28th section of that statute it is enacted, "that upon all debts or sums certain, payable at a certain time or otherwise, the jury, on the trial of any issue, or on any inquisition of damages, may, if they shall think fit, allow interest to the creditor at a rate not exceeding the current rate of interest, from the time when such debts or sums certain were payable, if such debts or sums be payable by virtue of some written instrument at a certain time, or if payable otherwise, then from the time when demand of payment shall have been made in writing, so as such demand shall give notice to the debtor that interest will be claimed from the date of such demand until the term of payment; provided that interest shall be payable in all cases in which it is now payable by law." And in the case of a bill or note, independently of this act, interest is usually recoverable from the time it becomes due(1); and a bill or note payable on a day certain carries interest from that day, unless the non-payment at the appointed time was occasioned by the negligence of the holder(q); and in trover for a bill, the jury may, if they think fit, include the amount of interest in the damages, and this although there was no mention of interest in the declaration, and no special damage laid(r). But country bankers' notes payable on demand do not in general carry interest(s). When interest is made payable by the bill, &c. itself, there is no doubt of its being recoverable as a debt, in other cases it is

